Rancho Cordovans Catch the Volunteer Wave Awards

By Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - For the award winners at the 22nd Annual Community Volunteer Awards, good works and service are part of their life, it's what they do. They provide their own motivation. Chronicling just a small part of the work of the ten honorees took nearly an hour for mistress of ceremonies Ann Spade of KQCA TV. Rancho Cordovan of the year Robert McGarvey said, "It's a lot easier if you're a self-starter most of the time, people who do a lot of things. But you have to start it yourself . . . You have to go on your own." Service is not only good for those being helped, but also rewarding for those performing the service. McGarvey said about assisting the Food Locker growth, "You have a chance to meet a lot of people, you get a chance to help. There are so many complications in it .

. . . but the main thing we're after is to make sure that people that need help can get it . . . It's something that's very gratifying."

Kenyon Owens, winner of Outstanding Teen Service said, "I volunteered to be part of this community and be a change. I would much rather make a difference than be a bystander who watches the city from the sidelines." Alex Aldana and David Murray of Wake Audio, who received Distinguished Community Business Partner, said they are "Just trying to give back to the community and help out, if we can."

Jennifer and Adam Laret, who received the Distinguished Community Service award, have helped take food baskets to refugees. "The families would be so grateful and so sweet," Jennifer Laret said,

"that they would say, 'Let us make you all this food in this basket, we want to feed you.' To be able to interact with them in that way is just super-rewarding, like getting a glimpse of something that's outside of yourself."

In doing service, a person develops relationships that create a synergy between individuals and organizations so that even more

Democrats Kill Proposal to Lower Gas Prices

By Assemblyman James Gallagher

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - On Monday, March 14, Assembly Democrats killed a Republican proposal to immediately bring down the price of gas by suspending California's 51-cent-per-gallon gas tax. California drivers face the highest gas prices in the country, and at $5.74 per gallon; fuel costs here are $1.41 per gallon above the national average.

"Capitol Democrats had the chance to provide struggling Californians with immediate relief at the gas pump. They refused," said Assemblyman James Gallagher (Yuba City). "High gas prices and inflation are devastating California families, but Capitol Democrats' only solution seems to be 'buy a Tesla.'"

During the Assembly floor session, Republicans moved to advance AB 1638, which would suspend California's state gas tax for six months, and backfill the revenue from the state's budget surplus, which could exceed $69 billion. The motion was killed on a 18-40 vote, with all Republicans voting to suspend the tax. Not a single Democrat voted for the effort. ★

Prop 47: Had Enough?

By Assemblyman James Gallagher

California communities are under assault by a rise in crime that's hitting neighborhoods throughout our state.

Thieves walk into stores, fill up their backpacks and stroll out without a care in the world. Organized rings of thieves are committing brazen smash-and-grabs. Open air drug use and fentanyl overdoses are common on our streets at high-end retail boutiques. Soft-on-crime policies have failed Californians.

Proposition 47 is a huge culprit, reducing penalties for many crimes to a slap on the wrist. Now, a majority of Californians support bringing back more serious consequences for people who break the law.

Californians deserve to live in communities safe from violent crime and rampant theft. That is why I teamed up with Assemblymember Kevin Kiley and a dozen other legislators to introduce AB 1599 that would repeal Proposition 47 and rein in California's crime wave. Enough is enough! It's time to start holding criminals accountable. ★

Rancho Cordova Little League Kicks-off its 68th Season

Story and photos by Rick Sloan

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The Rancho Cordova Little League (RCLL) officially started its 68th season on Saturday, March 12.

The opening day ceremony started off with the player and coaches parade from the outfield to home plate, finishing in the infield. Rancho Cordova City Councilmember Garrett Gatewood announced the 42 teams comprised of boys and girls ages 4 to 14. This year there are a total of 490 players and 175 coaches, returning to the pre-pandemic registration numbers of 2019.

This was the first time in three years the organization was able to have an opening day celebration because of the pandemic. The league president this year is Cassie Reyes. "I'm looking forward to an exciting season to serve alongside of a great board of directors in hopes of offering a fun, educational, competitive baseball experience," Reyes said. "Together we are going to make this a very special season for our RCLL family. Inside the fence we play hard to win and outside the fence we are all friends and part of one community."

Rancho Cordova Little League Treasurer Dennis Lamantia has worked hard making sure that the league was able to secure funding from the City of Rancho Cordova's Community Enhancement Fund (Measure H) which helped the league successfully survive the challenges that COVID-19 threw at them. Lamantia is optimistic that player participation will be growing each year

Local Attorney Targets Frivolous ADA Lawsuits

By Thomas J. Sullivan

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - A Carmichael attorney, Catherine Corfee of the Corfee Stone Law Corp. (Corfee Stone) is cautioning local businesses on Fair Oaks Blvd., and Sacramento County to be especially alert to an individual who is known throughout California for filing frequent ADA lawsuits against small businesses for the purpose of recovering attorney's fees.

Signed into law in July 1990 by President George H.W. Bush, the Americans with Disability Act (ADA) aims to make buildings and transportation accessible for those with disabilities and to protect them from discrimination in employment. Store owners and restaurants can often face a fine of $4,000 for each individual ADA violation.

According to Corfee, the plaintiff, Brian Whitaker, a quadriplegic who uses a wheelchair, has filed more than 1,000 ADA lawsuits across California since the COVID-19 pandemic began last year, according to published news reports.

In his recent filings, Whitaker alleges that he was "barred from full and equal access to the business, was denied access because of insufficient ADA parking, a non-ADA dining table, and/or the sales counter was too high."

Attorney Dennis Price, of the San Diego law firm Potter Handy, which has a specialized division called the Center for Disability Access and which has represented Mr. Whitaker, did not respond to the Messenger's request for comment.

In her blog, Corfee outlines steps which local business owners and restaurants should be taking to protect themselves against serial ADA filings by individuals such as Whitaker, who in her opinion, "seek only money and never return to patronize the business they may sue."

"As of January 20, 2022, our law firm tracked plaintiff Brian Whitaker's recent ADA complaints which have been filed against businesses in Fair Oaks, and Sacramento," Corfee said. "Many of these targeted businesses are located on Fair Oaks Blvd."

If a business is mailed a notice of an ADA complaint in any form they should take action quickly and promptly seek legal counsel before responding, Corfee said.

"If a defendant does not respond to the ADA complaint, the plaintiff such as Whitaker, who alleges an ADA violation against a business owner, can obtain a default judgment and possibly attorney's fees," she said. The likely cost for legal defense in an ADA case when not taken in time, could drain a business financially.

Corfee, a graduate of UC Berkeley and the McGeorge School of Law, has been in professional legal practice since 1991. She has practiced ADA and California disability access law since 1985 and has published case law on the subject. She also worked for two prior United States Magistrate judges in the Eastern District Court of California.

"Most everyone chooses to settle with Mr. Whitaker because of the expensive cost of litigating," she said.

Many ADA cases can become a "game" for attorney's fees as the disabled person's attorney tries to protract litigation to earn more money in fees to later reclaim such in a settlement, a motion, and/or at trial.

Her firm has lowered its price to file a motion to dismiss an ADA claim when the defendant makes the perfect ADA changes and implements an ADA policy and procedure, she said.

"The only remedy under the ADA is "injunctive relief," Corfee explains, which is a "fix-it order" plus attorneys' fees and costs. "The best thing a business can do is to fix (cited ADA discrepancies) perfectly, and in advance of a lawsuit," she said.

"We can also prepare for our business clients ADA policy and procedural manuals, much like an employee handbook," she said.

Corfee said she recommends the retention of an ADA compliance expert, such as a Certified Access Specialist (CASp), to physically inspect a business or commercial facility to provide specific access recommendations.

In Corfee's opinion, business owners should also think twice, however, about hiring just any random CASp.

While a CASp may be an expert on the ADA access standards, they are often not attorneys who are licensed to read and fully keep up with the many court decisions interpreting the ADA and California Building Codes," she said.

"They should also hire an experienced CASp who will not "throw the book at them and overwhelm them with too many codes to fix," she said.

Corfee recommended her clients hire an ADA attorney to oversee the CASp so that his or her report is not discoverable by the plaintiff.

"If they get a hold of a CASp report of "all" potential ADA violations, then they can use it against the defendant and amend the lawsuit to add more barriers," she said.

"Having an attorney direct the CASp makes his report "privileged" pursuant to the attorney-consultant privilege is recommended," she said.

Corfee offers four helpful tips which business owners should follow to ensure ADA compliance or properly respond to a filed complaint.

Tips include:

1. Retain a CASp who has litigation experience, been deposed and who has filed declarations in courts or as an expert.
2. Retain a good ADA attorney who cares about winning, more than collecting your money and ensure the attorney directs the CASp, so that the CASp's report is privileged per the attorney-consultant privilege, and provides solutions, rather than just identifies ADA violations.
3. Take steps to fix the ADA matter within 120 days or within 180 days if a building permit is needed. "If the business does have a CASp inspection, and fixes the most important barriers in 120 days, or a disabled plaintiff does sue, a business may not be found presumptively liable for statutory damages," Corfee said.

4. Have the CASp return before 120 days to write the A+ report demonstrating the business owner has perfect ADA compliance, and save all receipts, bids, payments made, as there are tax credits available for completed ADA work.

"At Corfee Stone, we feel that we know the best CASps, and can offer excellent alternative solutions to help business owners minimize their legal expenses when they have to make specific ADA improvements," she said.

Corfee said she prefers to perform her own physical site inspections and share her knowledge of the California building code.

"Many ADA attorneys rely solely on their (designated) CASp and do not know the codes themselves, as I do," she said.

Clients who hire her law firm can count on her expertise and experience to develop a keen strategy to leverage settlements.

good can be accomplished. Many of those receiving awards share the feelings voiced by Elizabeth Brick, pastor of United Methodist Church, winner of Distinguished Service by a Faith Community. She said, "No one project is done by one person. Who we are and what we do is a community effort every single day."

Shelly Blanchard, executive director of Cordova Community Council, presented the special recognition to Don Nottoli, who will retire at the end of this year. "Although he is in his 28th year as a County Supervisor," Blanchard said, "he is in his 43rd year of service with the County. That is nearly a half century of service to Rancho Cordova and beyond." Nottoli responded to the crowd, "I want to thank you for your friendship and your kindness, and for your willingness to step forward and make this city and certainly this community what it is . . .

I will always know that I have friends among you and that as a community you will prosper and will thrive. And I just say, God bless the volunteers, God bless Rancho Cordova and all of you."

County Animal Shelter Reopens to the Public

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - On Wednesday, Feb. 23, Sacramento County's Bradshaw Animal Shelter made the transition to fully reopen to the public—doing away with adoption appointments and restricted hours.

Like many businesses, Sacramento County's Bradshaw Animal Shelter has been closed to the public due to the ongoing COVID-19 pandemic. The shelter initially closed its doors in March 2020 in response to state-mandated health regulations. While shelter staff continued to provide outstanding care for the shelter animals and animals in the community, the public was not able to access the shelter for services including adoptions. Furthermore, social distancing mandates and essential worker guidelines called for understaffing and loss of volunteers. This resulted in overcrowding of the animal population, which was temporarily resolved by the shelter's foster program and the implementation of a new public has been very positive," said Bradshaw Animal Shelter Director, Annette Bedsworth. "We welcome everyone to stop in and visit our shelter pets and beautiful facility. Help us continue our lifesaving mission and adopt today!"

Here is what you should know before you go:

The shelter is open Tuesday-Sunday, 12 p.m. - 5 p.m. (excluding holidays); The shelter is located at 3839 Bradshaw Rd, Sacramento, CA 95827; Adoptions are first-come, first-serve. Consider arriving early; You are free to browse the shelter without assistance from staff; Adoption applications and specials are available on the shelter's website; You can view adoptable animals before you arrive by visiting the adoptable animals webpage; Pet licensing is available in-person, online and via mail; If you cannot adopt, please consider volunteering, fostering or donating.

October," said Liz Bellas, Director of Regional Parks. "We welcome the opportunity to show off some of the amenities and amazing versatility of the Regional Parks system."

Last year's sold-out event set a record with 145,000 attendees and was estimated to have brought in $30 million to the local economy, according to Visit Sacramento. Roughly 75 percent of attendees traveled to Aftershock from outside the region.

"Aftershock's extraordinary line-up this year - including one of my favorite bands, Foo Fighters - shows just how committed we are to enhancing live music experiences in Sacramento County," said First District Supervisor, Phil Serna.

Business Outlook and Economic Forecast – Promising and Proactive

Story and photos by Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - About 165 guests attended the Business Outlook & Economic Forecast at the Marriott Sacramento Rancho Cordova. Sponsored by the Rancho Cordova Chamber of Commerce, the event started with buffet breakfast and progressed quickly into a local report by Chamber CEO and President Diann Rogers.

Rogers compared the 4th quarter of 2020 with the 4th quarter of 2021 indicating, among other things, an increase in building permits of 61.8%, of which 72% was for new production homes, employment up 2.7%, sales tax revenue up 61.8%, and transient occupancy tax revenue up 82.3%. Building was down 8.3%.

The Chamber's Business Confidence Survey comparing February 2022 with January 2021 showed that respondents expected, in the coming 12 months, an increase in sales and profits and improvement in local, state and national business conditions. The majority felt that employment would stay about the same. To see the results, e-mail Diann Rogers, DHRogers@RanchoCordova.org.

Of the two keynote speakers, Matt Levin spoke first. Levin is senior reporter for American Public Media and contributes to NPR's Marketplace. He spoke on The Future of the American City, addressing five topics: (1) The consequences of remote work (many); (2) How millennials will reshape the 'burbs' (more expensive, retrofitted public transit, change in demographic) (3) Consequences for public transit (ridership way down, gas prices may spur more use); (4) "Project Homekey" and Sacramento Mayor Steinberg's "right to housing" proposal; and (5) Other: labor shortage, inflation, climate change, equity and inclusion. In a private interview,

From left, SMUD personnel Irene Garcia, community resource liaison, and strategic account advisors Joey Penneman and Trevor Derrett had a front row seat at the Business Outlook and Economic Forecast. Penneman said one of the messages he received from the event was "Things are looking up."

Levin said about his vocation, "You need to be, I think, a little more creative with radio, need to be a little funnier than in print, basically. I like it a lot." The second speaker, M. Scott Powell, spoke on What Does the Data Show? He is senior vice president at the Greater Sacramento Economic Council (GSEC). His presentation, assisted by the City of Rancho Cordova's own economic development manager Amanda Norton, emphasized that local economy is driven by people and residents, not just companies. The Greater Sacramento Area has a five-year projected annual population growth rate (beginning in 2021) higher than Portland, San Francisco, San Diego, San Jose, and Los Angeles, also higher than those cities in projected job growth. Key focuses for the next three years are felt to be growth, sustainability, equity and competitiveness. Check CityofRanchoCordova.org for updates on current and projected projects.

Powell revealed in an interview that he wanted to be an airline pilot when he was in high school, following in his dad's footsteps. However, he saw what the airlines were going through in the 90s and took the advice of his father who said, "I'll support you, but this is a really tough racket."

Deputy city manager Micah Runner commented on the talks: "A lot of folks and a lot of cities are wondering what the future of office looks like," Runner said. "We look forward to figuring out the best way to move forward."

Rogers was more than satisfied with the way the event turned out. "I thought we had a wide variety of topics that were covered that were all super-relevant," Rogers said. "This is what the Chamber should be doing for our business community, providing this kind of information to our businesses, to our members."

As for what will occur in the coming years, Rogers said she is not in the business of predicting, then proceeded to say, "I'm very optimistic. People are cautious, which means they're looking at things through a lens of not being reactive but being proactive . . . I think that's the way I would describe the next three years, it's going to be proactive." ★

“More Tax Please?”

Commentary
by Bruce Lee

Local government is jiggling your front door handle ... “Anyone home? It’s election year. We want more taxes please.” Yes, they are knocking and soon many tax measures will be proposed.

And, here’s an old proposal in new clothes! A 40 year, transportation half percent sales tax hike for Sacramento County. First proposed in 2016 and voted down; then resurfaced in 2020 to be pulled off the ballot at the last moment when the Sacramento Transportation Authority realized it would again miss the two-thirds threshold for passage.

Here’s the twist ... rather than local government proposing a special use tax again (requiring a 2/3 majority vote); let’s con the voters into taxing themselves! Let’s use the “citizen initiative” process to put the tax on the ballot, which now only requires a simple majority vote due to a recent array of court decisions.

In 1978 California voters, through the historic Proposition 13, established that the state legislature approve tax increases with a two-thirds vote requirement. In 1996 this was strengthened by Proposition 218 requiring local tax increases to have voter approval – a simple majority for general fund revenue, and two-thirds for special purpose taxes.

Then a 2017 California Supreme Court opinion commented, “(W)e will not lightly apply such restrictions on local governments to voter initiatives.” And, the race was on! A possible loophole was found for special interests to get past the two-thirds vote requirement! In 2018 two San Francisco test cases popped up – both taxes placed on the ballot by citizen initiative – one taxed business for homeless issues and one taxed commercial property for childcare and early education. Both failed to receive two-third approval, the early education passed by only 50.87%.

Both taxes were challenged in court, where a local judge and San Francisco appellate court upheld the taxes as valid since placed on the ballot by initiative. Interestingly, test cases in an Oakland parcel tax for education and a Fresno sales tax for parks were voided by local judges citing the two-thirds approval requirement. Then in June 2020, the California Supreme Court refused to hear an appeal of the San Francisco taxes – thereby allowing the appellate court decision stand. AND, THE RACE IS ON!!

Now, any special interest group with some cash – such as public employee unions - can push taxes that benefit themselves. If I can convince the bare majority to tax others for some “feel good” topic, then I’m the winner and feel no pain. Taxing commercial buildings for early childhood education has no relationship. I can tax business or the perceived wealthy to “save the whales” (or whatever issue has the emotional attention of the majority). All I have to do is pay enough signature gathers in front of Wal-Mart, and viola – I have a tax proposal.

Now, if this was truly a “citizen” initiative, getting all those initiative signatures to qualify is difficult. But, a special interest group with millions in the bank, that’s easy stuff!

Back to the just announced county-wide “citizen” initiative for the half-percent, 40 year tax coming to a Wal-Mart near you; it’s sponsored by “A Committee for a Better Sacramento”. Wow, that sounds wonderful. And, it’s lead by the “California Alliance for Jobs”, who championed Senate Bill 1 increasing gasoline sales tax under Governor Jerry Brown. Per state filings, in January they had $4.4 million on hand – plenty to qualify a “citizen” initiative. But, believe me, people don’t donate $4.4 million for feel-good rainbows. They are investing $4.4 million to get a return on the back-end. Follow the money! For example, developers will profit from the long-desired connector between Highway 99 and 50.

By Bob McGarvey

The Rancho Cordova Chamber’s “Business Outlook & Economic Forecast - 2022” was presented to the residents and the business of Rancho Cordova on Friday, March 11, 2022. It was nice to see that the economy of our city, the state, and our country are back on the up-spring again. We have many new businesses coming into Rancho Cordova, and at the moment I don’t have the number of new homes being built. The growth of our city is outpacing all of the other cities in our region again, and I am looking forward to the new numbers of the population of City of Rancho Cordova. Our numbers usually show up in May.

I could complain about the price of gas going up, but that isn’t going to change the price. I could complain about the lack of rain and snow, but so far that hasn’t brought down any rain or snow. And I could complain about... well I guess complain about lots of things, but like it says in the song, “When I’m worried, and I can’t sleep, I count my blessings instead of sheep, and I fall a sleep counting my blessings.”

And Another Thing

And I could complain about ...

We are very fortunate to be protected by the Sacramento Yolo Mosquito Vector Control District. The General Manager Gary Goodman, spoke to the board members on Tuesday, March 15 about what our district is doing. Here is part of his report, “The season is picking up as we approach warmer temperatures. We won’t do mosquito testing for West Nile until May as we usually don’t see any activity this early in the season. However, Orange County found their first positive mosquito collection last week-the first in the state for 2022.”

He continued, “I spoke with the Pan African Mosquito Control Association at the AMCA meeting last week about hosting an exchange program with their staff this summer. They want to create a collaboration with the US and we discussed helping train some of their employees for a month here in our District. I hope to have more information soon on the logistics and costs. We are planning on having printed copies to send to your city council members and should have them available in a few weeks.”

As you can see, there are some other things which need to be watched as the year goes on. The West Nile Virus is still going to be around, and there are other diseases which haven’t gone away either. We can always find something to worry about, or at least pay attention to.

From Bob McGarvey, God bless, and we’ll see you next time. ★

Nielsen’s Water Bill Killed: ‘It’s Absurd and Irresponsible’

Jim Nielsen

Office of Senator Jim Nielsen

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - As California’s precious water continues to be flushed out to sea, Democrats killed Senate Bill 890, a measure Senator Jim Nielsen (R-Red Bluff) authored to secure funding to build and repair critical water infrastructure.

“Another historic drought, billions in extra funding and legislative Democrats turn their backs on investing in critical water projects that affect the lives of all Californians? It’s absurd and irresponsible,” said Nielsen.

SB 890, jointly authored with Senator Andreas Borgeas (R-Fresno), would have advanced the goals of Proposition 1 (2014) by making significant investments in California’s aboveground water storage and conveyance infrastructure. Specifically, SB 890 would have established the Water Storage and Conveyance Fund to provide:

$2.6 billion to complete the funding of Sites Reservoir in Colusa County; and, $685 million to repair the Friant-Kern/Delta-Mendota Canals and the San Luis Field/San Joaquin Divisions of the California Aqueduct.

Completion of Sites Reservoir would ensure an additional 1.5 million acre-feet of water is stored during wet years and made available to cities, farms and the environment during times of drought.

California’s Central Valley canals are in severe need of repair. Canal diversion and conveyance capacity have degraded due to substantial land subsidence caused by regional groundwater overdraft.

The Legislature had the opportunity to fund these critical water infrastructure projects using taxpayer revenue that has already been collected. This is because under state law, infrastructure projects may be financed using revenue from the General Fund when it exceeds the State Appropriations Limit, or Gann limit.

The need for reliable and dependable above ground water storage and conveyance infrastructure is vital. The completion of Sites Reservoir and repairs on the Central Valley canals will go a long way toward preserving public health, protecting the environment and maintaining economic viability.

SB 890 was killed in the Senate Natural Resources and Water Committee.

CDAА Supports Newsom’s Care Court for Mentally Ill Homeless

CDAА Press Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - While we are still awaiting details, the California District Attorneys Association (CDAА) supports the concept of Governor Gavin Newsom’s Care Court; a proposal that would provide mandatory treatment for mentally ill homeless people.

“This innovative and humane approach would help the thousands of Californians on the street suffering from mental illness who don’t have the wherewithal to volunteer for medical and psychiatric care,” said Greg Totten, CDAА’s Chief Executive Officer.

In his State of the State Address, Governor Newsom proposed Care Court, which he said would create civil court divisions in every county that could have the power to mandate mental health treatment for people with debilitating psychosis.

“By providing new treatment options to those who are most vulnerable and most in need, California can humanely address the human suffering connected to homelessness while also improving public safety for all of our communities,” said Jeff Reisig, Yolo County District Attorney and President of CDAА.

The Governor has not yet provided details of the plan but suggested it could become state law this year. We look forward to being a part of a robust conversation about a policy that is desperately needed.

The California District Attorneys Association is a statewide training and advocacy organization representing elected district attorneys, city attorneys with criminal divisions, and more than 3,500 prosecutors. ★

Newsom Paints Rosy Picture, Ignores Big Issues

By Dan Walters
CALMatters.org

California is a shining example of economic and social progress, a beacon to the rest of the nation and the rest of the world.

Doubt it? It must be true because Gov. Gavin Newsom said it Tuesday in his fourth State of the State address, declaring, “now, in the midst of so much turmoil with stacking stresses and dramatic social and economic change, California is doing what we have done for generations, lighting out the territory ahead of the rest, expanding the horizon of what’s possible.”

He called it “The California Way” and said it “means rejecting old binaries and finding new solutions to big problems ...”

However, Newsom ignored many “big problems” as he portrayed a state on the cutting edge of virtually everything positive.

By any measure, the state has an immense shortage of housing that has driven costs through the roof and given California the nation’s highest poverty rate. But neither the housing crisis nor the poverty rate crossed his lips.

He also sidestepped another crisis — a drought that threatens to devastate California’s agricultural industry and, in the longer run, clobber the entire economy.

Instead, Newsom portrayed the economy in the rosier terms, saying, “When it comes to the economy, California is unmatched.

“We dominate in research, innovation, entrepreneurialism, venture capital — and remain the world’s fifth largest economy. Our GDP growth has consistently outpaced not only the rest of the country — but most other large, western democracies. Nearly a million new jobs in the last 12 months. In December alone, 25% of America’s jobs were created right here in California. More new business starts during the worst of the pandemic than Texas and Florida combined.”

Sounds great, right? But Newsom avoided the fact that California has the nation’s highest unemployment rate at 6.5%, nearly three percentage points higher than the national rate and three times as high as some states.

How about education? “I’m talking about a real transformation of our public education system, like we’re doing right here in California,” Newsom claimed. “By creating choices — real choices — for parents and unprecedented support for their kids.”

What about the devastation that COVID-19 visited upon the state’s nearly six million public school students, and the widening “achievement gap” between poor students and their more advantaged classmates? What about California’s chronically poor performance on nationwide academic tests? Not a word.

Newsom bragged about the state’s leading role in reducing greenhouse gases and reducing the dominance of hydrocarbons in transportation and utilities.

“At a time when we’ve been heating up and burning up, one thing we cannot do is repeat the mistakes of the past,” Newsom said. “Embracing polluters. Drilling even more oil, which only leads to even more extreme weather, more extreme drought, more wildfire.”

However, he said nothing about California’s looming shortage of electrical power, already evident on hot summer days. Nor has he spelled out how the economic impacts of the conversion to an all-electric society will be alleviated.

Newsom did mention crime, at least in passing, but offered faint solace to victims of the state’s rising crime rates, particularly the wave of homicide in the major cities.

“Our approach is to be neither indifferent to the realities of the present day, nor revert to heavy-handed policies that have marked the failures of the past,” Newsom said, citing more money for both law enforcement and “new programs to tackle the root causes of crime, doubling down on proven violence prevention programs.”

Bottom line: As a State of State speech, it was shockingly deficient. It sounded more like a kickoff to his re-election campaign.

California’s Green Energy Mania Threatens Grid Reliability

Commentary
by Ted Gaines

California is failing at the government basics. Public safety, homelessness, roads, and water storage are all in shambles. But as long as that shameful list is, it’s about to get longer. With summer around the corner, when demand is at its zenith, our energy supply will not be up to the task.

California’s headlong rush towards zero-carbon power will cost consumers through wildly expensive electricity rates and lower grid reliability. That’s a lose-lose for California families and businesses who want to avoid blackouts and avoid energy poverty.

Golden State politicians and Progressives — groups with an almost total overlap — live in dread fear of possible changes in weather decades in the future. Instead of planning for localized mitigations to deal with changing climate, they’ve decided to remake our entire energy sector, replacing affordable, dependable sources with their opposites.

A case in point is the closing of the Diablo

Canyon nuclear power plant, scheduled to stop operations in 2025. Despite disingenuous claims that PG&E is choosing to close this facility, they are being forced into closure by California regulators who can make relicensing extraordinarily time consuming and expensive.

How important is Diablo Canyon? It currently produces about as much power as all the rooftop solar in the entire state. And unlike solar and wind, this power is available on-demand, 24/7. PG&E, the plant’s owner, alleges it will replace all the lost power with so-called green, renewable resources, but what if it can’t?

The North American Electric Reliability Corporation (NERC), a non-profit dedicated to promoting grid reliability, thinks it won’t. NERC notes that California already has insufficient reserve power to meet demand during a heat wave. Closing Diablo Canyon will only contribute to declining reserve margins, according to NERC.

All of that is to say that blackouts are coming when it gets hot in California, as it does every summer. Don’t be surprised when your AC won’t click on, or you’re burning candles for light in this supposedly advanced state. The blackouts are entirely predictable and a direct result of California energy policy making our grid unreliable by replacing on-demand resources with intermittent ones.

And remember,

California is pushing people into electric cars through incentives and government decrees. Many people will be charging up those EVs when they get home from work, right after solar energy production peaks. We are creating dreadful imbalances that will lead to energy rationing in one of the wealthiest areas in the world.

Venture capitalist Marc Andreessen recently tweeted about the Ukrainian crisis and its effect on our energy markets and independence, “Build 1,000 new state of the art nuclear power plants in the US and Europe, right now. We won’t, but we should.” He’s right all the way around regarding energy independence and reliance on aggressive rogue states such as Russia for our energy.

But it’s the last line that hits closest to home in California. We need to reverse our green energy mania that prices electricity like a luxury good and guarantees blackouts. Dependable, affordable energy is within our grasp if we commit to predictable, on-demand resources such as nuclear and natural gas. We won’t, but we should.

Senator Ted Gaines (Ret.) was elected to represent the Board of Equalization’s First District. He is a leading taxpayer advocate and is committed to providing trustworthy and transparent representation for nearly ten million constituents. For more information, visit www.boe.ca.gov/Gaines. ★

Bera Supports Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky

I met with Ukrainian President Volodymyr Zelensky in February to reaffirm the United States strong commitment to the Ukrainian people in the wake of Russia's unprovoked invasion. Photo provided by Office of Congressman Ami Bera, MD

From the Office of Congressman Ami Bera, M.D.

It has been a busy few weeks in Sacramento County and in Washington, DC. That's why I wanted to send you a quick update on how I'm serving you in Congress.

Russian Invasion of Ukraine

I join Americans across the country in expressing outrage and horror at Vladimir Putin's unprovoked and deadly invasion of Ukraine. This invasion is not only an attack on Ukraine's sovereignty and independence, but also an assault on global peace, international law, and the values and freedoms we cherish as Americans.

As the world's longest-standing democracy, the United States must stand up for freedom and democracy worldwide. The Ukrainian people have now lived in a democracy for 30 years and have shown that they will not accept authoritarian leaders who seek to destroy and reverse the important progress they have made.

I was proud to visit Kyiv, Ukraine with a bipartisan Congressional Delegation in February. During my visit, it was clear to me that the people of Ukraine want a future of freedom, sovereignty, and the ability to choose their own path forward. I spoke on the House floor about my visit to Ukraine—I encourage you to listen.

As Chairman of the House Foreign Affairs Subcommittee on Asia, I'm closely following the situation in Ukraine and am receiving regular briefings from U.S. officials.

I fully support the Biden Administration's decision to implement strong and severe sanctions on Russia, including on the country's oligarchs and financial institutions which have already isolated Putin from the world stage. We must also continue to support the Ukrainian people with humanitarian aid and military assistance.

Sacramento County is the proud home to one of the largest populations of Ukrainian Americans in the entire country. My office has been working around the clock to assist Americans trapped in Ukraine.

If you or someone you know needs help leaving Ukraine, or assistance with an immigration application, please email my team. We are here to assist. ★

DTSC PUBLIC NOTICE

Department of Toxic Substances Control – Our mission is to protect the people, communities, and environment of California from harmful chemicals by cleaning up contaminated sites, enforcing hazardous waste laws, and compelling the development of safer products.

EMERGENCY PERMIT AMPAC FINE CHEMICALS HAZEL AND HIGHWAY 50 RANCHO CORDOVA, CA 95741

The California Department of Toxic Substances Control (D T S C) has issued an Emergency Permit to Ampac Fine Chemicals (Ampac) for onsite treatment of expired chemicals located at Hazel and Highway 50, Rancho Cordova, CA 95741. The items treated consisted of the following itemized containers: (1) Acrylic Acid, (4) Acrylic Anhydride, (1) Acrolein, (10) Acryloyl Chloride, (6) 2-Methyltetrahydrofuran, (2) Tetrahydrofuran, (1) 1,4 Dioxane, (1) Tetraethylene Glycol Dimethyl Ether, (2) 2,2 Azobisisobutyronitrile, (23) Diphenylphosphoryl Azide, and (3) Borane THF.

The Clean Harbors Environmental Services (C H E S) company has been contracted to conduct this treatment. The chemicals are potentially reactive and unsafe for transport in their current state. The treatment involves the addition of liquid solution to the container to stabilize the chemical. Once the chemicals are treated, they will be transported offsite for proper management. D T S C has determined that the chemicals pose an imminent and substantial endangerment to human health and the environment if not properly managed. Therefore, an emergency permit has been issued. This Emergency Permit is effective from March 18, 2022 through May 18, 2022. The Emergency Permit includes measures to minimize any adverse impact to the community and the environment.

CALIFORNIA ENVIRONMENTAL QUALITY ACT (C E Q A): D T S C has determined that the issuance of this permit is exempt from the requirements of C E Q A and has filed a Notice of Exemption (N O E) with the State Clearinghouse. The Emergency Permit, N O E, and Ampac's request for this project are available for review at the file room located at:

Little League Kicks-off its 68th Season

going forward.

It was 60 years ago that I started playing organized baseball and the memories are still with me. The friends that one makes along with the special bond that one develops with a coach is something to cherish for a lifetime.

It never mattered whether you won or lost because you were having so much fun in the dugout as well as on the field. The free hotdog and soda each player received after each game conditioned them to think about the game of baseball they enjoyed as kids when they later became adults. We were so lucky to have the opportunity to play this game.

The little league complex is located adjacent to Ahlstrom Park and Cordova Lane Elementary School. Come on out on a Saturday morning and enjoy some baseball and a hotdog from the snack bar. I promise you will enjoy watching the talented young players we have in Rancho Cordova. Many of these players in the past have gone on to play for Cordova High and beyond. ★
