California voters have the brand new districts they'll use to elect their members of Congress and state legislators, after the state's independent redistricting commission voted unanimously Monday (December 20, 2021) night to approve its final maps.

These districts take effect with the June 2022 primaries and continue for the next decade. Redistricting hap-numbers, the commission must comply with the federal Voting Rights blasted the "unilateral disarmament" Act, ensuring that no minority group's vote is drowned out. And to create fair maps, the commission didn't consider current district lines and isn't supposed to weigh partisan politics. In some cases, it puts incumbents into the same district, or forces others to appeal to new voters to be re-elected.

Particularly on the congressional evel, that could help shift the balance of power between Democrats and Republicans. In the U.S. House, three California Democrats are among the 23 Democrats nationally who have already opted not to run for re-election in 2022. Combined with redistricting done by Republican-led legislatures in other states, that could tip the House in favor of the GOP.

Civic Center Inches Closer to a Reality

Some California Democrats have of their power, though an initial analysis by the Cook Political Report says the new congressional map helps Democrats.

The commission was under the pressure of a court-ordered deadline to submit the maps to the secretary of state by Dec. 27 despite a nearly six-month delay in the release of census data. In the last few weeks, the panel held a number of marathon sessions late into the night to hear public comment and try to incorporate competing testimony into the maps. "There was robust discussion in terms of how these maps should be drawn. We know that not everyone will be happy, but I feel that they are fair maps for Californians," she told Continued on page 6

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The proposed Mills Crossing Civic Center has been one of the city's most debated topics in recent memory, and as it once more came up for discussion at the December 6 City Council Meeting, it again elicited heated debate. In fact, other items on the agenda were pushed to a later date to ensure the subject got its due notice.

By Chris Ching

With the hope of securing a Development Agreement from the City, Korin Crawford of developer Griffin Swinerton gave a presentation which touched on the previously requested expanded outdoor space as well as the next steps regarding the development process and proposed deal structures for the various components of the project: the overall land development, the community facilities, and the housing amongst other items.

The housing component itself has provoked the most ire from residents-many of whom appeared in person at City Hall or through Zoom to voice their displeasure.

"Pick a lane. Is this a civic center or a housing center?" asked Fayzah Mughal. Not enough Council transparency and not engaging the community enough were also put forth by residents as issues. One bluntly said the assemblage should be fired.

Perhaps feeling the heat, the Council went about debunking the accusations.

City Manager Cyrus Abhar and Deputy City Manager Micah Runner detailed the history of the project emphasizing housing had always been on the table and not some last minute add-on.

The City Manager also addressed the lack of success in the past in securing interest from private investors that could help revitalize Folsom Boulevard. He said this current plan (including the housing) can bring the outside interest the area needs.

Mayor Garret Gatewood held up the many community coffees he had with residents after the previous Council Meeting discussion as proof he had personally reached out to the community. 'I didn't want to feel I didn't do my due diligence," he said while echoing the words of the City Manager that the site will reinvigorate everything around it.

Councilmember Siri Pulipati acknowledged the work done by residents who submitted their own site proposal but said in her research (as well as the research of the Council and city staff as a whole) without housing there would be no way to pay for such an endeavor. The Council also explained how other suggestions wouldn't be feasible.

Referring to bulk emails decrying the work thus far done on the project sent to the Council that featured boilerplate copy with no signature as well as gossip on social media, David Sander called such things "damaging" to the community. He stated the Civic Center proposal was the best thing he'd seen in the close to twenty years that the matter had been discussed and would bring a "higher quality of life for everybody and more economic opportunity." Sander said helping to make something like this into a reality was why he wanted to join the local government in the first place.

Vice Mayor Donald Terry tried to assuage fears that Rancho Cordova residents wouldn't have access to the housing. He also emphatically stated that the specific design is still in flux, but he did believe that the much desired more open space was a "recipe for disaster" describing it as increasing an already present homeless problem.

The Vice Mayor was enthusiastic about how the proposal dwarfed other Civic Centers in Sacramento and surrounding cities.

The Civic Center discussion concluded with a vote to hold another community meeting while the Development Agreement is being finalized.

Named Worst 'Judicial Hellhole'

CALA Press Release

CORONA DEL MAR, CA (MPG) - California is the worst "Judicial Hellhole®" in the country, according to a new report.

The American Tort Reform Foundation (ATRF), in its 20th anniversary edition of the annual report, says the state's atrocious litigation environment and government officials' determination to expand liability across the board are to blame for its return to the top.

California has been in the Top 3 worst Judicial Hellholes® for a decade and was named an "Everlasting Judicial Hellhole" this summer.

"We have received this unfortunate honor, not once, but 16 times over the past 20 years," said Victor Gomez, executive director, California Citizens Against Lawsuit Abuses. "The result? Californians pay for lawsuit abuse and excessive tort costs in the form of an annual "tort tax" of nearly $575 per person. The costs of this litigation also result in nearly 200,000 jobs lost each year.

"I was a franchise owner on the central coast for 17 years. My community was always supporting me, my business, and other locally owned businesses. That's what makes a community strong. Yet, we are often the targets of these type of shakedown lawsuits. I feared the threat of a lawsuit. There was nothing to protect me.'

According to Tiger Joyce, President, American Tort Reform Association, "Although still referred to as the "Golden State, California is just about the worst place in the country to be a small business owner. Between frivolous lawsuits abusing state and federal laws and onerous business regulations that create nearly endless opportunities for unscrupulous trial lawyers, it's easy to see why business owners are making a mass exodus out of the state."

California's Private Attorneys General Act (PAGA) authorizes "aggrieved employees" to file lawsuits regarding labor code violations and to seek civil penalties. However, 75% of the penalties paid by non-compliant employers go to the state's Labor and Workforce Development Agency. Less than 25% goes to the "aggrieved employees" after their lawyers take one-third or more of the remaining 25%.

"The intent behind PAGA was to protect workers, but it has done little to help them. Employees have actually lost flexibility in their work lives as a result," Joyce said. "Most of these lawsuits revolve around technical nitpicks and don't claim any real injury. Trial lawyers have turned PAGA into a loophole around arbitration clauses in employment contracts which typically limit expensive class actions that only benefit the lawyers."

ATRF says frivolous lawsuits filed under the federal Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA) are another issue plaguing California's civil justice system. 2020 brought a 22% increase in ADA filings while nationally, such filings decreased. 2021 is on pace to be a record-breaking year in California for ADA filings. California has more expensive penalties for ADA violations due to the state's Unruh Civil Rights Act. The Act includes a $4,000 fine per violation, which other states don't have, plus attorneys' fees.

"Often, these alleged 'violations' are as minor as a mirror that is an inch too high or a sidewalk angled one degree off," Joyce said. "Unfortunately, businesses are rarely given a warning or even a customer complaint about noncompliance until sue-happy trial lawyers take them straight to court. As small businesses struggle to stay afloat, litigation costs alone could very well put them out of business for good."

ATRF reports that businesses of all sizes are under attack in California, though. This year, Amazon was held liable for injuries caused by a product sold by a third-party seller. The California Court of Appeals used a 2020 case, which the state Supreme Court refused to review, as precedent.

"The unfortunate reality is that where California goes, the country tends to follow," Joyce said. "The unintended consequences of this precedent could very well have a chilling effect on ingenuity and entrepreneurship across the nation. This is especially dangerous given California courts' willingness to allow questionable science as expert evidence in trials."

Founded in 1986, ATRA is a nonpartisan, nonprofit organization and is the nation's first organization dedicated exclusively to reforming the civil justice system through education and legislative enactment. ATRA acts as a nationwide network of state-based liability reform coalitions backed by 142,000 grassroots supporters. ATRA works to bring greater fairness, predictability and efficiency to America's civil justice system. Those efforts have resulted in the enactment of state and federal laws that make the system fairer for everyone. ★

Homeschooling Will Boom Long After COVID-19

Commentary by Lance Izumi

WASHINGTON, DC (MPG) - Student enrollment in public schools has nosedived as parent disgust with school COVID-19 policies, student learning losses, and controversial education policies has gone through the roof. In the wake of this enrollment implosion, homeschooling has boomed across the country.

current school year, the U.S. Department of Education estimated that 1.5 million students had left the public schools since the COVID-19 pandemic began.

If students are not enrolling in public schools, where are they going? The numbers show that many former public school students are now being homeschooled.

The U.S. Census Bureau found that the percentage of homeschooling households more than doubled in 2020 from 5 percent in spring to 11 percent in the fall.

According to a recent University of Michigan study, from 2020 to 2021, the enrollment at public schools in Michigan fell by nearly 46,000 students, which represented a more than a 3-percent drop. Among kindergartners, there was a decrease of more than 11 percent.

The increase in homeschoolers does not come from just a narrow segment of the American population. A University of Washington Bothell analysis found, "The diversity of homeschoolers in children. We have to educate the U.S. mirrors the diversity of all students nationally," including all racial, religious, political, and income groups. For instance, the Census

At the beginning of the current school year, the U.S. Department of Education estimated that 1.5 million students had left the public schools since the COVID-19 pandemic began. Photo courtesy Pixabay

At the beginning of the Bureau found that among African American households the increase in homeschooling was much steeper than in the country as a whole, rising from 3 percent to 16 percent, a five-fold jump.

This increase in African American homeschooling is not surprising given recent research by McKinsey & Company that found "Students in majority Black schools ended the [2020-21 school] year with six months of unfinished learning."

Demetria Zinga, one of the country's top African American homeschool YouTubers, says, "I believe homeschooling is growing and exploding amongst African Americans and there will be more and more homeschoolers."

Homeschool mom Magda Gomez, an immigrant from Mexico, has become an activist for homeschooling in the Hispanic community.

She observes: "We Hispanics as a culture are usually very protective and loving towards our children. However, I explain that love is not enough to raise our ourselves in different areas of education, especially since we are not in our [native] country but are immigrants." "It is my dream," she says,

"to see more Hispanic families doing homeschool." Her dream is coming true with homeschooling doubling among Hispanic households, from 6 percent to 12 percent.

In addition to the racial diversity of homeschoolers, in 2021 the school-choice organization EdChoice found: "Many parents of children with autism, ADHD, and other neuro-developmental disorders report that public schools cannot effectively address their child's specialized learning needs."

Pediatric nurse and homeschool mom Jackie Nunes unenrolled her specialneeds daughter from public school saying, "There just wasn't enough of the things that matter - time, attention, patience, persistence, passion, support.'

The COVID-19 pandemic has exposed all the flaws in the one-size-fits-all public schools, which is why the homeschool boom is shaking up American education.

Story and photos by Rick Sloan

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG)

- On Saturday, December 11th one could hear the shouts of "cross face", "chop him down", "get your points" and "cradle" echoing throughout the Cordova gym as the tournament known as the Cordova Massacre took place. Approximately 430 wrestlers representing 38 high schools in the region competed in the one-day event featuring varsity, junior varsity and girl's matches. Cordova wrestlers did extremely well and took home numerous medals in all weight classes.

The annual event, which was cancelled last year due to the pandemic, is a major fundraiser for the Cordova wrestling program. The packed gymnasium was in full service starting with 7:00 am weigh-ins and ending around 6 pm with the final heavyweight and first place matches. The bleachers were packed and the concession stand ran out of food around 1:30 pm.

Don Martinez, Cordova's head wrestling coach started this tournament back in 1989. Coach Martinez, who also is the head wrestling coach at Sierra College, has a philosophy that is very different than most programs. His technique is to have his wrestlers go at a slower pace with the hopes that they will peak at the right time towards the end of the season taking them into the post league competition and possibly a trip to the Masters Tournament and even the State competition. "We will beat the wrestlers that we're losing to at the beginning of the season. We are on pace. We see the progress everyday," said Coach Martinez.

The program, which is in a rebuilding mode with more participation in the freshmen and sophomore levels, has seen much improvement due to the wrestling programs at Mills and Mitchell Middle Schools, as they are able to build interest in the sport starting in 6th grade. I see great things ahead for this young enthusiastic group of wrestlers. They have been working hard and improving with each practice and understand what it takes to be successful.

The league competition starts on January 11th with matches against Florin and West Campus at Natomas High School, January 18th against Valley and Johnson at Valley High School and finishing up on January 25th vs. Natomas at Cordova High. All matches start at 5 pm. ★

Commentary by Bruce Lee

Socialism, socialism ... what an alluring temptress. Following the 1991 collapse of the Soviet Union and China's move towards a free-market economy (reestablishing the Shanghai Stock Exchange in 1990), I hoped socialism found its rightful place in the dung heaps of history, unfortunately its temptations persist.

The seeds of socialism in federal (and California) policies as the Green New Deal, show how alluring the concept remains. Promising prosperity, security, and equality with other people's money, it has only delivered tyranny and poverty around the world. Examine Venezuela's economic collapse of the last decade. Again, socialism proved a Ponzi scheme; it sounds amazing only to collapse under the weight of centralized control and denial of basic human nature.

A simple, 2009 illustration helps us understand:

A hypothetical economics professor, who had never failed a single student in her career, supposedly failed an entire class. This class insisted that socialism worked - that no one would be poor nor be rich, a great social equalizer.

The professor said, "OK, we'll run an experiment to test this plan." Everyone's grade will be based on the class average, so no one will fail but no one will receive an A either...(substituting grades for dollars - hopefully this would be more readily understood by all).

After the first test, the grades were averaged, and everyone got a B. The students who studied hard were upset, and the students who studied little were happy. As the second test came, the students who studied little, studied even less, and those who studied hard were now less motivated and studied less.

The second test average was a D! No one was happy. The third exam averaged an F grade.

As the tests proceeded, the scores never increased. Bickering, blame, and name-calling resulted in hard feelings, and no one would study for the benefit of anyone else.

To their unpleasant surprise, ALL FAILED, and the professor told them that socialism would also ultimately fail. "When the reward is great, the effort to succeed is great, but when government takes the rewards away, the motivation to succeed is taken away too!"

This illustration provides many lessons, but these five are the most applicable:

- 1. You cannot legislate the poor into prosperity by legislating the wealthy out of prosperity.
- 2. What one person receives without working for, another person must work for without receiving.
- 3. The government cannot give anything that it does not first take from somebody else.
- 4. You cannot multiply wealth by dividing it!
- 5. When half of the people get the idea that they do not have to work because the other half is going to take care of them, and when the other half gets the idea that it does no good to work because somebody else is going to get what they work for, that is the beginning of the end of any nation.

That's socialism in a nutshell. And coincidentally, last night at dinner a contractor advised he cannot find any employees because they prefer to stay on the expanded unemployment. To lure a talented electrician to work, he finally had to pay him the $600 unemployment bump out of his own pocket, PLUS his regular wage! And a nurse who works two jobs responded that nobody ever helps him with his bills and he's tired to supporting everyone else through his taxes! Unemployment sounded appealing to him!

Let's learn from history. Remember, after World War II, Britain, Israel, and India all turned to socialism, only to turn back to capitalism. Socialism's critical defect is that it ignores the power of incentives and basic human behavior!

State Finalizes Groundwater Management Principles and Strategies

California Water Board Press Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The Department of Water Resources and the State Water Resources Control Board today issued final groundwater management principles and strategies to help protect drinking water wells from the impacts of drought.

Developed in response to Governor Gavin Newsom's drought state of emergency proclamation in April, the principles and strategies provide a framework for state actions to proactively address impacts on groundwater-dependent communities as droughts become more frequent and intense as a result of climate change.

These principles and strategies incorporate hundreds of public comments received earlier this fall, including written comments submitted to DWR and feedback at public workshops and webinars.

basins will help Californians manage through drought - especially those dependent on domestic wells. But we're simply not there yet. These principles will help state agencies, local governments and communities address very real domestic well outages that are starting to occur," said DWR Director Karla Nemeth. "A big thank you to the members of the public who shared their insights with DWR. We are ready to implement."

"We are in a severe drought that, with declining groundwater levels, threatens drinking water wells and makes harmful contaminants become more concentrated in certain areas," said Joaquin Esquivel, chair of the State Water Board. "Articulating clear principles and strategies to manage groundwater, while protecting drinking water, improves the drought resilience of our rural and often disadvantaged communities, who "Ultimately, sustainable groundwater are most burdened and impacted by deteriorating conditions."

The final principles and strategies provide a shared policy framework of near-term drought response and long-term resilience actions by state agencies for those that rely on groundwater for drinking water. The strategies build upon existing programs and newly enacted laws, such as the 2021 drought planning legislation (Senate Bill 552), the implementation of the Sustainable Groundwater Management Act (SGMA), and the Safe and Affordable Drinking Water Fund for Equity and Resilience (SAFER). Following these principles will result in increased coordination and engagement with non-government organizations, Tribes, water agencies, groundwater sustainability agencies, and other local entities to ensure state resources and action support state and local needs. California is committed to increasing the frequency of forecasting data and tools, such as the recently released California's Groundwater Live website, which supports data-informed decision-making and helps prioritize funding for emergency and longterm projects to support communities with drought resilience.

The framework prioritizes protection of public health and safety, as well as preparation and mitigation for the effects of drought conditions over the long term. Six principles describe how to address drinking well water impacts, and include strategies to achieve drinking water resiliency, integrate equity, identify underlying challenges, use best available data, build trusted relationships, and implement lasting solutions.

For more information and to find the final documents in both English and Spanish, please visit the Drinking Water Wells Principles webpage. To learn more about current drought conditions and the state's response, as well as dry well resources, visit drought.ca.gov.

Green Heroin vs. the Call to Work

Commentary by Dr. James Thrasher

Addiction to government handouts continues to be a significant economic and societal issue. Recently, some authors have sounded the alarm by tagging the current CARES Act freebies as a form of "green heroin." This addiction to green dollars has caused free-lunch addicts to lose their desire to work.

The reality is that 150 million people received $1,200 stimulus checks, and 25 million people received a weekly $600 addition to their unemployment checks, and the handouts keep coming. Unfortunately, this new cash has created some new users and cemented a dependency outlook with many established addicts. Why would the unemployed look for work, take a job, or return to work when they can make more money collecting stimulus and unemployment checks?

This unprecedented large-scale government handout of money has produced this freshly normalized perspective for some in our country. Freebies incentivize Americans not to work, which has dire consequences across the economy. The effect of this is being experienced by businesses, many of which are unable to open their doors or are having to curtail their hours because they cannot find a sufficient labor source.

Matthew Nicaud, in his article "Government Handouts Continue to Stagnate Economic Output," states that "there is perhaps no more destructive force to destroy the motivation and work ethic of a workforce than the sedative of government handouts." He adds: "when government doles out the entitlement dollars to the citizens, it sends a message that the nanny state will provide some or all of their income." Consuming and relying upon this nanny-state sedative has chilling implications for America.

The tangible implications of the government CARES program have prompted a vital and foundational question: Why work?

Work matters. And to those of us of religious persuasion, work matters to God, now and eternally. Work is inherently good. God was, is, and will continue to be a worker. We are His image-bearers. A component of this image-bearing is being created in His likeness as workers. God designed us to work, and it is an essential part of our humanity.

By God's command, Adam and Eve were to tend and care for the Garden of Eden and to fill the earth and subdue it. Work is not a responsibility placed on man because of the fall, but rather a high calling and privilege given to us by God from the beginning. The call to work charges us to pursue excellence and to be faithful stewards of employment opportunities, abilities, and time to serve our Creator and our fellowman. God compels us to work and earn our keep. Work is a divine duty, and all vocational callings have dignity. Legitimate work is good and important to God as He works out His purposes in our lives.

Work has great significance in God's providential plan for man. From the beginning, God has intended to use man's call to work for His glory because every aspect of life is worship. Colossians 3:23 says "whatever you do, work at it with all your heart, as working for the Lord not for man."

The workplace is part of God's divine strategy to use workers as transforming and restorative agents by pointing others to Christ. It was God's intention that true soul satisfaction would come from an honest day's work. Proverbs 13:4 contrasts the worker and the sluggard by stating "the soul of the sluggard craves and gets nothing, while the soul of the diligent is supplied." Through work we can love and serve our neighbor. Work provides income for tithes and offerings that should be shared with the church and people in need.

"Green heroin" is advancing an opioidlike dependency on entitlement dollars. This dependency contradicts God's call to work. The only way to break the chains of this addiction is to see God's purposes in the calling of work as an indispensable way in which He is caring for human beings and renewing His world.

Dr. Jim Thrasher is the Senior Advisor to the Vice President for Student Recruitment and the coordinator of the Institute for Faith & Freedom's working group on calling.

Well, this is my last column of 2021. I talked about some good news in the articles during 2021, and unfortunately, there was some news which we all wanted to forget. Hopefully, my columns of 2022 can have more good than bad in them. For now, I wish that everyone had a very memorable and warm Christmas last weekend. Hopefully, the other holidays which are now being celebrated can bring marvelous memories - ones that you can keep close to your heart.

snow in the Sierra which is being counted in feet instead of inches. Earlier today the TV weather reports said right now we have almost 9 inches over the amount the rain we normally have this time of the year. All of us can continue to believe (or hope) that we can get out of the drought which is affecting everyone. What a blessing it would be if that would happen in 2022.

July 1, 2022 will be our 19th birthday as a city. In 2002 there were quite a few people who thought that Rancho Cordova would never be a city. At least they believed that until after the election of November 5, 2002, and the results of the election figures showed that the ballot was 77.8% for City hood! We have been able to show how much our Sacramento valley and the lives in Rancho Cordova have improved since then. I am very proud of our city, the great people who live in it, and the astonishing businesses who operate in the City of Rancho Cordova.

This coming New Year of 2022 we will be getting together with our family as we welcome in the new year. I'm not sure if all of our grandkids will be able to welcome in that new year at 12 midnight, but we will have to see. All I can say now is that I hope everyone in Rancho Cordova can have a great time as they welcome in the new year. Please be careful, and lets see what we can do in 2022! From Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time.From Bob McGarvey, God bless, and we'll see you next time.

Councilmember Pulipati urged any residents who have yet to get vaccinated to do so, especially in light of the new Omicron variant.

Vice Mayor Terry reported only 27 percent of students in Sacramento County Unified were vaccinated although they still had some time to be in compliance.

City Manager Cyrus Abhar reminded the public of the Workforce Development program which offers job skill training for Rancho Cordova residents.

New employee Xee Vang was introduced to the Council. Mayor Gatewood humorously remarked she had been rescued from her former work with Sacramento County. Vang will serve as Senior Finance Analyst.

EMERGENCY PERMIT AMPAC Fine Chemicals LLC Hazel and Highway 50, Rancho Cordova, CA 95741

The California Department of Toxic Substances Control (DTSC) has issued an Emergency Permit to AMPAC for onsite treatment of expired chemicals at Hazel and Highway 50, Rancho Cordova, CA 95741. The items to be treated include thirty-one (31) containers of Acryloyl Chloride, forty-seven (47) containers of Methyl Vinyl Ketone.

The Clean Harbors Environmental Services (CHES) has been contracted to conduct this treatment. The chemicals are potentially reactive and unsafe for transport in its present state. The treatment involves the keeping the container at low temperature to stabilize the chemical. Once the chemicals are treated, they will be transported offsite for proper management. DTSC has determined that the chemicals pose an imminent and substantial endangerment to human health and the environment if not properly managed. Therefore, an emergency permit should be issued. This Emergency Permit is effective from September 8, 2021 through November 8, 2021. The Emergency Permit includes measures to minimize any adverse impact to the community and the environment.

CALIFORNIA ENVORONMENTAL QUALITY ACT (CEQA): DTSC has

determined that the issuance of this permit is exempt from the requirements of CEQA and has filed a Notice of Exemption (NOE) with the State Clearinghouse. The Emergency Permit, NOE, AMPAC's request for this project are available for review at the file room located at:

Ask Toni Who Will Pay First?

Toni: I am 67 and have group health insurance through my current employer. I have talked with friends, my company HR and my insurance agent and get answers from "I don't know" to "I'm not sure but I think ...". My company health insurance has a high deductible. If I have a medical claim and I have Medicare Part A and my employer medical insurance, who will pay the claim first and how much will I have to pay? Also, should I have enrolled in Medicare Part B since I am still working?

I have just started following your Medicare column in our local paper and am finding you are answering problems, I never knew I could have.

Thank You so much.

Roxanne, Pacific Palisades, CA

Roxanne,

Let's start with discussing enrolling in Medicare Part B when working with an employer group health plan. The Medicare & You handbook discusses "Should I Get Part B" with employer or union coverage and states... "If you or your spouse is still working, and you have health coverage through that employer or union, contact your employer or union benefits administrator to find out how your coverage works with Medicare... It might be to your advantage to delay Part B enrollment."

To answer about enrolling in Medicare Part B, it is optional because when you leave your or your spouse's employer group health plan, then you can enroll in Medicare Part B with a Special Enrollment Period.

Now let's talk about who will pay your claim first and this depends on how many employees are on your company's group health plan:

1. Your employer has 20 or more employees. Your group health plan will generally be primary. Should your group health plan not pay all the bill, you may need to ask the health care provider or your doctor to send the remainder of the bill to Medicare if you are enrolled in Medicare Parts A and/or B for secondary payment. Should there be any cost your health insurance or Medicare did not cover, you will have to pay the balance. The employer must offer their employees 65 and older the same health benefits, under the same conditions, they offer employees under 65.

- 2. Your employer has less than 20 employees. Medicare pays first. Discuss with your employer's HR department or employer group health insurance agent as to whether to enroll in Medicare Parts A and/or B since a small amount of health insurance plans require employees employed by companies with group health plans that cover 20 employees or less to enroll in Medicare Part B. CMS form L-564 "Request for Employer Information" is available for employees "still working" past 65 with true employer insurance to avoid Medicare's Part B penalty. This form is available for the employee and their spouse enrolling in Medicare Part B past 65 years old. *Remember that the 6-month Medicare Medigap/ Supplement Enrollment period begins when one is first enrolled in Medicare Part B*
- Your employer has less than 20 employees. The small employer joins forces with other employers or employer organizations i.e., unions, to sponsor a multi-employer plan (group health plan). Sometimes employers with less than 100 employees will band together to form a multi-employer plan. Medicare pays second.

Always check with your Human Resources to find out if the Insurance Company will pay first when the employees or employees' spouses are over 65 and on company health benefits.

• One thing to know is that if you should go outside your employer's network, it is possible that neither the company's plan nor Medicare will pay.

Enrollment Declines Squeeze Local School Finances

By Dan Walters CALMatters

The 1970s and 1980s were a tumultuous time for California's public schools, to wit:

• A tidal wave of kids from the post-World War II baby boom pushed school enrollment to well over 4 million, but the end of the boom in the mid-1960s and a slowdown in overall population growth drove enrollment downward in the 1970s. Throughout the and birth rates. Also, school state, local school systems enrollment, which topped pared back school construction, sold off school sites and even closed some schools.

• At the time, schools were largely financed by locally imposed property taxes but in 1971 a successful lawsuit, Serrano vs. Priest, declared that widely varying taxable property values among the state's school districts unfairly disadvantaged children in low wealth communities. In response, the Legislature began overhauling school finances to provide what was called "equalization."

• Subsequently, however, in 1978, voters passed Proposition 13, which clamped tight limits on property taxes, compelling the state to assume the fundamental task of financing noteworthy: county enrollschools from income and ment has already fallen sales taxes and thus shifting over 10% in the past finance to the state Capitol. California's population soared in the 1980s due to high immigration and birth rates and so did school enrollment, eventually topping 6 million. In 1988, a decade after Proposition 13's approval, the education community persuaded voters to pass Proposition 98, an extremely complex measure that dictates how schools' share of state revenues is calculated. It has dominated the state budget process ever since.

This snippet of political history is offered because it could be repeated.

California's once-soaring population has slowed to a trickle, or perhaps even reversed, due to sharp declines in immigration out at 6.2 million a decade ago and remained virtually unchanged until recently, is beginning what demographers believe will be a steady decline.

The COVID-19 pandemic is partially responsible for some recent declines but the state Department of Finance projects that underlying demographic trends will drop enrollment to 5.5 million by 2030, some 700,000 lower than the peak.

"Projected declines are greatest in Los Angeles and Ventura Counties roughly 20% lower by 2030 -31," a recent study by the Public Policy Institute of California declares. "The declines in Los Angeles County are particularly wrangling over education decade, and enrollment in 2030 - 31 is projected to be 30% lower than it was in 2010-11."

> State aid to schools is largely driven by enrollment, so districts that are seeing major declines, particularly large urban systems such as Los Angeles Unified, are beginning to feel the financial pinch and confronting the unpopular task of shutting neighborhood schools.

At the moment, school finances have a respite. Gov. Gavin Newsom and legislators have decreed that state aid is temporarily based on pre-pandemic enrollment but the "hold harmless" gesture is due to expire next year. What happens after that is anyone's guess.

Decreasing enrollment could be beneficial in the long run, because it could increase per-pupil spending. But that would depend on the willingness of state politicians to once again change the methodology of school financing, moving away from its enrollment base to some other model.

Given the tens of billions of dollars at stake, however, a major overhaul would be a tough political slog. Until and unless it occurs, the local systems seeing the most dramatic enrollment declines will have a difficult time balancing their budgets as their state aid shrinks and their fixed costs, such as pension fund contributions, continue to rise.

Dan Walters has been a journalist for nearly 60 years, spending all but a few of those years working for California newspapers. *

California Common Cause - which pushed voters to create the independent panel - also defended the commission: "While the process was at times messy, it was an exercise in democracy done in public," with 150 meetings and 30,000 pieces of public input.

Congressional lines

Slower population growth in California means the state lost one of its 53 U.S. House seats this year.

The population numbers must be exact: There can't be more than a one-person difference between districts to make sure everyone is represented equally.

Trying to meet all the criteria - equal population, Voting Rights Act compliance, communities of interest and compact districts - in a state with California's diverse population and geography made the task difficult.

Political dominos quickly started toppling immediately after the maps were approved.

Rep. Doris Matsui of Sacramento declared that she will run next year in the new 7th Congressional District. It also includes fellow Democratic Rep. Ami Bera of Elk Grove, who within hours announced he will follow many of his current constituents into the 6th District.

Assemblymember Kevin Kiley of Rocklin announced that he plans to run in the new 3rd District, if, as he expects. fellow Republican Tom McClintock of Elk Grove seeks re-election in the 5th District, just to the south. Meanwhile, Democratic Rep. John Garamendi of Walnut Grove said he will seek re-election in the new 8th District, which includes Contra Costa and Solano counties. Rep. Mark DeSaulnier, a Concord Democrat, will run in the neighboring 10th.

State Senate districts

While congressional districts each have about 760,000 people, state Senate districts are larger, with nearly 1 million Californians. For example, one encompasses California's entire border with Mexico. There's also more leeway - a 5% deviation from the ideal population.

Three Senate districts are going from a Democratic advantage in voter registration to a Republican majority, while one favors Democrats more. Republicans need to flip at least five seats in the Senate, or seven in the Assembly, to end the supermajority that allows Democrats to approve tax increases or put constitutional amendments on the ballot without a single GOP vote.Sameea Kamal and Jeremia Kimelman DECEMBER 1, 2021

The commission's sixth and last criteria for redistricting is nesting - placing two Assembly districts into one Senate district where possible. In theory, that makes Senate mapping easier. But because the commission placed a higher priority on other criteria, this time, only two Assembly districts were nested into a Senate district, in Northern California.

Assembly lines

While the Democratic majority in the state Senate might shrink under the new map, Democrats' grip of the Assembly could tighten.

They now hold 60 of the 80 seats. The new Assembly map creates 63 solid Democratic seats, according to an analysis by California Target Book.

Board of Equalization

With just four state Board of Equalization districts, they are far less complex to draw.

The board is tasked with ensuring that taxes across different counties are uniform - alcohol and beverage taxes, for example. Because of the county-specific policies, the commission tried to keep as many counties as possible intact. For example, densely populated Los Angeles County is one district by itself.

For these lines, there was little drama at the redistricting commission - and certainly nothing like the fights over congressional and legislative districts.

"I'm so proud of the work that together we have completed to serve all Californians. Despite a difference of opinion at times, there was always commitment to our common goal

- to the goal of creating representative and fair maps for all Californians," commissioner Pedro Toledo said as he made the motion for a vote.

After Dec. 27, the commission expects it will reconvene not only to defend its maps against any legal challenges, but to work on a report that could make the process smoother for the next redistricting. Common Cause also said it is committed to examining improvements for the 2031 commission.

"We did receive community of interest testimony that did conflict so obviously there are some people that are not going to be happy," said Fernández, a Republican from Yolo County. "We have more VRA districts than there currently are, we listened to more people than the prior commission. We took all the info to heart and worked together to build these maps."

Trustor(s): ELSINE DUREXA COX, AS HER SOLÉ AND SEPARATE PROPERTY Recorded: 6/22/2005 as Book 20050622, Page 0836 of Official Records in the office of the Recorder of SACRAMENTO County, California; Date of Sale: 1/21/2022 at 2:00 PM Place of Sale: At the main entrance to the County Courthouse, located at 720 9th Street Sacramento, CA 95814 Amount of accrued balance and other charges: $322,932.40 The purported property address is: 10257 COLOMA ROAD, RANCHO CORDOVA, CA 95670 Assessor's Parcel No. : 076-0135-005-0000 NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this Internet Web site http://www.gualityloan.com, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the trustee: CA-21-893213-NJ. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: You may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call 916-939-0772, or visit this internet website http://www.qualityloan.com, using the file number assigned to this foreclosure by the Trustee: CA-21-893213-NJ to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid. and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder, you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. The undersigned trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the property address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. If the trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the trustee, and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. If the sale is set aside for any reason, the Purchaser at the sale shall be entitled only to a return of the deposit paid. The Purchaser shall have no further recourse against the mortgagor, the mortgagee, or the mortgagee's attorney. If you have previously been discharged through bankruptcy, you may have been released of personal liability for this loan in which case this letter is intended to exercise the note holders right's against the real property only. As required by law, you are hereby notified that a negative credit report reflecting on your credit record may be submitted to a credit report agency if you fail to fulfill the terms of your credit obligations. # Parkour for Seniors - More Exercise is Better as You Get Older

Commentary by Nancy Lorentz

"Twenty-first century seniors live longer, healthier and more active lives. Sure, you'll find some older folks who might prefer to sit out their senior years. But, for the most part, the elders among us – and there are a lot of them – choose 'not to go gently into that good night,' as poet Dylan Thomas put it," says Rebecca Weber, CEO of the Association of Mature American Citizens [AMAC].

The Census Bureau reports that when they conducted their 2010 head count the oldest Baby Boomer – the first of whom were born in 1946 – was not even 65 years old yet. But since then, a staggering 10,000 of them have been celebrating their 65th birthdays each and every day and the "gray tsunami" will continue for yet another decade.

Today's life expectancy is about 79 years. It was little more than 68 years in 1950 and it will continue to increase well beyond the turn of another century. Medical innovations have a lot to do with it. In 1950, there were nearly 589 deaths due to heart disease per 100,000 population; today, the death rate due to heart disease has dropped dramatically to 167 per 100,000.

But, while medical interventions certainly allow more of us to have longer life spans, another important contributing factor is modern day lifestyles. We're taking better care of ourselves, eating better, sleeping better and getting more exercise. According to the Centers for Disease Control [CDC], "Older adults should move more and sit less throughout the day. Keep in mind, some physical activity is better than none. Older adults who sit less and do any amount of moderate-to-vigorous intensity physical activity gain some health benefits. Your health benefits will also increase with the more physical activity that you do."

AMAC's Weber, meanwhile, is suggesting that more exercise is better than less as you get older. Taking long walks, participating in sports, climbing stairs, lifting weights, doing push-ups and situps. In fact, a growing number of seniors have gone so far as to engage in more extreme ways to get exercise, she says, warning us to make sure we don't overdo it.

For example, an exercise regimen known as Parkour has been growing in popularity in the U.S. in recent years. To say that it is an extreme way for senior citizens to stay fit is an understatement; it involves a lot of jumping, climbing and vaulting over and around barriers. As a matter of fact, Sean Hannah president of PK Move, told U.S. News, "You say, 'parkour for seniors,' and it hits the brain weird, like that's the absolute opposite of what seniors should be doing," PK Move bills itself as "The WORLD'S 1st and ONLY evidence-based program for seniors based on modified parkour."

Nancy Lorentz is executive director and co-founder of PK Move. In an interview with Northern Virginia Magazine, she described parkour training as "the art of moving through your environment in a smooth, efficient manner. This art of movement requires and builds mental and physical strength to overcome obstacles in the path you have chosen. Generally, parkour involves crawling, running, jumping, leaping, climbing, swinging or diving. There are no set routines (such as in yoga or tai chi) for practicing parkour, although proper functional form is required to train safely."
