Rollerland Still Rolling at 50

Story and photos by Tamara Warta

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - In recent years, Citrus Heights has been buzzing about plans for expansion, renovation, and improvements to its retail and business offerings. Through it all, one constant has stood the test of time. Sunrise Rollerland is celebrating 50 years in operation this year, and the future looks like smooth skating for this family-owned business located behind the Sunrise Mall. The popular roller rink was founded by retired Air Force Major Lloyd Neutz in 1973 and has remained in the family. Neutz's son owns the rink today and daily managerial duties are also carried out by his grandchildren, including Evan Neutz.

"The rink is family entertainment and is fun for all ages," said Neutz. "A lot of generations come and skate together. It's still the same place from the 1970s. It's timeless." The generational span is evident throughout the rink, much of which is still original to its roots. You can have a birthday or graduation party in the King Arthur room that's been

Council Chafes at Unfunded State Mandates for SB 1383

Story by Shaunna Boyd

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - At the June 8 meeting, the Citrus Heights City Council heard a presentation from Republic Services about the fines that will soon be imposed on residential customers for incorrect waste disposal.

The passage of Senate Bill 1383 resulted in state mandates regarding the collection and disposal of food waste. To address climate change, the law aims to keep food waste out of landfills to reduce greenhouse gas emissions as they decompose. And to address food insecurity in California, edible food must be collected and donated rather than thrown away.

To meet the state mandate, Republic Services implemented the residential organics recycling program last year, after an extensive outreach campaign—including in-person meetings, print mailers, online/social media, doorhangers on each residence, email blasts, informational online video, and a food-waste collection pail with an informational insert delivered to each residence.

During the last year, Republic Services allowed a grace period and has not issued any fines to residential customers. But those penalties will soon be applied. Under the program, customers have three waste carts: one for trash, one for recycling, and one for organics (yard and food waste). Carts are audited for compliance, and educational tags are put on carts to let customers know if incorrect items were left in any of the carts. Beginning soon, if one or more carts have a severe level of contamination, a $22 fine will be incurred by the customer, which they will see on their next invoice.

If there are just a few items in the wrong carts, Republic Services won't issue a fine. They don't want to penalize people who are trying to do the right thing, so only severe cart contamination will receive a fine—such as all food waste being left in the trash or recycling cart, or old clothes put in the organics cart.

The environmental benefits of the organics recycling program can already be seen in our region. Republic Services provided an example of a cattle ranch with fallow soil where grass wouldn't grow. Organic waste collected by Republic Services was composted to create nutrient-rich soil that has transformed the ranch. The grass is growing, both feeding the cows and taking carbon out of the atmosphere. Rain now soaks into the ground instead of running off, which is helping to replenish the underground aquifer.

Mayor Tim Schaefer thanked Republic Services for the presentation, saying they are really "doing your due diligence."

During approval of the Consent Calendar, Vice Mayor Bret Daniels asked for Item 8 to be pulled and considered separately. Item 8 was a resolution authorizing an agreement with Sacramento County and the cities of Elk Gove, Folsom, Galt, Rancho Cordova, and Sacramento to work in a regional partnership to meet SB 1383's edible food recovery mandate.

This application of SB 1383 focuses on food collection from large commercial food generators, such as grocery stores and food vendors, which are required to donate edible food to food collection services, where it can be distributed to those

Wooddale Way Block Party Continues to Unite Neighbors

As Lamar (on left) greeted his guests applause broke out in appreciation for what he and wife Van have been doing for 13 years to bring their neighborhood together in many ways. Photo courtesy of John Fulea

By Elise Spleiss

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - A recent article in the Smithsonian Magazine tells the origin of the modern block party in 1973, describing it as a “community gathering where people come together to hangout, to talk, to celebrate, and just have fun together.”

That old-fashioned block party is alive and well on Wooddale Way in Citrus Heights. On Saturday, May 10 at about 6:30 p.m. neighbors began arriving at the Lamar and Van Fullmer home bearing food and friendship to share with 80 of their closest friends and neighbors. The camaraderie lasted into the evening until 9 p.m. when all pitched in to help break down the tables and chairs which reached down the block this year.

Since 2010, minus two Covid years, neighbors from 50 homes nearby (behind the former C Bar C Ranch) have gathered outdoors at the Fullmer residence for good food and non-alcoholic refreshment, catching up on old friends who have returned for the event and making new ones.

As temperatures rise in town, neighbors wait for the colorful flyer on their door announcing the date of this year’s block party. Formerly held the Saturday following the Fourth of July, temperatures in the 90’s at 7:30 p.m. forced the date to be moved to May.

Following Lamar’s retirement in 2004 as a short distance big rig driver for Hewlett Packard, and Van’s retirement as a school special education teacher, Lamar knew he wanted to make a difference and get back to the simpler life he remembered when they first moved to Citrus Heights in 1945.

He decided he wanted to get to know his neighbors better. That was 13 years ago. The Fullmers got to work, knocking on about 30 doors on the block (now 50), flyers in hand, meeting neighbors face to face, and inviting them to their party. Even today, as the event nears, Lamar visits and revisits the neighbors personally, no emails or voice mails.

The first block party, with 10 families and 15 children, has grown to over 45 families.

Robelle Yee holds her 1 year old son Alan. Robelle and her husband moved to the neighborhood 5 years ago and are enjoying camaraderie of the neighborhood. Photo by Elise Spleiss

Recently, children have been growing up and moving out, leaving mostly preteens and babies. But not all. Some grow up, remain in the area and have families and children of their own. All ages, ethnicities and family structure are represented. This annual homecoming has brought the Wooddale Way neighborhood together in ways that span the entire year.

Since bringing the party to the cordoned-off street in front of his home, from their beautiful but shrinking backyard as a result of the growing attendance, they have perfected the art of preparing for this annual event.

Many guests are urged to bring their signature dish. Lamar’s is his teriyaki beef, beans and rice. Guests bring salads and desserts.

On this evening, as Lamar greeted his guests, applause broke out, showing their appreciation for him and his wife Van’s hard work to keep the neighborhood together through all these years.

The youngest party-goer was one year old Alan Yee. His mother, Robelle Yee and her husband have been in their home on Wooddale Way for five years. She said she first had only a dog when they arrived, but then were blessed with Alan. Many children have come and gone, many return to enjoy this annual celebration and will for many years to come.

in need. Businesses such as hotels, large restaurants, and event centers will also be required to donate any edible food.

Under the state mandate, jurisdictions are required to educate commercial food generators about the program, increase their access to food recovery resources (such as food banks), and monitor their compliance.

The City has been working with the County and the other cities for several years to come up with this regional agreement. The County will lead the project, which will be overseen by a qualified consultant, and the cost of the program will be shared by the participating jurisdictions. The preliminary budget is $1.5 million for the first year of the program, and $1.9 million for the second year. Citrus Heights would be responsible for 6% of the cost, which would be approximately $86,000 for year one and $113,000 for year two.

Vice Mayor Daniels said that this law is an unfunded state mandate, and he asked City Attorney Ryan Jones to confirm that unfunded mandates are not legal under Article 13 of the California Constitution. City Attorney Jones said that the State cannot levy unfunded mandates without giving jurisdictions some opportunity to recoup those costs.

While Vice Mayor Daniels acknowledged that it’s “wonderful” to make sure edible food goes to those in need instead of into the trash, and that it is a good idea to work together regionally to reduce the cost of this program, he doesn’t like that the burden of the cost goes to the taxpayer. So, he said he “can’t support it.”

City Attorney Jones said he “appreciates the sentiment,” but he clarified that the state’s argument, which they would present in litigation, is that “the mechanism to fund it is through levying fees upon ratepayers. Although that doesn’t feel good and seem right, again, I think that’s the argument that they would make. I feel like I needed to explain that to the City Council.”

The Council then asked further questions about who would pay the fees for the commercial food recovery program, and staff explained that Republic Services and other waste collection agencies would pay the cost, which would then require increased rates for customers, both residential and businesses, to cover that cost.

Councilmember Porsche Middleton reminded the Council that if Citrus Heights refuses to comply with the mandate, the State would impose a $10,000 per day penalty on the city. “I understand that we’re passing the buck along to the taxpayer one way or another.” But she said that incurring that kind of penalty, or spending the money to try to litigate the issue with the state, would not be a good use of time or money. “I just don’t see any other way, other than to just move this forward.”

Mayor Schaefer said he has really struggled with the unfunded mandates imposed by SB 1383. But he said if the Council doesn’t adopt this regional plan, Citrus Heights will be responsible for coming up with its own plan and paying the full cost—or paying the daily penalty cost. Adopting this plan that centralizes the work within the region allows us to “share that cost with other municipalities,” said Mayor Schaefer. He said that while the intention of the bill is “a good one,” he doesn’t feel it justifies the additional costs of implementation, including putting more trucks on the road for collection. But he said he would support it, “even though I hate this.”

Council voted 4-1 to approve the regional program, with Daniels dissenting and most members voting “yes under protest.” ★

Aquarium and Reptile Depot Mark 10 Years in Citrus Heights

Story and photos by Thomas J. Sullivan

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - Jason and Jeff Liang, brothers and co-owners of Aquarium and Reptile Depot at 8201 Auburn Boulevard in Citrus Heights took time for a special public celebration, Saturday, June 10th celebrating their 10th anniversary in business.

“We’ve reached a special milestone, and we wanted to thank all of our many customers who have helped our business thrive, and continue to grow,” said older brother Jason taking time in his office for an interview while his younger brother Jeff greeted customers at the store’s main front counter.

Aquarium and Reptile Depot is located in a 10,000-square-foot building at 8201 Auburn Blvd. in Citrus Heights and was once the site of a Harley-Davidson motorcycle dealership. The store, which relocated to Citrus Heights from Roseville, features a colorful aquatic-themed exterior that’s easily visible from the street.

Inside the store, a large, raised brightly-lit fish tank welcomes customers into a magical aquatic world where species from around the world vie to catch their eye. Reptile enclosures in their own exotic world are off to the right side.

Aquarium and Reptile

Aquarium and Reptile Depot started originally as a wholesale business and has since shifted into retail. The store celebrates its 10th anniversary.

Customers shop at the Aquarium and Reptile Depot which sells a wide range of fish tanks and accessories for both salt and fresh-water environments.

Jason Liang said. “It’s still possible to create a family home aquarium with relatively low investment,” Jason said, noting that the store carries over 200 different species. “The hobby tends to bring families together. Parents who may have had an aquarium in their younger years are now returning to the hobby.”

He and his younger brother, Jeff, said he started working in the store while in high school. He said he doesn’t consider his work at the store a job, but more as being an educator, interacting with his customers to best help fulfill their needs.

“Customers have been known to walk in out of curiosity. I think we’re seeing more young people get into the hobby.”

The store also sells a wide range of fish tanks and a complete range of accessories for both salt and fresh-water environments. Home-sized tanks offer a similar level of emotional support and enjoyment to hobbyists while showing the essentials of an aquatic ecosystem at work.

The pair actively promote the store through social media, which they feel is the best way to attract new customers, post new inventory, describe upcoming sales and tell about new products they have in their ever-changing inventory.

Aquarium and Reptile Depot is located at 8201 Auburn Blvd. in Citrus Heights. The store is open Monday through Saturday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Sundays from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Customers can check the store’s website for the latest inventory at www.aquarium-depot.com. ★

Jeff Liang directs a customer at the Aquarium and Reptile Depot during the 10th Anniversary celebration of the store.

Depot started as a wholesale business and has since shifted into retail. Multiple shipments of new inventory are received at the store each week.

Both brothers take a critical role in monitoring the overall environmental quality and cleanliness of all of the enclosures which hold the store’s diverse live inventory. The pair are aided by a staff of 15 full and part-time employees who also help attend to the questions and needs of their customers.

“We’re always happy to answer their questions, offer advice and make recommendations to help them enjoy the full experience of having an aquarium,” he said.

“Our anniversary celebration is a way to show our customers how much we appreciate them,” he said.

Physical improvements inside the store are constantly being upgraded. A new customer service counter in the reptile department was added. Under the serenity of blue light, multiple sales aisles which house fish tanks for customer display have been reconfigured to give customers greater social distance as they shop.

“We’re always looking for new ways to enhance our habitat environments,” he said.

The two brothers say they try to promote good stewardship in a responsible way and encourage their customers to create an ideal home environment for their pets.

Certain exotic fresh and salt-water fish, sharks and stingrays, for example, are sourced from throughout the Western Pacific Ocean including the Philippines, Indonesia, Asia, and Hawaii. Some retail prices have increased slightly in recent years due to rising transportation costs, he said.

“The Depot serves the greater-Sacramento area with what it considers to be the highest quality selection of aquatic species, reptiles, amphibians possible.”

“Some of our customers come from Reno, Tahoe, Sacramento and from the San Francisco Bay area just to visit our store,”

Sacramento Swimming Olympians Discuss New Book on the Life of Sherm Chavoor

From NIMBUS Films & Books

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Sacramento region Olympic swimmers discussed book author Bill George's new work, "Victory in the Pool," which chronicles the achievements of swimmers from Sacramento's Arden Hills Swim and Tennis club, and features the legendary U.S. Olympic coach Sherm Chavoor, in a presentation at Sacramento City Library on Saturday, May 13.

George's 45-minute presentation on "Victory in the Pool" helped raise awareness of the great accomplishments of Coach Sherm Chavoor and Sacramento's amazing swimmers with more than 65 people attending the event.

"Victory in the Pool" examines the foundations of the team established by the efforts of the swim pioneer Tak Iseri. Iseri, now in his 90's, was among the first great swimmers produced by U.S. Olympic coach Sherm Chavoor from the famed Arden Hills Swim and Tennis Club in Carmichael, California, founded in 1954.

The featured speakers were:

Bill George – Granite Bay author, film maker and historian. He has produced seven documentary films about California history, all of which have aired on PBS. His previous book, "Rails, Tales and Trails" chronicles the construction of The Central Pacific Railroad from Sacramento to Reno, one of the greatest engineering accomplishments in history.

Debbie Meyer, 1968 Olympian – first female swimmer to win three individual Gold Medals at the same Games (Mexico City) when she won the 200m, 400m and 800m freestyle events, a unique trifecta that has not been repeated since.

Jeff Float, 1984 Olympian – gold medalist at the 1984 Olympic Games in the 4x200 freestyle relay. 1982 Gold Medalist, World Championships in Guayaduil. 1980 Olympic Qualifier and 1978 Silver Medalist, 400m freestyle at World Championships, Berlin.

Tak Iseri, 1940's Sacramento swim pioneer – Iseri was among the more than 120,000 Japanese-Americans who were interned during World War II. He later swam for Sherm Chavoor and in 1948 won the Pacific Amateur Association Championship. He was a U.S. Masters Swimming Champion in numerous events, 1987-1995. Bill to Allow Amsterdam-Style Cannabis Cafes Passed by CA State Assembly

Office of Assemblymember
Matt Haney

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Assemblymember Matt Haney's (D-San Francisco) bill to allow local California governments to license Amsterdam-style cannabis cafes passed out of the State Assembly with a broad bipartisan support receiving a 64 to 9 vote on June 1, 2023. While cannabis cafes in the Netherlands capitalize on the social experience of cannabis by offering coffee, food, and live music, all of those opportunities are currently illegal under California law. Haney's AB 374 will allow struggling cannabis businesses to diversify away from the marijuana-only "dispensary" model and bring much-needed tourist dollars into empty downtowns.

"Lots of people want to enjoy legal cannabis in the company of others," said Haney. "And many people want to do that while sipping coffee, eating a scone, or listening to music. There's absolutely no good reason from an economic, health, or safety standpoint that the state should make that illegal. If an authorized cannabis retail store wants to also sell a cup of coffee and a sandwich, we should allow cities to make that possible and stop holding back these small businesses."

California is known worldwide as the birthplace of cannabis culture with its early adoption of medical cannabis and its expertise in cultivation. But there's another location that competes with California for the title of the world capital of cannabis: Amsterdam. There are over 700 cannabis cafes that operate across the Netherlands, and over 1 billion dollars is spent in the cafes every year.

California on the other hand, is still dealing with the unintended consequences of decades of medical marijuana-only policies. California's "dispensaries" have replaced the social aspect of the Amsterdam cannabis scene with pharmacy-like businesses that only allow customers to order cannabis at a counter, purchase nothing else, and then leave.

"California's small cannabis businesses are struggling," said Haney. "Issues like over-saturation, high taxes, and the thriving black market are hurting cannabis businesses who follow the rules and pay taxes." In 2020, California's legal cannabis sales reached $4 billion, while the state's illicit market sales were projected to have exceeded $8 billion.

While consuming cannabis on-site at cannabis retailers is technically legal in California, selling non-cannabis-infused products is not. AB 374 is simple because it allows cannabis retailers to diversify their business and move away from the struggling and limited dispensary model by selling non-cannabis-infused foods.

"To be clear, we're not saying that coffee shops should be allowed to sell cannabis," said Assemblymember Matt Haney. "We're saying that cannabis shops should be allowed to sell coffee. It shouldn't be illegal for an existing cannabis business to move away from only selling marijuana and instead have the opportunity to grow, thrive and create jobs by offering coffee or live jazz."

AB 374 will now move to the Senate for approval, before being sent to the governor's desk to be signed. ★

PG&E Wants to Help Customers Recognize Utility Scams and Avoid Falling Victim

PG&E News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - With reports of scams targeting utility customers at an all-time high, Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) shares tips with customers to help recognize the signs of a potential scam.

A typical sign of a scam targeting a utility customer includes a caller claiming to be from PG&E and threatening disconnection if immediate payment is not made via a pre-paid debit card or money transfer service like Zelle. As a reminder, PG&E will never send a single notification to a customer within one hour of a service interruption, and we will never ask customers to make payments with a pre-paid debit card, gift card, any form of cryptocurrency, or third-party digital payment mobile applications.

"If you ever receive a call threatening utility disconnection if you do not make immediate payment, hang up the phone and either log into your account on PGE.com or call our customer service number to confirm your account details. Remember, PG&E will never ask for your financial information over the phone or via email, nor will we request payment via pre-paid debit cards or other payment services like Zelle. End the call, end the scam" said Matt Foley, lead customer scam investigator for PG&E.

Based on data collected so far in 2023, scammers are stepping up their efforts to defraud customers. In fact, there have been over 19,000 scam attempts reported by customers to PG&E, and customers have lost nearly $342,000 in the first four months of 2023 alone. During 2022, PG&E received nearly 23,000 reports from customers who were targeted by scammers impersonating the company, and customers lost approximately $946,000 in fraudulent payments.

Scammers can be convincing and often target those who are most vulnerable, including senior citizens and low-income communities. They also aim their scams at small business owners during busy customer service hours. Another recent emerging scam trend involves scammers targeting real estate agents via their listings, and threatening to shut off power if immediate payment is not made. However, with the right information, customers can learn to detect and report these predatory scams.

Signs Of A Potential Scam

Threat to disconnect: Scammers may aggressively demand immediate payment for an alleged past due bill.

Request for immediate payment: Scammers may instruct the customer to purchase a prepaid card, then call them back supposedly to make a bill payment.

Request for prepaid card: When the customer calls back, the caller asks the customer for the prepaid card's number, which grants the scammer instant access to the card's funds.

Refund or rebate offers: Scammers may say that your utility company overbilled you and owes you a refund, or that you are entitled to a rebate, and ask you for your personal financial information.

Scammers Impersonating Trusted Phone Numbers: Scammers are now able to create authentic-looking 800 numbers which appear on your phone display. The numbers don't lead back to PG&E if called back, however, so if you have doubts, hang up and call PG&E at 1-833-500-SCAM. If customers ever feel that they are in physical danger, they should call 911.

How Customers Can Protect Themselves

Customers should never purchase a pre-paid card to avoid service disconnection or shutoff. PG&E does not specify how customers should make a bill payment and offers a variety of ways to pay a bill, including accepting payments online, by phone, automatic bank draft, mail or in person.

If a scammer threatens immediate disconnection or shutoff of service without prior notification, customers should hang up the phone, delete the email, or shut the door. Customers with delinquent accounts receive an advance disconnection notification, typically by mail and included with their regular monthly bill.

Signing up for an online account at pge.com is another safeguard. Not only can customers log in to check their balance and payment history, they can also sign up for recurring payments, paperless billing and helpful alerts.

Customers who suspect that they have been victims of fraud, or who feel threatened during contact with one of these scammers, should contact local law enforcement. The Federal Trade Commission's website is also a good source of information about how to protect personal information.

For more information about scams, visit pge.com/scams or https://consumer.ftc.gov/scams. ★

California Water Rights At Risk As Three Legislative Proposals Advance

By Dan Walters,
CALMatters.org

When California imposed its first-ever regulation on the extraction of water from underground aquifers in 2014, it gave environmental groups a landmark victory in their decades-long effort to overhaul water use laws.

It was also a political setback for farmers, who are California's major water users and have depended on wells to irrigate their crops as increasingly frequent droughts reduce surface water in rivers and reservoirs.

However, while groundwater regulation ended one front in California's never-ending political and legal battles over allocation of water, it merely set the stage for an even bigger conflict over surface water rights, particularly those pre-dating 1914, when the state first began controlling diversions.

Just months after the groundwater regulation's enactment, with drought still gripping the state, the water rights battle was joined when the state Water Resources Control Board attempted to curtail diversions by some pre-1914 rights holders.

The board accused a small water system on the southern edge of the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta, Byron-Bethany Irrigation District, of ignoring its curtailment order and continuing to take water from the Delta for 13 days.

"We are a test case," Byron-Bethany's manager, Rick Gilmore, said at the time. "I think this has become a larger issue. I think the water board wants to use this as a precedent so they can start to gain more control over senior water right users."

An immediate confrontation was averted, but the underlying conflict continued and last year the state court of appeal declared that the board lacked emergency curtailment authority over senior rights holders.

Meanwhile, 2022 saw another clash involving another small water agency that ignored curtailment orders on the Shasta River a few miles south of the Oregon border. The Shasta River Water Association's farmers and ranchers continued to tap the river and later paid small fines.

The court decision and the Shasta River case fired up a long-standing drive by environmental groups to reduce diversions that damage wildlife habitat, contending that pre-1914 rights reflect exploitive and even racist 19th century attitudes incompatible with climate change and 21st century societal mores.

Water rights reformers have pressed the board to aggressively invoke the "public trust doctrine" of California water law and the state constitution's declaration that water use must be reasonable.

Despite its clashes over curtailment orders, the water board has been reluctant to engage in a sweeping political and legal war. It did, however, underwrite research by UC Berkeley's Center for Law, Energy and the Environment on the powers needed to curtail diversions during droughts.

The resulting report, issued in April, declared that "the state needs to implement curtailments on a regular basis, not only in times of extreme crisis. Routine curtailments already happen in other western states. California cannot afford to remain an outlier."

Not surprisingly, three bills have been introduced in the Legislature to give the water board the authority suggested in the UC Berkeley study, pitting water rights reformers against agricultural and municipal water agencies.

Although advocates contend that the bills would merely give the water board much-needed managerial tools, a coalition of water districts and agricultural groups see them as a prelude to the wholesale abrogation of their water rights. The board could gain the "potential to strip public agencies of water rights that have been used to sustain communities for decades," with decrees of "arbitrary outcomes," they wrote in an opposition letter.

All three measures, Assembly Bill 1337, Assembly Bill 460 and Senate Bill 389, survived initial floor votes but the political battle is just beginning. Their fate could rest in Gov. Gavin Newsom's hands as powerful interests clash over a bedrock issue — who prevails when there's not enough water to meet all demands.

How Will Working Affect My First Year's Benefits?

By Russell Gloor,
AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: I retired from working in January of this year and have since claimed Social Security. I didn't work at all in February or March, but I began a part time job in April. I'm very confused about how Social Security counts earnings for the first year. I don't know if I need to keep each month's earnings under $1,770 or if they average it. Some of the literature I've found says each month must remain under $1,770 or NO benefit will be paid that month. Two people at the Social Security office told me that they'll just dock me $1 for every $2 I am over that, even in my first year. I also cannot find anything about when they count your income. Is it when it's earned or when it's paid? If I go over in a month because there are three pay periods, can they withhold the benefit for that month? I'm just so confused! Signed: Part Time Worker

Dear Part Time Worker: The Social Security earnings test during your first year collecting benefits before full retirement age is, indeed, somewhat confusing. The reason is because there are two methods which Social Security may use during your first calendar year collecting early benefits, and they will use the one which results in the least financial impact to you. To elaborate:

If you claim benefits mid-year before your full retirement age, for the remainder of that first year (starting in the month benefits begin and ending in December) you'll be subject to a monthly earnings limit ($1,770 for 2023). If you exceed the monthly limit in any remaining month of that first calendar year, you won't be entitled to benefits for that month, so Social Security would (eventually) take back that month's benefit. That is, unless using the annual limit ($21,240 for 2023) instead will result in a smaller penalty. If your total earnings for your first year collecting are over the annual limit (e.g., $21,240 for 2023), the penalty would be $1 for every $2 over the annual limit and, if that is less than the penalty from using the monthly limit, they will assess the smaller penalty. In other words, Social Security will use the method which is most beneficial to you when assessing a penalty for exceeding the earnings limit during your first calendar year collecting benefits. And just for clarity, the earnings limits are much higher and the penalty less during the year you attain full retirement age (FRA).

Something else to be aware of: if you know in advance you will exceed the annual limit it would be best to inform Social Security in order to avoid an Overpayment Notice next year. If you don't, Social Security won't know about your 2023 earnings until you file your 2023 income taxes, so you'll get your 2023 monthly payments as usual. But when the IRS informs Social Security of your 2023 earnings later next year, Social Security will ask you to detail your monthly work earnings for 2023. If you have exceeded the limits, they will determine an overpayment amount and will ask you to either pay back what is owed in a lump sum or will withhold your benefits for enough months to recover what you owe for exceeding the 2023 earnings limit. Then, after you reach full retirement age (FRA), you'll get time credit for all months in which benefits were withheld, thus slightly increasing your monthly payment after your FRA.

Finally, it is when your income is earned that counts, not when it is paid. So, for example, if you worked in January 2023 and were paid for that work in February 2023, that is considered January income which wouldn't count toward the February earnings limit.

Don't Put All Your Eggs
in One Basket

Dear Dave,

My employer offers an employee stock purchase plan at a 15% discount. I'm usually the kind of guy who buys stocks and holds on to them forever. But when it comes to an opportunity like this, should I buy it and wait for a year to sell it, or should I buy it and sell right away?

— John

Dear John,

Generally, I don't recommend buying single stocks at all. Single stocks are way too risky, and a 15% discount is nothing special in this kind of scenario. Virtually every single company out there that has an employee stock option plan offers a 15% discount.

In most situations like this, if you pull up a 52-week chart on the stock's performance, you'll find a variance of as much as 15% in those 52 weeks. In other words, you could lose any or all of that discount in one move of the stock. Plus, it's not like 15% is a big discount to begin with. Fifteen percent off a single stock, considering how volatile they are, is no big deal. But hey, if you love your company that much, they have a great track record, and the stock has a good history, go ahead. Just don't allow single stocks as a category to make up more than 10% of your net worth.

The core issue here is a lack of diversification. When you put all your eggs in one basket, there's always some clown twirling the basket. The first time I ran into that was a long time ago with a lady who was 70 years old. She had worked for a large company for 40 years. On top of that, she invested all her 401(k), all her wealth—$800,000 total—in that one company. Well, this company experienced a crisis. It lost nearly half of its value, and her $800,000 was suddenly worth about $400,000. She left herself vulnerable with a high-risk play, John.

I'll say it again. Don't bet the farm on one horse, and don't have more than 10% of your net worth wrapped up in single stocks. Hundreds of research projects have been done that show individuals who buy individual stocks and think they know what they're doing actually lose money much more often than they make money.

5 Over 50 Award Recipients Honored

Sacramento County News Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Eighteen people were nominated for Sacramento County's 5 Over 50 Award, which recognizes volunteers in the County who are over the age of 50. During the Tuesday, May 23 Board of Supervisors meeting, Sacramento County's Adult and Aging Commission honored all of them.

Some of the award recipients wanted to share why they volunteer. They also wanted to highlight what they do to help others in Sacramento County.

One of the volunteers who was honored is John Seigal. He is a member of the Kiwanis Club of Rancho Murietta. He also volunteers at the Elk Grove Food Bank and the California State Railroad Museum. John has volunteered over 28,000 hours at the State Railroad Museum since 1999. John says he enjoys staying busy.

"I'm enjoying my life. I get up every morning and I have something to do," he explained.

John says being retired doesn't mean you have to lose your sense of purpose. He encourages older adults to get out and find ways to stay involved in their community.

"When you get to retirement age, what's the purpose in life? To sit around the house all day? No. Choose to volunteer, do what you want to do, and bloom where you're planted. Find out about all of the new things happening. Share your wisdom now that you are older," said John.

Howard Hatch is another award recipient who loves history. He volunteers at the Sacramento History Museum. During the pandemic, he became a TikTok celebrity. Videos of Howard running the old printing press went viral.

Now, he uses the videos to teach people around the world about his volunteer work and Sacramento's history. His fellow volunteer at the museum, Jared Jones, makes the videos. People love watching Howard so much, viewers have donated thousands of dollars to the museum. But Howard says he doesn't volunteer or star in the videos for the fame. He loves running the printing press and teaching younger generations about history.

"I always figure, if you want to know something about what you're doing right now, you need to see where it came from and how it developed," said Howard.

Howard started volunteering at the Sacramento History Museum more than 20 years ago. Right now, he has no intention of slowing down. He plans on creating more videos to continue educating people. Those who have volunteered with Howard say they are thankful for his dedication to the museum and want to recognize Howard for bringing so much attention to the museum.

Award recipient Marilyn Lewis was recognized for her dedication to keeping her community safe. She serves as Neighborhood Watch Coordinator in her Old Foothill Farms neighborhood. She's helped coordinate the community watch efforts for more than 11 years. She also goes out of her way to make new neighbors feel welcome by sending them letters.

"Marilyn is reliable, trustworthy, honest, and extremely loyal to our neighborhood. Our safe community is a testament to her dedication," said Susan Holtgrave, who nominated Marilyn for the 5 Over 50 Award.

Award recipient Ed Stone was a math teacher before he retired. Now, he uses some of those skills to build handrails to help older adults and people with mobility issues. Ed Stone has volunteered at Rebuilding Together Sacramento for 20 years. Rebuilding Together helps vulnerable residents live in safe, healthy, efficient homes and neighborhoods. Fellow volunteers wanted to recognize Ed not just for his work but also for his personality. He is known for being a jokester and cheering up those around him.

Other award recipients include:

Daniel Aderholt, Mark Baker, Mark Harrington, Dr. Ali Tucker Lichtenstein, Jayasri Mechini, Nancy Woo, Sharon Ruffner, Carol Stirnaman, Maggie Roehm, Jeanmarie Willbee, Corecia Davis, Wayne Harmer, David Ishikawa, and Teresa Kahl.

Sacramento County's Adult and Aging Commission thanks all of the 5 Over 50 Award recipients for their dedication to making Sacramento County a great place to live. ★

'Sanctuary State' Governor Upset Migrants Were Sent Here for Sanctuary

By Katy Grimes, California Globe

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - California's sanctuary state Governor Gavin Newsom and Attorney General Rob Bonta were quick to blame Florida Governor Ron DeSantis for Friday's migrant flight into Sacramento, and then accused Florida of "state-sanctioned kidnapping" for transporting migrants from the Texas border to a Sacramento church.

However, when he was still Lieutenant Governor, Newsom proudly declared and reaffirmed California's sanctuary state status after the Trump Justice Department threatened to charge state or local officials who enforced sanctuary policies protecting illegal immigrants.

As California Lieutenant Governor, Newsom issued a warning to the Trump administration a Tweet. "Let me be clear, @realDonaldTrump: California is a sanctuary state. We believe in the power of diversity. We have defied and resisted the xenophobic, hateful policies of your administration at every turn. We will do it again."

And he posted a video on Facebook saying, "California will remain a sanctuary state, and your attempt to intimidate will not stop us."

So which is it Gov. Newsom - is California a Sanctuary State which welcomes illegal immigrants and releases them from custody? Or are you sending them back in disgust?

Is all of this bravado and bluster grandstanding for future Democrat voters? Newsom is clearly running for President, and Bonta has announced he wants to be the next California Governor.

As for the two flights into Sacramento, there still is uncertainty if Gov. Ron DeSantis is actually behind the flights. Thus far, all reports about the illegal immigrant planes appear to be speculation, and DeSantis is mum.

Governors DeSantis and Greg Abbott (Texas) have sent planes with illegal immigrants to sanctuary cities Chicago, New York, and Martha's Vineyard to share in the housing and care of the migrants they claim to want sanctuary for.

Democrat President Joe Biden has called this movement of mostly Latin American migrants "playing politics with people's lives" and said it is inhumane, especially in areas such as New York City, which have services brought to the brink already because of the migrant influx, the Globe reported Monday.

However, officials from Texas and Florida, including DeSantis, have fired back that "every community in America should be sharing in the burdens."

The federal government has also sent secret flights full of illegal immigrants into Westchester, New York in the middle of the night, stirring controversy of their own:

Leaked video shows migrants being transported on secret charter flights under the cover of night from southern border states to Westchester, New York.

"The government is betraying the American people," a federal contractor told a Westchester County police officer in a conversation recorded on the officer's body camera on the tarmac of a Westchester airport on Aug. 13, 2021.

Westchester Police Sgt. Michael Hamborsky asked the contractor hired to transport migrants around the country why: "You know why. Because if this gets out, the government is betraying the American people," the contractor said.

Gov. Newsom and Sacramento Mayor Darrell Steinberg turned on the rhetoric claiming, 'Human trafficking is not only despicable; it's a felony. I urge authorities to investigate how 16 vulnerable people were lured from El Paso, to Sacramento.' "Is there anything more cruel than using scared human beings to score cheap political points?"

Both Steinberg and Newsom support open borders, and illegal immigration.

And it isn't human trafficking or kidnapping to take illegals from a non-sanctuary state to a sanctuary state that claims to welcome them.

Rich with irony, Gov. Newsom has been releasing dangerous felons from state prisons, most of whom reoffend or end up living on the streets, addicted to meth and/or heroin.

Perhaps the most ironic Tweet summed up their hypocrisy best: "Lol yes you are not worried about them coming across the dessert and risking their lives but put them on a private jet and send them to your cities, now that's a travesty." ★

The new arcade at Sunrise Rollerland.

there since opening day, while also sporting one of the rink's new 50th anniversary t-shirts available for sale in the gift shop. The medieval theming throughout the rink stems from Lloyd Neutz's own interests. As Evan Neutz stated, "He was way into Europe. He really liked it."

Sunrise Rollerland holds an average of 25 parties per week during its busy season and is home to two skating clubs - Triad Speed Skating and the Sunrise Artistic Skate Club. Touting the largest maple hardwood in Northern California, the entire floor was recently resurfaced in time for the planned 50th anniversary party this fall.

Polina Bardusova grew up skating at Sunrise Rollerland and has also worked as a cashier and snack bar attendant for one year. "It's fun here. The customers are nice. Coming in here, it just feels like the employees are nice and it's a good environment," stated Bardusova. "I feel like it's still fun. I came here in middle school, and then the older kids thought skating wasn't cool anymore. But I still think it's fun."

The maintenance of the rink is also impressive. "We've been told by guests we are the cleanest roller rink," said Neutz.

A stroll around the building proves his point, with everything from original lighting fixtures to the brand-new arcade looking well-kept. However, one original feature of the rink won't be showing up to the anniversary party this fall. Locals may have noticed the rink's large coat of arms exterior sign has gone missing. While it seems logical to blame it on vandalism, the sign actually determined its own fate.

"It fell down," stated Neutz. "It was 50 years old and just fell apart."

The sign is already in the process of being replaced with a bolder, brighter version of the original as visitors breeze past it on their way inside to indulge in some true nostalgia. When asked what type of skates are most popular, Neutz emphatically voted for old-school quads, which make up the majority of skate rentals. The rink also offers inline skates.

Sunrise Rollerland continues its 50-year tradition of offering various admission deals throughout the year so everyone can afford to come skate. It is a participant of the national Kids Skate Free program, and group rates are available. The rink also holds plenty of theme nights including Retro Night Skate, Christian Music Nights, and Flashlight Skate.

Neutz noted that 50th anniversary plans are still in the works, but they are planning a large event in November. Updates will be posted on the rink's website and Facebook page. Patrons of Sunrise Rollerland are invited to send in photos and videos of their time at the rink over the past five decades to sunriserollerland.manager@gmail.com.

Until then, skaters young and old can enjoy one of the rink's summer sessions. Admission prices range from $6-$11, and skate rentals are $4 for quads and $5 for inline. Skating lessons are also available for those new to wheels. ★
