DIXON, CA (MPG) - A new Community Theater is growing in Dixon and they are already planning the 2024 season with Comedies in the Spring, Musicals in the Summer, Dramas in the Fall and Christmas in Winter.

Dixon Community Theater held its debut at the Dixon Tree Lighting Festival with a play about how the town of Dixon got started. It was an idea that Dixon Historical Society President Kim Evans-Schroeder had been carrying in her satchel of love for Dixon history for several years.

Cornejo, a hometown Dixon guy who had moved to New York, earned a Masters in Theater Arts and has taught Theater for 20 years with the last five at UC Santa Cruz. He had moved back to his family's Dixon home during the pandemic and was teaching online. The two met when he visited the Dixon History Museum where Abel's sister, Maria Cornejo-Lopez, also volunteers with the Dixon Historical Society. They synergized over plans for the Christmas play on how Dixon began.

Abel was the playwright for the museum production which involved

"It's where someone's relative is coaxed into the performance or someone knows someone else so it's a wide group of ages and talents."

It was filmed and posted on the Dixon Community Theater website creating even more interest.

Abel attributes the growing Dixon interest to his ability to transfer skills to online classes and utilize social media.

"It went really well," he said. "I actually started this in the pandemic which was a blessing because I was #### a cast of nine characters that was forced to learn how to teach online." quickly compiled with friends and He had help from former Dixon neighbors. It came to fruition thanks to Abel classmate, Linda Austin-Bologna "That's what community theater and reconnected with Mr. (Richard) is," he explained with enthusiasm. Continued on page 3

DIXON, CA (MPG) - You haven't seen the toughest job ever unless you've gone to a heated school board meeting filled with angry parents. This was a meeting where the superintendent, Brian Dolan, was to present the plan to where students from Anderson Elementary School would be distributed after a construction emergency at their school site.

Three weeks ago, the main electrical panel for the school blew during construction work. The school has been under construction for renovations and improvements since students returned from their summer break. ## Senate Approves Dodd's Ukraine Sister-State Measure

Office of Senator Bill Dodd News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The California Senate has approved legislation from Sen. Bill Dodd, D-Napa, that would extend an invitation to the people of Lviv, Ukraine to enter a sister-state relationship with California.

"California has one of the largest Ukrainian communities in the United States, so it makes sense that we forge an official bond with the Lviv region," Sen. Dodd said. "We share many mutual values, aspirations and interests including economic cooperation, academic research, cultural exploration and technological innovation. In the face of the brutal war unleashed by Russia, it is especially important to foster this sister-state relationship to promote prosperity, understanding and goodwill within the region."

"It's a heartfelt recognition of our shared commitment to freedom, democracy and resilience. This partnership between Lviv and California is more than diplomatic ties; it's a symbol of hope and solidarity, a testament to the enduring spirit of our people and the unbreakable bonds that unite us."

Lviv is in western Ukraine and is home to various ethnic and religious groups with a rich tradition of education and scholarship, making it an ideal educational exchange partner. It is also a key region for trade and joint initiatives to promote economic and job growth. ## Advice for Your First Job or Your 10th

By Debra Dingman

Young people in their first jobs have a lot to learn. But the most important one is that like relationships, none are perfect. There will be parts of the job that one loves (like a paycheck) while other parts one can't stand. Employees should be open to learning new things and be flexible—with everything and everyone.

Getting a new job is like having a baby. There are some things you can predict (like tears, wet diapers and midnight feedings) but there is oh so much you cannot—like feeling pure joy. At a new job, there are new personalities, new skills to learn, and new experiences that will help one in their development to being a great adult.

I feel like I have been very blessed in that I really enjoyed most of my jobs. I loved learning, meeting new people, and feeling like I was contributing or helping the world in some way. (My book, Learning A Living, tells those stories.)

When I went through age discrimination in my early 50s, I was forced to take a look at my resume through an employer's eyes and saw some things that were not wise. I learned I had basically two careers: teaching and journalism. Employers might have seen that as indecisive. I also was an entrepreneur through a chunk of those years and I've been told employers see that as a detriment because they think you may not be a good follower.

Someone at a UC Davis class on creating a great resume brought some of these things to my attention and I worked to simplify it. A resume is often the first thing an employer learns about you. It is so important to do your introduction to them well. Young people can get help at their school's counseling office and of course, there are things online, too.

Parents need to help their grown children look at their resumes and give a critical but loving eye. I've recently reviewed a resume from a young woman who didn't have guidance. She had a different job every year. I wondered who is going to help this person. I just finished reading a book called 'The Language of Flowers' and it really opened my eyes to the world of foster care and stories of young adults who don't have a loving family experience to draw from for this kind of necessary transparent conversation. If we are gentle and come from honesty, I believe any person can be helpful—even if they don't actually hire the person.

The other stop employers will make is on one's social media site. A person who has 100 selfies and puts herself in seductive positions, will not be chosen. Employers want a quality, well-balanced person and they know how to look at one's past.

Speaking of that, when someone lines up numerous past jobs, a potential boss can easily see job hopping and could determine the person is not a good candidate for employment. From their view, the person could easily quit after lots of paperwork to get her/him onboarded and hours invested in training.

Good employers want teachability, intelligence, loyalty and maturity. They want someone to work with them to create a better working environment and business growth. They are looking for a candidate's potential and where skills will fit well into their business needs. They are excited to see what one can bring to the table –like computer skills and fresh views. Please pass this on to someone you know who is seeking early work experiences.

DIXON, CA (MPG) - Ramtown karate students from Dixon participated in their first tournament of 2024 and took several firsts at the Perales Sacramento Tournament. There were seven competitors with some who had never competed before.

Angela Vegas took 1st place in kumite as well as 3rd place in kata. Kumite is one of the three main sections of karate training, along with kata and kihon. Kumite is the part of karate in which a person trains against an adversary and kata is a specified series of moves attempting to maintain perfect form while stepping and turning.

Christopher Vega received a 1st place in kumite and his little sister, Ronan, received a 2nd place in it.

Anna Anderson received a 2nd place in both kumite and kata. Two students got 3rd place in Kumite: Lazer Ingram and Santos Tellechea. Patrick Wentworth also participated in the tournament.

"Not only do we need physical training, we need to study the kata and their applications. When you train at kata, your eyes will get sharper and your blocking and striking will get stronger," according to Karate expert Chibana Choshin.

Sensei Hector Perales was honored recently by the Bay Area Cities Karate and Kobudo Alliance Masters Hall of Fame as their 2023 Competitor of The Year and is well known to Karate enthusiasts throughout northern California.

Farshler, former long-time Drama teacher at Dixon High School who gave strong encouragement. He called Abel almost daily—even from his hospital ICU room.

"Theater gives you passion. It makes you feel alive and gives you a family," Farshler

"We've had a really amazing response," Abel said. It was time to take the next step with building a Board and scheduling performances.

That's what happened this past week. People representing a broad spectrum of ages, backgrounds, and levels of interest showed up and packed the Chamber of Commerce conference room. Abel asked for introductions which included several who held degrees, served on past boards, produced major productions, and/or performed in numerous plays.

"I've been on the stage for 45 years and have been in more than 200 productions," said Brian McCann. He wanted to see what kind of interest there'd be in Dixon and is currently in the Davis Theater. One mom was there to support her youthful daughter. Janice Ferrero minored in drama in college.

"The Chamber 100-percent supports this," said Chamber President/CEO Shauna Manina, who also listed her extensive background in the arts. She holds a Masters and started a school to teach improv to at-risk students. She reported that she is currently working on getting 30K in arts funding.

"Whether you're an experienced performer or just stepping into the limelight, we invite you to be part of our creative community. All acting roles are voluntary, driven by a shared passion for the arts," Abel said. He listed off areas they need help which includes Set Construction, Backstage Crew, Playwriting, Costume Design, Fundraising, and Actors.

He is organizing the Board of Directors for the group. Interested parties can contact the group at dixoncommunitytheater.com or email Cornejo at abelevents@live.com.

The next General Meeting for the theater group will be on Monday, February 5 from 5:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the Veterans Memorial Hall at 1305 North First Street. They will discuss Fundraising, Classes, and Auditions for the first show.

the rest of the parents who didn't already know discovered there was no fire alarm or working phones, emotions flared.

Weeping or teary-eyed parents spoke of their sick children while others who felt more angry pointed fingers and came a sentence short of threatening the superintendent as well as the school board trustees. It wasn't

"We do care — enormously," said Dolan. "Everyone has reviewed the generators and these are allowable and safe to have on campus. Since they've been running, we've been able to function at the school." The generators have been inspected by CNP (Construction Noise Permit) Environmental Report, Air Qiuality Management, the Dixon Fire Department, and Cal/OSHA inspected and agree the generators are safe.

When a parent complained about the fumes of the generators making their child sick, the next parent was saying they didn't want to relocate their child to a different school. When a parent was okay with relocating their child, another said it would be impossible to get her children picked up from two different locations on time. There were parents who don't want the school to be a 'construction site' but others emphasized the need to re-do all the electrical immediately. It was clearly a lose-lose for the school board.

Trustee John Gabby, joined the conversation and made sense when he reminded the crowd, "We are parents, too, and we are open to solutions." But there isn't one fast enough or one that will soothe all the fervent parents.

"We are concerned with everyone—students, parents, and staff. We are in an impossible situation," said Trustee Jewel Fink.

There was a suggestion to get the new electrical panel ordered ASAP and installed. And another to extend the teacher workdays so the teachers would have time to pack their things.

"You asked what you can do, and it needs to be above and beyond like give us a whole day to pack our classrooms," said Meghan Kelly, a Kindergarten teacher at Anderson. There was requests for some extra time for parents who are teachers in the morning and after school and concerns about the traffic.

"I'm asking you to consider the start and stop times with drop-off at the door. With drop-off at the door, we're going to create a huge train wreck for drop-offs," said Erin Brothers who has a son in 4th grade.

Here's the plan that was announced at the January 24 meeting: The generators will be moved back to lessen any exhaust. Intercoms are now fixed. Of the 430 Anderson students, eight classes TK through 1st grade and the combination class will start at Tremont, he explained. Gretchin Higgens will receive 11 classes of students: 2nd through 5th grades.

"This allows for classes to remain intact, and no one needs to change classes," said Dolan. They will keep their same teacher and lunches, and recesses will be with their same school peers. "This is the best use available of our resources," he added.

Teachers will be provided moving boxes, and movers will move them on February 16 and 17. ★

Holodomor tragedy which led to the death of millions of Ukrainians at the hands of the Soviets. In 2014, the California Senate approved a resolution of cooperation between the California National Guard and Ukraine. Over the years, this partnership has made humanitarian support a constant aspect of every deployment, including helping with school repairs in the Lviv region.

Senate Concurrent Resolution 96 recognizes this close relationship and invites the people of Lviv to join in the sister-state relationship with California. SCR 96 was approved by the Senate on a 37-0 vote and heads to the Assembly for further consideration.

$24M NIH Grant Extends Study of Healthy Aging in African Americans

Black Americans Have the Highest Rate of Alzheimer's Disease of All Ethnic Groups in the U.S.

UC Davis Health News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG)

- Researchers at UC Davis Health and Kaiser Permanente Division of Research have received a $24 million grant from the National Institute on Aging, part of the National Institutes of Health (NIH), to continue the Study of Healthy Aging in African Americans (STAR) for an additional five years.

STAR, which launched in 2017, follows a group of approximately 750 older adults to understand how behaviors and lifestyle may increase the risk of Alzheimer's disease and related dementias for Black and African Americans. The study is also trying to better understand the factors that may protect brain health.

Black Americans have the highest rate of Alzheimer's disease and related dementias of all ethnic and racial groups in the United States. Older Black Americans are about one-and-a-half to two times more likely than white Americans to be living with dementia or Alzheimer's.

Among Black Americans

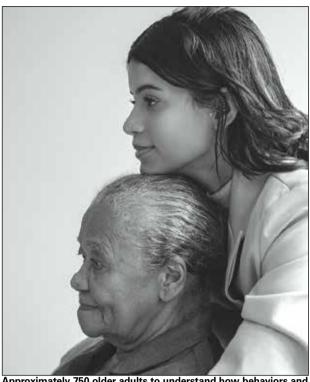

70 years of age and older, 21.3% live with Alzheimer's. But information about potential risks in early life — and ways to mitigate those risks — relies almost exclusively on research conducted with white participants.

Rachel Whitmer, a professor in the departments of Public Health Sciences and Neurology and co-director of the UC Davis Alzheimer's Disease Research Center, and Paola Gilsanz, an epidemiologist and research scientist at Kaiser Permanente Division of Research, are the principal investigators of the study.

"We are thrilled to continue this study for another five years so that we can further unravel what contributes to brain health and dementia risk in Black Americans," Whitmer said. "There have not been a lot of studies following this community from middle age into late life. But understanding the risk and protective factors throughout someone's life is key to improving brain health and reducing disparities."

Study follows participants' health and habits over time

Participants in the STAR study are Black adults living in the San Francisco Bay Area and the greater Sacramento region. They are long-term members of Kaiser Permanente Northern California, meaning the researchers have a wealth of health data as far back as the 1960s. This offers a unique opportunity to understand how factors earlier in life, such as hypertension in young adulthood, may contribute to brain health later.

"With the ability to further follow these individuals over time, we will be better able to understand the cognitive aging transition and how to reduce the risk of cognitive impairment in this important population," Gilsanz said.

The STAR participants are visited in their homes or local clinics and participate in surveys and cognitive tests looking at an array of health, behavioral and functional measures. Some participants also undergo magnetic resonance imaging (MRI) brain scans, a noninvasive way to view brain health.

The information collected by the researchers helps identify associations between behavioral and lifestyle factors, along with changes in the brain over time, to understand the risk factors and protective factors for dementia.

Identifying factors that hurt or help brain health

The first five years of STAR produced significant findings regarding factors that may contribute to latelife cognition. Researchers learned that:

-School segregation and timing of desegregation are associated with differences in late-life cognition

-Hypertension, diabetes and high cholesterol (hyperlipidemia) in adolescence, young adulthood and midlife are linked to poorer cognitive performance and more vascular brain injury later in life

-Birth in a "stroke-belt"

state is associated with poorer cognitive function in late life

The study also identifies some potentially mitigating factors that might improve brain health:

-Study participants who read or played games weekly had better executive function than those who did not -Study participants who

a week later in life had the highest levels of executive function compared to those who did not volunteer Researchers also found that attending a school with volunteered several times

that attending a school with mostly Black students was associated with lower depressive symptoms later in life. Recent studies show a link between depression and dementia.

"Dr. Gilsanz and I are immensely grateful for our STAR participants," Whitmer said. "Their participation is leading to greatly improved knowledge about aging and brain health for Black Americans in the U.S. They are also showing us what can be done to reduce the disparity of diseases like Alzheimer's, which is expected to almost quadruple by 2060 for Black Americans."

Riley Reviews

"ROLE PLAY" FORMULAIC COMEDIC THRILLER; CRIME ON LIFETIME TV

A Film and TV Review by Tim Riley

"ROLE PLAY" RATED R

Kaley Cuoco has come a long way since her role of pretty aspiring actress Penny, the apartment-dwelling neighbor befriending a pair of science nerds in the long-running popular series "The Big Bang Theory."

Just a few years ago Cuoco's Cassie Bowden was the titular character in the HBO series "The Flight Attendant," an alcohol-fueled mess who traveled often on long-haul flights which she endured with copious indulgence of airline mini vodka bottles.

This series was an intriguing murder mystery in which Cuoco was anything but the pleasantly sincere "girl next door" as she turned out to be an inebriated libidinous party girl who on one trip wakes up in a Bangkok hotel room next to a dead guy.

Continuing on a path of more daring television fare than an innocuous sitcom about life with socially awkward physicists, Cuoco not only stars but serves as a producer on Amazon Prime's "Role Play," in which she has a secret life.

Cuoco's Emma Brackett is apparently happily married to Dave (David Oyelowo) with two kids in the suburbs of New Jersey. For business, she's supposedly traveling to exciting places like Nebraska but apparently not engaging in sexual trysts with strangers.

In "Role Play," Cuoco's character, much like the one in "The Flight Attendant," skirts with danger once again, only this time she's a willing participant in a hazardous position, which comes with the territory of being a professional assassin.

Back home in New Jersey, her unwitting husband is displeased that Emma has forgotten their seventh wedding anniversary, and he can be forgiven for fretting that their marriage might have lost its allure.

To pump a little excitement back into matrimony, Emma and Dave decide a little role-playing would be in order by planning a rendezvous at the bar of a swanky New York hotel, where they will pretend to be strangers before hooking up.

Drinking alone at the bar as a prelude to a make-believe encounter, Emma is approached by an older gentleman who is game for striking up a conversation, while Dave is apparently running late to the party.

The interloper in this situation is Bob Kellerman (Bill Nighy), who has a gift for gab. While his appearance is like that of a traveling salesman, there's more to Bob than getting in the way of a role-playing occasion.

The encounter in the hotel lounge takes an interesting turn with a few surprises. What will it take for Dave to catch on his wife's secret identity? An unexpected death exposes a rift in the marriage when both Emma and Dave find themselves "persons of interest" to the police. Emma might not even be her real name, but the notion that she's a professional killer leads to inevitable marital complications as Dave is completely bewildered and blindsided.

Things get even more dire for Emma when she has to go to Berlin for a con-when she has to go to Berlin for a contract, and mysterious handler Gwen Carver (Connie Nielsen) is determined to keep Emma from giving up her career for family.

A mix of comedy and action can work where the secret assassin is the central plot. Take the case of double secrecy in "Mr. and Mrs. Smith" when Brad Pitt and Angelina Jolie, a couple in a decaying marriage, have been hiding from each other that they are assassins for rival agencies.

Kaley Cuoco and David Oyelowo

Kaley Cuoco and David Oyelowo are not exactly Brangelina, but as far as "Role Play" goes, they acquit themselves decently for a serviceable and formulaic comedic thriller that has enough moments of fun for a streaming production.

CRIME DRAMAS ON LIFETIME CHANNEL

Premiering on February 3RD on the Lifetime Channel, "A Mother's Intuition" centers on the story of a young sculptor named Toni (Denise Boutte), a pregnant woman mourning the abrupt death of her husband who learns upon the birth of her child that her baby girl was stillborn.

The story takes a bizarre turn when Toni accuses the hospital of swapping her baby. More than paranoia is in play, and though no one believes her, the search for truth results in plenty of twists and suspense.

Based on a true story, "Abducted Off the Street: The Carlesha Gaither Story" chronicles the kidnapping of a Philadelphia nurse's aide at the hands of a homicidal predator, and reveals how she fought to survive and created a trail that would ultimately lead to her rescue.

Carlesha (Riele Downs) was walking home from a family gathering when she is forced into a car at knifepoint. Determined to endure and outsmart her captor, Carlesha leaves clues behind at every opportunity.

Meanwhile, Carlesha's mother, Keisha (Kenya Moore), stops at nothing to find her, making an impassioned plea to the media and working alongside a committed detective to rescue her before it's too late.

The real culprit was a person by the name of Delvin Barnes, a man with an extensive criminal history who pleaded guilty to holding Carlesha hostage for three days. In June 2016, Barnes was sentenced to 35 years in prison. ★

Isn't About Instant Gratification

Dear Dave,

We've all our debts paid off, except for our home, and our fully funded emergency fund of six months of expenses is in place. In talking to people, it seems there are lots of different opinions as to what constitutes an emergency. What guidelines do you suggest when deciding whether to use our emergency fund?

Ingrid

Dear Ingrid,

Here are three things to ask yourself when you're tempted to dip into your emergency fund. One, is it unexpected? Things like Christmas, birthdays and even certain bills come around at the same time every year. If you're not already budgeting for these things, it's time to start.

Dave Ramsey Says

Otherwise, you might use your emergency fund for something that's just the result of poor planning.

Number two, is it absolutely necessary? Most of us think we know the difference between needs and wants, but sometimes the line gets a little blurry. If your car goes completely kaput, and you need transportation, use your emergency fund to buy something affordable and reliable you can pay cash for. But don't dip into your emergency fund just to upgrade your good car for one with a million bells and whistles. That's a want, not a need.

And three, is it urgent?
Sometimes, you have act like a grown-up. Every idea that pops into your mind isn't unexpected, necessary or urgent. You can live that way if you want, but the result will be a quickly depleted emergency fund.
Then, what're you going to do when a real emergency comes along?

Practice the art of patience. Avoid impulse buys. Urgent things include stuff like a broken air conditioner in the middle of summer, a busted transmission or sudden, unexpected medical expenses. A big sale at Wal Mart? No. Concert tickets? Definitely not. That great new pair of shoes you just saw in a store window? Give me a break!

Your emergency fund is about long-term security, not instant gratification. Don't use it on a whim. But don't be afraid to use it when you really need to!

First Northern Reports Record Year End 2023 Net Income of $21.6 Million

First Northern Community Bancorp News Release

DIXON, CA (MPG) - First Northern Community Bancorp (the "Company", OTCOX: FNRN), holding company for First Northern Bank ("First Northern" or the "Bank"), today reported 2023 annual net income of $21.6 million, or $1.41 per diluted share, increases of 35.7% and 35.6%, respectively, when compared to net income of $15.9 million, or $1.04 per diluted share, for 2022. Net income for the year included the bargain purchase gain resulting from our branch acquisition completed in the first quarter of 2023. On an after-tax basis, the bargain purchase gain contributed $1.0 million to net income for the year ended December 31, 2023.

Net income for the quarter ended December 31, 2023, totaled $6.9 million, or $0.45 per diluted share, compared to net income of $4.7 million, or $0.31 per diluted share, for the quarter ended December 31, 2022. The increase in net income on a quarter over quarter basis was largely driven by the reversal of provision for credit losses which totaled $2.0 million for the quarter ended December 31. 2023, compared to no provision for credit losses for the quarter ended December 31, 2022. The reversal of provision for credit losses of $2.0 million was primarily due to the payoff of a non-performing agricultural loan relationship that resulted in recoveries of previously charged-off principal totaling $2.6 million, partially offset by provision for credit losses due to loan growth during the quarter.

Total assets as of December 31, 2023, were $1.87 billion, an increase of $0.5 million, or 0.03%, compared to December 31, 2022. Total deposits as of December 31, 2023, were $1.69 billion, a decrease of $34.4 million, or 2.0%, compared to December 31, 2022. Total net loans (including loans held-for-sale) as of December 31, 2023 were $1.1 billion, an increase of $82.3 million, or 8.5%, compared to total net loans (including loans held-for-sale) of $970.1 million as of December 31, 2022. The increase in net loans was primarily driven by growth in commercial real estate and residential mortgage loans partially offset by net reductions in agricultural loans.

The Company continued to be "well capitalized" under regulatory definitions, exceeding the 10% total risk-based capital ratio threshold as of December 31, 2023.

Commenting on the Company's yearend 2023 financial results, First Northern Bank's President & Chief Executive Officer Jeremiah Smith stated, "We are pleased to report robust financial results for the year 2023. Our success was partially driven by the heightened interest rate environment and subsequent balance sheet repricing. This resulted in record net interest income of $66.5 million for the year, an increase of $11.8 million, or 21.7%, compared to the previous year's $54.7 million. The Company ended the year with a record $21.6 million of net income, an increase of 35.7% over the $15.9 million earned in 2022. We believe the success we experienced in 2023 was driven by the significant demand for our approach to relationship banking across the Sacramento region and surrounding communities and reflects the trust our clients and communities have placed in First Northern Bank. Further, we're proud to announce that our trading upgrade from the OTCQB® Venture Market to the OTCQX® Best Market is complete. The OTCQX should provide improved visibility for our stock to investors, brokers, and market makers, with the aim of enhancing shareholder value for FNRN."

The Company also reported that at their regular meeting on January 25, 2024, the Board of Directors approved a 5% stock dividend payable March 25, 2024, to shareholders of record as of February 29, 2024. All income per share amounts in this press release have been adjusted to give retroactive effect to the stock dividend. ★

Kings Korner By V.G. Harris

I was worried. Genuinely worried that after a miserable four-game losing streak that saw the Kings give away two games, largely because of abysmal free throw shooting, I would have nothing positive to write about.

Enter Harrison Barnes. Yes, the much maligned Harrison Barnes, and rightfully so. Harrison has under-performed nearly all season, and I have been critical of his effort: to the point of calling for coach Brown to give Trey Lyles his starting spot in the lineup.

So, after four miserable games, the Kings have now won three straight, and Mr. Barnes has played prominently in all three. 32 points, then a career best 39, and finally a solid 20-point performance against the Dallas Mavericks to help the Kings string three wins together.

The most prominent name mentioned in trade talks has been none other than Harrison Barnes, and this most recent resurgence in productivity has fans and pundits alike scratching their heads.

For many of us that have followed Harrison's career, we know and have seen what he is capable of doing, so the question must be asked, where has this been, and Coach Brown has been criticized with his starting lineup, and I will say, regardless of how well Harrison plays, Trey Lyles needs more minutes on the court every game. Trey has a basketball ceiling that we have yet to see, and we're only going to see it if he gets 30 minutes plus per game.

Much like Domantis Sabonis, Trey Lyles brings a workmanlike effort every game, and could start on many NBA teams.

Malik Monk continues to be coach Brown's 6th man, and if Malik can thrive in that role, I'll stand back and applaud. Without question, like Trey Lyles, Malik needs more minutes. His game time is a bit erratic, and if there is anyone that makes his presence felt immediately, it's Malik Monk.

What this brings us to, is what if anything are the Kings looking for as the trade deadline approaches? If Harrison Barnes is going to play with the enthusiasm he's shown in recent games, it may very well change decisions made in regards to possible trades. We will see.

Another positive is the positive sight of Davion Mitchell coming off the bench again with regularity! Like most players, Davion is at his best when he sees regular playing time, and he played well in all three of the Kings recent

I would be remiss if I didn't mention the recent change in the Kings effort on defense. Davion Mitchell brings it every game, and his ferocious defensive style is contagious. When Davion disappeared for games at a time, getting no playing time, the defense struggled. Collectively the Kings have been getting better every game as their defense is currently at the best I've seen all season.

The Kings implausible nine blocked shots in the first half of the Maverick's game is without a doubt a record for most blocks in a half for this team, and one notable standout was none other than Keegan Murray. Three blocked shots against Luka Doncic in the first half set the tone for the game, and although the Mavericks made it closer than was necessary, the Kings defense rose to the occasion, and truly was the principal reason for the victory.

If we have learned anything about this team, it is that they can beat any team in the NBA on any given night, and further, if they decide to bring their defense to the court, they can win any game!

As the Kings continue on their seven-game road trip, I will watch with interest the reinvigorated Harrison Barnes, and watch to see if Davion Mitchell and Trey Lyles will continue to get extended minutes on the hardwood. These are absolute keys!

If Monte McNair can somehow add a player that can be a contributor to this team, I say all the better. Don't be too surprised if ultimately we stand relatively pat, as we did last year, making one move that proved to produce little to the equation.

Regardless, enjoy this team. This group has great leadership in Sabonis and Fox, and as the rest rally around them, great things can yet happen. Stay tuned for an exciting second half, and if you like what you've read let me know your thoughts at vgharriskingsfan@gmail.com. Until next time, GO KINGS!!

Life Guarantees a Chance Not a Fair Shake

"That's not fair," is a common childhood mantra. It's typically heard when a child doesn't get what he or she wants. Sometimes the sentiment is valid, more often it's not.

As we grow up, adults, whether it be parents or others, tend to intercede on our behalf to demonstrate fairness. The problem is we then develop a false expectation of fairness. This leads to great frustration as we mature since fairness in life is not guaranteed.

You've probably encountered many unfair circumstances. Invariably, you will encounter more. You can yell and scream, but you won't make life fair. Unplanned, unexpected, and even unfortunate circumstances do occur. It's not ideal, but that's the way it is.

Anger is a normal reaction when encountering unfair events. You may even feel bitter or resentful. These reactions, however, do not serve you well. They are counter-productive. Additionally, they are as destructive as poison to your mind and body.

Feeling victimized is another associated emotion. When you think something is unfair you may feel someone else is out to get you. When you take on the role of victim, you become reactive instead of proactive. This means you wait for what will come next rather than becoming a proactive participant. Victims are defensive. Those who refuse to act like a victim are offensive.

On the other hand, determination is good. When something is unfair, you have a chance to make the best of it. You can choose to use a bad situation as a stepping stone to something better. You can't control your environment but you do decide how to respond to it.

When faced with the unfair, you have to decide where you want to go from there. In order to make the best of a situation, consider all of your options with an open mind. Harboring resentment impairs your judgement. You are then more likely to react emotionally instead of logically. The goal is to make your situation better, not worse.

Julie had applied for an open position in her company. She was eminently qualified and consistently received excellent performance reviews. Julie was optimistic about her chances. She really wanted the promotion. To Julie's dismay, Cathy, a friend of her boss, was hired for the job. Julie felt it wasn't fair. Cathy didn't have nearly as much experience as her.

What were Julie's options? She could go to work each day filled with bitterness, determined to get even. She didn't have to perform at such a high level. Julie could do just enough to get by. Why should she work so hard only to be treated unfairly?

The second option was for Julie to accept that such things happen. As a well-regarded employee, other opportunities would emerge. If Julie wasn't happy with the growth path at her company, she could get another job elsewhere. If Julie picked the first option, she would only be hurting herself. As her productivity dropped, her reviews would suffer along with her chances for a promotion. Should Julie then look for another job, she certainly wouldn't get any glowing references.

The second option is much more beneficial to Julie's future. Regardless of whether she looks for a new job or not, Julie would not be acting in a self-de-

Regardless of what unfair situations you face, you have a chance to improve your situation. Understand what sequence of events lead you to your current circumstances. It may not always make sense, but that doesn't matter. What's important is optimizing your chances to make the best of it. Moving forward always beats getting mired in the past.

Today is Groundhog Day - Again

In case you didn't know, your digital calendar probably reminded you about Groundhog Day – AGAIN.

The outdated day gained modern fame from the 1993 movie "Groundhog Day," where Bill Murray wakes up to repeat the same day over and over.

Why in the world do I need a reminder of this useless day? I don't own a groundhog. I don't personally know anyone who Still, perhaps I can use this day to recall and repeat a few things that I've occasionally mentioned at the end of my previous columns.

So, with a little indulgence from my editors, this column serves as that moment in the small-church service where the pastor pitches a few things and then asks, "Are there any other announcements today?"

Why yes, I have a few.

First, Join Chispa Project on its annual volunteer trip to establish a library in Honduran elementary schools. Chispa Project has enjoyed eight years of this repeated fun, creating over 80 libraries.

There's a saying in Honduras that "If you drink the water, you'll keep coming back." I can't think of anything more Groundhog's Day than that.

Time after time, I find myself returning to Honduras. Maybe it's the water, but most likely it's the warmth of the people or the thrill of seeing children open their Can't travel this time? Consider donating, and if you really want to stay on theme, keep repeating it. Become a monthly donor like me!

Join our email lists. I promise we won't share your info with anyone, and you can easily opt out any time.

While Chispa Project sends only an occasional announcement, I'll send you this column every Friday.

Why get the column by email when you can read it in your local paper? I want you to do both, but I also want you to forward the email column to friends. I also want to stay in touch when I finally retire this column. Join the list by emailing me at comment@thechaplain.net or on the web site at https://thechaplain.net/ newsletter/.

I can speak to your group. Many of you have heard me speak in the towns where my column runs. For instance, I've crossed Florida to speak in Melbourne, Lakeland, and Fort Myers. I've spoken at colleges in Springfield, Mo., Staunton, Va., Charleston, S.C., and Riverside,

The churches in Binghamton, Elmira and Horseheads remain favorites in upstate New York. It's been a while, but I'd love to return to Mountain Home, Ark. or Mansfield, Ohio. (Or any of the other nine Buckeye towns where my column runs.)

And if you're reading from places where I've not yet shared like Lafayette, Ind., Montgomery, Ala. or in the California cities of Vacaville, Elk Grove, and Auburn, I would love to make an appearance there too.

Buy one of my books. Even though I'm constantly mentioning my books, some readers are still surprised to learn about them. My books are a compilation of two decades+ of column-writing and will provide a way for the new reader to catch up.

My titles: "No Small Miracles" (2008) is about my work as a pediatric chaplain. "Hero's Highway" (2011) relates my service in a Combat Field Hospital. "Thriving Beyond Surviving" (2015) describes the seven "F" words I live by. "Tell it To the Chaplain" (2023) shares descriptive chaplaincy stories in healthcare, the military, and the church. You can purchase the books on my website or simply send your book request and payment of $20 for each title to Norris Burkes at 10556 Combie Rd. Suite 6643 Auburn, CA 95602.

Maybe if my readers buy enough books, I'll have enough money to buy a groundhog.

Romantic Inn on The Mendocino Coast Offers Tranquility

Noyo Harbor Inn News Release

ORT BRAGG, CA (MPG) - Most of us have tried it. Some sort of sleep soundtrack to help us drift off into the land of Nod. Anyone seeking a cozy, romantic getaway may appreciate that Fort Bragg's own Noyo Harbor Inn offers a "live" sleep soundtrack all its own.

"Because our inn is located on a bluff where the Noyo River meets the ocean, the sights and sounds of both the harbor and open sea are a part of the visitor experience," said Noyo Harbor Inn General Manager Scott Schneider. Indeed, the chatter of sea lions, gulls, fishing boats, kayakers, and a variety of shore birds, such as nearby nesting Ospreys, are just some of the gentle effects that are amplified from the waterway below, which is the only working fishing harbor between San Francisco and Crescent City.

-Downtown Fort Bragg and nearby Mendocino are historic landmarks with distinctive shops, galleries, cafes, and restaurants.

-Glass Beach in Fort Bragg was once covered in sea glass thanks to bottles discarded there more than a century ago. Today, much of the glass is gone, but the beach and surrounding trails offer a dramatic environment for exploring.

-The Noyo Headlands Coastal Trail stretches more than 10 miles along the coast, offering a level, smooth, wide path for walking and biking, with easy access for strollers and wheelchairs, too. The trail leads to stunning views, beaches, and the new Noyo Center for Marine Science.

-Private charters for sea fishing and whale watching are available in

While the sounds of nature abound, the noises of other inn guests do not. "We have created a luxuriant getaway with comfort in mind," said Joseph Marino, the inn's owner and visionary. "The structure is soundproofed between floors so that each of our 15 rooms and suites is its own private cocoon." Indeed, private decks, gas fireplaces, soaking tubs, spa services, sumptuous linens, 42-inch flat-screen televisions and French-press coffee makers are just some of the comforts that exist amid the inn's architectural design elements. A range of spa services are also available. Bookings are encouraged in advance of arrival by emailing info@noyoharborinn.com or calling (707) 961-8000.

The inn is also offering plenty of "flavor" this winter season. Fresh crab is currently a menu specialty at the on-site, full-service HarborView Bistro & Bar, which has been honored as a Wine Spectator Restaurant Award winner for a second consecutive year. Meanwhile, the resident mixologist is featuring the "Cupids Arrow," a champagne cocktail made with Empress 1908 Elderflower Rose Gin; and elderflower liqueur. Another special is the "Rose Lemon Drop" made with Grey Goose Le Citron; house made rose simple syrup; lemon juice; and house made lemon bitters.

Famed for its fresh, locally sourced, and mostly organic entrées and small plates, the restaurant offers an elegant yet approachable setting with tranquil views of the picturesque Noyo River and boat docks. Diners may relax at a table on the pet-friendly outdoor deck or cozy up in the Craftsman-period wood paneled dining room.

Dixon May Fair Sensory Station Earns Top Award

Dixon May Fair News Release

DIXON, CA (MPG) - The Dixon May Fair was recently awarded several honors in the Western Fair Association's annual industry Achievement Awards program for the 2023 Fair. WFA represents fairs and associated industry providers from the Western United States and Canada. The Fair competed with other medium-sized fairs with attendance of 50-150.000.

The Sensory Station was the concept of CEO Patricia Conklin who saw the need for a safe and calming space for any guest who needed it, and particularly for the Fair's many special needs attendees. A room away from the stimulating sights and sounds of the Fair was set aside. Dimmed lighting, soothing nature videos, and quiet activities were conducive for some quiet time. The room was also used and appreciated by many nursing mothers.

Dixon May Fair also received the first-place awards for their pocket schedule brochure designed by Suzanne Wright; for their annual fair time logo designed by artist Steve Dana; and their Emergency Procedure Manual. A second-place was awarded for their radio commercial.

In the Give It Your Best Shot competition the Fair received a first-place for photos in the Food & Beverage, Animals, Entertainment, and Exhibits categories, as well as second for People at the Fair. The photos were taken by marketing director Karen Spencer.

The goal of the Achievement Awards Program is to recognize excellence and share successful ideas and programs amongst members. Achievement Award winners serve as inspiration to the industry, demonstrating innovation worthy of replication. More than 50 Fairs participated in the program.

The 2024 Dixon May Fair will be held May 9-12. The theme for 2024 is "Unforgettable, 147 Years of Making Memories" as they celebrate the importance of agriculture to our community. ★
