We're Your Huckleberry's!

Above: Happy to serve you! The crew of Huckleberry's is all smiles as they invite you to try some of what the Huckleberry's website describes as "Southern Cookin' with a California Twist!" GRIDLEY, CA (MPG) - Upon walking through the doors of the new Huckleberry's restaurant in Gridley, guests will be greeted by a swaying willow tree, the sound of crickets chirping softly in the background, and bright smiles from the staff as they invite you in to partake of the southern charm of the establishment.

Serving breakfast and lunch, Huckleberry's website describes the restaurant as "Southern Cookin' with a California Twist!" Their menu features items such as Southern Peach Iced Tea served in a Mason jar with a sugared rim, their Mardi Gras Beignets—southern fritters with sweet cream and 3 kinds of fruit topping, and Louisiana Catfish prepared either in Bayou Style or Creole Style. Of course, their menu also features the tried-and-true staples, such as burgers, soups and salads, skilletts, and a host of breakfast favorites.

The community has anxiously been awaiting the opening of the restaurant since first learning of its intentions to establish itself in Gridley back in 2021. A newly refurbished building, with a redesigned interior and larger bathrooms (just a few of the changes) was completed in December and Huckleberry's official opened its doors to the public December 23rd. The parking lot has been packed ever since.

In the short time that Huckleberry's has been open, it has already established regular customers, like local Randy Walton, who says he dines there nearly every day. Of his meals, Walton says they have been "Very good! The menu is really good." He continues, "and the service is awesome!"

Manager Julie Wiles, who has 15 years' experience in the business, shares that Huckleberry's has attracted servers from surrounding and past establishments, like Gridley's former Black Bear Diner, so customers will likely see familiar faces. The Huckleberry's staff, she says, is amazing and of the combination of such a wonderful crew, returning customers, new regulars and first-time customers, she says, "It feels like a family reunion to me."

Huckleberry's is located at 1586 Highway 99 and is open from 7:00 am – 3:00 pm every day. For more information and a look at their menu, please visit www.huckleberrys.com.★

Real Estate, Generators and Compliance

By Seti Long

GRIDLEY, CA (MPG) - At its last meeting, held Tuesday, January 18th, the Gridley City Council heard updates on agenda items and acted upon others.

Councilmembers took another look at the potential purchase of property located at 235 Virginia Street, which is adjacent to the current public works corporation yard and would serve to expand the yard, to enhance storage area for city owned equipment. After hearing the results of a Phase One environmental assessment of the property and deciding that a more detailed Phase Two environmental assessment was not necessary at the current time, Council took the matter of the real estate purchase to vote. The motion passed 4:1 (Councilmembers Calderon, Farr, Torres, and Mayor Johnson: Yes. Councilmember Sanchez: abstained).

Next, City Council addressed the Gridley Municipal Code for the use of generators within the city limits. As more residents turn to the use of permanent generators, due to power safety shut-offs, severe weather or other power failures, it has come to the attention of the city that its current code does not allow for noise levels produced by the use of generators to exceed current allowable decibels of 45, 55 and 60, for more than 30 minutes. The amendment brought before council would allow generators to run as long as needed, producing up to 70 decibels. The city voted 5:0 to amend chapter 17.74 and approve the first reading of the Ordinance 836-2022, which would establish allowable noise levels while using a generator.

Moving on, City Council heard and approved with a 5:0 vote the motion authorizing the purchase of a mobile utility collection system upgrade and the funds needed for that upgrade. The mobile utility collection system, which takes the form of handheld units, allows city employees to collect data without physically visiting each meter throughout Gridley. The current system is outdated and replacement parts for the equipment are not always in stock for easy repairs of the current units.

Returning to council and the final item on the agenda, was Resolution No. 2022-R-004 which would authorize the adoption of a lease agreement with Motorola Solutions Incorporated for the purchase of a CJIS (Criminal GRIDLEY, CA (MPG) - Many have noticed the bright purple buildings, now constantly changing in color as the exteriors draw closer to completion, off Ford Avenue here in Gridley. They are another part of the development boom kicking off here in town.

These apartments are some of the first of many developments set to begin construction throughout the Gridley area. The Ford Oaks Apartments will be the first apartments to be built in our community since the completion of the Washington Court Apartments. Also set to begin construction is the Sunrise Senior Apartments, which will feature 37 units, and which is set to be developed off Hwy 99.

According to Gridley's Planning Commissioner, Donna Decker, the two residential, three-story buildings, of the Ford Oaks Apartment site will feature 24 two-bedroom units at 797 sq. ft. each and 12 three-bedroom units at 1,024 sq. ft. each. The complex will also feature a single story, 1,830 sq. ft. community building. The Ford Oaks community will have a total of 72 parking spaces, providing for 25 percent compact sizes.

The apartments are part of the effort to bring affordable housing to the Gridley area. Decker says these units will serve "families with incomes of 30%, 40%, 50% and 60% income levels of the Butte County Average Median Income (AMI)." At this time there is no firm date of completion, but construction of the Ford Oaks Apartments is moving along quickly, and they are expected to be move-in ready sometime later this year. ★

Volunteer Day, Butte County Fair

By Barbara Ott

GRIDLEY, CA (MPG)- For several years individuals, churches and service organizations from Gridley have supported the Butte County Fair in many ways. One of these important ways is the Volunteer Day in the spring at the Fair. This year it will take place on Saturday, April 30th. The Volunteer Day committee has started meeting to identify the projects and the number of people needed to work these projects on Volunteer Day. Each Volunteer Day starts at 8 am. Everyone knows what to do or where to go to find out what to do during the morning. There is a large lunch provided by the LDS church then back to work if projects are incomplete. Many of the projects finish before lunch. The Rotary Club, Lions, Knights of Columbus, the LDS Church and Quota take on various projects on this day. There is a registration desk at the Hazel Street gate where individuals can drop in and be assigned to projects on that day. There are general repairs and painting always in need of help. Materials are provided. If you or your organization would like to be on the planning committee, the next meeting is Tuesday, February 1, 2022 at 10 am in the Board Room at the Fair. ★

Where Should he Park the Money?

Dear Dave,

Our son is 13, and he has been doing some part-time work for a friend of the family. He makes $40 to $60 a week, and he would like to begin investing the majority of what he earns. Do you have a suggestion for a good place he could put his money?

– Lindsay

Dear Lindsay,

Well, here’s the thing. At this point in his life, the goal of this investment isn’t wealth. Number one, it’s not a lot of money. Number two, well, it’s not a lot of money. The goal is to create knowledge, reward his interest in the subject and teach him how to handle his finances when he’s an adult.

I’ve got no problem with you helping him open checking or savings accounts at a local bank or credit union. There are lots of good lessons to be learned in reconciling a bank statement, and the value of spending, saving and giving. Then, you could get with a good financial pro, one with the heart of a teacher, and let him open a mutual fund for $50 a month with you as the custodian. He could learn about compound interest, how to calculate the value of his shares and other things, and all that would be a good learning exercise, too.

We did these things with our kids. But keep in mind that over the course of a year – and when you’re 13, that’s an eternity – there’s not going to be a lot of action on the investing side of things. It could be kind of boring for him at times. But he’s better off to learn now that good things don’t always come with flashing lights and whistles.

When it comes to wealth building, things aren’t sexy. Slow and steady wins the race!

– Dave

Dave Ramsey is a seven-time #1 national best-selling author, personal finance expert, and host of The Ramsey Show, heard by more than 18 million listeners each week. Gallagher Endorses Tamika Hamilton for Sixth Congressional District

Tamika Hamilton

Tamika Hamilton for Congress Press Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Air Force Sergeant Tamika Hamilton announced that she has received the endorsement of State Assemblyman James Gallagher (R-Yuba City).

“As an Air Force Sergeant and working mother of five, no one is more suited than Tamika to handle the challenges we’re faced with at the federal level,” said Gallagher. “She is a fighter who will be a great champion in Washington for the compassionate conservative values that will restore our communities and bring people together.”

Gallagher has represented California’s third assembly district in the California Legislature since 2014, where he serves as Vice Chair of the Assembly Judiciary Committee as well as a member of Assembly Committee on Budget. Prior to serving in the legislature, Gallagher served on the Sutter County Board of Supervisors for six years and is an advocate for small business and the agricultural community.

“Assemblyman Gallagher has been on the front lines of the conservative movement for many years, and I admire his steadfast commitment to holding our governor accountable,” said Hamilton. “I’m grateful for his endorsement and his support.”

Democrats Push Government Run Healthcare with Largest Tax Hike

Office of Assembly Member Vince Fong

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The Assembly Committee on Health passed Assembly Bill 1400, a measure that imposes an estimated $163 billion in new taxes each year to create a government-run single payer healthcare system. Vice Chair of the Assembly Committee on Budget, Vince Fong (R-Kern County) issued the following statement:

“Even with a $21 billion budget surplus, Sacramento Democrats could not resist pushing $163 billion in new taxes to pay for a government-run health care system. In addition to the eye-popping price tag, this proposal imposes more state bureaucracy in health care decisions.

“Given the incompetence of EDD, it is difficult to understand why anyone would want a state government takeover for such critical services.

“More state bureaucracy is not the answer to ensuring innovative health care treatments for families.

“Californians and small businesses are overtaxed, and they are struggling. It is time to focus on relieving their tax burdens, not imposing more taxes with an untested government-run health care system.

“Californians and small businesses are being crushed by an ever-worsening affordability crisis, and this questionable proposal only makes it worse.” ★

Gridley Thumbs and Roots

By Barbara Ott

The hot pokers (Knophia) are dug up, some given away and some potted up for the plant sale in May. A couple were returned to their places in the garden where they will multiply again and get dug up in about three years. Another plant that is partially dug up is the apricot-colored canna. I love this canna. I do not love all cannas but these have my heart. Again, some are given away and others are waiting to be replanted and then there are the cannas that will be potted up for the sale. There are many rooted begonias potted up and a few more to go. There are cuttings of Pink Storm salvia and a couple of flowering maples set into the greenhouse to start rooting. I have some cuttings to do next with the Lion’s Tail and lavender. Not even mentioning the succulents. I’m running out of room for these newbies.

All fruit trees are pruned. The Crimson Queen Japanese maple is almost pruned up. I’ve never done pruning for thinning branches on that tree but it was time. It’ll be able to breathe a bit better this year. I’ve also been fussing over the bonsai babies. All of them are deciduous except for the olive so I’m trimming and getting ready to repot. There will be a bonsai care day at the Butte County Fairgrounds on February 19. The Chico Bonsai Society will be there to help with repotting, wiring and trimming of bonsai in preparation for entering the Fair in August. Society President Ruben Rodarte will present much of the program. There is a donation asked for this workshop. There will also be starter plants available for sale. If you are interested in Bonsai, come and find out more. Loving the warmer weather but wishing for rain. ★

Dear Dietitian

MIND Diet

Commentary by Leanne McCrate

Dear Dietitian,

Recently you had a column that mentioned the MIND diet, which supposedly lowers the risk of Alzheimer's. Can you explain more about that diet?

Rob

Dear Rob,

I'd be happy to expand on the MIND diet. MIND stands for Mediterranean-DASH intervention for neurodegenerative delay. It is a mix of the Mediterranean and DASH (Dietary Approaches to Stop Hypertension) diets. The MIND regimen focuses on fruits (especially berries), vegetables, olive oil, and whole grains. Protein sources are fatty fish, poultry, beans, and nuts. Red meat, cheese, and sweets are limited, and fried foods are highly discouraged. One glass of wine is permitted daily.

The diet was developed at Rush University in Chicago. In a study of 923 older adults, ages 58 to 98 years, those who followed the MIND diet closely had a 53% lower risk of Alzheimer's disease (AD) than those who followed a regular diet. Interestingly, people who followed the MIND diet only fairly well enjoyed a 35% decreased risk of developing Alzheimer's (1).

It isn't known how the MIND diet diminishes the risk of AD. Three factors may contribute. The first thought is that it reduces the damage caused by free radicals, which are unstable molecules produced during normal metabolism. In their quest for stability, free radicals damage healthy cells in a process called oxidative stress. Foods in the MIND food plan are high in antioxidants, which help protect the body from such damage.

The second way the MIND diet may protect the brain is by reducing Beta-amyloids, fragmented proteins found in the brains of Alzheimer's patients. The role Beta-amyloids play in AD isn't clear. Diets high in cholesterol and saturated fats tend to be high in Beta-amyloid production.

The third successful component of the MIND plan is decreased inflammation. Certain foods may contribute to mild inflammation, which in turn may contribute to chronic diseases, such as heart disease and AD. The antioxidant and omega-3-containing foods in the MIND diet have anti-inflammatory effects on the body.

If the MIND diet reduces the risk of Alzheimer's Disease, does it also lower the risk of other types of dementia? We don't know for sure, but it is promising. In another study of 960 adults, those who followed the MIND plan the closest had a reduced cognitive decline equivalent to 7.5 years younger in age, so don't give up your dream of being a Jeopardy contestant (2)!

Finally, it's important to note that the research on the MIND diet has been observational, which does not show cause and effect. There is a randomized, controlled study underway to see if there is a cause-and-effect impact of the MIND diet on Alzheimer's Disease. The results of that study have not yet been published, so stay tuned!

Until next time, be healthy!
Dear Dietitian

Thoughts to Ponder

by Kathy Neal

Well, you've made it through the first days of the New Year. How many resolutions have you made and kept? One? Two? None? In fact, have you taken on a new month in a new year to rethink, redo, and remake your life? You have a clean slate to plot your daily existence. Why not ask the Lord to help you navigate your time?

We all have things in our past that keep chipping away at our peace and comfort. We keep playing the past over and over in our minds trying to change things. It is not going to happen. What is done is done. We can't go back and redo what has happened. The only way to deal with painful events of the past is to change in our minds how we deal with situations. Let go. Reboot and move on.

The future is the same. Worrying about what is going to happen to us only builds up fear, anticipation, and anxiety. We don't know what the future holds except what God has promised us. We can't outrun the fate of our future. It is all in God's hands.

He knows the plans for us and all His creation. He has known from the beginning of time. And yes, He has told us what to expect.

Obey God's commands and seek His will and we will be blessed and cared for. Disobey and seek what the world has to offer thru the evil one who walks around looking for prey and reap what is sown.

Jesus never promised a trouble-free life. He did promise He would walk with us through the storms and trials if they weren't calmed. We can do anything, if, God walks beside us. We can find peace in the past, present, and the future if we walk with Him. We are never alone, remember that.

Be with the Gridley United Methodist Church as we walk with Jesus. We meet every Sunday at 10 am. We are at the corner of Magnolia and Haskell Streets. ★

SPARKY'S CORNER

Are You Prepared to Evacuate in an Emergency?

When stuff hits the fan and you need to flee your home, being organized is the best way to protect your home and family.

If there comes a time when you have to abandon your house, an emergency probably won't give you enough time to gather essentials and take steps to limit property damage. Getting all of your ducks in a row before disaster strikes is the best course of action.

Evacuations in the U.S. are more common than most people realize, according to FEMA. Natural disasters aside, people are forced to leave their homes hundreds of time a year because of transportation and industrial accidents.

Here's a list of things you can prepare now in case your home is ever in harm's way:

Have a grab-and-go kit. Include essential supplies, such as water, food, and first-aid supplies.

What to Put In Your Emergency Preparedness Kit

- Your driver's license. • The deed to your house. • Proof of insurance. • Medical records. • Passports. • Social security cards. • A list of personal contacts.

Safeguard pets. Make sure they're micro-chipped and have I.D. collars. Create pet grab-and-go kits that include leashes, medications, meal bowls, and three days worth of food and water.

Know your utility shutoffs. Learn now how to safely shut off all utility services in your home. FEMA has tips for shutting off electricity, water, and gas. Note: To turn off gas you may need a special wrench.

Stock pile sand bag materials. If you live in a flood prone area, keep sandbags on hand or the materials to make them. It takes 100 sandbags to create a 1-foot-tall wall that's 20 feet long. If you're filling bags on the fly, two adults can create the wall in about an hour.

When it's Time to Evacuate

Before you pick up and go (and if you have enough time) follow these steps – they're designed to protect your pets and help prevent property damage:

Shut off utilities. Turn off electricity, water, and gas. Doing so will help prevent additional dangers including flooding, fire, and explosions. Keep in mind, you're going to need the utility company to turn your gas back on when you return home.

Protect indoor stuff. Move valuables to higher levels in your home to prevent water damage. As an extra measure, wrap electronics and furniture in sheets, blankets, or plastic drop cloths.

Gather up pets. If it's not safe for you to stay, it's not safe for Fido. Make plans to stay with friends or at a pet-friendly hotel – most emergency shelters will only accept service animals that assist people with disabilities.

Lock your house. Because crooks and looters take advantage of evacuations, lock all doors and windows and don't leave house keys in an obvious place, such as a mailbox.

Important Stuff to Remember

Whether the order is voluntary or mandatory, if officials in your area tell you to evacuate, you should do so before things get worse. Although laws vary from area to area, you may receive a hefty fine or face a jail sentence if you don't follow a mandatory evacuation order.

Failure to follow an evacuation order can place your life in danger by leaving you stranded in an area with no basic services or food and water.

When you return home after an emergency, don't use matches, lighters, or any sources of flame or spark until you're 100% certain that you don't have a natural gas leak inside your home – you'll need a gas company service technician to confirm that it's safe.

Stay Informed with Emergency Alerts

Smartphone technology has made it easier to receive disaster alerts free of charge. You'll automatically receive alerts if you have a phone capable of receiving Wireless Emergency Alerts (WEA) and your wireless carrier participates in the program. To find out if your mobile device is capable of receiving WEA alerts, contact your mobile device carrier or visit CTIA - The Wireless Association.

Bonners to Perform with Joe Craven at Nevada Theatre

Christine and Rob Bonner will be joined by their friend and world renown multi-instrumentalist, Joe Craven, on violin, mandolin and percussion. Photo: Paul Emery Music

Paul Emery Music Press Release

NEVADA CITY, CA (MPG) - Christine and Rob Bonner will be joined by their friend and world renown multi-instrumentalist, Joe Craven, on violin, mandolin and percussion on Saturday, January 29th.

Folk harpist, Christine Bonner, is a stunning harpist who has performed for many years in concerts and special engagements throughout the West Coast. Many of Christine's compositions are inspired by her early California ancestors, the Berryessa family. Her love of music is equaled only by her love of art.

Her musical style includes a bold and rare blend of Latin, Celtic, Classical, and Jazz. Christine's music delves into her own family history for inspiration and traces the ancestral journey of the Berryessa family from their native Spain to the ranchos of California. The result is "a unique and alluring mixture of acoustic string instruments and percussion that persuades the listener back into a time of palatial homes built amid gentle rolling hills and wind swept trees."

Rob Bonner is a self-taught guitarist, with extended talents in bass guitar and violin. His moving compositions are heavily mused of experiences and memories of his tour to Vietnam.

After safely returning to the United States in 1972, Rob formed the South Loomis Quickstep Band with fellow super-pickers, Joe Craven and Mark O'Connor. The group boasted unique style of solid bluegrass, along with firmly rooted traditional music of southern Appalachia.

South Loomis Quickstep Band performed with many noted and talented artists including: Buck Owens; Hoyt Axton; Elvin Bishop; Cheech & Chong; John Hartford; Asleep at the Wheel; Emmylou Harris; Doc Watson; Tom T. Hall; Rick Nelson; The Kingston Trio; The Sacramento Symphony. They also performed for Present Carter and President Ford. Rob and the band were also featured in a performance with the Auburn Civic Symphony during the Symphony's annual "Day on the Green" concert. The group toured throughout the U.S. and Europe until they disbanded in 1985.

Joe Craven is not just an entertaining musician with a penchant for the mischievous, he is a teacher and student all at once. He's known for reimaging existing music with reviews such as, "this is either sacrilege or The Second Coming." Whether with corporate heads in Contra Costa, young men in a juvenile detention center, homeless shelter families, a university lecture in wherever, jamming with Gnawa musicians in Morocco, on stage at Carnegie Hall with Stephane Grappelli, on stage with an angel food cake pan in front of thousands of school kids in Scotland... no matter who and what Joe's connected with, he's at home and loving every minute. Joe and John Girtton toured and recorded extensively in the 1990s. ★

Major Indexes

Many investors wonder why their investment portfolios don't keep up with the major indexes they see on the evening news. Specifically there is the Dow 30, NASDAQ, S&P 500, the Russell and a plethora of other perhaps not so well known indexes whose coverages span the globe.

Indexes measure a basket of stocks that are in that particular index.

For example, the Dow encompasses 30 stocks thought to represent a broad base of industries in the United States. One cannot invest in the index per se, as it is only a measuring stick for the stocks in it.

Like many other indexes, their make-up is adjusted according to whatever metric the measuring method stipulates. One can buy the stocks measured by the index, but because adjustments are made to that index from time to time, it would be difficult to mirror the index exactly.

There are funds that attempt to replicate the measuring metric of an underlying index, but the key word here is attempt. Most of these funds, however, do a pretty good job of at least coming very close to replicating in its movements the index underneath the fund.

Because these funds do mirror the subject index, if an investor holds one of these index proxy type funds, their portfolios will more or less follow the performance of the index.

Now to the question at hand: why does my portfolio not move with the indexes I see on the evening news? In other words, if I see the Dow moved up 12% for the year, why did my portfolio move up only 4%?

The question is a good one because understanding the answer will also give an investor a better understanding as to how his portfolio is constructed. In other words, what does he hold and why does he hold it.

It is common for advisors and astute investors to adhere to at least some if not all of the Modern Portfolio Theory (MPT), which gives a matrix on what to hold in the portfolio and what percentages of each might be considered.

Not everyone might agree with MPT and their allocation percentages might differ, but MPT basically uses good common sense in its makeup of recommendations. Quite simply, MPT recommends holding a basket of different stocks and industries, known as diversification, and adding to that a percentage of fixed income securities.

Fixed income are securities that offer a fixed or somewhat fixed rate of return, with more emphasis on a fixed rate of return (hence the name fixed income) in lieu of price movement (known as growth).

The thinking is fixed income can move opposite of stocks in price, and offer a set rate of return so the investor can rely on some sort of what I call "rent" money instead of relying on a stock going up in order to make money.

Fixed income is usually debt instruments such as bonds, notes or other type of debt, but also would include preferred stocks and certain funds and baskets that encompass similar securities. Fixed income, although has the word "fixed" in it, does not mean the price cannot move and therefore does not mean it cannot go down in price. Fixed income holdings can move up and down. It is thought and historically so, that more often than not, fixed income can be more stable than traditional stocks.

Fixed income also has a tendency to move in the opposite direction of stocks, as investors gravitate from taking more risk in an up market and selling off their fixed income holdings to go for higher returns in stocks. When nervous however, investors may sell stocks and buy more fixed income for the perceived safer holding that fixed income historically has demonstrated. Hence their inverse relationships.

Because of the opposite movements of fixed income and traditional stocks, their price movements may often offset each other, and therefore handcuff the portfolio's return when compared to the indexes in general and as a result, portfolio performance often lags the gains or losses of the major indexes.

Fixed income may lose money, and may at time moves in concert with stocks and do not guarantee against losses. Returns may not be guaranteed and MPT does not guarantee performance nor prevent losses. Past performance does not guarantee future results. Investing involves risk. You can lose money. Not a recommendation to buy or sell any securities and does not represent the opinion of any bank, RIA or brokerage firm.

Homeschooling Will Boom Long After COVID-19

Commentary by Lance Izumi

WASHINGTON, DC (MPG) - Student enrollment in public schools has nosedived as parent disgust with school COVID-19 policies, student learning losses, and controversial education policies has gone through the roof. In the wake of this enrollment implosion, homeschooling has boomed across the country.

At the beginning of the current school year, the U.S. Department of Education estimated that 1.5 million students had left the public schools since the COVID-19 pandemic began.

If students are not enrolling in public schools, where are they going? The numbers show that many former public school students are now being homeschooled.

The U.S. Census Bureau found that the percentage of homeschooling households more than doubled in 2020 from 5 percent in spring to 11 percent in the fall.

According to a recent University of Michigan study, from 2020 to 2021, the enrollment at public schools in Michigan fell by nearly 46,000 students, which represented a more than a 3-percent drop. Among kindergartners, there was a decrease of more than 11 percent.

The increase in homeschoolers does not come from just a narrow segment of the American population. A University of Washington Bothell analysis found, "The diversity of homeschoolers in the U.S. mirrors the diversity of all students nationally," including all racial, religious, political, and income groups.

For instance, the Census

Bureau found that among African American households the increase in homeschooling was much steeper than in the country as a whole, rising from 3 percent to 16 percent, a five-fold jump.

This increase in African American homeschooling is not surprising given recent research by McKinsey & Company that found "Students in majority Black schools ended the [2020-21 school] year with six months of unfinished learning."

Demetria Zinga, one of the country's top African American homeschool YouTubers, says, "I believe homeschooling is growing and exploding amongst African Americans and there will be more and more homeschoolers."

Homeschool mom Magda Gomez, an immigrant from Mexico, has become an activist for homeschooling in the Hispanic community.

She observes: "We Hispanics as a culture are usually very protective and loving towards our children. However, I explain that love is not enough to raise our children. We have to educate ourselves in different areas of education, especially since we are not in our [native] country but are immigrants."

"It is my dream," she says, "to see more Hispanic families doing homeschool." Her dream is coming true with homeschooling doubling among Hispanic households, from 6 percent to 12 percent.

In addition to the racial diversity of homeschoolers, in 2021 the school-choice organization EdChoice found: "Many parents of children with autism, ADHD, and other neuro-developmental disorders report that public schools cannot effectively address their child's specialized learning needs."

Pediatric nurse and homeschool mom Jackie Nunes unenrolled her special-needs daughter from public school saying, "There just wasn't enough of the things that matter - time, attention, patience, persistence, passion, support."

The COVID-19 pandemic has exposed all the flaws in the one-size-fits-all public schools, which is why the homeschool boom is shaking up American education.

Lance Izumi is senior director of the Center for Education at the Pacific Research Institute. He is the author of the new book The Homeschool Boom: Pandemic, Policies, and Possibilities. This piece originally ran in the Washington Times. ★

Beware COVID Scams

USFDA Press Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The US Food and Drug Administration is warning people of fraudulent coronavirus tests, vaccines, and treatments as the pandemic continues. According to the Centers for Disease Control, since the arrival of the Omicron variant, the increase of testing for COVID-19 has become a concern. Scarcity often leads to potential scams for a product that doesn't exist, the compromise of personal identifiable information, or the increase of deceptive advertising.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) issued a warning earlier this year about potential fraud related to the antibody tests. Scammers are selling unapproved COVID-19 antibody tests, which can give inaccurate results. In doing so, they are also collecting personal information, such as Social Security numbers and dates of birth. They may also be stealing health insurance or Medicare information that can be used in future schemes.

Robocalls are sent out to consumers directing them to a website that looks like a clinic or medical supply company offering COVID-19 tests. These tests allegedly identify if a person has been infected with coronavirus – even if they've recovered. Some even promise results in 10 minutes. However, to receive a test, a credit card or a form needs to be completed with personal information.

In some cases, the test involves an easy at-home testing kit. Other times, the tests are allegedly offered through a clinic. But in all versions, the person or website selling the test is short on details. They aren't willing or able to provide any information about how the test works, where it is sourced, and what laboratory processes it.

Don't fall for it! These tests are not US Food and Drug Administration approved and will not give accurate results. In fact, requestors may never even receive an actual test kit. Either way, scammers will have made off with the money and personal information.

Want a test? Talk to your doctor. Reach out to your healthcare provider. They can help figure out if the test will be covered by insurance and where to find a legitimate clinic. If you don't have a primary care physician, check out the official website of your local health department for more information on testing availability.

Research before buying. Scammers put pressure on people to buy or commit without giving them time to do further research. Before agreeing to anything, investigate first. Research any claims the company makes. Start with searching BBB.

org to see they are BBB Accredited, have good reviews, and if there are complaints or scam reports associated with their business name. In addition, review the warnings on FBI, Federal Trade Commission, Attorney General's office, and BBB ScamTracker.

Understand all options: The Center for Disease Control and Prevention has a detailed guide to testing for COVID-19. Understand the different tests available.

Never share your personal information with strangers. Only make purchases and share your personal information with people and companies you know and trust. Be wary of anyone approaching you in line; ask for credentials if necessary. If you suspect your personal information has been compromised, report it to identitytheft.gov

Check claims of FDA approval. Per the FBI, "Not all COVID-19 antibody tests have been approved by the U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA), and their efficacy has not been determined." Check the FDA website for a list of approved tests and testing companies. ★

Violence is Broadly Felt by Millions

UC Davis Health News

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Research led by UC Davis Professor Garen Wintemute shows that violence indirectly impacts most Californians.

Though relatively few may experience or witness a violent act, a large majority of surveyed Californians reported having an "experience of violence" (EV). These included hearing gunshots in their neighborhood, encountering a sidewalk memorial to a violent death or learning about a violent event through their social network.

The research was published in the journal Injury Epidemiology.

"If we ask broadly about the experience of violence, rather than focusing on acute events, we find that two-thirds of Californians have a direct personal stake," said Wintemute, who directs the UC Davis Health Violence Prevention Research Program and is an emergency department physician. "Our main conclusion is that almost everybody is touched by this, and we're a state with relatively low rates of firearm violence. I would expect the situation would be worse in many other states."

While most violence research focuses on personal victimization, the UC Davis Health team took a broader view to better understand how these acts become embedded in communities. The survey indicates experiences of violence are perilously widespread:

An estimated 3.4 million Californians may have three or more EVs; 5 million personally know multiple people who have been intentionally shot; 3 million know people who may be at risk of committing violence against themselves or others.

"We had people who responded that they passed sidewalk memorials 25 times or more a week," said Wintemute. "And I thought, at what point does living in your neighborhood resemble living in a cemetery? What does that do to your sense of a future for your community and yourself?"

In addition to hearing gunshots or seeing memorials, survey EVs included being aware of someone who had been intentionally shot by someone else, intentionally shot themselves or might commit a violent act (against another person or themselves).

Of the 2,870 respondents, 64.6% reported one or more EVs; 11% reported three or more. Women and men had similar experiences. Perhaps most surprising, people who did not own a firearm, but lived with someone who did, had more EVs through their social networks, compared to those who owned firearms and those who did not. Secondhand gun ownership may be a public health risk, much like secondhand smoke.

The UC Davis team believes this survey will provide more information on how violence can permeate communities and hopes these findings might inform public policy and education.

"If people who live in homes with guns, but don't own guns themselves, have these many experiences of people at risk of violence, they could be a whole new resource for intervention," Wintemute said. "Maybe we can work with them to help at-risk people and reduce suicides and possibly other firearm violence."

In California, a legal mechanism known as a Gun Violence Restraining Order can temporarily remove firearms and ammunition from people at risk of harming themselves or others.

The group is now working on a follow-up study to measure how these experiences may impact mental and physical health.

"If we show they are associated with ill effects, we may be able to intervene," said Wintemute. "There are few people in California who can say this does not affect them, and since we're all involved, let's work together on solutions."

Other authors included: Amanda J. Aubel, Rocco Pallin, Julia P. Schleimer and Nicole Kravitz-Wirtz of the Violence Prevention Research Program.
