Founders Day Smiles for Kids and Llamas

Adriana Avila and siblings Marlene and Kash Koehler met the Dottie Llama during Carmichael's Founders Day anniversary in Carmichael Park. The celebration commemorated the town's 1909 founding by Sacramento real estate entrepreneur Daniel Carmichael.

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Once a colony, now a proudly unincorporated Sacramento County community, Carmichael marked its 109th anniversary last Saturday.

A day-long festival commemorated the 1909 real estate venture by town founder Daniel Carmichael. The Georgian-born entrepreneur purchased two large chunks of the old San Juan and Del Paso land grants and carved these into 10-acre blocks. These mini farms were offered to pioneers for around $1000 each. The lots have since been much subdivided and though few original homes remain, streets and parks named for pioneers Van Alstine, Gibbons, Barrett, Clark, Kenneth, Stanley (and Carmichael himself) are monuments to the colony's founding years.

History aside, the anniversary provided much festivity. The area's largest annual car show filled much of Carmichael Park with classic motors. Local rock heart-throb Todd Morgan entertained. A carnival zone included bounce houses and a petting zoo; star attraction this year was the Dottie Llama. Learn more about Carmichael Recreation and Park District events at www.carmichaelpark.com. ★

NorCal Rapist Arrested

Answer Found in DNA

By Rich Peters, MPG Editor

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - It was an eerie, familiar feeling as Sacramento District Attorney stood alongside state law enforcement agents and in front of media members, announcing the arrest of yet another notorious California serial rapist.

58-year-old Roy Charles Waller of Benicia was linked through DNA to the heinous NorCal Rapist crimes committed on at least 12 victims that date back beginning 27 years ago and took place across six counties, including Sacramento, Contra Costa and Butte.

"The answer has always been in the DNA," said Schubert, coincidentally in the midst of National Forensic Science Week. She explained the partnership of tireless science and police work that led to a breakthrough over the past 10 days, eventually leading to the arrest.

"Today we can bring some closure to the victim in Contra Costa County who was attacked on Halloween in 1996," said Contra Costa County District Attorney Diana Becton.

Waller was arrested in Berkeley near the U.C. Berkeley campus last week. He has been a U.C. Berkeley employee for the past 25 years. The Sacramento Police Department and the Berkeley Police Department made the arrest.

The suspect has been charged with 12 counts of force-able sexual assault, plus enhancements. There are also allegations that he used a gun. He's been awarded no bail and his arraignment is set for Monday in Sacramento. ★

Hops for HOPE Fundraiser

By Shaunna Boyd

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - HOPE (Healthy Outcomes for Personal Enrichment) is a local nonprofit organization that offers affordable counseling services to the community. They rely on fees for services as well as community donations to keep costs low for their clients. HOPE is hosting their second annual Hops for HOPE fundraiser, which will be held at River City Brewing Company on October 4, 2018. The event is from 6:30 - 8:30 p.m. Tickets are $40 per person and include appetizers and two drink tickets. River City Brewing Company (which is located in Milagro Center at 6241 Fair Oaks Boulevard in Carmichael) generously donates wine, beer, and staff for the event.

Community donations are especially important because HOPE's mission is to offer affordable sessions to those in need. Darlene Davis, executive director of HOPE, explained that there is a group of people who do not qualify for Medi-Cal but also do not have access to affordable counseling through traditional insurance. The goal of HOPE is to serve this segment of the community by offering counseling on a sliding scale depending on what the client is able to pay. Typically, $40 per session is the lowest rate, but HOPE does occasionally offer sessions for $20 to those in the greatest need.

The experienced licensed therapists of HOPE not only work with clients to improve their well-being, but they also work in a supervisory capacity to train new therapists. To become a licensed therapist, it requires a master's degree and 3,000 hours of supervised therapy sessions. It is an extremely intensive process, and HOPE is proud to support the next generation of therapists who will serve the community.

One of the reasons HOPE is able to offer such affordable rates is because graduate students who are working toward becoming licensed therapists volunteer as trainees. As part of the training process, HOPE offers clients an eight-week counseling program known as the One-Way Mirror. During this program, trainees conduct counseling sessions in

DC Wonder Woman Run Series Brings Out the Hero in Everyone

Story and photos by Shaunna Boyd

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

Sacramento was overrun by superheroes on Saturday, September 22 when the DC Wonder Woman Run Series hosted its inaugural event with a 5K and 10K run through Capitol Mall. Sacramento was the first city in the United States to participate in this race.

The event was produced by SON Events in conjunction with Warner Bros. and DC Entertainment. Sarah Ratzlaff, director of marketing for SON Events, said, "The race has a strong overall theme of women's empowerment. Wonder Woman embodies strength, bravery, and power. The goal of the event is to show that there's a Wonder Woman in all of us. That's why we're using the hashtag #IAmWonderWoman."

The festival area was decorated with giant balloons and lined with an array of fluttering Wonder Woman flags. Area streets were blocked off by police cars, flashing their red and blue lights. Approximately 1,300 people participated in the 5K and 10K runs. The first-place finishers were Sandra Khounvichai with a time of 20:26 in the 5K and Stephen Harms with a time of 48:43 in the 10K.

The DC Wonder Woman Run Series is designed to empower the Superhero in everyone, so runners and walkers of all ability levels were encouraged to participate, regardless of their athletic abilities. Many participants had never run or walked in a 5K before this event. After completing the course, each participant was given a Wonder Woman medal. The festivities continued after the race, with a celebration featuring food trucks, a beer tent, face painting, official Wonder Woman merchandise, and a main stage with live musical entertainment.

Race participant Christie Pierce said he was persuaded to join the race just the evening before: "I decided to tag along. I said, 'Sure, I'll wear a skirt, I'll do it.' But more importantly, I decided to do it because I support strong, independent women."

Theresa Ivaldi, Karli Cisneros, and Christina Mundy entered the race together. They thought it would be more fun to run together in a group of friends. This was Ivaldi's first run, and she thought the Wonder Woman run was a fun way to start. Cisneros said, "I love running and love spending time with my friends, so I figured why not combine the two." Mundy said, "What better way to run a 5K with friends and family than a Wonder Woman run that represents women's power?" Mundy's kids, Isabella (10) and Jackson (8), and their friend Sophie Carr (10), all love Wonder Woman. They enjoyed the race and especially loved getting a shiny medal to commemorate their accomplishment of crossing the finish line.

The DC Wonder Woman Run Series will be hosted in Oakland, San Jose, San Diego, and Los Angeles this fall. The Los Angeles run, as the flagship run, will be the largest in the series with 7,000 – 8,000 participants expected. If you would like to participate in one of the upcoming runs, or for more information on the DC Wonder Woman Run Series, please visit the website at www.dcwonderwomanrun.com. ★

Platinum Party Honors Pefley Partnership

Story and photos by Susan Maxwell Skinner

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Jack and Jerri Pefley's platinum anniversary dinner menu began as humbly as their first meal as husband and wife. Driving from Hatboro (PA) to Niagara Falls in 1948, the newlyweds stopped to eat. "We had a cup of soup and a salad," recalls Jerri (90). "We had only two days for our honeymoon. We were hungry, and restaurants were closed. That was the only meal we could find."

Seventy years later, fillet steak and desserts followed the nostalgic first courses at Eskaton Village. The Pefleys assembled family and old friends for a champagne toast to love and partnership. Now almost 95, Jack offered a formula for marital longevity: "Be out of town as much as possible," he suggested. He was only half kidding. The Pefley marriage endured many years of long separations.

"We were apart so much, we were always so happy to see each other again," said his wife. "But it was hard, too. When our son John spoke at his El Camino High School graduation, Jack was away flying. In those days, people were committed to careers. Family events weren't used as excuses."

Jack and Jerri wed at the same Hatboro church where they contrived their first date. Carmichael bred, Jack's war service and subsequent military career decreed he would not return home permanently for many years. His test-pilot flights near Hatboro required rapid reactions so, after beholding 20-year-old Pennsylvanian Jerri Kratz in spring, he proposed in summer and they married in fall. "Jack's commitment to decisions was something I liked," approves his bride.

"Jack saw me singing in the church choir. A pilot friend introduced us. He asked me to lunch and to a June Allyson movie. My birthday party was that night and I was engaged to marry someone else. I went out with Jack because I liked him - and I really liked June Allyson."

During the Hatboro courtship, the dashing Navy pilot dashed between Hatboro and Berkeley CA, finishing his political science degree. "I sure hoped Jack would propose," Jerri admits. "One day he gave me a gift box with a ribbon sticking out of it. I pulled the ribbon. Every few inches were slips of paper with lines from love poems. At the very end was a diamond ring."

The September bride personified post-war glam in white lace. Their freezing cold Niagara bridal suite, regrets the groom, had twin cots. Because their car was borrowed, Mr. and Mrs. Pefley headed home after two days. Longer journeys soon became the norm. During Navy postings in the Philippines, Japan, Morocco, Southern California and France, the Pefleys raised three kids. Retiring as a Commander, Jack established his family in Carmichael and began an 18-year career flying for World Airways. His second retirement was in 1983. The Pefleys occupied Palm Drive acres they called Rocking K.P. (Kratz and Pefley) Ranch.

Both served the Carmichael community: its Presbyterian Church, Chamber of Commerce and parks have claimed many volunteer hours. These days, the K.P. ranchers keep a gentler pace at Eskaton Village, Carmichael.

"We still love being together," says Jack's bride. "Even after 70 years, we never run out of things to say." ★

Sac Feral Resources to Hold Community Cats Workshop

A workshop being offered on September 30 at Carmichael Library will teach community members how to improve the situation for both feral cats and humans who share the same neighborhood. Photo courtesy Sac Feral Resources

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - You've seen the cats scurry into the brush when you walk by, or the kitten who shows up on your doorstep every so often looking for something to eat. Some people consider these feral cats nuisances; some consider them cute; and others, like Sac Feral Resources, understand the need for the neighborhood to work together to manage feral cat colonies. A workshop being offered on September 30 at Carmichael Library will teach community members how to improve the situation for both feral cats and humans who share the same neighborhood.

The workshop, part of the Community Cats Project, will be divided into two parts. The morning session will focus on feral and community cats. This session may be taken alone, but it is a prerequisite for the afternoon that will discuss and teach Trap-Neuter-Return (TNR). The workshops are free and open to the public.

"I want to improve the situation for the cats and for the neighbors," said Linda Morgan of Sac Feral Resources, a non-profit all-volunteer organization. "Ultimately, the objective is to stop more kittens from being born into a situation where they are not welcomed, wanted, or cared for," she said, "and to humanely care for cats already in the neighborhood." The hope, she added, is that people, even those currently caring for feral cats, will "take something away that will improve the lives of the cats and the neighborhood."

How do these cats get into the neighborhood? Some are left behind after the humans move. Others are set outside after a death in the family. Still others are put out instead of taken to one of the shelters because the people fear the cats will be euthanized. There are many reasons. Sac Feral Resources' intention isn't to focus on the reasons. It is to teach people how to control the cat population.

"There's a method to colony management," she said.

"I don't think people realize how much of a problem this is. Throughout the county there are between one and two hundred thousand feral cats. There is no inventory."

By learning how to monitor and manage the colony within a neighborhood, she added, the population can stabilize and eventually will decrease because cats are trapped, spayed, neutered, and returned. They are unable to reproduce. There is also what Morgan calls a feeding protocol, which is not simply leaving a bowl of food outside for the neighborhood cat.

The organization encourages people to register colonies, to learn what needs to be done within an apartment complex or neighborhood. Some residents, she said, have been faced with eviction if they continue to feed the cats. Socializing feral kittens helps make them adoptable.

"The in-depth workshops cover the background of what these cats are, the philosophies of people in the neighborhood, and why it is a neighborhood problem," said Morgan. "Cats are left behind. People are dumping cats where they see cats being fed. Cats are out there because of human action or inaction."

What can attendees expect? Morgan will bring in traps and demonstrate their use. She'll show videos, and teach how to talk to others as a colony manager. She'll teach how to trap the "untrapable" cats. She'll also explain how to feed cats. "There's a protocol behind it that will make you more successful," she said. "With TNR, responsible feeding, and colony management, the cat population will stabilize and ultimately be reduced through attrition. Neighborhood cat issues can be resolved when residents are empowered to work together in this shared objective."

Sacramento CERT Needs You

Sacramento's California Emergency Response Team's (CERT's) graduation drill took place on Saturday, September 1 from 2 p.m. - 10 p.m. at the Northern California Regional Public Safety Academy in McClellan Park.

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- Sacramento's California Emergency Response Team's (CERT's) graduation drill took place on Saturday, September 1 from 2 p.m. - 10 p.m. at the Northern California Regional Public Safety Academy in McClellan Park. The community participated and explored their inner actors as volunteer victims with broken arms or legs or other injuries for the day's free event.

The drills tested the program's graduates on practical skills including sizing up a building to determine if it is safe to enter; search and rescue; transport; and triage and treatment. They assessed situations simulating burning buildings and locating victims in dense smoke and at night. Graduates radioed transport crews, practiced victim transport before another group assessed injuries, bandaged, and prepared victims for transport to a medical facility said Robert Ross, Chief, Operations, Sacramento CERT, CERT 22.

"Watching, you don't get to see as much," he said, adding that the role of victim teaches more to the community who wants to understand what happens during an emergency such as a fire.

Ross explained that most people see only the end result.

"It's a good way to see them in action and experience it without being in a collapsed building," he said.

The Basic CERT course, Level 3, is sanctioned by FEMA and was developed by Los Angeles Fire Department (LAFD) after the Mexico City and Kobe earthquakes. The course, Ross explained, is for everyday citizens with no previous training or particular skills who want to learn how to prepare for a disaster and is offered at no charge.

"Civilians will be on their own for the first 72 hours," said Ross, and will learn about disaster psychology and how to prepare bags with the necessities to assist in their immediate neighborhoods. Ross said that people don't often think about bringing items like pet toys when they need to evacuate. Trained civilians can put out small fires and even triage in their neighborhoods if the need arises, but they need to practice, and that's where the graduation drill comes in.

Graduates learn about fire behavior, which has been especially bad in California this summer, identification of hazardous materials, including those being transported, and terrorism. Upon graduation, CERT trained civilians can assist locally and can transfer their CERT training to other cities or states if they move. Since the Sacramento region is prone to flooding, this would also be covered in local training.

This level is required in order to continue with advanced courses to be certified as a Disaster Service Worker or a First Responder. Additionally, graduates may pursue training to join one of the special teams - Urban Search & Rescue, Animal Response, or Radio Communications.

"During a disaster cell phones won't work, satellite phones are few and far between," said Ross. "Ham operators during Hurricane Katrina passed messages. We can talk to Japan if we need to," he said.

One legally blind team member who used a motorized wheelchair ran the ham radio and was one of the best in Sacramento.

"There are no limitations on who can participate. There are many ways to be involved, with a job for everyone."

For additional information, visit www.sfdcert.org. Look for them at many local public events. The next academy will be held in spring of 2019. ★

High Cholesterol?

The creator of Gatorade® can help.
Gainesville, FL - If you're one of the millions of Americans that have been diagnosed with high cholesterol, "Natural" help is now available from the creator of Gatorade®! The highly regarded late Dr. Robert J. Cade, while at the University of Florida, did extensive clinical trials utilizing a special formula he developed containing soluble fiber (Acacia Gum). This formula, "CholesterolAde", proved to lower cholesterol in the human blood by over 17% during an 8-week period. Not only is this special soluble fiber proven to lower cholesterol naturally but, other positive effects showed weight loss and improved bowel functions, which can help reduce the chances of many forms of cancer.
Dr. Richard Goldfarb, MD, FACS, the Medical Director for Go Epic Health, Inc. states "CholesterolAde is a natural alternative to statins and other drugs that can create many types of health problems."
For the first time Dr. Cade's original delicious tasting formula, "CholesterolAde", is now available at the retailer below. Call 1-877-581-1502 or go to www.cholesterlade.com

Sacramento Suburban Water District to Host Open House

By SSWD Staff

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Sacramento Suburban Water District (SSWD) will host an open house on Wednesday, October 17 from 6 to 8 p.m. at their District office at 3701 Marconi Ave. in Sacramento.

“The open house is a great opportunity for customers come by and meet their board member, learn about upcoming projects that might be happening in their neighborhood, check out water-saving fixtures and learn about our local water supplies,” said SSWD General Manager Dan York.

The event will feature information about water-conserving products, rebates and services, refreshments and water-saving giveaways, as well as a raffle for a weather-based sprinkler timer for SSWD customers.

More information about the open house is available from SSWD Customer Service at 916.972.7171 or via email at feedback@sswd.org. ★

a room with a one-way mirror that allows supervising therapists and other trainees to watch the session in real time. The trainee wears an ear-piece so the supervising therapist can offer immediate feedback and suggestions. Davis explained that it is like having eight therapists at once. The cost is only $25 per session, and clients sign up for this program knowing that they are getting the help they need while also giving the trainee valuable hands-on experience.

The supervising therapists at HOPE work hard to train people with integrity who are eager to serve the community. Davis takes great pride in the work they do and in their dedicated trainees and associates. Davis said, “We all work in our communities, and it’s so important to us that we’re building healthier communities by building healthier families.”

To better serve all those in need, HOPE offers many specialized forms of therapy such as Cognitive Behavioral Therapy (CBT), which helps people understand and address harmful thoughts and actions; Acceptance Commitment Therapy (ACT), which offers strategies to accept, destigmatize, and live with mental illness; Active Parenting of Teens (APT), which teaches parents how to talk to their teens and to watch for signs of high-risk behavior; and Eye Movement Desensitization and Reprocessing (EMDR), which addresses how the brain accesses and reacts to traumatic memories.

Donations to HOPE help pay for standard operating costs as well as to purchase needed equipment for specialized therapeutic techniques. Davis first began operating HOPE as a nonprofit in 2008. She said, “I just wanted to give back to the community and give back to the profession, and it’s grown into what it is today.”

HOPE has offices in midtown Sacramento, Roseville, and Folsom. For more information, visit their website at www.hope-counselingcenter.org. ★

ARDEN ARCADE, CA (MPG) - The Greater Arden Chamber of Commerce’s Best of Arden awards kicked off at 6 p.m. with classic rock, soda, water, and what seemed to be a never-ending stream of pizza boxes. The room was abuzz with voices, laughter, and networking.

A handful of awards were presented with certificates from the offices of Congressman Ami Bera, Assemblyman Ken Cooley, and Senator Richard Pan. Some recipients had their hands more than full with the awards and certificates. Four business and two nonprofit categories received nominations from the community between July 1 and August 31. Two new categories for 2018 rewarded employees who received nominations from co-workers and management. Arden Chamber of Commerce President and CEO Shaun Dillon hosted the event.

Locally owned and operated Express Employment Professionals received the Best Business (Large) award and was recognized a second time when Linda Aleman, staffing assistant for office services, received a Best Employee award.

Another twice-recognized business was Benning Design Construction which received the Best Business (Medium) award and the firm’s estimator, Ashton Bengé, was given the Best Employee award. “A great team player who never comes to work in a bad mood,” said Dillon. Even baby Eleanor was excited about the Best Business award.

The Best Business (Small) recipient was Upen J. Patel, DDS. Dillon spoke about Patel’s giving back to the community and said that he is expanding his office. New York Life agent Austin Schlocker took home the Best Business (Independent) award.

Danielle Lawrence of Mutual Assistance Network accepted the award for Best Nonprofit (Community) which meets at the Arcade Community Center the third Tuesday each month and works to improve Arden Arcade and provide networking opportunities.

The Best Nonprofit (Youth) went to Sheriff’s Community Impact Program (SACSCIP). Jessica Fielding, the organization’s director, spoke about the boxing mentoring program and youth leadership programs and said that Arden Arcade “has the highest rates of drug and alcohol use in all of Sacramento County,” which is why the Coalition for a Safe & Healthy Arden Arcade (a program of SACSCIP) has initiatives and programs focusing on reducing youth alcohol and drug use.

Fielding also introduced the Responsible Alcohol Merchant Awards (RAMA) program.

“Students are actually trained in prevention. They go into stores and they actually interview the manager or somebody on site. They survey the store and they really encourage best practices to be implemented.” Best practices include not keeping the alcohol next to toys or the front door, she explained. “The biggest goal is to support healthy businesses.”

Each youth associated with the two year old program joined Fielding. Students, she said, check signage to make sure that the windows aren’t covered “so you can’t see what’s going on in the store.” They also check for on-site security and loitering. Most, but not all, students are from Arden Arcade high schools.

Josselyn Cardenas, a senior at Valley High School said, “I come all the way from Elk Grove every single week just to be part of this coalition.” Being part of the coalition, she said, was eye opening. “There are some stores that are implementing regulations, rules, and standards to reduce the youth access to alcohol.” She was sad that other stores didn’t seem to care. “It was a very good experience for me.”

Mya Worko, a recent graduate of Encina Preparatory High School and current student at Sacramento City College, presented a spoken word piece she created about her experience in the program.

A short video highlighted the program. “We want to reward a few of our stores,” said Fielding. “We do have some amazing stores. Specifically 7-Eleven that has been so proactive and has always welcomed our students.”

Representatives from 7-Eleven stores on Howe Avenue, Arden Way, Fulton Avenue, and Marconi Avenue received awards. Fielding congratulated the stores on “doing a great job to protect the Arden Arcade community.”

“Our goal is to build positive relationships with the merchant owners.” For additional information, visit: <https://greaterarden.com>. ★

The Two-Year Globalist War on President Trump

Commentary
Harold Pease, Ph. D

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The most vicious elections in our history were that of Jefferson in 1800, Lincoln in 1860, Lyndon Johnson in 1964, Ronald Reagan in 1980, but none of these were more contentious than that of Donald Trump in 2016 who was opposed by both political parties. "Never Trumpers" (mostly Republicans) did not resort to street riots but "Not my President" (mostly Democrats) did following his election in many cities throughout the land.

In 2016, Most Americans knew that something was wrong—really wrong. Independents, those refusing to align Democrat or Republican, were about 40%—stronger than either party. Most Americans felt lied to by both parties and the media. Most Republicans felt betrayed when they elected politicians to restore the Constitution and the economy and these same politicians appeared to join the other side as soon as they arrived in Washington D.C. Many had wondered the value of their vote outside "the lesser of two evils" philosophy.

Enter Donald Trump who mostly said what others were afraid to say, beginning with illegal immigration. Our Mexican friends have indeed invaded our country and taken, not just the jobs Americans did not want, but the ones they did want as well. They entered every field and their illegal children, being bilingual, are now favored in most other jobs. When politicians say they will build a fence to help preserve American jobs almost no one believed them. Trump was a builder, building magnificent structures, and was believed.

Simply put, the media, the establishment, and the political parties had lost their credibility. The more the establishment or media ganged-up on Trump the more his following grew. He even identified the establishment media as "fake news." His bravado was somewhat refreshing from the Bush's, Clinton's, Boehner's and McConnell's "no real change" rhetoric.

The establishment opposition to Trump certified another factor in his favor. He was not one of them. He would not be controlled by them, as were his predecessors from both parties. Nor did any special interest group control him. This may have been the first time in 120 years that this was so. Only the Constitution should guide and restrain him—not the moneyed establishment.

Another factor in his favor, also not mentioned by the press, was that most Americans believed that the economy was on a crash course. No country can long endure when more money is spent than taken in. No candidate understood the economy better than Trump, having worked successfully with it for decades. He had the most incentive to get it back to a sound base more than any other candidate, or even you or I; we lose hundreds when it blows, he loses billions.

The Trump phenomenon was essentially a rebellion against the establishment by a population tired of being manipulated every four years into staying on the road to bankruptcy with the same failed internationalist foreign policy presented by establishment candidates of both parties.

The establishment media attempted to show candidate Donald Trump as, a joke—certainly not a serious candidate, not a real conservative, a flip-flopper on the issues, anti-women, anti-immigration, insulting to everyone, least likely to beat Hillary Clinton, only attractive to white males, and not in touch with reality and more.

What was very different from previous brutal elections where such rhetoric ended after the election, was that, for Trump, it never ended—indeed it amplified his first two years in the White House. Opponent sympathizers largely financed by CFR member George Sores, took to the streets before the inauguration with signs "Not my president" while Republican opponents joined the "Never Trump" movement.

The intelligence community with Obama Administration holdovers, now referred to as the Deep State, targeted a duly elected president with what is now known as the "Russia Hoax." Finding no evidence of Russia/Trump collusion after a two year Special Council Mueller probe; all in an effort to impeach their hated president as a traitor. CFR member and Obama CIA Director, John Brennan had called Trump a traitor. This while completely ignoring, even covering up, a real Russian/Clinton collusion story and the Russian Uranium One deal giving Russia 20% of America's uranium profiting the Clintons by millions. This, with the bleach-bited 35,000 Hillary Clinton emails so attesting to this deal, many of which were classified documents sent over her unsecured server.

While the Deep State fabricated collusion was ongoing the establishment press worked at getting Trump Administration personnel to turn on their boss from within, through anonymous sources showing Trump unfit for office. They hoped to "prove" incompetence, and thus exercise the 25th Amendment to remove him from office. But the Trump staff held firm.

Excepting Lincoln, no president should fear an assassination attempt more than Trump and many still fear that end; he is so hated by the establishment. Why? Because For over a hundred years, since William McKinley they, with the help of the media that they came to largely own, have propelled into power politicians sympathetic to their globalist interests in both parties so that their interests got attention no matter which of their two political parties, Democrat or Republican, got elected. Control of foreign policy was never out of their hands. They want "their" White House back regardless of what they have to do to obtain it. ★

Dare to Live Without Limits by Bryan Golden The Pitfalls of Pride

You should lead a life you can be proud of. This includes how you treat others and how you treat yourself, along with the examples you set. You can also be proud of accomplishments, proud of solving problems, or of overcoming obstacles. Other aspects worthy of pride include self-reliance and a standard of excellence.

Pride is an internal state of contentment. Pride is a feeling you have. It's not something you show off to impress others. Pride is not something you laud over others. True pride is not advertised. You don't need to show off to others what you have done or how much you have.

The pitfalls of pride begin with arrogance. When pride leads to being full of yourself, it becomes a negative. Pride does not make you better than someone else. Pride does not confer more privilege or status. All people are equal.

Thinking you know what is best for others is another pitfall. Someone with this frame of mind seeks to impose their beliefs and values. They think they have all of the answers everyone else needs.

Just because you may have discovered a strategy for success which works for you does not mean it is appropriate for someone else. If what you are doing works well, the example you set will speak for itself. Other people will decide for themselves whether or not they want to follow your lead.

Believing that you are in a position to change others is also a pitfall of pride. You cannot change anyone. It's up to each individual to decide whether or not they want to change. If they do, it's up to them to decide what changes to implement.

Being proud of who you are and what you have accomplished does not put you in a position to judge others. Each person is responsible for their own life as well as the ensuing results. There is a cause and effect relationship between behavior and outcome. Each person must find their own way.

Your experience does not provide you with an obligation to provide answers for others. However, sharing your experience with others can be helpful if you are asked for advice. One of the most potent forms of education is learning from the success and failure of others. This is why experience is not the best teacher, someone else's experience is.

Always be willing to assist others with advice when asked. Never be condescending. Share your knowledge with the disclaimer, "this is what worked for me and this is what didn't." Actually, more is learned from failed attempts than when things go as planned. This is why the best sailors are those who have the most experience with adverse conditions.

Pride becomes arrogance when you believe you have all the answers. You then proceed to tell other people what action is necessary for them to solve their problems. Pride remains a positive when it is combined with humility.

It's easy to avoid the pitfalls of pride. Have a standard of excellence. Strive to behave in a manner you are proud of. Treat others with courtesy, dignity, and respect. When asked, share your experiences in order to be of assistance. Live and let live.

CHEERS & JEERS

by Damian Holbrook

Jeers to The Young And the Restless

for giving a standout vet the ol' heave-ho. After 40 years as Genoa City's bad boy-gone-good Paul Williams, Emmy-winner Doug Davidson has been shown the door in what we can only imagine is the worst twist a soap opera has ever thrown its life-long fans.

Jeers to Bachelor in Paradise's beachfront disasters. Leo threw a hissy after losing Kendall to Grocery Joe, ego-beast Jordan (pictured) trashed two female contestants for laughing at his antics and serial dater Annaliese fell in love at the opening of a date card. These people don't need Paradise. They need therapy.

Cheers to Netflix's Magic For Humans

for enchanting us. Like the oddly well-adjusted love child of David Blaine and Billy Eichner, street magician Justin Willman's best trick is making our skepticism vanish during six mind-blowing episodes of comedy and conjuring.

Cheers to Stand Up to Cancer

for breaking down boundaries. More than 65 networks and streaming outlets united for a joint telecast of the biennial fundraising event, featuring everyone from Bradley Cooper and Katie Couric to Keith Urban and Reese Witherspoon (pictured). Not too shabby at all.

ASK MATT

BY MATT ROUSH TV Guide Senior Critic

SINCE WHEN CAN YOU SAY THE "F" WORD ON TV?

Question: My husband and I were watching an episode of Season 2 of The Sinner on USA and the naughty "F" word was said 2 or 3 times in a scene. Since when is it OK to use that word on a network channel? —Natalie

Matt Roush: The lines are blurrier nowadays, but USA is a cable network, and not subject to the content restrictions that still more or less apply to the broadcast networks. Even so, it hasn't been that long since networks like FX or AMC (reliable envelope pushers) would edit out or mask the hardest of profanities, but now it's fairly common. It was especially noticeable this summer on Paramount Network's Yellowstone, a show about which I fielded many complaints about the excessive foul language— maybe not on the level of Deadwood, but enough to rattle a number of Western fans hoping for something a little less dark and profane.

Question: The Orville is the cleverest send-up of and homage to Star Trek. Is it coming back? —EBP

Matt Roush: I wish I had a better sense if this show was a send-up or an homage, but yes, while it's not on the fall schedule, The Orville will be back by midseason. There are reports it will premiere on Dec. 30 and resume its Thursday night operations in January when football season is over.

The Exciting New World of Snap On Dentures!

There are millions of people in the US who struggle daily with dentures. A majority suffer from discomfort as a result of loose or ill-fitting dentures. Many prosthetic wearers simply withdraw from any type of social engagement as a result of having to wear their dentures.

Now there is a solution to these issues: Implants with "Snap On" Dentures!

Whether you are new to dentures or have worn them for years, a snap on denture is a great solution to uncomfortable chewing and slippery painful dentures. There are several types of snap on dentures available, including snap on partials. If you already wear a conventional denture or partial denture, we can sometimes use your denture to accommodate the snaps to fit on your new dental implants.

Implants as low as $99.00 per month

If you are interested in learning more about improving your quality of life with an implant retained snap on denture or partial, please contact us for a FREE CONSULTATION today!
