Cool Band of Bearded Brothers Rock Park

Carmichael audiences - and many visitors - recently enjoyed a Fryed Brothers Band concert.

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Beards, tattoos and solid American songs recently brought the multitudes – including scores of Harley Davidson riders – to Carmichael Park. The 2018 concert season revved to full throttle as veteran biker band, the Fryed Brothers, earned a warm reception on a hot June night.

The Sacramento musicians have recorded with Willie Nelson and played for the country legend's July 4 parties in Texas. Of founding brothers Harry and Tommy Fryed, only fiddler Harry (58) remains with the group. Younger brother Tommy died of heart failure at 49 years old. Youngest of a Carmichael family of seven siblings, the brothers grew up on Carter Road and attended Rio Americana High. "From childhood, they loved music and they loved motorcycles," says their sister/manager Barbara Fryed.

Harry and Tommy formed their band in memory of an older brother, Mark, who died in 1980 when a car hit his motorcycle near Carmichael Park. Together, Harry and Tommy wrote more 40 songs and, over 36 years of pro-gigging, the Fryeds have shared stages with Waylon Jennings, Charlie Daniels, the Doobie Brothers, Jefferson Starship, Tower of Power, Eddie Money, Blood, Sweat & Tears and Billy Idol. "They have fans all over the world," says their manager. "My brother was joking that it only took 36 years to get on a Carmichael stage. But he was more than happy to play there. Our mom still lives in Carmichael; she's 86 and she's their biggest fan. Harry always dedicates 'Amarillo by Morning' to mom."

The Fryeds' park arrival was orchestrated by the roar of dozens of motorcycles; their ensuing performance was as much a concert as a Harley Davidson convention. In the bikers' midst, Carmichaelites enjoyed all-American blues/rock and many unaccustomed sights. "I've never seen so much facial hair, bare flesh and tattoos in one place before," observed a local concert-goer. "But everyone was well-behaved and respectful."

On duty, Park Police Officer John Mohamed had an easy evening with the local and imported crowd. "It was certainly a diverse group," he noted. "But they all got along together and enjoyed the music."

Remaining Carmichael Park District summer concerts are scheduled as follows. Saturday performances begin at 6:30 pm; Sunday concerts have a 5 pm downbeat.

DA Schubert Talks Community Challenges at Carmichael Chamber Luncheon

By Rich Peters, MPG Editor

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - "How much our community thrives is one hundred percent dependent on the people who are willing to participate in that," said Sacramento County District Attorney Anne Marie Schubert. "There is no question in my mind that Sacramento has been faced with extraordinary challenges in the last few months and there is no person probably more aware of that than me."

District Attorney Schubert was June's Carmichael Chamber luncheon guest speaker, packing the room. Schubert addressed a lot of topics, including the East Area Rapist case, but mostly stuck to what she feels is most important right now - the challenges that face the community.

"My view as the DA, and I say this often, is what I call the blueprint to public safety: prosecution, prevention and innovation," said Schubert. "We're going to stand up for victims, we're going to hold people accountable – if you deserve to go to prison, buddy, you're going - that's what I say. But I also believe one hundred percent that if we can prevent crime on the front end, we are far better off on the other end."

Schubert is a firm believer in education being the answer to lowering the crime rate. "85 percent of our prison population is comprised of individuals that

The Power of Reading and Writing

School teacher and grammar enthusiast Elaine Swanson has touched the lives of many of her students through her kind efforts to keep the English language alive. Photo by Sue Anne Foster

By Elise Spleiss

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - "You will be judged by the language you use and how well you use language." This conviction has been the driving force for over 50 years behind the work of retired English teacher Elaine Swanson of Carmichael.

Swanson's goal is to complete her book, "Color Coded Grammar," to be used as a companion for English textbooks in order to bring the subject of English back to its rightful place of honor in the education system. Swanson turned 90 years young on June 30 and is still actively working on her notes for the book.

Swanson has been developing this new system of teaching grammar to students since the 1970s when she and her friend, fellow teacher Juna Roy, developed the method while team teaching English to ninth graders at Albert Einstein Junior High in the Rosemont area.

The teachers had noticed at the times too much power. In an beginning of the year that many of their ninth graders lacked the ability to read or write well and were at risk of failing or not attending college and missing out at successful lives simply because they had never learned the basic rules of grammar.

She had believed the eighth grade exit exam would weed out those not ready for high school and students would be forced to repeat classes, giving them time to get better prepared for college. Instead, when many students could not pass the test, standards were simply lowered. Those not ready for high school would continue to fall behind. According to Swanson, students were sold out, no longer expected to achieve excellence.

Swanson knew that previous teachers had been giving them writing assignments without teaching them to write, often resulting in cheating and low self-esteem.

Reading is power in every country and language - somethe length many governments and church bodies in history have gone to in order to keep the 'common' people from learning to read, even today.

interview, Swanson pointed out

At the same time, other forward-thinking countries such as India and Japan, which recognize the place of English in world commerce, take teaching English in their own country much more seriously than we do.

For two years the teachers combined two full English classes of ninth graders - one person teaching and the other helping students who were confused about what was being taught but did not know how to ask for help. The system worked well and parents were pleased with the outcome, considering what tools the team had to work

Understanding the importance of the English language, Swanson and Roy knew something had to be done in the future. Their students needed Continued on page 3

Korea and World War III - Almost

By Jerald Drobesh, US AIR FORCE

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Recently there has been high tension and talks of a possible confrontation and even a nuclear war with North Korea. But this is not the first time we have been in this position with them. In the early 1970s, as a Captain in the US Air Force, I was assigned to Kunsan Air Force Base on the west coast of South Korea. This was an old US Air Force Base from the Korean War days, in the 1950s. At that time, I was the Air Force Chief of Aircraft Maintenance at the base, and part of my job was to prepare our assigned F-4 Fighter/Bombers for emergency launch with nuclear weapons, if the situation required it.

The F-4 twin jet Fighter/ Bomber was, at the time, was one of the fastest and best aircraft ever built. My job required that I have a Top Secret Security Clearance, because I was required to brief the Wing Commander on the status of all our assigned aircraft, and sit in on all Top Secret briefings about the status of the North Korean armed forces and their preparations for War. I remember well, as if it was yesterday. It was one of the most important briefings I had ever attended. It was the early 1970s, and by the time the briefing was over, I knew that we could be at war at any minute.

The North Korean forces, according to the briefing, were moving their fighters, bombers, tanks, military equipment, and soldiers up close to the border between North and South Korea. This would put them just minutes flying time from our aircraft at Kunsan AFB. This had never happened before and I remember thinking, at the time, that our base may not exist after the next few days, or sooner.

That night I walked down to the flight line where our F-4 Fighter/Bombers were stationed and ready for war. My job was to check with the airmen assigned to repair and prepare the aircraft, and to have them all ready for launch if the orders were given by Headquarters. We were an inch away from World War III and I could feel it in the air.

That night, I talked to my maintenance airmen assigned to the aircraft. They didn't know, at the time, how close we were to war and I couldn't tell them. There wasn't a need at that time for them to know, but they were ready. All the F-4 aircraft that were flyable were loaded with bombs and ready for immediate takeoff to their assigned targets. I remember thinking that night on the flightline that this could

I enjoyed my job and all the assigned men were great to work with. Being that I once flew jets myself in the Air Force, I knew how the pilots must have felt - that they may never see their families again - if we went to war. This was the real world and possibly the end of our beautiful planet as we knew it. I had a difficult time sleeping that night. It's hard to tell someone who hasn't been stationed on the front lines with nuclear weapons involved what it feels like. But that's what we were trained for - and we all knew what was at stake. Fortunately, we all survived or I wouldn't be writing this article. For some reason the North Koreans began to remove their jets, tanks, equipment, and troops back from the border, and I never heard why. At that time, Chinese and Russian troops were supporting the North Korean communist troops and maybe their leaders realized that once a nuclear war started in Korea that it could speed to their countries and it wouldn't stop until everything was gone.

We may never know what happened, but events in today's news are a reminder to me of that time when I was there, and I saw how close we came. I believe that cooler heads in China, Russia, and North Korea prevailed. They knew we had a very large number of nuclear weapons and would use them if threatened, but China and Russia had them as well.

I believe the fact that we did have nuclear weapons and advanced aircraft to deliver them was possibly the reason why we didn't go to war. What's interesting to me is that at that time, and even now, the world didn't know how close we came to World War III, but I was there!

May GOD continue to bless this beautiful planet and let's do everything we can to keep it special and alive!

$10 Million in Refunds Claimed Across Region Through United Way's Help

Tax Help for Late Filing to Continue Through Summer

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Nearly 8,500 households in the Sacramento area took advantage of United Way-led free tax help programs for the 2017 tax year, resulting in more than $10 million in money claimed through the Earned Income Tax Credit (EITC), other credits and refunds. The in-person Volunteer Income Tax Assistance (VITA) program, led by United Way California Capital Region with support from Citi Community Development, helped 7,422 local households, and United Way's MyFreeTaxes.com helped 1,066 users file taxes. Thanks to two-year funding from Citi Community Development, free tax help was significantly expanded across the region in Amador, El Dorado, Placer, Sacramento and Yolo counties this year, increasing the number of households helped by more than 2,500 and resulting in more than a $3 million increase in refunds for the region compared to last year.

A limited number of appointments are still available this summer for households looking for help with late filing and which earned $54,000 or less in 2017. IRS-certified volunteers will provide free basic tax return preparation with electronic filing and will help local households claim tax credits, including federal and state EITC, Child Tax Credit, and Credit for the Elderly or the Disabled. This year, more households are eligible to earn up to $6,500 in federal and state EITC, including those who are self-employed. To make an appointment, call 2-1-1 in Sacramento, or (916) 498-1000 if living outside the city, Monday-Friday from 8 a.m.-5 p.m.

"This free tax help is crucial to ensuring our local families are financially healthy, and we are grateful to our funders and partners and 433 volunteers who have already served more than 16,000 hours to help local families," said Stephanie Bray, president and CEO, United Way California Capital

Funding support from Citi Community Development is enabling United Way California Capital Region to increase the capacity and reach of the local VITA program to meet additional need and demand this year and next. The funding is helping to expand the number of sites offering free tax preparation and to increase the number of volunteer tax preparers.

"Nearly 20 percent of households in the Sacramento region are living on low incomes, and nearly half lack the savings to sustain an unexpected shock to income," said Vicki Joseph, Northern California market manager for Citi Community Development. "By expanding access to free tax preparation services, United Way is enabling more families in need to benefit from this vital tax credit and helping to build their financial resiliency."

Thanks to two-year funding from Citi Community Development, free tax help was significantly expanded across the region, increasing the number of households helped by more than 2,500 and resulting in more than a $3 million increase in refunds for the region compared to last year.

Local households that made $66,000 or less in 2017 were eligible to file state and federal taxes online for free at MyFreeTaxes.com, sponsored by United Way Worldwide. The site provided households with free tax help so they could maximize refunds and credits and save an average of $200 in preparer fees, guiding users through federal and state filing with software powered by H&R Block.

Other sponsors of United Way's 2018 free tax preparation programs include the U.S. Internal Revenue Service, SAFE Credit Union and SMUD. For a list of collaborating partners, visit YourLocalUnitedWay.org/VITA.

United Way California Capital Region is leading these free tax help programs as part of its Square One Project, a 20-year promise to significantly increase the number of local students who graduate from high school ready for success in college and beyond. Household financial well-being is a key factor in student success. Through nine decades of work and research across Amador, El Dorado, Sacramento, Placer and Yolo counties, the local United Way believes ending poverty starts in school and is working to ensure kids meet important milestones for success in college or career. ### DA Schubert Talks Community Challenges at Carmichael Chamber Luncheon were either chronically truant or absent from school," she stated. "You cannot expect police and prosecutors to solve the problems that we face in the community alone.'

Other issues that Schubert touched on were homelessness and mental health - especially in the Carmichael area. "Aside from the East Area Rapist, which is probably now the hottest topic, the hottest topic was always two things: 'What are you going to do about homelessness? What are you going to do about mental health?""

She touched on the negative affect that the homeless population has on the community's economy and the complexity of solving that problem. "Public safety, education, healthcare everything is interrelated," said Schubert. "If we do not have a vibrant community, if we are not safe as a community, if you have people, transients, using drugs, doing everything on the doorsteps of your business - that's going to affect your economic vibrancy.'

Schubert was joined by Sacramento Sheriff Officer Bill Roberts, CHP Officer Brian Lewis and Sacramento Fire Department Officer Christopher

Schubert continued, "We have seen in Sacramento County and across this country an increase of homelessness of 30 percent (in the last two years). That's a very significant issue – very challenging, very complex – but it's not something that police and prosecutors can solve on their own. It takes a community."

to learn the rules in order to be understand how to write and speak correctly and to get the most out of what they read.

Seeing their success with the combined classes, in 1974 the school asked the team to teach social studies and English to a class of students entering the seventh grade. Swanson and Roy needed to prove that lowering the standards so students would pass tests was not the answer. "If kids are held at held to a higher standard, they will meet it," said Swanson. "They will do more than they think they want to if it is expected of them." Swanson did not make it easy. If you earned an A you got an A. If you earned a C you got a C. If you cheated you got an F on that assignment. She believed that any student was capable of earning a C.

Students would remember much more than their grades in her class. Besides the basics of color coding each part of speech to help remember its function, such as nouns being red, and verbs being green, Swanson replaced the sentence diagram with eight sentence patterns to the students who attended had help students analyze their own

Learning English and social studies together gave students the opportunity to be immersed in these subjects by writing and putting on plays and skits, and going on field trips. They were able to learn from real world examples in the news about the importance of English on the world stage.

Going into eighth grade as friends added to the trust and success of these 50 students in the 1970s. Now in their fifties, many still stay in touch with Swanson.

On April 28, 2018, more than 20 of these students gathered at Swanson's home in Carmichael to honor her and thank her personally for changing their lives.

One student, Austin McAdam, arranged for the reunion party to show Swanson how her teaching and care for them had affected them on many levels. Three of become English teachers.

"Back then I felt like a nobody, but with the class interactions and her insistence on our doing our best, I came out feeling like a somebody," said one former student.

"When I told my parents all the different ways we approached learning in class, they said, 'If all children had this kind of educational experience, all children could be bright." Many remarks echoed the common theme of comfort and confidence. "Her class was the only place I felt safe at school," said one former student in attendance. "She changed the direction in my life.

Swanson said of the gathering, "It was the most wonderful day

Game Plots

The Popular Apocalypse

By Noah Howard

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The video game industry is rarely labeled as "original," and this year's Electronics Entertainment Expo (E3) illustrated exactly why. Video games' largest publishers showcased Metro: Exodus, Dying Light 2, Days Gone, The Last of Us Part 2, Rage 2, Gears 5 and Fallout 76. Their common thread? Every one of these flagship, multi-million dollar titles is a post-apocalyptic action game, usually with some sort of zombie or zombie-like enemy. 2018's store shelves will be utterly saturated with games in the vein of Mad Max and 28 Days Later, and yet despite the saturation, every one of them will likely sell exceptionally well.

Video games have an utter obsession with the post-apocalypse going back decades, to an extent not reflected in any other popular media. The two seem to be a match made in heaven; a primary allure of video games is the ability to escape one's own life and do anything they desire. When a developer is tasked with contextualizing utter freedom in terms of a logically coherent, immersive game world, where better to turn than an anarchic wasteland? Without the binding ties of society and rule of law, the player can believably do whatever they want without the logical necessity of some ingame police coming down on their heads. Even linear, cinematic experiences with little real player freedom benefit from the narrative shortcuts a postapocalypse allows. Why are we killing thousands and thousands of zombies/people? Easy, this world is kill or be killed in a battle for survival, so further moral justification for Mass violence seems, from the writer's perspective, otherwise unnecessary.

Such justification feeds into why the trend is stronger now than it's ever been. Developers leveraged the computing power of the new generation of consoles not to create photorealism, but to create massive, living worlds in which players can roam free. Open worlds became "stylish" as franchises that were once linear began to expand with huge environments to explore. And as video games began to lean more and more into their most unique artistic asset, the ability to create a sense of player freedom, the need for justifications for such complete freedom spiked upwards. As a result, we have E3 2018, where game after game resorts to the post-apocalypse as its narrative shortcut.

This is hardly a criticism; because video games aren't primarily a narrative medium, narrative shortcuts are easily excused if they accommodate exciting gameplay and interesting worlds, both of which post-apocalypse games often excell at. And even then, video games have occasionally used post-apocalyptic settings not as writing crutches but as tools to explore the complex moral questions of survival and freedom; 2013's The Last of Us did exactly that, and is widely considered the best-written game ever made (though its incrediblelooking sequel may be looking to snatch that title from its predecessor). There's a reason why, despite the saturation, the industry is showing few signs of fatigue. The post-apocalypse both literally and figuratively, remains extensively unexplored, and video games are uniquely positioned to trek into the lawless wilderness.

Developers leveraged the computing power of the new generation of consoles not to create photorealism, but to create massive, living worlds in which players can roam free.

Johnny Cueto Shines in Rehab Start

WEST SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - On a hot Friday evening, fans filed into Raley Field to catch a glimpse of a big league fan favorite.

Johnny Cueto threw 69 pitches, allowing just four hits and a walk while striking out six over four dominate innings in his latest rehab stint for the River Cats. The bullpen would do the rest as Sacramento would shutout the Fresno Grizzlies 4-0.

Cueto, who has been rehabbing a sprained elbow since early May, is inching closer to a return to San Francisco – and just in time as the Giants are starting to play up to their potential now that their once injury riddled roster is finally healing up.

Cueto threw 48 pitches over 3.2 innings in his first rehab start on June 23 against the El Paso Chihuahuas. He was 3-0 with a 0.84 ERA before he landed on the disabled list. Both Cueto and Jeff Samardzija are expected to return to the Giants starting rotation return to the Giants starting rotation soon.

Giants ace Johnny Cueto is nearing a return to the big league staff after being sidelined with an elbow sprain since early May.

Slim Randles' HOME COUNTRY

The hassled, red-faced man cruising the neighborhood Saturday morning in the pickup truck is good ol' Bert, of course. It's a warm Saturday, which means only one thing in our part of the country – yard sales. That's why the

Oh Well, Nothing Shines Like a New Lamp

charming lady riding next to him, his wife, Maizie, was wearing a big

"There's one Bert," she said. "On the right. Pull over and park."

It took Maizie almost 20 minutes to work her way up the driveway. There were three boxes of paperback books to go through first, then a shelf full of various knobs.

"I'll ask them what these knobs are for," Maizie said.

"Don't do it," replied Bert. "If you have to ask, we don't need

What Bert forgot to say was that he didn't want to admit to the Johnsons, whose yard sale this was, that he didn't know what those knobs of theirs actually did.

After two paperback books, there was a little stack of doilies to go through.

"We don't need doilies," Bert said.

"Hush!" said Maizie. "People will think you aren't friendly." Then she spotted the lamp.

It was only five bucks, and it was a golden brown like a big fat vase and had a nice amber shade on it.

"Oh Bert," Maizie said. "It's a lot like the one we used to have. Remember that one? It used to sit on the end table closest to the door to your den. I really miss that lamp. Let's get this one, Bert. It'll remind us of the one we used to have,

"It is kinda nice," Bert said.

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE

ESTATE OF TIMOTHY DAVIS

Maizie bought it and Bert loaded it in the pickup, along with the new ironing board, game cartridge for the grandkids, plant pots for the geraniums, dishes for Maizie's dish collection, a serving spoon holder from Niagara Falls, and a five-gallon milk can to put magazines on.

When they got home and were unloading, Bert noticed Maizie's initials on the bottom of the new table lamp. Didn't the Johnson's buy this from them in their yard sale about 10 years ago?

Oh well, nothing shines like a new lamp, and Bert might be tired of yard saling, but he is still gentleman enough not to spoil it for prohibited from portraying himself as someone who practices functional or pastoral medicine.

On February 9, 2018, Martin pled guilty to three counts of felony practicing medicine without a license, four counts of felony grand theft by false pretenses and misdemeanor charges of illegally using 'MD' and 'physician' in advertisements.

Martin regularly appeared on a local television program, Sac & Co. His infomercials were designed to look like an interview. Martin, a licensed chiropractor, portrayed himself as a functional neurologist who practiced metabolic or pastoral medicine, specializing in treating conditions of the thyroid, neuropathy and other health conditions. Many of Martin's patients thought he was a medical doctor.

Martin was prescribing over the counter supplements and then selling them at a significant mark up.

Defendant Pleads to Murder, Sexual Assault of 6-Year-Old Girl

DATE: June 20, 2018

CASE: Juan Rivera & Lisa Burton (Case #15F03256) PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Chris Ore, Special Assault & Child Abuse Unit

Juan Rivera pled guilty to murdering 6-year-old Jadianna and the special circumstance he committed the murder while engaged in committing a lewd or lascivious act on her. He also pled guilty to committing lewd acts with a child under 14 years of age.

Juan Rivera took custody of Jadianna after he convinced her mother to leave Jadianna for medical reasons. On May 27 and 28 of 2015, Rivera sexually assaulted Jadianna and inflicted blunt force trauma on her, which resulted in her death. Rivera then drove to Glenn County, where he burned Jadianna's body.
When he returned to Sacramento, Rivera feigned a seizure before notifying the police that Jadianna had gone missing. Rivera's mother, Lisa Burton, aided her son after the killing by providing him with a stolen vehicle to transport Jadianna's body.

On April 21, 2017, Burton pled guilty to being an accessory after the fact to murder and vehicle theft.
She was sentenced to 3 years in prison.

Rivera will be sentenced to life in prison without the possibility of parole. Sentencing is set for August 17, 2018, at 9:00 a.m. in Department 21 before the Honorable Steve White.

Defendants Convicted of Attempted Murder, Conspiracy

DATE: June 28, 2018

CASE: Devonta MacDonald & Brittany Gibson (Case # 17FE002558)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Allison Dunham, High Risk Domestic Violence Unit

Devonta MacDonald and Brittany Gibson were convicted by a jury of attempted murder and conspiracy to commit murder with allegations of premeditation and deliberation, use of a firearm, discharging of a firearm and causing great bodily injury found true.

On February 7, 2017, the victim was walking home from a convenience store in South Sacramento when it appeared his girlfriend, Brittany Gibson, drove up and pulled over alongside of him. When he approached the car, he saw Devonta MacDonald was driving the car with Gibson in the passenger seat. MacDonald is Gibson's ex-boyfriend. After Gibson nodded her head to signal "yes," MacDonald produced a gun and shot the victim six times before driving off. MacDonald then backed up and shot the victim three more times. The victim survived, but suffered life threatening injuries and was hospitalized for more than a month.

An allegation that MacDonald suffered a prior strike conviction for robbery will be determined at the sentencing hearing.

MacDonald faces a maximum sentence of 50 years to life in prison. Gibson faces a maximum sentence of 25 years to life in prison. Sentencing for both defendants is set for August 24, 2018, in Department 29 before the Honorable Geoffrey Goodman.

This case was prosecuted by the District Attorney's High Risk Domestic Violence Unit through a grant funded by the California Governor's Office of Emergency Services and the Violence Against Women Act.

Artistic endeavors

Dear Dave,

I'm retired, and in the past few years I've taken up painting. This hobby has begun bringing in more money than I expected. I was wondering at what point I should start thinking about separating my art money from my personal finances, and look at officially starting a little business.

-Pat

Dear Pat,

I'd do it now. A hobby that makes money is called a business.

Hearing this is scary to some people, but starting a small business doesn't have to be complicated. You can go to your bank, and using your Social Security number, open a sole proprietor checking account. Title the account with your full name, then DBA — doing business as - and the name of your business.

Dave Says

All your art income goes into that account, and any expenses paid where your painting is concerned comes out of that account. After the income goes in, and the expenses come out, what's left is profit. That's what you'll end up paying taxes on. Also, you'll be required to do quarterly estimates and send them to the IRS if you make more than $640 in a quarter. Always remember to always hold back 25 percent for taxes, too, in a separate savings account just for this purpose.

This is really cool, Pat. I think you're on the verge of being very successful!

—Dave

Follow up for peace of mind

Dear Dave,

I've been following your teachings for a while, and I've noticed you advise people to get things in writing when dealing with creditors. Usually, it seems like you're talking about credit cards and things like that when this is mentioned. I finally made my last student loan payment the other day. Do you think it would be a good idea to request a formal statement saying my student loan debt has been completely paid off?

-Andrea

Dear Andrea,

Following up on paid-off debts is always a good idea. It wouldn't hurt to write, and request formal, written confirmation that everything is paid in full. You can do this through email, so you'll have a record of contact, or you can send a certified letter — return receipt requested — through the postal system. That way, you'll have a record they received the letter and signed for it.

It sounds like you spent a lot of time paying off your student loans. After an experience like that, you don't want to have to deal with greedy or dishonest collectors hounding you years down the road, and no way to prove you're free and clear.

Congratulations on finally kicking your student loan debt to the curb, Andrea! It feels awesome, doesn't it?

Early Prison Releases: June 2018 Update

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA into her house and threatened unreasonable risk of violence (MPG) - As of June 29, 2018, 329 inmates sentenced from Sacramento County have been granted early prison release.

Many of the offenders who are granted early prison release have violent and lengthy criminal histories. District Attorney Anne Marie Schubert feels it is important for the public to be aware of the so-called "nonviolent" offenders being released early from prison into our neighborhoods. Press releases are issued to provide the public with a sampling of recent noteworthy offenders, including:

Gang Member Convicted of Robbery, Possessing Firearm (Montreal Curry -Case #16FE021608) - Curry was a validated Meadowview Bloods criminal street gang member. In 2008, he was convicted of robbery and received a 4-year state prison sentence. In his current 2016 commitment offense, Curry was driving with his girlfriend when police stopped them for a vehicle code violation. Curry handed an American Arms .22 caliber folding revolver to his girlfriend. This firearm was very small, very concealable, and very dangerous. Curry then exited the vehicle, against officer commands, to give his girlfriend a distraction and time to stash the revolver. Curry continued to ignore officer commands until he was handcuffed and detained. The revolver was eventually located during a consent search of his girlfriend's purse. His girlfriend stated that Curry gave the revolver to her to hide because he was on probation at the time. Curry was convicted of being a felon in possession of a firearm and was sentenced to 3 years and 8 months in state prison. Curry's past robbery conviction, his continued desire to arm himself and his association with gangs is a dangerous combination. The Board of Prison Hearings found this inmate to be a nonviolent offender who does not pose an unreasonable risk of violence to the community and granted release on March 29, 2018. Career Criminal With Convictions for Assault with a Deadly Weapon (Joseph Sanchez – Case #17FE001117) - In 2005 and 2009, Sanchez was convicted of assault with a deadly weapon likely to produce great bodily injury. In 2013 and 2014, he was convicted of first-degree residential burglaries. The 2013 burglary conviction is intertwined with his 2009 conviction for the felony assault. In that case, the victim broke up with Sanchez after a brief relationship. During the relationship, Sanchez committed violent acts against her. The victim contacted police and Sanchez's parole agent to inform them of the crimes. As a result of the victim reporting the crimes to authorities, Sanchez broke to kill her. He then proceeded to punch her in the face multiple times and choked her until she was unconscious. Sanchez imprisoned the victim in her own home and she was only able to escape when her friend came over the next morning. The victim's eyes, nose and ears were swollen and bruised from the attack. Sanchez served three years in prison for this attack, but his prison sentence was not the end of the terror for this particular victim. Sanchez's violent behavior towards this victim continued in 2012 after he was released from prison. Sanchez broke into the victim's home again and ransacked it, stole items, urinated on her bed and spray painted on her wall, "[Victim] is a fake ho." He was sentenced to four years in prison for that offense. In his current case, officers stopped Sanchez for driving a stolen vehicle with his 10-month-old daughter in the back seat. He was convicted of vehicle theft and sentenced to 44 months in prison. Sanchez's criminal history includes six felony convictions. He also has multiple misdemeanor convictions, including battery, and parole and probation violations. The Board of Prison Hearings found this inmate to be a nonviolent offender who does not pose an unreasonable risk of violence to the community and granted release on May 22,

Inmate with History of Offenses, Parole and Prison Violations (Joseph Duckett - Case #11F07674) - In 2001, Duckett was convicted of robbery and attempted carjacking and was sentenced to 71 months in state prison. In that case, he accosted a 52-year-old woman at gunpoint and demanded she give him her car keys. Fearing that she would be shot, the victim gave the keys to Duckett. As he attempted to start the victim's car, the victim fled into a bar and called for help. In 2008, Duckett was convicted of possession of a controlled substance. While serving his second prison sentence for this conviction, he was convicted of possessing a weapon at Folsom State Prison in 2011. In that case, Duckett tried to evade a corrections officer and was later found to have an inmate manufactured weapon in his sock. He has also had a number of prison violations, including mutual combat, disobeying orders and conduct that could lead to violence. Duckett has been convicted of a crime or been in state prison every year since 1997 when he was 21 years old. Additional convictions include domestic violence, resisting arrest, carrying a concealed weapon, providing false ID to police and possession of marijuana for sale. The Board of Prison Hearings found this inmate to be a nonviolent offender who does not pose an

to the community and granted release on May 29, 2018.

Early Prison Release Laws & Procedures:

In January 2015, the Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation began a new parole determination process after a federal court ordered California to reduce prison overcrowding. As a result, inmates characterized as "nonviolent second-strikers" (NVSS) became eligible for early parole. In November 2016, Proposition 57 was then passed with the promise that "nonviolent" inmates who "turn their lives around" in prison could also earn early parole under a new "nonviolent parole review"

Qualifying NVSS and NVPR inmates must not currently be serving a sentence for a crime legally categorized as a violent felony and must not be required to register as sex offenders. NVSS inmates must have served (or be within 12 months of serving) only 50 percent of their sentence, while NVPR inmates may be paroled after serving the base term for the principal offense and may earn additional conduct credits.

The Board of Prison Hearings (BPH) determines whether NVSS or NVPR offenders would pose an unreasonable risk of violence to the community based on a paper review of prior criminal history, facts of the current commitment offense, behavior in prison, rehabilitation efforts, whether the inmate has any medical condition which might affect the ability to re-offend, and written statements.

Unlike parole hearings where the prosecution, defense attorney, and victim may appear - there is no public hearing for these BPH administrative reviews. Additionally, no evidence-based risk assessment is conducted prior to consideration of early release to indicate an inmate's safety risk.

The Sacramento County District Attorney's Office takes an active role in evaluating NVSS and NVPR cases. For inmates who appear to pose a danger to the public, the office writes opposition letters to BPH with an overview of the inmate's criminal history and current commitment offense, and an opinion on the public safety risk if an inmate is granted early release. NVPR cases are especially concerning since prosecutors are denied access to records of the inmate's behavior behind bars, which is critical to rehabilitation, and do not have a right to appeal an early parole decision.

Information about more of these inmates can be found on the Early Prison Releases webpage at www.sacda.org/ early-prison-releases.
