Turn Up the Music

Kiwanis and Rio Americano Jam for Jazz

Story and photos by Susan Maxwell Skinner

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Duke Ellington and Count Basie riffs rang through Rio Americano High School campus last week as junior musicians took part in the Wayne Reimers Jazz Festival. The event began 36 years ago to showcase middle and high school bands from San Juan School District.

Aged from 12 to 18, young jazzers performed in 12 ensembles. Host school Rio Americano presented six bands. After performances, each group was coached by professional clinicians Dyne Eiffertsen, Joe Mazzaferro and Craig Faniani. A former Rio Americano instructor, Faniani, helped Carmichael music teacher Wayne Reimers establish the festival in 1982. Audience attendance is free to the public and students' families.

The event is sponsored by San Juan School District and the Carmichael Kiwanis. Club members donate $3,500 annually in scholarships for Camp Winthers Music Camp near Soda Springs. The Club also provides $10,000 yearly to visual and performing arts. Through the jazz festival, a music camp scholarship is donated to each participating band.

"Back in 1982, Craig Faniani I saw a need to spotlight San Juan District jazz bands in a non-competitive situation," explains Wayne Reimers (84). "The festival gives them a chance to have fun, to learn and to improve their skills." ★

New Area Code Overlay Creating Big Headache

Beginning February 10, 2018, callers in our area must use 1 + 916 + 7-digit dialing procedure for all local calls.

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - In the 916 area code, the California Public Utilities Commission (CPUC) will add a new 279 area code for new phone lines starting March 10. However, before that new area code goes into effect, beginning February 10, 2018, callers in our area must use 1 + 916 + 7-digit dialing procedure for all local calls. Callers that do not use the new dialing procedure will find that their calls cannot be completed and a recording will instruct them to hang up and dial again.

The CPUC says dialing 1 + 916 + 7-digit telephone number does not change what a call costs and does not mean that a call is a toll or long distance call. Calling areas and rates will not change - what is a local call now will remain a local call. Calls to 911, as well as 211 and 311 will not be affected, and will continue to be dialed with 3 digits.

The area code overlay will primarily affect the greater Sacramento area, which includes parts of El Dorado, Solano, Sutter, Yolo, Placer, and Sacramento Counties. For more information, please visit the CPUC website. ★

Getting Work Ready

Foster Youth Job Shadow Day Prepares Students for the Real Thing

Story by Jacqueline Fox

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - For a foster youth in high school, nothing can create a clearer pathway to success as they exit school and the foster care system than having some form of preparation for life on their own.

At the top of the list of areas that could arguably be deemed the most important is work-readiness, including some form of direct, hands-on exposure to various potential career opportunities.

To that end, the San Juan Unified School District's Foster Youth Services program will be holding its annual Foster Youth Job Shadow Day Friday, February 9th. This year, 16 participating employers across the Sacramento region, including CBS Radio, SMUD, Nissan of Sacramento and Carmichael-based Mateo's Pizza & Bistro, will host 56 youth for a day of job-readiness education, up close and personal.

"This is a great way for students who are in foster care to obtain knowledge and information about various possible careers as they prepare for their final days in school and, ultimately, exiting out of the foster care system," said Kamika

Hebbert, SJUSD's Foster Youth Services Youth Employment and Independent Living Coordinator.

SJUSD Foster Youth Services in Carmichael is one of the four original "Core District Foster Youth Programs" in California. It works in collaboration with Twin Rivers USD, Sac City USD, Elk Grove USD and the Sacramento County Independent Living Program (ILP), a federally funded entity, which assists current and former foster youth between the ages of 16 and 21 with their goals to achieve self-sufficiency prior to and after exiting the foster care system.

This is the fifth year SJUSD Foster Youth Services has offered foster youth students across the district the opportunity to shadow working professionals in a range of careers from tech to back-of-house culinary operations.

The Foster Youth Program, explains Hebbert, was launched in 1973. In addition to the Job

How Uncle Sam Lauanders Marijuana Money

Commentary
by Ellen Brown

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)
- In a blatant example of "do as I say, not as I do," the US government is profiting handsomely by accepting marijuana cash in the payment of taxes while imposing huge penalties on banks for accepting it as deposits. Onerous reporting requirements are driving small local banks to sell out to Wall Street. Congress needs to harmonize federal with state law.

Thirty states and the District of Columbia currently have laws broadly legalizing marijuana in some form. The herb has been shown to have significant therapeutic value for a wide range of medical conditions, including cancer, Alzheimer's disease, multiple sclerosis, epilepsy, glaucoma, lung disease, anxiety, muscle spasms, hepatitis C, inflammatory bowel disease, and arthritis pain. The community of Americans who rely on legal medical marijuana was estimated to be 2.6 million people in 2016 and includes a variety of mainstream constituency groups like veterans, senior citizens, cancer survivors, and parents of epileptic children. Unlike patented pharmaceuticals, which are now the leading cause of death from drug overdose, there have been no recorded deaths from marijuana overdose in the US. By comparison, alcohol causes 30,000 deaths annually, and prescription drugs taken as directed are estimated to kill 100,000 Americans per year.

Under federal law, however, marijuana remains a Schedule I Controlled Substance – a "deadly dangerous drug with no medical use and high potential for abuse" – and its possession remains a punishable offense. On the presidential campaign trail, Donald Trump said the issue of marijuana legalization "should be up to the states," continuing the "hands off" policy established under President Obama. Under the 2013 Cole Memorandum, the Department of Justice said it would not prosecute individuals and companies complying with robust and well-enforced state legalization programs. But on January 4th, Attorney General Jeff Sessions rescinded that memo and gave federal prosecutors the authority to pursue marijuana cases at their own discretion, even in places where the herb is legal under state law. The action has made banks even more afraid to take marijuana cash, which can be prosecuted as illegal "money laundering," an offense that can incur stiff criminal penalties.

The Government Has "Unclean Hands"

As explained by Dr. Richard Rahn, author of The End of Money and the Struggle for Financial Privacy:

Money laundering is generally understood to be the practice of taking ill-gotten gains and moving them through a sequence of bank accounts so they ultimately look like the profits from legitimate activity. Institutions, individuals, and even governments who are believed to be aiding and abetting the practice of money laundering can be indicted and convicted, even though they may be completely unaware that the money being transferred with their help was of criminal origin.

The law has focused on banks, but all sorts of businesses accept money without asking where it came from or being required to report "suspicious activity." As Rahn observes, even governments can be indicted and convicted for money laundering. Strictly construed (as Attorney General Sessions insists when interpreting the law), that means the US government itself could be indicted. In fact the US government is the largest launderer of marijuana cash in the nation. The IRS accepts this tainted money in the payment of taxes, turning it into "clean" money; and it is not an unwitting accomplice to the crime. Estimates are that marijuana business owners across the U.S. will owe $2.8 billion in taxes to the federal government in 2018. The government makes a massive profit off the deal, snatching up to 70 percent of the proceeds of the reporting businesses, as opposed to the more typical rate of 30 percent. It does this by branding marijuana businesses criminal enterprises which are not entitled to deduct their costs when reporting their income. This is not only a clear case of the unequal protection of the laws but is a clear admission by the government that it is knowingly accepting illegal funds. The government is a principal beneficiary of a business the government itself has made illegal.

Under those circumstances, both marijuana businesses and banks should be able to raise the "unclean hands" defense. As summarized in Kendall-Jackson Winery, Ltd. v. Superior Court (1999), 76 Cal. App.4th 970, 978-79:

The defense of unclean hands arises from the maxim, "He who comes into Equity must come with clean hands." The doctrine demands that a plaintiff act fairly in the matter for which he seeks a remedy. . . . The defense is available in legal as well as equitable actions. . . . The doctrine promotes justice by making a plaintiff answer for his own misconduct in the action. It prevents a wrongdoer from enjoying the fruits of his transgression.

The government is enjoying the fruits of money it considers "dirty." It has unclean hands, a defense against prosecuting others for the same crime.

Should "Money Laundering" Even Be a Crime?

In an article titled "Why the War on Money Laundering Should Be Aborted," Dr. Rahn asks whether money laundering should even be a crime. It became a criminal activity in the US only in 1986, and in many countries it still is not a crime. Banks operating in the US must now collect and verify customer-provided information, check names of customers against lists of known or suspected terrorists, determine risk levels posed by customers, and report suspicious persons, organizations and transactions. The reporting requirements are so burdensome and expensive that they have caused many smaller banks to sell out to larger banks or close their doors. According to Dr. Rahn:

[I]t has failed to produce the advertised results and, in fact, has not been cost effective, has resulted in wholesale violations of individual civil liberties (including privacy rights), has violated the rights of sovereign governments and peoples, has created new opportunities for criminal activity, and has actually lessened our ability to reduce crime.

. . . Banks are required to supply the government with not only Currency Transaction Reports but also Suspicious Activity Reports. These reports impose huge regulatory costs on banks and require bank employees to operate as police officers. As a result, the total public and private sector costs greatly exceed $10,000,000 per conviction. This whole effort not only does not make any economic sense, but is clearly incompatible with a free society. The anti-money laundering laws allow almost complete prosecutorial discretion.

One small banker complained that banks have been turned into spies secretly reporting to the federal government. If they fail to comply, they can face stiff enforcement actions, whether or not actual money-laundering crimes are alleged. In 2010, one small New Jersey bank pleaded guilty to conspiracy to violate the Bank Secrecy Act and was fined $5 million for failure to file suspicious-activity and cash-transaction reports. Another small New Jersey bank closed its doors after it was hit with $8 million in fines over its inadequate monitoring policies. The cost of compliance and threat of massive fines for not complying have been major factors in the collapse of the community banking sector. The number of community banks has fallen by 40 percent since 1994 and their share of U.S. banking assets has fallen by more than half, from 41 percent to 18 percent.

"Regulation is killing community banks," Treasury Secretary Stephen Mnuchin said at his confirmation hearing in January 2017. If the process is not reversed, he warned, we could "end up in a world where we have four big banks in this country." That would be bad for both jobs and the economy. "I think that we all appreciate the engine of growth is with small and medium-sized businesses," said Mnuchin. "We're losing the ability for small and medium-sized banks to make good loans to small and medium-sized businesses in the community, where they understand those credit risks better than anybody else."

If the goal of the anti-money laundering statutes is to identify and deter criminal activity, strictly enforcing the law could actually backfire in the case of state-legalized marijuana businesses. As noted in a January 9 article in The Daily Beast:

Marijuana businesses have to register and incorporate in states and that puts them on the IRS radar. . . . Sky-high federal taxes on top of state taxes can make it almost impossible to operate a legal business. . . . If the government fails to cut businesses a break, legal marijuana could be sold on the black market to dodge taxes.

On the black market, cash proceeds can be dispersed in a way that avoids banks and makes the money hard either to trace or to tax.

Federal Law Needs to Be Changed

With more than half the states legalizing marijuana for medical purposes, Congress needs to acknowledge the will of the people and remove this natural herb from the Schedule I classification that says it is a deadly dangerous drug with no health benefits. The Tenth Amendment gives the federal government only those powers specifically enumerated in the Constitution, and regulating medical practice is not one of them. Federal courts have held that the federal Controlled Substances Act does not allow the federal government to usurp states' exclusive rights (pursuant to their inherent police powers) to regulate the practice of medicine.

H.R. 1227, the Ending Federal Marijuana Prohibition Act, sponsored by Virginia Republican Thomas Garrett and 15 cosponsors, would remove marijuana from Schedule I and eliminate federal penalties for anyone engaged in marijuana activity in a state where it is legal. Congress just needs to pass it.

In its zeal for eliminating burdensome, costly and ineffective regulations, the Trump administration might also consider lightening the heavy reporting burden that is killing community banks and the local businesses that have traditionally relied on them for affordable credit. On Tuesday, January 16th, a bipartisan coalition of state attorneys general sent a letter to leaders in Congress requesting advancement of legislation such as the Secure and Fair Enforcement (SAFE) Banking Act to "provide a safe harbor" for banks that provide financial products or services to state-legal marijuana businesses. If the government can accept marijuana money in the payment of taxes, banks should be able to accept it to keep track of it and prevent the crimes associated with storing and transporting large sums of cash.

FBI Teen Academy Accepting Applications from High School Juniors

By Sacramento FBI

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Federal Bureau of Investigation (FBI) Sacramento Field Office encourages high school juniors attending class within the 34 counties the office serves to apply to upcoming Spring 2018 FBI Teen Academy. The full-day academy will be held on Friday, March 23, 2018, at FBI Sacramento Field Office headquarters in Roseville, Calif.

Students interested in the exciting, one-day program must log onto the FBI Sacramento Field Office's Community Relations web page to download an application. Students must submit an application package, enclosing a completed application, signed release forms, and an essay—carefully following submission instructions—to be considered. Complete application packages must be received by mail, parcel delivery, or hand delivery at the FBI Sacramento Field Office headquarters no later than 4 p.m. on Thursday, February 22, 2018. Due to the need for original signatures, application packages are not accepted by fax or email.

The FBI Teen Academy offers students a unique view into the FBI and its mission, values, investigations, and partnerships with local, state and federal law enforcement. Discussion topics may include cyber safety, terrorism, active shooter situations, cyber investigations, and civil rights investigations. Activities may include simulated experiences with the FBI's Evidence Response Team, Special Agent Bomb Technicians, and within the Firearms Training System (FATS) room. Students also engage in candid conversations about online communication and its risks as well as lifestyle choices required to be eligible for careers at the FBI with FBI personnel.

"The FBI Teen Academy helps youth better understand how we protect the American people and uphold the constitution. We also share how the decisions they make today may impact education and career options in the future," said Special Agent in Charge Sean Ragan of the FB Sacramento Field Office. "Our goal is to provide students with useful information and valuable experiences they can share with others upon returning to their home and school."

The FBI Teen Academy is open to all high school juniors attending any school—public, private, and home school. No minimum GPA or particular academic path is required. The full-day experience is offered at no charge to students but families may incur travel costs if they live a significant distance away from FBI Sacramento Field Office headquarters. ★

Senator Gaines Receives Perfect Score on Behalf of Small Business

By Betsey Hodges

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Senator Ted Gaines (R-El Dorado) today announced that he has scored 100 percent on the National Federation of Independent Business/California's (NFIB/CA) 2017 Legislative Voting Record for his support of small business. Senator Gaines was one of only 22 state legislators out of the 120 Assembly and Senate members to receive the perfect score.

"As a small business owner myself, I know first-hand the hurdles and burdens California's job creators face every day," said Senator Gaines. "I am committed to generating opportunities for small businesses to thrive, not stifling their growth with excessive taxes and onerous regulations."

NFIB/CA's Voting Record is designed to provide a critical evaluation of a legislator's attitude towards small business. NFIB/CA is the state's leading nonprofit, nonpartisan small business association representing more than 22,000 small and independent businesses in California.

The Voting Record is developed by selecting key bills which would have the most significant impact, either positive or negative, on small businesses. The votes on those bills are then recorded and a percentage is determined for each member of the Assembly and Senate.

The NFIB/CA Voting Record, with descriptions of the bills used in the report, is available at <http://www.nfib.com/california/voting-record/>. ★

California Capital Airshow Recognized with ICAS Pinnacle Gold Award

By Russell Hartley,
City of Rancho Cordova

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The California Capital Airshow has been awarded the International Council of Air Shows (ICAS) Pinnacle Gold Award for its partnership with the City of Rancho Cordova on the #InspireTheFuture campaign – a special effort that provided 3,600 students and parents with free tickets to the 2017 California Capital Airshow. Every school in Rancho Cordova received free airshow tickets, valued at nearly $175,000. And, on Aug. 24, 2017, these tickets were delivered in a memorable and inspiring way—via Blackhawk helicopter.

The 2nd annual Operation #InspireTheFuture kicked off with 1,100 students gathering for an outdoor assembly when they were surprised to see pilots from the California Army National Guard land a UH-60 Blackhawk helicopter at Dave Roberts Community Park to deliver “Top Secret” cargo boxes filled with backpacks containing free Airshow tickets.

“We are proud and grateful to be recognized with the California Capital Airshow for the City’s efforts in delivering free Airshow tickets to thousands of students in our community,” said Cyrus Abhar, City

Manager of Rancho Cordova. “We knew that Operation #InspireTheFuture was a success as soon as we saw the faces of students light up as pilots landed a Blackhawk helicopter to deliver free tickets for the Airshow. It is certainly something we were excited to be a part of, and we are happy the students enjoyed it and were inspired by it.”

The California Capital Airshow attracts over 100,000 spectators to the City for a heart-pounding lineup of performances and entertainment that the whole family can enjoy. The Airshow teaches students about Rancho Cordova’s military history, introduces students to STEM (science, technology, engineering and math) through interactive exhibits, and provides an up-close opportunity to experience the thrill of flight.

The purpose of the Pinnacle Awards program is to maintain and expand ICAS’s efforts in ensuring that innovative thinking, fresh approaches, and creative solutions receive the attention and publicity that they deserve. ★

DGS to Receive Over 50 Percent of its Electricity from SMUD Solar Energy Resources

By CA DGS and SMUD

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The California Department of General Services (DGS) and SMUD today announced an agreement for DGS to receive over 50 percent of its electricity needs in SMUD’s service territory via a 20-year Large Commercial SolarShare® agreement. The SolarShares program is a community solar project—a series of solar generating facilities shared by multiple community members, allowing the customer to avoid developing and maintaining its own onsite solar facilities. This agreement is the largest community solar project of its kind in the nation—creating enough energy to power about 8,200 homes per year (about 74 gigawatt hours).

The electricity from this agreement will be used to power a variety of DGS properties in Sacramento County and will help bring many facilities to zero net energy (ZNE) once they meet energy efficiency targets. Specific buildings included in this agreement include those that house the California Energy Commission, Employment Development Department, California State Personnel Board and many more.

“This partnership is an important next step in achieving Governor Brown’s ambitious climate change goals,” said DGS Director Daniel C. Kim. “The SolarShares agreement allows California to demonstrate its leadership in greening state operations, which reduces utility costs and helps ensure a brighter future for all.”

With this agreement, DGS will help mitigate the production of approximately 30,000 metric tons of greenhouse gas emissions each year. That’s equivalent to removing more than 11,500 gas-powered vehicles from the road. The agreement is also projected to save DGS an estimated $22 million in energy costs over the next 20 years.

“DGS’ actions will lead directly to reduced greenhouse gas emissions and improved regional air quality,” said SMUD CEO and General Manager Arlen Orchard.

“They’re a fantastic partner and we appreciate their vision and dedication to the health and well-being of our community.”

SMUD’s Large Commercial SolarShares program allows large businesses in the Sacramento region to purchase solar energy directly from SMUD. DGS is already a SolarShares customer, receiving about half of the solar electricity generated by SMUD’s Rancho Seco solar farm. This new agreement expands DGS’ SolarShares participation approximately sixfold.

NOTICE TO READERS
 California law requires that contractors taking jobs that total $500 or more (labor and/or materials) be licensed by the Contractors State License Board. State law also requires that contractors include their license numbers on all advertising. Check your contractor's status at www.cslb.ca.gov or 800-321-CSLB (2752). Unlicensed persons taking jobs that total less than $500 must state in their advertisements that they are not licensed by the Contractors State License Board.
DISCLAIMER
 Be wary of out of area companies. Check with the local Better Business Bureau before you send any money for fees or services. Read and understand any contracts before you sign. Shop around for rates.

River Cats 2018 National Anthem Submission Dates Announced

Submissions Will be Accepted Via email Between February 5 and February 9

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)
- The Sacramento River Cats are excited to announce dates for the 2018 National Anthem auditions. Those interested in performing the National Anthem at a 2018 River Cats game will be asked to submit an audition demo between Monday, February 5 and Friday, February 9.

During this week-long submission period, fans must submit their demos to promotions@rivercats.com in either .mp3 or YouTube format. Submissions received after the February 9 deadline will not be considered.

All artists – whether soloists, groups, or instrumentalists – are encouraged to submit a demo. Full demo and submission details are available online at rivercats.com and below.

Once all demos have been reviewed, the River Cats will invite the top 50 submissions for a live audition at Raley Field. Those selected will be contacted no later than Monday, February 12 to set up a live audition date and time. Due to the number of submissions, only those selected for a live audition will be contacted.

Audition Demo Guidelines

- Acapella version (no pre-recorded background music)

- Star Spangled Banner in full
- Must have clear, consistent, and correct lyrical performance
- Full performance must be under 90 seconds

Submission Guidelines

- Email an .mp3 or YouTube link of your performance of the National Anthem to promotions@rivercats.com
- Subject line should read: 2018 National Anthem Demo
- Email must include: Full name, phone, and email ★

*The initial Annual Percentage Rate (APR) is currently 4.25% for a new Home Equity Line of Credit (HELOC), and is fixed for the first 5 years of the loan which is called the draw period. After the initial 5 year period, the APR can change once based on the value of an Index and Margin. The Index is the weekly average yield on U.S. Treasury Securities adjusted to a constant maturity of 10 years and the margin is 3.50%. The current APR for the repayment period is 6.125%. The maximum APR that can apply any time during your HELOC is 10%. A qualifying transaction consists of the following conditions: (1) the initial APR assumes a maximum HELOC of $150,000, and a total maximum Loan-to-Value (LTV) of 70% including the new HELOC and any existing 1st Deed of Trust loan on your residence; (2) your residence securing the HELOC must be a single-family home that you occupy as your primary residence; (3) if the 1st Deed of Trust loan is with a lender other than El Dorado Savings Bank, that loan may not exceed $200,000 and may not be a revolving line of credit. Additional property restrictions and requirements apply. All loans are subject to a current appraisal. Property insurance is required and flood insurance may be required. Rates, APR, terms and conditions are subject to change without notice. Other conditions apply. A $475 early closure fee will be assessed if the line of credit is closed within three years from the date of opening. An annual fee of $50 will be assessed on the first anniversary of the HELOC and annually thereafter during the draw period. Ask for a copy of our "Fixed Rate Home Equity Line of Credit Disclosure Notice" for additional important information. Other HELOC loans are available under different terms.

Keep Big Government Out of Medicare Drug Pricing Negotiations

Commentary
by Sally C. Pipes

The National Academies of Sciences, Engineering, and Medicine (NASEM) recently released a report urging Congress to allow federal bureaucrats to negotiate Medicare drug prices directly with pharmaceutical companies. Currently, private insurance companies conduct these negotiations. The Academies believe the federal government could use its bulk purchasing power to obtain lower drug prices for Medicare beneficiaries.

NASEM is wrong. Giving the government negotiating authority would stifle innovation and reduce 42 million Medicare beneficiaries' access to medicine.

Congress created Medicare's "Part D" prescription drug benefit in 2003 to help seniors and disabled Americans afford their medications. Private insurers put together and sell these prescription drug plans, and the government subsidizes seniors' monthly premiums.

The program's "non-interference" clause strictly prohibits the government from negotiating drug prices with manufacturers and pharmacies. Congress believed, correctly, that private insurers could offer seniors a wider range of medicines at lower prices if federal bureaucrats were kept at bay.

These insurers have no choice but to aggressively negotiate with pharmaceutical manufacturers for discounts. If they don't, a rival insurer that obtained discounted drugs could use the savings to offer customers plans with lower deductibles, premiums, or co-payments.

This free-market competition has worked wonders for taxpayers and beneficiaries.

In its first decade of implementation, Part D cost $349 billion less than the Congressional Budget Office projected. Beneficiaries can buy a 2018 Part D plan for an average monthly premium of $33.50 -- a $1.20 decrease compared to 2017 plans. Beneficiaries in states like New York, Pennsylvania, and Ohio will enjoy premiums as low as $12.60 per month.

NASEM claims that government negotiators could drive drug prices even lower. That's contrary to what the CBO has been saying for more than 10 years. The non-partisan office explains that merely giving the government the ability to negotiate prices would "have a negligible effect on federal spending."

The CBO cautions that the only way government officials could lower drug prices is by refusing to cover medicines deemed too expensive.

Our veterans have experienced this rationing first-hand. The government negotiates drug prices for the Veterans Health Administration. The program's list of covered drugs excludes nearly one out of every five of the top 200 drugs included in Part D plans. Last year, the VHA only covered three out of 25 newly-approved, first-in-class therapies. The average Part D plan covered 20 of these medications.

If our government can't provide adequate drug coverage for the 9 million veterans in the VHA system, it cannot be trusted to do so for the 42 million Americans enrolled in Part D plans.

NASEM also believes that federal negotiations wouldn't discourage "the continuing development of new drugs."

Wrong again. It costs more than $2.6 billion to develop a new drug. If pharmaceutical companies weren't sure Part D plans would cover newly created medicines, they'd hesitate to invest in risky, high-cost research.

Nearly nine in 10 Part D patients are happy with their prescription drug coverage. This approval rating would plummet if the federal government took the place of private insurers and excluded the latest, most effective drugs from coverage.

Privately-negotiated Part D plans deliver low premiums and a diverse range of choices to beneficiaries. There's no need for Congress to fix a system that isn't broken.

Six 2017 River Cats Earn non-Roster Invites to Major League Spring Training

Familiar Faces Highlight List of Players in Big League Camp, Which Kicks Off February 13

By Sacramento River Cats

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The San Francisco Giants have extended non-roster invitations for Major League Spring Training to 16 players, club Senior Vice President and General Manager Bobby Evans announced Thursday. Featured in the group are six River Cats players from the 2017 season.

Left-handed starting pitcher Andrew Suarez will be making his second straight appearance in big-league camp, having been part of a group of 28 that received invites in 2017. After being called up from Double-A Richmond, Suarez made 13 starts for the River Cats with a 3.55 ERA and 80 strikeouts in 88.2 innings pitched.

Right-handed starting pitcher Jose Flores will be making his first Major League Spring Training appearance for the Giants. Like Suarez, Flores was called up from the Richmond Flying Squirrels, making 12 starts with a 4.04 ERA in a River Cats uniform.

Infielder Orlando Calixte will be making his second trip to major-league camp, though last year's invite came as a result of being on the 40-man roster. The Dominican Republic native played in 42 games for the River Cats with a .286 batting average and .500 slugging percentage before being recalled by San Francisco, where he secured his first major-league hit in a 2-for-5 performance on May 30 against the Washington Nationals.

Catcher Trevor Brown will be in big-league camp for the third straight year, but it will be his first as a non-roster invitee. Brown began the 2017 season on the disabled list but returned and played in 58 games for the River Cats.

The Giants' No. 1 ranked prospect, according to MLB.com, outfielder Chris Shaw earned his first non-roster invite. The left-handed power bat from Boston College clubbed a team-leading 18 home runs and 25 doubles in 88 games in Sacramento.

Outfielder Steven Duggar's invite to major-league camp is his second consecutive. The Clemson product missed nearly the first three months of the 2017 season with a hip flexor injury, eventually making his way to Sacramento where he played the final 13 games at Triple-A.

The other 10 players who received a non-roster invite are: RHP Tyler Cyr, RHP Dereck Rodriguez, RHP Jose Valdez, RHP Madison Younginer, C Justin O'Conner, C Hector Sanchez, INF Chase D'Arnaud, INF Alen Hanson, 1B Kyle Jensen, and INF Josh Rutledge. ★

Oversight Needed of Delta Tunnel, High Speed Rail

Commentary by Ken Cooley, California Assemblyman, 8th District

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Tucked away in a book in my Capitol office is a letter addressed to Kenneth William Cooley whose return address is stated simply as The White House. A 4 cent stamp on the envelope shows a Mercury space capsule floating above a luminous Earth with the words "US Man in Space." Its cancellation mark shows it was mailed on May 4th 1962 in Washington, D.C. I had written President John F. Kennedy at the age of seven, and received that response shortly after I turned eight.

As a child, I was inspired that President Kennedy dreamed big dreams and was bold-minded as an innovator. As an adult, I now know the ensuing US space program reflects his willingness to ask "what might be?"

In my adult life, both as a founder of the City of Rancho Cordova, with 10 years on its City Council and two terms as Mayor, and now as a State Assemblyman, I find another John Kennedy quote relevant almost every day.

"Our responsibility," Kennedy said, "is one of decision, for to govern is to choose."

While I still agree that "to govern is to choose," my Ken Cooley corollary is that we must always know the available choices.

To strengthen public confidence in government, we in government need to make good choices that use tax dollars wisely. Public stewardship is more than well-managed programs, however. Programs themselves must tackle the right priorities. It is the State Legislature's job, as a co-equal branch of government, to conduct vigorous oversight and monitoring of state agencies so multi-million and billion dollar state projects don't balloon out of control or get spent on the wrong goals.

Recent news makes me very pleased with my early opposition to two expensive projects which use dollars I believe would be put to better use to strengthen our schools, early childhood education and other critical social and physical infrastructure needs of our state.

These are the High Speed Rail (HSR/Bullet Train) project that I opposed when a key vote came up in 2013 to allocate one quarter of cap and trade dollars to it in a continuing appropriation and also the twin tunnels proposal. Concerning the tunnels, I believe they place at risk the waters of San Francisco Bay, which is the greatest estuary system on the west coast of North and South America. Teeming with millions of fish and all the waterfowl which use the Pacific Flyway depend on those waters, just as you and I, and our children and grandchildren do.

Diverting scarce public dollars to the bullet train and the twin delta tunnels is a bad choice.

When passed by the voters in 2008 before the severity of the most recent recession became plain, the entire High Speed Rail project was promised to cost $40 billion. By 2016 it had climbed to $64 billion and now the latest cost estimate for the first segment has jumped nearly 80%, up to $10.6 billion. "The worst-case scenario," a financial consultant recently said "has happened."

In addition, because the project has yet to tackle reaching the more populous Bay Area and Los Angeles, the financial estimates will likely worsen.

Given our state's challenges, I will continue my opposition to giving a big new blank check to the consistently over-budget bullet train. That would be putting good money after bad and will actually prevent the state's ability to address other key needs. Like my original 2013 "NO vote" on the HSR continuing appropriation, I will not support major new funding now.

The second state initiative fraught with problems and in swift need of additional oversight is the "Water Fix" project, which includes the construction of twin tunnels (40 feet in diameter and 35 miles long) underneath the Sacramento-San Joaquin River Delta and estuary.

Much of California's water supply passes through the Delta's "gateway" into the waters of San Francisco Bay. Decades of pumping water from this critical estuary to southern California has significantly contributed to its declining ecosystem, placing many species at risk of extinction. Many environmentalists say the tunnels would bring even more harm.

Environmental issues aside, the project is on shaky ground economically. The estimated $17 billion project was slated to be funded by water agencies that would benefit from Delta sourced water supplies. However, not a single member of the federal water management Central Valley Project has agreed to support or contribute to WaterFix. Further, a 2017 federal audit said $50 million in taxpayer funds were used improperly to subsidize the San Joaquin Irrigation District for their part in helping plan WaterFix.

The administration reportedly is considering scaling the twin tunnels down to a single tunnel, a dramatic change that will require more dollars for redesign and environmental studies and I continue to oppose spending that money at this time.

It is still very much true, as John F. Kennedy stated, that to govern is to choose, and I believe we need to focus on choices that will bring better benefits to all California children, communities, and our future. ★

VR Research Raises Troubling Questions

By Noah Howard

"This was our rig ten years ago," said the research technician, nonchalantly slapping a clunky headset that resembles a prop from The Matrix into the hands of a surprised student. "It cost forty thousand dollars," he continued, as students passed the metallic monstrosity from hand to hand, "and now we use a consumer headset that costs five hundred and does the same thing better."

I was visiting Stanford's Virtual Human Interaction Lab, a state-of-the-art fully-immersive room that, at its core, runs off of an everyday computer and an HTC Vive virtual reality (VR) headset. I was being given a sneak peek behind the lab's research, which not only reaffirms the mind-bending illusions of VR, but explores its powerful effects on human behaviour. Subjects who were made to cut down a virtual tree were more likely to conserve paper, those who were immersed in a dying coral reef were more likely to retain information about ocean acidification, and people who were given superpowers and told to save a digital child were more likely to come to a real person's aid in the aftermath of the virtual experience.

The evidence seems clear: VR is possibly the most influential artistic medium currently in existence because of its innate ability to quickly change how people think and behave.

Right now most of the research explores the potential benefits of such influence, increases in charitable donations, environmental awareness, and general good citizenship, but as one fellow student of mine pointed out, couldn't it just as easily be used for ill?

It's a question that the research is yet to adequately explore; considering there is already some observed correlation between violent video games and short-term increases in aggression, how might the average person react to a fully immersive virtual experience?

The researcher remarked that, without the fourth wall of a single screen, he found violent VR experiences extremely unpleasant; after all, violence in real life is horrific far more often than it is fun. Nevertheless, one person's experience can't outweigh the fact that a definite market for extremely violent and brutal VR experiences will develop as the more people get their hands on VR technology.

Right now most popular VR experiences dodge this problem by seriously pulling their punches. Few VR games or experiences are realistically violent, and the ones that are refrain from being as "in your face" as they obviously could have been. But the question remains on whether the moral onus on the consumers not to be influenced by violent VR, or on VR content creators to not make it in the first place.

The evidence seems clear: VR is possibly the most influential artistic medium currently in existence because of its innate ability to quickly change how people think and behave.

Despite its potential problems, our first instinct should be to place the responsibility on the consumers, not on the creators, as we do with every other art form. Most headsets come with a warning that VR should not be used by children under 12, and if those warnings are kept as prominent as they are today, we can hopefully restrict the VR audience largely to people who are capable of telling truth from fiction and won't take VR's potential negative effects to heart. Nevertheless, as this powerful new medium continues to emerge the question of how it could damage us is arguably more important than the exploring possible benefits. If finding research subjects proves problematic, we can turn once again to Stanford's Virtual Human Interaction Lab. College students are always looking for a thrill, and VR could prove to be the adventure of a lifetime.

sign a rent-to-own home deal follow through and become homeowners.

When it comes to real estate deals, the only thing I would consider — other than an outright cash purchase — is leasing with an option to buy. That's different than rent-to-own, because in a rent-to-own situation you've committed to purchase. On a lease with an option to buy deal, you have the right to purchase, but not the obligation.

Josh, most of the people who use rent-to-own deals are not in good financial shape. They're deeply in debt, and they have no money. Rent-to-own ensures they'll stay there.

Disability insurance elimination period?

Dear Dave,

I'm looking at long-term disability insurance policies. What does the term "elimination period" mean?

—Glen

Dear Glen,

The elimination period is, by definition, the time from the point you're declared disabled by a doctor until you begin receiving payments from the insurance company. If you have a 90-day elimination period, it will be about that long from the time you're officially declared disabled until you see your first check.

I recommend 90- to 180-day elimination periods, depending on what kind of financial shape you're in, and how much money you have stashed away in savings, investments, and your emergency fund. If you have a fully-loaded emergency fund of three to six months of expenses — and you have little or no debt, plus other money stashed away — you should be able to carry a policy with a longer elimination period.

And remember, the longer the elimination period, the lower your premiums will be. Hope this helps, Glen!

Getting Work Ready

Shadow Day and work-readiness programs, the Foster Youth Services of SJUSD also provides foster youth with support through advocacy, academic counseling, tutoring, educational assessment, mentoring and links to community services, as well as crisis counseling.

Youth in foster care homes between 16 and 18 are eligible for the SJUSD programs and services and programs during the time they are in foster care placement and after emancipation from the system.

Most participants in the Job Shadow Day program and others are referred by social workers, probation officers, foster parents, other county ILP coordinators or by self-referral. A social worker is assigned to each participant in ILP for case management and works with youth to craft and develop a Transitional Independent Living Skill plan.

Services available to help foster youth prepare for adulthood include independent life skill classes, education resources, assistance with applications for student financial aid, housing resources, training on money management, decision making, building self-esteem and advocacy.

The vocational training piece offered through the Job Shadow Day, and other programs at SJUSD, serves to support the goal of ensuring the district's foster youth is provided with the skills needed to become an independent, productive member of their community.

Whether a student has a goal to pursue a career in public policy or policing, baking or banking, the best way for them to get a sense of whether a career is something they'd enjoy is to watch or, in this case, shadow someone who is already doing the job.

“This is a great way for students who are in foster care to obtain knowledge and information about various possible careers as they prepare for their final days in school and, ultimately, exiting out of the foster care system.”

Kamika Hebbert
SJUSD'S FOSTER YOUTH SERVICES YOUTH EMPLOYMENT AND INDEPENDENT LIVING COORDINATOR

“The programs we provide through the San Juan Unified Foster Youth Services are multi-focused, but they all serve to help foster youth prepare themselves living independently and finding success in their career and educational goals,” said Hebbert.

Matteo's Pizza and Bistro has been participating in the Job Shadow Day since 2014, that's four years running now that the Carmichael eatery has been supporting foster youth in preparation for their future. This year will be Tynisha M.'s second year participating in the job shadow day event and her second time at Matteo's, where she is getting hands-on exposure to back-of-house operations in a real restaurant.

“It's the amazing businesses like Matteo's who are helping students like Tynisha, who has designs on pursuing the culinary field, find a way to break in and plan ahead for their futures,” said Hebbert.

On Feb. 9, all 56 students enrolled in the Job Shadow day will begin the adventure by convening for a kick-off breakfast where they will be given the details of their work site responsibilities. Then, they will each spend roughly three hours of onsite job shadowing time at various employers' locations. After “work,” there's a lunch and then the day will culminate in a slide show and group reflection on the day and future goals.

For participants like Tynisha, having the experience of learning the ins and outs of a particular business operation before she starts actually heading in that career direction ensures an optimal chance of success.

“The purpose of the shadowing is to give them first-hand experience to see may or may not be a good fit,” Hebbert said. “In Tynisha's case, it's already pretty clear she's in her element at Matteo's.” ★

Why 3/4 of Homesellers Do Not Get the Price They Want for Their Carmichael Home

Carmichael - A new report has just been released which reveals 7 costly mistakes that most homeowners make when selling their home, and a 9 Step System that can help you sell your home fast and for the most amount of money.

This industry report shows clearly how the traditional ways of selling homes have become increasingly less and less effective in today's market. The fact of the matter is that fully three quarters of homesellers don't get what they want for their homes and become disillusioned and - worse - financially disadvantaged when they put their homes on the market.

As this report uncovers, most homesellers make 7 deadly mistakes that cost them literally thousands of dollars. The good news is that each and every one of these mistakes is entirely preventable. In answer to this issue, industry insiders have prepared a free special report entitled "The 9 Step System to Get Your Home Sold Fast and For Top Dollar".
