SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Effie Yeaw Nature Center has bid farewell to two of its most senior staffers. Executives Paul Tebbel and Betty Cooper recently retired after long careers in natural history education.

Cooper (63) served the center for 23 years. When it lost county funding and settled under the wing of the American River Natural History Association in 2010, Cooper assumed a critical financial development role. "ARNHA took a giant leap of faith in taking us on," she considered. "Continuing our operations required tripling their fundraising. We all realized how much people loved this place. For more than 40 years, it's provided education and tranquil space where you really can connect with wildlife."

Cooper's greatest success was in partnership with the Sacramento Fine Arts Center. The two non-profits came up with an "Art Where Wild Things Are" gala. In nine years of sipping wine and auctioning art, the event has become the most glamorous night of the Carmichael calendar. "Compared to our more family-oriented programs, this gala is elegant," explains its organizer. "We sell out almost every year. It's great to see well-known artists, philanthropists and elected officials in our beautiful preserve. Fine food, fine art and fine people blend delightfully."

Paul Tebbel (63) joined the Effie Yeaw staff in 2011. The new executive director's biggest challenge was managing the transition of a County facility to a nonprofit. "We started from scratch in creating staffing and accounting systems," he explains. "Most importantly, we had to rebuild public confidence. Many supporters thought we would close. Our job was to convince them we were still in business. Thankfully, our members came back and provided the support that keeps us thriving. We would not have survived without hardworking ARNHA volunteers and our staff. Betty Cooper has been a fantastic co-leader. There's nothing she can't do."

The retirees' roles will be taken over Torey Byington, who previously directed a nature facility in Wayland, Michigan. Both Cooper and Tebbel plan to volunteer for future Nature Center projects. "Effie Yeaw and its programs are a great mission," said Cooper. "The staff and volunteers are like family. That's not something you can walk away from."

Contracts Awarded for Gaps in Homeless Services

Sacramento County Special Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG)

- The Board of Supervisors on February 6th, authorized the County Department of Human Assistance (DHA) to enter into an agreement with Wind Youth Services (WYS) for $380,000 for rehousing and supportive services for youth who are homeless or at risk of homelessness; and $160,000 to Sacramento Self Help Housing (SSHH) for navigation and rehousing services for unsheltered homeless populations in unincorporated areas of Sacramento County. Services will run February through October 2018 and may be extended further. In July 2017, the Board approved funding for the implementation of four County homeless initiatives to improve the County's response to homelessness in Sacramento County. The initiatives provide for a range of services, including shelter, transitional housing, and permanent housing services specialized for a variety of households: families, individuals, and those experiencing long-term homelessness. Currently those initiatives are all in various stages of implementation.

In September, the Board approved an additional $540,000 in funding to address service gaps in the homeless initiatives and to serve vulnerable subpopulations. DHA released a Request for Proposals seeking services for families, individuals, transitional aged youth, ages 18 to 24, and unsheltered homeless in unincorporated areas of the County. The County received five responses to the RFP.

Local Small Business Resource Workshop Provides Answers

By MPG Staff

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Community leaders, business owners and entrepreneurs gathered at the Carmichael Park on Friday morning, February 9th for Assemblyman Ken Cooley's Small Business Resource Workshop.

The workshop, dedicated to reaching out to and assisting small business owners and entrepreneurs from around the community, is a free annual seminar and networking event aimed at boosting local business and the local economy. It was a good turnout from the community, as many people came not only prepared to listen and learn, but with plenty of questions as well – getting the answers and direction they need to be successful.

"It's good to see people active in the community and able to get the help they need," said Tiffany Detinne, owner of Detinne CPA. "In my business I see a lot of businesses fail because they don't get help. It made me aware that there are a lot of services and places out there to go and get that help."

Representatives from the State, County and local nonprofits were on hand, answering questions and providing a variety of resources: The County of Sacramento discussed how small businesses can apply for procurement contracts with the County. The Small Business Development Center provided tips and resources on how small businesses can create an effective strategy, discover ways to generate revenue and grow their bottom line. California Capital Financial Corporation spoke about their services and on how to generate more business, find and identify business opportunities, reach more customers and build customer relationships, and business financing.

Controlling the Chaos When Disaster Strikes

Verizon's Emergency Response Center Has Connectivity Covered

Story and photos by Jacqueline Fox

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Likely, as you watched recent television or streaming images of emergency rescue operations following the devastating fires and subsequent mudslides in Southern California, for example, you gave little thought to how first-responders on the ground, in the air and elsewhere were keeping the lines of communication flowing as they scrambled into gear to save lives and prepare for recovery operations.

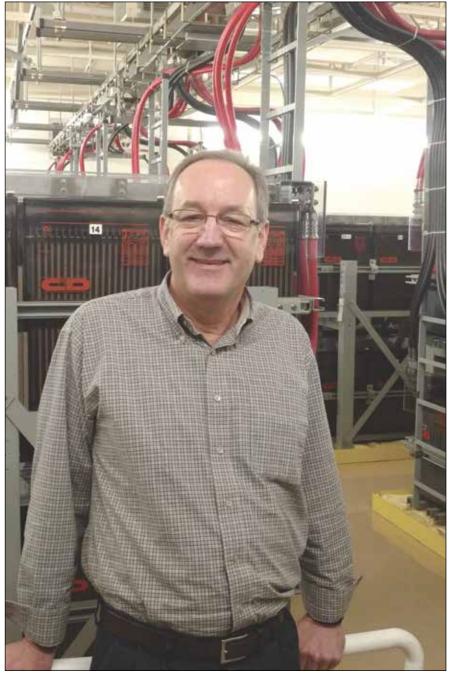

Behind the scenes, mobile carriers such as Verizon Wireless were doing some of the most critical work necessary in these types of situations: addressing cellular network failures, which are common in natural disasters. Depending on the situation, this can include anything from establishing mobile satellite systems to sending drones into those places humans can't go, including collapsed buildings, tunnels and unstable structures.

Recently, officials overseeing Verizon's Rocklin-based emergency services switch facility held a "Public Safety Day" event, offering some of its clients a tour of their Rocklin switch facility, once of several nationwide keeping an eye on their perspective, regional networking systems, as well as TV news coverage of any and all disasters or emergencies where first-responders are unable to get on the network.

Built in 2003, the facility's sister location is based in Sunnyvale. Roughly 30 people work at the Rocklin facility; however, there are more than 100 others centers set up across the country employing more than 46 teams comprised of roughly 160,000 people.

"We like to think of ourselves as 'pre-responders," said Paul Lynch, who manages Verizon's two Northern California facilities. "We monitor situations going on all over the country and we have crews on the ground from the get-go to provide onsite support for first responders to make sure they are connected and talking to one another."

The invite-only tours are offered monthly as a way to show emergency response teams from Cal Fire, police and sheriff's departments, the

Paul Lynch oversees the Rocklin-based Switch Center for Verizon's Emergency Response Team Unit, which provides onsite backup power and cellular communications networking centers during disasters and emergency situations for Northern California first responders.

Department of Fish Wildlife and others exactly how well-prepared and equipped the company is at providing them with on-demand connectivity during a natural or man-made disaster.

The team will mobilize portable networking call centers, mobile satellite stations and deployment of any one of the company's veritable barnyard of "cool tools," such as cells on wheels (COWs), cells on light trucks (COLTS), HVACs on roadside equipment (HORSEs), and generators on a trailer (GOATs).

The Rocklin switch facility tour included a walk through the engineer's command center or NOC (Network Operations Center), where 24-hour "surveillance" of its networking operations run across wall-to-wall monitors, scrutinized around the clock by a team of six engineers, three on the day shift, three on at night.

"We don't highlight any of this," said Lynch. "We don't grandstand what's behind our network. But it is important for our customers working in the emergency fields to have confidence in who they partner with and to see up close exactly what we can do and how quickly we can do it."

Verizon's Crisis Response Teams, in Rocklin and nationwide, conduct regularly scheduled drills and emergency tests to ensure that they are ready to roll when they are needed, including shutting down the battery rooms and switching over to generators.

"We don't want to be the last to know that we've got failure," said Lynch.

Tim Kuka, who oversees the Rocklin facility's Network Equipment Center (NET) located right next door to the switch facility, gave a tour of the state of the art building. The tour offered visitors a sneak-peak at Verizon's local 4-G networking nerve center, a mind-blowingly pristine space known as the Data Hall or "cloud room." The building was constructed in 2014 and contains an impressively intricate layout of data backup units and an equally mind-numbing amount of cable.

"If you would take all the conduit in this building alone and stretch it out, it would go all the way to San Francisco," said Kuka.

First-responders to man-made emergencies also often require backup power and or connectivity support. Case in point: Verizon's switch teams worked closely with FBI officials during the mass shootings that occurred at a San Bernardino-based regional center in December of 2015, quickly mobilizing command centers, establishing private networking and satellite communications lines and serving to provide backup power and other services to all agencies aiding victims and overseeing the recovery efforts.

The RAD (Radio Activated Drone) monitors security and provides 24-seven surveillance patrol during emergencies and natural disasters, one of the "cool tools" offered by Verizon's Rocklin-based Emergency Response Team.

One of Rocklin-based Verizon Emergency Response Team's "cool tools," a drone used to support first responders in natural disasters and other emergencies.

The switch facility and NEC tours culminated with a close-up demonstration of some of those cool tools, including Rocklin's own RAD (Robotic Assistance Device), a four-wheel robot that looks like a scooter with a camera tower perched on its front end.

"She can go into dull, dark, dirty and dangerous places," said Jim Larson a vendor with Robotic Assistance Devices, which partners with Verizon to provide the RAD. "She can be manually operated or put on automatic to handle perimeter security during a disaster or emergency, taking pictures the whole time while emergency personnel are doing their jobs."

Verizon's 46 emergency networking teams across the country also are prepared and ready to help set up networking stations with water, food and other supplies, as well as connectivity support relief efforts, specifically by the Red Cross. Its response teams also will provide first responders and others with handsets, dedicated mobile hotspot devices and private networks.

"Everything we provide is free, except in cases where we have to set up satellites," said Lynch. ★

CARMICHAEL COMMUNITY UPDATE

By County Supervisor Susan Peters

Through the generosity of The Carmichael Times this column serves to provide an update about matters affecting the unincorporated communities of

on Code Enforcement In February I will be holding a community meeting and you're invited. Barry Chamberlain, Chief of Sacramento County's Code Enforcement Division will be the guest speaker and present "Code Enforcement 101" describing how Sacramento County works with residents to address issues like accumulation of junk and rubbish, compliance with the zoning code, businesses being operated in residential areas, illegal dumping, and much more.

The community meeting will be in Carmichael on Wednesday, February 21, at the Carmichael Park Clubhouse, 5750 Grant Avenue at 6 pm.

Code Enforcement aims to maintain a high quality of life for our neighborhoods by investigating violations of housing, zoning and vehicle abatement laws in the unincorporated area. Code officials work to achieve voluntary compliance through notification and education. When necessary, they use legal procedures including boarding structures, removing junk and rubbish and junk vehicles, civil citations, criminal citations and demolition of dangerous buildings. It should be an interesting presentation.

Recent Store Closings

Recently, closings were announced by both Sam's Club and Walmart at Country Club Centre in Arden Arcade.

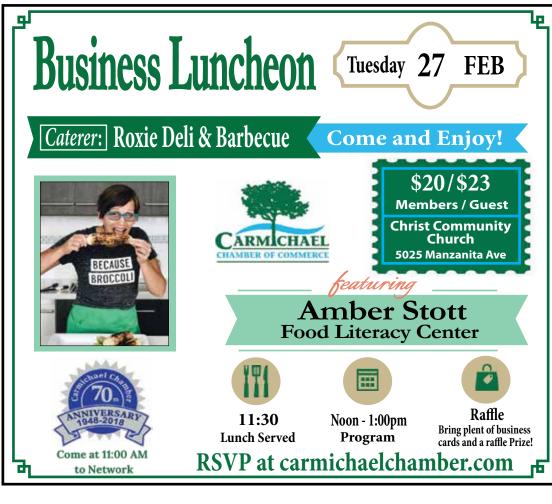

In spite of these closures, Sacramento County is encouraged by the fact that the overall economy is strong and consumer confidence is high. Howe Bout Arden has reconfigured that shopping center adding the Container Store, Home Goods and a number of new restaurants plus relocating Nordstrom's Rack and revitalizing the theater complex. Country Club Plaza is making a comeback, too, with the Sakura Grill & Buffet being the latest addition. WinCo Foods, which filled the vacant former Gottschalks space, was the first innovated change to the old mall then came Planet Fitness and Cinema West has begun construction to build a state-ofthe-art luxury theater at the site of the former Off Broadway Shoes.

It is important to note, too, that according to the U.S. Department of Labor, Arden Arcade's employment increased 2.3 percent from mid-2016 to mid-2017. In fact, employment is projected to increase by 9,402 over the next 10 years. That is a 2.1 percent year-over-year growth rate. And looking through the County's own records, Arden Arcade has seen a five percent increase in requests for building permits from September 2016 to September 2017. We also found that Arden Arcade's annual wage is $57,849 for the third quarter of 2017 (that's higher than the national average, which is $54,666).

Sacramento County will be working with Country Club Centre Group LLC, the property owner for Country Club Centre, to support their marketing efforts and reuse of the property. It is important to find a fit that's good for residents in the community in the face of the shifting retail landscape.

Susan Peters represents the Third District on the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors. She can be reached at susanpeters@ saccounty.net.

Thank You from Union Gospel Director, Pastor Tim Lane

Pastor Tim Lane

I would like to thank all of the donors who have come alongside the Union Gospel Mission Sacramento! We can, and should, look across accomplishments of this last year and give thanks to God from whom all blessings truly flow.

We need to give thanks for donors like you that understand that along with feeding, clothing, sheltering and the Recovery Program, that we have the privilege and duty to present the life- changing power of the Gospel.

We take no money of any kind that would limit the presentation of the truth God Himself has given us in His Holy Word.

There are those that would donate if we would water down our gospel or abandon it all together; we will not! The way of the cross is not always easy, but God never promised it would be easy, only that it is worth it!

2017 was a year of provision and blessings, however, we cannot stand still. Many people are out there who need our help and, especially, need Jesus! We must move forward with the work that God has given us to do while there is still time. And, like a lighthouse in the darkness, we will continue to proclaim God's grace and mercy, His goodness and salvation in Christ!

Again I thank each of you who pray for us and who donate to the Mission, for His Kingdom

May God keep you and bless you!

John 14:6

"Jesus said to him, "I am the way, the truth, and the life. No one comes to the Father except through Me."

The evaluators determined that the Wind Youth Services program integrated a spectrum of services through a strong partnership among three youth service agencies working to not only support youth experiencing homelessness stabilize in housing and employment, but to help this population avoid homelessness altogether.

Evaluators also determined Sacramento Self-Help Housing's (SSHH) proposal addressed a gap in homeless services by expanding engagement and rehousing services for persons experiencing unsheltered homelessness in unincorporated areas of the County. This program will involve a strong partnership with SSHH, neighborhood leaders, such as the Carmichael Homeless Assistance Resource Team, law enforcement and DHA staff.

All of the selected programs will provide services that further the County's objectives to fund services that promote permanent housing placement, residential stability, and increased skill level or income in order to prepare participants to live more independently.

Jack Pefley Honored by Carmichael Chamber

Carmichael, CA (MPG) - Jack Pefley and his wife Jeri were honored at a recent luncheon for their many years of being Carmichael Chamber of Commerce members and avid supporters. Gabrielle Rasi, chamber president, presents them with a beautiful bouquet and a certificate of appreciation. Jack has always been a local favorite and was one of the first to welcome us to the chamber many years ago. Always good for a joke, a funny poem, or an historical saying, Jack's sense of humor was a personal highlight of attending chamber luncheons or saying hello at the local La Bou restaurant. Thanks for all the laughs Jack! Photo by Paul Scholl

One Year Later: The Great Uncertainty of the Oroville Dam and Spillway

Commentary by Congressman Doug Lamalfa

One year ago, heavy rainfall caused Oroville Dam to near its 3.5 million acre feet of water capacity. As is common practice, the main spillway was opened to relieve some pressure, and on February 7th, a crater appeared in the middle of the spillway.

Everyone knows exactly what happened next. Dam operators had no choice but to continue using the damaged spillway, albeit at a lower output, and the hole grew. Operators hoped to avoid using the emergency spillway, which hadn't ever been tested or used since the dam's completion in 1968. But on February 11, 2017 - one year ago today water began to pour over the emergency spillway. In less than 24 hours, nearly 200,000 people were ordered to evacuate as fear grew that the emergency spillway would fail due to unexpected erosion.

The spillway never gave out and no one was injured. But for a while, no one was certain what would happen – or what led to this near-disaster in the

A year later, there is still a great deal of uncertainty, as well as hundreds of millions of dollars in damages. Repairs to the spillway have been ongoing while the Independent Forensic Team investigated what happened. The results were not good. They discovered that the original design of the spillways, coupled with years of inadequate maintenance, led to the main spillway failure and the unknown factor of actual usage of the emergency spillway.

The State of California has requested FEMA to reimburse 75% of the estimated $870 million price tag, but in previous correspondence with Congress, FEMA has been unclear whether it has the authority to fund these types of repairs. In the context of other disasters, FEMA has stated that it does not have the legal authority to fund projects where FEMA determines there was a "lack of maintenance," and, as well, can only provide reimbursements for work to bring facilities back to their "predisaster design."

FEMA's reimbursement guidelines are definitely cause for concern. The Independent Forensic Team determined that Oroville Dam spillways' original design and inadequate maintenance contributed to the spillway failure. Knowing that, it'd make little sense for FEMA to reimburse the state only to return the main spillway to the same condition that played a role in causing the disaster in the first place.

I am working to get answers on this issue - and to gain some degree of certainty for nearby residents that a similar disaster can't happen again. Last week, I sent a letter to the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) seeking clarification on the agency's authority to provide public funding for repairs of the Oroville Dam spillway.

We must proceed in a manner that ensures the safety of those impacted by the spillway incident and, importantly, actually improves the spillway and all related infrastructure. These guidelines leave a lot of questions unanswered, and I am asking for some clarity.

The year following the Oroville Dam spillway collapse has been busy, but I'll continue working with the necessary agencies and local officials to ensure that all of our questions are answered and that Oroville, Butte County and Northern California aren't subject to a disaster like this again, but instead have the positive assets the lake is for, such as flood control, recreation, stored water for people and the economy and clean hydroelectric power to meet our 21st century needs.

Key IRS Identity Theft Indicators Continue Dramatic Decline in 2017; Security Summit Marks 2017 Progress Against Identity Theft

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- The Internal Revenue Service has announced steep declines in tax-related identity theft in 2017, attributing the success to the Security Summit initiatives that help safeguard the nation's taxpayers.

Key indicators of identity theft dropped for the second year in a row in 2017. This includes a 40 percent decline in taxpayers reporting they are victims of identity theft in 2016. Since 2015, the number of tax-related identity theft victims has fallen by almost two-thirds and billions of dollars of taxpayer refunds have been protected.

"These dramatic declines reflect the continuing success of the Security Summit effort," said Acting IRS Commissioner David Kautter. "This partnership between the IRS, states and the tax community is helping protect taxpayers against identity theft. More work remains in this effort, and we look forward to continuing this collaborative effort to fight identity theft and refund fraud."

The Internal Revenue Service, state tax agencies and the tax industry have started their third filing season working as the Security Summit, a private-public sector partnership formed in 2015 to combat identity theft.

Because the IRS and Summit partners have stepped up efforts to stop suspected fraudulent returns from entering tax processing systems, there continues to be a substantial decline in the number of taxpayers reporting that they are victims of identity theft.

Here are key calendar-year 2017 indicators:

• The number of taxpayers reporting to the IRS that they are victims of identity theft continued its major decline. In 2017, the IRS received 242,000 reports from taxpayers compared to 401,000 in 2016 – a 40 percent decline. This was the second year in a row this number fell, dropping from the 677,000 victim reports in 2015. Overall, the number of identity theft victims has fallen nearly 65 percent between 2015 and 2017.

- The number of tax returns with confirmed identity theft declined to 597,000 in 2017, compared to 883,000 in 2016 - a 32 percent decline. The amount of refunds protected from those fraudulent returns was $6 billion in 2017, compared to $6.4 billion in 2016. In 2015, there were 1.4 million confirmed identity theft returns totaling $8.7 billion in refunds protected. Overall during the 2015-2017 period, the number of confirmed identity theft tax returns fell by 57 percent with more than $20 billion in taxpayer refunds being protected.
- The financial industry is a key partner in fighting identity theft, helping the IRS recover fraudulent refunds that may have been issued. In 2017, banks recovered 144,000 refunds compared to 124,000 in 2016 a 16 percent increase. The amount of refunds recovered was $204 million in 2017, compared to $281 million in 2016. In 2015, the financial industry recovered 249,000 refunds totaling $852 million.
- In addition to these steep declines, the IRS also is continues reducing the year-over-year inventory backlog of taxpayers who file identity theft reports. For fiscal year 2017, the beginning inventory of identity theft reports submitted by taxpayers was approximately 34,000, under 10 percent of the fiscal year 2013 beginning inventory of 372,000 taxpayer identity theft cases.

These declines follow extensive Summit education efforts in 2017. The Summit partnership conducted awareness campaigns for tax professionals and taxpayers because everyone has a role in fighting against identity theft.

Cybercriminals Looking for New Lines of Attack

Last year, multiple data breaches from outside the tax system means cybercriminals have basic information on millions of Americans, such as names, Social Security numbers and addresses. The steps taken by the Summit partners since 2015 help protect against fraudulent tax filings that use this basic data. As the IRS and Summit partners have strengthened their defenses, identity thieves are looking to steal more detailed financial information to help provide a more detailed, realistic tax return to better impersonate legitimate taxpayers. Because they need more personal data, cyberthieves increasingly are targeting tax professionals, human resource departments, businesses and other places that have large amounts of sensitive financial information. The IRS continues to see a number of these schemes in attempts to get taxpayer W-2 information from tax professionals and employers.

Everyone must be vigilant and alert. Both taxpayers and tax professionals are encouraged to:

- Use Security Software. Always use security software with firewall and anti-virus protections. Make sure the security software is always turned on and can automatically update. Encrypt sensitive files, such as tax records, stored on computers. Use strong, unique passwords for each account.
- Watch out for scams. Learn to recognize and avoid phishing emails, threatening calls and texts from thieves posing as legitimate organizations such as banks, credit card companies and even the IRS or a tax software firm. Do not click on links or download attachments from unknown or suspicious emails.
- Protect personal data. Don't routinely carry Social Security cards and make sure tax records are secure. Shop at reputable online retailers. Treat personal information like cash; don't leave it lying around

On November 30, 2017, a jury convicted Garner of three counts of rape by force and two counts of forced oral copulation with allegations the crimes were committed against an elderly victim on all counts. Garner was also convicted of one count of elder abuse.

Garner was the live-in caregiver of the 65-year-old victim, who had survived a stroke and suffered from COPD. The victim had significant issues with mobility, strength, communication, and memory. On March 29, 2015, Garner went into the victim's room where he repeatedly raped and committed other acts of sexual assault against the victim.

Defendant Convicted for Multiple Child Sexual Assaults

DATE: February 2, 2018

CASE: Anthony Johnson (Case #16FE015230) PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney

Patrick Foster, Special Assault & Child Abuse Unit

Anthony Johnson was convicted by a jury of 16 counts of committing a lewd act upon a child, three counts of forcible lewd act upon a child and one count of adult using a minor.

On April 8, 2016, law enforcement was notified that the victim had been sexually assaulted by Johnson. When the victim was later interviewed, he reported a long history of sexual abuse by Johnson.

When law enforcement arrested Johnson for these reported assaults, they learned of another victim who had made a prior 2011 report that she had been sexually assaulted by Johnson in the City of San Pablo.

Johnson faces a maximum sentence of 46 years in prison. Sentencing is set for March 9, 2018 at 9:00 a.m. in Department 33 before the Honorable Michael Savage.

Defendant Sentenced for Felony Hit and Run, Insurance Fraud

DATE: February 5, 2018

CASE: Shane Sienes (Case #17FE009293 and #17FE012702)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney

Suzanne Salazar, Insurance Fraud Unit

On December 12, 2017, Shane Sienes pled no contest to felony hit and run with death or injury, felony insurance fraud and misdemeanor charges for "wet" reckless driving and insurance fraud. On January 29, 2018, the Honorable Lawrence Brown sentenced Sienes to 250 days in county jail, 5 years formal probation and ordered him to pay $40,361.65 in victim restitution.

Sienes rear-ended two cars that were stopped at a red light. He then fled the scene after briefly talking with a witness, who reported Sienes appeared under the influence. Two victims suffered injuries from the impact. Sienes later falsely reported to his insurance company that the vehicle he was driving had been stolen. Further investigation revealed that approximately two months before, he made another false claim to his insurance company for damages to his vehicle in an attempt to receive payment for which he was not entitled.

This case was prosecuted by the District Attorney's Insurance Fraud Unit.

Former School Employee Sentenced for Felony Insurance Fraud

DATE: February 8, 2018

CASE: Anthony Johnson (Case #16FE015230) PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney John MacKenzie, Insurance Fraud Uni

Marcus Kelly pled no contest to felony insurance fraud. The Honorable Lawrence Brown sentenced Kelly to 30 days in county jail, 5 years formal probation and ordered him to pay restitution in the amount of $40,097.40.

Kelly was employed by the Sacramento City Unified School District as a janitor. On September 9, 2014, he reported he had an unwitnessed slip-and-fall at work, resulting in reported back and leg pain. Kelly was placed on modified duty, including limitations on how much he could lift and limitations on bending or twisting at the waist. At the end of September 2014, Kelly reported his condition had worsened. When the restrictions could not be accommodated, he was placed off work. Kelly later told a doctor that his pain was so intense it interfered with his ability to travel and engage in social activities.

However, investigation found that during this time period, Kelly had been working as a dancer at a nightclub. Surveillance video showed Kelly dancing on stage for several hours over several days, and engaging in activities he reported to doctors he was unable to perform. This case was prosecuted by the Sacramento County District Attorney's Office Insurance Fraud Unit.

Quit job for school?

Dear Dave,

My wife and I have $72,000 in debt from student loans and a car loan. We're trying to pay off our debt using the debt snowball system, and we each make about $45,000 a year. She's a teacher, and she's planning on going back to school for her master's degree, but she's thinking about quitting her job to do this. She'll be able to make more money with the additional education, and she would only be unemployed for two years. The degree program will cost us $2,000 out of pocket per semester for two years. Does this sound like a good idea?

-Chris

Dear Chris,

There's no reason for your wife to quit her job to make this happen. Lots of people — especially teachers — hold down their jobs and go back to school to further their education. I'm not sure trying to make it on one income when you're that deep in debt is a good idea.

Whatever you do, don't borrow more money to make this happen. Cash flow it, or don't do it. We're talking about $8,000 total, and you've got $72,000 in debt hanging over your heads already. My advice would be to wait until you've got the other debt knocked out, then save up and pay cash for school. You could slow down your debt snowball, and use some of that to pay for school, but I'd hate to see you lose the momentum you have when it comes to getting out of debt.

The choice is yours, but don't tack on anymore student loan debt. I know her income will go up with a master's degree, so from that standpoint it's a good thing to do. But if you do a good thing a dumb way, it ends up being dumb!

—Dave

Pre-planning explained

Dear Dave,

My grandmother passed away a week ago. She was 98, and I know both she and my grandfather had pre-paid for their funerals in 2004. However, there were outstanding costs of $1,500 with the funeral services we had to pay out of pocket, because she had outlived the insurance policy attached to the prepayment plan. I know you say it's always better to pre-plan, not prepay, for a funeral. Can you refresh my understanding of this?

- Rebecca

Dear Rebecca,

Let's use a round figure, and say the cost of a funeral is $10,000. What would $10,000 grow to 25 years from now if it were invested in a good mutual fund? Now, juxtapose that number with the increase in the cost of a funeral over that time. The average inflation rate of consumer-purchased items is around four percent. So, the cost of funerals, on average, has risen about four percent a year. By comparison, you could've invested that money, and it would've grown at 10 or 12 percent in a good mutual fund.

Now understand, I'm not knocking folks who are in the funeral business. But lots of businesses that provide these services realize more margin in selling pre-paid policies than they do in caskets. In other words, they don't make as much money selling the casket as they do selling a pre-paid policy on the

Do you understand my reasoning? If we knew the exact date she pre-paid, and how much she prepaid, that figure invested in a good mutual fund would be a whole lot more than the cost of a reasonable funeral. It's the same principle behind the reason I advise folks to not pre-pay college, or just about anything else, that's likely far into the future. The money you could've made on the investment is a lot more than the value of pre-paying. Pre-planning, on the other hand, is a great idea for many things including funerals.

I'm truly sorry for your loss, Rebecca. God bless you all.
