The group will be attending a series of meetings with Commissioners and staff from the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC). The schedule also includes briefings with the Federal Emergency Management Agency, the United States Army Corp of Engineers, as well as meetings with the Federal Highway Administration regarding Highway 70 improvements. "Since February, we've been told by DWR and other state agencies that 'everything is on the table' when it comes to the future of the Oroville Dam complex," said Nielsen. "We are hopeful that our federal partners will help us get the answers we need and ensure that our communities are given a seat at the table as long-term plans are being developed. This trip is another step to ensure that our community's voice is heard." Butte County Supervisor Bill Connelly, Oroville Chamber of Commerce President Sandy Linville, and Darin Gale with the City of Yuba City will be in attendance representing the Oroville Dam Coalition. CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Carmichael and Fair Oaks stalwarts gathered in last Saturday's rain to recall fallen heroes of nation and community. The annual "Wall of Honor" ceremony was observed at Patriots Park.

Built in 2008, the reserve's stone monument is dedicated to 13 local men -- from military, police, CHP and fire-fighting forces -- who died in service during Carmichael Park District's 55-year existence. Their sacrifice unites surrounding neighborhoods each November. The 13 named heroes fell in uniforms of the U.S. Army, Marines, Air Force, Navy, CHP, police and firefighting services. Plaques recall sacrifice from the Vietnam War years until the present time.

FAIR OAKS, CA (MPG) - Ed Outland is not a veteran. As a young man, however, he planned to serve his country, as did his father, a career serviceman. But those hopes were dashed when he developed an illness that disqualified him for enlistment.

"I was drafted in 1969 and I wanted to be a pilot," says Outland, founder and CEO of Family Heritage Group, LLC in Fair Oaks. "I found out I had a form of spina bifida and that was it. I didn't get to go."

Flash forward several decades (and careers) later and Outland, 71, heads up a company offering financial estate planning and related services for individuals and their family members. He's found a circuitous but important way to serve his country by providing pro-bono financial services to aging, sick and injured veterans to ensure they receive, at minimum, access to a little known government entitlement benefit that a vast majority of his clients don't even know they qualify for.

Sure, Outland has to keep the lights on, so his core company, which currently carries a portfolio of roughly $11 million, centers on financial and estate planning services for the elderly, helping them navigate the wildly complicated qualification process for Medi-Cal benefits, the state's Medicade program for low-income individuals, and guiding clients on the purchase of life insurance, annuities and other investment and retirement vehicles.

But Heritage Group has a niche market serving veterans with critical medical issues, ensuring they and or their spouses receive assistance through the Aid & Attendance program (A&A) offered through the US Dept. Of Veteran's Affairs (VA). The benefit, which can be combined with social security and Medi-Cal, can be used to pay for non-service related medical expenses, including long-term care fees and other expenses due to a catastrophic illness.

Outland does not charge for helping veterans get this benefit. For those veterans who may have assets exceeding qualifying levels, Outland works with them to redirect their assets in order to meet the requirements.

"Roughly 96 percent of the financial services and catastrophic illness planning we do with veterans is pro-bono work," says Outland. "We help them or, if need be, the spouse, apply for the A&A benefit so they can deal with medical expenses with dignity and not have to go broke doing it." There are fewer and

them. ED OUTLAND FOUNDER AND CEO OF FAMILY HERITAGE GROUP, LLC

Many of our

veterans come with $50 in their savings accounts.

Getting these benefits is life-changing for

efits, according to Outland, who has been working with veterans for about 11 years. Over that period, he's established good relationships with the skilled nursing facility community, working with staff and ensuring residents are signed up for and receiving the full range of government entitlements needed to pay for their care and board.

This work is not for the weak willed or faint of heart," says Outland. "Believe me, the VA doesn't like us verv much."

To qualify, a veteran must have served at least 90 days of active duty with one day during a time of war and a clean discharge from service between Dec. 7, 1941 and Dec. 31, 1946 for WWII; June 27, 1950 to Jan. 31, 1955 for the Korean Conflict, and between Aug. 5, 1964 to May 7, 1975 for the Vietnam War. Veterans with at least two years of active duty service during the Persian Gulf War from Sept. 2, 1990 up to present day, also qualify.

There are fewer and fewer financial advisors willing to dive into the tangled web of entitlement benefits, according to Ed Outland (above), who has been working with veterans for about 11 years.

While most of his VA pro-bono clients do not have much money saved, Outland works to help all who apply for the A&A benefit to qualify. The VA stipulates applicants can have only a maximum $30,000 in assets if single, $50,000 if married.

But for most, the A&A benefit represents the last option for financial aid to cover medical care costs. Few have wealth management portfolios to break apart and redirect.

"Many of our veterans come in the door with $50 in their savings accounts," says Outland. "Getting these benefits is life-changing for them."

Part of Outland's work with others also involves dispelling myths, the biggest one being that if you have money you can't qualify for Medi-Cal. And that myth is widely prevalent among a good majority of WWII veterans and their family members who are struggling to balance paying for medical care without depleting their assets and robbing their children of an inheritance.

"The greatest generation of veterans is dying off," says Outland. "So our job is to make sure that the $10 trillion that roughly comprises their total wealth is passed on to their families and not sucked up by the ever-increasing costs of long-term medical care and expenses.""

CEMETERIES • MORTUARIES • CREMATION • PREPLANNING

EAST LAW

Outland said of the roughly 16 million veterans who served in WWII there are roughly 750,000 still living. He estimates there also are roughly 2.5 million WWII widows still living who are entitled to the benefit and can apply for it. They just need to know it's there.

"That's a lot of veterans and widows out there and most of them don't have a clue the benefit is there for them," Outland says.

Receiving the Aid & Assistance benefit has made it possible for veterans from all backgrounds to fill the gap between Medi-Cal coverage, Social Security and pension payments and costs of long-term care, among other things, which amounts to an average of close to $7,000 a month in many places. As of January 2015, a veteran and spouse could qualify for as much as $2,126 a month through the program. The A&A benefit for single veterans is currently set at $1,794 a month, and for surviving spouses the benefit is $1,156 a month.

"It truly can mean that someone can age with dignity in a good facility and pay for it without having to lose everything they've spent their lives saving up," Outland said.

Outland also has an hour-long, weekend radio program offering listeners financial and estate planning guidance, He's successfully parlaying a long, first career in radio advertising sales and station management into a passion helping people manage their money, preserve their family's wealth and plan for the future.

"I'm self-taught," said Outland. "I got tired of doing radio sales day in and day out. I have been doing this for 28 years now and I guess you could say it really is a second career."

Outland said when he "discovered" the Aid & Assistance benefit was available there were reportedly roughly 400 recipients in the Sacramento County region signed up for and receiving it. As of January of this year, he estimated his firm had successfully completed roughly 6,000 A&A cases for veterans.

"It was like the sky opened up," Outland said. "We've got to get the word out there that these benefits are available."

elected representatives and park district leaders. Congressman Ami Bera and County Supervisor Susan Peters were among last Saturday's speakers. Dr. Bera said the nation should "stop and consider values that bring us all together." The best way we can remember our heroes, he suggested, "is to continue the service that they began."

Supervisor Peters noted that the wall's plaques named individuals who shared one commitment. "They put service above self," she said. "regardless of whether they wore a Sheriff's uniform or that of the Highway Patrol or a branch of the armed services or of fire protection, each was dedicated to the common good.

"It is fitting that today we continue to remember each honoree's service and sacrifice."

A new name will soon be added to the wall. In August, Deputy Robert French -- a former member of the Sheriff's local Problem-Oriented team in the North Division -- died in an August shootout on Fulton Avenue. The tragedy will be recalled next year when Deputy French's plaque joins those on the Wall of Honor.

CARMICHAEL COMMUNITY UPDATE

By County Supervisor Susan Peters

Through the generosity of The Carmichael Times this column serves to provide an update about matters affecting the unincorporated communities of Carmichael and Arden Arcade.

Law Enforcement at Community Coffee Meeting

The recent FBI crime statistics show violent crime was reduced significantly in 2016 in the unincorporated area. Sheriff Scott Jones attributes that reduction in part to the implementation of "Intelligence Led Policing" and the Sheriff's North Division (which includes Arden Arcade and Carmichael) was one of the first commands integrating that approach. Captain Kris Palmer was in charge of that effort at the time and he subsequently has been promoted to Chief Deputy Sheriff and will be the guest speaker at this month's Community Coffee Meeting on Wednesday, November 15, at 7:30 am in nearby Fair Oaks. Chief Deputy Sheriff Kris Palmer has held a number of leadership positions in the his most recent promotion. This meeting will be held at the Fair Oaks Water District's conference room, 10326 Fair Oaks Blvd. near Winding Way. As usual, I will give a brief update on what is going on with Sacramento County then introduce our guest speaker followed by questions and answers.

And coffee, of course, will be provided!

Sac International Airport Update

Do your holiday travel plans involve going to the airport? A new map on the Sacramento International Airport parking webpage can show you what parking spaces are available -- and where. Check it out by going online to sacramento. aero.

This parking page graphic uses a green-yellow-red scale, with green indicating ample availability, yellow showing limited availability and red indicating almost full. And the map shows the number of spaces available at each parking facility. When a lot or the parking garage fills and closes, the map shows it as closed. Plus these maps are updated dynamically on the website and are refreshed every five minutes.

There is no app available but you can access the information through the airport website via a smart phone or tablet.

And remember you can avoid circling around the terminals to pick up passengers by using the Free Waiting Area – also known as the Cell Phone Lot. Located near the Interstate 5 entrance/exit, this lot has convenient access to both terminals so once your intended arrival is ready all they have to do is call you on your cell phone and you can proceed to pick them up at curb side.

Get Emergency Notifications

There is no better time to prepare for a disaster by registering to receive notifications from the Sacramento County Office of Emergency Services. Please go online to Sacramento-Alert.org and register now before a disaster hits so public safety officials can contact you via telephone call, text or email.

The recent wildfires show sometimes a warning can come in a matter of seconds. Our regional mass notification system is a critical link for you to immediately learn of required actions like forced evacuations, shelter in place orders and road closures.

The unique feature of Sacramento County's system is the ability to handle more than one contact method for residents including cell phones, alternate numbers, text, email and even landlines. You choose the best notification method or chose them all. You can also register multiple locations, such as your work address, your parent's address or your children's school, in order to get alerts about the places that mean the most to you.

California's Tax-and-Spend Cycle Continues

Senator Ted Gaines (R-El Dorado) Commentary by Senator Ted Gaines

The California legislature has descended into policy madhouse where decisions defy every bit of fiscal and economic common sense and serve to put working class people in the poorhouse.

Case in point is this year's tax-heavy legislative session, where the ruling party took breaks from abusing President Trump only long enough to pass bills making California unlivable. In a state with the highest poverty level in the nation, legislators inexplicably set out to make absolutely everything more expensive.

California already has some of the highest gas taxes in the country, so what do the legislative Democrats do? They start by imposing a new gas and car registration tax, which added twelve cents to every gallon of gasoline starting November 1, and increases vehicle registration fees by $25-175 per car. And that twelve-cent tax will go up starting in 2021, adjusted for inflation, forever and ever.

This tax was sold as a way to repair our roads but we already have money for that and have simply not made the commitment to spend those funds where needed. California general fund spending increased by around $25 billion over the past five years, but transportation spending stayed flat. Tell me why those funds could not have paid for roads?

Every year a billion dollars in truck weight fees are diverted away from transportation where they belong and into the general fund. California has the money! By putting this new tax on every mile regular people drive for work, for school, for family, the dominant party is simply charging you twice for road construction and repair. Would you rather see our road money spent where it belongs before paying new and higher taxes?

But even that was not enough. The big bamboozle came in the extension of the state's cap-andtrade scheme, which is alleged to fight "climate change" but really fights against prosperity in the working class. If you were angry over the 12-cent gas tax, how do you feel about the 73-cent increase on every gallon of gas due to cap-and-trade? And, the money raised by capand-trade will go to subsidize California's legendary money burning High Speed Rail, which most ordinary Californians will only ever see from their cheaper, faster, more convenient seats on Southwest Airlines.

Lastly, in a state where housing prices are eating up 50- or 60-percent of many people's income, the legislature saw it fit to make housing even more expensive with a host of new fees and mandates that will add hundreds of dollars in costs to many real estate transactions, but many tens of thousands in costs for some new construction.

These housing taxes are not without consequence. For every $1,000 increase in the median price of a home, an additional 15,000 Californians are priced out of the market. The legislature is creating a permanent renter class by making housing and staple goods unaffordable, cutting off a traditional lifeline to a middle-class life for too many in our state.

California seems as though it has many problems - budget deficits, unfunded pensions, bad roads, high taxes - but it really has just one: Politicians. Until Sacramento's tax-and-spend pirates change their ways, it's higher taxes from here on out.

Senator Ted Gaines represents the 1st Senate District, which includes all or parts of Alpine, El Dorado, Lassen, Modoc, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sacramento, Shasta, Sierra and Siskiyou counties.

This delay, on top of a fossil-fuel animus by Obama's FERC, has created a $13 billion backlog of regulatory approvals for 17 market-ready natural gas projects. With its other business, FERC's total project backlog represents $50 billion. FERC should begin greenlighting projects immediately.

Under the authority of the Federal Power Act of 1935 and the Natural Gas Act of 1938 (NGA), the primary duty of this agency is to "ensure just and reasonable rates, terms, and conditions" concerning interstate transmission of electricity and natural gas.

One can only wish. Sadly, FERC delays often impede otherwise readyto-go projects. Section 7(c) of the NGA, in fact, was designed to allow coal and oil interests to intervene in hearings to slow the spread of (consumer-preferred) natural gas. And now, energy obstructionists want to complicate the certification process to keep natural gas (and other fossil fuels) in the ground.

The new FERC has a lot of catching up to do. Approvals are entirely consistent with President Trump's America First energy policy. Many stalled projects are hosted by states that he won with his promises of economic revitalization.

FERC is off to a good start. In late August, it approved the NEXUS, a natural gas pipeline between Ohio and Michigan. This $2 billion project could bring 3,300 jobs to those two states as well as Pennsylvania. And just this month, FERC started fighting statelevel obstructionism in places (like New York) where authorities were withholding water quality permits to stymie new pipeline construction.

The next approval could be the Atlantic Coast Pipeline, which would run between West Virginia and North Carolina. It would create 10,000 jobs for those two states and Virginia.

FERC is also expected to greenlight the Mountain Valley Pipeline across West Virginia and Virginia, which would involve almost 9,000 jobs. These projects, and three others waitlisted during FERC's inactivity, could create more than 26,000 jobs in total.

Encouraged if not empowered by the Obama Administration, radical environmentalists employed vandalism and violence against new pipelines. According to the company building the Dakota Access Pipeline, a coordinated group of environmentalists burned the pipeline with torches, and tried to hack into the company's networks. This ecoterrorism led to $300 million in damages and over 760 arrests.

In the Trump era, an anti-energy fringe group is attempting to kill FERC's productivity. Beyond Extreme Energy is dedicated to stopping or delaying "all fossil fuel infrastructure before the [FERC]."

"There is no such thing as a good FERC commissioner," the group states. "Until Congress takes steps to replace the agency with one dedicated to a just transition off of fossil fuels, the Senate should oppose all nominations."

Environmentalists' objections are rooted in fantasy -- and they impede safety. Pipelines are the safest way to transport fossil fuels, meaning they're less likely to damage crops than the alternatives. And based on average annual accident rates, pipelines are over three times safer for natural gas transport than rail

With Commissioners Robert Powelson and Neil Chatterjee confirmed, FERC is free to greenlight projects that put consumers and economies first.

The sooner FERC starts greenlighting projects, the sooner consumers receive the economic benefits associated with natural gas.

Environmentalist of the Year Award Goes to Citizens' Climate Volunteer Jennifer Wood

By Lori Morales, CCL

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- Jennifer Wood received the Environmentalist of the Year Award from the Environmental Council of Sacramento (ECOS) November 8th. Jennifer is a volunteer with the Sacramento Chapter of Citizens' Climate Lobby (CCL), and she was honored along with other champions of the environment at the annual awards ceremony.

Jennifer Wood founded the Sacramento Chapter of CCL in January of 2013 because of CCL's emphasis on citizen engagement and its focus on bipartisan national policy. She began as the volunteer Group Leader for the Sacramento Chapter and is now a volunteer Chapter Coordinator, focusing on groups in the Central Valley and Sierras. Jennifer stated: "CCL has an approach that can bridge the political divide and bring many voices into the conversation. We advocate for national climate policy that is equitable, effective, and efficient."

CCL, which has 84,000 members globally and chapters that cover every Congressional District in the U.S., trains volunteers in the skills of citizen engagement and helps members exercise their political voice. The Sacramento CCL chapter has grown to over 800 members and has developed relationships with Representatives Doris Matsui and Ami Bera, demonstrating community support for common-sense national climate policy.

Members meet with local elected officials and community leaders and educate the public about national climate solutions. Last June, seven chapter members traveled to Washington, D.C. for CCL's annual conference, and joined 1,000 volunteers as they lobbied every member of Congress about the need for national climate action. "It was a life changing experience to participate in grassroots organizing." said Edith Thacher, Sacramento chapter co-lead,

"Imagine hundreds of volunteers walking the halls of Congress, meeting with each representative or their staff, expressing a unified message, and respectfully discussing the congressperson's perspective on climate action."

Commenting on the award, Jennifer said, "This award belongs to my Chapter's members as much as it does to me. There is no CCL without the volunteers and there is no political will for change unless citizens speak out and become active".

Have You Seen My Glasses? And Other Trick Questions

Dr. James L. Snyder

The only person who asks more questions than a lawyer is the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage. I am not saying that questions are bad, at least not all of them. What I am saying is, some questions can be trick questions.

To know the difference between a legitimate question and a trick question takes years of practicing being a husband. If the husband learns anything in his marriage, it is this.

I know people ask questions in order to get information. Not all people ask a question in order to get information. Some people ask questions in order to trick somebody into saying something that is compromising.

Of course, we all know the old joke about Honest Abe and his wife when she asked him, "Does this dress make me look fat?"

What does a person do in a situation like that? If a person is honest and tells the honest truth, it may not fare too well with him. It is not so much the question being asked as it is the I said to her, "No, I don't know answer that goes along with that question.

It is the smart husband who is an expert in this "answer" scenario. How he answers his wife's questions will determine the quality of his life. To ignore the question is only going to induce more questions and what husband really wants that?

The art of answering a trick question is the only thing that keeps some people on the positive side of marital bliss. If, for one moment, the husband thinks his wife is simply seeking an answer, he is in for a lot of trouble and heartache.

I certainly would not have liked to have been in Honest Abe's shoes if he ever was presented with such a question from Mrs. Lincoln. Personally, I would with that question, after all he was known as Honest Abe.

This past week I was presented with such a question, it caught me a little bit off guard, and I did not know how to deal with it.

I noticed my wife was walking through the house looking at everything. It may be curious, but I tried to keep out of that situation.

Finally, she came to me and said quite sincerely, "Have you seen my glasses?"

It sounds like a very simple question and it should deserve a straightforward answer. But I did not know what to say. What kind of trouble would I be in if I told her where her glasses were?

I stuttered a little bit, and she being very nervous at the time, turned and started searching the house again. What do you do in situations like this?

I knew that her glasses were very important to her, but I was in a position where I did not know if this was a trick question or if I was in serious trouble.

Trying to do the right thing, where your glasses are? Where did you have them last?"

I thought if I said that it would solve the problem and I could go on with a very happy afternoon.

Looking at me, she said rather smartly, "If I knew that I wouldn't have to ask you where my glasses are."

That sorted cued me in to the reality of the situation. I was rather sure this was a trick question and I knew I needed to play this very carefully. One wrong word from me, and my boat was sunk for the day.

She came back into the room and I looked at her and smiled very cheerfully, hoping that that would kinda solve the problem. She looked at me and said, "What are you smiling about?"

Now I was a bit confused. Are tries.com.

Fhank A Veteran Today

have loved to hear how he dealt we facing a real situation here, or, is this a trick to see if I am really on board? I could not understand any of this at this point.

> I thought to myself, "Can a person live with another person as long as we have and not know what's going on?"

> Finally, I looked at her and rolled my eyes up and down, hoping that she would take the hint. However, it was a useless gesture.

"Have you seen my glasses? I need them right now."

At this point, it was all I could do to keep from laughing hysterically. I knew if I did that sort of thing, I would be in a lot of trouble. How can you keep from laughing when the situation before you is of hysterical proportions?

My wife stood in front of me both hands on her hips during me and then she lifted her right hand to scratch her head and discovered her glasses were on top of her head.

"Oh," she said as she spun around to leave, "here they are on the top of my head."

Now what do I do with that? Do I laugh or pretend I do not know what happened? Then, she turned around and looking at me said, "You better not laugh."

It reminded me of a verse in the Bible. "For now we see through a glass, darkly; but then face to face: now I know in part; but then shall I know even as also I am known" (1 Corinthians 13:12).

Sometimes what we are looking for is right in front of us, but we can't see it.

- Phil

Dear Phil,

As a parent, one of the best things you can do is be a living, breathing example of the importance of giving and caring about others. There's nothing wrong with having some stuff, but many of today's marketing messages can lead kids to believe it's all about them. And the sad truth is advertising firms are often more aggressive with their teaching than parents are in theirs.

I would encourage you to find giving experiences in which you can participate as a family. Volunteering for a day at a homeless shelter is a wonderful example of giving that requires absolutely no money. Or maybe you could pull out your wallet, and spend the day shopping for groceries and Christmas gifts for families who are financially less fortunate.

Make sure your kids are involved physically, mentally, and emotionally in the entire giving process. Let them experience the grateful, and sometimes ungrateful, responses that go along with giving. With a little thought and planning, you can create some incredible teaching and family bonding experiences that will change everyone's lives forever!

Trust is trust

Dear Dave

I have a medical condition, and I finally got an appointment with a specialist I'd like to see. The office requires credit card, debit card, or bank account information be kept on file. Having this kind of information out there with them makes me uncomfortable, but I really want to see this doctor. What should I do?

-Chelsey

Dear Chelsey,

If you're uncomfortable with this practice having your financial information, then you should also be uncomfortable with any medical opinions they would render. If you don't feel they're trustworthy enough to professionally handle something like a debit card or bank account number, then they're not trustworthy enough to treat you - period.

I hope that wasn't unclear. -Dave

Building Bridges Out of Walls That Keep us Apart

cross the millennia, there have been periods of sudden acceleration in the otherwise gradual progress of civilization. Times of explosive growth marked by intense cultural, social, and technological change. From the far reaches of early recorded history to recent centuries, the emergence of the world's great religions has driven leaps in human progress. These outpourings of creativity have resulted in some of humanity's most impressive and enduring achievements in the arts, architecture, governance, law, literature, and science.

Members of the Baha'i Faith, representing virtually every country and territory on the planet, see humanity as standing on the cusp of just such a great societal shift - one that will be global in scope.

The next and necessary stage in humanity's continuing ascent is the unification of all nations and peoples in a peaceful and just global civilization – one that welcomes and honors all, benefitting from the unique cultural and religious heritage each brings to the whole. Humanity has passed through the stages of its infancy and childhood and now stands at the threshold of its collective maturity. The conflict, turbulence, and confusion we are experiencing today are features of a transitional period that can be likened to adolescence. Old and outmoded attitudes and habits of thinking are being swept away and new patterns of thought and action are gradually taking root.

Baha'u'llah revealed a profound spiritual vision, revolutionary principles, and practical approaches to lead humanity through its treacherous adolescence into maturity. Centered on the fundamental principle of the oneness of humanity, His teachings offer us hopeful new ways to view our place and purpose in the world. Baha'u'llah's life and writings have given rise to a worldwide Baha'i community committed to learning how to put his teachings into practice.
