The Great Mr. Jordan

Jim Jordan sits in front of a "love letter" from his last group of students at Del Campo High, where he has taught for the last 35 years of his 40-year career. He is leaving for other adventures.

Story and photos by Jacqueline Fox

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - When Jim Jordan first began teaching yearbook and writing at Del Campo High School, photos were developed in a dark room, on film, while stories, writing and other homework assignments were composed on electric typewriters, and students had to use a pay phone if they needed to call mom for a pickup.

As he prepares to end a 40-year teaching career, 35 at Del Campo, Jordan's home away from home, Room 17, is eerily quiet. It is summer. The desks, even some of the paperwork and books his last roster of students may have been working from and on or appear as if they were frozen in time and sitting that way since the last dismissal bell rang out for the year.

Pasted to a white board is a large, hand-made sign from his students, a love letter in big print addressed to "The Great Mr. Jordan," with hearts and inside jokes scrawled out in purple, pink and black marker. On one side is a header entitled "Kids who don't love Mr. Jordan." Beneath that, someone has drawn a large line cutting diagonally across the plane of a circle in red ink.

And the feeling is mutual.

"My motivation for teaching in high school these last 40 years is pretty simple: You stay because you love high school kids," says Jordan, who will take a short vacation before returning later in summer to pack up the room, hand over his keys and embark on his next chapter. "They are so talented and have so much to offer."

Jordan, now 61, earned a teaching credential from Sacramento State University and also holds a Masters in Writing. He officially entered academia at Mira Loma

High School in 1977, despite vows to avoid the field, largely because he grew up with a father who served as a school superintendent in Auburn for many years. "I wanted to do anything but get into education," Jordan says.

Between 1980 and 1981, Jordan was straddling two part-time teaching positions, one at Mira Loma, the other at Del Campo. In 1982 he was offered a full-time position at Del Campo, launching a 35-year tenure that has paralleled the arrival of significant cultural and technological advances, including the arrival of the first personal computer, laser printer, the "Super Information Highway" (also known as The Internet), and perhaps the biggest game-changer of all, the introduction of smart phones into mainstream culture.

"When we first started yearbook here at Del Campo we were writing stories on electric typewriters, manually pasting them up and then shipping them out to be printed," says Jordan, sitting atop a desk in room 17, sporting a pair of flip-flops, shorts and a bright blue polo shirt with the Del Campo logo.

With the invention of the PC and Apple's LaserWriter introduced in 1985 to the mass market, came unprecedented opportunities for retooling the way things got done, not just for students, but for Jordan and his fellow educators. By summer of 1986, Del Campo invested roughly $10,000 on two Macintosh PC's, the LaserWriter II and what was then known as a "WYSIWYG" (What You See Is What You Get) software package called PageMaker, and, although the darkroom for yearbook would remain open for several more years, nothing was ever the same again.

"The big breakthrough was the arrival of the laser printer that could scale type," says Jordan. "It changed everything for us, especially on yearbook. We literally learned how to produce yearbook in a whole new way, which meant a lot of research and education for ourselves. It was a creative explosion for all of us. For the first time, kids had the exact same tools that all the professionals had."

Jordan fell in love with the idea of writing, specifically teaching him as a bonus course, but one he grew to love teaching, particularly because of it, while in college, and carved out a career showing students the power of words. Yearbook came to his love of photography.

"I took a writing class in college and for the first time it hit me that you could actually teach people how to become better writers," Jordan said. "I fell in love with writing and the concept of being able to instruct students in the subject. And yearbook was something that fit well into that arena, plus, since no one else wanted to teach it at the time, I looked at it as job security. But I have grown very fond of the course and teaching it."

Jordan's own three children were students at Del Campo, in fact, they all were editors on yearbook during their time at the school.

"I had them all in my class and it was an absolute joy," Jordan says. "They were all editors on yearbook and they really loved it. It was amazing to be able to work with them."

Other former students of Jordan's include Joe Derisi, an immunologist and recipient of the 2004 DeRisi MacArthur fellow; CNN host and television personality Lisa Ling; journalist and writer Laura Ling; and KXTV ABC 10 news anchor Cristina Mendonsa.

In addition to technology, says Jordan, what's also changed at Del Campo is the composition of the district in which he's

Widowed Persons Offers Greif, Recovery Support

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - When Deeann Lynch lost her husband, Rick, of 30 years in 2012, she carried on as best as she knew how with life. But after roughly two years of widowhood, she says, something finally occurred to her that completely rocked her foundation.

"I woke up about two and a half years after my husband passed away, and it hit me that I was really alone," said Lynch, 66, a retired school teacher with the San Juan Unified District. "I hadn't really given it a lot of thought before that day. I was just kind of operating on auto pilot. But I realized all of our friends that we had as a couple were nowhere to be found. I took a look at my life and I didn't really like what I was seeing."

What Lynch experienced, the delayed impact of losing a spouse but not quite living through the grief and moving forward afterward, is common. Just ask any one of the roughly 345 members of the Widowed Persons Association of California, Sacramento Chapter, where, week after week newcomers, just like Lynch, are greeted and welcomed in by long-standing members with experience to offer on how to feel, grieve, process and get on with reshaping their lives after the death of spouse.

"Common understanding, the trust in others who have been through what you are going through, these are the things that we offer our members," says Claudia Ezzell, the chapter's sitting president, who lost her husband in 2006 and, in 2007 started attending the association's Sunday Support class, which she said "changed everything."

Trail a finger down the list of commonly identified top causes of stress, isolation and deep depression and you'll find loss of a spouse right up there at the very top. Widowed Persons provides a safe and convivial space for those experiencing the death of a spouse to recover from grief, release the stress, share their experiences with others, make new friends, stay connected and find redirection. Sometimes, as in Lynch's case, this begins years after someone loses a spouse. In other cases, it can be a matter of days.

While chapters have come and gone, the Widowed Person's Association of California, Sacramento, was the first, founded in 1986 by Helen Krough, newly widowed and seeking a network of support.

"She was sitting around staring at the TV for days after she lost her husband," said Ezzell. "The funny thing is, the TV wasn't even on and her son pointed it out to her that she was staring at a blank TV. So she decided to put an ad online looking for others who just wanted to get together and share experiences. She was hoping for 10 to 15 people, but 75 people showed up for its first meeting, which was held in the Carmichael Library."

The Sacramento Chapter has since had as many as 500 members at a time and the list of programs and activities has grown from lunches and coffees to include travel trips, music festivals, dances, theater nights, monthly luncheons, dinners, Sock Hops at the Carmichael Elks Club, Luaus, walking groups, picnics, bridge, pinochle and Mexican train domino game days, bowling and more.

The chapter has a budget of roughly $60,000 and is run completely by a core of roughly 24 volunteers, all of whom have come through the program. There is an annual membership fee of $120.00, which may be split into two payments. The fee for joining after July 1 is $40.00. Fees cover expenses for recruiting speakers, holiday parties, the printing of the monthly newsletter and other administrative costs.

Perhaps the most critical aspect of the chapter's programming is its Sunday Support group, run by Ginny Baldauf, who joined the chapter when she lost her husband in 2003. Sunday Support, says Baldauf, is the "core of everything the group has to offer. It's our weekly support group where all of us begin to get back on our feet. I started in Sunday Support. I came on the advice of a friend and I think I cried every Sunday for weeks, but eventually something turned over for me and I realized I had found a new support system and new friends."

For Lynch, finding the group was also like being tossed a life preserver.

"I was going to a support group in other areas for a while, but I wasn't getting anything I needed there," Lynch said. "Then a friend brought me here and it was like for the first time I started to hear other people talking about the kinds of things I was feeling and thinking. I thought I was going crazy, but I realized I wasn't. I was just needing to make new friends and feel that connection with people who understood me."

In addition, the chapter offers four, six-week Grief and Recovery workshops each year, which are free to all and set to begin again July 13. Topics, according to workshop coordinator, Chuck Beaver, cover overcoming grief, coping with stress and anxiety, and changing relationships and moving on with your life. The workshops culminate with a potluck event.

Men and women alike come seeking that initial support in dealing with the death of a spouse. For most, the death has come suddenly and there is deep, profound and seemingly unshakable grief. For others, such as caregivers of a spouse suffering from dementia, Alzheimer's disease or other long-term illnesses who have had time to plan for change, the grief comes sneaking up from behind as they experience not just the loss of a loved one, but the loss of their identity as a caretaker.

"Many caregivers experience deep grief because their role as caretaker is now over and they find themselves without a sense of director or purpose, once that role has ended," Baldauf said.

Because women tend to outlive men, membership is largely comprised of women," said Ezzell. The average age of the group's membership is 79 and that's a concern. With a goal to grow the membership base and increase funding, the group is amidst an effort to attract younger members. The challenge, said Ezzell, is that younger widows and widowers tend to still have careers and the ability to do more socializing to make new friends. Older members come in with fewer connections as they have typically been retired for some years and or their friends are primarily also passed away.

Common understanding, the trust in others who have been through what you are going through, these are the things that we offer our members.

CLAUDIA EZZELL
CURRENT PRESIDENT,
WIDOWED PERSONS
ASSOCIATION OF CALIFORNIA,
SACRAMENTO CHAPTER

"It's tough to get younger members in but we need them to grow," Ezzell said. "Many younger people who lose a spouse still have a place to go every day. They work or they are in school, or raising small children, so they have roles and networks."

Since joining the chapter, Lynch has begun volunteering in the office and supports Baldauf with Sunday Support. She also said she's done a few things she'd stopped doing when her husband died, namely, traveling. But perhaps more importantly, she's made new connections with people and from those connections have come new friendships, a key to recovery.

"I've started traveling again, which is something my husband and I did do together," Lynch said. "But the big thing is that I've made new friends here. The people you meet in the Sunday Support group become your friends and you find you are doing things again and are part of this new community. They become like a new family." ★

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- United Way California Capital Region's Women in Philanthropy group is now United Way's Women United, joining the global Women United network of more than 70,000 women leaders taking action in their communities. The local Women United action group is a force of 350 local women and supporters making sure local foster youth are prepared for success in college or career.

"The name Women United is a clear call to action for women of all ages and backgrounds to come together for an important cause," said Stephanie Bray, president and CEO of United Way California Capital Region. "This makes it clear that we need all of women's gifts, from donations to volunteer time. While our focus will remain the same, we will now be part of a global group of women, all working on their local community's most pressing issues, most of which are related to children."

The local Women United action group raises funds for special bank accounts that help foster youth leaving the system save for necessities such as rent, transportation and textbooks. Members and supporters also lead life skills workshops and trainings to help foster youth understand how to manage finances, navigate the college system, prepare for interviews, cook and more, and they participate in volunteer experiences and networking events. Dave Says

Let him be mad

Dear Dave,
My dad wants me to buy a house on a 30-year loan for him and my mom in my name, and let them make the payments. I'm 24 years old and have a good credit score and a nice apartment, but my job depends largely on how the oil industry is doing. My dad filed bankruptcy nine years ago, and he's already $150,000 in debt again, so he's never been very responsible with money. I think this would spell big trouble for me, but I'm sure he will be mad if I say no. What are your thoughts?
- Emmanuel

Dear Emmanuel,
Yeah, I think doing something like this would spell big trouble for you. If your dad is irresponsible with money — especially to the point of having to file bankruptcy — what makes you think he'll make these house payments on time?

I know this would be an uncomfortable conversation to have with your dad, but you need to brace yourself and just do it. Be respectful and explain exactly why you won't do this. Think about it, Emmanuel. When he doesn't pay the bill on time, it's going to screw up your credit score. And when you get ready to buy a house, guess what? You're going to have trouble qualifying because you already own a house. Most people don't make enough money to qualify to buy two homes.

Basically, your dad is asking you to not buy a house so they can have one. I can't tell you how to make your dad okay with saying no to this, but I can tell you that your answer should be no. Let him and your mom know that you love them both, but this is something you just can't do.

Dip in, pay it off!

Dear Dave,
My wife just had our first child. Now, we now have about $3,000 in medical bills not covered by insurance. We've got $8,000 in our emergency fund, and I make between $25,000 and $30,000 a year. Should we try setting up a payment plan with the hospital, or is dipping into our savings a better idea?
- Matt

Dear Matt,
I'd write a check today and knock out that hospital bill. This falls under the heading of "emergency" in my mind, so pay the bill and jump back into rebuilding your emergency fund. You've done a really good job of saving on your income, but let's see what we can do about making better money in the future. Extra practical training in your field, or more education in the classroom, could increase your income quickly. Your emergency fund needs to be a little bigger as well, and it'll be a lot easier to make this happen if you're making more money.

I'm sure you're a hard-working guy, but it's going to be tough for even a small family to make it on what you're bringing home now. The unexpected can become a common occurrence when there's a little one in the picture.

Congratulations!
—Dave

Jim Jordan, long-time yearbook and writing teacher at Del Campo High School is leaving after a 40-year career in education.

endgame or the 'assignment' on the backburner, and paid closer attention to what the personal issues with a student were, spent more time getting to know everything about them I possibly could. I think that's the aspect of being with high schoolers that I'll miss the most."

What has remained constant, says Jordan, is his love for the craft of teaching. By the time the class of 2018 arrives for school in fall, he will have packed up Room 17 and said goodbye to Del Campo. But by no means is he done with teaching, let alone, ready to retire. Jordan says will continue private consulting on yearbook production to fellow educators and students, as he has done in summer for several years previously. In addition, he will take his fifth trip to Zambia, where he's been involved with the development of a Christian-based school in cooperation with his church back home.

"I am not retiring. I'm just getting ready for the next chapter," Jordan said. "I can't imagine not working with students in some capacity, especially high school students. But I guess my legacy from Del Campo, or what I wish to be my legacy, is that none of my students are ever able to say that they didn't learn something while in my class." ★

*The initial Annual Percentage Rate (APR) is currently 4.25% for a new Home Equity Line of Credit (HELOC), and is fixed for the first 5 years of the loan which is called the draw period. After the initial 5 year period, the APR can change once based on the value of an Index and Margin. The index is the weekly average yield on U.S. Treasury Securities adjusted to a constant maturity of 10 years and the margin is 3.50%. The current APR for the repayment period is 5.75%. The maximum APR that can apply any time during your HELOC is 10%. A qualifying transaction consists of the following conditions: (1) the initial APR assumes a maximum HELOC of $150,000, and a total maximum Loan-to-Value (LTV) of 70% including the new HELOC and any existing 1st Deed of Trust loan on your residence; (2) your residence securing the HELOC must be a single-family home that you occupy as your primary residence; (3) if the 1st Deed of Trust loan is with a lender other than El Dorado Savings Bank, that loan may not exceed $200,000 and may not be a revolving line of credit. Additional property restrictions and requirements apply. All loans are subject to a current appraisal. Property insurance is required and flood insurance may be required. Rates, APR, terms and conditions are subject to change without notice. Other conditions apply. A $375 early closure fee will be assessed if the line of credit is closed within three years from the date of opening. An annual fee of $50 will be assessed on the first anniversary of the HELOC and annually thereafter during the draw period. Ask for a copy of our "Fixed Rate Home Equity Line of Credit Disclosure Notice" for additional important information. Other HELOC loans are available under different terms.

The closed-season school board meeting was called to order half an hour late by its chairman, J. Buckdancer Alcott, because the board members saw

Slim Randles' HOME COUNTRY

Windy Doesn't Even Charge for These Lessons. They're Always, Like, Free.

Windy Wilson sitting in the audience.

Windy had no children, and he sure as sugar wasn't a teacher, but he could talk. And he was patiently bidding his time. Despite the board's foot dragging through the agenda, Windy didn't give up and go home.

Finally, Alcott said it was time for public feedback and asked if anyone wanted to speak. Windy raised his hand. Alcott looked desperately around, but Windy's hand was the only one raised. He nodded in Windy's direction.

"My name is Alphonse Wilson," he said, standing, "and I live here."

"We know who you are, Windy," said Alcott.

"Thanks, Buck. I feel it's my duty to bring to the board's attention a strategic death of learning with these young people today. A paucity of eddyfication. In short, their vocabulary is seriously obfuscated. We have to ask ourselves, what are these young people going to do in polite society when a hostess passes around the horse doovers? Are they going to palaver proper, or just sit there on their sacrolibrums and nod? Are they going to be admitted to the barn association, write them writs of habeas porpoise, or just see each other out of court? Are we really doing them a favor by not enriching their talking prior to a proper propulsion into adultery? I say no!"

At this point, two ladies in the audience quickly excused themselves and dashed into the hallway.

"Instead of being instructed in proper English, our students today spend all their time watching private defective shows on television. So I think teachers should work on getting 'em more eloquent than they are now."

"Mr. Wilson," asked one of the board members, "what is it about the way our students speak that you find objectionable?"

"They say like all the time. Instead of making a simple declarational sentencing, they say, 'Oh, I was like this and he was like that, and she like ate dinner.'

Windy doesn't even charge for these lessons. They're always, like, free.

SacRT Shocked by Senseless Violence

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Officials from Sacramento Regional Transit District (SacRT) are shocked over news that a SacRT assigned sheriff's deputy was injured in the line of duty recently. Sacramento Sheriff's Deputy Alex Ladwig was shot by a 27-year old Sacramento man who was loitering at the Watt/I-80 light rail station. The four-year veteran of the force is in stable condition with major facial injuries.

"Our hearts are heavy and our prayers go out to Deputy Ladwig and his family," said SacRT Director and Sacramento County Supervisor Phil Serna. "Deputy Ladwig was injured trying to make a difference in our community by helping to improve the Watt/I-80 Station. We owe him a debt of gratitude."

The Watt/I-80 Station has been the focus of a major improvement effort over the past several months. Sacramento Police Lieutenant Lisa Hinz, Chief of Police for SacRT, recently instituted a three-pronged approach to reduce the station's criminal element, which included increased law enforcement, a station improvement plan and in coordination with business owners and community groups in the area.

"This was a senseless act of violence and it simply will not be tolerated," said Hinz. "Deputy Ladwig is a well-respected member of our team and we will honor his efforts by ensuring that Watt/I-80 be turned into a model station in the months ahead."

Deputy Ladwig was on overtime when the shooting occurred in order to support increased patrols at the station that have been in effect for several weeks. Two transit agents have also been assigned to the Watt/I-80 Station on a permanent basis to maintain a uniformed presence. Additionally, Hinz is in the process of developing a station improvement plan by way of a Crime Prevention Through Environmental Design (CPTED) study that was recently initiated.

Community involvement has been another key component of this major initiative. SacRT representatives and law enforcement officials met last week with leaders from the Watt Avenue Partnership and from Walk Sacramento to coordinate activities focused on improving pedestrian safety and security at the station.

"SacRT's new team has been working diligently to make a difference at the Watt/I-80 light rail station," said General Manager/CEO Henry Li. "This is the dark before the dawn, but we are confident our team will make a difference in the coming months as we work to implement a multi-pronged approach that is comprehensive. Deputy Ladwig's commitment to our community is honorable and we will honor his efforts by ensuring our residents are safe at this station."

SacRT recently began an adopt-a-station program in which each member of the district's new executive team has committed to monitoring three stations for safety and cleanliness.

RT operates approximately 69 bus routes and 43 miles of light rail throughout Sacramento County, including the cities of Citrus Heights, Folsom, Rancho Cordova and Elk Grove. Sacramento buses and light rail trains operate 365 days a year.

Sacramento County DA Reports

Defendant Sentenced for Kidnapping, Assault to Commit Rape

DATE: June 16, 2017

CASE: Thomas Chavez (#15F04824)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Maria Wilson, Adult Sexual Assault Unit

The Honorable Laurel White sentenced Thomas Chavez to 30 years to life in prison. On May 8, 2017, Judge White found Chavez guilty of kidnapping and assault with the intent to commit rape. In addition, the Court found Chavez had suffered prior convictions for sexual assault in 1988.

On August 6, 2015, a woman was walking down Stockton Boulevard when Chavez pulled up behind her in his car. He jumped out of his car, grabbed her from behind, held an ice pick to her neck and forced her into his car. Chavez drove behind a nearby store to an isolated area. CHP officers who were nearby observed Chavez drive behind the store and went to investigate. The officers shined their light into the vehicle and heard the woman screaming for help. Chavez was arrested soon after.

Defendant Convicted for 1995 Double Murder, Attempted Murders

DATE: June 22, 2017

CASE: Hung Phi Nguyen (Case #95F05136)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Jeff Hightower, Homicide Unit

Hung Phi Nguyen was convicted by a jury for the first-degree murders of Ri Nguyen and Say Ngo. He was also convicted of four counts of attempted murder.

In 1995, Hung Phi Nguyen and two others were attempting to take over an extortion racket of Chinese gambling businesses in south Sacramento. On May 17, 1995, Hung Phi Nguyen shot at Thang Bui and Duong Phan in a case of mistaken identity. On June 27, 1995, Hung Phi Nguyen and his cohorts then shot and killed Ri Nguyen, their extortion competition. They also killed Say Ngo, the owner of a gambling business. Mark Huang and San Vong were shot in the crossfire, but both survived their injuries. The other two defendants were tried and convicted of the double murder in 1995. Hung Phi Nguyen eluded law enforcement until he was captured while crossing the Arizona-California border in 2011.

Hung Phi Nguyen faces a maximum sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole. Sentencing is set for July 21, 2017, 10:00 a.m. in Department 30 before the Honorable David De Alba.

Defendant Sentenced for Child Sexual Assault

DATE: June 27, 2017

CASE: Maurice Higgs (Case #16FE017541)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Bruce Chang, Special Assault & Child Abuse Unit

The Honorable Allen Summer sentenced Maurice Higgs to 150 years to life in prison. On April 27, 2017, a jury convicted Higgs of three counts of child sexual assault on a child 10 years or younger, two counts of child sexual assault by force and one count of child sexual assault on a child under 14 years of age.

Beginning February 2012 until February 2014, Maurice Higgs sexually assaulted a female child on multiple occasions when she was 5 to 7 years old. Higgs threatened the victim on at least one occasion that he would physically harm her if she told anyone. He eventually admitted the assaults to law enforcement.

Higgs has two prior 2003 strike convictions for robbery and making criminal threats.

Defendant Convicted for Sexual Assault of Homeless Woman

DATE: June 27, 2017

CASE: Lonnie Calimee (Case #16FE006026)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Tate Davis, Adult Sexual Assault Prosecution Unit

Lonnie Calimee was convicted by a jury of first-degree residential burglary and sexual penetration of an unconscious victim.

In the early morning hours of March 22, 2016, the homeless female victim was sleeping in her tent under an overhang of a building on Bicentennial Circle in Sacramento. She awoke to find Lonnie Calimee halfway inside her tent and sexually assaulting her. When the victim screamed, Calimee fled the scene. The victim was able to call 911, and she was taken to the Bear Center for a sexual assault examination. The examination revealed injuries consistent with penetrating trauma. DNA samples were collected from Calimee, and the victim's DNA was recovered from under his fingernails.

A trial as to allegations that Calimee has suffered seven prior strike convictions will occur at the sentencing hearing. Sentencing is set for August 11, 2017, at 9:00 a.m. in Department 20 before the Honorable Michael Bowan. ★

Delta Tunnels Project Moves Ahead

California WaterFix Receives Authorization Under the U.S. Endangered Species Act

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Federal agencies responsible for the protection of species listed under the Endangered Species Act (ESA) today provided biological opinions on the proposed construction and operation of California WaterFix. These biological opinions allow WaterFix to continue moving toward construction as early as 2018. This important project is designed to ensure a reliable water source for 25 million Californians while affording environmental protections for multiple species that depend upon the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta.

"We are poised to take action to better protect our state water supplies and native fisheries," said California Secretary for Natural Resources John Laird. "After 10 years of study, analysis, dialogue and scientific inquiry, we have come to a shared vision—and feasible approach—for how best to meet the co-equal goals of providing a more reliable water supply for California and protecting, restoring and enhancing the Delta ecosystem."

The proposed project includes new water intakes on the Sacramento River near Hood and dual 35-mile-long tunnels to carry water to the existing south Delta pumping plants for the State Water Project (SWP) and Central Valley Project (CVP). Both biological opinions found the construction and operations of WaterFix as proposed would not jeopardize the continued existence of ESA-listed species or destroy or adversely modify critical habitat for those species.

The U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service (Service) and the National Marine Fisheries Service (NOAA Fisheries) implement the ESA, with NOAA Fisheries primarily responsible for marine species and the Service for land and freshwater species. Under the ESA, other federal agencies must consult with the Service and NOAA when their activities have the potential to impact federally endangered or threatened species.

The biological opinions analyze the effects to ESA-listed species, including the threatened Delta smelt, endangered Sacramento River winter-run Chinook salmon, threatened spring-run Chinook salmon, threatened North American green sturgeon, threatened California Central Valley steelhead and endangered Southern Resident Killer Whales, which depend heavily on Chinook salmon for food.

The biological opinions recognize the uncertainty inherent in the dynamic ecology of the Delta and include a strong adaptive management component, where research, monitoring, and real-time tracking of fish populations and other factors will guide future operation of the new intakes.

"The wisest thing to do in the face of uncertainty is to monitor constantly, test hypotheses regularly, adjust operations accordingly, and reassess," said California Department of Water Resources (DWR) Acting Director Bill Croyle. "In the Delta, we always will be adjusting to improve resiliency and protect the environment. What won't change is our compliance with the state and federal Endangered Species Acts."

DWR owns and operates the SWP. The 29 public agencies contracting to receive SWP water serve more than 25 million Californians and nearly a million acres of irrigated agricultural land.

The biological opinions are important components of the analysis of the environmental effects of WaterFix. The Final Environmental Impact Report (EIR) and Environmental Impact Statement (EIS) released in December 2016 include measures to avoid or minimize impacts that could arise from the proposed project.

Once the EIR has been certified through completion of the California Environmental Quality Act process, the California Department of Fish and Wildlife will be able to consider whether to issue an "incidental take" permit for the construction and operation of WaterFix under the California Endangered Species Act.

These biological opinions will also be considered by permitting agencies, including the State Water Resources Control Board in its hearing now underway on a petition by DWR and the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation to allow for the change in points of diversion to add three new intakes on the Sacramento River as part of WaterFix. WaterFix would not change the volume of water to which the SWP and CVP are entitled to divert, but would add additional diversion points in a more environmentally protective place that also is easier to safeguard against natural disaster such as earthquake and sea-level rise due to climate change.

The Exciting New World of Snap On Dentures!

There are millions of people in the US who struggle daily with dentures. A majority suffer from discomfort as a result of loose or ill-fitting dentures. Many prosthetic wearers simply withdraw from any type of social engagement as a result of having to wear their dentures.

Now there is a solution to these issues: Implants with "Snap On" Dentures!

Whether you are new to dentures or have worn them for years, a snap on denture is a great solution to uncomfortable chewing and slippery painful dentures. There are several types of snap on dentures available, including snap on partials. If you already wear a conventional denture or partial denture, we can sometimes use your denture to accommodate the snaps to fit on your new dental implants.

If you are interested in learning more about improving your quality of life with an implant retained snap on denture or partial, please contact us for a FREE CONSULTATION today!
