Thank Goodness for Fair Oaks Boulevard 2nd Phase Completion!

County Supervisor Susan Peters (center) last week joined project workers and community leaders to declare the second phase of Fair Oaks Boulevard's revamp finished. The two-year project has improved safety, traffic-flow and aesthetics for several blocks of Carmichael's central corridor. Completion ends many months of traffic disruption.

She referred not just to the project's planning and construction stages but to winter-weather delays that pushed completion from early April to the third week of July. With a third and final phase slated to begin late next year, the Carmichael route once named Sacramento's ugliest street is already prettier. Sales Peachy for Rebuilt Business

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Roadside green grocers Rosemarie and Gordon Martell were not daunted by the recent heatwave. "When it's hot, we do extra well," rejoices Rosemarie Martell. "That's when people crave the freshest produce."

She and the whole Martell clan recently celebrated community togetherness at the re-dedication of the Farmer's Wife produce stand on Winding Way. One of Carmichael's longest-running businesses, the 41-year-operation suffered a tragic set back in 2015. After arson fire levelled their landmark roadside store, rebuilding was slowed by the near-fatal illness of coowner Gordon Martell (79). But today he and Rosemarie (76) thank family, customers and community for supporting his recovery and their $50,000 store reconstruction.

As the Martells and Carmichael Chamber of Commerce members snipped a re-opening ribbon, the vendors recalled their heartbreaking – then heartwarming -- experiences. Two summers ago, they found their business burned to the ground. Rosemarie faced the ashes with a vanload of fresh strawberries and nowhere to sell them. "I drove to Walmart and bought five tables," she says. "When I got back to the stand, I found customers had brought tents and tables. They helped me set up so we could do business. I was crying and hugging people all day long. I realized then they weren't just customers – they were family."

farm-to-fork was fashionable, the Martell's seven-acre garden still produces vegetables and fruit for roadside sale. A longserving staff, including four generations of the Martell clan, assist customers. Seventeen-year retainer Cirilo Ruiz still tends the suburban oasis; resident poultry lay fresh eggs. Through the 2016 growing season, lumber lay on the ground as sales continued under temporary shelter.

As it has done since before

Reconstruction halted when Gordon was hospitalized. "We didn't know whether he would recover," recalls Rosemarie.

Community again helped the vendors. Customers made donations; children offered lemonade stand proceeds. "My son-inlaw's Mormon Church friends came to the hospital and prayed for us," says Rosemarie. "The Lord works in mysterious ways. Gordon got better. He still drives our truck to pick up supplies. I was crying and hugging people all day long. I realized then they weren't just customers – they were family.

"We believe hard work keeps you well," she says. "It's also good for the soul. We're so happy to see our loyal customers again every spring when the asparagus and strawberries start. People tell us every day they're grateful we stayed open. That's why we can never give up. We're happy to keep going as long as our heath allows. We'll never be rich but we love our customers and we love what we do."

County Making Commitment to Homeless Initiatives

Sacramento County Special Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - With the approval of the recommended budget for Fiscal Year 2017-18 on June 14, the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors highlighted the County's commitment to addressing homeless initiatives with an additional $6.2 million directed toward those efforts.

The enhanced funding comes on top of the already more than $40 million Sacramento County spends annually on homeless services.

"While the County addressed a number of service and program issues with enhanced funding for Fiscal Year 2017-18, our biggest additional investment overall was directed towards efforts to reduce homelessness," said Board Chairman Don Nottoli, Supervisor, District 5.

As the major funder of homeless services—including shelters and transitional housing, rehousing assistance—as well as the largest provider of social services, Sacramento County has committed to working in partnership with government partners and community stakeholders to continue to develop and deliver the most impactful solutions to homelessness.

Following several public workshops in 2016 and 2017, the Board of Supervisors endorsed the following initiatives for FY 2017-18:

County Initiative #1: Improve Family Crisis Response and Shelters

This initiative seeks to shelter more families annually by helping them connect to assistance and return to housing more quickly. The new shelter system will prioritize unsheltered homeless families and improve access for all homeless families through reduced entry requirements and greater accommodation of families with complex needs (such as those with health or behavioral health needs).

- By using more flexible County general fund dollars, diversion services will be funded to help some families keep their existing housing and avoid a shelter stay altogether.
- Recognizing that some families may benefit from more long-term support, the County will also fund a small through eight residential (267 units) and nonresidential programs. In addition to offering life skills, employment preparation and vocational training, VOA currently engages with over 200 businesses in its job placement services.

This initiative identifies funding to continue operations at MCC.

County Initiative #3:

- Full Service Re-housing Shelter
 This initiative seeks to reach persons experiencing homelessness who have complex behavioral and/or physical health issues that often prevent them from engaging in shelter services.
- The shelter would include 24-hour dormitory accommodations for up to 75 individuals at a time, with consideration for partners, pets and possessions, and include meals, showers and laundry facilities.
- On-site case management would focus from day one on connecting participants to stable income, public benefits and permanent housing as well as to essential health services.
- As proposed, the Full Service engagement, "whatever it takes services," and ongoing housing subsidies to engage property owners and stably rehouse the target population. As proposed, FSRP would rehouse up to 250 individual and family households in the first year of the program.

In addition to these initiatives, the Board of Supervisors (acting as the Housing Authority of the County of Sacramento) directed SHRA to initiate the process to increase Public Housing resources for homelessness, including:

- Limited Preference Allocation of 150 "turnover vouchers" annually (see #4 above);
- Up to 375 project-based vouchers over three years to support new or existing permanent supportive housing;
- 50 vouchers over three years to help current supportive housing tenants "move on" to affordable housing and serve new families in need of the intensive services; and
- 100 vouchers for homeless youth participating in a new federal grant called "P3".

County Initiative #2: Preserve Mather Community Campus

- Operating on a unique Countyowned property, Mather Community Campus (MCC) has played an important role providing transitional housing, employment services, and recovery support for individuals and families experiencing homelessness in Sacramento since 1996.
- In 2016, the Volunteers of America (VOA) served over 885 individuals, families, former foster youth, and veterans serve up to 250 to 300 persons annually.

County Initiative 4: Flexible Supportive Re-Housing program

- The County proposes a new Flexible Supportive Re-housing Program (FSRP) that would provide highly flexible re-housing and stabilization services to persons who have experienced long-term homelessness, who frequently utilize costly County services (such as behavioral health, emergency response, or jail), but who could, with the right assistance, stabilize in permanent supportive housing.
- The program would provide a highly flexible solution, employing proactive of Homelessness Initiatives Cindy Cavanaugh said, "Over the past year, the County has worked with our partners and stakeholders to build on what's working and to create new solutions and pathways out of homelessness. This year, the Board of Supervisors made a significant investment to not only improve existing programs but to create new County programs that provide concrete support to families and individuals in their transition to permanent homes, employment, and restored lives.

Eastwood Film Casts Real Local Heroes

Skarlatos, Sadler and Stone being honored at the Sacramento parade on Sept. 11, 2015

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - First they were just a trio of childhood buddies. Then, as fate would have it, they became hometown heroes, then authors.

Now Alex Skarlatos and Spencer Stone of Carmichael, and Anthony Sadler of Oak Park, will be movie stars, playing themselves in a film about how they collectively helped thwart what is believed to have been an attempted terrorist attack while traveling together aboard a Paris-bound train in 2015.

After months of speculation, Director Client Eastwood has announced Skarlatos, Sadler and Stone will be cast as themselves in the film, The 15:17 to Paris, based on the book the trio co-wrote describing their experience, The 15:17 to Paris: The true Story of a Terrorist, a Train, and Three American Heroes.

It was announced in April that Eastwood had signed on to direct production of the script, written by a relative newcomer, Dorothy Blyskal. In June, Hollywood trades reported Eastwood had also cast Kyle Gallner, Jeremie Harris, and Alexander Ludwig to star as Skarlatos, Sadler, and Stone, respectively. But earlier this month Eastwood announced plans to cast the three real heroes instead.

The film will traverse the lives of the three men, beginning with their childhood years growing up in Carmichael and their days as students together at Freedom Christian School, where they met Sadler, culminating in the 2015 train attack and aftermath.

On Aug. 21, 2015, the three friends were on a sightseeing excursion, traveling from Amsterdam to Paris aboard the Thalys train They were barely over the border from Belgium when a heavily armed Ayoub El-Khazzani, of Moroccan decent, is reported to have opened fire on the train. After several passengers attempted to stop El- Khazzani, Sadler, Stone and Skarlatos took quick action, tackling the suspect to the ground and saving potentially hundreds of lives, considering the cadre of weapons the man had brought on board.

Stone was stabbed in the neck and face by the assailant during the incident. Skarlatos seized El-Khazzani's rifle once he was subdued and used it to beat him unconscious. All three men were later awarded the Legion of Honour, France's highest decoration for acts of bravery.

Former Sacramento Mayor, Kevin Johnson, held a parade to honor Skarlatos, Sadler and Stone on Sept. 11, a month after the train attack. Stone was also awarded a United States Air Force Airman's Medal and a Purple Heart at a ceremony held at The Pentagon.

According to Variety, a principal film trade magazine, Eastwood will produce The 15:17 to Paris with Tim Moore, Kristina Rivera and Jessica Meier. Warner Bros. will codistribute the film with Village Roadshow Pictures. The film continues the thread of much of Eastwood's recent work directing "real-life" hero stories, including the box office hits, American Sniper and Sully. \star

Riley Reviews

HIGHLIGHTS HEROIC SURVIVAL

A Film Review by Tim Riley

DUNKIRK (Rated PG-13)

British director Christopher Nolan, acclaimed filmmaker of "The Dark Knight" trilogy and "Inception" among others, has created a masterpiece of wartime survival based upon a crucial chapter in the history of World War II in the epic "Dunkirk."

At the outset of "Dunkirk," the credits make it clear this is more than a war film, noting that the Allied forces were surrounded by the German army on the beaches of the French coastal city, merely 26 miles away from Great Britain, separated by the seas of the English Channel.

Yet for approximately 400,000 British and Allied forces, including French, Canadian and Belgian soldiers, survival was very much in doubt as air bombardments from the Luftwaffe threatened to sink all ships. The troops were hoping for deliverance and a miracle.

In late May 1940, the outcome of the war on the European front was very much in doubt even before the United States entered the fray in December 1941, when days after Pearl Harbor the Germans declared war on us.

History could have been quite different without the successful rescue operation at Dunkirk. Nolan effectively captures the precarious nature of the evacuation that occurred over the course of more than an intense week.

The structure of "Dunkirk" is fascinating in its execution. Three parallel stories are woven into one central theme. A battle in the air is short-lived, the flotilla of rescue boats occupies a day and the evacuation on the beachfront lasts more than a week.

If "Dunkirk" has one character to serve as the Everyman, it could fall to British soldier Tommy (Fionn Whitehead) who barely survives enemy fire in a neighboring town only to find himself stranded on the Dunkirk beach with hundreds of thousands awaiting their fate.

It's through Tommy's experiences, either trying to get a wounded soldier onto a Red Cross hospital ship that is soon bombed by the Germans or holed up with other scared young soldiers in the hull of a boat full of leaks, that we see the harrowing ordeal of the evacuation.

Meanwhile, as naval Commander Bolton (Kenneth Branagh) and ranking Army officer Colonel Winnant (James D'Arcy) organize the logistics of boats and ships docking in the challenging shallow waters, the RAF Spitfires offer the only credible line of defense.

A few hardy fighter pilots take on the superior German airpower with brilliantly staged dogfights over the English Channel. The director's keen sense of realism shows how difficult it is to align an enemy target for a direct hit with machine gun fire in tight aerial engagements.

The senior RAF pilot is Farrier (Tom Hardy), who turns out to be the heart and soul of the aerial dogfights as he defies the logistics of fuel capacity to continue the fight until he can no longer safely return to the home base.

The interesting thing about the pilots is that their heroism is realized only by restricted movements in small cockpits with just expressive looks hidden mostly behind protective masks. Tom Hardy has carried this off before as the masked Bane in a Nolan-directed "Batman" film.

Back in coastal England, a flotilla of pleasure craft and small boats are recruited from private citizens to undertake a seagoing rescue. Mark Rylance's Mr. Dawson, motivated by patriotism, steers his small boat across the Channel with help from his son and another teen boy.

If Tommy stands for the everyday soldier, then Mr. Dawson is the embodiment of the citizen effort at sea. His journey is not without peril or added tension when he rescues a shell-shocked sailor (Cillian Murphy) who is adamantly opposed to returning to the battle scene.

On the whole "Dunkirk" is an ensemble film, even if standout performances come from young Fionn Whitehead and the middle-aged Mark Rylance. In any case, it's a story told mostly through action and not an excessive amount of dialogue or any backstory.

In "Dunkirk," Nolan captures the spirit of heroic acts, whether it's from the RAF Spitfire pilots fighting until their fuel runs out or ordinary citizens entering the dangerous mission with pleasure craft to rescue stranded soldiers.

"Dunkirk" just might be a film for the ages, a seriousminded effort that defies the usual escapist fare that dominates the summer box office. This is about heroism, though often nuanced by human errors, without silly capes and superpowers.

Using the grandchild for money Dear Dave.

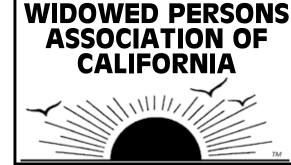

My wife and I have been helping our adopted daughter financially for some time. She's 25, has been married for three years, and we don't see this cycle stopping anytime soon. The worst part is, they will often throw in that our grandchild will go without something unless we help. We're certain this isn't teaching them to stand on their own feet, but we don't know what else to do.

Dear David,

- David

You're right about one thing. It's time they both learned how to handle money like mature, responsible adults. I don't know how much your tried to teach her about finances when she was growing up, but it sounds like this "needing help" thing is turning into an endless cycle.

You're giving them money left and right, and it's not working. You're giving them fish, and you've heard that whole saying. You could also teach them to fish and then not give them any fish,

OFFICE HOURS 10:00am - 3:00pm Monday - Friday (916) 972-9722

but I like a third choice in this scenario — give them fish only if they take fishing lessons. They get no more money from you unless they get financial counseling together and make a serious move toward straightening up their lives.

If they try to play on your feelings by saying your grandchild is hungry, tell them to send the child over for a meal. If they run out of money until payday, tell them to go to their financial counseling session to find answers. Right now, every time they have a problem they call mom and dad. Guess what? They don't have any problems as long as you're doing what you're doing.

Love them well. Hold their hands and say, "When I was your age, I wish someone had done this for me. I'm not going to give you any more money unless you go to financial counseling sessions regularly and together. If you do this, turn in a budget to us and let us coach you on how to be adults and handle your own money well, we'll help and set up a matching system. If you don't do the matching part though, you won't see anything from us."

They've figured out if they hold your feet to the fire when it comes to this grandbaby, you're going to open the wallet. They're playing you right now, and it's not to their benefit — or yours! —Dave

Dur

Borrow against retirement? Dear Dave,

I have an opportunity to take a loan against my 401(k) retirement, and pay myself interest. Is this a good idea?

- Susan

Dear Susan,

Actually, you'll end up cost-ing yourself interest. Never take a loan against your retirement!

When you pay interest against your retirement, you cost yourself interest. If you leave the company — which you will someday — the loan against the 401(k) is due within 60 days. If you don't pay it off, they consider it an early withdrawal and you'll get taxed and penalized big-time.

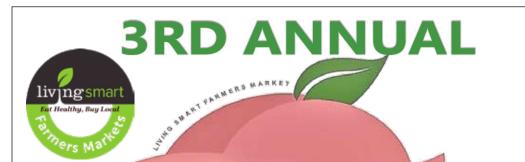

If you have a certifiable emergency, like owing the IRS or facing a foreclosure, you may have to withdraw some. You'll still get taxed, but please don't ever borrow against retirement! —Dave

Senator Gaines Reacts to Governor Signing Cap-And-Trade Bill

Senator Ted Gaines

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Senator Ted Gaines (R) issued the following statement on July 25th regarding Governor Brown's signing of Assembly Bill 398, the extension of California's cap-and-trade program.

'Cap-and-trade is bait and switch."

"Governor Brown is full of talk about cap-and-trade

'benefits' we never verify and jobs we never see. What we do see are electricity rates that are 50-percent higher than the national average and a million California households living in energy poverty and struggling to get by because we push power prices up beyond affordability.

"California just passed a new gas tax that will add twelve cents to the cost of every gallon of gasoline starting this fall. This cap-and-trade extension could add about another seventy-three cents a gallon on top of that. While the rest of the country is paying $2 a gallon for gas, we are going to be paying a dollar and a half a gallon just in taxes and climate fees!

"Governor Brown and his cadre of climate change extremists won't be happy until California leads the nation in wind, solar and poverty.

"This so-called historic agreement is really just a big fat energy tax. Californians will have to use less but pay more for it. That is a rotten deal for our families and businesses.

"I am going to protect California's poor and working class, not double their fuel costs to possibly make some miniscule difference in the sea level in the year 2200 or to get a pat on the back from global elites."

Senator Ted Gaines represents the 1st Senate District, which includes all or parts of Alpine, El Dorado, Lassen, Modoc, Nevada, Placer, Plumas, Sacramento, Shasta, Sierra and Siskiyou counties.

Another Big Gas Tax by Brown

California Drivers Will Soon Pay at Least an Additional $0.63 per Gallon for Brown's Pet Projects

By Nghia Nguyen

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The Governor signed Assembly Bill 398 (Eduardo Garcia, D-Coachella) on July 25th, 2017, an onerous measure that will raise an additional $0.63 per gallon in taxes on California drivers.

In total, drivers will be forced to pay an additional $0.82 per gallon once the gas taxes passed earlier this year - which include Senate Bill 1, the largest car the largest car and gas tax in the state's history - take effect.

"Economists, and even the Governor's own financial experts, are predicting an impending economic downturn," said Senator Jim Nielsen (R-Tehama), Vice Chair of the Senate Budget Committee. "How can the Governor and other Sacramento politicians take money away from everyday Californians when they know of a looming recession?"

"Families' weekly budgets will take a heavy hit once drivers find themselves paying an additional $10 - at least - each time they fill up.

'Will these taxes be repealed if, and when, our economy slumps and Californians begin to lose their jobs?"

In April, the Governor signed and gas tax in the state's history. SB 1 levied a $0.19 per gallon increase, in addition to other taxes, to generate $52 billion based on promises by Sacramento politicians that they would invest tax monies in the state's roads and highways. In reality, the measure included loopholes to allow for money to be diverted to the beleaguered high speed rail, park bathroom maintenance and land purchases for animal travel, among many other pet projects.

January 2013, Senator Nielsen represents the Fourth Senate District, which includes the counties of Butte, Colusa, Glenn, Placer, Sacramento, Sutter, Tehama and Yuba.

The Decluttering Question of the Day

In a recent article I wrote about decluttering I said, "In deciding what to keep and what to get rid of, ask this question: 'Would I buy this at Goodwill?" Just that question opens your eyes to the item you're looking at. If you were at Goodwill, would you buy this? Because when you're buying something secondhand, you take your blinders off and put your examination lenses on.

At home, your blinders allow you to relax in private and not see what you don't want to see, just like your sunglasses keep the sun from hurting your eyes. Your home isn't subject to scrutiny until you're going to have company at which time you get out your examination glasses and see with "company eyes."

If you'll put your timer on for 15 minutes and spend that time looking for stuff you wouldn't buy at Goodwill, you'll probably be able to fill up a box to give away or pitch. As I wrote that sentence, it inspired me to do just that. So, I'll be back in 15 minutes if I don't get sidetracked and end up taking a bath or sweeping the deck.

I'm baaaack! Well, with my blinders off, I discovered six sweaters, three shirts, two pairs of sandals and one dress that were worn-out. No they were exhausted! When you wear something that looks tired, there's a good chance it'll make you feel and look tired too. With my scrutinizing lenses in place, and the question in mind 'Would I buy this at Goodwill?' my answer for each item was "No Way!"

This is a fun exercise, especially this time of year. Before you store your winter clothes, get those scrutinizers on and go over each garment with the question 'Would I buy this at Goodwill?' (I found most of my "fatigued garments" in the pile of winter clothes that were ready to be stored.) When I pulled out my summer clothes I caught the two pairs of sandals I'd stored last fall that slipped past my scrutiny.

Isn't it amazing what clarity does for us? Don't you just love understanding something that you didn't "get" and then you do? When you suddenly realize something you didn't realize before, you might say, "Oh, now I see," or "My eyes were opened."

When you come up with an idea you hadn't thought of before, it excites you and you want to share it. Getting an idea is what is at the core of every business. Blue cheese comes to mind. If you like blue cheese, you can probably thank someone who got the idea and the nerve to taste milk that had really gone bad and had been invaded by mold. Think of having the nerve to even try it when it looked and smelled so bad. And then to have to wait to see if you're going to die or become paralyzed would be a whole other issue!

The wonderful thing about clarity is, once you know, you can't unknow it.

Now you know how to look at your stuff with new eyes and you know the question, so put on your scrutinizers and go fill a box in 15 minutes.

IRS Expands Taxpayer Services Adds New Features to Taxpayers Online Account

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Internal Revenue Service has announced the addition of several new features to the online account tool first introduced late last year as part of the IRS's commitment to improve and expand taxpayer services.

The online account allows individual taxpayers to access the latest information available about their federal tax account through a secure and convenient tool on IRS.gov. When it first launched in December 2016, the tool assisted taxpayers with basic account inquiries such as information about their balance due and access to the various IRS payment options. Since then, the IRS has added new features allowing taxpayers to: View up to 18 months of tax payment history; View payoff amounts and tax balance due for each tax year; Obtain online transcripts of various Form 1040-series through Get Transcript;

Give feedback on their experience with their online account and make suggestions for improvements.

"We are constantly looking for ways to improve taxpayers' interactions with the IRS and adding these new features to the taxpayer's online account is an important step in that direction," said IRS Commissioner John Koskinen. "The IRS is committed to serving taxpayers in multiple ways and now taxpayers who want to interact digitally with us in a secure environment have access to even more helpful features."

Before accessing the tool, taxpayers must authenticate their identities through the rigorous Secure Access process. This is a two-step authentication process, which means returning users must have their credentials (username and password) plus a security code sent as a text to their mobile phones.

Taxpayers who have registered using Secure Access for Get Transcript Online or Get an IP PIN may use their same username and password. To register for the first time, taxpayers must have their personal and financial information including: Social Security number, specific financial information, such as a credit card number or loan numbers, email address and a text-enabled mobile phone in the user's name. Taxpayers may review the Secure Access process prior to starting registration.

As part of the security process to authenticate taxpayers, the IRS will send verification, activation or security codes via email and text. The IRS warns taxpayers that it will not initiate contact via text or email asking for log-in information or personal data. The IRS texts and emails will only contain one-time codes.

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) -Chairman Ken Cooley (D-Rancho Cordova) of the Joint Committee on Rules convened the second of several hearings to examine the condition of the State Capitol Building Annex and the Legislature's options for dealing with California's aging seat of government on July17th, 2017.

"The functionality of our State Capitol Annex is key to our ability to govern," said Chairman Cooley. "Today's hearing made clear that the current status of our building does not match our basic needs as a co-equal branch of government. Our partners in the Executive branch stand ready to help move us forward to build a 'People's House' we can all be proud of for the next century."

Testimony at the committee began with strong statements of commitment from Marybel Batjer, Secretary, Government Operations Agency and Daniel C. Kim, Director, Department of General Services (DGS) for the Legislature's endeavor. Jason Kenney, Chief, Project Management and Development Branch, DGS then gave a presentation regarding the current conditions and status of the building and what next steps can be taken.

Mr. Kenney remarked on lines legislative control over the

the fact that the Capitol's East Annex was finished in 1952 and was designed for a part-time Legislature and before modern technology. Today, the Annex's wear and tear has significantly increased beyond its original intended usage. There have not been any significant renovations to the major systems in need of repair. Many "band-aids" have been used, but most upgrades cannot be done while the building is occupied. According to Mr. Kenney, this project offers the Legislature an incredible opportunity to make significant upgrades to security, technology, and the free movement of people. He also spoke about the planning process to identify space for lawmakers and staff during construction and potential Capitol Park impacts.

Diane Boyer-Vine, Legislative Counsel, next spoke on the law and legal precedent for Capitol projects. She remarked that the Legislature is the law-making branch and that this is reflected in the law governing the Capitol, with the exception of the first floor that houses the Governor and Lieutenant Governor and is overseen by DGS. She also described the funding that was set up by SB 836 of 2016, which also outbuilding and its zoning.

One of Chairman Cooley's primary considerations has been to engage security partners from the beginning so that safety components are integrated into the initial design as opposed to attempting to fit these needs as an afterthought into an already re-constructed building. To conclude the Joint Rules hearing, a presentation on public building design considerations by Senate Chief Sergeant-at-Arms Debbie Manning, Assembly Chief Sergeant-at-Arms Bryon Gustafson, and California Highway Patrol Chief Chris Main reinforced the need to make security discussions a priority. Many security considerations in the Capitol have been a reaction to incidents at the Capitol or elsewhere and are outside of the basic architectural design. A more in-depth look at the particular security needs will be delivered to the Joint Committee on Rules during a closed meeting on August 22, 2017.

The Assembly maintains a website for the Architectural Program for California's Capitol at http:// annex.assembly.ca.gov/. The full video of the hearing is posted on the website.

Valley Fever Cases Increase in California

Special CDPH Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The

more than 250 cases per 100,000 people, were reported.

Valley Fever, also known as soil is disturbed. California Department of Public coccidioidomycosis, or cocci, is caused by the spore of a fun-especially if they work outdoors or participate in activities where

A person can reduce the risk of illness by avoiding breathing in dirt or dust in areas where Valley Fever is common. In these areas, when it is windy outside and the air is dusty, stay inside and keep windows and doors closed. While driving, keep car windows closed and use recirculating air conditioning, if available. If you must be outdoors, consider wearing a properly fitted mask (such as an N95 respirator mask which is widely available in retail stores), and refrain from disturbing the soil whenever possible. Employers should train their workers about Valley Fever symptoms and take steps to limit workers' exposure to dust. Most infected people will not show signs of illness. Those who do become ill with Valley Fever may have flu-like symptoms that can last for two weeks or more. While most people recover fully, some may develop more severe complications of Valley Fever which may include pneumonia, or infection of the brain, joints, bone, skin or other organs. If you think you have Valley Fever, you should contact your physician.

Health (CDPH) announced July 20th, 2017, a large increase in the number of reported Valley Fever cases in California with illness onset in 2016.

From January through December 2016, 5,372 new cases of Valley Fever were reported to CDPH corresponding to an incidence rate of 13.7 cases per 100,000 people. This is very similar to the most recent peak in 2011 (5,213 cases), which was the highest number of cases since individual cases were made reportable in 1995.

"People who live in or travel to areas where Valley Fever is common should take steps to avoid breathing in dusty air," said CDPH Director and State Health Officer Dr. Karen Smith. "If they develop flu-like symptoms, such as cough, fever, or difficulty breathing, lasting two weeks or more, they should ask their doctor about Valley Fever."

Many counties in the Central Valley and Central Coast regions, where Valley Fever is most common, reported an increase in cases in 2016 compared with 2015. The largest number of cases and highest incidence rate in 2016 were in Kern County where more than 2,200 cases, or gus that grows in certain types of soil. In California, Valley Fever is most commonly reported in the Southern Central Valley and Central Coast. People get infected by breathing in spores present in dust that gets into the air when it is windy or when soil is disturbed, such as through digging in dirt during construction. The incidence of Valley Fever depends on a variety of environmental factors and types of human activity in areas where the fungus is present. Valley Fever symptoms can be similar to other illnesses and it is not always recognized: changes in testing, diagnosis and reporting patterns can also impact reported disease levels. It is unknown why there has been such a large increase in reported Valley Fever cases in California in 2016. While anyone can get Valley Fever, those most atrisk for severe disease include people 60 years or older, African-Americans, Filipinos, pregnant women, and people with diabetes or conditions that weaken their immune system. People who live, work, or travel in Valley Fever areas are also at a higher risk of getting infected,

Taking Humans Beyond the Moon

Aerojet Goes Three for Three in Testing for NASA's Space Launch System

STENNIS SPACE CENTER, MS (MPG)

- Aerojet Rocketdyne, a subsidiary of Aerojet Rocketdyne Holdings, Inc. (NYSE:AJRD), successfully tested its third RS-25 engine flight controller today at NASA's Stennis Space Center in Mississippi. The RS-25 engine will propel America's next-generation heavy lift rocket, the Space Launch System (SLS), into space. The flight controller tested today is slated to fly on the inaugural mission of the SLS which will propel the Orion capsule around the Moon and safely return it back to Earth.

"The Space Launch System is the rocket that will take humans beyond the Moon, and ultimately to Mars," said Aerojet Rocketdyne CEO and President Eileen Drake. "Evaluating the engine's flight controller under multiple conditions is one way we are ensuring that we are providing a safe, reliable engine to the nation for its deep space exploration efforts."

The flight controller translates the vehicle's commands into action while monitoring the health of the engine by making real-time adjustments to the speed of the turbopumps, combustion pressures, as well as the engine's thrust and propellant mixture ratios. Today's test focused on the engine thrust and mixture ratio precision operation.

"Achieving the optimum thrust and mixture ratio is crucial for creating an extremely efficient rocket engine," added Dan Adamski, RS-25 program director at Aerojet Rocketdyne. "The RS-25 is the most efficient booster engine in the world, which is why it is the right engine for human exploration of deep space."

Four RS-25 engines power the core stage of the SLS for 8½ minutes to help the SLS during its climb to space; combined, the engines provide the rocket with more than two million pounds of thrust. The SLS rocket provides an unmatched capability to launch the heaviest and largest payloads faster to any destination when compared with other existing or proposed launch vehicles in development, making it the ideal rocket to explore deep space.

Aerojet Rocketdyne is an innovative company delivering solutions that create value for its customers in the aerospace and defense markets. The company is a world-recognized aerospace and defense leader that provides propulsion and energetics to the space, missile defense and strategic systems, tactical systems and armaments areas, in support of domestic and international markets.
