Story and photos by Susan Maxwell Skinner

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) Carmichael Chamber of Commerce will celebrate a new culinary Center and a new Person of the Year on April 8th.

During the new Milagro Center's first banquet event, basketball legend, humanitarian, and former Carmichael resident Vlade Divac (pronounced "Divacs") will be named 2016 Person of the Year. Now general manager for the Sacramento Kings, the giant community figure will receive his award at the Chamber's annual awards night. "It's my honor," said the star. "I am proud to be part of the Carmichael community." His long-time buddy and fellow Kings hero Peja Stojakovic will join April 8 celebrations. The presence of both towering Serbs promises to lift the Chamber banquet's celebrity element to an unprecedented level.

Divac, 47, was a conquering hero for six seasons of the Sacramento Kings' most winning years. The seven-foot Center has also scored for the LA Lakers and Charlotte Hornets. The Kings retired his purple and white jersey in 2009 and last year appointed him team mentor and manager. Divac enjoys near-royal adulation in his Balkan homeland. Easter Egg Hunters are Pretty in Pink

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Attended by record numbers, the annual Carmichael Park egg scramble disposed of more than 5,000 treatfilled eggs last Saturday.

Easter celebrations brought nearly 1,500 children with baskets, buckets, and bags. Divided by age groups, the hunters swarmed an acre of spring-green grass and harvested the 2016 egg crop in a few frenzied minutes. Event host, a suave sixfoot bunny in bow tie and waistcoat, then dispensed cuddles and photo-ops. County Supervisor Susan Peters augmented the candy haul from her meet-the-constituents table. Children were further indulged with balloon art and crafts. The Sacramento Fine Art Center provided paints and paper for junior watercolorists. Many bunny portraits Carmichael Kiwanis Club served pancake breakfasts. Organized by the Carmichael Park District and Kiwanis, the egg hunt is a popular Carmichael tradition. Learn about other park activities at www. Carmichaelpark.com.

"I try to use my name as a positive influence," he explains. "In talking to children, I hope to share good values for their lives."

What's the Vlade/Carmichael connection? The area is like home turf for Serbian-born Divac. He and countryman Peja Stojakovic were recently seen dining at Yannis Greek restaurant on Fair Oaks Boulevard. Vlade evinced nostalgia for his old Kingsford Drive neighborhood. "Although I have lived in many places throughout my Former Carmichael Persons of the Year include sportscaster Jerry Reynolds, baseball hero Dusty Baker, Supervisor Susan Peters, District Attorney Jan Scully, radio host Kitty O'Neal, and Sheriff John McGinness.

Peacefully Confronting the Bullies Out There

By Steve Liddick

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - There are probably very few people who have never suffered bullying in some form in their lives. The small, the shy, the socially backward, the unattractive, sometimes even the popular are targets of those who would dominate them or bring them down in the eves of others.

The short answer might be to fight back, to lash out at the bully. But Clint Robinson, a Grand Master in a Korean form of martial art and owner of Robinson's Taekwondo (with locations throughout the greater Sacramento area), says a violent response should not be the first alternative.

"Taekwondo is an effective means of self-defense," he said, "but it comes with a sense of responsibility."

Still, pity the mugger who tries to rob Clint Robinson.

"Aggressive behavior is an imbalance of power," Robinson said. "The aggressors are out to swing the power their way." What he hopes to instill in his students is how to bring that power back to themselves and meeting violence with violence is not always the answer.

Speaking in the massive mirrored room that is his Marconi Avenue dojang (gym) in Carmichael where he teaches males and females of all ages, Robinson said, "First you have to identify bullying. Then we apply the four C's."

Caution: Observe the environment in which the bullying is taking place.

Control: Take control over our emotions and do not respond to petty things like name calling.

Confidence: Posture is important. Victims are often those who look scared. That's what the bully wants. Victims should try to look confident even if they are not. Don't slump and look defeated. Stand up and face the aggressor.

be prepared to take a stand. Sometimes there is no other choice but to fight back. If you're going to get into a fight anyway, don't just stand there. Hand out some of what you're getting.

No parent wants their child to get into fights. Robinson agrees and emphasizes that fighting, while sometimes necessary, should not be the first choice on the list

Clint Robinson can identify with those who are the younger, smaller, and more likely to be bullied. In elementary school he was a small, rowdy kid. Teachers decided he was disruptive because he was capable of working well above his grade level and bored with what was being taught. School officials skipped him ahead several classes to where the work would be challenging and perhaps inspire him to put aside the mischief.

Skipping the young Robinson out of his age group made him

Courage: When all else fails, the youngest in his class. That also might have been fodder for bullies. The boy was as friendly and outgoing as he is today, and he made a lot of friends. "Nobody wants to beat up a friend," he said.

Now in his 50th year of practicing the martial art, Robinson says those who come to him to learn how to defend themselves are not always properly motivated at the beginning. Improving the skills of bullies or turning victims into bullies is not his goal. Taekwondo is a striking and kicking art, but there is a gentle side that is taught in tandem.

Which goes back to one of the four C's in particular: Confidence. Knowing with certainty that he can defeat a bully physically, gives the Taekwondo practitioner great confidence. Choosing not to fight means he can simply walk away from the problem.

Robinson has made several educational trips to Korea—the birthplace of his chosen form of the martial arts. Just like many other professions, continuing education is a requirement. Why would a Grand Master need further schooling in a discipline in which he is already a proven expert who could give Bruce Lee, Chuck Norris, and Jackie Chan a few tips? "Research and development has come up with refinements." he said.

"Taekwondo is really simple," Robinson said. "With dedication a student can become fairly proficient in six months to a year." Practice and dedication are the key words here.

Of course, bullying does not stop at childhood. Every workplace seems to have someone who maneuvers to be the "top dog," even if it means weakening someone held in high regard by others.

While the striking and kicking aspect of Taekwondo probably would not be useful for workplace bullies, whose tactics are generally more into the psychological realm, the peaceful application of the four C's would certainly come in handy.

Taekwondo offers colored belts to symbolize levels of accomplishment, starting with white, then moving up the line to yellow, green, blue, red, and, finally, the coveted black belt. And, yes, Grand Master Clint Robinson wears the blackest of black belts.

California High Speed Rail Authority Forfeits Cap and Trade Money

Assemblyman Hadley's Bill Redirects Funds to Local Transit these cap and trade funds.

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Lost in the recent announcement that the California High Speed Rail Authority (CHSRA) is shifting its initial route to northern California was the fact that this route is ineligible for $600 million in cap and trade funds

In the 2014 budgetary process, the legislature designated cap and trade funds to the High Speed Rail project on the basis that it would provide pollution relief to underserved communities in the Los Angeles Basin. The new route now excludes these underserved communities and removes the entire basis for High Speed Rail receiving Today, Assemblyman David Hadley (R-Torrance) announced the introduction of Assembly Bill 1717, which will redirect those forfeited cap and trade dollars to fund local transit projects that directly benefit disadvantaged communities.

"The High Speed Rail Authority's decision to build the northern California route breaks the promise made to Southern California taxpayers. My legislation will ensure that cap and trade dollars go to the disadvantaged communities they are meant to help," said Assemblyman Hadley.

In 2014, the legislature passed Senate Bill 862, which provided that 25 percent of all cap and trade dollars must go toward benefiting low income Californians. With 60 percent of the state's disadvantaged communities in Southern California, the change in route for the High Speed Rail effectively makes this requirement impossible

"It's clear to me that SB 862 authorized funding only for the specific segment identified in the 2012 Business Plan. The bill did not contain language allowing CHSRA to change its mind in a future Business Plan on where funds can be spent," said David Schonbrunn, president of the Transportation Solutions Defense and Education Fund (TRANSDEF).

In its 2012 business plan, the CHSRA made a commitment to the California Legislature when it asserted that in exchange for cap and trade funding, it would build the first leg of the High Speed Rail System south, and would accelerate construction of the Burbank to Palmdale segment.

In a letter addressed to Senator Fran Pavley on June 14th, 2014, the HSRA committed to use the cap and trade funds granted to the agency through the Senator's SB

AB 1717 will devote the cap and trade funding that HSRA has forfeited to fund the Transportation Agency for the Transit and Intercity Rail Capital Program, which in turn will help the communities of southern California and contribute greatly to the reduction of greenhouse gas emissions for the state.

NFIB Reacts to Governor's $15 Minimum Wage Announcement

Voice of Small Business Ignored in Secretive Deal With Labor Union Leadership

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - NFIB/CA, the largest small business association in California representing 22,000 dues-paying small businesses and over 500,000 employees, issued the following statement in reaction to Governor Brown's $15 minimum wage announcement today:

"Today Governor Brown and legislative leadership demonstrated a disturbingly clear disregard for the voice of small businesses in California. At his press event, Governor Brown claimed he and legislative leadership listened to and considered the small business perspective in crafting this proposal. NFIB has yet to hear from Governor Brown, Senate Pro Tem De Leon, or Speaker Rendon," said NFIB/CA State Executive Director Tom Scott. "It is concerning that in the 21st Century we are witnessing dark closed-door deals with no public input or transparency."

Tom Scott added, "Just two months ago, the Governor opposed a $15 minimum wage on the grounds that it would have devastating fiscal consequences on both the public and private sectors. Although the Governor appears to have changed his opinion, he cannot change the facts: a reckless 50 percent hike in the minimum wage would have deep negative consequences including job loss and increased costs to job creators, senior citizens, and non-profits."

"Pro Tem De Leon repeatedly claimed this proposal is the 'pragmatic compromise' since the ballot initiatives had a more aggressive implementation timeline. Just because a policy is marginally better in his opinion, it does not make it supportable. There is nothing pragmatic about a 50 percent minimum wage hike, compounded by the existing 25 percent increase over the last two years. With regard to the 'safeguards' during economic downturns, we understand these would only delay the implementation momentarily—ultimately there would be no safeguard for small business, only a

NFIB California issued this statement earlier today ahead of Governor Brown's press conference. Keeping in mind that none of the described deal is currently in print nor has it undergone fiscal or policy analysis, NFIB remains strongly opposed to Senate Bill 3 (Leno) and intends to educate legislators and constituents in their respective districts about the devastating impacts this bill would have if signed into law.

Governor Brown, Legislators, and Labor Leaders Announce Landmark Agreement to Raise California's Minimum Wage

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Governor Edmund G. Brown Jr. recently joined legislators and labor leaders to announce a landmark agreement that makes California the first state in the nation to commit to raising the minimum wage to $15 per hour

The Governor was joined at the announcement by: Senate President pro Tempore Kevin de León: California Labor Federation president Kathryn Lybarger; SEIU United Long Term Care Workers' Union president Laphonza Butler; Burger King employee Holly Diaz; Senator Mark Leno; California Labor and Workforce Development Agency secretary David Lanier; United Domestic Workers of America executive director Doug Moore; Teamsters Union International vice president Rome Aloise; and United Healthcare Workers West executive board member Georgette Bradford.

"California is proving once again that it can get things done and help people get ahead," said Governor Brown. "This plan raises the minimum wage in a careful and responsible way and provides some flexibility if economic and budgetary conditions change."

Under the plan, minimum wage will rise to $10.50 per hour on January 1, 2017 for businesses with 25 or more employees, and then rises each year until reaching $15 per hour in 2022. This plan also recognizes the contributions of small businesses - those with fewer than 25 employees – to California's economy and allows additional time for these employers to phase in the increases.

The purpose of the plan is to increase the minimum wage over time, consistent with economic expansion, while providing safety valves - known as "off-ramps" - to pause wage hikes if negative economic or budgetary conditions emerge. The Governor can act by September 1 of each year to pause the next year's wage increase for one year if there is a forecasted budget deficit (of more than one percent of annual revenue) or poor economic conditions (negative job growth and retail sales).

Once the minimum wage reaches $15 per hour for all businesses, wages could then be increased each year up to 3.5 percent (rounded to the nearest 10 cents) for inflation as measured by the national Consumer Price Index.

This plan also phases in sick leave for In-Home Supportive Services workers starting in July

Governor Brown signed AB 10 in September 2013 to raise California's minimum wage 25 percent, from $8 to $10 per hour, effective January 1, 2016. There are approximately 7 million hourly workers in California, of which about 2.2 million earn the minimum wage.

Additional information on the minimum wage deal can be found

Mobile Homeowners Unite

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) -The Golden State Manufactured Home Owners League (GSMOL) 2016 Convention will be held at the Ramada Inn in West Sacramento on April 8th, 9th and 10th.

The statewide organization is a non-profit benevolent group for mobile home owners. Through a system of chapters in California, it is able to educate owners on their civil rights and responsibilities relative to living in a mobile home park.

During the convention, members will hold breakout sessions, panel discussion groups, and attend an Awards Banquet Saturday evening. Sessions include subjects concerning mobile home ownership, real estate sales and marketing, earthquake, and flood insurance, disaster preparedness, and evacuation planning.

Attorneys will present programs based on legal issues.

will be Senator Joe Dunn, former head of the Senate Select Committee on Manufactured Homes

Mobile homes offer lowincome seniors one of the last opportunities to live independently as the cost of other types of housing continues to escalate in California. They have the opportunity to have yards and gardens and to live in single unattached housing instead of small low cost apartments which may not coincide with their older vears.

GSMOL champions the property rights of homeowners and is an advocate for the members throughout California. GSMOL lobbies the legislature for fair and just protection under the law so owners can experience the quiet peaceful enjoyment of their mobile home communities. It strives to educate homeown-

Keynote speaker for the Banquet of their mobile home spaces. GSMOL proposes legislation for the benefit of mobile home owners and attempts to defeat legislation that would diminish the health and lifestyle of park residents.

The GSMOL corporate office is located in southern California, however there are hundreds of chapters located in northern California, on the coast, in the Sacramento area, in the Central Valley and in the foothills.

Basic schedule is Friday April 8th from 10 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday April 9th from 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday April 10th from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. For a detailed schedule and more information visit www.gsmol. org/convention/ or visit the Ramada Hotel at 1250 Halyard Drive, West Sacramento, Cailf., or call the hotel at (916) 371-2100.

Fast-Tracking TiSA: Stealth Block to Monetary Reform

Commentary by Ellen Brown

"It is well enough that the people of the nation do not understand our banking and monetary system, for if they did, I believe there would be a revolution before tomorrow morning." --Attributed to Henry Ford

In March 2014, the Bank of England let the cat out of the bag: money is just an IOU, and the banks are rolling in it. So wrote David Graeber in The Guardian the same month, referring to a BOE paper called "Money Creation in the Modern Economy." The paper stated outright that most common assumptions of how banking works are simply wrong. The result, said Graeber, was to throw the entire theoretical basis for austerity out of the window.

The revelation may have done more than that. The entire basis for maintaining our private extractive banking monopoly may have been thrown out the window. And that could help explain the desperate rush to "fast track" not only the Trans-Pacific Partnership (TPP) and the Trans-Atlantic Trade and Investment Partnership (TTIP), but the Trade in Services Agreement (TiSA). TiSA would nip attempts to implement public banking and other monetary reforms in the bud.

The Banking Game Exposed

The BOE report confirmed what money reformers have been saying for decades: that banks do not act simply as intermediaries, taking in the deposits of "savers" and lending them to borrowers, keeping the spread in interest rates. Rather, banks actually create deposits when they make loans. The BOE report said that private banks now create 97% of the British money supply. The US money supply is created in the same way.

Graeber underscored the dramatic implications: ". . . [M] oney is really just an IOU. The role of the central bank is to preside over a legal order that effectively grants banks the exclusive right to create IOUs of a certain kind, ones that the government will recognise as legal tender by its willingness to accept them in payment of taxes. There's really no limit on how much banks could create, provided they can find someone willing to borrow it."

Politically, said Graeber, revealing these facts is taking an enormous risk: "Just consider what might happen if mortgage holders realised the money the bank lent them is not, really, the life savings of some thrifty pensioner, but something the bank just whisked into existence through its possession of a magic wand which we, the public, handed over to it."

If money is just an IOU, why are we delivering the exclusive power to create it to an unelected, unaccountable, nontransparent private banking monopoly? Why are we buying into the notion that the government is broke—that it must sell off public assets and slash public services in order to pay off its debts? The government could pay its debts in the same way private banks pay them, simply with accounting entries on its books. What will happen when a critical mass of the populace realizes that we've been vassals of a parasitic banking system based on a fraud-that we the people could be creating money as credit ourselves, through publicly-owned banks that returned the profits to the people?

Henry Ford predicted that a monetary revolution would follow. There might even be a move to nationalize the whole banking system and turn it into a public

It is not hard to predict that the international bankers and related big-money interests, anticipating this move, would counter with legislation that locked the current system in place, so that there was no way to return money and banking to the service of the people—even if the current private model ended in disaster, as many pundits also predict.

And that is precisely the effect of the Trade in Services Agreement (TiSA), which was slipped into the "fast track" legislation now before Congress. It is also the effect of the bailin policies currently being railroaded into law in the Eurozone, and of the suspicious "war on cash" seen globally, but those developments will be the subject of another article.

TiSA Exposed

On June 3rd, 2015, WikiLeaks released 17 key documents related to TiSA, which is considered perhaps the most important of the three deals being negotiated for "fast track" trade authority. The documents were supposed to remain classified for five years after being signed, displaying a level of secrecy that outstrips even the TPP's fouryear classification.

TiSA involves 51 countries, including every advanced economy except the BRICS (Brazil, Russia, India, China, and South Africa). The deal would liberalize global trade in services covering close to 80% of the US economy, including financial services, healthcare, education, engineering, telecommunications, and many more. It would restrict how governments can manage their public laws, and it could dismantle and privatize state-owned enterprises, turning those services over to the private

Recall the secret plan devised by Wall Street and U.S. Treasury officials in the 1990s to open banking to the lucrative derivatives business. To pull this off required the relaxation of banking regulations not just in the US but globally, so that money would not flee to nations with safer banking laws. The vehicle used was the Financial Services Agreement concluded under the auspices of the World Trade Organization's General Agreement on Trade in Services (GATS). The plan worked, and most countries were roped into this "liberalization" of their banking rules. The upshot was that the 2008 credit crisis took down not just the US economy but economies globally. TiSA picks up where the Financial Services Agreement left off, opening yet more doors for private banks and other commercial service industries, and slamming doors on governments that might consider opening their private banking sectors to public ownership.

Blocking the Trend Toward "Remunicipalization"

In a report from Public Services International called "TISA versus Public Services: The Trade in Services Agreement and the Corporate Agenda," Scott Sinclair and Hadrian Mertins-Kirkwood note that the already formidable challenges to safeguarding public services under GATS will be greatly exacerbated by TiSA, which blocks the emerging trend to return privatized services to the public sector. Communities worldwide are reevaluating the privatization approach and "remunicipalizing" these services, following negative experiences with profit-driven models. These reversals typically occur at the municipal level, but they can also occur at the national level.

One cited example is water remunicipalization in Argentina, Canada, France, Tanzania, and Malaysia, where an increasing frustration with broken promises, service cutoffs to the poor, and a lack of integrated planning by private water companies led to a public takeover of the service.

Another example is the remunicipalization of electrical services in Germany. Hundreds of German municipalities have remunicipalized private electricity providers or have created new public energy utilities, following dissatisfaction with private providers' inflated prices and poor record in shifting to renewable energy. Remunicipalization has brought electricity prices down. Other sectors involved in remunicipalization projects include public transit, waste management, and housing.

Sinclair and Mertins-Kirkwood observe: "The TISA would limit and may even prohibit remunicipalization because it would prevent governments from creating or reestablishing public monopolies or similarly uncompetitive' forms of service delivery. . .

"Like GATS Article XVI, the TISA would prohibit public monopolies and exclusive service suppliers in fully committed sectors, even on a regional or local level. Of particular concern for remunicipalization projects are the proposed "standstill" and "ratchet" provisions in TISA. The standstill clause would lock in current levels of services liberalization in each country, effectively banning any moves from a market-based to a state-based provision of public services. This clause . . . would prohibit the creation of public monopolies in sectors that are currently open to private sector competition.

"Similarly, the ratchet clause would automatically lock in any future actions taken to liberalize services in a given country. . . . [I]f a government did decide to privatize a public service, that government would be unable to return to a public model at a later date."

That means we can forget about turning banking and credit services into public utilities. TiSA is a one-way street. Industries once privatized remain privatized. The disturbing revelations concerning TiSA are yet another reason to try to block these secretive trade agreements. For more information and to get involved, visit www.flushthetpp.org; www.citizenstrade. org/ctc/; www.citizen.org/tradewatch/; www.citizen.typepad. com/eyesontrade/.

The Exciting New World of Implant Supported Dentures

• Has the Security of a Fixed Bridge! • Easier to Maintain Good Oral Hygiene

There are millions of people in the U.S. who are edentulous (meaning without teeth) who struggle daily with dentures. A majority suffer from discomfort as a result of loose or illfitting dentures. Many prosthetic wearers simply withdraw from any type of social engagement as a result of having to wear their dentures.

Lower dentures almost never fit properly. They are loose fitting due to less surface area which can't create a suction, shrinking gum tissue and bone loss, which can cause irritation in the mouth, sores and pain. The only relief is using sticky dental adhesive to help it, but it is very messy, hard to clean off and needs multiple applications throughout the day.

Upper dentures are better than lower dentures due to a suction in the upper palate that keeps the denture in place. However, having the palate covered reduces the tastes of foods and the ability to tell the temperature of foods.

Partial Dentures can be a source of discomfort due to lack of supporting teeth or an illfitting partial. Partials also use clasps to secure to existing teeth which can be noticeable and can put added pressure to the existing teeth.

Now there is a solution to these issues: Implants with "Snap On" Dentures!

Whether you are new to dentures or have worn them for years, a snap on denture is a great solution to uncomfortable chewing and slippery painful dentures. There are several types of snap on dentures available, including snap on partials. We make your denture or partial fit and function in harmony with the space available in your mouth, and give custom attention to the delicate fabrication of your snap on denture.

If you already wear a conventional denture or partial denture, we can sometimes use your denture to accommodate the snaps to fit on your new dental implants.

If you are interested in learning more about improving your quality of life with an implant retainedsnap on denture or partial, please contact us for a FREE CONSULTATION today!
