A Tribute to Women's History Month

By Seraphim Winslow

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Artists, musicians, healers, and spoken word performers gathered together on Sunday, March 13th, at Enter the Orchid—a sacred space for art and healing on Stanley Avenue in order to celebrate National Women's History Month.

Featured talent included spoken word artists Dr. V.S.Chochezi and Staajabu, a unique mother and daughter team called "Straight Out Scribes"; Shamanic drummer Peter Salomone; Sacramento's premier American tribal style dance troupe Manasa with Sawako Ama, as well as ecstatic dancer Isaac Williams who said, "I am a warrior here to protect, hold, and nurture sacred healing space ' Williams' quest for a sacred space created the general ambience of Sunday's event. Though it rained heavily outside, the cozy, two-story art gallery warmed up to a lively afternoon of beauty, healing, and good vibes, not to mention tasty snacks and wine. It

Franklin Graham Headlines Prayer Tour

- SaveCalifornia.com invites you to join national Christian leader Franklin Graham in Sacramento, Thursday, March 31st, for an important election-year rally supporting faith, family, and freedom.

As our nation hangs in the balance, the "Decision America Tour" is your opportunity to unite and take a public stand for Godly, moral values and for your constitutional freedoms. It's a time to pray for God to do what only He can do, and a time for you to commit to what He's called you to do.

The vision: "Franklin Graham is traveling to all 50 states in 2016 to hold prayer rallies, to preach the Gospel, and to challenge believers to take a stand and take action. He'll be urging Christians to vote, to live out their faith in every part of their lives, and to pray for our nation just as Nehemiah cried out to God to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem and restore hope to His people."

This totally aligns with the moral, family values of SaveCalifornia.com—and you! "If people who know what is good are not the main influencers of government, how in the world can we have good government?" ~ SaveCalifornia.com President Randy Thomasson all got started with a drum blessing by Brenda Gustin, PhD, who leads BraveHeart Women events throughout the Sacramento area. Positive energy was further generated by keynote speaker, and wife of congressman Ami Bera, Janine Bera, M.D., who specializes in preventive medicine and the roles nutrition and exercise play in the overall management of chronic disease. Lanelle Roberts, the oldest child of Edith and George S. Spanky Roberts of the Tuskegee airmen, also spoke about her parents' legacy.

Gem and Mineral Show Set to Rock the Region

Story and photos by Anne Stokes

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- The Roseville Rock Rollers Gem and Mineral Society is set to host their 54th annual Gem and Mineral Show March 26th and 27th. The colorful event will take over the Placer County Fairgrounds with 60 vendors, lapidary demonstrators, and educational presentations for rock hounds of all ages. The Easter weekend event will run Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

With over 3,000 visitors in attendance last year, even more are expected this year. Actually, it's becoming one of the largest gem and mineral shows on the west coast, according to show chairman James Hutchings. But don't call it a gem fair. "It's not a 'fair,'" said Hutchings. "A gem 'fair' is a commercial thing; it has nothing to do with rocks and minerals."

will bring their collections of rough and polished gem stones, mineral specimens, fossils, meteorites, and jewelry collected from all over the world to be put on display or put up for sale. Collectors are also able to bring in rocks for expert identification.

"We've got mineral identification, so people can come and bring their rocks, their gemstones, we'll put them through the testing here and determine whether they have something really interesting, sort of like Antique Roadshow, and give them an idea of what they have," explained Hutchings.

The Roseville Rock Rollers started out in 1960 with a handful of rock hound enthusiasts who banded together over a shared love of earth sciences and an affinity for collecting. The group now includes over 280 adult and youth members who enjoy lapidary and jewelry-making classes, specimen collecting field trips,

"We put out about 50 display cases of the most exquisite collections in the possession of individuals who have spent their lifetime collecting the best of the best," said Hutchings. "They keep them at home and once a year they bring these mini-museums to our show to show people what they collect."

The show is a family friendly event, with special attention to educational opportunities for young rock hounds at the Kid's Junction, which featured jewelry arts and crafts and a fosminerals comes from.

"I've been collecting for years," he said. "I don't know, they're just cool things. I like fossils too, they're my favorite."

Cannon's father, Erick Hansen, who is also a Roseville Rock Roller member, brought his son to the show to cultivate his enthusiasm. "Cannon has always shown an interest in rocks; every time we go on a walk outside he's always looking on the ground trying to pick up rocks. He's kind of fascinated with that and it's a good way for us to teach him science," said the elder Hansen.

Hutchings hopes that such hands-on experiences with rocks, minerals, and geology will help to expand young minds. "Hopefully they're going to understand that the rocks in their back yard, the rocks along their driveway, are not the [same as the] rest of the rocks in the world," he said. "The rocks of the world are absolutely exquisite productions of Mother Nature. There are things you never knew existed, and that's the most common comment we get by people who have never been to a show: 'I had no idea that these things existed."

Girl Scouts Contral California Announces 2016 Girl Scout Cookie Season

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - It's Girl Scout Cookie time! Girl Scouts Heart of Central California (GSHCC), which serves Girl Scouts in 18 California Counties, is pleased to announce the 2016 Girl Scout Cookie Season. The following highlights this iconic program, which has taught financial literacy and business skills to millions of girls for nearly 100 years.

Girl Scouts of the USA operates through 112 regional councils. Locally, the council is Girl Scouts Heart of Central California (GSHCC).

This year, the program offered presales from Jan. 8th to Feb. 18. Local Girl Scouts set goals and develop business strategies within their troops, and began selling to friends and neighbors.

On Feb. 13th, approximately 85,000 cases of cookies were delivered to Sacramento and distributed to troops. On Feb. 15th, approximately another 28,000 cases of cookies will be delivered to Modesto and distributed to troops. This is called the Mega Drop! Once troops receive their cookies from the Mega Drop, they can begin distributing to their presale customers and hosting booth sales.

The Girl Scout Cookie Program focuses on teaching five skills: goal setting, decision making, people skills, money management, and business ethics. Booth sales are a key component for helping girls develop these skills in a real-world sales environment.

Troops offer nine varieties of cookies: Thin Mints, Caramel deLites, Shortbread, Cranberry Citrus Crisps, Thanks-a-Lots, Peanut Butter Patties, Peanut Butter Sandwich Cookies, Lemonades, and gluten-free Trios. The cookies are made by ABC Bakers exclusively for Girl Scouts. For the second year in a row, cookies are $5 per package.

Check out the evolution of this iconic program:

1960s:

During the 1960s, when Baby Boomers expanded Girl Scout membership, cookie sales increased significantly. Fourteen licensed bakers were mixing batter for thousands upon thousands of Girl Scout Cookies annually. And those bakers began wrapping Girl Scout Cookie boxes in printed aluminum foil or cellophane to protect the cookies and preserve their freshness.

By 1966, a number of varieties were available. Among the best sellers were Chocolate Mint (now known as Thin Mints), Shortbread, and Peanut Butter Sandwich cookies.

1970s

In 1978, the number of bakers was streamlined to four to ensure lower prices and uniform quality, packaging, and distribution. For the first time in history, all cookie boxes—regardless of the baker—featured the same designs and depicted scenes of Girl Scouts in action, including hiking and canoeing. And in 1979, the brand-new, Saul Basscreated Girl Scout logo appeared on cookie boxes, which became even more creative and began promoting the benefits of Girl Scouting.

Girl Scout Cookies for sale during the 1970s included Thin Mints, Peanut Butter Sandwich/Do-si-dos®, and Shortbread/Trefoils® cookies, plus four additional choices.

1990s:

In the early 1990s, two licensed bakers supplied local Girl Scout councils with cookies for girls to sell, and by 1998, this number had grown again to three. Eight cookie varieties were available, including low-fat and sugar-free selections.

GSUSA also introduced official age-appropriate awards for Girl Scout Brownies, Juniors, Cadettes, and Seniors, including the Cookie Activity pin, which was awarded for participating in the cookie sale.

Today:

They've recently redesigned Girl Scout Cookie packaging, announced National Girl Scout Cookie Weekend

essential to the program.

They've also introduced the Cookie Finder app, to help consumers find a local booth sale right nearby. Simply download the app to your smartphone (for iPhone or Android users) and enter your zip code for dates, times and loca-

2016 (Feb. 26th to the 28th), and introduced their very first gluten-free Girl Scout Cookie!

But the really big news is the launch of the Digital Cookie platform a fun, safe, and interactive space for girls to sell cookies, taking the iconic cookie program digital. A bold step into the future of the Girl Scout Cookie tions of booth sales in your area.

No smartphone? No problem—you can also use this feature through their website at girlscoutshcc.org/cookies.

Program, Digital Cookie introduces vital twenty-first-century lessons about online marketing, app usage, and ecommerce to Girl Scouts, who will be in the driver's seat of their own Digital Cookie businesses. Redemptive Action expect someone else to do some-

By Pastor Rich Reimer

"What's not right in my city?" This was a question I asked a group of twelve people at the recent Momentum Conference hosted by a page of hot items that provoke "righteous anger". Items included: potholes, gang tagging and graffiti, shoes on telephone wires, vagrancy, begging, human trafficking, illegal dumping, drug paraphernalia in parking lots, government manipulation and mismanagement of funds, and even dog poop in the park.

I then led this group in a quick overview of several instances in the Bible where "righteous anger" was expressed and action taken. I made sure they got the message of Saint Paul who said "Be angry but do not sin." (Ephesians 4:26)

I challenged the group to "own the problem or issue" rather than

thing about it. The next step is to "join forces" with others who see the same problems and then together take "REDEMPTIVE ACTION." Everyone in the group was motivated to do something but wanted to give their time and resources to actions that really helped.

It came to me that the God of your Bible faced the same predicament. He saw how the sin of our first parents tainted the entire human race. He knew it would take "REDEMPTIVE ACTION" to make humanity whole again. God chose not to just wave a magic wand and fix everything. Instead God started the solution with a man named Abraham and his family. God gave that family the 10 Commandments and other laws to follow.

But as we know, just making laws, doesn't mean people are going to follow them. So God decided to make his final redemptive effort personal by doing what only God could do. God entered our time and space in the person of Jesus. That is the Christian message of Christmas. Jesus, as God in the flesh, introduced God's will and power in person by healing diseases and transforming the human spirit by offering forgiveness. Jesus took redemptive action! Jesus died taking the sins of humanity upon himself and paid the ultimate penalty. This redemptive action was then confirmed, validated and approved by Jesus' resurrection from the dead on Easter Sunday!

In our group there was a man who said he had been homeless for almost a year. I asked him, 'What was it that became your first step out of being homeless'? He said he was sleeping on the porch of a church downtown. He had reached the "bottom". He cried out to God in that moment and he felt a divine presence come over him. He started thinking differently from that moment on. Redemptive action took place!Christmas, Good Friday, Easter Sunday is about celebrating the REDEMPTIVE ACTION of our Creator who out of love for humanity revealed Himself most completely in Jesus, solved our sin problem, and now awaits our humble cry for help!

Poor, poor pitiful Grant Napear. He sounds so deflated, and so does his sidekick, Jerry Reynolds. A lot of people would just love to have their jobs, but would also have to feel sorry for the guys and the jobs they must do these days.

That pair comprises the television broadcast team of your Sacramento Kings, a franchise that, in many ways, might be described as...well, pitiful.

This was supposed to be a season the Kings would make a run at the playoffs after nine years of not reaching the NBA's "second season." But led by a prima donna, coach-killing, perpetually-pouting superstar, a meddling owner that envisions an unique offense like the one he once had in CYO basketball, and an aging, grumpy (though highly-successful, ranking fourth all-time in wins) head coach dealing with his own health issues, it was foolish to think the current edition of the Kings would break through.

The subdued tones of Napear's voice as Sunday afternoon's home loss wound down --- 108-99 to the uninspiring Utah Jazz --spoke volumes about the state of the team, now 25-40 and thinking about next year.

As the Jazz scored at will during the third quarter, Reynolds remarked with exasperation, "That's way too easy. The fans are not liking that kind of defense."

You might be inclined to call it "Matador Defense," except that no Kings' defenders would waste their breath shouting out, "Ole!," nor would they flash any red capes around the rim, electing, instead, to wave an invisible white flag of disinterested surrender.

As the Jazz' lead grew to 22 points (soon to peak at 25), the fans at Sleep Train Arena awakened from their collective slumber, momentarily, to shower a chorus of "boos" upon their Kings as they left the floor for a timeout.

"The word I would use," said Napear, "is 'energy,' or lack thereof. I haven't seen any of that this afternoon from Sacramento." He later added, pointedly, "You've got to come out with some professional pride and some enthusiasm. This is what you are paid to do."

All-Star center DeMarcus Cousins, in his sixth season, fills up the stat sheets with impressive individual numbers, but can't get along with his coach and wouldn't be classified as a true team leader, often complaining about his personal frustrations. He just returned from a one-game suspension for conduct detrimental to the team, something that seems to occur quite often but usually goes by unpunished.

Cousins possesses undeniable talents but, so far, is not a winning player. He is a volume shooter and scorer, but plays defense when he feels up to it. He pads his rebounding totals by oftentimes being uncommitted to team defense and hanging around under the basket. When he handles the ball at the offensive end, teammates stand around watching to see what DeMarcus will do next.

The team seemed to have put together a better roster this season, but it turned out to be lacking in chemistry and loaded with fractured relationships that leads to disjointed play on the court, realized in their third-worst turnover percentage in the league.

Perhaps things will change when the sorry Kings move into their new downtown arena next season, but they just might need a new everything else, too. Poor Grant and Jerry are doing alright, but they do deserve a better game to call.

Meanwhile, there are others --besides any team that plays the 60-6 Golden State Warriors --- that also deserve our sympathy. Every March they are easy to spot just after the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Tournament bracket comes out. First, feel sorry for the members of the selection committee, just because they can never please everybody. Then, feel for the snubbed --- teams like St. Mary's College, Monmouth, Florida, San Diego State, South Carolina and all of those teams that won their conference regular-season titles but fell short in those dastardly conference tournaments and the automatic NCAA bids.

St. Mary's, 27-5 and regular-season co-champ of the West Coast Conference, defeated co-champ Gonzaga (a NCAA No.-11-seed) two out of three, but fell to the Zags in the WCC tourney title game. The Gaels lost at Cal (a best-ever, No.-4 seed, set to face Hawaii) in a hotly-contested game in the closing moments. Cal (23-10), lost late at Virginia (a No.-1 seed) early in the season. How might St. Mary's do versus Virginia at a neutral site? We'll never know.

Two losses to Pepperdine and what turned out to be a mediocre non-conference schedule hurt the Gaels. But SMC was tops in the nation in field-goal percentage (50.9), seventh in 3-point accuracy (41.3), fifth in scoring defense, third in fewest turnovers and No. 1 in assist/turnover ratio. Those are impressive figures against anybody --- they should've been in, but have been relegated to hosting New Mexico State in the NIT. Four teams selected over St. Mary's --- Wichita State, Vanderbilt, Tulsa and Michigan --- all had Ratings Percentage Index (RPI) worse than the Gaels. What's up with that? Sorry.

You can also have a little sympathy for the fates of the No.-16 seeds in The Dance --- they surely face a one-and-done, since no 16-seed has ever defeated a No. 1. But you could say, "They have a chance."

As the Major League Baseball season approaches, there are some rebuilding teams --namely Philadelphia, Colorado, Atlanta, Cincinnati, San Diego, Milwaukee, Seattle, Minnesota and, dare we say, Oakland --whose fans could be told that their teams have "no chance." Sorry.

But if you truly should feel sorry for anybody above everyone else, it's all of those young Little League players that had their Opening Day parades and earlyseason practices rained out.

Here's a Carrot, Please File Your Tax Return

By Christian Montgomery

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Internal Revenue Service (IRS) recently announced that it is holding $950 million in unclaimed refunds for tax year 2012. Maybe... This is not the first time the IRS has used a large estimated refund figure hoping to entice the public to file their missing tax returns. Last year's estimated refund figure for tax year 2011 was more than a billion dollars.

If you are enticed by the large refund figure, unfortunately the IRS doesn't have a large stack of $950 million designated for taxpayers to just pick up. However, if you are owed a refund for tax year 2012 and you fail to file your 2012 tax return by April 18th, 2016, then your refund is forever gone. That's not an exaggeration.

Unfortunately, there is a threeyear window by which you can claim a tax refund from the IRS. If the IRS really cared about the estimated $950 million being not refunded to the public, I'm sure it would have promoted the deadline sooner than just more than a month before the looming deadline.

According to I R S Commissioner John Koskinen as quoted in the IRS press release, "We especially encourage students and others who didn't earn much money to look into this situation because they may still be entitled to a refund. Don't forget, there's no penalty for filing a late return if you're due a refund."

The large estimated refund amount that was publicized was calculated by an estimated median refund potential of $718 and an estimated 1.037.600 returns that need to be filed. The IRS estimates 94,900 IRS returns in California returns need to be filed with a median estimated refund of $656.

If you are not due a refund, the IRS has a process for that scenario too, even if you don't file your tax returns. If you don't file a tax return, the IRS may file a tax return for you, assess a balance against you, and pursue you for the assessed balance. This is called a substitute for return. Additionally, collections on the substituted balance may continue against you even if you eventually file your missing tax return.

So, even if you were tricked into eventually filing your tax return by a likely exaggerated estimated refund figure, filing your missing tax return is still likely a good idea.

The school sure picked the right guy for the job. If you want someone who can stand out there every morning in heat and rain and snow and spring winds, just look for an old cowboy.

A Tribute to Women

"working to form a more perfect union honoring women in public service and government." In keeping with this aim, Joan Marie said, "In honoring National Women's History Month, I honor those who have come before us, those who are here today, and those who will come after us. I am compelled to devote the rest of my time here to creating as much beauty and peace as I can, to the best of my abilities." Marie added that she was proud to announce Enter the Orchid as Northern California's location and training center for Healing Hands - Healing Hearts, a non-profit dedicated to serving the critically, chronically, and terminally ill using touch-therapy.

Artists Shonna Daniels, Maia Huang, Birgitta McCarthy, Terrie Rockwell, Celia Sanchez, Alexis Scandalis Genung, and Theresa Polley-Shellcroft contributed to afternoon's purpose of honoring women with moving artwork that adorned the gallery walls during the event. A portion of the proceeds from the sale of these works went to Healing Hands - Healing Hearts. Many of these beautiful, unique, and sometimes unusual paintings, expressed the artists' deep desires, in the words of President Obama's Presidential Proclamation for Women's History Month 2016 "to honor the countless women who sacrificed and strived to ensure all people have an equal shot at the American dream." One such painting, by Terrie Rockwell, was a striking tableau featuring a wide panorama of women's history-from the mythical ingestion of the Edenic fruit to the 1966 Ford Thunderbird convertible in that fabulous feminist feature film "Thelma and Louise"—in a kind of mystical, mythical tribute to the lives of women throughout the ages.

Four eras of service. Clockwise starting at lower left: Sergeant Eunice Lycke, WWII Volunteer, North Carolina Traffic Controller, 1940 - 1942; Major Renee Marie, Army Medical Service Corps, 1983 - Present, Operation Enduring Freedom, Kabul, 2010. Captain Bobbi Knapp, Quin Nhon, Vietnam, Army Nurse Corps, 1968 - 1969; Sergeant Staajabu, Cuban Crisis, Admin Assistand, 1961-1963 and Journalist, 1984 – 1989. Each one of these ladies is a Peace Warrior. Photo by Joan Marie

Event co-organizer Pauline Haynes, a certified life coach, said that the 31 days of National Women's History Month can be used to do more than hold a mere trite celebration. Rather they should be seen as a way to get into the deep recesses of our souls. "If we don't speak out for whatever causes, whatever people are suffering injustices of one kind or another," Haynes said, "we will have to hang our head in the presence of our ancestors. I know I have a duty to always speak out for myself, and the ones who don't have a voice. Women's history is my history. Make it worth recording."

Exposing the Libyan Agenda: A Closer Look at Hillary's Emails

Commentary by Ellen Brown

Critics have long questioned why violent intervention was necessary in Libya. Hillary Clinton's recently published emails confirm that it was less about protecting the people from a dictator than about money, banking, and preventing African economic sovereignty.

The brief visit of then-Secretary of State Hillary Clinton to Libya in October 2011 was referred to by the media as a "victory lap." "We came, we saw, he died!" she crowed in a CBS video interview on hearing of the capture and brutal murder of Libvan leader Muammar el-Qaddafi.

But the victory lap, write Scott Shane and Jo Becker in the New York Times, was premature. Libya was relegated to the back burner by the State Department, "as the country dissolved into chaos, leading to a civil war that would destabilize the region, fueling the refugee crisis in Europe and allowing the Islamic State to establish a Libyan haven that the United States is now desperately trying to contain."

US-NATO intervention was allegedly undertaken on humanitarian grounds, after reports of mass atrocities; but human rights organizations questioned the claims after finding a lack of evidence. Today, however, verifiable atrocities are occurring. As Dan Kovalik wrote in the Huffington Post, "the human rights situation in Libya is a disaster, as 'thousands of detainees [including children] languish in prisons without proper judicial review,' and 'kidnappings and targeted killings are rampant.' "

Before 2011, Libya had achieved economic independence, with its own water, its own food, its own oil, its own money. and its own state-owned bank. It had arisen under Qaddafi from one of the poorest of countries to the richest in Africa. Education and medical treatment were free; having a home was considered a human right; and Libyans participated in an original system of local democracy. The country boasted the world's largest irrigation system, the Great Man-made River project, which brought water from the desert to the cities and coastal areas; and Qaddafi was embarking on a program to spread this model throughout Africa. But that was before US-NATO forces bombed the irrigation system and wreaked havoc on the country. Today the situation is so dire that President Obama has asked his advisors to draw up options including a new military front in Libya, and the Defense Department is reportedly standing ready with "the full spectrum" of military operations required."

The Secretary of State's victory lap was indeed premature, if what we're talking about is the officially stated goal of humanitarian intervention. But her newly-released emails reveal another agenda behind the Libyan war; and this one, it seems, was achieved.

Mission Accomplished?

Of the 3,000 emails released from Hillary Clinton's private email server in late December 2015, about a third were from her close confidante Sidney Blumenthal, the attorney who defended her husband in the Monica Lewinsky case. One of these emails, dated April 2nd, 2011, reads in part:

Qaddafi's government holds 143 tons of gold, and a similar amount in silver...This gold was accumulated prior to the current rebellion and was intended to be used to establish a pan-African currency based on the Libyan golden Dinar. This plan was designed to provide the Francophone African Countries with an alternative to the French franc (CFA).

In a "source comment," the original declassified email adds:

According to knowledgeable individuals this quantity of gold and silver is valued at more than $7 billion. French intelligence officers discovered this plan shortly after the current rebellion began, and this was one of the factors that influenced President Nicolas Sarkozy's decision to commit France to the attack on Libya. According to these individuals Sarkozy's plans are driven by the following issues:

- 1. A desire to gain a greater share of Libya oil production,
- 2. Increase French influence in North Africa,
- 3. Improve his internal political situation in France.
- 4. Provide the French military with an opportunity to reassert its position in the world,
- 5. Address the concern of his advisors over Qaddafi's long term plans to supplant France as the dominant power in Francophone Africa.

Conspicuously absent is any mention of humanitarian concerns. The objectives are money, power and oil.

Other explosive confirmations in the newly-published emails are detailed by investigative journalist Robert Parry. They include admissions of rebel war crimes, of special ops trainers inside Libya from nearly the start of protests, and of Al Qaeda embedded in the US-backed opposition. Key propaganda themes for violent intervention are acknowledged to be mere rumors. Parry suggests they may have originated with Blumenthal himself. They include the bizarre claim that Qaddafi had a "rape policy" involving passing Viagra out to his troops, a charge later raised by UN Ambassador Susan Rice in a UN presentation. Parry asks rhetorically:

So do you think it would it be easier for the Obama administration to rally American support behind this "regime change" by explaining how the French wanted to steal Libya's wealth and maintain French neocolonial influence over Africa-or would Americans respond better to propaganda themes about Gaddafi passing out Viagra to his troops so they could rape more women while his snipers targeted innocent children? Bingo!

Toppling the Global Financial Scheme

Qaddafi's threatened attempt to establish an independent African currency was not taken lightly by Western interests. In 2011. Sarkozy reportedly called the Libyan leader a threat to the financial security of the world. How could this tiny country of six million people pose such a threat? First some background.

It is banks, not governments, which create most of the money in Western economies, as the Bank of England recently acknowledged. This has been going on for centuries, through the process called "fractional reserve" lending. Originally, the reserves were in gold. In 1933, President Franklin Roosevelt replaced gold domestically with central bank-created reserves, but gold remained the reserve currency internationally.

In 1944, the International Monetary Fund and the World Bank were created in Bretton Woods, New Hampshire, to unify this bank-created money system globally. An IMF ruling said that no paper money could have gold backing. A money supply created privately as debt at interest requires a continual supply of debtors; and over the next half century, most developing countries wound up in debt to the IMF. The loans came with strings attached, including "structural adjustment" policies involving austerity measures and privatization of public assets.

After 1944, the US dollar traded interchangeably with gold as global reserve currency. When the US was no longer able to maintain the dollar's gold backing, in the 1970s it made a deal with OPEC to "back" the dollar with oil, creating the "petro-dollar." Oil would be sold only in US dollars, which would be deposited in Wall Street and other international banks.

In 2001, dissatisfied with the shrinking value of the dollars that OPEC was getting for its oil, Iraq's Saddam Hussein broke the pact and sold oil in euros. Regime change swiftly followed, accompanied by widespread destruction of the country.

In Libya, Qaddafi also broke the pact; but he did more than just sell his oil in another currency.

As these developments are detailed by blogger Denise Rhyne:

For decades, Libya and other African countries had been attempting to create a pan-African gold standard. Libya's al-Qadhafi and other heads of African States had wanted an independent, pan-African, "hard currency."

Under al-Qadhafi's leadership, African nations had convened at least twice for monetary unification. The countries discussed the possibility of using the Libyan dinar and the silver dirham as the only possible money to buy African oil.

Until the recent US/NATO invasion, the gold dinar was issued by the Central Bank of Libya (CBL). The Libyan bank was 100 percent state owned and independent. Foreigners had to go through the CBL to do business with Libya. The Central Bank of Libya issued the dinar, using the country's 143.8 tons of gold.

Libya's Qadhafi (African Union 2009 Chair) conceived and financed a plan to unify the sovereign States of Africa with one gold currency (United States of Africa). In 2004, a pan-African Parliament (53 nations) laid plans for the African Economic Community – with a single gold currency by 2023.

African oil-producing nations were planning to abandon the petro-dollar, and demand gold payment for oil/gas.

Showing What Is Possible

Qaddafi had done more than organize an African monetary coup. He had demonstrated that financial independence could be achieved. His greatest infrastructure project, the Great Man-made River, was turning arid regions into a breadbasket for Libya; and the $33 billion project was being funded interest-free without foreign debt, through Libya's own state-owned bank.

That could explain why this critical piece of infrastructure was destroyed in 2011. NATO not only bombed the pipeline but finished off the project by bombing the factory producing the pipes necessary to repair it. Crippling a civilian irrigation system serving up to 70 percent of the population hardly looks like humanitarian intervention. Rather, as Canadian Professor Maximilian Forte put it in his heavily researched book Slouching Towards Sirte: NATO's War on Libya and Africa:

[T]he goal of US military intervention was to disrupt an emerging pattern of independence and a network of collaboration within Africa that would facilitate increased African self-reliance. This is at odds with the geostrategic and political economic ambitions of extra-continental European powers, namely the US.

Mystery Solved

Hillary Clinton's emails shed light on another enigma remarked on by early commentators. Why, within weeks of initiating fighting, did the rebels set up their own central bank? Robert Wenzel wrote in The Economic Policy Journal in 2011:

This suggests we have a bit more than a rag tag bunch of rebels running around and that there are some pretty sophisticated influences. I have never before heard of a central bank being created in just a matter of weeks out of a popular uprising.

It was all highly suspicious, but as Alex Newman concluded in a November 2011 article:

Whether salvaging central banking and the corrupt global monetary system were truly among the reasons for Gadhafi's overthrow...may never be known for certain-at least not publicly.

There the matter would have remained-suspicious but unverified like so many stories of fraud and corruption-but for the publication of Hillary Clinton's emails after an FBI probe. They add substantial weight to Newman's suspicions: violent intervention was not chiefly about the security of the people. It was about the security of global banking, money and oil.
