LEARNING THE Hard Way From Mistakes

TALKING ABOUT THE BIG TOMATO

Artist Jian Wang Paints the Town

Jian Wang returns to his favorite spot in Carmichael to complete an American River landscape.

Story and photos by Susan Maxwell Skinner

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Chinese American artist Jian Wang touched American River shores during a rejuvenating winter return home. "I move trees around on my canvas: I lower and raise the cliffs and the water," he says. "The clouds and the rising sun at dawn are never the same. I walk to the river in the dark; sometimes deer are looking at Once, a dog walker took me by surprise. I had a painting on the ground. The dog was so excited, he jumped all over it. I kept a smile on my face so I wouldn't upset the lady but I was so mad at the dog. I never finished the canvas. I call it my 'Bad Dog Painting'." Currently based in Beijing, the painter/ sculptor is one of China's preeminent contemporary artists. A Wang figurative canvas was recently auctioned for the equivalent of $US 200,000. "Unfortunately, I'd sold it for $100,000 a year before," he winces. "Someone made a good investment." Wang is philosophic. "The sale still goes on the records," he explains. "Its price benefits the overall value of all my work."

Trained at CSUS after being "discovered" in China by Sacramento supporters, Wang established a local following for riverscapes, portraits and a still-life studies. Discovering an insatiable homeland appetite for his work Wang established a Chinese base in 2007 and has worked there since. During the 2008 Olympics, his canvases filled two massive salons in China's National Museum. Millions saw the full circle of his art. The one-man Beijing exhibit detailed Wang's training under Communist ideology before a 20-year Californian struggle to master modern style in California. Teamsters Endorse Scott Jones for Congress

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Teamsters Joint Council 7, representing 100,000 working men and women in 22 local unions in Northern California, the Central Valley, and Northern Nevada, has endorsed Sheriff Scott Jones for Congress in the 7th district.

"We are endorsing Scott Jones because of his strong stance against the Trans Pacific Partnership and commitment to protecting American jobs," said Rome Aloise, President of Teamsters Joint Council 7. "With 10,000 good-paying union jobs in California's vital dairy industry at stake, we need someone in this seat whose word we can count on. We are confident that Scott Jones is the right person for the job."

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - Ancestry had little to do with it. Irish and honorary Irish (including Italian, Hispanic, and even one Fijian fan) kicked up heels at Mission Oaks Community Center St Patrick's celebration last week.

Irish selections joined the eclectic lineup at a dance sponsored by the Carmichael facility. The free event gave license for outrageous emerald attire. More than 200 party-goers waltzed, jived and jigged like leaping leprechauns. John Skinner's band called the tunes. Geared to all ages, the celebration was one of a winter/spring series of free dances sponsored by County Supervisor Susan Peters

A party door prize went to the guest who got closest to guessing the number of coins in a "crock of gold." That the gold was actually tin foil and the 249 coins were chocolate did not deter the winner Continued on page 4 unimagined prices. Chinese critics saw him as a cultural breakthrough: from his subject matter, brush technique and extravagant use of paint, they marveled that a native artist was at last painting "without a Chinese accent." National Chinese networks have lately aired several hour-long documentaries dedicated to his work. The rock-star artist's personal blog has scored 2.5 million hits; his website has 860,000 visitors to date. "Being rediscovered in your homeland is heartwarming and humbling," admits Wang.

Neither has California has forgotten its adopted son. Wang has been invited to instruct at the Laguna College of Art this summer. On his last sojourn to teach figurative and landscape painting there, his 35-person courses filled almost as soon as they were announced. "It's thrilling to watch him work," comments a Sacramento fan. "He dumps colors on canvas like unsorted jewels. He brushes them around and from the vortex, raw faces quickly emerge. His genius directs each seemingly random stroke.'

Though Jian Wang longs for fresh air and the river that nourishes his heart, a continuing commute between two countries is his career prediction. Confirms the workaholic: "I miss my Sacramento friends; people who have supported me for years. But China is where the buzz is. Beijing is horribly polluted. It doesn't have Carmichael's beautiful yards and flowers. But that does not impact me much. I am always in my studio, working, working."

Veterans Writing War Stories

Story and photos by Steve Liddick

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - A character in John Steinbeck's classic novel "East of Eden" had suffered unimaginable pain and loss in his life. He was asked how he could live with those memories. He said, "I forget by remembering."

That concept is being applied to a small Sacramento area group of veterans of America's wars. A writing workshop doubles as a support group to help each to offset the trauma of battle by giving them a way to confront the demons they continue to carry with them.

Rancho Cordova Library Branch Supervisor Jill Stockinger coordinates the writing program that is funded by a four-year state and federal grant. She said veterans returning from war are an "underserved population," and those who still suffer the effects of war can benefit by writing. Therapeutic, of course, but the hope is that it will be enjoyable, as well. "Self-expression is a positive experience," she said. "We encourage veterans to express themselves to help them adjust to civilian life."

through. Local writer, poet, and CSUS and Sacramento City College English professor Bob Stanley is co-director of the group in the first of what will be four Wednesday evening sessions at the library. The remaining three sessions are: March 30th, April 20th, and May 18th. Veterans of all branches and all eras are welcome, even if they were not able to attend the first session.

"The main focus of the group will be to get words down on paper," Bob Stanley said. Any subject, any form. No rules or pressure came with the exercise. Each was encouraged to express what they feel and put it in words.

Co-Director Indigo Moor is a poet, screenwriter, and author as well as a U.S. Navy veteran of Desert Storm. Moor read from the published works of several war veterans who had poured out their feelings as free verse poetry. One of those works was a poignant retelling of the poet's visit to the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington, D.C.

Judging from the reaction of those present, the words were resonating with them as well.

Another author wrote obscurely of things he heard, saw, and felt on a night patrol in Vietnam, but which each of the veterans present easily interpreted as a soldier waiting for the enemy to come at him from the darkness. Not knowing was as damaging to the psyche as combat itself.

At one point Moor asked those present to close their eyes and envision that "one moment that defines the [war] experience" for them. He urged the men to use the sights and sounds of their experiences in the writing exercise, "use the senses that keep us interested," he said. Rather than a blow-byblow account of what happened, he asked that they call upon their feelings and condense them onto paper. Some who attended are still burdened by what happened to them in their war. U.S. Marine Corps veteran Daniel Gomez served four tours in Vietnam. Gomez was wounded twice and continues to suffer the health effects of the injuries, exposure to Agent Orange defoliant, and malaria. When asked why he was attending the workshop, he said, "To figure out why the hell I'm still here." His war may have ended four decades ago, but it is still as fresh in his mind as yesterday.

The five men who attended the gathering represented different branches of the service: Army, Marine Corps, Navy, and Air Force, as well as different wars: Korea, Vietnam, and the Middle East.

Carmichael resident Bob Pacholik is an author of some renown. He was a U.S. Army combat photographer in Vietnam during the Tet Offensive. His book "Night Flares: Six Tales of the Vietnam War," chronicles the war and honors the men and women who served in it.

Veteran writing program Co-Director Indigo Moor works with Emtt Hawkins, an Air Force veteran of the Korean War, to express his feelings about his experiences.

Most of those present were there for the therapeutic value writing might offer. Some of the men said they hoped to continue to write beyond the program. Emmett Hawkins served in the U.S. Air Force in Korea. Among other subjects he is interested in religion and history.

For each of the veterans who took part in the Rancho Cordova writing workshop, the object was to reduce their experience down to its essence to help them to better understand what happened to them.

18-22 years old did you ever make any mistakes? Do you remember them to this day? Do you wish you could take them back and have those times to do all over again?

It is apparent that there IS crying in college basketball, and once the tears have dried up there will be a number of young players living with their unforgettable miscues.

There are some USC Trojans who will be haunted every time they step to the free throw line by visions of their missed shots late in a loss in the 2016 NCAA Tournament. There will be a Northern Iowa star who will remember (probably above all of the great moments in his career) his two unwise, hurried shots in the final minute, while some of his teammates will clearly recall panicky turnovers that helped blow a 12-point lead in the closing 45 seconds of regulation that gave Texas A&M the chance to steal the game.

A couple of Stephen F. Austin Lumberjacks will be kicking themselves for not blocking out on a rebound that gave Wisconsin the opening to tip in a missed shot at the buzzer for the win.

The entire No.-2 seed Michigan State team, picked by many to reach the Final Four and possibly go all the way, will forever shake their collective heads when thinking about their performance against No.-15 seed Middle Tennessee State in a first-round defeat. When Denzel Valentine (a Player of the Year candidate) and fellow Spartans seniors Matt Costello, Bryn Forbes and Colby Wollenman --- a legendary group that won 109 games together --performed the traditional kissing of the mid-court MSU logo after a decisive win over Ohio State on Senior Night, little did they know that their fond memories of their final season would be tarnished by such an abrupt ending.

Closer to home, it was instant bad karma for the Cal Bears when an assistant coach was

Way back when you were promptly fired after a long-running investigation into sexual harassment violations (there's a regrettable mistake) came to light on the verge of a potential deep run in the tournament. A No.-4 seed in the South bracket (Cal's highest-ever seeding), it all went wrong in a hurry. Point guard and leading scorer Tyrone Wallace broke his hand in practice and sharpshooter Jabari Bird suffered severe back spasms before the game, and neither played in a first-round loss to No.-13 Hawaii, 77-66. That may have been called an upset, but, under the circumstances, it was no surprise.

Potential NBA draftee Jaylen Brown got into early foul trouble and was limited and ineffective, and fellow freshman star Ivan Rabb had little help against the Rainbow Warriors, who won their first-ever NCAA Tournament game. (It appears that duo are likely to be high NBA picks. though they might be betterserved by returning to Cal for a second season. Brown has the powerful body, but is inconsistent and needs work on shooting, while Rabb is more refined in his skills, but needs work on the body).

In what could have been a remarkable dream season for coach Cuonzo Martin's 23-11 Bears, --- don't forget they crushed Oregon at home by 20 and lost on the road at Virginia in overtime (two teams in the Sweet 16) --- it all fell apart quickly on the doorstep of grand success and crumbled into an unimaginable nightmarish finish.

But in a sense, this is a tournament of losers. Out of all of the 68 entrants, just one will conclude its season with a victory and a championship, while the 67 others will forever have thoughts about the "what ifs" and the mistakes made along the way that led to their demise.

As a group, the Pac-12 will not have much to cherish regarding its showing in this year's tournament, thus far. A record seven teams from the conference made the cut, but five (Cal, Colorado, Arizona, Oregon State, USC) lost in the first round. After an opening win over Fresno State, Utah was trounced by Gonzaga of the West Coast Conference, 82-59. All six losses were to lower seeds. With wins over Holy Cross and St. Joseph's, Oregon, the top seed in the West bracket, was to meet defending-national champion Duke Thursday.

Surprises were not exclusive to the Pac-12, however. Lowerseeded teams won 12 of the 32 first-round matchups and three lower seeds won in the second round. All four top seeds in the West bracket played in Anaheim --- Oregon, Duke, Texas A&M and Oklahoma --- reached the Sweet 16. Two double-digit seeds survived to advance and face each other in the Midwest Regional, Gonzaga (11) and Syracuse (10).

That all makes you wonder, again, how St. Mary's College of the WCC might have fared had it been chosen to participate. The Gaels lost a close game at Cal and defeated Gonzaga twice during the regular season, but lost to the Zags in the WCC tournament title game and missed out on the automatic berth.

Playing, instead, in the Not Invited Tournament (NIT). also known as the National Invitational Tournament, coach Randy Bennett's Gaels (29-5) held on to edge New Mexico State, 58-56, and beat the Georgia Bulldogs, 77-65, in games at McKeon Pavilion in Moraga, to reach the quarter-finals. They were to play at Valparaiso (Ind.) Tuesday night for a chance to go to Madison Square Garden for the secondary Final Four.

When it is all said and done, even if St. Mary's was to win the door prize at The Hop, the Gaels will all remember and perhaps shed a tear or two over losing that last go-round against Gonzaga and missing out on their ticket to The Dance.

Some use the term "Sacratomato" as a slur and to pigeonhole all Sacramentans and their suburban brothers and sisters as rubes. They tar everyone with the same brush...and other clichés I'll probably get around to as I continue to rant.

A few years ago, a former NBA basketball coach who shall remain nameless (named Phil Jackson) called Sacramento a "cow town." Well phooey on him and the cow he rode in on. I happen to like it here, cows and all.

Talking About

Even residents of the many Sacramento suburbs who have never set foot on a farm, or ranch, or stepped in horse paddocks, can appreciate the small town feel. Having grown up on a farm, I happen to be among those who enjoy the fact that the region is known as an agricultural hub.

I read somewhere that, before the current drought, 75 percent of the world's rice was grown right here in the Sacramento region. Further, we could probably steal the name "Beantown" because a lot of the beans Bostonians bake come from here. And I wouldn't be at all surprised to learn that pickles Peter Piper picked by the peck got their alliteration from right here, as well.

To further fertilize the field, let me just say that if we are judged by the company we keep the rurally-inclined are a pretty solid bunch to be associated with.

Even as the metropolis expands into the RDs,

Sacramento manages to retain a countrified air. In fact, the air is full of country essences which we don't really need to go into in great detail.

I do have one big concern, however: As Sacramento expands eastward with people wanting to get farther away from what those with a sense of humor call "civilization," what happens when those east of us who want get farther from their particular civilization move westward and run smack into our escapees? A particularly precarious point perched upon the precipice to ponder...and further alliterate.

Imagine now that you are standing in downtown Sacramento. Even as we face our semi-majestic capitol building you can sense our agricultural roots.

Tomatoes? Yes! Cows? Undoubtedly! Rice? Absolutely! Pickles? Positively! Beans? You're darn tootin'!

Hoppin' Down The Bunny Trail

It's time for Easter once again, an important religious feast of the Christian liturgical year to celebrate the resurrection of Jesus Christ which his followers believe occurred on the third day after his crucifixion sometime in the period AD 27-33. Many traditions have evolved over the years, so I put together some of the possibilities for you...just for fun.

Here's comes Peter Cottontail, hoppin' down the bunny trail and all the tall tails about this iconic symbol. It's universal and secular in its appeal. But, and this is a big but, I was told that the hare, and not the rabbit, should be treated as the true symbol of Easter. Historically, since ancient times, the hare has been the symbol for the moon. And the legend says, the hare never closes its eyes, not even for a single blink. The reason

with Mary Jane Popp

for having such a belief may be rooted in the fact that hares, not rabbits, are born with their eyes open. Rabbits are born blind. There is also a fertility thing in there someplace. Maybe, that's why the rabbit is more familiar in America. Rabbits beat hares big time in being more prolific. How about Easter eggs? Despite claims that Easter eggs were originally pagan symbols, there is no solid evidence of this. It was not until the 18th century that Jakob Grimm theorized a putative connection with a goddess of his own whom he named Ostara, a suggested version of Eostere. At the Passover Seder, a hard-boiled egg dipped in salt water symbolizes both new life and the Passover sacrifice offered at the temple in Jerusalem. The ancient Persians painted eggs for Nowrooz, their New Year celebration falling on the Spring Equinox. In Christian times, the egg was a symbol of new life just as a chick might hatch from the egg. The Easter egg tradition may have celebrated the end of the privations of Lent. In Medieval Europe, eggs were forbidden during Lent. It was during Easter that the consumption of eggs resumed after the strict Lenten fast.

And who doesn't love the Easter Lily? Its acceptance in America dates back around the 1880s. It came in with the rise in the Easter observances by the Protestants. It took some time to find acceptance. The native American lilies like the Madonna lily bloom in the early summer. It could be forced to bloom early in hot houses, but it was a hassle. In the 1880s, while in Bermuda. Ms Thomas P Sargent became familiar with a beautiful lily that blooms naturally in springtime. She fell for this lovely white Bermuda lily and brought its bulbs back home in Philadelphia. And so the story goes.

And most important, there's chocolate! Chocolate eggs began in the 19th century France and Germany and soon spread to the rest of Europe and eventually the United States. Children were told to make nests or baskets so the Easter Bunny could leave them there. No surprise adults love it too since it's a common modern-day Lenten sacrifice. Bring it on!

There are many stories to go around, but the fact remains, this is a truly blessed time! Family and friends come together for this wonderful celebration of the renewal of life and rebirth! HAPPY EASTER!

It's Good Friday, but Sunday's a Comin'

Dr. James L. Snyder

For those who follow the church calendar Good Friday is a special day, one of the high religious days among many Christians. Personally, I think it is a good one to remember and celebrate.

Overall, apart from a few exceptions, I do not like special days. As far as I'm concerned, every day I get up and take nourishment is a special day for me.

Everybody seems to have their own special day and I find it rather difficult to keep up on all of these "special days." If a person would honor and celebrate every "special day" posted on the calendar there would be no days to get any work done whatsoever. And, as luck would have it on my side, I would miss a very special "special day."

I am in favor of setting aside one day a month as the official 'special day" of the month in which everything that anybody wants to celebrate during that month could be included. That way we could get the celebrating of special days done and then we can get back to business as usual.

One of the most frightening phrases a husband can hear is, "Do you know what anniversary it is today?'

Every husband has been backed into a corner like this sometime during his marital career. I for one say it is not fair. Because everyone knows special is as special remembers, which puts husbands at a great disadvantage.

It is not that men cannot remember, a man's memory is limited and so he must be very selective. And to be honest about this, anniversaries are simply not on any man's radar.

I learned this very early in my relationship with the young woman who graciously accepted my invitation of matrimony.

We had been dating for around a month and one night when I picked her up to go confused me. "You know this is our first anniversary?"

My confusion lay in the fact that an anniversary had to do with something yearly. I had only known her for several months at the time. I know time gets away with a person, but this was rather ridiculous. In the short time we had known each other, it was impossible for us to have an anniversary of anything.

It was at this point I did something, although innocent enough at the time, that I have regretted the rest of my life. I looked at her and laughed. That was when I was introduced to the marvelously mysterious world of women-lore. With a woman, anniversaries are not something to laugh about, at least in their presence. An anniversary is something to celebrate whether it makes sense or not.When I realized how serious the situation was, I wiped that silly grin off my face and inquired as to what anniversary she was referring to."Why, don't you know," she said as seriously as I have ever seen her up to that point. "This is the first month anniversary of our going out together."

Now, what do you do on the first month anniversary of going out as a couple? However, the thing that really frightened me was, do we celebrate this every month? What is the protocol for these monthly anniversaries? How do I keep track of all of this? What gift is appropriate? I was afraid that I would go broke before we got around to getting married. I would come to discover that these "monthly anniversaries" were to continue until they were superseded by a more important anniversary. Of course, her responsibility was to select the anniversary that would trump the monthly anniversaries.

My responsibility? To remember the latest anniversary. How is a husband to keep track of all of these anniversaries? Once I mistakenly bought a special gift for what I thought was out, she said something that our fifth wedding anniversary.

It turned out to be our seventh. Where those two years went, only my wife remembers.

I cannot remember all those anniversaries now, but they went something like this. The anniversary of when we first met. The anniversary of getting her the first Valentines box of candy. The anniversary of sharing our first hot fudge sundae together. The anniversary of giving her an engagement ring. Looking back over all those years I have a list of my own anniversaries I can never remember celebrating.

For example. The anniversary of when she slammed the car door on my finger. Ha, she probably forgot that one. (I wonder if Hallmark has a card for this?) I still have the gruesome scar on my finger reminding me of that anniversary. How about the anniversary of the day the diamond fell out of the first engagement ring I gave her? Fortunately, someone had a microscope and we were able, after diligent search, to find the rock. Then, there is the anniversary of the day she backed into my parked car. Enough said.

As we celebrate Good Friday, a very special day, remember that its goodness comes from the following Sunday when Jesus rose victoriously over sin and the grave. "For I delivered unto you first of all that which I also received, how that Christ died for our sins according to the scriptures; And that he was buried, and that he rose again the third day according to the scriptures:" (1 Corinthians 15:3-4 KJV).

It is Good Friday, but Resurrection Sunday's a comin'.
