New Sheriff Center Opens

SACRAMENTO REGION (MPG) - Sacramento's unincorporated north area now has a new Sheriff Service Center.

Located in the Safeway Shopping Center at Dewey Drive and Madison Avenue, it is staffed part time by Sergeant Dean Pai and 16 Volunteers In Partnership with the Sheriff (V.I.P.S.). The storefront is a long-awaited replacement for the office at Carmichael's Bel Air Center, closed during 2008 budget cuts. Sheriff Scott Jones pledged to restore the resource if free office space could be found. Owners of the Safeway Shopping Center recently came up to scratch with the Dewey location.

Bel Air Center veterans are among volunteers now answering phones and filing reports three days per week. "We'd love to be open five days," said administrative Sergeant Dean Pai. "If we get more volunteers, this could happen."

The north area office joins Sheriff's satellites in Arcade, Rancho Cordova, Florin, Rancho Murieta, Walnut Grove and Wilton. In these mini stations, uniformed volunteers file non-emergency reports for incidents such as theft, fraud, restraining order violations and vandalism. "Without these centers," explains Sergeant Pai, "Many people would not bother to report incidents. This information is important to the Sheriff's Department. It allows us to establish patterns and allocate manpower to solve and prevent crimes."

Example: multiple tire slashings occurred locally in 2013. Compiled reports generated more patrols for certain neighborhoods.

"We didn't catch the criminals" says Sergeant Pai. "But our heightened presence stopped the slashings."

"Our volunteers also free up officers for 911 responses," explains Pai. "They allow us more time to be proactive; to make arrests and to keep people safe."

The Carmichael/Fair Oaks/Orangevale Sheriff Service Center is located at 5484 Dewey Drive, suite 234. Current open hours are 10 a.m. to 5 p.m., Mondays and Fridays; 10 a.m. to 7 p.m., Wednesdays. Telephone: (916) 903-7480.

Sacramento Sheriff's Department seeks service center volunteers. Training is provided. Applicants must read and write English (bi-lingual volunteers are welcome) and have basic computer skills. For information, visit www.sacsheriff.com. ★

Crocker Art Museum
Wins Prestigious
National Award

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Sacramento's Crocker Art Museum received a Best Show award for excellence from the AICA-USA, one of 63 national sections comprising the International Association of Art Critics (AICA International), a non-governmental organization headquartered in Paris, France.

Organized by William Breazeale, Ph.D., curator at the Crocker Art Museum, with guest curators Michael Duncan and Christopher Wagstaff, "An Opening of the Field: Jess, Robert Duncan, and Their Circle," which first opened at the Crocker Art Museum, won an AICA-USA award for best thematic national show outside New York. "An Opening of the Field" reveals the complex interplay between poetry and art in the mid-century Bay Area cultural scene.

The awards recognize excellence in art criticism and curatorial achievement in the conception and realization of exhibitions by galleries, museums, and related cultural institutions. Eighteen first and second-place winners in nine categories were selected from more than 140 exhibitions nominated by AICA-USA's national membership of more than 400 critics, curators, and scholars.

"We are thrilled to receive this award for our provocative and powerful exhibition, and especially to be recognized for excellence amongst our peers from the National Gallery of Art in Washington, D.C.; the Philadelphia Museum of Art; the Hirschhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden in Washington, D.C.; and, the Museum of Modern Art Chicago," said Lial A. Jones, Mort and Marcy Friedman Director of the Crocker Art Museum.

Artist Jess Collins, known simply as Jess, and the poet Robert Duncan joined their lives in San

United Way Rolls out 6th Annual Toilet Paper Drive

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - United Way California Capital Region is asking the community to spare a square by donating to its 6th Annual Toilet Paper Drive on June 12th that helps local nonprofits offset the cost for this staple item. Local nonprofits spend anywhere from a few hundred to thousands of dollars a year on toilet paper—money that could be invested in programs changing lives. Last year's drive raised 229,485 rolls of toilet paper and this year's goal is 240,000 rolls.

The drive will take place 7 a.m.-7 p.m. on June 12 at the Cal Expo main entrance, 1600 Exposition Boulevard in Sacramento. Residents also can donate toilet paper online at www.yourlocalunitedway.org/tp-drive. For updates, visit facebook.com/uwccr or follow @unitedwayccr and #tpdrive on Twitter. Senior Gleaners, a Sacramento nonprofit, will store the toilet paper and help distribute it the following week to many of United Way's 148 certified nonprofit partners in Amador, El Dorado, Placer, Sacramento and Yolo counties.

"We all take toilet paper for granted, but our nonprofit partners sure don't," said Stephanie McLemore Bray, United Way president and CEO. "At a dollar a roll, this drive will help more than a hundred local nonprofits save $240,000. Every dollar counts, and so does every roll. Together, we can make sure nonprofits have the resources to do what they do best—change people lives."

Lutheran Social Services of Northern California spends $6,000 each year on toilet paper, which would buy six sets of basic furnishings for formerly homeless clients moving into housing. Sacramento Loaves and Fishes' Maryhouse program spends $3,780 a year on toilet paper, which would pay for 1,890 hot breakfasts for homeless women, children and fathers. Women's Empowerment spends $1,500 a year on toilet paper, which would pay for 500 bus passes for women who are homeless to travel to job interviews.

Carmichael Environmentalist Remembered

Jack Hiehle's Family Hosts Memorial

Story and photos by Susan Maxwell Skinner

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - A memorial celebrating the life of Jack Hiehle recently reunited more than 80 of his students and admirers at the Effie Yeaw Nature Center in Carmichael.

One of California's most respected naturalists and a life-long champion for ecology, Hiehle died in February at the age of 93. His passing came soon after the death of his beloved wife, actress Zilpha. The Hiehles were stalwarts of the Effie Yeaw Nature Center, whose facility hosted the memorial event.

His son Torgen recalled a father who enjoyed sharing his love of nature with children and adults. "My father felt the stewardship of the environment was something everyone could play a part in," said his son. "He tried to make people see it was not just an environmentalist's job to restore habitat. It was everyone's job. To acquire that love for nature, you must learn about it. And he wanted to help people learn."

Jack Hiehle was mentor to thousands, including this reporter. I recall many interviews on the subjects of deer, turkey and others in the Carmichael community. I dogged his footsteps on wildlife counts and shared my first photographs of what I thought to be beaver kits near Harrington Park. After some cogitation, he called me and suggested that I had presented commendable portraits of muskrats. Any easy mistake, he assured me.

In consolation, he led me to the real McCoy: a Labrador-sized beaver, beating around the sloughs near William Pond Park. Jack was unerring in his ability to find even the most elusive critters. He just seemed to know their addresses.

He grew up in Southern California. He was a surveyor in British Columbian and Yukon wildernesses. In WW II, he served as a US Army rifle instructor and later headed for U.C. Berkeley to study forestry. During a long career with the State, he worked with the Departments of Fish and Game and Parks and Recreation where he was appointed the first wildlife ecologist for California.

An avid sportsman in his spare time, he joined actress wife Zilpha as a National Ski Patrol volunteer and saved many skiers from off-piste refrigeration. A skiing accident near the age of 90 curtailed his rugged educational rambles on the American River flood plain.

Before this decline, the volunteer was a treasured resource for the American River Natural History Association. His passion resulted in the removal of thousands of non-native plants from the Effie Yeaw Nature preserve. Hiehle's aim was to see American oaks sustained and protected. To this end, he launched a campaign to cage oak saplings before grazing deer nipped them in the bud.

Fabled London architect Christopher Wren was eulogized in granite with the advice "If you seek his monument, look around you." Those who require a monument for ecologist Hiehle might simply walk the Effie Yeaw preserve trails and regard many youthful trees reaching skyward to eventually replace dying oaks. These—the future of our vulnerable parkway and symbols of hope for the thousands of animals living here—are Jack Hiehle's monument.

Carmichael Emblem Club Marks 54 Years of Service

CARMICHAEL, CA (MPG) - The Carmichael Emblem Club #355 celebrated its 54 years of service to the community with a club birthday luncheon at the Espanol Restaurant in Sacramento.

Chartered on April 30, 1960, the Carmichael Emblem Club has a membership of 112 women, however, membership is also open to interested men as well. Emblem Clubs in the United States are an organization independent from any other organization. However, locally, the club works closely with the Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks at the Carmichael Elks Lodge #2103. Both organizations respect and honor the rules of each club's by-laws, and enjoy their "partnership" in many of their joint annual events.

Club members are dedicated to charitable acts in the community, as well as at State and National levels. Members respect and honor the American flag, patriotism, fellowship and actively involve themselves by reaching out to the community where help is needed.

Members of the club are very active with a number of activities. Fundraisers are an important segment of the annual calendar. Attaining success with their fundraisers allows the organization to generously support several local charities as well as state and national philanthropic programs, i.e. Scholarships and the "Hearing Dog" program for the deaf which is headquartered in San Francisco, CA.

Projects supported solely by members of the Carmichael Emblem Club #355 include: Literacy programs (donations of books for ages of infancy thru 12th grade), which are sent to the Twin Vision organization where they are reproduced in Braille for blind children throughout the world. Locally, donations of crossword puzzles, books, activity books, crayons and magazines, are donated to the Ronald McDonald House facilities. Also, hand knitted caps are made for the premature infants at U. C. Davis Hospital, in their Neo-Natal ward.

Members generously support the "Treat the Troops" program, the Sacramento Veterans Center and the Yountville Veterans Home, located in Napa, California. Twice annually the Emblem ladies co-host outings to Yountville and treat the residents to homemade salads, breads, and desserts, while the members of the Carmichael Elks Lodge #2103 prepare a tasty BBQ. In December, Emblem ladies contribute gift cards and/or items as requested by the resident veterans on their individual Christmas "Wish List". These items are then delivered by the Elks to Yountville.

Throughout the year, our Drug

Awareness Chairman, works with the elementary and middle schools of the San Juan School District, distributing literature promoting drug awareness for students at their most vulnerable ages.

The Carmichael Emblem Club meets the first Tuesday of every month for a business meeting, and the third Tuesday of every month for a social, often highlighted by a guest speaker. The meetings are held at 7:00 p.m. at the Carmichael Elks Lodge #2103, located at 5631 Cypress Ave., in Carmichael, CA. Women interested in learning more about the Emblem Club are welcome to visit for either meeting. For more information, call Club President Marylyn Herbst at (916) 346-5079. ★

Francisco in the early 1950s. In an era of unacceptance, these men formed one of the most fascinating artistic partnerships of the 20th century. At the epicenter of a remarkable circle of friends, Jess and Duncan shared an enduring, collaborative genius that inspired and changed the creative vision of a generation of artists and writers.

This is the first exhibition to explore the couple's rich artistic production and relationship. Through more than 140 individual and collaborative works of art and personal letters drawn from private and public collections, this exhibition also looks at their influence and unique position as precursors of Postmodernism. A companion catalogue includes essays by William Breazeale, Ph.D., curator at the Crocker Art Museum, and guest curators Michael Duncan and Christopher Wagstaff.

The Crocker is located at 2160 Street in Downtown Sacramento. Museum hours are 10 a.m.-5 p.m., Tuesday-Sunday; 10 a.m.-9 p.m., Thursdays. Every third Sunday of the month is "Pay What You Wish Sunday" sponsored by Western Health Advantage. # Brave 14-Year-Old Girl Receives Witness of the Year Award

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The California District Attorneys Association (CDAA) will honor 14-year-old Curtishea C. with the 2014 Patricia Lewis Witness of the Year Award. The award is presented annually by CDAA to honor a private citizen (victim or bystander) who, as a witness for the prosecution, demonstrates courage, social conscience, and a strong commitment to justice.

Curtishea was recognized with a Sacramento County District Attorney Outstanding Citizen Award in April during National Crime Victims' Rights Week. The District Attorney's office also nominated Curtishea for this distinguished CDAA award for her ability to overcome fear and adversity to ensure that the woman who abused her was held accountable for her crimes.

Curtishea lived with her father, his fiancée Duewa Lee, and Lee's six children. When Curtishea's father went to prison for a robbery, Lee began a three month reign of terror over Curtishea. Lee beat Curtishea with electrical cords, punched her and broke her tooth, knocked her out multiple times from beatings, pushed her down stairs, forced her to stand on one leg with her arms over her head for hours at a time, burned her body with a hot iron and a hot metal spatula, and did not feed her. Lee also told Curtishea that her father did not love her and that she would soon be home schooled.

On a trip with her abuser to the DMV, Curtishea took a chance and reached out to a perfect stranger, asking a woman to, "Please, please help me." The woman took action and told the DMV clerk to call 911. Curtishea was removed from Lee's custody and taken to the hospital. An abuse expert testified that she had never seen abuse to this extent before. She stated that if Curtishea had endured another blunt force trauma, she likely would have died.

Curtishea exhibited extraordinary courage and social consciousness before and during the trial. She would not be deterred by the defendant or the defendant's family from testifying and telling the truth.

Despite hours on the stand and countless questions, Curtishea detailed the horror and brutality she suffered at the hands of her abuser with a clarity and poise beyond her years. Although she was shaking and crying during each break, she came back more determined than ever to finish and tell the jury what happened.

Because of Curtishea's strength to face her abuser despite her fear, Duewa Lee was convicted of torture, mayhem, and multiple counts of child abuse with great bodily injury. In September 2013, she was sentenced to 16 years to life in state prison.

This award is named for Los Angeles resident Patricia Lewis, who, in 1987, witnessed the murder of an innocent young man by a notorious Southern California gang leader. After her initial testimony, repeated attempts were made on her life, forcing her to live apart from her family in fear for their safety. Undaunted, she agreed to testify, and the result was the defendant's conviction for first-degree murder. ★

THE RICH LOWRY COLUMN
By Rich Lowry

The Benghazi Deniers

At last we have a Benghazi scandal that Democrats are willing to acknowledge -- House Speaker John Boehner's decision to form a select committee to investigate the administration's handling of the 2012 terror attack in Libya. This has been the occasion for outrage that Democrats haven't been able to summon for any aspect of Benghazi to this point, including the lax security at the compound. The Democrats and their allies are in denial. Yes, a mistake was made here or there, but otherwise, nothing to see here. The deniers evidently believe: An administration should be able to make erroneous statements about a terror attack that killed a U.S. ambassador in the weeks before a presidential election and expect everyone to accept its good intentions afterward.

An administration should be able to withhold a bombshell White House email from congressional investigators and expect everyone to greet its long-delayed release with a yawn. An administration should be able to send out its press secretary to abase himself with absurd denials of the obvious and expect everyone to consider its credibility solidly intact. No opposition party would ever accept these propositions, and of course Republicans (and a few intrepid reporters and organizations) We haven't, presumably would never have learned of the email from White House national-security official Ben Rhodes to then-ambassador to the United Nations Susan Rice prior to her notorious Sunday show appearances if Benghazi "obsessives" at Judicial Watch hadn't zealously pursued records through a lawsuit. It has long been the contention of Rice's defenders that she was merely tripped up by bad intelligence. It is true that the Central Intelligence Agency wrongly maintained initially that the Benghazi attack grew out of a protest. Yet, there wasn't any doubt from the outset that it was a terrorist attack. In his April testimony before the House Permanent Select Committee on Intelligence, former deputy director of the CIA Michael Morell emphasized, "The critically important point is that the analysts considered this a terrorist attack from the very beginning. They were not slow coming to this judgment." But Rice took her cue from Rhodes, who didn't mention terrorism. It was all about the video, and "people who harm Americans" and "challenges," including "difficult challenges." Clearly, the White House considered the Rhodes email damaging, or it would have released it long ago. It then would have spared Jay Carney the exertions involved in maintaining that the email isn't rightly considered a Benghazi email, even though it was part of Rice's preparation to go on shows where she would be asked repeatedly about ... Benghazi. Not every scandal is Watergate, and it's foolish for Republicans to invoke it here. The party also shouldn't be fundraising over the deaths of four Americans. But the unearthing of the Rhodes email discredits the argument that everything to do with Benghazi is "old news." If there is nothing left to learn, then the White House and Democrats can cooperate with the select committee without fear and watch it hang itself. Instead, every indication is that they will stall, mock and disrupt. Because there's nothing to see here. Rich Lowry is editor of the National Review. (c) 2014 by King Features Synd., Inc.

GALA TO AID EFFIE YEAW NATURE CENTER
Muriel Johnson chairs May 31 fundraiser for Parkway gem

Now in its fourth year operating as a non-profit, the Effie Yeaw Nature Center is preparing for its annual art-auction fundraiser with a new patron. The event's endorsement by former Sacramento County Supervisor and Parkway lover Muriel Johnson is great news for Effie Yeaw supporters. As honorary event chair, she follows in the footsteps of last year's benefactor, artist/philanthropist Marcy Friedman.

Johnson attended the 2013 gala and purchased a painting at auction. "Just by being there," said Effie Yeaw Fund Developer Betty Cooper, "community figures like Muriel, Marcy, Congresswoman Doris Matsui, Assemblyman Ken Cooley and Supervisor Susan Peters demonstrate that the Nature Center's work is vital. They are also draw cards in their own right - people love events where they can meet celebrities and elected representatives."

Having lived near the American River and enjoyed its Parkway for many years, Arcade resident Johnson presents an authoritative voice in the nonprofit's favor: "The Effie Yeaw Nature Center and wildlife preserve exists as an oasis in an urban area, providing respite and opportunity for quiet reflection," she says. "Visitors - especially children - learn, discover and grow through direct outdoor experience. This annual art gala is a wonderfully enjoyable way to support the educational center, which is truly the jewel of the American River Parkway."

Despite loss of Sacramento County funding in 2010, the Center offers services to over 90,000 visitors per year.

The Sacramento Fine Arts Center is a vital event partner. Members' juried work will feature in silent and live auctions. Donated canvases from famous Sacramento painters will augment the sale. Effie Yeaw's financial supporter, the American River natural History Association, will join sponsors of the event.

Tickets are $50. Admission includes gourmet food and hosted wine, beer and soft drinks. The gala runs from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Nature Center in Ancil Hoffman Park.

Table sponsors are welcome. For information on the event, visit www.sacnaturecenter.net

PICKS OF THE WEEK

Mark Wahlberg in "Lone Survivor"

"Lone Survivor" (R) -- A team of Navy SEALs fight hopeless odds while on a mission to take out a Taliban operative. The story is based on accounts of a 2005 mission in Afghanistan that went horribly wrong. While on the hunt for Ahmed Shah, four SEALs encounter a few goat-herding civilians and make a tough ethical decision that impacts the rest of their mission. Mark Wahlberg plays Marcus Luttrell, the author of the eponymous book and -- it's no spoiler to say -- the only one to come out alive.

The movie gets off to a brisk start after a little pre-mission setup. The action sequences are grueling and relentless. The real set-piece of the action is an extended, pitched gunfight that doesn't run out of steam, just leaves you exhausted at the end.

"Robocop" (PG-13) -- Future Detroit is the proud testing site of a cutting-edge crime-fighting machine with a human heart and a permanent grimace. When police officer Alex Murphy is left for dead by thugs, his remaining bits are scooped up and put into a state-of-the-art metal body built for domination. He's got a slick tactical visor, bulletproof body, the steadiest gun arm ever built, and an off-switch for his emotions. Robocop is effective all right, but is he still human? Of course, this remake cannot match the tongue-in-cheekiness of the 1987 original. What once was clunky and laughable is now sleek and updated. Keeping things good on the human side are the fine performances by Michael Keaton as the conniving corporatist, Gary Oldman as the scientist whose work is being corrupted, and Samuel L. Jackson as an ultra-conservative radio nut job.

"Son of God" (PG-13) -- Scenes from History Channel's "The Bible" are mixed in with new material to create this feature-length release hitting the highlights of Jesus' life. The film follows the messiah as he rounds up apostles, heals the sick, finds his fate on Calvary and rises from the dead. This version plays it safe and light -- deeper looks into the stories are avoided and no new perspectives are brought into the storybook narrative. Christ, played by Diego Morgado, is shown as an exceedingly handsome, TV-safe savior touching people and spreading happiness through miracles.

"Plimpton! Starring George Plimpton as Himself" (NR) -- He was a goalie for the Bruins, QB for the Lions, percussionist for the New York Philharmonic, listed in the credits along with John Wayne, a best-selling author and sparring partner to the great Archie Moore -- and no, he's not that guy from the beer commercials. George Plimpton was an affluent, well-spoken writer and an innovator of participatory journalism, a style of writing that puts the author in the action. This documentary focuses on Plimpton's deeds in the 1950s, '60s and '70s, when he had front-row seats to the major events of an era.

• It's barbecue time, and here's a fun, festive idea for your next backyard shindig: For each guest, stuff a mason jar with a clean bandana (for a napkin) and a set of silverware. ## EFFECTS-DRIVEN "GODZILLA" WREAKS THE EXPECTED HAVOC

Joe Brody and his wife Sandra (Juliette Binoche), also a scientist at the plant, had been at work when tremors, dismissed as an earthquake by others, caused untold damage and unleashed a terrible force.

Acting as a whistleblower, Joe Brody was the only one to sound the alarm during the tragedy in which his wife died, and thereafter, he was relegated to spending the next 15 years being consumed by an almost delusional, fearful passion to uncover the truth.

Meanwhile, in the present day, the Brodys' son Ford (Aaron Taylor-Johnson), now a U.S. Naval officer specializing in disarming bombs, has been reunited after a tour of duty with his wife and young son in San Francisco.

Called away to help his troubled father in Japan, Ford is reluctantly drawn into a quest to infiltrate the still-quarantined village where his family once lived before the 1999 nuclear tragedy. While searching for clues in the rubble, they are quickly arrested by the authorities.

Needless to say, the paranoid old man was right, and soon enough, a freakishly humongous insect-like creature breaks out of the abandoned nuclear plant and begins a rampage that hits the shores of Waikiki like a tsunami.

In fact, the first actual dazzling special effects extravaganza is a tidal wave that rips through the Hilton Hawaiian Village, flooding everything and causing massive destruction, including the wipeout of a beachside luau.

There's a parallel story of a pair of scientists from a secretive government organization drawn to a remote mine in a Philippine jungle that has collapsed, revealing beneath it the fossilized, highly radioactive remains of something very big and very old.

On the scene is Ken Watanabe's Dr. Serizawa, a Japanese scientist who has devoted his life to the search for Godzilla and hopes to find evidence of the mythical creature's existence. His partner is Dr. Graham (Sally Hawkins, and their life's work is to find what they call the "Alpha Predator."

Of course, you already know that Godzilla will find you, not the other way around. Yet, Godzilla is preoccupied with going after the escaped mutant to stop it cold before it ends up mating with its female partner, currently confined to storage at Nevada's Yucca Mountain.

San Francisco, a picturesque city with plenty of great landmarks, seemed ripe for destruction. It proves fun for the audience, because Los Angeles and New York have already been trashed a million times and we need new scenery.

Besides, San Francisco has a reputation for being a romantic destination, and what could prove more inviting for two monstrously ugly creatures for a date night that ends up in consummation?

Godzilla, variously described as an amphibious reptilian dinosaur-like creature or an enormous prehistoric sea monster, has been either mankind's adversary or even on occasion reluctant ally.

In this newest "Godzilla," the distinctive monster battles the two mutants to the death, hence saving humanity and in the process "restoring balance" to the universe.

In the process of saving the human race, Godzilla's smack-down of his foes results in a spectacle of mass destruction, with skyscrapers and bridges collapsing in a heap of rubble.

To be sure, the effects of "Godzilla" are dazzling, but we've seen much the same in a dozen other recent movies that rely heavily on obliteration of structures and automobiles. Yes, it's still fun because, after all, this is Godzilla and not giant metallic robots. ★

Time for Baby Birds?

Dear Dave,
 My wife and I are debt-free except for our house, and she would like for us to go ahead and start a family. I make good money, but I'd still like to wait a little longer and add some extra to our emergency fund before taking that step. Who do you think is right in this situation?
 - Joel

Dear Joel,
 Assuming, of course, you're talking about a reasonable number of children, the old adage is true: if you wait until you think you can afford them, you'll never have them. You guys have been responsible and are in pretty good financial shape right now. So my thought is have babies if you want babies. Even if your wife told you that she's pregnant tomorrow you'd still have nine months to add on to your emergency fund.

Your financial situation tells me you're both responsible people. You'll be a good provider, and it sound like you'd both make great parents. And the fact is babies are not that expensive. Having kids won't break your back like lots of people say. You've got extra expenses like diapers and baby stuff the first few years, but it's not going to drive you to the poor house.

Now, if you go to the extreme and have 16 kids, that many baby birds could become quite a financial problem. But for a normal-sized family with a normal-sized income, children do not create a big financial issue. God bless you guys, Joel!
 - Dave

Funding Fun After College

Dear Dave,
 I'm finishing my last semester in college, and I've already landed my first real job making $33,000 a year. I'm working on a budget, but I have $15,000 in student loans. This is my only debt, and my parents said I could live at home for a year until I get on my feet, so can I put some fun money into my budget?

 - Jonathan

Dear Jonathan,
 You can, but my advice would be to make it a really small amount until you repay those student loans. The real question is how long you want that debt hanging over your head.

I'm the kind of guy who likes to rip the bandage off. Even if it's going to hurt a little bit, I'd rather just do it quick and have it done. With the numbers you gave me, and the fact that you'd be living at home for a while, you'd be able to plow through this student loan debt in a hurry. After that, you'd be in an awesome financial position.

My advice is to keep living like a college student. Save every penny, and have no life for just a little while longer. Trust me, the feeling will be amazing when you start life on your own with a good job and no debt. That's the time to have some fun!
 - Dave

Formerly Homeless Women to be Celebrated at Annual Gala

The program combines self-esteem courses, job training, health classes and support services to help homeless women across diverse ages, races and cultures. Photo courtesy Kristin Thébaud Communications

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Community members are invited to the 13th Annual Celebration of Independence Gala that benefits Women's Empowerment, a local nonprofit helping women who are homeless find homes and jobs so they can support their families. Residents also can sponsor a graduate of the program to attend the event.

The event, which raises funds for the organization and honors the group's 1,144 graduates, will take place from 5:30-8:30 p.m. on June 26th at the Red Lion Hotel Woodlake in Sacramento. Guests will mingle with graduates from the program and enjoy a formal dinner, silent auction, live auction by Keith McLane of KLM Auctions, live music and presentations from the graduates. For tickets or sponsorships, visit www.womens-empowerment.org.

"Each year this event grows larger as more community members come out to celebrate the amazing women in our community who have broken the cycle of homelessness for themselves and their children," said Lisa Culp, executive director. "Last year's event was attended by more guests than ever before and raised record funding to ensure women in our community could support their children. We hope to include even more community members this year. Those who can't attend can sponsor one of our graduates to have a night where she will shine and be celebrated for her accomplishments."

Women's Empowerment offers the most comprehensive job-readiness program in the Sacramento area designed specifically for homeless women and their children. The 2009 Nonprofit of the Year has graduated 1,144 homeless women and their more than 2,500 children.

In 2013, 81 percent of graduates found homes and 90 percent found jobs or enrolled in school or training. The program combines self-esteem courses, job training, health classes and support services to help homeless women across diverse ages, races and cultures. Women's Empowerment is funded solely through private donations from the community. For more information and to donate online, visit www.womens-empowerment.org.

CHP Motorcycle Awareness Enforcement Operation On I-80

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- California is home to more than 1.3 million licensed motorcyclists and has some of the best riding weather year round. California's diverse geographical composition offers many scenic places to explore with miles of twisting canyons and mountain roads. Unfortunately, the state has also experienced an increase in the number of people injured or killed in motorcycle-involved collisions.

The California Highway Patrol (CHP) Valley Division deployed additional officers on Interstate 80 from the Gold Run and Auburn Area offices in an effort to reduce the number of fatal and injury traffic collisions involving motorcycles. Officers look for violations made by drivers and riders alike that can lead to collisions and cracked down on all violations, including driving under the influence and distracted driving from May 23rd-26th.

To assist the CHP in this traffic safety effort, Valley Division received a federally-funded grant titled "California Motorcycle Safety Enforcement and Education III (CMSEE III)." The CHP Valley Division plans to hold future enhanced enforcement events and public education campaigns to increase drivers' awareness of sharing the road with motorcyclists and motorcycle safety between now and September 30th, 2014.

Statistical data from the CHP's Statewide Integrated Traffic Records System (SWITRS) showed that from January 2007 through April 2013 there were 90 injury collisions involving motorcycles on Interstate 80 in these two designated areas alone.

Funding for this program was provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

If you have any questions or need additional information, please contact Public Information Officer Trevor Fee, at (916) 731-6300.

When is enough, enough?

STRENGTH IN UNITY

One of the most difficult decisions for a cancer patient and their family is "When is enough chemo, radiation, etc., enough? There is little hope of recovery, do I continue this painful treatment to extend my life for a few days, weeks or months?"

If you can muster up the courage to talk with your partner or your family about what's most important to you before you're confronted with this decision, it will make their life and yours so much easier.

Coming to accept the reality of "what is" can look like "giving up hope." I believe that each of us has the right to make our own decisions about whether to continue suffering the effects of painful treatment or spending our remaining days in relative comfort.

Carol and I talked about her options. I promised her I would fight with my whole being to make sure her wishes were followed. When her cancer came back, she chose to undergo another round of chemotherapy and when that became too painful, she chose to stop further treatment. I whole-heartedly supported her in both decisions. Having the "hard talk" helped us both accepted the probable consequences of her decisions.

Acceptance is an awesome force. Accepting reality is the first step.

District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that the Honorable Michael Kenny denied a defense motion for a new trial and sentenced Jerry King to 50 years to life in prison. On February 21, 2014, a jury convicted King for the first-degree murder of his 50-year-old uncle, Willis Griffin. The jury also found true that King personally discharged a 7mm rifle that caused the death of Griffin.

On December 9, 2012, King was living in the rural Sacramento County town of Herald. He was upset that he was going to be kicked out of the mobile home where he was staying with his mother and Griffin. When Griffin arrived at the home to confront King about leaving, King used a 7mm hunting rifle to shoot Griffin in the chest, killing him in the driveway.

On January 15, 2014, a jury recommended Vang receive the death penalty after finding him guilty of murder with special circumstances for killing Mr. Fessler during the commission of burglary and robbery. Vang had been paroled from prison four days prior to the murder.

Vang was also convicted of two counts of arson for setting fire to Mr. Fessler's home and car in an attempt to cover up the murder, attempted burglary of a neighbor's house, auto theft and firearm enhancements. He was sentenced to 34 years to life in prison for those offenses.

Both defendants face a maximum sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole.

Sentencing is set for May 23, 2014 in Department 17 of the Sacramento Superior Court.

CASE: Kristopher Kilpatrick (04/16/14)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Amber Hawk, Human Trafficking Unit

District Attorney Jan Scully announced that Kristopher Kilpatrick was sentenced to 10 years in prison after pleading to persuading a minor to engage in commercial sex acts. He is also required to register as a sex offender. Kilpatrick is a prior sex offender who was convicted and sent to prison in 2007 for molesting a 13-year-old girl.

Kilpatrick began dating the 17-year-old victim and ultimately persuaded her to work as a prostitute, pimping her over a two month period. He posted pictures of her in various states of undress to advertise her as a prostitute on the Internet. The victim gave all of the money that she earned to Kilpatrick. He admitted during a recorded jail conversation that he maintained a relationship with the victim because she "put money in his pocket."
