is also helping sustain the life of one of Sacramento County's most cherished institutions -the Effie Yeaw Nature Center.

Following the success of three previous "Painting Where the Wild Things Are" fundraisers, the center will host its fourth annual art gala on June 8. An evening gala will provide wining, dining and animal encounters of the closest kind.

Celebrities will include a red shouldered hawk called Skye and a magnificent great tufted owl called Echo. Both rescue birds, they are among the Nature

Center's resident ambassadors. As a star turn, a live auction will offer work by A-list professionals such as Jian Wang, Terry Pappas, Maria Winkler, Gregory Kondos and other painters. For $50, gala admission includes the catered meal, wine, music and free

Sacramento philanthropist and Parkway lover Marcy Friedman. Having raised a family near the American River and enjoyed the Parkway for 40 years, the Carmichael resident presents an authoritative voice: "I marvel at the foresight of those who fought to set aside land to provide access to an urban wilderness in the heart of a large metropolitan area," said Friedman.

"The entire Parkway is a unique treasure that brings Sacramento to the doorstep of nature. If the American River is the heart of this experience, then the Effie Yeaw Nature Center is its soul. The Center is an invaluable resource that connects students and adults to nature, teaching them to appreciate and protect the fragility of their heritage." parking. The setting is Effie Friedman also commended stalwart donors, volunteers and staff who keep the Center ticking. "It is largely through them that this 80-acre classroom continues offering a rich educational experience,' she said.

June 8 Proceeds will fund learning programs and maintain Effie Yeaw's 77-acre wildlife Dissecting the sanctuary. American River plain, preserve trails and their inhabitants draw over 100,000 visitors a year. Though previously supported by Sacramento County, the popular attraction lost all public funding after budget cuts in 2010. Effie Yeaw is now administered by the American River Natural History Association (ARNHA) and depends wholly community support.

Gala partners are artists from the Sacramento Fine Arts Centre, many of whom compete for awards at the banquet. Their "Wild Things" paintings can be previewed now at the Fine Arts Center (Gibbons Drive), Carmichael. Sponsors of the gala include: ARNHA, Western Health Advantage, David Sobon Auctions and the Bank of Sacramento.

IRS Apology Not Accepted

WASHINGTON,

(MPG)-- In response to IRS officials today (May 10th) admitting that its agents actively targeted Tea Party groups for increased scrutiny during the 2012 election, the nation's largest Tea Party group and a subject of IRS inquiries over the past year, issued the following statement:

"What we've long suspected to be the case is now confirmed to be true. The Obama administration has used the IRS as a political weapon. The IRS may claim that it is 'sorry.' But given the damage that has been done, their apology is not accepted," said Niger Innis, Chief Strategist for TheTeaParty.net.

"What would Democrats have done if the Nixon administration ordered the IRS to actively target the National Organization of Women or the American Civil Liberties Union? Nixon had his own enemies list and resigned. These activities are early similar, and yet Obama remains in office even in light of Fast and Furious, the Benghazi tragedy, and now the active targeting of his political opposition. We demand a thorough independent investigation into who did what, when, why, and how far up into the administration this scandal goes. We would expect intimidation like this from third-world, tin-pot dictators, not our own US government."

Gas Prices Climbing Again

SACRAMENTO REGION. CA - (MPG) Average retail gasoline prices risen 13.8 cents per gallon in the past week, averaging $3.95/g yesterday, according to GasBuddy's daily survey of 720 gas outlets in Sacramento. This compares with the national average that has increased 6.2 cents per gallon in the last week to $3.57/g, according to gasoline price website GasBuddy.com.

Including the change in gas prices in Sacramento during the past week, prices yesterday are 11.4 cents per gallon higher than a month ago.

"Many motorists remain skeptical of the so called reasons that we blame higher prices on: refinery production and maintenance, tightening supply, and the now completed switch over to EPA mandated cleaner summer gasoline. Tight gasoline supply exists especially along the West Coast, and other factors are coming into play in some of the bigger metro areas where more expensive reformulated gasoline has hit pumps," said GasBuddy. com Senior Petroleum Analyst Patrick DeHaan.

CARMICHAEL, CA - (MPG) Dancing, music and many, many margaritas marked Cinco de Mayo at the weekend in Carmichael.

The date recalls a Mexican military victory over the French in 1862. Not to be left out, our Park District offered piñata-bashing in Carmichael Park. With the holiday falling on a weekend, mariachi songs rang out all day from many points on Fair Oaks Blvd. Mexican restaurants rejoiced in record trade. Many staged folkloric and Aztec dancing.

Bicycling - whether it is on the open road, a stationary bike, or in spinning classes is a phenomenal way to get into shape and stay that way. Unfortunately, the sport may also up the risk of a myriad of injuries. That's why professional cyclists turn to chiropractic care to ward off cyclingrelated injuries, and maximize performance. You don't have to be Lance Armstrong to reap the cycling-friendly advantages of chiropractic care. Recreational cyclists also benefit from chiropractic's unique approach to preventing sports-related injuries. At Chiropractic USA, we encourage patients to review safety information and learn how chiropractic can help thwart - and even prevent bicycling injuries.

Neck and Back Pain

Bicycling-related neck and back pain is sparked by a cyclist's body position while riding, which typically involves overextension of the neck coupled with a hunched lower back. Both of these postures may result in misalignment of the spinal bones (vertebrae), in turn spawning a common condition known as vertebral subluxation. Vertebral subluxations can spark carpal tunnel syndrome, a disorder that is exacerbated by gripping handlebars for extended periods of time.

We at Chiropractic USA recommend the following prevention strategies:

- Stretching exercises
- Shortening the handlebar reach or adding forearm rests
- Adjusting the tip of the saddle angle slightly upward (10-15 degrees)

How to Prevent Cycling Injuries

- Regularly changing hand and arm position on the handlebars
- · Keeping elbows slightly flexed while riding

Hip and Knee Pain

Cycling-related knee pain is commonly incited by incorrect foot position, which may result from positioning the saddle too far forward or too low. Research reveals that correction of the bicycle set-up, strengthening and stretching adjacent muscles including the hamstrings can prevent cumulative stress injuries.

Ulnar Neuropathy

If you are the kind of cyclist who rolls down the road with a death-grip on the handlebars, we at Chiropractic USA urge you to loosen up! Distance cycling may promote physiologic changes in the deep branch of the ulnar nerve, consequently provoking symptoms associated with wrist pain,carpal tunnel syndrome and other disorders.

Experts suggest a proper fit to your bike would have handlebars at least one to two inches below the top of the saddle (up to four inches for tall cyclists). The distance between handlebars should be the shoulder width of the rider: the exception being mountain bicyclists, where this distance should be slightly wider. Wearing cycling gloves can also provide padding to help prevent nerve compression and protect hands from "road

Focus on Fit

One size does not fit all when it comes to bicycles. Frame size, saddle position, reach distance to the handlebars and handlebar height must all be considered. The proper clearance between the frame and crotch (while standing astride the frame of the bicycle) should be one to two inches for sports/touring bicycles and three to six inches for mountain bikes.

Fancy Feet

While cycling, always keep feet in a neutral position – no pointing upwards or downwards. Make sure the ball of the foot (916) 973-1661 rests over the axis of the pedal.

Know the Facts

When it comes to bike injuries, mountain-bike enthusiasts have the highest risk of factors. There is a threefold increase in the incidence of mountain biking injuries over the last 10-years .Orthopedic injuries were most common (46.5 percent) - such as contusions, sprains and fractures to the hand, wrist, lower arm, shoulder, ankle and lower leg – followed by those to the head and spine.

On the other end of the spectrum are non-traumatic injuries (unrelated to accidents) including repetitive damage to the knees, neck, shoulders and hands for road cyclists. Doctors of Chiropractic also see considerable muscle, nerve and spine damage among patients who ride bikes without proper alignment.

Be Proactive

- Maintain regular tune-up schedule for your bicycle.
- · Choose a padded seat and padded biking shorts.
- Opt for traffic-free bike paths whenever possible.
- · Leave headsets at home when biking on the road to remain aware of possible dangers.
- Get a spinal check up before beginning your cycling routine

The Chiropractic Approach to Preventing Sports Injuries

The chiropractic approach to preventing sports injuries aims to eliminate possible risk factors before the onset of pain. When an injury does occur chiropractic care allows cyclists to get back in peddling shape

PUBLIC NOTICE

SMUD INVITES PUBLIC INPUT ON PROPOSED RATE ACTIONS

The Sacramento Municipal Utility District (SMUD) is holding two public workshops and a public hearing to discuss proposed rate changes to begin in January 2014.

The General Manager's Report and Recommendations (Report) includes a proposed two-step rate increase of 2.5 percent in both 2014 and 2015 to meet projected shortfalls resulting from higher costs of renewable power required by the state, the increase in the number of participants in the low-income energy assistance program, and debt service obligations. Even with the proposed rate increase, SMUD rates remain among the lowest in California and would be approximately 24 percent below PG&E.

The Report also recommends a restructuring of the residential rates that will be phased in gradually over four years to better align rates with SMUD's cost to serve customers. This restructure will help residential customers make better informed choices about their energy consumption and utilizes new smart technology. SMUD's goal is to transition from tiered pricing to time-based pricing by 2018.

During the residential rate transition, SMUD proposes a new approach to the Energy Assistance Program Rate (EAPR) for low-income customers to help neutralize bill impacts.

The Report also addresses the following items:

- Modifications to street lighting rates making efficient LED lighting more cost
- New Combined Heat and Power (CHP) rate for non-renewable generators.
- Revised late fees for public entity commercial customers.
- Reduce bill impacts to small commercial customers by combining demand and energy criteria for the small commercial rate.
- Revisions and modifications to the Rates, Rules and Regulations to enhance clarity and consistency.

Public Workshop Tuesday, May 28 - 6 p.m. Public Workshop

Tuesday, June 18 - 10 a.m. Thursday, July 18 - 9 a.m.

Public Hearing

All three meetings will be held at: SMUD Headquarters, 6201 S Street, Sacramento, 95817

Information on the proposed rate action and a copy of the General Manager's Report and Recommendation can be found on smud.org/rates. Copies of the report are also available at all Sacramento County Public Libraries.

Accommodations are available for the disabled individuals. If you need a hearing assistance device or other aid, or have specific rates questions, contact SMUD's Rates Administrator at (916) 732-6222. Written comments can be sent to rates@smud.org or MS A451, SMUD, P.O. Box 15830, Sacramento, CA 95852-0830.

Today's Necessities

Dear Dave.

Can you please define "necessities" in today's world while trying to get out of debt and live on a budget?

- Matthew

Dear Matthew,

Whether you're talking about the world today or 50 years ago, necessities haven't changed. Necessities are still food, shelter, clothing, transportation and utilities. We're talking about needs versus wants. The problem is that many people were never taught that there's a difference between the two - a big difference.

Most people have enough food to eat and a decent place to live. Those are necessities. I'm not talking about eating out or having a big, fancy house. Those are wants. Most people also have enough clothes in the closet and a way to get around town. They may not have designer clothes or a fancy foreign sports car, but again, those are wants, not needs. Keeping the lights on and the house warm in winter and cool during the summer? Utilities are a need. But no one needs a $300 superdeluxe cable television package.

Now, there are some important wants. I want you to have life insurance to protect your family. I also want you to have a will and health insurance. I want you to have some other nice things, too, like a better car or a nicer house. There's nothing wrong, at some point, with having a few toys or eating at a good restaurant once in a while. But again, these things are wants, not needs.

Believe it or not, very few Americans struggle with basic necessities. Sure, there are hungry people and homeless people in America. Those of us who have been financially blessed should want to help the less fortunate in ways that allow them to get back on their feet and start providing for themselves again. But most folks in this country have nothing to whine about. There's nothing wrong with having a few wants, but you should define them correctly—and never, ever put them ahead of your needs!

How do Mutual Funds Work?

Dear Dave.

I'd like to start investing in mutual funds, but I have no idea how they work. Could you explain about them please?

- Jennifer

Dear Jennifer,

First of all, don't rely solely on my answer here. You should never invest in anything you don't fully understand. Before you do anything else, sit down with a good mutual fund broker, someone who has the heart of a teacher, who will help you find what's best for you and your specific situation and goals.

Simply put, a mutual fund if it's a stock mutual fund—is a group of 90-200 stocks. If it's a growth stock mutual fund, then it's a group of 90-200 growth stocks. Analysts buy the stocks they think will increase in price and sell the stocks they feel will go down in price. When the analysts buy growth stocks, it turns it into a growth stock mutual fund. If they buy bonds instead, it becomes a bond mutual fund. Several people put money into these groups, and that's where you get the name "mutual fund." They're mutually funded.

These types of investments are much safer than single stock investing because your money is spread across several different stocks. Plus, you've got people who know what they're doing picking the stocks. My advice would be to take a hard look at mutual funds that have been out there for 10 to 20 years and have a good track record for a long period of time. I have one that has been open since 1934, and that kind of longevity and stability gives me confidence that over time they'll be just fine!

SMUD Asks Customers to Take Safety Precautions Before Digging

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA - (MPG) Whether planting a tree, building a deck, putting in a pool or putting up a new fence, be sure to include an important safety step prior to starting the job.

Call Underground Service Alert (USA) a minimum of two business days before beginning to dig to find out if there are any dangerous underground utilities such as power lines in the area.

Whether you are doing the job yourself or hiring a professional, smart digging means calling 811 or going online to call811.com before each job.

The Sacramento Municipal Utility District and other area utilities such as gas and cable television will be contacted to determine whether they have underground facilities at the excavation site. Underground utility lines are not always located in the street; some utilities may be located in backyard easements.

Digging into an underground electrical line can cause power outages and personal injury or death.

It is a wonder to me (and we all do this) how the plans are all made for the day. You have everything all mapped out, then at the end of the day you wonder why nothing worked out as you planned. Do you know why that is? You missed a very important element...God. It is more than just bringing God into your day. It's that you made the plans without Him and asked Him to agree with you. When you think about this, it is really foolish because God knows so much more than you do. I sometimes wonder what God must think when plans are made without Him and then we just

You're God's. Period.

In my own life, I can just see Him smiling, knowing what is waiting for me around the bends of my day. It's not what He wanted for me, but in my arrogant attitude that I know what is best for me, I blow it every time. He is always right, that unexpected bend in the road was hiding something totally unexpected that I didn't see it coming and it swamps me. God knows best and if I had followed His lead and asked for His direction I probably would have avoided it. You know that the obstacles are what the enemy is throwing out there to trip me up and he does his job very well. I have the bumps and scrapes to prove it. Sometimes my problem is that I still don't see it when I pick myself back up. I wonder why everything went wrong and start complaining to God that He wasn't there when I needed Him. I know deep down that God cares for me but this would sometimes make me question Him. Was I simply one of the masses and He just didn't have time for me? What a sometimes still is that I need to ask what He wants for me. Then, I need to be willing to follow His direction. The Word says, "I'm single-minded in pursuit of you; don't let me miss the road signs you've posted."

I can tell you from personal experience, if you will open your heart and mind to God, life will be better. It isn't an easy road, but you have a brilliant spotlight showing you the path. Listen and follow Him and your day will go smoother and you won't be tripped up by Satan himself. God's light has illuminated the enemy himself so you will see him. PASSAGE:

Rudolph Steiner's Garden of Eden in Fair Oaks

By Wendla McGovern-Duncan

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA- (MPG) Vehicles rush by Rudolf Steiner College on Fair Oaks Boulevard everyday, bypassing one of the most vibrant and serene gardens in our area, the Raphael Biodynamic Garden. "We want to be part of the community, so the public is welcomed here – just for the joy of being here," says Harald Hoven, the garden's director. "We are an valuable community resource, but so few people know about us."

This vigorously productive garden is a must for garden lovers, locavores (people who eat food grown locally), and gardeners who want to learn more about biodynamic gardening through volunteering at the garden or taking workshops at the college. The public can meander across the three acre garden and marvel at the thriving vegetables. Right now there are rows of leeks almost three feet tall, huge red and green lettuce heads, and deep green mustard and beet leaves. One acre is an orchard of pear, apple, and stone fruit trees. Visitors can relax near the cascading fountain and watch sheep graze on the hill across the way. The public can contribute to the garden and their own health by signing up for boxes of produce on a weekly basis with a one year membership, to be picked up at the garden on Tuesdays and Fridays after 3 pm. Volunteers can help harvest and learn more about biodynamic gardening at the same time on Tuesdays from approximately 9 am-1 pm.

There are monthly gardening workshops most of the year. The next one, the "Weeklong Advanced Biodynamic Intensive," is from June 12 – June 16. Hoven, who is one of the instructors of this class, stresses that students who haven't taken other biodynamic gardening workshops would need to read recommended books on the subject before getting his permission to take this particular workshop. All of these books can be gotten at the college bookstore. Finally, the college offers four apprenticeships in biodynamic gardening for one to two years. This apprenticeship qualifies for certification through the North American Biodynamic Apprentice Program.

Rudolf Steiner was a visionary writer and lecturer who initiated the Waldorf School movement in Germany in 1919. Rudolf Steiner College at 9200 Fair Oaks Blvd. is one of the country's leading centers for Waldorf teacher training. He also gave lectures that inspired the biodynamic gardening movement. "In 1924 Rudolf Steiner started the first organized organic agriculture," says Hoven. "He lectured on organizing a farm or garden to become a self-regulating organism."

Compost, including manure from the garden's sheep pen, is infused with fermented herbs and silica and wood ash, adding micro-nutrients before it is worked into the soil. Cover crops such as buckwheat and oats are grown and then tilled in before they go to seed, adding organic matter. A spray of fermented stinging nettle leaves (which are high in calcium and other minerals) "strengthens vegetable plants, kicks off aphids, and reduces the stress of summer heat and dryness." Flowers attract beneficial insects that eat insect pests. Ducks are allowed to wander through the garden at times, controlling slugs and snails.

The Raphael Garden sprouted in 1987 after Rudolf Steiner College bought 10 acres of land to connect two other pieces of acreage. The college decided to start a biodynamic gardening department, and Hoven was chosen to become director because of his years of experience in the field. He was an apprentice of biodynamic gardening for four years in Germany, where he was born. Biodynamic gardening is a popular form of agriculture in Germany, Switzerland and the Netherlands, and has spread to many other countries worldwide. Hoven met his wife, Cynthia Hoven, an American citizen, while both were studying in Germany, and then they came to this country to work at a local medical center. She is an instructor of eurythmy (harmonious movement to music) at the college. "When this garden was first started our produce was sold to natural food stores and restaurants. Next, we tried a farmer's market on campus. All these efforts didn't support the garden," states Hoven."In 1991 we started Community Supported Agriculture (CSA), where each person or family bought a share of the operation so we could devote more time to improving the garden and our seed saving program. We have 70 families who are supporting us in this

Within the last century 94% of open-pollinated vegetables and fruits in the United States had vanished. By 2005, the United Nations reported that 75% of the world's garden vegetable varieties had been lost. Consequently, the garden's most imperative goal is to preserve open-pollinated vegetable varieties. Saving and replanting seeds from the healthiest plants for years results in a selection of viable seeds that variety has adapted quite well to the local climate and the garden's soil. It is a slow-bolting, sweet red-and-green lettuce that can be grown in the summer. Some tomato varieties that thrive in this area are Black Cherry, Black Krim and Black Prince, as well as some striped ones such as Green Zebra, Ananas Noir (Pineapple Rainbow), Tigerella, and Persimmon, an orange tomato. Other seed vari-

are adapted to a particular soil type and climate. According to Hoven, hybrid seeds are dead ends because the genes of two similar plants are crossed to obtain the best traits of both, but when seeds from these plants are planted the next generation is an unpredictable mix of good or bad traits. Unlike hybrids, seed from open-pollinated plant varieties can be saved to plant another year's crop, provided sufficient isolation is ensured so they are not pollinated by another

One vegetable Raphael Garden of grows is Canasta, a Batvian (French Crisp) lettuce. Hoven has grown Canasta for 15 years, saving seed each year, so this Garden of revel in R beauty and be the beg eties grown here include an early ripening watermelon named Sugar Baby, Red Kuri squash and Long Fall leeks. Packages of seed from the garden are sold at the college bookstore and are distributed nationwide by Turtle Tree Seed in Copake, New York. On May 19th, Hoven is teaching a mini-workshop on seed saving, tentatively scheduled for 11:30 am or after, at the Soil Born Farm's "A Day At The Farm" festival, located at 2140 Chase Drive in Rancho Cordova.

So next time don't bypass this Garden of Eden. Stop by and revel in Raphael Garden's lush beauty and tranquility. It could be the beginning of a beautiful friendship.

Dropping the Benghazi Ball

Commentary by Dr. Earl Tilford

In the 1990s, the U.S. Air Force's self-descriptor for its capabilities was "Global Reach, Global Power." On September 11, 2012, as Americans were being attacked and killed in the Middle East, the global reach of air power was confined to the unrefueled combat radius of F-16 fighter jets. Additionally, the F-16s at Aviano, Italy apparently needed several hours to be combat ready. Hours . . . on the anniversary of 9/11.

Four decades ago, after returning from a tour as an intelligence officer in Southeast Asia, I reported to the Intelligence Early Warning Center (INEW) at Headquarters, Strategic Air Command (SAC). Warning centers existed at headquarters throughout the U.S. military and at the Intelligence and Research Branch in the State Department, at the Central Intelligence Agency (CIA), the National Command Center Military (NMCC) in the Pentagon and the White House. Secure Teletype machines connected SAC INEW to the warning centers at CIA, Defense Intelligence Agency (DIA), National Security Agency (NSA), and the NMCC. INEW also communicated via secure telephone with every other intelligence warning center as well as the NMCC and White House. The word "FLASH" put watch officers in instant contact with the right party.

An American ambassador under attack at a U.S. consulate in a Muslim country would have generated a "CRITIC message" from the appropriate embassy. The reception of a CRITIC in INEW, at whatever hour, required the senior watch officer contact the SAC Director of Intelligence who then decided how to handle it. Had Benghazi occurred on September 11, 1972, 40 years ago, warning centers in Washington and at SAC Headquarters would have gotten the message in midafternoon on a weekday when all hands were on deck to make decisions. Appropriate area specialists would have been contacted within seconds of the CRITIC's arrival. In the case of Benghazi, the Department of State was critically affected.

Had the Benghazi attack occurred on a date as auspicious as 9/11, every U.S. intelligence warning center would have been on a heightened state of alert. We were especially attentive to dates marking events like the Tet Offensive of 1968, birthdays of leaders like Mao Tse Tung, the start of the Korean War, etc. We knew our enemies: the communist countries and terrorists ranging from the Baader Meinhoff Group in Germany to the Palestinian Liberation Organization in the Middle East. Forces appropriate to cover contingencies would have been on alert, ready to respond. Intelligence officers also studied mistakes from Pearl Harbor in 1941, TET-68, and the capture of the USS Pueblo a few weeks later.

According to recent Congressional testimony, the State Department knew about the September 2012 Benghazi attack around 3:00 p.m Washington time. All hands were on deck in Washington, DC, including area specialists at every intelligence agency. Supposedly, the national security advisor was at his desk in the White House. News that terrorists were attacking a U.S. consulate with the ambassador on the premises should have gone directly to Secretary of State Hillary Clinton. A secure phone call to the White House, possibly vetted through the national security advisor, should have followed. If it didn't, someone was inexcusably inept.

Evidently, the extent of the Air Force's global reach must have shrunk considerably in the past few years. Although the Benghazi attack started after duty-hours at Aviano, it should have taken less than an hour weaponeer would have known to Ineptitude and lack of ability load highly accurate munitions to respond resulted from a policy sufficient to take out small targets mindset unwilling to acknowledge without risking collateral damage. words like "war or terror" or Our pilots are experienced at supporting troops in contact with
