Waterways Expect Big Crowd

Boat Safely this Memorial Day Weekend. Follow some simple rules and inform your guests before leaving the dock.

SACRAMENTO REGION -The California Department of Boating and Waterway's urges boaters to be properly prepared for safe boating this Memorial Day weekend. California's waterways will be crowded with motorized and non-motorized vessels. People will boat in groups creating numerous distractions, which can have deadly consequences.

"Boating during Memorial Day weekend means being a more responsible boat operator," said DBW's acting Director Lucia Becerra. "Operators may have people on board their vessels who do not normally boat. Familiarizing passengers with the location of safety equipment and how to be safe aboard will decrease the likelihood of being involved in a boating accident."

Here are some suggestions from the DBW for boat operators to decrease the chances of being involved in a boating accident: 1) Always wear a life jacket. 2) Avoid alcohol. Everyone who drinks alcohol on board is at risk. Passengers can easily fall overboard, swim near the propeller, or cause vessels to capsize. 3) Designate a person aboard the vessel to help you act as a lookout. 4) Carry the required safety equipment such as fire extinguishers, sound signals, navigation lights, and life jackets for every person on board.

Boat operators should inform everyone on board where the required safety equipment is located. Operators should also turn off the engine when the boat is not moving to avoid propeller injuries.

More information and additional life saving tips can be found in boating safety courses or at www.BoatResponsibly.com.

DBW enhances public access to California's waterways and promotes boating and aquatic safety through programs funded by vessel registration fees, boating fuel tax dollars and boating facility construction loan payments.

Pothole Sweeps Week Project Starts up in Arden Arcade

SACRAMENTO COUNTY The Sacramento County Department of Transportation (SACDOT) has started up 2012 "Pothole Sweeps Week", which is an intensified effort to identify and repair potholes. This project is part of continuous efforts to improve preventative maintenance activities for unincorporated area roadways. Pothole sweeps are performed twice each year: In late Spring to repair potholes caused by inclement weather, and in Fall to ready road surfaces for the storm season..

This County-wide effort will begin in the Arden Arcade community, which is the center of our service area, and continue through the remainder of the unincorporated area.

Work crews will begin inspecting streets and fixing potholes on May 21st. Residents are encouraged to contact SACDOT concerning potholes on neighborhood streets. Pothole locations can be called into Customer Service at 916-875-5171, or emailed to www.sacdot. com: Report a Problem.

There are over 5,200 lane miles of paved roadways in the County unincorporated area and it's inevitable that somewhere in this large area of streets there will be potholes. SACDOT's policy is to: "Repair all potholes as soon as possible." The Pothole Sweeps Week program enhances ongoing pavement maintenance activities, which include SACDOT crews who are sent into the field Monday through Friday each week to specifically repair potholes.

Some facts about potholes in Sacramento County: • Potholes Reported To

Customer Service Annually

• Potholes Repaired Annually =40,600.

• Potholes Repaired Per Month = 3,384.

Annual Cost for Pothole

Repair = $2.7 million.

• Square feet of potholes repaired annually = 91,000. • Repair Cost Per Square Foot

• Repair cost per pothole = $66.

• Reported potholes are typically repaired within 72 hours.

Carmichael P. O. Reaches Record with Food Drive

By Susan Maxwell Skinner

CARMICHAEL - As if delivering a full load of Saturday mail was not enough, American man carriers went out to serve a humanitarian cause on May 5.

The national Post Office food drive gathered many million tons of groceries for food banks across America. "It was a long, hard day, but so worth it to know we were helping needy families," said exhausted Carmichael customer service manager Alicia Leech. The 95608 zone's 48 carriers and 15 volunteers toiled from 10 a.m. until 7 p.m. collecting, hauling and sorting over 26,000 pounds of non-perishables. These were dispatched to the Sacramento Food Bank.

In days that followed, another 510 pounds rolled in to the Post Office. Carmichael Presbyterian Church's food kitchen received this overflow.

Final figures more than doubled last year's total, setting a Carmichael record for the 20 years since the national drive began. Leech explained the unexpected bounty in a time of recession: "the more people experience need, the more willing they are to help when they are able," she said.

Of further assistance were the millions of grocery sacks distributed nationwide a few days before the collection. "There was a friendly competition between our carriers to see who could collect the most from their route," said Leech. "Two carriers got over 1000 pounds of groceries." Gleaned from a Cameron Ranch route, the winning score was 1560 pounds.

Non-perishable food donations are still being accepted at the Carmichael Post Office on Fair Oaks Blvd.

Carmichael mail carriers recently pulled extra duty as part of America's largest food drive. Organized annually by postal workers, the collection helps the needy via non-profit food distributors all over the nation. Photo by Susan Maxwell Skinner.

Adult Mission Team Helps Rebuild in Joplin

From Gerry Halley Northminster Presbyterian Church

CARMICHAEL - An Adult Mission Team, 7 men and 6 women, from Northminster Presbyterian Church spent a week from April 14 through the 21st helping to rebuild a home in Joplin, MO, destroyed after devastating tornadoes.

The team did all the sheetrocking, taping, mudding, sanding and some wiring in the home and also installed a complete bathroom at another home.

In the last 5 years Northminster teams, under the direction of the Presbyterian Disaster Assistance program, have helped in rebuilding 15 homes, churches, and businesses destroyed by flood and storms in New Orleans, Galveston, and Nashville.

Projects have included tiling a church basement, installing floorboarding, putting in windows, adding porches, and painting. The volunteers pay their own way plus expenses. Rebuilding structures and families are the

Senator, Supervisor and Community Laud Helping Hands

CARMICHAEL - If two heads are better than one, 600 eager hands are better yet.

To perform a massive clean up, 300 Morman "Helping Hands" workers recently descended on the Effie Yeaw Nature Center. In one morning, 1200 volunteer hours were served.

Invasive weeds were cleared; an aviary roofed; a play facility built; stairs rebuilt and barb-wire fencing removed. Sorting men from the boys, a stalwart team also waded waist deep in murk to remove choking pond growth. Though the Nature Center has staunch volunteers, the Mormons were a miracle in numbers alone. Approved American River Natural History Association President David Wade, "They achieved more in a day than we'd hope to do in five years."

A quarter-ton of slimy duck weed was netted from Effie Yeaw's eco-sensitive pond and committed to compost heaps. An annual problem, this fast-growing vegetation clogs the pond surface and denys light to underwater residents.

Though veteran observers of much political muck-raking, visitors Supervisor Susan Peters and Senator Ted Gaines found the process absorbing. "Volunteerism is now more important than ever," nodded the senator. The Mormons encourged others he said, "to look around your community, see what needs help and see how you can assist. Our counties will be better for it and so will you."

Ranging from babies in back-packs to high schoolers, children were a huge accessory to to work teams. Explained Carmichael Stake President Stephen Taylor; "Being part of the project sets an example. If our children only did a little, they still knew they helped a big effort. They learn there are responsibilities and opportunities to serve. Helping your family sews the seed of desire to be part of a community."

Wells Fargo Celebrates

To handle sudden and enormous wealth created by 19th Century gold discoveries, Henry Wells and William Fargo created financial and express transport services for California. Arriving in San Franscisco 160 years ago, the New Yorkers established their first banks and offered armored transport - gun toting stage coaches - to haul gold, cash and vital mail across the Wild West. Wells Fargo staff recently invited Carmichael Chamber of Commerce members to mark their anniversary. Chamber President Chris Meyer (left) and director Gary Andersen tied the yellow ribbon at the Fair Oaks Blvd branch. Personal banker Andrew Walsh wielded scissors. Photo by Susan Maxwell Skinner.

Carmichael Community Update

By Supervisor Susan Peters

Through the generosity of the Carmichael Times this column serves to provide an update periodically about matters affecting the Third District, which includes the community of Carmichael.

Primary Election

California's Presidential June Primary will be held on Election Day, Tuesday, June 5. Polls open 7 a.m. until 8 p.m.

All area voters can go online to confirm that they are registered by visiting the Sacramento County Elections Office's web site at elections.saccounty.net. The web site also allows you to find your polling place or you can call 875-6451 for more information.

Registered voters also may apply for a vote-by-mail ballot with May 29 being the deadline. More information including an application is available on the Elections Office's web site.

Alcohol Ban keeps Parkway Family Friendly

This Memorial Day weekend there will be a complete ban on alcohol consumption and possession both on land and in the water within the American River

Parkway between Hazel and Watt avenues. An exception exists for Ancil Hoffman Golf

In past years holiday weekends were major problems along the river because of fights, public nudity, profanity and littering fueled by excessive alcohol consumption. The Board of Supervisors restored decorum by implementing the ban starting on Labor Day weekend 2006 which is also applicable for the holiday weekends of Independence Day as well as Memorial Day.

Since the restriction has taken effect, families I have talked to have expressed appreciation for making these holiday weekends once again a time for everyone to enjoy the American River.

Reserve Park Ranger Program

Sacramento County Regional Parks is creating its first volunteer Ranger Reserve program to support the current Ranger Patrol system. The Reserve rangers would be sworn officers capable of performing all ranger duties, working with a Ranger or independently.

Participants will either be entry level candidates looking to start a career in law enforcement or journey level officers who are still active with other law enforcement agencies or who have retired. The Reserve Rangers undergo the same training and background investigation as regular Rangers, must be graduates of a full police academy, and will complete the full field training requirements. They will be required to perform a minimum of 15 hours of service per month to maintain their status as a Reserve Ranger. Since Park Rangers are accredited Peace Officers, they will also be required to fulfill the Peace

Officer Standards and Training requirements.

The Reserve Ranger program is part of a coordinated effort to maintain patrol services in the Park system, build partnerships with other law enforcement agencies such as the cities of Sacramento and Rancho Cordova, and deploy Ranger Assistants to most effectively support the Rangers.

Animal Shelter Flea Market

Please show your support for Sacramento County's Animal Shelter and at the same time enjoy shopping for bargains during the weekend of June 2-3 at the Support Our Shelter "Flea" Market.

Support Our Shelter of S.O.S. raises funds to care for the 15,000 animals that come through the shelter every year. Working with the Department of Animal Care and Regulation, this combined effort makes a tremendous difference in the lives of animals that are lost, abandoned or subject to abuse.

The flea market will be at 6241 Fair Oaks Boulevard (near the corner of Marconi Avenue across from California Fitness) in Carmichael courtesy of Milargo Investments (in past years the event was at the shelter).

This is an opportunity to have fun and help the animals at the same time so plan to shop over the weekend of June 2-3 from 8 am to 4 pm both days. And please be sure to visit your ATM in advance because flea market purchases are cash-only.

War Hero, Civic Leader at Rest

By Susan Maxwell Skinner

CARMICHAEL - A passage in aviation and local civic history was marked with the burial of Col Ross Davidson last Tuesday. Aged 91, the WW II veteran died May 5. Military honors — including rifle volleys, flag folding and Taps - were in tune with approaching Memorial Day commemorations.

A much decorated hero of the European war theater, the pilot also served his nation in Korea and Viet Nam. He established his family in Carmichael in the 1950s and became a dedicated activist for the emerging town.

Tributes flowed during a memorial service at East lawn Cemetery. About 300 friends, including representatives of all local legislative offices, attended. The service included a moving photo retrospective, with childhood, wartime and family images. He was interred beside Micky Davidson, his beloved wife of 58 years.

In the best tradition of Davidson's fabled generosity, a luncheon followed at the Northridge Country Club. Courtesy of an advanced deadline, attendees shared a special funeral day edition of the Carmichael Times. The front-page tribute was headed: "Aviator, Civic Leader, Ross Davidson Served Nation and Community.

CASE: Sylvester Griffin (05/18/12)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Hilary Bagley Franzoia

District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that Sylvester Griffin was sentenced by the Honorable Greta Curtis Fall to life in prison without the possibility of parole. Last month, Griffin was convicted by jury of murder, rape, and first degree burglary in the 2009 killing of 64-year-old Alice Lynn Murphy.

Alice Murphy lived alone in a senior apartment complex in Folsom. Griffin was a driver for a medical transport company and had a client that lived in the same complex. In December 2009, Murphy was found dead in her apartment by a friend. She had been raped and smothered to death. DNA evidence was collected at the crime scene. A match was found in the FBI's DNA database, and the Folsom Police Department was notified of Griffin's identity. The Sacramento County District Attorney's Crime Lab confirmed the match that linked Griffin to the crime scene.

CASE: Willie Weaver (05/16/12)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Aaron Miller, Vehicle Theft Unit

District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that Willie Weaver was convicted by jury of carjacking and possession of a firearm by a convicted felon.

On April 14, 2011, Weaver exited the light rail train at the Florin Road station and walked to a nearby Walgreens. Shortly after he arrived at Walgreens, the victim pulled her car into a parking space in front of the store. Weaver approached her on foot and demanded her car keys. A short struggle ensued before Weaver forced the victim's keys from her hand, pushed her to the ground, and drove off with her car.

A few hours later, officers located her car parked in the area of North C and Ahern Street. Inside the car was a bag that Weaver was wearing over his shoulder during the carjacking. The bag contained a sawed-off shotgun and clothing matching the description of clothing worn by the carjacker. The District Attorney's Crime Lab conducted DNA testing on a beanie and a jacket found inside the bag. A match in the national DNA database of criminal offenders (CODIS) identified Weaver as the suspect. He was also identified by two witnesses using still photos captured from light rail surveillance footage.

Sentencing is set for June 15, 2012 at 3:00 p.m. in Department 33 in front of the Honorable Lloyd G.

CASE: Jimmy Phi Nguyen & Alan Sayareh (05/10/12) PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Doug Whaley

Sacramento County District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that charges have been filed against 1 Ozone Smog technicians Jimmy Phi Nguyen and Alan Sayareh. Both defendants are charged with felony conspiracy to provide false information to DMV, and four counts of providing false information to DMV. Nguyen has an additional eight charges of reporting false information on DMV documents.

Investigators from the Department of Consumer Affairs' Bureau of Automotive Repair found that vehicles were illegally passed on smog check inspections at the 1 Ozone Smog station on Power Inn Road where Nguyen was employed. Surveillance showed the defendants utilizing their own vehicles to perform smog certifications on different vehicles. A search warrant was served at the 1 Ozone Smog Shop today, and among the items seized were the smog testing equipment known as an Emission Inspection Machine, and vehicles used in the commission of the offenses.

The records from smog tests are sent directly via the smog testing computer to DMV, which DMV relies on to issue vehicle registrations. The defendant's scheme allowed vehicles that could not pass emissions testing to be registered illegally.

Bail for each defendant was set by the court at $50,000. Arraignment is scheduled for May 14, 2012 at 8:30 a.m. in Department 62.

Memorial Day Scams Target Military, Family and Supporters

SACRAMENTO - Memorial Day is a time to honor those who serve and remember those who have died in war. Sadly, it has also become a key opportunity for scammers to target those who are serving or have served their nation, especially elderly veterans. BBB is urging consumers and donors to be on the lookout for deals that seem too good to be true, and for disreputable charities.

"The unique lifestyle of our service members makes them prime targets for scammers," said Gary Almond, president of BBB serving Northeast California. "It's imperative that we educate our service members and ensure that the support we give to them equals the effort they make every day on behalf of us." Almond said scams can include those that target service personnel and their families directly, but also those that appear to be helping military members via charities.

"Donors need to watch out for questionable charities that raise funds on behalf of military organizations," adds Art Taylor, President and CEO of the BBB Wise Giving Alliance. "When you make a donation, always check www.give.org to see that the group meets BBB charity standards, especially around Memorial Day. Too many solicitors that fail to meet BBB standards call and say they help veterans, service members or their families, and little of the money donated will serve that purpose."

Among the scams to watch out

- Posing as the Veterans Administration to convince veterans they need to update their credit card, bank or other financial records with the VA;
- Charging service members for services they could get for free or less expensively elsewhere, such as military records and benefit filing assistance;
- Offering "instant approval" military loans ("no credit check," "all ranks approved") that can have high interest rates and hidden fees;
- Advertising housing online with military discounts and incentives, and then bilking service personnel out of the security deposit;
- Trying to sell things like security systems to spouses of deployed military personnel by saying the service member ordered it to protect his or her family;

- Selling stolen vehicles at low prices by claiming to be soldiers who need to sell fast because they've been deployed;
- · Posing as government contractors recruiting veterans and then asking for a copy of the job applicants' passport (which contains a lot of personal information);
- · Posing on online dating services as a lonely service member in a remote part of Iraq or Afghanistan, and then asking for money to be wired to a third party for some emergency.

BBB advises service members, veterans and all consumers never to give personal identification information (Social Security, bank account, military identification or credit card numbers, etc.) to anyone who contacts you by phone or e-mail, and to be wary of any solicitations that involve purchasing something or transferring money. Consumers can check out businesses and charities for free at www.bbb.org.

My Food, My Roof

Dear Dave,

I'm a single dad with two teenagers at home. My 15-yearold son wants to open a checking account of his own, but he doesn't want me or anyone else to have access to it. Should I just let him do this and suffer the consequences I know are coming?

- Tim

Dear Tim,

When it comes to 15-yearolds, as a parent you have every right to say, "My food, and my roof. You do what I say." With kids this age you never know what you're getting. Half the time you're talking to a 35-yearold, and the other half they're 5 again.

At that age, I think you let them do, or not do, these things based on their ability to perform well in life. To the extent they behave and show some sense, you lengthen then rope and give them more freedom and privileges. If they act like doofuses, you shorten the rope. Remember, no is a complete sentence. Can you tell I've raised teenagers?

If it were my son, I'd sit him down and gently explain that he doesn't have the capacity or knowledge to manage this idea by himself just yet. You wouldn't turn your child lose behind the wheel of a car the moment they wanted to drive, right? So make yourself a part of the experience by teaching him to handle money wisely. Then, as he matures in financial understanding, you can give him more leeway.

If he wants to go dramatic on you, let him. And remind him that for every minute he's in drama mode, that's less leeway he's getting in this matter and every other one in his life. In other words, the more mature you act, son, the better your existence is going to be.

No, at 15 he's not opening a checking account on his own.

The Point of Life Insurance

Dear Dave,

I have a 20-year level term life insurance policy. I noticed the other day that the cost would increase to $4,000 per year at the end of the term. Is that because it's the end of the policy coverage or something else?

- Tate

Dear Tate,

Technically, the policy will expire at the end of the term. But most companies that sell term life insurance will let you renew it, if you can't get any other insurance, at a ridiculously high rate. But let's face it, 20 years down the road your probability of death has also increased. The older you are, statistically speaking, the more likely you are to die.

If it were me, and I'm near the end of that policy, I'd go buy another 20-year level term policy, and let the old one run out. The only time you might run into trouble with a policy like that is if you were in the last year of coverage, and were diagnosed with a terminal illness. Then you're really going to be paying through the nose to keep your coverage intact.

But the real point of a 20-year level term policy is to ensure that your family is taken care of while the kids are at home and your mortgage is covered if you die prematurely. If you follow my plan, you'll have $500,000 to $1 million your retirement account when the policy runs out and the kids are gone. Plus, you'll have taken a 15-year mortgage, and your house will be paid off too. If something happens then, your spouse will be okay financially.

The further along in life you get, assuming you do the stuff I teach, the less need you'll have for life insurance!

"Hey Dad, Don't Blink"

By Paul V. Scholl

You are a child of the Universe, no less than the trees and the stars, you have a right to be here. And whether or not it is clear to you, no doubt the Universe is unfolding as it should. – Desiderata

They say "It goes really fast" when you have children. Faster than anyone can even imagine. My son, Gabriel, is now 18 and heading to college. Wasn't it just yesterday...?

We spent many hours driving when he was very little from the East Bay to the Sacramento area when he came up to stay with me a couple times each month. We would spend some of time learning math. "2 plus 2 is 4. 4 plus 4 is 8. 8 plus 8 is 16. 16 plus 16 is 32...16,384 plus... Dad, that number's too big for me right now."

I remember two times when he said something to me that was truly stunning. Once, when he was about four, he said "Dad, this time, I'm the boy and you're the Dad." Silence. He leaned over and went to sleep. He really did get it.

Another time, as he was looking out the window and studying the clouds. He looked over at me, touched my hand with his and said "Dad, God's a hand. He just holds you." Again, silence. And he leaned back and went to sleep.

How many times can you watch Lion King? I would watch it a hundred times more for one more Saturday morning on the couch together.

Celebrating the Fourth of July and my birthday together with family and friends. One of our best patriotic photos ever.

There was one particular play that was above all the rest. He was catching in an All-Star game, and it was close. There was a runner on third, then the pitcher threw a wild pitch that bounced off to the right

He played a bit more after that soured, never getting to play the one.

Another moment that thrilled this dad's heart was when he was playing linebacker on the high school football team. Goal line stand, and here comes the running back, and he just drilled him and drove him back, saving the touchdown. Now that was fun to watch!

His dream though was to be a big league baseball player. One summer we took "The great baseball road trip" which included seeing games in St. Louis at the old ballpark before it was torn down, Kansas City, and Denver. We saw the Royals, the Blue Jays, the White Sox, the Mets, the Rockies, the Cardinals, the Cubs, the Brewers and the Phillies all in a 10-day span in three different ballparks. We went with my wife Trish, who was also a big baseball fan, and they were a total blast together. This was the "maximum exposure" trip to big league baseball outside of the Bay Area, which was all he had known about it at that time. If you are going to dream big, learn big.

The day I heard that they were officially closing the old Yankee Stadium I decided I would make sure he had the chance to see it before it closed. We were able to make the trip out for almost a week, getting to see four games, a sweep of the Minnesota Twins.

He learned a lot about baseball fans that week. He also learned a lot about the real heart and soul of the game. It just warmed my heart when he leaned over to me during the first game and said "Dad, I think I'm a Yankees fan."

During our trip to New York City we visited the Metropolitan Museum, Central Park, Ground Zero, the Bethesda fountain, the top of the Empire State Building and ran up Broadway in the rain. I showed him where I used to live on the Upper East Side, and one of my favorite places in the world, the East River at John Finley Walk.

We also went out to the Statue of Liberty, just taking it all in. We visited the museums there and were enthralled by the history lessons. We even found family names engraved in the monument of those who had passed through as immigrants decades ago. It was a great father-son trip.

When he returned to Manhattan later with his class on a school performance trip he was the one showing everybody else about the Big Apple.

High School JV baseball proved a little bit different world. He found favorites do get played more, and there is such a thing as politics. After his first year the dream had position he truly loved.

After his last game, which I was surely not going to miss, it was the end of a dream. And not only his. It wasn't about his ever "making it", it was about the journey together, the learning, the pep talks when he had a bad game, the strategies, the teaching. After we talked and hugged and he had to go on his way, I remember getting back to my car and having a good cry. Something big was over.

We took a trip up the California coast one weekend to Fort Bragg. I took him out to a great little first-class restaurant in town and taught him how to act properly when out on a date with a young lady. I let the waitress know what we were there for, and she joined in with a couple of tips of her own. She even had the cook, the long-time owner, come out and introduce himself and add his personal touch.

Later that trip we visited my favorite beach for the day. He went for a long and solitude walk while I just hung back and took time to write. It was a great example of how we could be together, yet enjoy our own space.

Over the years we loved to go to movies together, seeing many of the big movies when they came out. We also saw plenty of duds. I remember seeing one, one of the big "animated" movies that was so bad, we got up and left before the halfway point. That's when I taught him how to get your money back for really bad entertainment. Funny thing, he later worked at the same movie theatre.

This last year he worked two jobs to save up enough money to buy his own car, while taking on AP classes and aiming for college. We visited a few lots one week and talked about deciding just what kind of car he was looking for to get him around town. He did the research, found the car, and made the deal. Then he learned about used car repairs.

When my wife Trish passed away suddenly in 2009, he was so supportive and strong. They had their own special relationship, and we both shared a loss that I've yet to figure out. As we both have learned, life does go on.

He served as my best man, twice. There really was no other choice for me. He is my strongest bond on this planet, my reason for doing so many things.

I was so very proud of the toast he gave when I married Gwen a year ago January. He displayed his maturity and grace in a way that not many others in the room had noticed before. Compliments were many.

how important it is to come up with his own conclusions and that life itself will teach him whether he is right or wrong or somewhere in between. He also hears that what might be right right now for him could be very wrong later in life. What is important is to be aware in life, and to act accordingly. He knows that it is about always trying to do the right thing, even if it doesn't seem to turn out that way.

This page is written to honor a job well done by my son, for his diligence towards school and his grades, to working and practicing hard, to his willingness to make and keep good friends, and to his being a wonderful son.

It is also written for all those divorced and separated dads that may not know what to do with their kids through all the pain of their own broken relationship. Get over or around it enough to nurture your children the best you can. Do what you can to participate, even if it means just being there to watch the game, the play, the dance, the speech. Being there always matters.

All the struggles, financial or otherwise, will pale in their significance over the years to the memories your children will hold of your participation. My son knows the path we've taken together, and now he's findand the rest of his life. I remember the first time I held him. I remember holding his hand on the first day of school. I remember how excited he was when he declared his independence from diapers. He said "No Dad, I'll do it myself. I want my privateseat."

It has been both a joy and sometimes a pain watching him grow his independence. More than just the normal teenage "I know everything" attitude, he's developed a side that he really does take much more into consideration when making decisions. When we differ on our opinions and we agree to Gabriel has his own relationship with God. He has a good foundation. He is defining what he believes in. He has all the tools to be a success. I do not know if I am capable of loving any other human being more than I love my son Gabriel.

And I am proud to know that when the day comes, he will understand fully just what it means when his son says "Hey Dad, Don't Blink".

Holding Gabriel for the very first time. Life changes now.

When he asked me once how much I loved him, spreading my arms wide didn't seem like enough. I looked up to the moon and said "I love you to the moon and back Gabe." He said "I love you to the moon and back Dad." We repeated that many times over the years.

He played basketball too. He once had a big game that opened his coach's eyes a bit. His team had a few players hurt, so he got more than his regular playing time. He walked away with 22 points and 12 rebounds.

ACHIEVE YOUR WILD GOALS

Do you have some wild goals you dream about, and never told anyone? You probably think you can never achieve them, so why try? How would you like the map to get there in four steps? Sean Covey, along with co-authors Chris McChesney and Jim Huling, have put together "The 4 Disciplines of Execution" to change your behavior and achieve your wildly important goals. I had Chris on my POPPOFF Radio Show and he led me through these disciplines. So put aside your old ideas and get ready for some new ones. Here is the capsulated version right from their book.

1) Focus on the Wildly Important. Basically, the more you try to do, the less you actually accomplish. This is a stark, inescapable principle that we all live with. Somewhere along the way, most leaders forget this. Why? Because smart, ambitious leaders don't want to do less, they want to do more, even when they know better. Isn't it really difficult for you to say no to a good idea, much less a great one? And yet, there will always be more good ideas than you and your teams have the capacity to execute. So, Discipline 1 requires you to start by selecting one, or at the most, two extremely important goals, instead of trying to significantly improve everything all at once. Failure to achieve it will make every other accomplishment seem secondary, or possibly even inconsequential.

2) Act on the Lead Measures. This is the discipline of leverage. It's based on the simple principle that all actions are not created equal. Whatever strategy you're pursuing, your progress and success will be based on two kinds of measures: lag and lead. Lag measures are the tracking measurements of the wildly important goal, and they are usually the ones you spend most of your time praying over. Revenue, profit, and market share are all lag measures, meaning when you receive them, the performance that drove them is already in the past. Lead measures are quite different in that they are the measures of the most highimpact things you must do to reach the goal. Once you have identified your lead measures, they become the key leverage points for achieving your goal.

3) Keep a compelling Scoreboard. People play differently when they're keeping score. This is the discipline of engagement. In principle, the highest level of performance always comes from people who are emotionally engaged and the highest level of engagement comes from knowing the score...that is, if people know whether they are winning or losing. And you must know the scoreboard. If the scoreboard isn't clear, the game you want people to play will be abandoned in the whirlwind of other activities.

4) Create A Cadence of Accountability. This is where execution really happens. The first 3 disciplines set up the game, but number four is based on the principle of accountability: that unless we consistently hold each other accountable, the goal naturally disintegrates in the whirlwind. The secret to Discipline 4, in addition to repeated cadence, is that members create their own commitments. Because they make their own commitments, their ownership of them increases.

This is a very condensed version of what "The 4 Disciplines of Execution" is all about. The good thing is when I asked Chris if this works for team participation or for single achievement, he told me absolutely for both. If you want more info on what these disciplines are all about, you can check out www.4DXBook.com. Press on. Now it's all up to you. It begins with you and it ends with you and your desire to succeed. But know you can make it happen!
