Aviator, Civic Leader, Ross Davidson Served Nation and Community

CARMICHAEL – At a recent air show, active duty fighter pilots greeted Retired Air Force Col. Ross Davidson like the hoary old campaigner he was. Saluting, a 28 year old airman admired the veteran's vintage Blues and ventured: "Looking great, sir!" "Any better," drawled Davidson, "and I couldn't stand it."

Carmichaelite Davidson was 91 when his seemingly indefatigable heart stopped beating on May 5. He leaves a community bereft of its most tireless town haller; a host who grabbed restaurant tabs at the drop of a bill; a pillar of the Chamber of Commerce; a geriatric tennis champ; a chronic joke teller; a polka dancer and distributor of cookies at concerts.

Industrious, generous, gregarious, outspoken — adjectives for the man abound. But lifelong patriot and great American are epithets that outrank all.

Having survived three wars, numerous plane crashes and a wound that added a Purple Heart to the pilot's chest, Davidson did not sweat small stuff. West Nile Virus immobilized his right arm in 2008. Like the Energizer Bunny, Davidson kept marching through life — to his own drum.

Raised in Alabama, he ditched a musician's career when WW 2 began. He was soon flying bombers over Germany. "I was immature and naïve," he recalled. "On our first mission, three planes out of 18 returned home. At 21, I suddenly realized a guy could get killed this way..."

His wartime career included 87 combat missions and over 1000 combat flying hours. Flying in the 92nd Bomb Group in WW 2, he crash landed (or had his B-17 damaged beyond repair) six times. Because of the enemy flack he attracted, comrades called him "Clay Pigeon."

"Our Berlin raids were the most hazardous duties anywhere in the war," said the pilot. "I awoke each day knowing it might be my last. I never thought I'd see my 23rd birthday. Every day since was a bonus. Sometimes I felt guilty. My buddies gave their lives. I survived and got medals." The survivor was nominated for a Silver Star in 1944. Because his Commanding Officer was killed the next day, required paperwork was not submitted.

Serving the US Air Force for 28 years, Davidson's decorations included the Legion of Merit; two Distinguished Flying Crosses; a Meritorious Service Medal; eight Air Medals; a Purple Heart (over Germany in 1944); two Presidential Citations; seven Bronze Stars; Air Force Commendation Medals; an Expeditionary Medal for = Korean duty and a special medal for counter-insurgency activities in Vietnam.

In the late 1940s, he became a test pilot. Over a long aviation career, he flew 55 types of craft. Fighters, bombers, transports, tankers, helicopters, gliders, sailplanes, float planes, ski-planes, USN carrier bombers — even the Goodyear Blimp — were all in a day's work.

As a pilot and Inspector General for the Air Force Missile Test Center, Davidson helped install and operate missile tracking stations throughout the Caribbean. These contributed to NASA's Cape Canaveral space program. He was later Joint Services Project Officer for the construction and testing of the "DEWLINE" project, which covered 3000 miles of Arctic wasteland from Alaska to Greenland. Davidson spent six years in Arctic exploration and perfected experimental landings on icepacks.

The construction of a billion-dollar radar station chain — to counter Cold War threats from across the North Pole — was considered impossible. Navigation depended on WW 2 aircraft and human reckoning. In a wilderness of snow and ice, Davidson's successes were heroic feats. To get airborne from glaciers, he pioneered the use of Jet Assisted Take Off (JATO) powered boosters. He helped construct and support research stations. The famous NORAD radar defense system benefitted from this pilot. John Wayne's movie "Island in the Sky" enacted the dangers of Arctic aviation. Real life hero Davidson admitted: "Sometimes, when I looked back, it scared me to death. I depended on one little aircraft engine. If that had failed, I'd be on an ice floe, yet..."

Finding Father After 63 Years

By Sara Burkett-Carew, Sandra Arthur's granddaughter, Edward Fuller's great-granddaughter

CARMICHAEL – I sit here on this cold March day, still trying to wrap my head around what just happened. My body has never felt so numb, not sure of my emotions. Should I laugh or should I cry? Am I sure this is even real? After 63 years of never knowing and not even sure if you'll ever know, is it possible?

My grandmother turned 65 this past January. And for the past 22 years of my life she has always told me about this father she had but never knew. Her and her mother had left Baltimore when she was about two and never went back. I always thought this to be strange. I was close with my dad, how could someone not know their dad?

As I got older and started a family of my own, it bothered me more and more. At five months old I could already see the bond that my son and his father had. No one should be denied that kind of relationship, and that kind of love with a person. That's when I decided I was going to find out who my great grandfather was.

Beginning my search, I went in with the impression that this man had probably already passed. But finding any kind of answers for my grandmother would be more than she already had. With the very little information I had and an ancestry.com website, I was going to make this possible. I was amazed at the amount of information and the numerous Edward Fuller's there were!

But somehow, more and more things began to connect and make sense. I found the man whom I believed was my Edward Fuller, my great grandfather, the mystery man. I searched and searched for more information. Why couldn't I find a death certificate? In my mind there was no way he was still living, my great grandmother had died before I was even born.

That's when I decided to do a back ground check. What I saw before me was something I will never forget. A man by the name of Edward William Fuller, aged 84, born on July the 16th of 1927, living in the heart of Baltimore, Maryland. Several numbers I found listed for him turned up to be no good, and that really discouraged me. My last resort was to write a letter to the only address listed.

With little hope and much frustration, I dropped the letter in the mailbox. I prayed for a response, even if it was a "hey you got the wrong guy" kind of reply. I told several family members and friends about my quest, and they encouraged me. Even my grandmother. "What could it hurt?" she had said to me. I don't think she was prepared for what happened next.

Earlier on this cold March

Saturday, we were out driving around like we do nearly every Saturday, looking for plants to plant in my garden. The phone rang, as it often does in my grandmother's car, which is ran through every speaker in her Dodge minivan. I noticed the number. It had a 410 area code. Strange? I had gotten a call from that number earlier on my cell phone, but I had left in the car while at the store. Someone had left a message but I hadn't called them back yet, I wanted to do it when I had gotten home because I couldn't understand the voicemail.

All of this processed through my brain so quickly, and my heart skipped a few beats. 410 was the area code to all of those numbers I had so desperately tried to call this past week. There is no way, it's not possible. Had my letter actually fell into the right hands?

I heard a man's voice and I held my breath. "Sandra, do you know who this is?" plays through the speakers of the minivan. My grandmother replies, "no," clearly unaware of what is happening. "This is your father."

I can hear those words over and over again in my head and still not believe they are real. Over sixty years, and here I am witnessing something no one ever thought would be a reality. I instantly focused on my grandmother. What was she thinking? How was she feeling? Was this ok with her? I honestly think she didn't know the answer to my questions either. It was all happening so fast.

We got to the store and we all politely excused ourselves from the car. I couldn't even focus! What was I here for? Oh yeah, picking out plants! All I could think about was what they were talking about, and all of the things going on in my grandmother's head.

To hear her tell me about him when I returned to the car was like listening to a storyteller reciting a fascinating story only told by them. Something forbidden or secret, and her deciding to tell me her secret was so exciting to me.

I will never forget this day, and the wonderful (yet frustrating) ways we got to this point. Every minute of my grueling search was worth every second of her conversation with her father. What a gift to be given, and what an honor it was for me to give such a thing to my grandmother. The many things she will now know and the many more questions she will have that will hopefully have answers. And to the hope that she will finally have some sort of peace of mind when she thinks about her father.

And lastly, the hope of inspiring others to reach out and search for others. You just never know if yours could be a unexpected happy ending.

Polar adventures led to his induction into the legendary Explorers Club, formed by Admirals Robert Perry, Richard Byrd and Lowell Thomas. Members have included Roald Amundsen, President Theodore Roosevelt, Sir Edmund Hillary, Chuck Yeager and Apollo Astronauts. A high point of Davidson's retired life was the annual club reunion in New York.

Though established in Carmichael soon after WW 2, his wife and three sons followed their Colonel to an Air Force job in Japan. His final posting was at McClellan Air Force Base; from there he flew missions into Vietnam. "Most people learn their lesson after one war," he shrugged. "I went back for more."

The veteran retired from the USAF in 1970. Carmichael, its Chamber of Commerce and civic life then became a passion. A landlord and spokesman for town improvement, he opened his mouth and wallet frequently. Late into his energetic 80s, Davidson cracked the whip on tour groups he led anywhere from Washington DC to Ayers Rock.

Ross wore many hats. He knew everyone and never hesitated in calling in favors from the powerful – but never for himself. He also helped raise many thousands of dollars for non-profits. Over decades, he was awarded scores of awards and honorary titles for public service. Lest we forget, the most recent of his many caps were those goofy wig-hats the wily prankster distributed at park concerts.

It seemed his battery would never run out. But a 2011 decline sent him in and out of hospital for the six months preceding his death. He attended a Chamber of Commerce luncheon just a week before he bid a lucid goodnight to his son Mark and died the next morning, in his own home.

With the full military honors of Colonel Ross Davidson's May 15 burial at East Lawn Cemetery, America's "finest generation" lost another legendary son. Carmichael farewelled an institution of Americana.

Goodbye and thank you Ross. It's a quieter town without you.

High fructose corn syrup Summer is here! And that means many golfers will be dusting off their clubs and heading to the greens. Golf can be fantastic exercise and a powerful source of stress reduction. However, golf can also be hard on the spine, often triggering back disorders. At Chiropractic USA, we teach patients how to keep their spines up to par when hitting the links. Exciting new research shows that regular chiropractic care may boost a golfer's performance.

According to Dr Tom L Fountain, a chiropractor who tours with the PGA, 80-85 percent of the athletes on the tour are under regular chiropractic care. "Back pain is the most common physical complaint among professional and recreational golfers." But you don't have to be a pro golfer to reap the rewards of Chiropractic care. Chiropractic USA finds that amateur golfers derive significant benefits from chiropractic as well – both in terms of injury prevention and in terms of optimizing athletic performance.

Chiropractic Boosts Golfers' Swing Performance

New research indicates that chiropractic care may boost golfers' swing performance. In a recent study, investigators followed 143 golfers at two clubs. The participants were divided into two groups. Between the two groups, "average age handicap, and initial swing were comparable."

Both groups took part in a stretching program. In addition, one group also received chiropractic care twice a week for six weeks. At each session, "all golfers performed 3 full-swing maneuvers. Ball range was considered as the average distance for the 3 shots."

After six weeks, golfers who underwent both stretching and chiropractic care enjoyed significant improvement in full-swing performance. On the other hand, full-swing performance did not change significantly in the stretching-only group.

Putting for Perfect Posture

Another way that chiropractic care enhances a golfer's performance is by focusing on posture. For instance, a level backswing is dependent on proper posture. A back-swing is actually two motions in one: the up/down movement of the arms and the rotation of the body – both are directly dependent on spinal health.

That's why a healthy spine is so vital to a golfer's fame. If the spine is out of alignment, the spinal motion will be affected so the swing will be out of alignment. That's also why so many professional and amateur golfers alike schedule regular chiropractic check-ups.

By correcting a spinal condition called vertebral subluxation, chiropractors help perfect the postures – and golf games – of patients.

Is Your Bag to Blame

Although golfers tend to blame back-related problems on suboptimal swings, many golf-related injuries have nothing to do with the actual game. Golf bags, by themselves, have substantial bulk and weight. Add to that the maximum number of clubs allowed during course play. A back pack strap that fits over both shoulders is always the best way to balance the spine if you are carrying clubs.

Cancel the Cart

Here's a simple way to dramatically improve your fitness level: Choose to walk the course, rather than rent a cart. I recommend a push cart over carrying clubs to reduce spinal stress. Walking elevates aerobic activity, increases stamina and boosts immunity; maximizing athletic performance and warding off injury.

Back in Shape

Low-back injuries are particularly common among golfers. Why does golf generate – and aggravate – low-back pain? According to researchers, the answer is two-fold: poor mechanics of spinal motion and today's more demanding swing. "Stiff hips and back muscles are often the root causes of flawed mechanics. The disks between the spinal vertebrae get less elastic with the years and, therefore, are less able to distribute the stresses that the swing puts on the back."

Warm Up Before You Tee Off

Warming up is essential when it comes to staying in the game. However, despite overwhelming evidence supporting the need to warm up, most golfers remain cold to the idea. "Few amateur players adequately warm up before practicing or playing a round of golf. If you don't stretch prior to golfing, you are asking your body to play golf with an added handicap. Muscles that are warm and stretched properly prior to teeing off are supple and loose, which enables your body to perform to its full potential."

Additional benefits related to stretching and warming up are outlined in the "Professional Golf Association (PGA) Tour Golf Academy Student Instruction Manual:

- Greater swing flexibility and motion, allowing for a solid follow-through without straining any muscles.
- Improved muscle endurance.
- Fewer aches, pain – and lessened chance of injury.
- Increased enjoyment of the game.

There are countless stretching exercises from which to choose. At Chiropractic USA, we evaluate your posture and muscle balance then outline a routine for you that's tailored to your needs.

Leave the Painkillers in the Sand Trap

Before reaching for a pill to ease post-golf soreness, consider this: Doctors of chiropractic don't believe pain should be masked. Instead, our office focuses on the source of the disorder, restoring alignment and motion to the spine with chiropractic adjustments. So, before hitting the links this season, schedule an appointment for a sports chiropractic checkup. Learn more about our community office; find us on Facebook-Chiropractic USA.

By Ellen Atwood

CARMICHAEL – Carmichael Canine Corral, off-leash dog park, is very close to its goal of raising $20,000 for phase 1 improvements. Matching funds are promised by Carmichael Recreation and Park District when the goal is reached by June 2012.

Still staring us down is the massive, additional $105,000 price tag to complete the improvements. The entire cost of the project is $250,000 with half provided by CRPD.

Fundraising continues for all phases. A Carmichael Canine Corral Community Cookbook is being compiled, with recipes suitable for humans and dogs being accepted. Deadline for recipe submission is May 31, 2012. Include your name, email, phone number and any descriptive information. Submissions can be made on the website: www.carmichaeldogpark.com/page/cookbook-1, emailed to cbarbaro@comcast.net, mailed to PO Box 1603, Carmichael, CA 95609-1603, or dropped in the Iron Ranger at the dog park.

A "Cover Dog" contest for the upcoming Cookbook will be chosen from submissions accompanied by a $10 tax-deductible donation. Fees can be paid via a special button on the website, www.carmichaeldogpark.com. Just scroll down to the Cover Dog Flyer. You can submit your photo and check for $10 made out to CRPD Foundation to carmichaelcaninecorral@mind-spring.com.

You can also submit via mail to PO Box 1603, Carmichael CA 95609-1603. The winner will be chosen by an independent panel.

Next, we are hosting a photo shoot on Saturday May 19 from 9 to 10 a.m. and Sunday May 20 1 to 3 p.m. Photos are being taken for a $5 tax-deductible donation.

These photos will appear inside the Cookbook. Photos may be submitted to the Cover Dog contest, if you wish. Please make checks payable to CRPD Foundation, and again, this is a tax-deductible donation. Carmichael Canine Corral has a long history, opening in October 2000.

We serve Carmichael and many surrounding communities by providing a secure, clean, well-maintained area where dogs can safely play off-leash.

After a decade plus of very heavy, continuous use, the enclosure needs vital infrastructure improvements (phase 1), followed by further upgrading for health, safety, and comfort of dogs and their companions. Dogs cannot attend the park alone, they must be accompanied by their owners, and are required to have current vaccinations and licensing.

The dog park is staffed solely by volunteers and receives no funding from city, county, or park district sources.

It is operated under agreement with Carmichael Recreation and Park District. Payment of yearly dues allows members to have a voice in how things are run as well as providing funding for supplies for waste removal, maintenance, and operating expenses.

Funds for improvements and upgrades comes from fundraising activities.

Darling Crafts?
 Some consumers disagree!

Better Business Bureau warns of Darling Crafts

SACRAMENTO REGION – Better Business Bureau is urging consumers to be cautious when purchasing goods through online classified listing sites after several consumers allege a seller failed to deliver merchandise found on craigslist.org.

Darling Crafts, a business bearing an "F" rating with BBB, has generated seven complaints in the past 16 months alleging that after consumers paid deposits for sheds, doll houses or chicken coops, the seller failed to deliver the merchandise or produce refunds when requested.

A North Highlands woman said she made a deposit toward a shed last June. "I made several attempts (to receive) the shed," said the woman. "On every occasion Mr. Shook made an excuse of why he couldn't make it. I demanded a refund." As of May 8, 2012, the consumer still has not received her shed or a refund.

Complainants report the seller claims his name is Kevin Shook, Kevin Dean, Murphy Dean and Chuck, with addresses reported in Fremont, Manteca, Oakdale and Tracy. The common link between the complaints is use of the business name "Darling Crafts". Consumers have also reported five different email addresses being used by the seller.

Three of the street addresses reported by complainants appear to be private mail boxes. Better Business Bureau has been unable to locate a business license or a fictitious business name filing for the seller.

"I ordered a chicken coop from Kevin on craigslist," said a Yorba Linda man. "I have yet to receive it. There's no working phone number and I'm not sure if the address is correct either."

The seller did not respond to complaints lodged with BBB or additional inquiries made by a BBB investigator. One consumer received a refund.

"Buying items from an unknown seller is always risky," said Gary Almond, president of BBB serving northeast California. "In these cases, consumers allege the seller failed to deliver as promised. Consumers should always take precautions when ordering online."

Better Business Bureau offers the following tips for consumers who purchase goods through online classified sites:

- Avoid paying large upfront fees. Pay for a project as it progresses and have the payment schedule written in a contract before any work begins.
- Search the internet for the company or seller. Use a search engine or check them out at bbb.org.
- Pay using Paypal or a similar payment system. Using cash, check or wiring money offers little recourse if something goes awry in the business transaction.

The Sacramento Chrysanthemum Society

Local WWII POW Survivor Tells All at Aerospace Museum Event for Armed Forces Day

As a young American eager to fight for liberty in WWII, 2nd Lt. Len Kovar was riding high in August 1943. Sitting before a bombsight in a B-24 Liberator flying thru a beautiful blue sky the young Californian was about to come down to earth hard as WWII reached a peak of conflict between the Allies and the Axis.

Nazi fighters and flak guns greeted the bomb group on a mission over Austria. With his plane in flames, the 24 yr old was about to jump into the most difficult days of his life. Bailing out was the least of his worries as he drifted into Hungary where outraged locals wanted to kill him immediately.

His personal story of struggle, survival and redemption is a must read for all Americans, as we enjoy today the liberty young men like Len Kovar made possible. Sacramento County DA Reports

Recent cases of interest

CASE: Jimmy Phi Nguyen & Alan Sayareh (04/10/12)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Doug Whaley

Sacramento County District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that charges have been filed against 1 Ozone Smog technicians Jimmy Phi Nguyen and Alan Sayareh. Both defendants are charged with felony conspiracy to provide false information to DMV, and four counts of providing false information to DMV. Nguyen has an additional eight charges of reporting false information on DMV documents.

Investigators from the Department of Consumer Affairs' Bureau of Automotive Repair found that vehicles were illegally passed on smog check inspections at the 1 Ozone Smog station on Power Inn Road where Nguyen was employed. Surveillance showed the defendants utilizing their own vehicles to perform smog certifications on different vehicles. A search warrant was served at the 1 Ozone Smog Shop today, and among the items seized were the smog testing equipment known as an Emission Inspection Machine, and vehicles used in the commission of the offenses.

The records from smog tests are sent directly via the smog testing computer to DMV, which DMV relies on to issue vehicle registrations. The defendant's scheme allowed vehicles that could not pass emissions testing to be registered illegally.

Bail for each defendant was set by the court at $50,000. Arraignment is scheduled for May 14, 2012 at 8:30 a.m. in Department 62.

CASE: Lovie James (05/04/12)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Matt Chisholm

District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that the Honorable Michael Kenny sentenced Lovie James to 23 years in prison. James was convicted by jury of attempted voluntary manslaughter, and felony charges of domestic violence, elder abuse, criminal threats, and vehicle theft.

In February 2011, 54-year-old James assaulted his 69-year-old girlfriend in her Elk Grove home. James slammed the victim's head on the tile floor causing a blow out orbital fracture of her right eye and bleeding on her brain. As she lay defenseless on the floor, James began pouring gasoline on both of them claiming they were both going to die that night. When the girlfriend's nephew called 911, James stole her car and fled the scene. The victim was transported to the hospital, and James was apprehended approximately one week later.

CASE: Raymond Vigel & Tamara Bassett (05/04/12)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Sheri Greco

District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that the Honorable Greta Fall sentenced Raymond Vigel to life in prison without the possibility of parole, plus consecutive 57 years to life in prison, consecutive to 7 years in prison for the first degree murder of Alison Freeseha and the attempted murder of Stephen Benetti. Vigel was then sentenced by the Honorable Ernest Sawtelle to life in prison without the possibility of parole, plus 110 years to life in prison for the attempted murder of Justin Hughes and Michael Escarcega. Co-defendant Tamara Bassett was sentenced by the Honorable Ernest Sawtelle to life in prison without the possibility of parole, plus consecutive 121 years to life in prison.

In January 2011, Vigel was convicted by jury of the first degree murder of Alison Freeseha by discharging a firearm from a motor vehicle, and of the attempted murder of Stephen Benetti. That jury was unable to reach verdicts on the remaining charges against Vigel and all charges against codefendant Tamara Bassett.

In a retrial of the remaining charges against Vigel, the jury convicted Vigel for the attempted murder of Justin Hughes and Michael Escarcega, and found true that Vigel committed the offenses to benefit the Norteno Criminal Street Gang. The same jury convicted Tamara Bassett of the first degree murder of Alison Freeseha, and found true the special circumstances allegation that she committed the murder by discharging a firearm from a motor vehicle. Bassett was also convicted for the attempted murder of Stephen Benetti, Justin Hughes and Michael Escarcega. The jury found true the allegation that she committed the murder and attempted murders in association with the Norteno Criminal Street Gang.

The convictions and sentences relate to an April 2009 house party Bassett attended in Elk Grove. A physical altercation occurred during which Bassett was punched in the face. Bassett became enraged and said she was going to bring back her Norteno boyfriend to shoot everyone. A short time later, Bassett pulled up in front of the open garage with Vigel seated in the front passenger seat. Vigel shouted "Oak Park 10th Avenue" and fired at least 10 bullets into the garage of innocent victims. Stephen Benetti was shot multiple times in the stomach. Justin Hughes was shot three times in the back, which damaged his spinal cord and caused permanent paralysis from the waist down. Michael Escarcega was shot in the leg. Alison Freeseha was shot four times in the back and was killed by a gunshot wound to her head.

Governor Brown and Californians Submit Petitions to Qualify Initiative for November Ballot

SACRAMENTO – Governor Jerry Brown joined supporters to submit the signatures necessary to allow the people to vote on his initiative to protect schools and public safety. The Governor personally delivered petitions in Sacramento, while across the state approximately 1.5 million signatures are being submitted throughout the week.

"For years, state government has been living beyond its means," said Governor Brown. "The ballot measure we are submitting today is crucial to balancing our budget and preventing further cuts to schools and public safety. It's time to go directly to the people and do what's needed to get California back on track."

When Governor Brown took office last year, California faced a deficit of over $26 billion and revenues were down 24%. After billions of dollars of painful cuts, state spending as a share of the economy is now at the lowest level in a generation. Even as the economy recovers, tax revenues are still less than they were in 2005 and we are facing another difficult budget in the month ahead.

The initiative will temporarily raise income taxes on high earners and increase sales taxes ¼ cent for 4 years—a level lower than they were last year. The measure will also guarantee local public safety funding.

More information, including the full text of the Initiative, is available at www.ProtectSchoolsAndPublicSafety.org

Governor and First Lady Honor Spc. Manuel J. Vasquez

SACRAMENTO – On behalf of all Californians, Governor Brown and First Lady Anne Gust Brown honor Spc. Manuel J. Vasquez, who bravely gave his life in service to our state and nation. The Governor and First Lady extend their deepest condolences to his family and friends at this difficult time.

In memorial, Governor Brown ordered that flags be flown at half-staff over the State Capitol on May 1st. Spc. Vasquez's family will receive a letter of condolence from the Governor.

Spc. Manuel J. Vasquez, 22, of West Sacramento, CA, died

April 24, in Paktika province, Afghanistan. Vasquez was assigned to the 2nd Battalion, 28th Infantry Regiment, 172nd Infantry Brigade, Grafenwoehr, Germany. Vasquez was supporting Operation Enduring Freedom.

Senior Tap Dance Performers Mark Three-Year Anniversary

SACRAMENTO REGION – Rhythm and Shoes, a senior tap dance performing group, recently celebrated three years providing free shows to local organizations.

Since the group was formed in 2009 at Mission Oaks Community Center in Carmichael, Rhythm and Shoes has danced 36 performances at venues ranging from River Cats Stadium and the California State Fair to retirement homes and skilled nursing facilities.

This year the group will be performing May 28 at the Hyatt Regency during the Sacramento Traditional Jazz Festival and June 17 at the state Veterans of Foreign Wars convention at the Double Tree Inn.

"We get as much enjoyment from tapping as the audiences do from watching," said Kathleen Hodson, a Rhythm and Shoes member. "It's a way for us to have fun, get some terrific exercise and give back to the community."

The troupe is composed of 11 retirees in their 60s and 70s who practice six to seven hours a week. They come from various backgrounds, including several teachers, a couple of RNs, a telephone company salesperson, an optician, an architect, a writer-journalist and a human resources manager.

Performances usually include six to seven numbers in colorful costumes to lively, familiar music.

Groups who are interested in a performance by Rhythm and Shoes may contact Linda Jarvis at (916) 591-1793 or 972-1793.

The Civil War Returns to Gibson Ranch Park

Hundreds of Re-enactors Commemorate the 150th Anniversary of the Civil War

SACRAMENTO REGION – Time travel to the 1860's Civil War, marked by the first battles fought by soldiers of the North and South over the elimination of slavery and preservation of the Union. The setting for this fun, interactive and monumental living history event is The Civil War Experience, May 19-20, 2012, at Gibson Ranch Regional Park, 8856 Gibson Ranch Road, Elverta.

The stage will be set for hundreds of Civil War re-enactors from throughout the West Coast who will travel to Gibson Ranch and set up traditional 19th Century camps on the lush, 300 acre park grounds for the weekend festivities. A sight to behold, these volunteers/re-enactors wear period dress and battle attire the entire weekend and tackle the same living and sleeping conditions as the traditional 19th Century camps that followed and participated in the Civil War battles.

The weekend events will also celebrate the 150th Anniversary of The Civil War, featuring large-scale battle re-enactments and heroic acts of courage with all of the drama and firepower of cannons, artillery and other battle weapons of the time. (Not recommended for small children or pets.)

Presented by SAFE Credit Union and the National Civil War Association, Gibson Ranch Regional Park takes us back to the greatest upheaval in our history and the largest loss of life in any war since—over 1 million men and women lost their lives during The Civil War. This battle made several men famous, among them, George Randolph, grandson of Thomas Jefferson, who would become Confederate Secretary of War.
