CARMICHAEL - On a 1938 Sierra Foothill trek with his brother, emerging artist Alan Post was taken with a roadside view. He painted analyst and, after office hours, one of California's most acclaimed painters. He died in March last year. Though Mediterraneanwarm Alan Post canvases are still avidly sought, his early watercolor remains a rare example of cooler and leaner times. Post's son David – himself a noted artist – donated "Foothill Roadside" to a fundraiser that benefitted the Effie Yeaw Nature Center in Carmichael. A serendipitous connection with the childhood visits with his dad to a house near Ancil Hoffman Park. "A woman with glasses and a severe hair style showed me all sorts of animals," he explained, describing Effie Yeaw to a tee.

Post's 73-year-old painting sold to Al and Christie Jahns, environmental benefactors who live non-profit was noted by Post the in Carmichael, yards from Effie Younger. Now 66, David recalls Yeaw's old home. "I'm not a sophisticated collector," said Al Jahns "The prospect of having a piece by an iconic figure like Alan Post drew me as much as the painting itself." The work will hang in his American River Drive law office.

SACRAMENTO REGION -The Sacramento Yolo Mosquito Vector Control District will not be allowed to fully spray the region due to a court ruling in 2009. The 6th District Court of Appeals ruled that spraying will not be allowed over waterways for pollution purposes.

"There is going to be a challenge," David Brown said. The district manager of the vector control district said there will be "reduced" spraying.

After the ruling the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System issued a permit saying that in these two counties, spraying will not be allowed in certain areas.

Luz Maria Rodriguez, public information officer with the SYMVCD said that the ruling will have "a very serious impact on us doing work." She added that the district will not be able to provide the same level of control, but some control will be possible. She said that they will not be able to treat waterways, including rivers and area creeks and streams. Citrus Heights City Councilwoman Dr. Jayna Karpinski-Costa, who is Citrus Heights' city representative to the district, said that area residents will need to be on the "offensive" against West Nile Virus carrying mosquitoes by means of dressing appropriately, draining standing water and wearing the chemical deet on exposed body parts. "These mosquitoes are going to be here and people need to band together," she said. "They are going to have to take care of themselves." The potentially contaminated mosquito population thrives in the spring and summer. The mosquitoes that have surfaced this winter do not carry the virus.

State's Motorists Face a New Year with New Laws

SACRAMENTO REGION – As we begin a new year, California motorists should be aware of some of the new laws going into effect this past January 1, 2012. These new traffic laws were passed by the Legislature and signed by the Governor earlier in 2011, and the California Highway Patrol (CHP) is asking the motoring public to familiarize themselves with the changes before they take effect.

"Our hope is by educating the public of these new traffic safety laws in advance, more lives will be saved in the new year," said CHP Commissioner Joe Farrow.

The following are highlights of a few of the significant changes for the upcoming year:

• A change to California's Child Passenger Safety Seat law will now require children to ride in either a car seat or booster seat until the age of eight, or until they reach a height of 4 feet 9 inches. This law also requires children who do not meet the age or height requirement to ride in the rear seat of a vehicle unless the vehicle has no back seats, the restraint system cannot be properly installed or the rear seats are already occupied by children under age eight. However, the law still maintains that a child may not ride in the front seat of a vehicle with an active passenger airbag if they are under one year of age, less than 20 pounds, or riding in a rear-facing child safety seat. (SB 929, Evans)

• Drivers are required to stop and submit to a sobriety checkpoint.

Rock-abilia Reigns

By Susan Maxwell Skinner

SACRAMENTO REGION -Given that the genre now predates many grandparents, rock 'n roll comes honestly by antiques.

Not just Paul McCartney. But local recording entrepreneurs Jeff Tamelier and Chuck Hansen certainly include Beatle-abilia among hundreds of vintage treasures at their Markston Rd (Arden) studio. "We have a framed contract for the Beatles' 1965 concert at Shea Stadium, New York," boasts Tamelier. "What struck me is how little the group asked for. They were the biggest act in the world; they had 55,000 fans at Shea (then a crowd record) and they were paid $100,000. Their backstage requirements were basically two packs of Pepsi and some towels. These days, bands can have over 15 pages of requests: special furniture; nannies, masseuses; French chefs - crazy food demands - you name it."

Tamelier speaks as an expert. A career guitarist, he toured the world 10 times with Starship (formerly Jefferson Airplane) and played 10 years with Tower of Power. His nostalgia collection includes backstage passes from the Hollywood Bowl to the North Pole. "Tower of Power was billed to play with Ike Turner at Rovaniemi (Arctic Circle)," Tamelier recalls. "He didn't make it. We played anyway." A favorite souvenir recalls T of P concerts with James Brown, B.B. King and Ray Charles. "I had James Brown sign my 40-year-old 'Live at the Garden' LP," recalls the sideman. "I'd loved soul music for so long and he was huge voice. For me, his autograph was like having a Beatle's signature."

Tamelier runs the Track Shack studio with his Carmichaelite partner, sax and software guru Chuck Hansen. The musicians met at

Bambini dance troupers show their new folkloric attire in Carmichael Park. Each costume reflects the traditions of a different Italian region. Photo by Susan Maxwell Skinner.

CARMICHAEL – A holiday tradition in Carmichael, the recent Festa Della Befana welcomed 2012 with something entirely fresh and new.

The Italian Cultural Society's Bambini dancers - a children's folkloric troupe - debuted stunning new costumes. Designed and made by Lynne Giovannetti, the colorful kits represented many different Italian regions and involved much dedication and expense. Comprising 14 outfits are 172 hand-made components, including petticoats, head-pieces, cummerbunds and trimmed jackets. "I researched each Italian region for color, historical details and flowers," explained Giovannetti. "I used the last name of each (dancer's) family to decide the region for their costume."

Natural fiber fabrics were bespoken from specialist fabric stores in Sacramento and the Bay Area. Some creations displayed antique cloth and lace. Giovannetti - a theatrical costume pro who heads the Fashion Design department at Sacramento City College - estimated 350 hours went into intricate stitchery. Given that children tend to grow, costumes will know more than one wearer. "They belong to the Italian Center" explained the creator. "Each costume is constructed in true theater fashion - flat-lined to enable them to be enlarged or taken in for another child. Next season, I will refit each child who joins the dancers - yes, I will do the alterations..."

Bambini dancers range in age from 5 to 14 but the group welcomes wannabes as old as 17. Performances occur about six times per year, presenting traditional Italian folk dances for festivals and celebrations.

The January performance was part of a festival welcoming folk heroine Befana. To the delight of bambini buoni (good children), this benign old lady passes like Santa Claus over Italian roof tops during the Festival of Epiphany. She is said to have annually taken to the skies on her broom since Biblical times, in an eternal search for baby Jesus.

Inspecting all homes on her mission, the benefactress comes down chimneys and rewards the naughty and nice. Nice children get gifts and treats; naughty kids' just desserts are lumps of coal. Children at the Carmichael celebrations got chocolate coins and blessings.

The Bambini dancers' lively performance in sumptuous new outfits — and a puppet show were further Befana bonuses.

Any child may apply to be a Bambini dancer by contacting Diana Quilici: Diana.quilici@ va.gov. The Italian Cultural Center is located at 6821 Fair Oaks Blvd, Carmichael.

FAT TALK

Hope you're having a wonderful holiday season, but it's almost that time to start thinking of the New Year.

First, take a look in the mirror. Are you happy with the way you look? If you are, then you don't have to read any further. But if you have some lumps and bumps that make you a bit queasy, then listen up because you are not alone.

Obesity has become an epidemic in our country. The Surgeon General told us back in 2001 that more than 61% of adults are overweight...31% obese. Obese means 30% over ideal weight. Kids fare no better at 13%. According to research done in 2002, people overweight at 40 are likely to die at least three years sooner than those who are slim and trim. Would you believe being fat at 40 and beyond is just as bad as smoking for your life expectancy? Dr. William Parsons says it's time for "Tough

POPPOFF! with Mary Jane Popp

Talk About Fat"...How to Reach and Maintain Your Ideal Weight. 10 pounds or 100 pounds, you can lose it. "Tough Talk" doesn't scold you for being fat. It teaches us how to get rid of it...all of it!

Dr. P says it works like your bank balance. Take out more than you put in, and it goes down. There are some other incredible edible facts like, don't fret about protein vs. carbs or whatever. Calorie control is everything. Then there's the exercise thing. Although important for fitness, exercise plays a minor role in weight control.

Dr Parsons also put it very bluntly when it comes to books on weight control. There are thousands of ideas out there. According to Dr. P, in the U.S., the weight loss industry is a $58 Billion business with a 98% failure rate. Encouraging huh!? But Dr P says he is more concerned that obesity is now a major risk factor for Heart Attacks and Diabetes. He added that by wearing out weight-bearing joints, obesity is a major cause of disability. Then there's the big surgery surge movement for morbid surgery. Dr Parsons says it saves lives, but he feels "Tough Talk" can save more.

He gets into a lot of great tips like reducing our eating by 500-700 calories a day can drop 4-5 pounds a month. He goes into tips on how to design your own program to lose weight, along with special strategies for your weight reduction program like:

1) Buy small...not the largest banana, apple, melon, other

- 2) Cook smaller amounts.
- 3) No nibbling while cooking
- 4) Use smaller plates

5) Stop eating when you feel satisfied not stuffed

6) Leave some food on vour plate... contrary to what mother told you about cleaning your plate

The list goes on and on, and it's pretty simple reading with basics to follow. Dr Parsons even gets into Legislation Congress should pass for a major attack on the epidemic of obesity.

Now that the holidays are almost over, you may want to fortify yourself from the mounds of desserts and taste desires by boning up on "Tough Talk About Fat". You can find all the information vou need about Dr Parsons and his books at www.cholesterolnodiet.com. Just a bit of tough talk to make a difference in out life. Happy Eating I mean nibbling!!!

On New Year's Day, Bill made a resolution to finally get in shape. He worked out every day for two weeks. But then a new project at work forced him to miss three workouts in a row, and his good intentions dissolved: he hasn't been back to the gym since. If Bills story sounds familiar, it's because he's not alone. Millions of people have difficulty sticking to a regular exercise regimen. Read on to learn how you can go from a sporadic to a consistent exerciser.

Keep it fun

According to psychologists, a significant key to sustaining as exercise regimen is choosing activities you enjoy. Instead of "traditional" workouts, such as jogging or biking, consider more creative options like ballroom dancing or karate, kayaking, yoga, t'ai chi, hiking, rollerblading, cross-country skiing, snowshoeing, windsailing, or just plain walking with a partner. I urge practice members to choose activities they actually will do, rather than ones they think they should do.

Healthy habit

For an exercise routine to stay consistent it must become an integral part of an individual's daily routine. It needs to be a habit, rather than something "extra" he or she attempts to get to if there's time.

How to Stay Enthusiastic About Exercise!

Start by scheduling exercise appointments into your date planner or scheduling software. If possible, schedule your workout at least the same time every day - or at least at the same time on any given day from week to week. This will boost the odds of it becoming a habit.

I caution practice members to avoid the "all or nothing" mentality, which sabotages many peoples attempt to stay in shape. Whenever possible, scale down workouts rather than skip them.

Remember, when it comes to exercise something is infinitely better than nothing.

Next time you're deliberating whether to miss a workout, focus not on how you feel at that moment (stressed, pressed for time, tired, etc.) but on how you will feel after completing your workout (proud, relaxed, energized). Visualize yourself completing the workout, feeling fantastic and congratulating yourself.

Take five

No matter how pressed for time or tired - you are, you can handle just five minutes. After the five minutes are up, chances are you'll feel so good you won't want to stop. This strategy s especially effective if you work out at a gym or other venue that requires travel.

Get some class

Structured exercise classes can transform sporadic exercisers into unwavering fitness buffs. For many, having a set time block each day dedicated to attending an exercise class makes a tremendous difference.

Buddy up

Training with a friend or workout buddy can catapult you to optimal fitness.

Exchanging inspirational e-mails or phone calls with friends can also do wonders, as research shows this type of encouragement is highly motivational

Join the club

Exercising in a group, such as a walking or hiking club, makes exercise a social event. Hitting the greens with your favorite foursome on a regular basis may also offer a physical workout, provided that you walk the course rather than drive a cart.

Train with a trainer

If you've tried everything and still can't adhere to a workout schedule, consider hiring a personal trainer. At Chiropractic USA we customize your exercise routine to correct posture faults and strengthen your spine.

Mix it up

Bored with your exercise routine? Spice things up with cross-training. Incorporate a variety of indoor and outdoor activities into your routine to keep you moving.

Sacramento County DA Reports

Recent cases of interest

CASE: Nicholas Larson (01/11/12)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Susan Nelsen

District Attorney Jan Scully announced that 21 year-old Nicholas Larson pled no contest to five counts of vandalism for graffiti tags in downtown and midtown Sacramento.

From May to July 2011, Larson vandalized downtown and midtown walls, signs, sidewalks, poles, dumpsters and other property with graffiti tags under the moniker "Reid" and "Reidel." An investigation by Sacramento Code Enforcement, the Sacramento Police Department and the District Attorney's Office led to a search warrant on Larson's home. During the search, officers found a variety of graffiti tools and controlled substances.

This case was prosecuted by District Attorney Community Prosecutor Susan Nelsen, who prosecutes quality of life crimes that occur in the downtown Sacramento area. This position is funded by the Downtown Partnership, the City of Sacramento and Regional Transit.

Under the plea agreement, Larson was sentenced to 60 days county jail (a court recommendation of work project was given), 3 years probation, and restitution to the City of Sacramento for clean-up costs. He is also subject to search and seizure, prohibited from possessing markers, spray paint and other implements that can be used to deface or graffiti property, and his California Driver's License will be suspended for one year.

Deputy District Attorney Susan Nelsen states, "Graffiti prosecution remains a priority, and those that engage in this destructive criminal behavior will suffer consequences."

CASE: Nashwan Batta (01/10/12)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Nancy Cochrane

District Attorney Jan Scully announced that Nashwan Batta was convicted by jury on multiple counts of child molestation.

Batta molested three young girls over several years, beginning in 2005. Two of the victims were 11 years old when the assaults began. The third victim was 12 years old.

Batta is scheduled to be sentenced on February 10, 2012 at 1:45 p.m. in Department 10 in front of the Honorable Judge Greta Fall.

CASE: Gregory Atkins (01/06/12)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Shelly McGill

District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that the Honorable David De Alba sentenced Gregory Atkins to 64 years to life in prison. Last month, Atkins was convicted by jury on eight counts of child sexual assault charges.

The two victims were siblings. Atkins was a lifelong friend of their father. The female victim was assaulted from age five to 11 years old. The male victim was assaulted when he was nine years old. Both victims contracted a sexually transmitted disease from Atkins.

Deputy District Attorney Shelly McGill stated, "Today's sentencing gives the victims and their family a sense of relief. Now that justice has been served, they look forward to leaving this behind them."

CASE: Matthew David Riley (01/06/12) PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Chris Ore

District Attorney Jan Scully announced today that Matthew Riley was sentenced by the Honorable Judge Gary Mullen to 2 terms of life in prison without the possibility of parole plus 2 years for the first degree murder of his parents Steve and Linda Riley.

On December 9, 2008, Riley went to his parent's South Natomas home and stabbed them to death.

CASE: TARGET (Targeting Armed Recidivist Gangsters Enforcement) Team (01/06/12)

District Attorney Jan Scully announced today the successful prosecution of two recent cases by the District Attorney's TARGET (Targeting Armed Recidivist Gangsters Enforcement) Team. This specialized team focuses on violent armed recidivists and gang members who present the highest level of threat to the community. These individuals have a demonstrated history of criminal and gang related violence. TARGET's goal is to successfully prosecute these cases and attain the highest potential sentences.

TARGET takes a proactive approach in seeking out individuals that fit the team's criteria. By collaborating with law enforcement to develop cases from the ground level, TARGET works to intercept and convict these individuals before they injure or kill another citizen.

Lloyd Bell, Charles Corbett and Troy Daniels - On March 15, 2011, the defendants held four people hostage at the Global Entertainment Recording studio in South Sacramento. A rap album was recorded during the armed take-over. At the time, all three were active members of the Oak Park Bloods criminal street gang.

Bell was also charged with returning to the business and threatening witnesses, a shooting involving an unrelated victim, and for unlawful possession of a firearm. The prosecution alleged all crimes were committed to benefit a criminal street gang.

Corbett and Daniels pled guilty to false imprisonment charges. Bell was convicted by jury on multiple counts of false imprisonment, possession of a firearm by a convicted felon, assault with a semiautomatic firearm, and attempting to prevent a witness from testifying. The jury also found true that the crimes were committed to benefit a street gang.

The Honorable Russell Hom sentenced Bell to 54 years to life in prison, Daniels to 13 years in prison, and Corbett to 8 years in prison.

Isaac Dawson – On July 1, 2010, Dawson robbed two young men from the Job Corps at the Pannell Center on Meadowview Road. One of the victims was shot during the robbery.

On July 9, 2010, Dawson tried to rob a woman while she got into her car in the area of Mack Road and Center Parkway. Dawson shot at the car in the course of the attempt. An hour later, he tried to rob an ice cream vendor, but had to abandon his attempt when a group of people appeared and law enforcement was called. Dawson was captured by Sacramento police officers.

Weekly Support Meeting for Widowed Men and Women Ongoing Program - Weekly throughout the year

Realizing how difficult it is to go into new social situations when one is first widowed, the Widowed Persons Association of California encourages widowed men and women to come to Sunday Support each Sunday from 3:00 pm - 5:00pm with some going to dinner as a group following the session. Doors open at 2:30 pm. The Widowed Persons Association is a non-profit organization whose mission is to be of help to recently widowed men and women, but any and all widows and widowers are welcome. Participants do not need to be members and there is no charge.

Where: In the meeting room of the WPAC office.

Enter from the back parking lot at 2628 El Camino Avenue, Suite D-18, Enter Suite-18 via the back parking lot.

Widowed Persons Association of California Office Hours 10:0 am – 3:00 pm Monday through Friday 916-972-9722

Volunteers Needed: The Domestic Violence Intervention Center needs caring people to assist victims of domestic violence.

UC Davis Medical Center is conducting a research study to test a new medicine that may help traumatic brain injury. The medicine has been shown to reduce injury in animal studies. Patients who get to the hospital quickly, with moderate to severe head injury, between the ages of 16 and 75 can be included.

Public Notice

Brain Injury Study

Carmichael Times Page 7

Our previous experience suggests that this medicine can reduce injury to the brain if given quickly. Because head injury is a life threatening condition requiring immediate treatment, some subjects will be enrolled without consent until a family member can be located. Every attempt will be made to locate family to review the study.

The research medicine has few risks. They include:

- Infusion site reactions
- Mild headache
- Dizziness
- Back pain
- Bruising or irritation at the blood sampling site • Mild change in heart rhythm or ECG

Experienced medical staff will monitor patients for any medication effects.

Before the study starts, we will hold meetings with the community to review the study, hear your feedback and answer questions. For more information or to decline participation in this study, please visit www.intrepid-2566.com or contact our study staff at (916) 734-6514.

Special Art, Poetry and Musical Concert

On March 17, 2012, The Sacramento Fine Arts Center will present a special concert never before performed in the Sacramento region. The Dave Brubeck Institute Jazz Band and the Poet Laureate of Sacramento, Bob Stanley, along with eight other prominent poets, will present works inspired by the art at the Center's annual Animal House show.

The musicians and poets will choose art entered in the Center's fabulous animal themed art classic that inspires their creativity, compose the music and poetry and combine that with the art and artists at the Center's beautiful galleries in Carmichael. The concert, co-sponsored by the Sacramento Poetry Center and the Sacramento Fine Arts Center, will begin at 7 PM. The galleries are located at 5330-B Gibbons Drive, Carmichael. Tickets are $10 in advance, $15 at the door. Call 916-971-3713 to reserve tickets. Space is limited to 150 guests.

This event is preceded by "Animal House" Art Exhibit February 21-March 10, 2012 and a 2nd Saturday Animal House Reception, March 10, 2012. There will be great food and drink, live music, and, of course, wonderful art from a wide variety of media. Awards to the artists will be presented. The reception will be cosponsored by the Sacramento SPCA, the Sacramento Audubon Society, and the Carmichael Recreation and Park District. The SPCA's lovable dogs-up-for-adoption will be there, prominent painters will demonstrate their skills, and the Animal House artists will discuss their work with the guests.

Dreaming in the Batcave Batman filmmaker asks "What Inspires You?"

By: Michael Uslan

Dreams are a hard thing to have these days.

We can chalk that up to the economy, the stock market and unemployment rates, but the truth is that no matter where you come from or where you grew up, times have always been a little tough. It was no different for me.

As a New Jersey kid growing up as the son of a working-class stone mason, I had big dreams. I drew my inspiration, as many kids back then did, from comic books. My favorite character was Batman. To me, Batman was accessible. To be Superman, you had to come from Krypton, but Batman was just a man who trained himself to be the best, both physically and intellectually. As an 8-year-old kid sitting in his bedroom awash in his heroic fantasies, I believed that someone could actually grow up to BE Batman. Even me.

I couldn't have been more excited when I heard they were making a TV show about Batman and I remember devouring the first episode, finally seeing the costumes, the Batcave, the Batmobile and all these fantastic characters brought to life in living color - but something was wrong. I heard my parents laughing. It hit me that they were playing the whole thing for laughs and I was horrified. They were laughing at Batman!

That was heresy to me. The Batman that I grew up on in the comics was not a comedian. He was a tragic figure, a dark knight who fought crime and injustice by stalking evildoers from the shadows. It was then, as a kid, I found my dream - to grow up to make a movie that would make people take Batman seriously. They would see in him the same thing I saw the inspiration to be anything you dreamed you could be.

As an adult, I discovered that dream would almost break me. When I first approached DC Comics to acquire the film rights to Batman, the management at DC thought I was crazy to even want them because the TV series was dead and no one cared about Batman anymore. Then they told me they couldn't sell me the rights because I was not a Hollywood producer. I was a college grad with a dream, but no credentials to back it up. Undaunted, I went out to get those credentials. I went to law school and upon graduation, took a job at United Artists as a production attorney. There, I had the most amazing training in Hollywood by working on the legal side of movies like Rocky 2 and Apocalypse Now (a crisis per day for two years!). Finally, I went back to DC in 1979 and said, "How about now?"

partner, Benjamin Melniker, I went a political prisoner from Uruguay. to Hollywood, thinking people would be standing in line to help me make my vision of a dark and serious Batman movie a reality.

Not so much. I was laughed at, just as they laughed at Batman when I was a kid, and I spent 10 years bloodying my knuckles on shut doors – all the while trying to earn a living to support my family – until finally the pieces fell into place. Batman was released in 1989, breaking box office records left and right. My dream came true.

More than 20 years later, I am involved in my eighth Batman feature film, "The Dark Knight Rises." But the real turning point in my life and career came after the release of "The Dark Knight" a few years ago.

It was a rousing success and the most complete vindication of my vision I could have ever imagined, thanks to the genius of Christopher Nolan, who deserves all the credit and accolades and has raised the bar for all comic book based films. My wife sat me down after the premiere and said, "Okay. Now that you've accomplished what you set out to do, what do you want to do when you grow up?"

A perfect question for a man who had made his living in comic books for most of his adult life. It made me think about what I could contribute, what I could do that could make a difference in people's lives. Then I thought about my heroes, the guys who practically founded the comic book business. We lost two of them just before the holidays. Joe Simon, who co-created Captain America, was one of them. A lot of people don't realize that the first issue featured Cap slugging Hitler in the jaw nine months before America entered World War II. It was a war America had initially wanted no part of, but even Joe saw the need to inspire people to act against evil, no matter where it was.

and stood with me just a few months ago at the United Nations in front of an international gathering of editorial cartoonists to help inspire them to change the world.

So my next chapter is this – I want to share with as many people as I can the inspiration they gave me to fulfill my dreams. Today, dreams are hard won commodities. The American Dream itself too often is perceived to be dying, but it doesn't have to be that way. I want people to ask themselves in the new year what inspires them. What do THEY want to be when they grow up? Who are their heroes, and what would they do if their backs were against the wall as many Americans find themselves today?

My wife's question forced me to wonder if I could accomplish in these harsh modern times what I did decades ago, and I am forced to answer yes. It would be harder and I'd have bloodier knuckles than I did even back then, but I'd still find a way to do it. Dreams cannot be treated as conveniences or luxuries to be discarded when they become too tough to realize. When people ask me what I did to achieve success, the answer is simple.

I forfeited any sense of entitlement I thought the world owed me. I got up off the couch. I dared to dream big, based upon my passion in life. And I made a personal commitment not to give up. The rest was easy.

In them, Ramsey exemplifies his life's work of teaching others how to be financially responsible, so they can acquire enough wealth to take care of loved ones, live prosperously into old age, and give generously to others.

How Much am I Really Liable For?

Dear Dave,

I have old credit card debt that goes back a few years. The account has been sold and re-sold to several collection companies. The limit on the card was $300, but with late charges and fees I now owe $1,500. Am I liable for the extra $1,200?

- Monica

Dear Monica,

You agreed to their terms, which included the right to charge fees and penalties. Legally, they can do this. The honorable thing would be to send the company you contracted with a check for the full amount.

However, that company no longer owns the debt, and they won't get the money. They sold the debt. The present holder is just hoping to get something out of it. They buy debt in volume, dirt cheap, and whatever they can collect from any creditor is profit.

The current collection company would probably be thrilled to settle for a lot less than face value. Make them an offer, but start really low. You can probably meet them somewhere in the middle and settle this for around $500.

Do not give them any money until you have in your hand – on paper, in writing – a statement showing the amount for which they will settle, and do not give them electronic access to your bank account, either.

Once you have this in hand, send them a cashier's check or money order, and keep a copy of that payment and the letter for the rest of your natural life!

- Dave

Going Too Far?

Dear Dave, Your plan has been a real blessing to us. Last week, my mother-in-law told my husband they haven't paid their property taxes yet. Three thousand dollars is due. I love my in-laws, but they're big spenders. They've got plenty of money and love to take lots of trips. We make good money, too, and could help them out, but we're afraid this may be just the tip of the iceberg. What's your advice on handling this? - Kelly

Dear Kelly,

This is a really touchy situation. First of all, you shouldn't do anything. Your husband needs to handle this, because he's their son. Even if you make kind, polite suggestions, they'll assume you're the one withholding from them. You don't want to be labeled as the evil daughter-inlaw!

I understand your position and agree that you don't want to enable their bad habits. Giving a drunk a drink is never a good idea. But this is family we're talking about. You should try to find a way to help them if you can. If that help includes money, make certain you know exactly where it goes. When you give someone $3,000 (the amount needed for the taxes) you earn the right to have a say in what's happening.

Maybe your husband could go have coffee with them and just talk about things. He could explain how you guys are getting out of debt, and living on a budget to get control of your money. He could tell them how it's been a fabulous thing for your marriage and your finances, and that he'd love to show them how you're doing it.

I've got a feeling that mom and dad didn't raise their son to have dessert first and then eat his vegetables, but that's exactly what they are doing. They need to pay their property taxes before they go running off on a bunch of fancy trips.

From what you said, they've got the money to take care of what needs to be done and have some fun. But if they don't correct their course, they're liable to have their financial dignity stripped away.

It's Crying Time Again

There's no crying in baseball! But there is in football.

Exhibit A: Vernon Davis of the Forty Niners as he went to the sideline in tears Saturday after catching the winning touchdown pass in San Francisco's 36-32 NFC Divisional Playoff victory over the New Orleans Saints at Candlestick Park.

NOBODY cries better than that! Tears of joy are the best.

The best. Few experts or fans thought the 49ers would be the best team on the field Saturday. The Saints, Super Bowl winners behind prolific quarterback Drew Brees two years ago, were $3\frac{1}{2}$ point favorites on the road going in — the only road favorite in the four weekend playoff games. That continued two trends: the lack of respect for the 49ers' way over the last several seasons; and a certain disbelief that they could continue to be successful throughout this season and into the playoffs.

But there are plenty of gamblers, fantasy freaks and prognosticators crying in their beers now.

Their doubts about the team's capabilities, of course, were not unfounded. The Niners had not reached the playoffs since 2002 and will be appearing in their first NFC title game since losing in 1997 to the Green Bay Packers. This year's team is led by a rookie coach, Jim Harbaugh and a much-maligned quarterback, Alex Smith. Questionable credentials, to say the least.

But these are not your runof-the-mill-Mike's (Nolan, Singletary) unimaginative 49ers. For years San Francisco fans have been crying out, complaining about their boring, losing team. Harbaugh and his assembled staff of top-flight coaches have inspired the players to greater success and turned the fans' cries to cheers, resulting in a sea of red at sold out Candlestick Saturday and a true home-field advantage.

In turn, that fan support spurred the 49ers offensive unit down the stretch against the Saints. In a game in which the lead changed hands four times in the closing minutes, they needed all the help they could get. It was said the 49ers were winning ugly" all year, and this was shaping up as a whoever-has-the-ball-last-wins type game — which should favor the Saints.

After building an early 17-0 lead with the help of Saints turnovers (five in the game), the 49ers eventually trailed, 24-23, with four minutes left. But the reborn QB Smith marched his offense 80 vards on six plays, finishing the drive with his own 28-yard surprise TD run down the left sideline for a 29-24 SF lead.

But, the record-setting Brees matched that with a 66-yard TD pass to Pro Bowl tight end Jimmy Graham to retake the advantage, 32-29, with just 1:37 to go.

That's when Smith and Davis teamed up to complete what has been called for each of them, "the game of his life."

Smith and Davis hooked up on a 47-yard pass and run to the Saints' 20-yard line before connecting on the winning play from 14 yards out with nine seconds remaining. Davis finished with seven catches for 180 yards, a record for tight ends in the playoffs, while Smith completed 24 of 42 passes for 299 yards and three touchdowns with no interceptions.

Smith, drafted No. 1 overall in 2005, and Davis, picked No. 6 in 2006, have been seemingly joined at the hip for years, viewed by most as notorious twin underachievers. Throughout unsettling circumstances surrounding the team, the two players have consistently supported one another.

"Never doubt Alex Smith again!" shouted 49ers radio man Ted Robinson after the winning score. At the same time Coach Harbaugh was giving the tearful Davis a big hug on the sideline, telling him, "You're a great player!'

The 49ers have been celebrating the 30th anniversary of "The Catch" this season — the Joe Montana-to-Dwight Clark touchdown in the NFC Championship against Dallas on their way to their first Super Bowl victory. Now, with this new catch by Davis, just about everyone wants to put a nametag on it. Davis himself suggested "The Grab."

Considering the circumstances and the two players involved, I have a nomination. How about "The Redemption Reception?" Like it or not, come up with your own

Regardless of how that turns out, the 49ers will host the New York Giants, who ousted defending champion Green Bay, in the NFC title game Sunday. A win sends them off to Super Bowl XLVI, Feb.5. Hopefully for the 49ers and their fans the next three weeks will produce plenty of happy tears.

SACRAMENTO - Senator Ted Gaines (R-Roseville) announced January 12th that he has scored 100 percent on the National Federation of Independent Business (NFIB)/California's 2011 legislator Voting Record on small business issues. Gaines was one of only 17 state legislators out of the 120 Assembly and Senate members to receive the top score.

"In my continued effort to help lighten the load for California small businesses, I plan to reintroduce a regulatory reform bill this session that I've previously carried for two years in a row that would reduce and streamline the number of state regulations on the books," said Gaines. "My bill will allow small businesses to focus on what they do best - create jobs and spur the economy – with the ultimate goal of getting our state back on track.'
