Hiring Report Shows Promise

Anticipated third quarter sales are motivating businesses to increase hiring.

From Pacific Trends Quarterly

After two dismal Quarters in 2009, hiring projections are on the rise for the Sacramento area. In direct contacts with a 100 top regional companies group, Pacific Staffing has learned that sixty-two percent (62%) of those employers polled plan to hire in July, August or September. While hiring remains primarily driven by demands for replacements or seasonal workers within the existing workforce, twenty percent (20%) of respondents cited expected business growth as their motivation to hire workers in the third quarter. Thirty-six percent (36%) of companies polled in the telephone survey between May 25 and June 22 indicate they were hiring for attrition/replacements. Warmer weather, increased public construction, more recreationandagriculturalchanges are driving fourteen percent (14%) of regional employers to seek seasonal workers. Bottling plants, reservation & call centers, parks and amusements, construction companies and agriculture all require more seasonal hiring in the Sacramento region. While many Sacramento companies were cutting jobs in the first six months of 2009, fewer anticipate a need far to reduce their workforce by layoffs in the next three months. In the second quarter fifty-nine percent (59%) of Sacramento employers polled reported they were not hiring anyone in April, May or June. Now, just thirty-eight percent (38%) of companies are not planning any hiring for the Quarter ahead, July, August and September. In the second quarter sixteen percent (16%) of companies indicated they were cutting jobs because of the recession and reduced business expectations. The potential for additional cutbacks is always present, but just four percent (4%) of companies expect to layoff any workers in the next three months. All attribute likely reductions to continuing slow business. Companies anticipating reductions are being impacted by the slowdown in home and commercial construction and auto industry reductions. When asked what workplace or human resource challenge companies face in the next three months, ten percent (10%) of companies report healthcare costs of most concern. Sacramento Regional Top 100 Companies By Industry are 40% are Service, 35% are Manufacturers, 15% are Construction and 10% are Retail. How does this Quarter compare to last quarter, or last year? Find out for vourself, for more information & surveys go to www.pacificstaffing.com.

knows first hand how Alzheimer's disease can affect families. "My grandmother was a wonderful lady with elegant fashion," Eileen said, remembering her beautiful dresses and extravagant scarves. "I loved talking to her the most. When she developed Alzheimer's disease, the hardest part was not being able to communicate with her the way I used to when I was younger." Eileen's grandmother battled Alzheimer's for several years before passing away. She and her family experienced the trials and challenges with this devastating disease. Alzheimer's is a degenerative disease of the brain which causes memory loss, mental deterioration with disorientation, and dementia ultimately leading to death. It is the 7th leading cause of death in America, and over 5.2 million people suffer from it. Holidays were what Eileen remembers that as being the in the East Lawn Memorial hardest. "It was difficult because it limited the places where we could celebrate. We always had to think how we can involve her so she would feel included in our celebrations. Holidays just were not like they used to be." Eileen became involved with the Alzheimer's Aid Society when she was asked to play in their charity golf tournament last fall. She worked with former KCRA 3 Anchors Dave Walker and Lois Hart, who raved about the organization and all that they do for families and patients who deal with Alzheimer's. "My grandmother struggled with this degenerative disease, and I watched as her life diminished away. So, I want to take action by helping out those who may be affected by this disease." On Saturday, July 25, 2009, Eileen Javora will serve as the master of ceremonies for the 2nd Annual Alzheimer's Aid Society 5K Walk/Run. It will take place Park at 4300 Folsom Blvd, Sacramento, with all proceeds benefiting the Alzheimer's Aid Society of Northern California. Being a part of KCRA 3, she can help get the word out about this society and anything to help make the public aware with her role. "Alzheimer's affects so many people," Eileen said. "This event makes people aware of this disease and the people who are struggling from it. It is more of a down home community event." The Alzheimer's Aid Society of Northern California, is a nonprofit, independent organization that helps Alzheimer's patients and families with in-home support services, legal and financial services. written resources, support groups and scholarships for students studying gerontology. The Alzheimer's Aid Society assisted more than 3,900 families and financially contributed more than $45,000 to research, scholarships and direct services to families in the last year. From her first experiences at the charity golf event and all the success from the last year run/walk, Eileen is looking forward to the event this year. "The importance of the walk is to share the wonderful memories you have with your loved ones," Eileen said. "It's a great way to connect with the community to raise funds for this organization, all in a lovely setting." Eileen has always had a love for the weather. Her earliest memory of loving weather was as a little girl she used to beg her mother to sit on the front porch and watch the lightening storms. Every morning, she gives Sacramento area viewers the KCRA 3 Weather Plus Forecast on KCRA 3 Reports from 4:30-7pm and KCRA3 News from 7-9am on KQCA My58. At-Risk Youth to be Recognized for Positive Life Changes

"Step Up Positive Change Awards" Deadline is July 24

Sacramento - The California a significant and lasting life Exposition & State Fair announced the deadline for its Step Up Positive Change Awards, a non-traditional scholarship program that will highlight significant and productive life changes made by at-risk youth. Application forms are due by Friday, July 24. Award winners will be announced and recognized during the California State Fair.

"The Positive Change Awards were designed to highlight and recognize youth who are often overlooked by mainstream society," said Norb Bartosik. Cal Expo General Manager and CEO. "Our goal is to demonstrate that every person can choose to "Step Up" and be positive at some point in their lives." Any California resident. aged 16-25 who has made change is encouraged to apply. Ideal candidates are youth who may have been in trouble in the past, but are making significant strides to improve their lives and their communities. Candidates need to be actively involved as a member, employee or volunteer in an outreach program non-profit organization. or

A prize pool of $1,000 has been donated by the American Federation of State, County Municipal Employees and (AFSCME) and will be divided among the top three winning candidates. Three individual winners will be chosen with 1st place awarded $500, 2nd place $300 and 3rd place $200. Award winners must designate an organization to receive the monetary reward.

Applications may be picked up at the California State Fair administration building, by calling (916) 263-3912 or by e-mailing stepup@calexpo. com. Applications may also be delivered, if requested, before the application deadline.

Step Up is an outreach program from Cal Expo that reinforces positive behavior and provides productive activities for young people. Step Up includes an awards program and a number of special events during the California State Fair. Step Up has reached thousands of youth since its inception in spring 2005 and has grown in momentum each year. The 2009 California State Fair will be held August 15 to September 1 at Cal Expo in Sacramento.

1001 WAYS TO BE ROMANTIC

Do you think romance rolls around only once a year? Think again, if you want your love life to be spectacular. According to America's Romance Authority, Greg Godek, a little attention and affection can go a long way towards a really nice love life. And let's not forget a heat generating romance that can last a lifetime. He tells all in "1001 Ways To Be Romantic" and from Oprah to my POPPOFF Radio Show, we need to listen up. Godek is a living and breathing resource for romance, and he proves like his advice to men:

"Manymenthink their love lives are pretty good if they are having sex. Unfortunately, many don't know their partner's thoughts on the relationship, or are completely misguided about romance is." He teaches men how to keep a relationship burning strong. Godek speaks to women also: "Women are constantly looking for ways to spice up their relationship. They are blessed and cursed with the intuition and insight to know the relationship needs a makeover. " He tells his readers if his first taste is hot enough, not only will he be back for more but he may do the cooking!

Greg also has Romance Tips: For Single People: Create and fill out an application for the job of boyfriend or girlfriend. How do you know when to get serious? When intimacy becomes more important than excitement.

For Newlyweds: Present your new wife or husband with a lifetime relationship warranty or send a card that says Happy 100th Anniversary...99 years in advance! Go on a second, third, and fourth honeymoon. For Married People: Get a vintage wine for every year of your marriage or hang your wedding vows in your bedroom. Renew your vows. Create a private ceremony just for the two of you. Then you can go to a Year's Worth of Romance starting with: Everyday: Compliment your partner. Spend 20 minutes of uninterrupted time together. Say"I love you" at least three times a day. Take an extra minute when kissing goodbye. Look for romantic concepts in the newspaper.

Weekly: Bring home one small unexpected gift or present. Share an afternoon or evening together. Write at least one little love note. Mail something to your partner.

Romance to last 30 Days: Plan at least one romantic surprise for the month. Rent at least two romantic movies. Set aside one day a month as date night.

Annual Romance: Think of an unusual way to celebrate your partner's birthday. Create a special romance category in your household budget. Make plans for your anniversary way in advance.

And don't let lack of moola get in the way. Matinees are cheap or have a wine and cheese picnic. Don't forget shop at second hand shops and vintage stores. The most important message of "1001 Ways To Be Romantic" is maintaining romance on Sacramento – Many taxpayers spend time during the summer months polishing their résumé and attending career fairs. If you are searching for a job this summer, you may be able to deduct some of your expenses on your tax return.

Here are the top six things the IRS wants you to know about deducting costs related to your job search.

1. In order to deduct job search costs, the expenses must be spent on a job search in your current occupation. You may not deduct expenses incurred while looking for a job in a new occupation.

2. You can deduct employment and outplacement agency fees you pay while looking for a job in your present occupation. If

The Level Pay Utility Option Dear Dave,

Our utility company offers a level-pay option. They average out our bills over the last 24 months, and bill us a consistent amount each month based on that average. Do you think this is a good idea, or would you just pay the regular bills? - Christy

Dear Christy,

Lots of people like the idea of having a level of predictability built in to their utility bills. There's absolutely nothing wrong with this idea, as long as you have a good, steady income. You need to be aware, though, that most of these plans have a "make-up" schedule attached to them. You'll get something back at the end of 12 months if you've overpaid, but you have to make up the difference if the payments come up short.

Ultimately, if evening things out from month to month makes you feel better or helps with your budgeting process, then I say go for it. You'll still only pay for the services you use, and the utility company still gets their money, so it's really just another path to the same destination! - Dave

The Key to Being a Great Salesman?

Dear Dave,

What's the key to becoming a great salesman?

- Brent

Dear Brent.

I can sum it up in one word - serving. And don't think for a second that serving means being subservient. I'm talking about being proactive, and making an effort to ensure that customers and potential customers alike are served well. Serving means you're excited about what you have to offer, and you believe you've got a great product at a great price. It means you're determined your customer is going to have a great experience, and if you happen to hit a bump in the road you will take care of it in a way that will make them forget it ever happened. Serving is an attitude. You have to provide goods or services in a way that makes your customers willing to trade their time or money - things that are very precious to them – to interact with you and your business. You can pressure people if you want, but that's going to lead to a dull and frustrating life of one-shot deals. But if you serve people well, you'll not only have clients for life but they'll also send all of their friends your way. If you help enough people, Brent, and make that your first order of business, you'll never have to worry about money. That's a different attitude, isn't it? But I've got news for you - it works! - Dave

Should He Spend More?

Dear Dave,

My husband makes significantly more money in his job than I do in mine. Since he makes more, he feels he should be able to spend more. He wants to set up an account where we both put 20 percent of our income for discretionary spending. Of course, his 20 percent would be more than my 20 percent, and I feel like we should both put in the same amount. What do you think?

- Lisa

Dear Lisa,

I'm sure your husband is basically a decent guy, but he's really being selfish and immature about this situation. It's a very bad plan. My wife is pretty gentle and forgiving, but if tried that mess at home she'd get very un-gentle in a hurry! Think about it this way. There are lots of families out there where only one person works outside the home and generates income. Would it be fair to say that whoever brings home a paycheck is the only one who can have fun spending a little money once in a while? Of course not! When you two were married, the preacher pronounced you "as one." That means you have one income, and that's our income; just like it's our house, our kids or our dogs. Marriage is not a "me" proposition, it's always a "we" thing. And it sounds like your husband needs to be reminded of this! - Dave

A Silver Lining

It's All About the Grape

Greg Shaw recently returned from a business conference in Temecula, CA. During a break between sessions, Greg decided he needed to explore the wine industry in the area. "It was interesting seeing cacti alongside the vineyards." Greg, who earned his PhD in Geography, was curious as to what wine made from grapes grown in this dry, arid land will taste like.

I guess you do this when you're a wine aficionado, as Greg is, and a member of the Cultural Advisory Council for the California State Fair. This is the group that recently put on the Grape and Gourmet event at the Sacramento Convention Center, the nation's largest state wine competition. Greg has coauthored a chapter in an upcoming book titled, "Tourism in a Bottle: The California Winescape," along with Deborah Elliott-Fisk of UC Davis. He has also a member of the Association of African-American Vintners since 2005. In addition, Greg teaches a class at Sacramento State called "California Wine Tourism," a very popular class that even Sacramento State's President, Alexander Gonzales, has shown an interest in knowing more about.

I asked Greg how his passion for wine started. "In France," was the response, "you just drink wine there." He also reads and investigates the literature on winemaking, tasting

more of an expert, color will become a factor in the entire process, but don't worry so much about it if you're just a beginner), sniff, give the wine a vigorous swirl, sniff again ("you should detect different flavors from your first smell"), and now, taste. I like to taste and chew the reds." A white wine should be cold; sniff, swirl, sniff, and taste. It should have crispness to it and you should detect some floral bouquet

as well. For a white, "take a good sip" to get the true flavor of the wine.

Senator Dave Cox

Sacramento -- Republican State Senator Dave Cox, who negotiated three budgets while serving as Assembly Republican Leader, Legislature will accept expressed reservations and concerns

"Like the Governor, I am frustrated that he and the Legislature have not been able to reach an agreement to our state's $26 billion cash flow crisis," said Sen. Cox. "But asking state workers to take a fourth furlough day, without a comprehensivesolution to the overall budget problem, is not reasonable." In the Governor's latest budget proposal to the Legislature, he presents an additional 5 percent salary reduction on top of the current three-day furlough state workers are taking. If the Legislature accepts this plan, it puts the total salary reduction at 20 percent for current state employees. While it is unlikely that the someone who has a good knowledge of wines and wine tasting. I said to Greg, we are talking about drinking, but what foods do we match up with our wine choices? "I like a Syrah (red) that has an earthy flavor along with Filet Mignon on the grill." There is so much more to know and study, but one should not be intimidated by the process. Get to know enough about wines to satisfy your taste buds and you can always learn more, if you so desire.

Greg said his desire is to help promote wine to populations that typically don't drink wine or do wine tourism. So, Greg, can you tell me there is truly a difference between a $5 bottle of wine and a $20 bottle of wine? Dr. Shaw explains that there is "a huge difference, especially if you're going to let the wine age." He said it is important how a wine "finishes," but we'll leave that information for another day. You may want to join both of us as we launch the "Wine and Tourism" bus tour of Northern California wineries in the near future. I'll announce the dates and price in an upcoming column.

issuance of another furlough day. On January 29, Judge Patrick Marlette of the Sacramento County Superior Court ruled that the Governor has broad authority to furlough state workers. Cox further stated, "During these unprecedented financial times, state worker compensation will be reduced but a sudden and immediate 20 percent reduction to a family's monthly income is too much."

1.1 Million Jobs and Increase Expenses for Families

Sacramento -- (Business Wire) -- A new study released today (July 13, 2009) found that small businesses in California will pay an additional $49,691 as a result of the California Resources Board's Air implementation of AB 32. Citing severe economic impacts, a coalition of small business organizations called today for the suspension of the regulatory proceedings to implement California's greenhouse gas program until the report's findings are analyzed and mitigation measures are added to the state plan. The report concluded that when the program is fully implemented, the average annual loss in gross state output from small businesses alone would be $182.6 billion, approximately a 10% loss in total gross state output. This will translate into nearly 1.1 million lost jobs in California. Lost labor income is estimated to be $76.8 billion, with nearly $5.8 billion lost in indirect taxes.

"We support the state's efforts to curb greenhouse gas emissions, but we are very concerned that these costs will apply disproportionally to California small business. Consumers will be hurt and environmental goals the will not be achieved," said Esteban Soriano, Chairman of the California Small Business Association and a founding member of the California Small Business Roundtable.

Sanjay Varshney, Dean of the College of Business Administration, California State University, Sacramento and Dennis H. Tootelian, Ph.D., Professor of Marketing and Director, Center for Small Business, California State University, Sacramento. The study reveals that when the plan is fully implemented, California families will increased be facing annual costs of $3,857. Varshney explained that the study's cost analysis was based on the California Air Resources Board's own findings, which revealed significant cost increases. The study's findings are consistent with the Peer Review analysis that CARB commissioned, which also concluded that the cost of the AB 32 Scoping Plan would be significant, and that CARB had significantly underestimated these costs.

"Given California's current economic plight, the state must refrain from imposing new fees on taxpayers to pay for an expanded bureaucracy," said Michael Shaw of the Federation National of Independent Business. "When Assembly Bill 32 authorized this program in 2006, CARB promised to develop a greenhousegasplanthatwould provide benefits to small business, not bankruptcy." The study also found that in ordertocopewiththeincreased generated by costs the AB 32 program, consumers will be forced Scoping Plan was led by to cut their discretionary spending by 26.2%. "Californians will be getting less and paying more. How can the small business community survive in a political climate so determined to put us out of business,?" asked Griselda Barajas, owner of Tex Mex Restaurant in downtown Sacramento, where the study was released. "Many lawmakers who enjoy our tacos will see a significant increase in their daily lunch bills if these problems are not addressed," said Barajas. "All of the Capitol community folks who dine at Tex Mex will have to bear the burden of an unfunded mandate placed against my business."

According to the authors, the study utilized IMPLAN, a widely used economic modeling program that has more than 1,500 active users in the United States and internationally. These include clients in federal state and government, universities, and private sector consultants. Joining the California Small Business Roundtable and the National Federation of Independent Business at Monday's event were the California Hispanic Chamber of Commerce and the Sacramento Black Chamber of Commerce.

Opening lead - ten of spades.

Let's say you're declarer at three notrump in today's hand and West leads a spade. You count six quick tricks and can surely score a diamond for a seventh trick. The question is how to get the two additional tricks you need for your contract.

Obviously the diamond suit is a more promising source of tricks than the heart suit, since the diamonds are longer and stronger, so let's say that after taking the queen of spades you lead a diamond to dummy's queen. All will be well if East cooperatively that East may not take the ace of diamonds when you play the queen from dummy. If that happens, the best you can possibly do is hold yourself to down one.

The way to prevent this is to lead a diamond at trick two and, regardless of what West plays, follow low from dummy instead of playing the queen! In the actual deal, East would win with the nine, but the defense could not then stop you from scoring nine tricks

It is necessary to assume from the outset that the diamonds are divided 3-2. Once this is granted, the contract is virtually assured regardless of where the ace is located, provided the king or queen is not played at the first opportunity.

It is true that this method of play will cost you a trick if it turns out that West has the ace. However, this trick is relatively unimportant because it affects only the question of making three or four notrump, whereas if East has the ace, it affects the more vital question of making the contract or going down.

Making the contract is always the primary consideration.

Sacramento - At a time when many colleges and universities are seeing their bond ratings downgraded, the Los Rios Community College District was just informed that ratings agency Standard & Poor's (S&P) has upgraded its bond ratings to AA- from A+.

"This is tremendous news and a real vote of confidence in this district's fiscal management and health," said Los Rios chancellor Brice Harris. "More importantly, it will save our taxpayers millions of dollars in debt repayment over the life of our building program." In its ratings report, S&P officials cited good financial management, moderate debt levels, adequate reserve funds and continued demand for the district's services as reasons for the upgrade. The Los Rios District passed local bond measures in 2002 for $265 million and in 2008 for $457 million. The district will soon issue the last of the 2002 bonds and will begin release of the first of the 2008 bonds in 2011. It is estimated that over the remaining years of the district's construction program, the rating upgrade will save taxpayers nearly $36 million in debt service. Through the local bond measures, Los Rios has been able to modernize and construct new facilities at all of its four colleges. It also has acquired land and begun building educational centers in Natomas, West Sacramento, Davis, Rancho Cordova and Elk Grove.

"Thanks to the generosity of our voters, we have truly changed the face of our district and made huge improvements in our educational facilities for our students," said Los Rios board president Pamela Haynes. "We have done this while keeping taxes quite low and this new rating will allow us to save our taxpayers even more."

The Los Rios District enrolls nearly 90,000 students at its colleges— American four River, Cosumnes River, Folsom Lake and Sacramento City.

Mandatory Recycling for Multi-Family Dwellings

17, multi-family dwellings in Sacramento County must provide recycling programs for their residents as required by an amended Business Ordinance. Recycling

"Recycling programs will provide opportunities for the multi-family community to reduce the amount of waste going into landfills and also provide new life for discarded recyclable materials," SWA states Board Chair Sandy Sheedy. The Multi-family Recycling Sacramento-BeginningJune law applies to apartments, and multi-family dwellings such as condominiums, mobile home parks, and senior care facilities in the City of Sacramento and in the unincorporated areas of the County of Sacramento, that have ten or more cubic yards of garbage service per week. Also, multi-family dwellings with five (5) or more units must recycle paper, cardboard, bottles, plastic, aluminum and steel cans. "It is important to reuse materials recyclable to preserve our resources for generations to come," states SWA Board Member Don Nottoli. Many apartment complexes have already implemented recycling programs that help preserve natural resources, keep our community clean, create jobs and save money. The Rental Housing Association of Sacramento Valley is assisting the SWA with outreach and education to

By Laura Snyder

To all the childless women I have ever talked to about having children: I'm sorry. Why is it that when women who have children are in a room with childless women, we want to impart every horror we have ever encountered in child-rearing to the unsuspecting, wide-eyed novice? Most times it doesn't take anything more than a simple polite query to set us off:

"How are the kids?"

"Oh, they're fine, now, but I nearly had a heart-attack when I found them on the roof preparing to see if our cat, who was tied to a plastic garbage bag would survive a free-fall of two stories."

Now, my childless friends, this is where you must not even raise an eyebrow. No evidence of shock on your face, no gaping mouths - nothing. Because if you show the slightest sign of interest, you will undoubtedly hear the rest of the story whether you like it or not. One quirk of your lips is all it takes. "Yeah, they thought they'd try the cat first and if it survived

Laura on Life Preparing Potential Parents

smallest of them because she weighed the least. Good thing I caught them when I did."

Invariably, there will be another mom who joins the conversation. "You know my little Johnny weighs the least now, but when he was born he was 9lbs 2 oz!"

The floodgates have now been opened and you will now hear about enormous baby weights, maternity room horrors of 30-hour labors, Cesarean Sections, water breaking in the grocery store, Lamaze and all its subsequent lies, and needles in your spinal cord to alleviate the pain (which sounds counter-intuitive, doesn't it?). Good heavens, ladies! Do we really want to so shellshock the younger generation into never having children? Do you ever want grandchildren? What is wrong with us?

The truth is, our stretch marks and Cesarean scars are badges of honor. Our story-telling has the same therapeutic effect for us as the stories of a war veteran.

We have been through the sleepless nights, the endless worry, the terrible twos, potty training, and the countless boxes of Band-Aids, cases of Lysol, 409, and Kleenex. This is what we do because we love a child. The pain and fear of childbirth is just the beginning, but it prepares us for what is to come they were going to try it with the like nothing else could. If we can get through that - we know we can get through anything!

What I don't understand, though, is why we never mention all the good stuff to these potential new moms. Are we really being kind to prepare them for the worst, without mentioning what they would miss if they never went through with it?

Why don't we talk about the sweet good-night kisses? Or the way it feels when a toddler takes his first steps? Or how soft their hair is after a bath? What about the pride in our hearts the first time he recites the ABC's flawlessly? Or catches a football? Why don't we tell them about the spontaneous hugs or the Kool-Aid smiles or the way she dances when the Sesame Street song comes on?

What about the times they crawl into bed with you in the morning for a quiet half-hour of snuggling? And all the homemade Mother's Day gifts that we save forever? Did I ever mention how lonely we would be without our children and how empty life would be without them? No?... I'm so sorry.
