Dreams Can Take Flight Aerospace Fundraiser Goes Virtual

Painters Elizabeth Turner (left), Molly McBride, Trisa Pierce, Cameron Dax and Barbara Hunt-Holt have donated hand-painted sun shades for an Aerospace Museum fundraiser.

by Susan Maxwell Skinner

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - A gala to aid the Aerospace Museum of California has adopted virtual format to raise funds on September 24. The Museum, which showcases aircraft and artifacts of aviation from WW II to the present, is located in the old McClellan Air Force Base, North Highlands.

Exhibits and outreach for science, technology, engineering and math (STEM) education are supported wholly by public donation. As with many other non-profits, fundraising has been reshaped by the COVID crisis. Organizers hope the upcoming event will help the museum to stay open and allow programs -- including summer youth camps -- to continue.

Art, destination experiences, premium wine and beers and other gourmet packages will be auctioned. A behind-the-scenes museum tour will include wine and cheese and a

West Coast Raisin squadron flyover, saluting the winning bidder and 20 friends. Separate packages will offer jaunts over Sacramento area: one in a Miss America RV-8 aircraft; another in a Beechcraft A-36 Bonanza. A 1983 Fender Stratocaster guitar is an additional prize up for grabs.

All items and experiences can be previewed on line; silent bidding on most items will begin on Monday, September 21, at noon. Real-time bids on VIP gems will begin at 7pm, September 24, closing an hour later. For this part of the fundraiser, public radio and television veterans Beth Ruyak and Jim Finnerty will partner as hosts.

The final hammer on other prizes will fall at noon, the following day. Art prizes include three hand-painted sun umbrellas. Artists Elizabeth Turner, Molly McBride and Trisa Pierce teamed up to paint a parasol called "She-dala." Sacramento Fine Arts Center member Barbara Hunt-Holt contributed a work called "Flower garden." Carmichael artist Cameron Dax (16) took inspiration from his grandma's pet carp to decorate his "Koi Pond" canvas. Civil Air Patrol Cadet Cameron has special interest in things that fly. "The museum's full of cool things that strike my curiosity," he says. "I'm excited my art will help them raise funds. My mom really likes my umbrella. If she doesn't win at the auction, I'll paint her another for free."

Anyone may register to participate in the online auction. For information, visit www.aerospaceca.org

Sponsors include: Aerojet Rocketdyne, Northrop Grumman, Safe Credit Union, McClellan Park, Dr. General Davie and Linda Martin, the Kelley Foundation, Taylor and Wiley, Larry Miles, Jim and Lindsey Cuff, Major General Jim and Mary Hopp, Roger and Marg Dickinson, Howard J. Board Votes to Revise Approved County Budget

By Kim Nava,
Sacramento County

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - The Sacramento County Board of Supervisors voted on Sept. 10, to approve the Revised Recommended Budget for the 2020-21 fiscal year.

The Revised Recommended General Fund budget provided substantial additional funding to address the impact of COVID-19 on the community; avoided significant reductions in critical County programs and made new General Fund supported investments in some new programs to address the most critical needs.

The budget also accounted for the County's $170 million revenue loss with one-time State and federal funding, which is likely unsustainable into future fiscal years.

"It is important to continue to provide the critical health, social, public safety and other services to the people of Sacramento County, and in spite of the significant economic impact of COVID-19, the Revised Recommended Budget did exactly that," said County Executive Nav Gill.

The $3.08 billion General Fund expenditures increased by $204.6 million. Departments with the largest expenditure increases included Health Services with a $140.3 million (29%) increase; Sheriff with a $38.2 million (6.9%) increase; Human Assistance with a $26.4 million (7.8%) increase; Child, Family and Adult Services with an $11.8 million (5.5%) increase; and Probation with an $8.6 million (5.4%) increase.

During budget deliberations, the Board added a number of restorations to the budget totaling $1,886,446 in appropriations, which included:

$957,446 for body-worn cameras for probation officers; $300,000 for the Foster Care Recruitment and Retention Program in Child, Family and Adult Services; $203,000 for the Cares Plus Program in Child, Family and Adult Services' Public Guardian Division; $126,000 to retain two staff positions that would have been eliminated in the Women, Infants and Children Program; $300,000 to Child, Family and Adult Services to use as part of an effort to develop a Senior Safe House.

The Board also directed that staff work to strengthen and expand the Mobile

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - The woman was desperate. She was spending upwards of $800 a month on medications in addition to her other Medicare costs. She called HICAP, the Medicare counseling service that serves Sacramento County, and explained that she could not qualify for assistance from Medi-Cal. She needed help. What could she do?

HICAP volunteer Marge Ginsburg took the call and reviewed the woman's situation.

"I explained to her that there is a Medicare program called Extra Help. It is designed for people with high medication costs and limited income and resources," said Ginsburg. "For people like her, it can make a tremendous difference. So, we helped get her into that program and in several weeks, her monthly drug costs dropped to about

Each week, Ginsburg helps up to a half-dozen clients.

"People are so grateful to us for helping them," Ginsburg said, "so genuinely appreciative that somebody really understands their dilemmas without trying to sell them anything."

HICAP (the Health Insurance Counseling & Advocacy Program), is administered by the California Department of Aging. It offers free counseling and legal assistance to seniors and the disabled who are trying to navigate the complicated Medicare system.

President Gets Briefed on Wildfires

By Laurel Rosenhall, Cal Matters

This story has been edited to fit the available space in this issue

It was looking a little lonely on the tarmac when President Donald Trump arrived in California to be briefed about record-breaking wildfires that have burned an area the size of Connecticut, killed two dozen people and blanketed the West Coast with smoke. Not a single California state official greeted Trump as he stepped off the plane at an airfield in Sacramento County.

Gov. Gavin Newsom was in a hangar nearby, and promptly met with Trump and several fire officials. But his absence at the steps of Air Force One revealed the latest move in what's become the Democratic governor's delicate dance with the Republican president who is both a tantalizing political foil – and a key link to aid the state needs as disasters mount.

"We've been working very well with Gavin," Trump told reporters gathered on the tarmac.

"We're obviously from different sides of the spectrum, but we have a very good relationship."

Then, inside the hangar where Newsom (wearing a mask) and Trump (not wearing a mask) met with emergency officials, the governor also took a cordial tone.

"I want to thank you and acknowledge the work that you've done to be immediate in terms of your response," Newsom told Trump.

Newsom said they agree on the need to thin more trees and delicately lectured Trump about global warming driving the frequency and intensity of wildfires.

"Climate change is real and that is exacerbating this," Newsom said.

The dynamic between Newsom and Trump has turned out to be one of the major surprises of Newsom's short time as governor. Newsom won office in 2018 positioning himself as the antithesis of Trump, and pledged to lead a "resistance state." But his tenure has been marked by an extraordinary spate of disasters – catastrophic wildfires, the deadly coronavirus pandemic, a decimated state budget and record unemployment – that have required cooperation between two men who once cast each other as clowns.

Newsom has repeatedly praised Trump's disaster aid for California, saying he wants to put political differences aside when problems need to be solved. But it's involved a bit of whiplash. He recently called their relationship "very effective" in responding to emergencies – just the day after he dissed Trump for saying California wildfires were due to insufficient forest raking. He talked last week about a productive phone call with Trump, even as he criticized the federal government for a lack of action on climate change.

It's a fine line to walk, and Newsom has occasionally slipped, by being so nice that he gave ammunition to a political opponent. While heaping praise on Trump for sending a batch of coronavirus test kits in April, Newsom used one of the president's campaign slogans – "Promises made, promises kept" – and promptly found himself in an ad for Trump's reelection.

Newsom's approach – meeting with Trump to discuss forest management and climate change, but not appearing in any chummy-looking photo ops in front of Air Force One – suggests that he is trying to thread the needle. On the one hand, he needs to demonstrate apolitical leadership amid disaster, but also avoid looking too bipartisan in an election year when he's campaigning for Trump's Democratic rival.

"It's a carefully-considered, carefully-orchestrated tango with the president that the governor has no choice but to participate in,"

said Nathan Ballard, a Democratic political consultant who worked for Newsom when he was San Francisco mayor.

Though Newsom disagrees with Trump "about almost everything under the sun," Ballard said, "it is vital for the governor's constituents that he continues to play ball with the president during these unprecedented disasters."

While Newsom and Trump kept things cordial, Newsom's environmental deputies got into a terse exchange with the president.

Wade Crowfoot, Newsom's secretary of natural resources, emphasized the unprecedented heat and warming trend, saying: "If we ignore that science and put our head in the sand...we are not going to succeed together protecting Californians."

Trump, smiling, said, "It'll start getting cooler, you just watch."

Crowfoot shot back, "I wish science agreed with you."

Trump responded, "I don't think science knows, actually," then briskly called on another presenter.

Demonstrators – of both parties – outside the meeting said they understand why Newsom plays nice with Trump.

Lance Caster said Newsom's approach makes sense to him, even though he doesn't like it. "It depends on what he wants. When he doesn't like what Donald's doing, he bad mouths him, and when he wants something, he's really nice," said Caster, a Republican who works as a truck driver and lives in the Sacramento suburb of Citrus Heights.

Most Californians believe climate change is "extremely important" or "very important" to them personally, according to a Public Policy Institute of California survey last month, and just one-fifth of the state's likely voters said they trust the federal government to handle environmental issues. Not surprisingly in this overwhelmingly blue state, 70% of voters said Joe Biden would be better than Trump on environmental policy.

Board Votes to Revise Approved County Budget

Crisis Support Team, a collaboration between Behavioral Health and law enforcement to respond together to emergency calls for people experiencing mental health crises. Staff will return to the Board within 45 days with a status report on this effort.

“Concerned about elevating law enforcement accountability and transparency, the Board of Supervisors not only approved body cameras for sheriff deputies and park rangers, but we are one of the first in California to also fund the deployment of body cameras for our probation officers” said board chairman and first district supervisor Phil Serna, who made the proposal in consultation with the Chief of Probation, Lee Seale. “Other innovative and restorative budget actions the board took included adding funds for WIC (Woman Infant & Children) lactation services, preserving important foster care programming for some of our most vulnerable youth, buttressing mental health crisis services, and investing in a senior safe house for Sacramento County’s elderly residents.”

The Revised General Fund budget addressed the County’s continued response to COVID-19 with $89.1 million in expenditures: Health Services: $71.1 million (testing, contact tracing, business navigators, food and housing assistance, Public Health surge capacity); Child, Family and Adult Services: $6.9 million (Dine at Home Sacramento program for home-bound seniors); Human Assistance: $11.1 million (COVID-19 Homeless Response Plan, Project Roomkey)

Additional growth requests included $2.1 million for body-worn cameras for Sheriff’s deputies and park rangers; $9.4 million for the Mays Consent Decree, in which the County agreed to make significant investments in the jails to resolve the lawsuit concerning conditions of confinement; and $2.6 million for mental health programs.

The Board is scheduled to formally adopt the Budget on Sept. 22. ★

I received another pocket calendar in the mail for 2021. Actually, I usually receive more than one, but the cover of the one from the Disabled American Veterans says, “A Year to Remember.” Every year has its own memories, of course, and some of them are good and some not as good. I am working on the column for September 18, 2020, but the date on which I am working on the column is September 11. It is hard to believe that it has been nineteen years since that particular September 11, 2001 occurred, but it has been. And there are so many people who have been born since then who don’t remember the Twin Towers in New York crashing down, except that they read about it in a history book. Or like today, it is shown on TV or online. It isn’t part of their own history.

I imagine the history for today’s generation may be about the many fires burning along the West Coast, and the coronavirus, and the schools being closed, and staying inside because of the fires and the coronavirus and the smoke in the air, and the concerns that many people have because of the businesses and jobs that have been lost. I don’t think that 2020 will be remembered as one of our best years. I still think that as I said last week, everyone is hoping for a kinder year of 2021. Perhaps some of our “normal” lives will come back so we can go to the movies, and the restaurants, and the parks, and walk or ride a bike in cleaner and healthier air.

And Another Thing

Some things are said or shown in the movies, and we remember them. One of the movies we watched was Kung Fu Panda. And even though it was an animated movie, one of the lines in it is, “Yesterday is history, tomorrow is a mystery, but today is a gift. That’s why we call it the present.” I found out that wonderful line was actually a quote from Eleanor Roosevelt. But no matter who was quoted, I think that is a great way of looking at life as you wake up every day and appreciate the “present.”

I look back at some of my material when searching for information for my column, and I found a copy of the last issue of our Rancho Cordova Incorporation Committee newsletter. It was called the Cityhood Update. It was July 2002, and the headline was, “WE DID IT! THE RANCHO CORDOVA INCORPORATION COMMITTEE HAS REACHED ITS GOAL. RANCHO CORDOVA CITYHOOD IS ON THE BALLOT!” On the front page, it also said, “To the members of the Rancho Cordova Incorporation Committee, past and present, you have done what we were told was impossible; Cityhood for Rancho Cordova is on the ballot.” Then, “From the Chair, thanks for the memories.” That was a great feeling of having accomplished what took years to do.

I also had on that front page a salute, “We will always remember the first Americans who fought the first battle on September 11, 2001. Citizens!” So let’s remember the famous Twin Towers of the World Trade Center in New York City, the Pentagon just outside of Washington D.C., and the citizens in Flight 93 who brought down the plane they were in, which was the fourth plane that would have hit another target in Washington D.C. if they hadn’t stopped it in Pennsylvania.

From Councilman Bob McGarvey, God bless, and we’ll see you next time. ★

Supreme Court Makes Local Tax Hikes Easier

By Dan Walters
CAL Matters

In a roundabout, passive way, the California Supreme Court last week handed a big victory to the advocates of higher taxes.

Without comment, the justices declined to take up a state appellate court decision that would allow specialized local government taxes to be increased by a simple majority of voters, if they are placed on the ballot by initiative petitions rather than by the governments themselves.

The victory for tax proponents, especially government worker unions, was an equally large defeat for anti-tax organizations such as the Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association. However, it also may bring more ballot box budgeting and indirectly weaken the role of city councils and other locally elected boards.

Proposition 218, approved by California voters in 1996, declares that local governments seeking more revenue must win voter approval. Proposals for general purpose revenue through increases in sales taxes or other levies need only simple-majority approval. However, if cities, counties and other local governments seek new taxes for specific purposes, Proposition 218 requires two-thirds votes.

Three years ago, the state Supreme Court issued a decision called “Upland” because it dealt with a ballot measure on taxing marijuana in that Southern California city.

Writing the 5-2 majority opinion, Supreme Court Justice Mariano-Florentino Cuéllar declared, “Multiple provisions of the state constitution explicitly constrain the power of local governments to raise taxes. But we will not lightly apply such restrictions on local governments to voter initiatives.”

He thus implied that special purpose taxes placed before voters via initiative may not be affected by the two-thirds vote requirement for taxes sought by governments themselves.

Quickly, special purpose taxes placed on the ballot via initiative that garnered less than two-thirds votes were challenged by the Jarvis organization and other taxpayer groups, but trial court judges differed sharply on whether Cuéllar’s opinion did, indeed, validate them.

Two of the tests were San Francisco taxes placed on the ballot via initiatives personally sponsored by members of the city’s Board of Supervisors, one for early childhood education, the other to battle homelessness. Both received less than two-thirds votes, but a local judge, Ethan Schulman, validated them anyway.

In June, a San Francisco-based appellate court upheld Schulman on the homelessness taxes and the Jarvis organization appealed to the state Supreme Court, which last week validated the appellate court ruling by refusing to take it up.

The tax on business gross receipts for homelessness services will raise as much as $300 million a year. “San Francisco voters have the right to direct democracy and self-government,” City Attorney Dennis Herrera said in a statement. “We’re pleased that this legal victory will free up millions of dollars to provide services, housing and mental health treatment for those who most desperately need it in our city.”

The Supreme Court’s action, or non-action, also may validate other disputed special purpose taxes, including another for early childhood education in San Francisco, an Oakland parcel tax for education and a Fresno sales tax for parks. Local judges had blocked the Oakland and Fresno taxes, declaring that Proposition 218 required them to have two-thirds votes.

Local government officials prefer to ask voters for general revenues because they are more flexible. But advocates for particular causes prefer special purpose taxes to prevent revenues from being diverted elsewhere.

The way is now clear for interests with the wherewithal to qualify and pass ballot measures, such as unions, to push for taxes that benefit their members, thus reducing the authority of local elected officials to set budget priorities.

insurance, the pros and cons of Medicare Advantage plans, employee and retiree coverage and long-term-care insurance. They also can provide low-income clients with information about programs that assist with medication costs.

Ginsburg, 73, is one of 57 HICAP counselors serving Sacramento County clients. She volunteered three years ago after retiring from 22 years as executive director of a nonprofit organization that studied public responses to healthcare policies and programs.

“I wasn’t going to spend my retirement years sitting around and watching soaps,” she explained. “I wanted something I could get as engaged in as I was when I was working.”

As a HICAP volunteer, she received 20 hours of classroom training, followed by weeks of job shadowing and mentoring before being assigned to counsel clients on her own.

“The biggest shock for me was just how complicated the whole system is. It’s never just about Medicare. There’s also Medi-Cal, there’s the VA, there’s employer-based insurance, there’s Covered California. The permutations are endless.”

Ginsburg recalled an especially challenging case.

“I had a 28-year-old disabled woman who had just qualified for Medicare. Her situation was very complex because she originally had some federal insurance that was still kicking in, she might qualify for Medi-Cal, she didn’t want to lose her current doctors and she was on 15 different medications. The complexity was phenomenal.”

Ginsburg said not all clients call HICAP in hopes of saving money.

“Many just don’t want to make a mistake in their choices. You can make a mistake early on that can affect you later,” she said, referring to the intricacies of Medicare rules and deadlines.

“For instance, if you sign up for a Medicare Advantage plan, but later decide you want to get back on original Medicare with a supplemental plan, the supplemental insurance companies are not required to sell you a plan. That can be a disaster for some people. So, more and more people are calling us because they don’t want to make a wrong decision.”

Ginsburg said she often works with her clients’ family members, including spouses, adult children and siblings.

“For instance, a woman whose brother was in the hospital here with a stroke called me from San Diego. She had his power of attorney and was having to make decisions about what his care was going to be, what was going to happen to him when he got out of the hospital, could he get the care he needed. He was going to need a lot of assistance at home; everything from getting a wheelchair ramp built to in-home supportive services. After I helped her with the information she needed, I told her that, when he gets home, if all the pieces haven’t been put into place yet, call us back.”

Since the beginning of the pandemic, HICAP volunteers have been counseling clients from home via telephone and teleconferencing. Ginsburg said it has made no difference in her ability to help them and she urged others to consider becoming HICAP volunteers.

“It is so much more than I thought it would be,” she said. “It is so satisfying to see how much of a difference you can make in people’s lives in just an hour. It’s just astounding!”

“The vast majority of counselors stay with it because at the end their day they feel like they did something. They helped people; they made their lives a little bit easier, and there’s no substitute for that.” ★

Office of Senator Jim Nielsen

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Governor Gavin Newsom toured the North Complex Fire today. Local lawmakers who represent the region, Senator Jim Nielsen (R-Tehama) and Assemblyman James Gallagher (R-Yuba City), issued the following statement:

“The excuse of climate change cannot be used to deflect from the fundamental failure to address the fuels build-up in our forests that are the cause of these devastating fires. Two years of long-awaited forestry management investments don’t make up for decades of inaction by Democratic politicians who control this state, and the radical environmentalists that drive their agenda.

“These same misguided policy decisions have led to rolling blackouts and an energy grid that is falling apart. It has also resulted in antiquated equipment that sparks wildfires that spew massive amounts of pollution into the air, and unsustainable green power that cannot meet our state’s needs.

“We have proposed solutions this year that would do much more to invest in forestry management and modernize the state’s electrical infrastructure. Democrats wouldn’t even give them a hearing in committee.

“The cause of our recent catastrophic wildfires and rolling blackouts is decades of bad policy enacted by Democrats, not climate change.

“To help reduce wildfires, this Administration must fully fund Senate Bill 901. Money can be achieved by reviewing existing General Fund commitments and immediately pledging the state’s Greenhouse Gas funds towards reducing fuel loads in our forests, the primary cause of these fires.” ★

PREPARING FOR A PUBLIC SAFETY POWER SHUTOFF

Public Safety Power Shutoff (PSPS) is a statewide effort to prevent wildfires by proactively turning off power to communities when severe winds and dry weather conditions are forecast. While turning off the power helps prevent wildfires, we also know it will disrupt lives and cause hardship for our customers. That’s why PG&E does not make this decision lightly and will only call a PSPS to help keep customers and communities safe.

HERE ARE 5 WAYS TO PREPARE FOR A PSPS:

Make sure PG&E can reach you before a PSPS by updating your contact information at pge.com/mywildfirealerts.

Pack or restock your family’s emergency kit including food, water, batteries, masks, radio and a first aid kit.

2

Make preparations for anyone in your family who depends on electricity for medical needs.

3

Practice manually opening your garage door (if you have a garage).

4

Ensure any backup power sources are ready and safe to operate.

For translated support in over 200 languages, please contact PG&E at 866-743-6589.

Art After Lockdown

By Elise Spleiss

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - On Saturday and Sunday, September 19 and 20, weary residents from Carmichael, Fair Oaks and surrounding communities are invited to venture from their homes into a one-of-a-kind Open Air / Open Mind / OPEN heART Studio. Located in a natural setting known as Shangri-La to Carmichael neighbors, eight artists with their work will be spread throughout the property with ‘social distancing’ ensured by the use of six-foot-long bamboo walking sticks.

Making an appearance will be a larger than life shaggy sculpted dog named ‘Rolrex’ complete with a collar of old watches. Rolrex is reminiscent of the shaggy Komondor Hungarian sheepdog.

Show sponsor and organizer, artist Sue Anne Foster has made masks for the artists from their own images. Guests are asked to bring their own masks. Foster, president of Valley Sculpture Artists, works to repurpose found objects, and recently began using discarded pipe organ parts from one of the other featured artists Paul Dessau who repairs and builds pipe organs. Two of Foster’s pipe organ sculptures will be on display. One piece called “Pipe Dreams” won an award of excellence at the last California State Fair.

Artists in the Sacramento area are a close-knit community. On Saturday, Dessau, also a celebrated photo collage artist will unveil his newest commissioned 30” x 40” piece, a surprise for one of the artists in the group.

Dessau’s piece shows Anne Bradley of Carmichael at her favorite haunt, Sunshine Steel Recycling, where she scavenges for parts for her sculptures and paintings paper design. Dessau also collaged the names of each person who contributed to the commissioned work to celebrate the long and rich career of Bradley. Other samples of his collage work will be on view and he will also demonstrate his technique. Bradley will be showing visitors how she attaches metal and other objects to her paintings.

Visitors roaming the grounds will also be treated to the works of well-known ‘kinetic sculptor Phill Evans of Fair Oaks, sculptor Chris Thompson, mixed media artist Mary Ann Lowe of Sacramento, and Janet Regan of Fair Oaks, a gourd artist.

The work of late silk painting artist, Ann Ragland Bowns known for her Ansel Adams-like prints & cards in the brilliant colors of Yosemite will be shown by Bernadette Young, co-creator of the event. There will be art-to-wear and you can add your touch to a collective piece of repoussé to try your hand at metal tooling.

Guests are invited to walk the 40’ x 50’ labyrinth in the Garden or feed with the chickens who have the right of way!

Ask Toni

Why Is My Medicare Part B Premium Costing $723?

Toni King

Toni:
My Medicare began on August 1st and on September 3rd I received my first bill which is $723 for my Medicare Part B. This bill is due September 25th and is not giving me very much time to have this paid.

I do not see this Medicare cost anywhere on the Medicare site and have not received a letter informing me that I will have to pay “extra” because I made too much. I came into the Toni Says office for a Medicare consultation and with my wife’s income, we are below the $174,000 yearly income to have to pay more in my Medicare Part B and D monthly premiums.

Why am I being charged the Medicare Part B penalty? I signed up before I turned 65. What is wrong? I thought I would be paying the monthly Part B amount that is around $145. Any suggestions because this has placed an unexpected financial hardship on me? I am unemployed due to COVID-19.

~ Thanks, Dennis from Spring, TX

Dennis:

I have great Medicare news for you You are not being charged EXTRA or a penalty!! You have been charged for 5 months of Medicare Part B premiums because you are not receiving a Social Security check to have your Medicare premiums deducted. Security has lumped your months together in the bill which was sent.

Some that are paying their Medicare premiums monthly are having Medicare premiums deducted from their Social Security check. Social Security will automatically take the Medicare premiums monthly from a person’s Social Security check. Social Security will send a letter informing the Medicare beneficiary that Social Security is deducting the monthly Medicare Part B premiums from one’s Social Security check.

Dennis, if you divide your premium of $723 by 5 months, it is exactly $144.60 per month. The average Part B premium for those with income of $87,000 or less as an individual or $174,000 or less as a couple is $144.60 for 2020.

Medicare has two programs that can allow one to pay premiums monthly. One is by going online to your secure MyMedicare.gov account (or create an account at www.MyMedicare.gov) to pay by credit card or debit card. Sign up for Medicare Easy Pay, a free service that automatically deducts your premium payments from your savings or checking account each month.

One can GOOGLE “Medicare Easy Pay” online or search on the Medicare.gov website at www.medicare.gov website for the Medicare Easy Pay form. It is not hard to set up Medicare Easy Pay to pay monthly, but it does take time.

Until you can set up a monthly payment from your checking or savings account with “Medicare Easy Pay” then you can pay your Medicare bill at your www.MyMedicare.gov account.

If one does not stay current paying their Medicare premiums, whether it is Part A, B, C and/or D, then they can lose their benefits and may be charged a penalty when they re-enroll. When one does not have 40 working quarters to qualify for Medicare, then they may have to pay a premium for Part A.

It may take about 6-8 weeks to have the “Medicare Easy Pay” form processed and drafted monthly from your checking account. Until that takes place then use www.mymedicare.gov. Make sure that your monthly premiums are being paid, so that your Medicare Parts A, B, C and/or D premiums are current.

No Pandemic Shutdown for Scammers, They Are Still on the Prowl

By Ashley Pontius

COVID-19 may have shut down portions of the economy and put restrictions on Americans’ daily lives, but cyber scams and other efforts to defraud people continue to thrive.

“Scammers are tapping into the uncertainty related to the global pandemic,” says Chris Orestis, the president of LifeCare Xchange who is known as the “Retirement Genius” (www.retirementgenius.com).

“They are using social engineering to target people with tactics that take advantage of today’s technology. Seniors need to be especially mindful of the mechanisms that have been explicitly designed to target people in retirement.”

Some scams to be on the lookout for include:

Dishonest retailers. Many dishonest retailers and fake products are popping up, Orestis says. “The shortage of toilet paper, hand sanitizer, soap, and masks at the beginning of the quarantine resulted from people’s panic,” he says. “The fear of scarcity created a gateway for scammers. Fraudulent online retailers are showcasing these items as bait, especially medical supplies.” But they don’t have any inventory, so stick with reputable stores, Orestis says. Scammers also try to sell products to prevent or cure COVID-19, even though they do not exist. “Anyone who receives a message from someone selling any of these items should not respond,” Orestis says.

Phony advertisements. Scammers also try to advertise hard-to-find products through social media, email or ads that pop up on certain sites. Avoid clicking on anything unfamiliar because cyber criminals may be trying to steal your personal information or infect your computer with a virus, Orestis says. “Be cautious of people who try to contact you under odd usernames and do not have a profile picture,” he says. “If anyone asks for your personal information or invites you to click on a link, block them immediately or report them as spam.”

Government or organization disguises. Is a government official or someone from the CDC or from the World Health Organization trying to contact you? Maybe, but probably not. Scammers often try to convince potential victims that they are with a legitimate agency or group, Orestis says. “For example, an email might claim that there have been new COVID-19 cases in your area and ask for your personal information to see if you have been in contact with anyone infected,” he says. “Be suspicious of any COVID-19 related emails and use only official government websites to get information about the virus.”

Fake charities and crowdfunding. Criminals have also created counterfeit charities and crowdfunding sites. They ask for money in the form of cash, gift cards, and wire transfers. “Real charities will never use these resources,” Orestis says. “Be sure to use reputable sites and research the charities you want to donate to for coronavirus relief.”

Phone scams. Phones are still the No. 1 way scammers target seniors, both through calls and text messages. The Federal Communications Commission warns about these methods being used by people who claim to be the IRS or have coronavirus treatments, at-home testing kits, and vaccinations. “If you receive a robotic voice call, do not press any buttons or return any calls,” Orestis says. “Hang up immediately. If you receive text messages regarding this information, do not respond or click on any links.”

“It’s important to be wary of these and other scams, both off and online,” Orestis says. “The more conscious people are of how scammers are trying to trick them, the less likely they are to fall for one of those tricks.”

Chris Orestis, known as the “Retirement Genius” (www.retirementgenius.com), is President of LifeCare Xchange and a nationally recognized healthcare expert and senior advocate. He has 25 years’ experience in the insurance and long-term care industries, and is credited with pioneering the Long-Term Care Life Settlement over a decade ago. Known as a political insider, Orestis is a former Washington, D.C., lobbyist who has worked in both the White House and for the Senate Majority Leader on Capitol Hill. Orestis is author of the books Help on the Way and A Survival Guide to Aging, and has been speaking for over a decade across the country about senior finance and the secrets to aging with physical and financial health. He is a frequent columnist for Broker World, ThinkAdvisor, IRIS, and NewsMax Finance, has been a featured guest on over 50 radio programs, and has appeared in The New York Times, The Wall Street Journal, CNBC, NBC News, Fox News, USA Today, Kiplinger’s, Investor’s Business Daily, PBS, and numerous other media outlets. ★

LEGAL NOTICE

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT BLOCK GRANT (CDBG)
NOTICE OF 30-DAY PUBLIC REVIEW AND COMMENT PERIOD
FOR THE 2021 DRAFT ANNUAL ACTION PLAN

NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN that a 30-day public review and comment period for the 2021 Draft Annual Action Plan will commence on October 2, 2020 and will continue until October 31, 2020. The City is estimating that Rancho Cordova will receive approximately $600,000 in CDBG funds for the 2021 program year. Official CDBG allocations will be announced in the Spring of 2021.

The CDBG program provides funding for activities that benefit low-income persons, eliminate slum or blight, or serve an urgent need. Eligible activities include property acquisition, public improvements, housing rehabilitation, economic development, and public services.

As a recipient of CDBG funding, the City has developed a 2021 Annual Action Plan, which describes how the City will utilize program funds for eligible activities during the 2021 CDBG program year. The 2021 CDBG program year will run from January 1, 2021 to December 31, 2021. The Annual Action Plan can be amended as needed to reallocate funds to housing and community development activities.

2021 Annual Action Plan documents will be made available to the public for at least 30 days before adoption by the City Council. The documents will be released on October 2, 2020 for public review and comment, and will be available at City Hall and the City's Community Development website at <https://www.cityofranhocordova.org/departments/community-development/housing/community-development-block-grant>

The purpose of this public review will be to give citizens an opportunity to make their comments known regarding community needs and potential activities to be funded under the CDBG Program. If you would like to contact the City for more information, please call (916)851-8757. In addition, information is available for review at Rancho Cordova City Hall (2729 Prospect Park Drive, Rancho Cordova, CA 95670) between the hours of 8:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. on weekdays.

Thank you for your interest in the CDBG program.

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Suicidal thoughts, much like mental health conditions, can affect anyone regardless of age, gender or background. Every day friends, family and co-workers can be struggling with intense emotional pain and hopelessness. It may be too difficult for them to initiate a conversation to talk about their pain, thoughts of suicide and the need for help. It's important to know the warning signs that may show in conversations, their actions or in social media posts. By recognizing these signs, knowing how to start a conversation and where to turn for help, you have the power to save a life.

September is National Suicide Prevention Awareness Month – a time to share resources and stories in an effort to shed light on this stigmatized topic. Sacramento County Division of Behavioral Health Services wants to use this month to reach out to those affected by suicide, raise awareness, connect individuals with suicidal thoughts to treatment services, and recognize that stigma is the largest obstacle to seeking treatment.

“While Californians are enduring the emotional toll of crises from COVID-19 to devastating wildfires, and racial injustice, this month serves as an added reminder that behavioral health is inseparable from our overall health as a state. Our behavioral health wellbeing has much wider implications for us as a community,” said, Sacramento County Behavioral Health Director Ryan Quist. “It’s important to remember that we all have a role to play in promoting connectedness, belonging, resiliency and prevention. Today, it’s more important than ever before that we reach out and support each other.”

Fast Facts on Suicide from the National Alliance on Mental Illness: 75 percent of all people who die by suicide are male; More women than men attempt suicide, but men are nearly four times more likely to die by suicide; Suicide is the second leading cause of death for people ages 10-34 and the fourth leading cause of death for people 35-54; The overall suicide rate in the U.S. has increased by 31 percent since 2001; Stigma is the largest obstacle to recovery, treatment and societal acceptance for people living with mental illness; 46 percent of people who die by suicide had a diagnosed mental health condition; While nearly half of individuals who die by suicide have a diagnosed mental health condition, research shows that 90 percent experienced symptoms.

Suicide can be prevented: Know the Signs: Most people who are considering suicide show some warning signs or signals of their intentions. Learn to recognize these warning signs and how to respond to them;

Find the Words: If you are concerned about someone, ask them directly if they are thinking about suicide. This can be difficult to do, but being direct provides an opportunity for them to open up and talk about their distress and will not suggest the idea to them if they aren't already thinking about it. The "Find the Words" section of the Know the Signs website suggests ways to start the conversation;

Reach Out: You are not alone in this. Before having the conversation, become familiar with some resources to offer to the person you are concerned about. Visit the Reach Out section of the Know the Signs website to identify where you can find help for your friend or loved one;

Prevention Works: Many people who feel suicidal don't want to die. If they can get through the crisis, treatment works. There are programs and practices that have been specifically developed to support those who are in a suicide crisis. The Suicide Prevention Resource Center hosts a registry of 160 programs, practices and resources for suicide prevention. You can learn more about them by visiting their website;

Help is available: The Suicide Prevention Lifeline (1-800-273-8255- TALK) offers 24/7 free and confidential assistance from trained counselors. Callers are connected to the nearest available crisis center. The Lifeline is also available in Spanish, and for veterans or for those concerned about a veteran, by selecting a prompt to be connected to counselors specifically trained to support veterans.

Sacramento County provides a spectrum of culturally competent and linguistically proficient mental health services to individuals of all ages.
