A Baby Shower Network

The shower also served to aid in creating a network between the moms and FCCP and visiting organizations

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - It was fun, games, and information, not to mention a free lunch, at the quarterly baby shower hosted by Folsom Cordova Community Partnership (FCCP). Mothers and mothers-to-be were greeted by friendly staff and entered a festive room complete with balloons, tablecloths, and decorations in those familiar pastel shades of pink, blue, green, and yellow.

The quarterly baby showers have been occurring for the past several years and generally draw between one and two dozen moms or moms-to-be and one guest. FCCP's director Robert Sanger said that the program is important for these moms, some who've never had the opportunity to enjoy a baby shower even after having several children. While the showers are about fun, they are also about imparting information to the moms.

In addition to providing the day's lunch of sandwiches, cheese, salad, fruit, and water, HealthNet also offered the moms rattles, sippy cups, boxes of bandages, and handouts on preventive screening guidelines and breast feeding. Alla Knodel and Fernando Alveranga were on hand to discuss medical options and HealthNet's rewards program for immunizations and cervical cancer screenings.

Sacramento Covered presented a unique way to engage children early with vegetables - a squeeze cauliflower. That item caught the attention of one little boy who carried it with him throughout the afternoon. Natalya Gorbatyuk is a Health Navigator for Sacramento Covered. Her table was filled with pens, stickers which appealed to one mom who will wait for her little girl to get big enough to enjoy using them, and bath thermometers for moms to use to make sure that the bath temperature is just right for her child. Gorbatyuk also met with several moms to discuss healthcare options and the CalFresh program.

Once seated with lunch and goodies, moms were asked to participate in an icebreaker exercise. Each introduced herself and said if this was her

of Senator Nielsen

Given the fiasco of botched voter registrations at the California Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV), Senator Jim Nielsen (R-Tehama) will introduce legislation to get the DMV out of the voter registration business so it can focus on issuing licenses and car registrations.

"Voter registration is the cornerstone of our democracy," said Senator Nielsen (R-Tehama). "It must be done correctly by people who understand its importance to our republic."

In recent months, the DMV has mishandled thousands of California voter registrations. The following are some news reports detailing its mistakes: 100,000 registration errors, as reported by CalMatters; 23,000 erroneous voter registrations transmitted, as reported in the Sacramento Bee; Another 1,500 people wrongly registered to vote by the DMV, as reported by the Los Angeles Times; The State's top elections official unable to confirm whether or not non-citizens voted in the June primary, according to the Associated Press.

"These are not small mistakes that can be ignored; legislators must

All Aboard the Pumpkin Patch Express

Story and photos by

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - At Sacramento Valley Live Steamers Railroad Museum (SVLSRM), a fully functioning railroad and steam engines are available for anyone to ride and enjoy. The main line is over 6,300 ft. and winds through trees, past water features, and over wooden trestles in a corner of Hagan Community Park in Rancho Cordova. The SVLSRM runs an annual Santa Train in December, but just started running a Pumpkin Patch Express train last year. The second year of this fundraising event was a great success, with many in attendance and long lines waiting for their turn to board the trains on October 6 and 7.

Andy Berchielli, SVLSRM president, said, "We had over 1,200 riders this weekend—a little more than 600 each day. During our normal run days we have about 200 riders. So these special events are always a big success for us. Our normal run schedule is the first weekend of the month from March to September with special events being the 4th of July, Pumpkin Train, and Santa Train."

SVLSRM is a non-profit organization completely run by volunteers. "We all have different abilities that make the club what it is today. From the machinist to the landscapers to those with a construction background and those that take care of us (feed us), we are one big family that enjoy sharing our hobby with those interested in trains and making this little piece of Rancho Cordova the best that it can be," said Berchielli.

Stephanie Huntingdale, one of SVLSRM's many volunteers, said, "We're a 501(c)(3), so every donation goes back into the museum to repair tracks and engines...It's really a labor of love." They ran three trains for this year's Pumpkin Patch Express, but Huntingdale said they wished they had four because so many people came out for the event and the wait times were longer than expected. Two of the trains are owned by the museum and one was brought in by a member of SVLSRM.

David Garner of Carmichael brought two-year old Charlie and four-year-old Jillian to the Pumpkin Patch Express. "Charlie is really into trains, so we wanted to do this to celebrate Halloween."

"We're having a great time here with the kids," said Doug Foster, who came all the way from San Francisco to bring his kids to the event.

The mission of SVLSRM is to preserve the history, traditions, and lore of American steam railroading and nurture a love of trains in future generations. For more information, visit www.svlsrcm.org. ★

SOFIA Pilots Present to Standing Room Only Crowd

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) -A standing-room only crowd of adults, college students, teens, and children gathered Saturday, September 29, at the Aerospace Museum of California, a Smithsonian affiliate, to hear Liz Ruth and Ace Beall talk about what they say is the coolest job in the air – piloting SOFIA, the largest flying observatory in the world. SOFIA (Stratospheric Observatory for Infrared Astronomy) is a modified Boeing 747SP that once belonged to Pan Am World Airlines, was sold to United Airlines in 1986, then sold to NASA in 1997. The plane is stationed at NASA Armstrong Flight Research Center in Palmdale, California, not far from where Ruth grew up.

She is currently the only female pilot to fly the SOFIA as an active observatory. After a career that included serving in the Air Force piloting the T-38 jet trainer and T-43 flying classroom; as flight officer for United on B737-300, B757, B767, and B777 aircraft; raising a family; and serving as a legislative assistant, she returned to the pilot's seat in 2016 when she joined NASA. She earned her Master of Aeronautical Science degree from Embrey-Riddle Aeronautical University's McClellan campus and was stationed at Mather Air Force Base.

SOFIA flies just over 500 mph with a range of nearly 7500 miles. Flight and mission crews are joined by scientists, observers, or educators. Although up to 30 people can be accommodated, that is rare they said. SOFIA's lineage dates to 1968 when a Learjet was fit with a one foot diameter telescope, replaced in 1975 by a modified Lockheed C-141A Starlifter with a 2 ½ foot diameter telescope. SOFIA was put into operation in 2010, boasts an 8 ½ foot diameter telescope, and flew its first mission in 2011.

Beall, who didn't let a technology glitch that interrupted the slide show keep him from discussing SOFIA's telescope specifications, flew as a space shuttle carrier pilot during much of his thirty five year NASA career. His first ferry flight was in 1984, and the former Air Force T-38 instructor found himself, through a bit of luck of being in the right place at the time, working for NASA and as a pilot flying the T-38 again. Although he retired from NASA in 2005, he kept flying and flew SOFIA until last year when age restrictions took him out of the pilot's seat.

Although Beall never flew with Ruth, they both discussed various missions which change nightly. A typical mission, Ruth said, might take her up to Canada and back, then to Mexico and back, then to the East Coast and back. SOFIA crisscrosses the air for the duration of the ten or so hours that crew and scientists are in the air.

"The flight patterns drove air traffic controllers crazy," she said, showing a map of North America with what might have passed for a toddler's scribbles or a Jackson Pollock painting.

Missions, which begin at sunset and end before sunrise, are driven by the scientists on board. Two or three scientists with specific and different projects each need to be at specific locations at specific times. It is the pilot's job to make sure that the flight takes off at exactly the right time and arrives at each location at exactly the right time. That isn't as easy as it might seem. The 2015 Pluto Occultation was an example, as Beall explained, adding that it was sort of like an eclipse.

"The trick was to be in the right place at the right time," he said. "SOFIA was the only one to get to the center of the occultation."

The plane typically flies above the Earth's water vapor line because the telescope needs to be in dry conditions and permits scientists to study the hidden aspects of space, to learn about the birth and death of stars, and to figure out how it all works, they said. SOFIA uses over 200,000 gallons of fuel per flight and weighs more than one half ton at takeoff. Ruth and Beall responded to many audience questions who wanted to know how SOFIA could be improved, what the pilots eat during the mission, why they wear those uniforms, whether safety belts were used, and how to get on one of the flights as a teacher. "You have to apply," Ruth said.

"You can learn if you put in the effort," said Ruth, adding that NASA is a team effort with jobs in many fields – accountants, public affairs, photographers, mechanics, and is not just for astronauts or pilots.

Beall suggested finding something you love to do, do a good job, don't make enemies, and admit when you've messed up.

The lecture, on the heels of the museum's first teacher night, is one of eight events at the Aerospace Museum between now and Christmas, said Tom Jones, the museum's director, which include a three day tribute to veterans, a visit by Mad Science, movies, and its newest exhibit, "Our Solar System: An Interactive Journey Exhibit."

Hawaiian Chieftain Returns to Sacramento

The historic vessel to offer tours and sails at Old Sacramento, Nov 1 - Nov 24 Hawaiian Chieftain, photo by Rick Horn
By Zachary Stocks

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - History will come alive in Sacramento this October as

The tall ship Hawaiian Chieftain makes her return trip to town. The tall ship, part of the Aberdeen-based nonprofit Grays Harbor Historical Seaport, sails the waters of the Pacific each year along with its companion vessel Lady Washington, offering educational programs, free deck tours, and sailing trips.

From November 1st through the 24th, Hawaiian Chieftain will be docked at Old Sacramento, (1210 Front St.). On weekdays schools can reserve a trip aboard the tall ship for the Historical Seaport's one-of-a-kind maritime heritage field trip Voyage of Explorers. On weekday evenings and weekends the tall ship is open to the general public for stationary dockside Vessel Tours for a $5 suggested donation.

Hawaiian Chieftain can also be Chartered for private events including weddings and workplace team builders.

The steel hulled Hawaiian Chieftain was launched in 1988 in Lahaina, Hawaii. Together with Lady Washington, the tall ships are among the most active educational boats in America, visiting approximately 40 ports each year. The tall ships offer a glimpse into our historic past, introducing people of all ages to the sights and sounds of 18th and 19th century maritime life.

Grays Harbor Historical Seaport is an educational non-profit based in Aberdeen, Washington. In addition to school programs and public sailing, the tall ships are also active sail training vessels. Anyone over age 16 is eligible to join the crew through the Two Weeks Before the Mast volunteer sailing program. Those pursuing a career in the commercial maritime industry can also consider enrolling in the Historical Seaport's Sea School Northwest, a job training program to provide knowledge and mentorship for professional maritime fields.

If you're ready to run away to sea, or want to know more about the tall ships and their programs, please visit www.historicalseaport.org.

Sacramento Schedule: Public Tours (Weekly) Tuesday - Friday, 4:00 - 5:00 ($5 suggested donation) or Saturday, 10:00 - 1:00 ($5 suggested donation) VESSEL TOURS UNAVAILABLE: November 10 (Saturday) and November 17 (Saturday)

The vessel will be docked at Old Sacramento, 1210 Front Street, Sacramento CA 95814. For directions and schedule information, please call (800) 200-5239. ★

first child, if it is or will be a boy or girl, and if she'd already selected a name. Some moms had infants from one to four months old with them and others were pregnant.

Celeste, one of several Americorps volunteers who are integral to FCCP and its many programs, presented a short program called "The ABCs of Infant Safe Sleep. Included were tips on selecting clothes, room temperature, what should and should not be in the bed with the sleeping infant, airborne contaminants like smoke, statistics, and how to engage the father in the child's care.

Then the games began. These were not traditional baby shower games. There was no bobbing for pacifiers or diaper change relay races, but there were prizes for the winners of games requiring memory and pricing skills like the television game shows where contestants guess the prices of items. There were guessing games and a name as many items on the moving cart as you can.

As moms won each game, they went to the prize table and selected the prize they'd most like to have. Senior Gleaners had knitted several blankets which went quickly. Sippy cups with knitted caps and clothing donated by First 5 Sacramento Commission were also available as were dishes and diapers and other items donated by individuals and businesses.

The shower also served to aid in creating a network between the moms and FCCP and visiting organizations, to share resources and information, and learn about and participate in the many programs, workshops, and events FCCP offers.

The October 25 annual Harvest Festival will be held in the parking lot and the first 250 children will receive a free pumpkin. Christmas in Cordova, now in its eighth year, is a shopping mall for low-income parents who can select a new toy for their child(ren). Childcare will be available for parents who will also take home a meal basket. This event is sponsored by FCCP, Rancho Cordova Police Department, Rancho Cordova PAL, Sacramento County Sheriff, Sun River Church, CHP, and others. It takes place on December 15 at Mills Middle School. Pre-registration is required.

In addition to fun events, FCCP also offers numerous support, employment, family, and youth services. Some services include crisis resources and referral, emergency diapers, computer access for job search, resume writing assistance, and job readiness workshops. The Rancho Cordova Youth Leadership Council focuses on building positive relationships and involving young people in the larger community. The Birth & Beyond center offers resources and has a home visitation program. Workshops on parenting and special sessions for dads are also available and for those who want to let go a little, there's a Zumba class.

The afternoon ended with moms visiting the clothes closet, a collection of gently used baby clothes donated by the community and making new connections.

And Another Thing... Exercising your voting

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - This year is racing to its end, and Halloween, Election Day, Veterans Day (on Sunday this year), Thanksgiving, Cordova Community Christmas Tree Lighting, Pearl Harbor Remembrance Day, Christmas, New Year's Day and many more celebrations that I didn't include will soon be over. Now, if you count the holidays, remembrance days, birthdays and so forth that I didn't mention, and add them with the others, then people of the City of Rancho Cordova better have good track shoes. Now all kidding aside, this time of the year is my favorite because there can be more new wonderful memories created, as well as looking back at the memories we have been adding to our personal files. If you think about it, this year can be added to each resident's memory about how much better it is where you live than it was in the past.

When this column is printed and you read it, there will only be 11 days before the November 6, 2018 election. There will be more money spent about some of the propositions, both pro and con, and more money spent about some of the candidates, again pro and con. People will decide if they like or don't like the new ways of voting, and people will decide if they can see good or bad about the news media and whether the news media can present an even or a biased story. Like everyone else, I have been watching and listening to what is said or not said when a story is given to us. I watch to see if all of a story is presented to the audience, or if only a part of a story is what we heard. If you are given all of a story, then each individual can decide what they think the right thing to do is. If only part of a story is given, then the audience isn't given all of the information, and they aren't given the truth.

When I first became a member of the City Council, there was a tremendous amount of information I had to learn. Anyone who is new at their job and is a hired public servant have people to talk to, books to read, files to read, etc., and one of those books I either found or was given is called Elected Official's Little Handbook by Len Wood. It was copyrighted in 1994, and it has some very good suggestions for those who are new at the job. Those suggestions are applicable to all new elected officials. In one of the chapters titled "Political Savvy," it begins with "Thoughts for newly elected officials," and number one reads: "1. Forget the election campaign. Concentrate on your new challenge. Step back and formulate your vision for the organization. How do you want it to look when you leave office?" It also suggests that new officials learn about "Asking Staff; Asking of Colleagues; and Asking of the Public."

The book has many helpful hints about how new people can learn! It is something that any newly elected official must learn and that is that there will be so many new items that will take them time to learn. The public will watch, and they will see how well their new hired public servants learn their new jobs. Just for general information, you will never learn everything. That is why using every possible source will be beneficial as you try to do your job as time goes on. Asking staff, asking colleagues and asking the public will be much more beneficial than you can ever imagine.

Many voters are using the different ways they can cast their votes: much earlier by hand, putting them in the mail, or waiting until November 6 and going to the ballot box as they are used to. I just hope that there will be a higher voter turnout than there has been in the past. Exercising your voting franchise is too important a right than letting it just go to other people. We learned how important it was when we voted and became a city. Don't just let it pass on by.

From Vice Mayor Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time. ★

Local Candidates Speak Out at Campaign Whistle Stop

By Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - On October 19 at the Rancho Cordova Luncheon organizers allowed local contenders for public office a strictly monitored two minutes in which to explain themselves and their candidacy. Here are some snippets from the candidates who attended.

CRPD Board of Directors

Terri Leimbach joined the Board in 2014. Her extensive experience in accounting, including 11 years with another park district, taught her fiscal matters and policy-making in recreation and parks systems. In the last four years CRPD has won awards and resolved a long-argued Hagan Park issue. "The pool is going to be rebuilt," Leimbach said. "It is going to be brand new . . . have two pools; it's going to have eight competitive lanes."

Inez Reyes has served on the Board since 2006. "We had to dig in, do hard work, get our hands dirty . . ." Reyes said. "After working so, I will tell you we are in the best place that we can be now." Reyes has focused on providing recreational services that unite the community and enhance the quality of living.

learning," Badiga said, which involves empathy, confidence, and cognitive areas that prepare children to get along with each other. Badiga worked for WEAVE as managing attorney for 4½ years, battling to make women and their children safe. She acted for clients' continued employment and steady schooling for their kids.

David Reid has three children in the Folsom Cordova educational system. He has 23 years of education policy experience and is currently president of the Folsom Cordova PTA Council. He has been active in FCUSD board meetings since 2015. "Our children really are our future," Reid said. "We want to ensure the best for our kids, the best education, because for them to succeed is for us to succeed."

Joshua Hoover has three small children. As policy director for State Assemblyman Kevin Kiley, Hoover advises Kiley, vice-chair of the education committee, on education issues. "I'll share with you my number one priority," Hoover said, "which is to close the achievement gap between Folsom and Rancho Cordova schools." He would ensure budgetary resources go where most needed, increase parent participation, and incentivize great teachers to teach in Rancho Cordova.

the Naval Academy. He worked in intelligence, worked at the Pentagon, Homeland Security, and Department of State. He knows Washington D.C. "There is so much about what is happening in Rancho Cordova that is so important to all of District 7," Grant said.

Rancho Cordova City Council

Garrett Gatewood has raised his children in Rancho. He was able to build and grow a company because of the amazing city Rancho Cordova has become. "If you reelect me I am going to spend most of my time on what Rancho Cordovans were basically telling me as I was door-knocking – a new movie theater."

Derald Langwell has attended around 90% of City Council meetings for the past five years. He is concerned about, among other things, personal property rights. "I see the City is kind of stepping where they shouldn't be stepping," Langwell said. He also would like to see sidewalks put into older residential areas. "We can get the kids out of the streets and onto the sidewalks," Langwell said.

Linda Budge has been on the City Council since its incorporation. "We are a place that's known as the place that has more fun than anybody else," Budge said. "Who all went to the air show? Who came to the City's birthday party? And who came to the Park Districts birthday party?" It is important for the City Council to listen to what the residents of Rancho Cordova want, Budge said, as they have done when considering uses for Measure H funds.

Candidates not able to appear were Brian Danzl, Senator Jim Nielsen, Philip Kim, Melinda Avey, Assemblyman Ken Cooley, Congressman Ami Bera, and Donald Childs. ★

Siri Pulipati is an electrical engineer and the mother of two boys. She wants her children outdoors enjoying green grass and blue skies, not indoors focused on their devices. Pulipati volunteers with local schools to talk about science, technology, engineering, and math. Why is she running? "I have the energy, experience, and qualifications to do this job . . ." Pulipati said. "So I ask you, why not? Why not give me a chance?"

FCUSD Board of Education

Jaya Badiga has two children. "My biggest priority is socioemotional

administration of our housing properties. The shoes will be sent to developing countries to help local entrepreneurs set up small businesses selling shoes. Selling? Yes! Selling shoes to support their families. These are areas where walking is the main form of transportation. So, clean out your closets! This fundraiser is in collaboration with Funds2orgs. For every 2500 pairs of shoes we collect, Welcome Home Housing will receive $1,000 to use toward the maintenance and administration of our housing properties. The shoes will be sent to developing countries to help local entrepreneurs set up small businesses selling shoes. Selling? Yes! Selling shoes to support their families. These are areas where walking is the main form of transportation. So, clean out your closets! Drop your unused or gently used shoes off at any of the addresses listed below. Just put them on the front porch. Or if you can collect 25 or more pairs, we'll pick them up. Call Lynn for pick-up. 530-666-0202. Remember to ask neighbors, friends and families to donate their shoes too! We will collect until November 15. Contact Lynn Smith at 530-666-0202. Please drop off your shoes on the front porch at any of these addresses: 3401 Spartan Way, Rosemont, 9317 Americana Drive, Rosemont, 3159 Bertis Drive, Arden Arcade / Carmichael 5086 Rhode Island Drive Unit 1 (front unit), Citrus Heights / Carmichael, 6480 Woodhills Way, Citrus Heights, 2686 Los Amigos Drive, Rancho Cordova. For more information please contact Lynn Smith at 530-666-0202. ★

How the Individualized Education Program (IEP) Affects Our Kids

Commentary
by Andrea Hatch

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Individualized Education Program was established for kids who have behavioral and learning abilities that are different than the "average" child. Some kids receive an IEP and remain in a general education classroom with special focus on what they need most to succeed. Other children are placed in completely separate classrooms staffed with several teachers and varying levels of behavioral and learning difficulties. My son, Andre, was put into an IEP class by second grade. He was kicked out of several schools, saw several therapists, and a call or email was received almost daily regarding a behavioral outburst. The request was made several times for a shadow but I was advised that, unless he had a specific diagnosis, it would not be possible. The only problem was he had not, and has not been, diagnosed with anything specific. Behaviors at home are the polar opposite of how his behavior is at school. One of our greatest fears, when moving Andre to the IEP program, was that his academics would slip and his behavior would worsen. We were assured that would not happen; however, we are now in the fifth grade and our fears have come true. It is called an Individualized Education Program; however, each time we made suggestions that would help we were told they don't have the ability to give individual attention to each student.

We have pushed for Andre to be reintegrated to the general education and have been told that cannot happen until his

"I am a dancer, a singer, and a person who is good at math. I am understanding, thoughtful, and try my hardest to make friends and sometimes I succeed. I am a son, a grandson, and a great grandson and am sooo much more than a id in a special ed class."
Andre,

behavior improves. How do we know his behavior in a new setting unless we try? When surrounded by kids, with even greater behavioral issues, how can we expect behavior to actually improve? Many IEP kids are in sports, activities, and have hobbies where they interact in a positive manor with others. When doing these other activities, outside of their special education program, they are able to interact like a "normal" kid because they are in an environment with other "normal" kids. If we, even as adults, are placed in an environment where aggression is present then we will likely become aggressive, seeing as how it's in our nature to protect ourselves.

There are benefits of this program and there are drawbacks. Being in IEP protects the children from expulsion, or arrest, depending on behavior and it allows the children to remain on a school campus, even though they struggle. The downfall is that there is such a severe gap in the behaviors and thoughts of these children that there is no way it is an Individualized plan. If you have a child who is academically challenged mixed with a child who is behaviorally challenged where do you focus? Both children are now being academically neglected. The child who is academically strong is being neglected due to behavioral challenges and the child who struggles academically will continue to do so since the focus is only on a behavior, or behaviors, of other classmates. It's a vicious circle that needs rectification.

The IEP children are removed from what is viewed as the "normal" classroom, yet are expected not to see themselves differently and the "normal" students are not supposed to view the IEP students differently. The IEP children get teased and picked on, yet are expected to see themselves as being like the other children. Other parent's look at our children with disgust for their struggles with what seems like simple tasks to other. I personally heard one mother, not realizing I was my son's mother, talking so badly about my child and telling her child to stay away from my son. What is being missed is that my son is a 10 year old boy. Just like several others, my son is loving, generous, funny, caring, and kind hearted. He just doesn't know how to handle things when he gets upset. How will he ever learn unless the time is taken to teach him to do better? His academics should not suffer based on his struggle with behavior. We need to remember that these are children too and that all children are different. As adults we need to remind the "normal" children that we are not all the same. We need the Individualized Education Program to be better tailored for each student. We need to remember that it takes a village and if the village gives up, so do our youth. We cannot expect our children to know what they haven't been taught. Next time you see an IEP kid on the campus of your child's school smile, ask them how they are doing, and show your kids the importance of being kind so that it lives within them when they are not with you. ★

A Message to Our Readers

With this week's issues produced by Messenger Publishing Group you will see a change in the format. For many years we stayed with the larger web size broadsheet newspaper. It has always proven to be the most popular with readers, but the industry has now almost completely changed. The smaller web size is the industry standard and it is nearly impossible to find a printer with the proper presses to print the larger format. Just a few weeks ago our printer of many years informed us that they would be closing down their presses. We have had to completely redesign our products in the last ten days to convert to the new size with all six of our newspapers to accommodate our new printer's requirements. We appreciate all of our readers and hope you understand that we work hard to bring you a quality local newspaper that is interesting, informative, fun to read and represents the community that it serves. Thank you for being one of our many loyal readers. Paul V. Scholl, Publisher

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF CHRISTINE HARRIS SCRIBNER AKA CHRISTINE REYSNER CASE No. 34-2018-00241226
 To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, and contingent creditors of and persons who may be otherwise interested in the will or estate, or both of Christine Harris Scribner aka Christina Reysner A Petition for Probate has been filed by Elizabeth Ann McLaughlin, in the Superior Court of California, County of Sacramento, requesting Elizabeth Ann McLaughlin, be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent. The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the Independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the executor to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the executor will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or have consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority. A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows November 21, 2018 9:00 a.m. in Dept 129 at Superior Court of California, County of Sacramento 3341 Power Inn Road Sacramento, CA 95826. IF YOU OBJECT to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney. IF YOU ARE A CREDITOR or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58(b) of the California Probate Code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California law. YOU MAY EXAMINE the file kept by the court. If you are interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for Special Notice form is available from the court clerk. The name, address and telephone number of the Attorney for Petitioner is: Peter A. TV GUIDE MAGAZINE CHEERS & JEERS

Cheers to Glenn Weiss for dropping the mic by popping the question. As if earning a trophy for directing the Oscars wasn't enough, Weiss blew the crowd's mind when he proposed to his girlfriend, Jan Svendsen (pictured, with Weiss), onstage! Thankfully, the orchestra didn't play him off before she said yes.

Cheers to The Americans for getting a salute. After six seasons of awesome, FX's now-wrapped Russian spy drama was awarded an outstanding writing win for executive producers Joe Weisberg and Joel Fields, while Matthew Rhys snagged lead actor. But who colluded to ice out lead actress nominee Keri Russell (pictured, with Rhys)?

Jeers to The Hosts for not being very relevant. At best, Colin Jost and Michael Che (pictured) were fine. At their awkward worst, they reminded us that Emmy producer Lorne Michaels could have showcased Saturday Night Live's more diverse (and deserving) nominees, Kate McKinnon, Aidy Bryant, Leslie Jones and Kenan Thompson.

Jeers to Game of Thrones for playing with our heads. How did Season

7 nab outstanding drama when the series (starring Emilia Clarke, pictured) hasn't aired in more than a year? We barely remember what happened. Was this the season with the muddy battle and all the sex or the one with the really muddy battle and the incest? -- Brought to you by the publishers of TV Weekly magazine, the best source for local TV & cable listings. ASK MATT BY MATT ROUSH TV Guide Senior Critic

IS TRAVEL CHANNEL'S HOTEL IMPOSSIBLE COMING BACK?

Question: Will Travel Channel's Hotel Impossible be on anymore? That show makes you not want to stay at hotels anymore!

--Dennis

Matt Roush: I get a lot of questions like this, and it's almost impossible (no pun intended) to keep up with the comings and goings of these reality-based cable series. Often they're just in between seasons, and there's no predicting when they come on and off the schedule, but in the case of Hotel, it's no longer in production. Though Travel Channel does make past episodes available on its app, for devices like Roku, Amazon Fire and Apple TV, or the phone, and on the channel's website.

Question: [SPOILER ALERT] I finally got involved in Shooter on USA ... and they killed off Bobby Lee's wife Julie! With all the insanity and nonsense he put her through … she's gone? It kind of frustrated me and makes me not want to tune in anymore. Ridiculous turn of events. --Louise

Matt Roush: Well, you'll at least be spared that problem, because there will be no more episodes of Shooter to tune into. This season turned out to be its last--and no, at the moment, no streaming service has stepped in to rescue it. But when I heard that this took place in the finale, I groaned even without watching. This kill-the-wife stunt is getting old. To submit questions to TV Critic Matt Roush, go to: tvinsider.com ★

Skilled Workers Still a Mystery

Job demand and hiring trends for the 4th Quarter

By Rick Reed

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Sacramento employers have slowed hiring with shortages of skills and applicants. However, they continue to seek expansion of workforces in the final Quarter of 2018. Down from sixty-six percent (66%) hiring in the previous three months, Pacific Staffing discovered in direct contacts with top regional employer's fifty-seven percent (57%) will hire in October, November and December. Twenty percent (20%) of all companies report a lack of applicants as a major challenge.

While top regional employers, contacted by phone between August 23rd and September 21, will cut overall marketplace demand, those seeking workers are still motivated by expansion or growth needs in the workforce. Forty-one percent (41%) will hire for growth in the next three months with replacements within existing workforces accounting for thirty-two percent (32%) of employer demand in the Quarter ahead. Six percent (6%) of Sacramento companies also report some increased hiring for seasonal needs thru the next three months. Only one company polled reports plans to reduce workers with layoffs in Fourth Quarter (Q4) due to market slowdowns.

Seasonal shopping is going to be a gamble as Sacramento retailers polled were split 50/50 on hiring or not in October, November and December. Twenty percent of employers surveyed say simply finding applicants is a major challenge in meeting demands in the Sacramento market. Retention is another challenge. Signing bonuses and incentives like additional vacation or Flex time are being offered in the efforts to keep current skilled, experienced workers at the job and attract talent from outside the area.

One trend in employment and management appears to have lost some of the luster enjoyed in the past decade. When asked in the current booming economy with shortages of skills and applicants if 'outsourcing' work overseas is IN or OUT, fifty-eight percent (58%) of all Sacramento companies reported no interest in using it. While some regional employers have 'outsourced' and others have not, some are unable to and some forbidden to, outsourcing issues cited included 'challenges' in cost, management and additional paperwork in compliance with government rules.

Twenty-four (24%) of Sacramento companies report finding some specific success in utilizing out of market and international resources for printing, design, office or management functions and customer service needs. Skills in top demand for Q4 include drivers, sales, tech, warehouse, shipping and manufacturing. Employers also cite needs for specialized skills including escrow/mortgage, accounting/finance and construction trade workers.

Call If You Can - Text If You Can't

Special Release from Sac Metro Fire

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Sacramento County 9-1-1 Centers representing all law enforcement and fire agencies in the region are excited to announce Text-to-9-1-1 service is available countywide. This means all 9-1-1 Public Safety Dispatch Centers are now equipped to receive and respond to mobile phone Text-to-9-1-1 messages from our citizens.

Individuals who are deaf and hard of hearing members of the community, or those in a situation where it is too dangerous to dial 9-1-1, will have another option to call for help in an emergency, Text-to-9-1-1. The benefits to our citizens are significant, especially in cases when the caller cannot communicate verbally. Examples include not only the hard of hearing, but also when a crime is in progress, the caller is facing domestic abuse, the caller is injured and cannot speak, or other scenarios.

In anticipation of providing this service, we wanted to share some information with you.

Even where text-to-9-1-1 is available, if you can make a voice call to 9-1-1, please call instead of texting.

Here are some guidelines for how to contact 9-1-1. If you use a wireless phone or other type of mobile device, make sure to do the following in an emergency:

- If you can, always contact 9-1-1 by making a voice call, "Call if you can - text if you can't."
- If you are deaf and hard of hearing and Text-to-9-1-1 is not available, use a TTY or telecommunications relay service, if available.
- If you text 9-1-1 and text is not available at that time or in your area, you will receive a bounce back message advising "text is not available please make a voice call to 9-1-1."
- Location accuracy varies by carrier and should not be relied upon. Be prepared to give your location.
- Text-to-9-1-1 service will not be available if the wireless carrier cannot ascertain a location of the device sending the message.
- Text-to-9-1-1 is not available if you are roaming.
- A text or data plan is required to place a text to 9-1-1.
- Photos and videos cannot be sent to 9-1-1. They cannot be received at the 9-1-1 center currently.
- Text messages should be sent in plain language and not contain popular abbreviations (SMH, LOL, ICYMI) or emojis, which will not be recognized.
- Text-to-9-1-1 cannot be sent to more than one person. Do not send your emergency text to anyone other than 9-1-1.
- Texts must be in English only. There currently is no language interpretation for text available. This is still in development.

This is exciting news for our region and we are looking forward to providing this service to our community. ★

Move America Forward Named Top Recipient of National Halloween Candy Buy Back Program

Turning Extra Candy into Cash for Schools and Sweet Treats for Troops Overseas

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Move America Forward has been named as the primary resource for a national effort which brings together Dentists, Orthodontists, and other Oral healthcare professionals from around the country, partnering with local schools for an innovative Halloween Candy Buy Back Program that benefits schools as well as our troops overseas.

"Move America Forward impressed us with their transparency and mission after their first 2 years participating in the Halloween Candy Buyback. We are proud to make them our primary resource in this great event, and glad to send candy to our troops who deserve the support," said Dr. Chris Kammer, D.D.S., who is Founder of the official Halloween Candy Buyback. "At a time when childhood obesity is not improving in our country, programs like the Halloween Candy Buyback are needed more than ever."

Halloween is a holiday known for overconsumption of sweet treats which can cause damage to braces and result in tooth decay. The Halloween Candy Buyback encourages families to turn in their excess candy to a local participating school or oral health professional's office. Some offices will make cash donations to local schools for the candy which will be used in Move America Forward care packages to the troops.

Hundreds of brave soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen will benefit from receiving a care package from home with a little Halloween spirit inside. Move America Forward sends thousands of care packages a year to troops in war zones and wherever our troops are in need. The Halloween candy from participants of the Halloween Candy Buyback Program will increase the number of packages Move America Forward is able to ship this year.

Parents can find a list of participating dentist offices by visiting www.halloween-candybuyback.com and entering your zip code. Contact one of the listed offices to find out when you can drop off your candy for donation. Families are encouraged to bring their extra candy into one of these locations or encourage your local dentist office to contact the Halloween Candy Buyback Program to sign up as a participant.

Move America Forward, a registered 501(c)(3) charity, based in Sacramento, supports our troops and their missions in the war on terror. Move America Forward is supported by hundreds of thousands of pro-troop activists, veterans and military families across the nation. To date, they have shipped over 388 tons of care packages to our troops serving in Iraq and Afghanistan.

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The Lancers scored early and often in their game against Natomas last Friday, finishing off their run for the league title to make the playoffs for 2018.

After a one week bye, the Lancers came out with renewed energy and focus with long scoring drives that doomed their opponents in the 41-20 lopsided win.

The team's longest drive, 93 yards in total, ran 15 offensive plays to dominate the clock.

The Lancers are now 3-0 in league play. ★

Kiyo Sato Tells Story to House of Luminaries

Story by Trina L. Drotar

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG)

- "I am prisoner 25217C and a suspected spy in 1942," said internment camp survivor Kiyō Sato to a packed to the rafters group of students, families, former internment camp survivors, family members, Holocaust survivor Bernard Marks, and local Tuskegee Airmen chapter president Perry Woods. Sato's story begins at the location where Mills Station Arts and Culture Center (MACC) currently stands and across Folsom Blvd. where the building, and her family, first resided.

Sato recalled fond memories of school, a hitching post, big garden tools, and one of those old gasoline pumps – the kind that required the user to hand pump the gas up to five gallons. Most of the audience was too young to remember those, but a few heads nodded as though they'd seen or used them.

A particularly fond memory was going to Mr. Studarus' store where she'd get stamps, two loaves of Rainbow white bread and bologna for lunch, but it was the books that really drew her in. She said that she'd "sit on the floor and read all sorts of books," recalling one in particular – Lillian Wald's Windows on Henry Street, published in 1934.

Sato returned to why she'd written her book, Kiyō's Story, originally titled Dandelion Through the Crack, which she began when she turned 80. She is currently a young-looking 95 year old who credits her youthful exuberance to eating her vegetables and moving her body, which she certainly did throughout the evening, never missing a beat. She stopped long enough for a period of four years to pen her story in a donut shop.

a civil engineer, four teachers, two nurses, a secretary, and a soil analyst. She was attending Sacramento Junior College at the time when the American dream for many was, she said, becoming a reality.

recalled. "In May, we were ordered to leave."

A long list of contraband items included cameras, long knives, and radios.

"Even knitting needles were contraband," she said. "Can you believe that?"

Upon receiving the ten day notice to leave with only what they could carry, Sato's family, because of the quick and forward thinking of her father, packed all sorts of items in their bedrolls.

"What do you think he had in the bedroll?"

Seeds was the response from those who answered.

"Hammer, nails, a saw – all these tools he hid in each one of our bedrolls," she said. "A bucket." And those seeds were also hidden.

"Every one of those things he took was in demand and came in so handy."

Her talk was accompanied by a display behind her and a series of photographs, including one of the bedroll. She talked about how the hammer and nail were used and how they used scrap lumber and made nails from wire.

Her talk addressed the 4th Amendment when she recalled the day she came home from school to find three FBI agents in the house. One was in her room looking at her diary. The feisty young woman

Sato's family was taken to Poston, Arizona where that bucket came in handy when the many sandstorms hit and to obtain potable water. Seeds were planted and somehow grew in temperatures that often topped 120 degrees. Poston was one of only ten wanted to tell him to stop, but she didn't because the situation could have been made worse for the family.

She had plenty of artifacts to share with the audience including a copy of the evacuation order poster, nearly half her size, which had been attached to fence posts, buildings, and telephone poles along Routier Road, just a stone's throw from her home and the MACC.

She showed a copy of a Japanese Hunting License, which she read and horrified the audience, some who recalled Bernard Marks' words from a week earlier. She also held up a framed letter from the White House offering its apology and signed by President George H.W. Bush.

campus across the United States for 120,000 people of Japanese descent. Camps were also located in California, Idaho, Colorado, Wyoming, Arkansas, and Utah.

German-Americans and Italian-Americans were sent to different camps.

Sato took numerous audience questions and engaged with many after the event.

"We need to learn to be respectful of one another," she said. "We need to teach children to respect each other. It concerns me that we're not being respectful of the other person."

Sato was animated, energetic, witty, and passionate as she spoke about strawberries, Miss Cox and the 52 students in her class (all but thirteen were removed), and of reading. She was the oldest of thirteen children that included

"Then this happened." Executive Order 9066, signed by President Roosevelt, was issued to remove all persons with more than 1/16 Japanese blood.
