Rebuilding with Hope Nonprofit Revamps Homes for Those in Need

Story by Jacqueline Fox

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - There is no question the Sacramento region is short on housing, specifically affordable housing. But what happens to existing homes for seniors and others in need when repairs are necessary but there are no resources to make them? One leaky roof could put a senior on a fixed income into a financial spiral toward desperation and risk of homelessness. Same goes for low-income families with children, those living with disabilities and low-income veterans. Enter Rebuilding Together, a Sacramento-based nonprofit organization that marshals the muscle of skilled labor, the heart of volunteers and the generosity of corporate and private donors to provide home rehabilitation services and programs to help individuals in need remain in their homes. Services include new roofs, paint jobs, electrical upgrades, yard clean up, energy saving upgrades and other preservation programs. "One thing we talk a lot about here is the issue of a lack of housing in our community," said Carrie Grip, who has served as the agency's executive director for nearly two decades. "But there's also the fact that we have many houses across our communities that are substandard and causing health and safety issues that, if not repaired or mitigated, threaten to put homeowners at risk of losing them." One of the largest recipient groups of support from Rebuilding Together, says Grip, is seniors, who comprise the fastest-growing population nationwide. Many have lived in their homes for decades and are facing down challenges of getting older in their aging homes

Sacramento County Credit Rating Increased

Sacramento County
News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - As a result of Sacramento County's commitment to fiscal responsibility, major credit-rating company Standard and Poor's Rating Services (S&P) raised the County's credit rating two notches. Following the Great Recession in 2008, Sacramento County diligently worked to strengthen the region's economy, financial flexibility and fiscal stability, providing more job opportunities and housing options while also implementing new budget processes and financial policies. S&P raised Sacramento County's credit rating to the following:

- County Long Term Rating from "A" to "AA-"
- County Pension Obligation Bonds from "A" to "AA-"
- County Certificates of Participation from "A-" to "A+"

Additionally, the S&P's rating report highlighted the following factors as areas of strength for Sacramento County:

- Strong economy, with access to a broad and diverse metropolitan statistical area
- Strong management, with good financial policies and practices under S&P's Financial Management Assessment methodology
- Strong budgetary performance, with operating surpluses in the general fund and at the total governmental fund level in fiscal 2017

S&P summarized Sacramento County's position in their annual report, stating that their rating "reflect(s) our view of the County's restoration of positive available fund balances, resulting in an improvement in the county's financial flexibility, as well as our opinion of the county's improved economy, as reflected in improved wealth and income indicators." ★

By Ashley Downton,

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Rancho Cordova Motor Officer Brian Aubuchon always had an interest in a career in law enforcement. Many of his friends were in law enforcement and loved it. When he was in grade school, he detested bullies picking on students just because they were stronger and felt they could. Yet, he felt such a law enforcement career was somehow unattainable. Officer Aubuchon was successfully working in the construction industry and had a family. One day he was on a job site in Davis where a crime had been committed. There was a detective on-scene investigating the case, and he asked him how he went into law enforcement. He learned about the Sacramento Regional Public Safety Training Center Academy and a program that would allow him to attend while keeping his full-time job. Aubuchon was eating lunch with one of his colleagues and talking about if he wanted to go to the Academy. His colleague told him, "In ten months, you will either be done or wishing you had gone." So he applied for the Academy, got in, and graduated ten months later in 1995, number one in the class overall and second in the class academically. Aubuchon was hired out of the Academy by the Woodland Police Department and gained experience for 5 ½ years working in SWAT, as a field training

Women’s Empowerment Graduates 1,500th Formerly Homeless Woman

24 Women Once Homeless Graduate From the Sacramento Job-Readiness Program

By Kate Towson

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Community members from across Sacramento witnessed Women’s Empowerment graduate its 1,500th formerly homeless woman, Cynthia Miller of Citrus Heights, in mid-March. Miller joined 23 other graduates as they completed the comprehensive nine-week job-readiness program for homeless women.

Miller was homeless with her three young children when she was accepted into Women’s Empowerment’s job-readiness program.

“Women’s Empowerment truly gave me hope and it boosted my confidence. It was so empowering because it made me realize how much I have to offer our community.”

Miller’s immediate goal is to attend college in the fall to obtain her Certified Nursing Assistant (CNA) certificate and begin working at a senior living facility.

“My ultimate goal is stop this cycle of homelessness so my children don’t have to grow up in it anymore. I plan on providing a stable home for them and enrolling them in a school where they can make friends for life. Having all of the support from Women’s Empowerment helped me discover that achieving my dreams is possible.”

Held at the VFW Post 67 in Sacramento, 100 graduation attendees heard each graduate’s story and future plans. Each woman accepted their certificates of achievement from Intel, the California Assembly and Women’s Empowerment. She received a new handbag filled with a day planner and other items designed to help her succeed from the generous employees of Dignity Health, and enjoyed a lovely reception sponsored by Kiwanis Club of Greater Sacramento.

“Our graduation ceremonies are a unique community event where women like Cynthia can be celebrated for their accomplishments,” said Lisa Culp, executive director of Women’s Empowerment. “At Women’s Empowerment, we know that employment and education are the most long-term solutions to truly ending homelessness. And today 24 formerly homeless women are re-joining our workforce, regaining safe housing and breaking the cycle of homelessness for themselves and their children. They are ready to achieve their dreams.”

Women’s Empowerment was featured on NBC’s The TODAY Show in 2015 for offering the most comprehensive job-readiness program in the Sacramento area designed specifically for women who are homeless and their children. The award-winning organization has graduated

1,503 homeless women and their children. Last year, 92 percent of graduates found homes and 77 percent found jobs or enrolled in school or training. The program combines self-esteem courses, job training, health classes and support services to help homeless women across diverse ages, races and cultures. Women’s Empowerment is funded through private donations from the community and receives no government funding except for in-kind rent from the County of Sacramento. Employers Face a New Problem

By Rick Reed

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

- Sacramento employers are caught between a rock and a hard place as marijuana is now a legal recreational drug in California, but still outlawed by the Federal government. In many ways nothing has changed for regional companies with Federal contracts, transportation or safety issues in the workplace despite California voter approval of ‘pot’ use.

Pacific Staffing asked top regional companies if recreational marijuana use in the first three months of 2018 resulted in any issues in the workplace. While not all could or would answer twenty-seven percent (27%) of those responding said ‘Yes’. Among the impacts noted by newly legal pot use were employees fired for keeping a ‘stash’ at work, more ‘red eye’ observed on the job, absenteeism, tardiness and one employer reporting a job injury from ‘inattention’.

While state law allows recreational marijuana use, most employers say little has really changed in at-work policy as sixty-two percent (62%) reporting say they still pre-test for employment, thirty-six percent (36%) random test for safety while another thirty-six percent (36%) described their company as ‘drug free’ with eleven percent (11%) stating a ‘zero tolerance’ policy that remains in place. While many of those contacted directly by phone between February 27 and March 23, 2018 recognize state law has changed, eleven percent (11%) consider ‘pot’ use similar to alcohol and unacceptable at work. For job applicants and current employees any use might become problematic as testing remains unable to pinpoint exactly how long it’s been since marijuana was consumed.

One anecdotal comment noted, “Never, ever come to work drunk or high” as the best practice.

Another HR contact said misunderstanding by applicants recently resulted in problems in hiring, as a recent driver position drew nine people with seven dropping out of the potential employee pool because they thought ‘smoking pot’ was now ‘okay’ and failed a drug screen.

Sixty-Five percent (65%) of regional companies surveyed will hire in the second quarter, with demand in April, May, June equally split between motivation for workforce expansion (46%) and attrition (46%).

General labor, entry level to skilled trades employers say applicants are in short supply in the Sacramento area. Sales, manufacturing, warehouse/shipping, product assembly and a wide range of technical skills are in high demand. Companies also sought construction estimators, escrow experience, route/delivery drivers and accounting/finance backgrounds.

For more information, employment blogs & market surveys go to www.pacificstaffing.com.

Sacramento Regional Top Companies Polled by Industry were Service at 42%, Manufacturers at 29%, Construction at 19% and Retail at 10%.

Buzzed for a Good Cause

City officials, Residents Lose the Locks For Kid’s Cancer Research

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Getting “buzzed” took on a whole new meaning for Rancho Cordova city, law enforcement officials and others who became “shavees” March 28 as participants in the city’s fourth annual head-shaving fundraiser to support Southern California-based St. Baldrick’s Foundation, a leading supporter of children’s cancer research.

“This is a great way to support one of the least-funded forms of cancer: children’s cancer,” said City Councilman Donald Terry. Terry, alongside his son Keaton, 7, took the stage at Claimstake Brewing Company, the site of the 2018 fundraiser, and let the ladies from Indie Salon in Folsom shave their heads in the name of finding a cure for the devastating forms of cancer that claim children’s lives; one about every three minutes in the United States, it is estimated.

The city’s St. Baldrick’s head-shaving fundraiser is one of more than 1,000 similar events held by various individuals, city departments, companies and community service groups each spring nationwide. Pledges for shaves, combined with individual donations, go directly to St. Baldrick’s, who is considered the largest private provider of grants and funding for lifesaving childhood cancer research in the country.

These “bold acts of baldness,” as they are called, began as individual fundraisers in 2000. The first head-shaving event was held as a St. Patrick’s Day party Jim Brady’s pub in Manhattan. The group raised $104,000 for research with 19 shavees participating. By 2004 there were enough events happening around the country to officially call the growing number of head-shaving events a movement. St. Baldrick’s Foundation was formed as a full-fledged non-profit organization, going strong ever since.

Councilman Donald Terry received roughly $1,000 in pledges with the largest donation of $500 coming from the Sacramento Telangana Association.

To date, St. Baldrick’s has raised more than $234 million to help kids’ overcome cancer and provide a critical funding pipeline for specialists’ to continue vital research for cures.

Today, the shaving events are held at various locations nationwide: restaurants, schools, churches, parks, firehouses, military and other locations, and, of course, breweries. Councilman Terry got involved four years ago when friend, Zak Ford, a member of the Folsom Cordova Unified School District, asked him to join him at a St. Baldrick’s head-shaving event in Midtown.

Terry, a former FCUSD board member himself, and Ford both have known students at their children’s schools who have either died from or experienced some form of cancer. The event is largely personal; the passion for the cause incomparable.

“I’d always wanted to do this after Zak introduced me to it,” said Terry. “My son went to school with a kid who had cancer, which really brought this close to my heart. So I put a team together at the city to get our event started here in Rancho. This year, we thought it would be fun to have it inside a brewery. It gives a whole different meaning to the idea of getting ‘buzzed.’ I’m proud to be part of this and I know the rest of my colleagues are too.”

The city raised a grand total of $8,500. Councilman Terry officer, in the honor guard, and as a shift supervisor. His dream, though, was to come to the Sacramento County Sheriff’s Department.

In 2000, Sacramento County was contracting with the City of Citrus Heights for police services and needed officers with experience in traffic enforcement. He had gained experience in Woodland in programs such as driving under the influence (DUI) and traffic collisions, and he was offered a position as a patrol officer, quickly transitioning to a motor officer.

“As a motor officer, you are an ambassador for the department as you interact with the community on a regular basis,” said Officer Aubuchon. “Your role includes not just enforcement but educating the community through talks and safe driving practices.”

Aubuchon joined the Rancho Cordova Police Department (RCPD) in 2005 as one of the first motor officers hired. He remembers a different city that started to provide resources towards public safety to make the community a safer place.

“I am most proud to have been part of the transformation that has taken place in Rancho Cordova,” said Officer Aubuchon. “Rancho Cordova is a safer community because of the proactive policing programs that have been implemented. It’s very fulfilling to know that I had a role in that.”

For the Commission on Peace Officer Standards and Training, Officer Aubuchon served on the Motorcycle Safety Committee, as well as the Committee on Law Enforcement Officers Killed and Assaulted. He participated in writing motor policy for the state, and determining the cause of death for officers in the line of duty to prevent further deaths from occurring throughout the state.

Officer Aubuchon was also instrumental in creating an in-house training program that teaches RCPD officers to investigate traffic collisions and respond to DUIs. The program was created in response to him and Officer Marcus James responding to these situations and noticing that their fellow officers might benefit from additional training to better serve the Rancho Cordova community.

BRIAN AUCHUBON
RANCHO CORDOVA
POLICE DEPARTMENT

Reflecting back on his career, Officer Aubuchon calls RCPD the crown jewel of the Sacramento County Sheriff’s Department because of the people. One of these people is Officer James, Officer Aubuchon’s partner on the job. They attended the Academy together and never lost contact, serving together in Citrus Heights and then in Rancho Cordova.

“Having Officer Aubuchon as a partner on the job for so many years has made coming to work each day a joy,” said Officer James. “As people, we are really different, but on the job, it works well and is a good balance. Officer Aubuchon, it has been an incredible ‘ride.’ Thank you for allowing me to be your wing man!”

In his retirement, Officer Aubuchon will be focusing on his family-owned business in Rancho Cordova called Redline Ballistics.

The Rancho Cordova Police Department congratulates Officer Aubuchon on his retirement and thanks him for his service to the Rancho Cordova community and greater Sacramento region! ★

By Bob McGarvey

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - At our City Council Meeting last night, Agenda Item #13.9 amended the Rancho Cordova Municipal Code regarding Chapter 23.719, Parking and Loading. The amendment deleted language stating that an RV, boat, or trailer could not be parked within the front and street side yard setbacks. Our vote on the ordinance amended the language that was modified last summer. We estimate there are hundreds of citizens who have been parking RVs, boats, or trailers on the driveway of their homes. There were 20 or 25 citizens at the last City Council Meeting who wanted to speak and keep their RVs, boats, or trailers parked in front of their homes, just as they have been doing for decades. The few who spoke thanked their Council for correcting the change in the ordinance. Many people do not have room to place an

And Another Thing Regarding Parking and Loading

RV behind their fences, nor have the extra money it would cost to find a storage place. Those costs are estimated to have been from $1,500 to $5,500 or more a year.

A subcommittee of city staff and citizens is being formed to address issues identified with RVs, boats, and trailers parked in residential neighborhoods. That is about as far as I can say for now, since the subcommittee hasn't begun meeting. As for what the new rules may be, that is all speculation. The only thing that is sure is that our citizens can continue to park their vehicles at home. We will all be waiting to see what the subcommittee will be able to accomplish.

And another thing that is important will be the final approvals of the Community Enhancement Fund applications. When Measure H was passed in November 2014, we asked the citizens of the City of Rancho Cordova how they wanted their tax money to be spent. It was something of a shock to some people when their local government asked them how they wanted the government to spend their tax money. When we had 16 public meetings and really asked that question again, the people realized that we were serious about it. Millions of dollars have been spent on police, art, sports, and many other items that were and are important to the people. The applications that are sent to City Hall, studied by staff, and approved by the City Council, are the things that our citizens say are important to them. Thank you all for putting in the time you spent on your application.

Our citizens put in thousands of volunteer hours. Many of the wonderful people in Rancho Cordova do what they know needs to be done, and they move forward. "A ship in harbor is safe, but that is not what ships are built for." I couldn't find the author of that quote, but it is very fitting. Whether it is a ship in harbor or one at sea, some people must stay at home, while others are willing to face some of life's storms. And while they may crash when they try, they know it was worth the battle.

From Vice Mayor Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time. ★

Nonprofit Revamps Homes for Those in Need

with limited funds for making necessary and, in some cases, life-saving upgrades and repairs.

"Sacramento is not equipped to handle the growing senior population," said Grip. "There is no place for many seniors who lose their homes to go. So, it's a lot cheaper for them if we can fix a roof, a leaky pipe, paint the house or install safety bars and other things that will allow them to stay in their homes safely."

Originally called "Christmas in April," Rebuilding Together was launched in 1991 when roughly 70 volunteers joined forces to make repairs to the home of an elderly and disabled resident in Sacramento. They restored the roof, painted, rebuilt fences, made some electrical repairs and cleaned up her yard. Thus a movement was hatched.

Today, Rebuilding Together (the name was changed in 2001) is comprised of 160 chapter affiliates nationwide. The Critical Repair and Accessibility Program provides services all year long and, to date, has served hundreds of area homeowners. The Sacramento chapter is preparing for its signature event, the 2018 Rebuild Day, which actually takes place over two days, Friday and Saturday, April 20 and 21.

This year, 13 homes in the Rancho Cordova community have been identified for Rebuild Day. The organization has received a grant for $150,000 from the city's community enhancement fund to support the event and ongoing services. A typical home fix, says Grip, can range from $5,000 all the way up to $30,000, depending on the condition of the home.

"The money goes fast because the need is so great," said Grip.

Grip said her agency also has received roughly $300,000 from the city's community development block grant program that will be used for other facets of the organization's rehabilitation programs and services, which include the Safe at Home and Energy Conservation programs.

Other community partners include SMUD, the Regional Water Authority, UC Davis, the Sacramento Association of Realtors' Foundation, as well as local service clubs—all of whom have volunteers who, by the way, says Grip, also show up for Rebuild Day.

"This is truly a collaborative effort," said Grip. "Our partners in the community are outstanding supporters and we are fortunate to have those relationships."

Rebuilding together also has an ongoing partnership with the Sacramento Housing and Redevelopment Agency, which allows for continued work across the region. The agency, says Grip, plans to expand its services in 2019 and is currently seeking funding to do so. In addition, a new partnership with AARP is helping to create "Lifelong Home" outcomes through its "Home Fit" classes for seniors.

"The AARP provides a training program for seniors to show them how to make their homes more senior-friendly so they can avoid having to move as their needs change," said Grip. As we all know, allowing seniors to remain in their homes wherever possible, can make a huge difference in their health and wellbeing."

Low-flow and raised toilets, weather stripping for doors and windows and other conservation features, as well as grab bars for showers, hand rails and shower seats and wheel chair ramps are in high demand, and, says Grip, the need is growing, particularly in Rancho Cordova.

"The funding is here for us to do our work, so yes we are focused in Rancho Cordova for now, but it's also an area where we can make a significant impact," said Grip. ★

Riley Reviews

“SPLITTING UP” AND “ROSEANNE”
NEW AND OLD COMEDY ON ABC TV

A TV Review by Tim Riley

“SPLITTING UP TOGETHER” ON ABC

The ABC television network is having a busy mid-season with a slew of new comedies and other series programming. For one new show, ABC has adapted a TV program from Denmark for its comedic inspiration.

Similarly titled as the Danish version, “Splitting Up Together” stars two recognizable television faces as a couple with three kids that decides to call it quits but for financial reasons decides to share, to some extent, the family home.

Jenna Fischer’s Lena and Oliver Hudson’s Martin, married for 12 years, apparently hit a dead-end long ago, and so they just matter-of-factly tell family and friends at a dinner gathering that they are “pulling the plug.”

It would appear that Martin wanted to be the “fun parent” and shirked a lot of his marital responsibilities, from taking out the garbage to other small chores. When it was revealed that he didn’t even dance with his wife at their wedding, you wonder how they even got this far.

Now the divided household requires each parent to live in the main house for a week, taking care of the kids, while the other takes up residence in the converted garage. Since they have an incredible Craftsman house, it’s no wonder that neither party wishes to relocate.

As with most situation comedies, “Splitting Up Together” should rely on its lead characters being more than one-dimensional while uttering the occasional funny circumstantial dialogue.

After all, Jenna Fischer in “The Office” and Oliver Hudson in “Rules of Engagement” had good runs in network comedies which demonstrated their abilities to be a perfectionist and a self-absorbed egotist respectively, traits that work for both in the new series.

The underlying theme of “Splitting Up Together” appears to be whether this former couple, living in such close quarters, might actually reconcile their relationship and become a solid family unit.

If that’s really the case, does this series have the ability to sustain a long run for the “will they or won’t they” dynamic? I have no idea how this question was ever resolved, if at all, with the Danish program.

“ROSEANNE” ON ABC

After its initial TV debut nearly three decades ago, “Roseanne,” a working-class family sitcom that ran for nine successful seasons, has been rebooted with most of the original cast in place on the ABC network.

The original program was innovative for its focus on the family dynamic where both parents were dealing with everyday problems while juggling work and parental duties to make ends meet.

Not much has changed in the Conner household in the intervening years, except that Roseanne Barr’s Roseanne and John Goodman’s Dan have settled into dealing with aging problems, such as taking a lot of medications and handling the usual family rifts.

The new series kickoffs with Roseanne waking up in bed with her husband Dan and saying to him, “I thought you were dead” and he replies, “Why does everyone think I am dead?,” which is apparently the quick and easy way to deal with the fact that he supposedly died in the original ninth season.

In the first episode, “Roseanne” also tackles the fallout of the 2016 election where friction remains between Roseanne and her sister Jackie (Laurie Metcalf), who shows up wearing a “Nasty Woman” T-shirt and the ubiquitous knit cap that was prominent in the Women’s March on Washington.

Looking to tackle social and political issues appears at the initial glance as a way to involve the family in a wide-ranging discussion on issues from healthcare and jobs to oldest daughter Becky’s (Lecy Goranson) desire to become a surrogate mother for a huge payday.

The Conner household has expanded to now include daughter Darlene (Sara Gilbert), now divorced and broke, with two children, the youngest one a precocious grade-schooler whose wardrobe is, well, a bit too unorthodox for his new classmates.

One thing for sure about the revived “Roseanne” is that the one-liners remain sharply funny. When asked about family medical history, Roseanne says, “All of your relatives died of alcoholism. The ones that didn’t drink were killed by the ones who did.”

Without keeping score, it would seem a lot of the good lines naturally go to Roseanne, but others definitely get in their licks. Not thrilled with Becky’s plans for surrogacy, Roseanne retorts, “Don’t have a yard sale in your uterus.” ★

Make It Fun and It Will Get Done!
The Secret to Being Organized

Pam Young’s Corner

Just Look What You’ve Done!

Very frequently I hear from SHEs (Sidetracked Home Executive) lamenting that they wish they’d used the SHE 3x5 get organized system for home and family earlier. My answer is always the same, you weren’t ready and until you’re ready you won’t use it. It’s interesting to find out how much these precious women have achieved in spite of their disorder! It’s testimony to how talented we SHEs really are. Here’s an excerpt from my book, “The Joy of Being Disorganized” that conveys this thought.

Recognizing the Benefits of Being Disorganized

Most disorganized people are easygoing. We can stop what we’re doing and play with the puppy, spend time with friends, play with our children, or just sit and watch the breeze blowing through the trees. We’re never too busy that we miss the changes in seasons and the delights in nature. We’re not workaholics. Novelist George MacDonald, who inspired many of his contemporary writers like Lewis Carol, J.R.R.Tolkien, and C.S. Lewis, said, “Work is not always required . . . there is such a thing as sacred idleness, the cultivation of which is now fearfully neglected.” I love any writer who encourages me to embrace sacred idleness. Not all the time, of course, but enough to enjoy life. Give thanks for the way you are and that you can partake of sacred idleness too. It’s an amazing gift!

By recognizing the gift of sacred idleness, my sister (who was also a SLOB) and I managed to get organized just enough to get by. We were the first SLOBs to tell the world about our escape from chaos in our best-selling book Sidetracked Home Executives: from pigpen to paradise. The book has sold more than a million and a half copies and is still in bookstores after 40 years. (Actually, since most of our readers are disorganized, I’m guessing that most of them purchased it, lost it, and had to go buy it again.) Because of that best-selling book, my sister and I got to crisscross the country, appearing on television and radio. We even had our own television show on Christian Broadcasting called Cleaning Up Your Act. During that time, I was privileged to meet many stars, including Oprah Winfrey and Katie Couric. These two successful women shocked me when they both confessed to me how extremely disorganized they were. Katie pulled me aside before we were going on The Today Show and told me about borrowing a coat from a friend and returning it with a chicken bone in the pocket. Oprah also had slobbish tendencies which shocked me. By looking at these successful women and the empires they built, I never would have guessed they were SLOBs like me.

I received an email today that prompted me to write this article. I’d like to share it with you.

Hi Pam!

Have loved yours and Peggy’s stuff for years!!! I first saw you two on a talk show where you talked about not feeling like making stuffing for Thanksgiving turkey so instead you put a Cornish game hen in cavity! Still chuckle about that and the next thing you said – that yes, it worked very well...the only problem being that it lead to a discussion on child birth...genius!

I am a 63 year-old lawyer who is bombarded with recommendations for getting, and staying, organized. Nothing I have encountered is nearly as ingenious as your programs – and so much fun. You and Peggy first and now you on your own are brilliant and I’m not saying that to stroke your ego but because it is fact. Like so many others, my only regret is that I did not discover your organizational program until now. Why is this not taught in every high school in the nation? Just sayin’.....

Loved your prediction for sales of one of your books that you expected to double your sales because people buying them are so disorganized they would lose them first time around. Am in process of getting myself together and have been getting everything of yours that I can (looked for your 3x5 templates for at least a month). I reached the end of my rope around Christmas when I was overwhelmed and could not find my scissors. I love them and they were nowhere to be found. We have had a snowy winter here in Northern Michigan. It was not until last week when snow started melting that I found them – stuck to the hood of my car!

Thank you for all that you do. You and Peggy are/were wonderful!

Cathy

Cathy went on in another email to say she’d like to hear about other’s “scissors stuck to the car” stories and she wanted to know if I had one. I told her mine was when my first husband drove to work with a king-sized fitted sheet attached to the bumper of the car. When I told my sister about what happened she said, “You oughta write that into Tide and say, ‘My husband dragged a king-sized fitted sheet through morning traffic. I washed it in Tide and it came clean!’”

I’d love to hear your story! Write me and we might just get it into a collection of scissor and sheet stories.

For more from Pam Young go to www.cluborganized.com. You’ll find many musings, videos of Pam in the kitchen preparing delicious meals, videos on how to get organized, lose weight and get your finances in order, all from a reformed SLOB’s point of view. Pam’s books are also available on Amazon. ★

Remembering Martin Luther King, Jr.

Commentary
by Dr. Gary S. Smith

Fifty years ago, on April 4, 1968, Martin Luther King, Jr. was killed when he stepped from his second-floor hotel room at the Lorraine Motel in Memphis, Tennessee, to speak to Southern Christian Leadership Conference (SCLC) colleagues standing in the parking lot below. An assassin's bullet ended the life of the 39-year-old activist who had helped advance the cause of African-American rights more in 14 years than it had progressed in the previous 350 years.

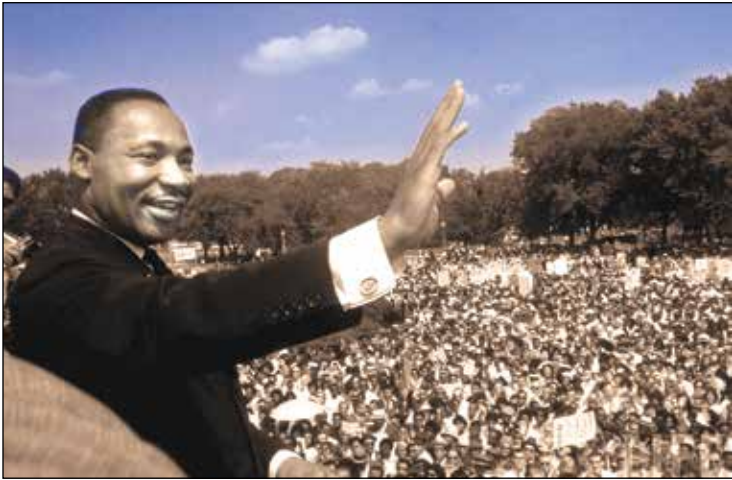

King's life and legacy are remarkable. His shrewd strategy of non-violent protest, charismatic personality, electrifying speaking ability, and soaring words mobilized the black community, challenged centuries of oppression, and changed America. Inspired by his faith, the Baptist minister helped direct the Montgomery Bus boycott initiated by Rosa Parks in 1955, helped found and led the SCLC, organized numerous marches and sit-ins, and penned five books. His 1963 "Letter from the Birmingham Jail" and "I Have a Dream" speech delivered to 250,000 people at the National Mall in Washington, D.C. in August 1963 detailed the plight of America's blacks and helped reduced racial discrimination. His sermon "I've Been to the Mountaintop," preached at the Mason Temple in Memphis, the headquarters of the Church of God in Christ, the night before his death ranks with John Winthrop's "A Model of Christian Charity" and Jonathan Edwards' "Sinners in the Hands of an Angry God" as among America's most famous.

King had initially planned to speak at Williston Senior High School in Wilmington, North Carolina, on April 4 to support Reginald Hawkins, a dentist and civil rights advocate, who was the first African-American gubernatorial candidate in the state's history. King then planned to stump in other North Carolina cities on Hawkins' behalf. Instead King decided to stay in Memphis to support the strike of predominantly black sanitation workers who were protesting their low wages and deplorable working conditions. There he declared in his April 3 sermon, perhaps having a premonition of his death, and paraphrasing Moses, "[God has] allowed me to go up to the mountain. And I've looked over. And I've seen the promised land. I may not get there with you."

On April 5, about 200 black Williston students peacefully marched to the downtown New Hanover County Courthouse to hold a prayer service in memory of King. Another group of students went to nearby New Hanover High School to demand that the white school's American flag be lowered to half-mast.

Enraged by King's murder, blacks throughout the nation rioted. Violence erupted in more than 100 cities, killing 40 people and causing extensive property damage. One hundred thousand soldiers and national guardsmen joined local police to battle arsonists, looters, and snipers; thousands of people were arrested.

President Lyndon Johnson proclaimed a national day of mourning on April 7. In response to King's death, many schools, museums, public libraries, and businesses closed and the Academy Awards ceremony scheduled for April 8 and numerous sporting events were postponed. On April 8, King's widow, Coretta Scott King, her three oldest children, movie stars, religious leaders, and thousands of other Americans marched in Memphis to honor the slain activist and support the sanitation workers.

King's funeral service, held the next day at the Ebenezer Baptist Church in Atlanta where both King and his father served as ministers, was attended by many prominent politicians and civil rights leaders, including Vice President Hubert Humphrey, Robert Kennedy, Richard Nixon, and Ralph Bunche. Benjamin Mays, the president of Morehouse College in Atlanta, from which King had graduated, gave the eulogy, declaring that King "would probably say" that "there was no greater cause to die for than fighting to get a just wage for garbage collectors." After the service, more than 100,000 mourners followed two mules as they pulled King's coffin on an old farm wagon through the streets of Atlanta.

King's accomplishments are well known. King's inspiring books, mesmerizing speeches, creative leadership of the SCLC, and direction of the civil rights movement won him the 1964 Nobel Peace Prize (the youngest recipient to that date). His work also helped pass the landmark Civil Rights Act of 1964 that prohibited racial segregation in employment, schools, and public accommodations and mandated that voter-registration requirements be applied equally to all races.

What is less remembered about King is that his Christian convictions inspired his civil rights activism. The Baptist pastor's faith played the pivotal role in his fervent quest for political and social change. "Before I was a civil rights leader," King declared in a sermon, "I was a preacher of the Gospel. This was my first calling" and it "remains my greatest commitment." Everything "I do in civil rights I do because I consider it a part of my ministry."

King was especially motivated by the example of Jesus' selfless love and his charge to love others as we love ourselves. In accepting the Nobel Peace Prize, King asserted, "I believe that unarmed truth and unconditional love will have the final word." As we remember King's life and contributions and continue to combat racism, poverty, and violence, may we pray that truth and love prevail.

Don't Fall Victim to Financial Distress Caused by Credit Card Debt

Credit counseling is the easiest, most effective way to explore the options for credit card debt and identify the best solution for your needs.

HIGH MONTHLY CREDIT CARD PAYMENTS combined with even higher interest rates can make it almost impossible to maintain control over your credit card debt. Even with your monthly payments you may not see much of a reduction in debt no matter what you do.

What's more, as your credit card balances increase, it can also cause problems for your budget – you end up juggling bills, choosing between expenses, and putting off important purchases. Luckily, there's a way you can find the solution that works for your unique financial situation – and even better, it won't cost a thing to get the information you need.

CREDIT COUNSELING IS THE EASIEST, MOST EFFECTIVE WAY TO EXPLORE THE OPTIONS FOR CREDIT CARD DEBT AND IDENTIFY THE BEST SOLUTION FOR YOUR NEEDS. Speak with a certified credit counselor at no charge to analyze your debt and budget. They will review your options to see what solutions may work best for you. Your credit counselor may be able to lower high interest rates or even eliminate them while consolidating your credit card debts into one easy payment through a debt management program.

Get Out of Debt Faster

As a result of those lower interest rates – more of your monthly payments go toward your debt instead of adding more interest – which means you can get out of debt faster. Every financial situation is different, but most people see their total monthly debt payments reduced by up to 30 to 50 percent as they get out of debt faster. The program is usually completed in around 40-60 payments, so you can be debt-free in just a few years instead of taking decades to eliminate everything you owe.

Build a Positive Credit History

Additionally, consolidating debt through a certified credit counseling service may help save your credit score from additional damage. You stop future penalties and prevent further damage from missed payments and overdrawn credit

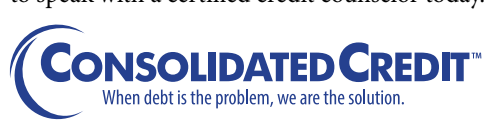

It's the fastest and easiest way to get professional financial advice without adding more debt to do so.

lines. Even better, as you work your way through the program, you're able to build a positive credit history while reducing your overall debt level. As a result, some people see their credit score even increase over the course of their time with a credit counseling service.

FREEDOM FROM DEBT IS POSSIBLE! Don't spend another sleepless night worrying about your debt problems, or another day stressed about your bills instead of focused on your family and life.

Game Plots

A Far Cry from Moral Responsibility

By Noah Howard

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Far Cry 5 promised more than its series’ classic formula of frightening villains and explosive gameplay. By taking a turn inward to the US and by casting its enemies as cult-indoctrinated American citizens, it powerfully hinted at a narrative that would comment on rural disenfranchisement, race, the role of religion in American culture, and the role of rhetoric in political polarization.

And at the end of the day, Far Cry 5 addresses none of those. It deftly steps around anything that could be considered social commentary (the cult is shockingly diverse for a rural Montana county, avoiding any ties to white supremacists, and the cult’s reliance on bizarre mind-control means any commentary on religion becomes impossible). The facts that the “bad guys” are the friends and family of the “good guys,” that neither side are some foreign dictatorship or terrorist group, and that all combatants are American civilians, are glossed over without the moral weight and consideration that they deserve.

This is a disappointing turn from the overall progress that Far Cry 5’s developer Ubisoft has been making in recent years in its boldness to use big-budget games to touch on real-world issues. Assassin’s Creed IV: Black Flag touched on corporate corruption with a fictionalized version of Ubisoft itself, Watch Dogs 2 embraced the diversity of San Francisco youth culture while still criticizing Silicon Valley’s exclusion of minorities, and despite continuing tensions in the Middle East and rising discrimination against those of Middle Eastern descent, Ubisoft allowed its major 2017 blockbuster, Assassin’s Creed Origins, to star an Egyptian man.

However, in a time when the country is more divided than ever, Far Cry 5 takes an almost cowardly approach to the issues it hints at, trying its best never to take a stance or stir the pot. In its attempts at blandness, however, it only exacerbates our divisions, showing us that our fellow Americans cannot be reasoned with or convinced to moderate, and that the only real solution might be for us to start shooting each other.

This implication is obviously unacceptable, not in the least because America already has a painful history of civil war and violent internal conflict. It shows that Ubisoft is backing off from its ability to use its art as a tool for commentary, empathy, and contribution to social discourse. It need not lean to the left or the right to do so; there are plenty of issues (including and especially our level of ideological fracturing) that Americans across the political spectrum are concerned about; one could argue it’s already been successfully walking that apolitical line with the criticisms of corporate culture in Black Flag and Watch Dogs 2. As the review scores and commentary corroborate, Far Cry 5 isn’t only being viewed as a failure as a story, but as a painfully mediocre game because of this massive oversight. Through its gameplay mechanics, the Far Cry series has always encouraged exploration, creativity, and boldness. Let’s just hope that, in the future, its creators can continue to exhibit those same qualities.

Sacramento County DA Reports

Defendants Convicted of Shooting, Robbery in Marijuana Deal

DATE: March 14, 2018
CASE: Gerald Fernandez & Allen Chao
 (Case #15F06554)
PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Sam
 Alexander, Felony Prosecution Unit Gerald Fernandez and Allen Chao were convicted by a jury of attempted murder and robbery. The jury also found true the allegation that the defendants personally used a firearm causing great bodily injury on both counts.
 On February 12, 2015, Fernandez arranged a marijuana deal with the victim. When Fernandez and Chao met with the victim, Fernandez produced a .40 caliber firearm. Chao was also armed with a .25 caliber firearm. Fernandez and Chao shot the victim multiple times in the chest and stomach before fleeing the scene. The critically wounded victim was able to dial 911 and was transported to a hospital. After multiple surgeries, he remained at the hospital and a physical rehabilitation facility for months.
 Detectives from the Sacramento Police Department worked through phone records and interviews to identify Fernandez and Chao as the shooters. In addition, the District Attorney's Crime Lab linked Chao to the crime through DNA and ballistics testing on the .25 caliber gun recovered during a separate Elk Grove Police Department investigation.
 Both defendants face a maximum sentence of 34 years to life in prison. Sentencing is set for May 4, 2018, at 9:30 a.m. in Department 25 before the Honorable Robert Twiss.

Defendant Convicted for Felony Real Estate Fraud

DATE: March 29, 2018
CASE: Alaric Donya Scott, Jr. (Case #16FE018514)
PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney
 Ruth Young, Real Estate Fraud Unit
 Alaric Donya Scott, Jr. was convicted by a jury of 13 felony counts of offering to file or filing false documents, two felony counts of perjury and two misdemeanor counts of failure to maintain notary books. The jury also found true a white collar crime enhancement for taking more than $100,000.
 Between July 2013 and May 2015, Alaric Scott filed fraudulent documents, including Mechanics Liens and UCC-1 Financing Statements, against multiple properties in Sacramento County. The fraudulent documents clouded the property titles, and Scott used the liens as leverage to try and obtain money from property owners to clear the titles. In one of the properties, the bank seller paid Scott to remove his fraudulent lien so they could complete the sale of the property.

 Scott faces a maximum sentence of 16 years and 8 months in state prison. Sentencing is set for April 26, 2018, at 9:00 a.m. in Department 38 before the Honorable Sharon Lueras.
 This case was investigated and prosecuted by the Sacramento County District Attorney's Real Estate Fraud Unit.

Defendants Convicted of Robbery, Kidnapping Charges

DATE: March 29, 2018
CASE: Crystal Graham & Joe Navarro
 (Case #16FE017331)
PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Sydne
 Christensen, Career Criminal Prosecution Unit Crystal Graham and Joe Navarro were convicted by two separate juries of robbery and multiple kidnapping related charges. The court also found that Navarro had seven prior prison commitments.
 On August 28, 2016, Graham took the victim back to her motel room. Navarro was waiting in the room, assaulted the victim and stole his wallet and keys. He also forced the victim to give him his ATM pin number. Navarro bound the victim's hands and covered his face.
 Navarro and Graham then kidnapped the victim and drove him to multiple locations. During the course of the kidnapping the victim was able to loosen his hands, which caused Graham to panic and pull over on the shoulder of the highway. The victim was able to open the door and run towards oncoming traffic for help. Navarro was later found in Salinas and was returned to Sacramento. Graham was extradited to Sacramento from Nebraska.
 Navarro's criminal history includes convictions for assault with a deadly weapon, vehicle theft, unlawful sexual intercourse with a child, sexual battery, failure to register as a sex offender, drug sales and possession of ammunition by a prohibited person.
 Graham faces a maximum sentence of 12 years to life in prison and will be sentenced on April 20, 2018, at 11:00 a.m. Navarro faces a maximum sentence of 19 years to life in prison and will be sentenced on May 11, 2018, at 9:00 a.m. Both sentencings will be in Department 40 before the Honorable Raoul Thorbourne. ★

Dave Says

union and borrow the remaining $3,000.

I really hate debt, but being $3,000 in the hole is a lot better than being $15,000 in the hole. Then, you could turn around and quickly pay back the $3,000 you borrowed.

You’d give the total amount owed to the bank, they would give you the title, and you would sign it over to the new owner. Hope this helps!

—Dave

Stop spending completely?

Dear Dave,

My mom and dad are following your advice, and they are working hard to get out of debt. I was wondering, is it okay to buy things while you’re paying off the debt you already have?

—Leslie

Dear Leslie,

I’m glad you’re paying attention to the finances around your house. Of course, there are some things you must have. We call these “necessities.” Most things are not necessities, though. If your air conditioning breaks down, or you have car repairs, those are things you must spend money on to fix. Things like new furniture, vacations, and eating at restaurants are not necessities. They’re things you might want, but they’re not necessary — especially when you’re trying to pay off debt.

I always recommend people take a hard look at their priorities, and remember there’s a difference between wanting something and needing something to survive. It can be hard, and it may mean everyone has to go without a few things they want for a while. But if your parents are serious about getting out of debt, they’ll do it. And it really won’t take all that long.

Great question, Leslie!

“O SON OF SPIRIT!

The best beloved of all things in My sight is Justice; turn not away there from if thou desirest Me, and neglect it not that I may confide in thee. By its aid thou shalt see with thine own eyes and not through the eyes of others, and shalt know of thine own knowledge and not through the knowledge of thy neighbor. Ponder this in thy heart; how it behooveth thee to be. Verily justice is My gift to thee and the sign of My loving-kindness. Set it then before thine eyes.”

Cordova Lancers Top Union Mine 7-4

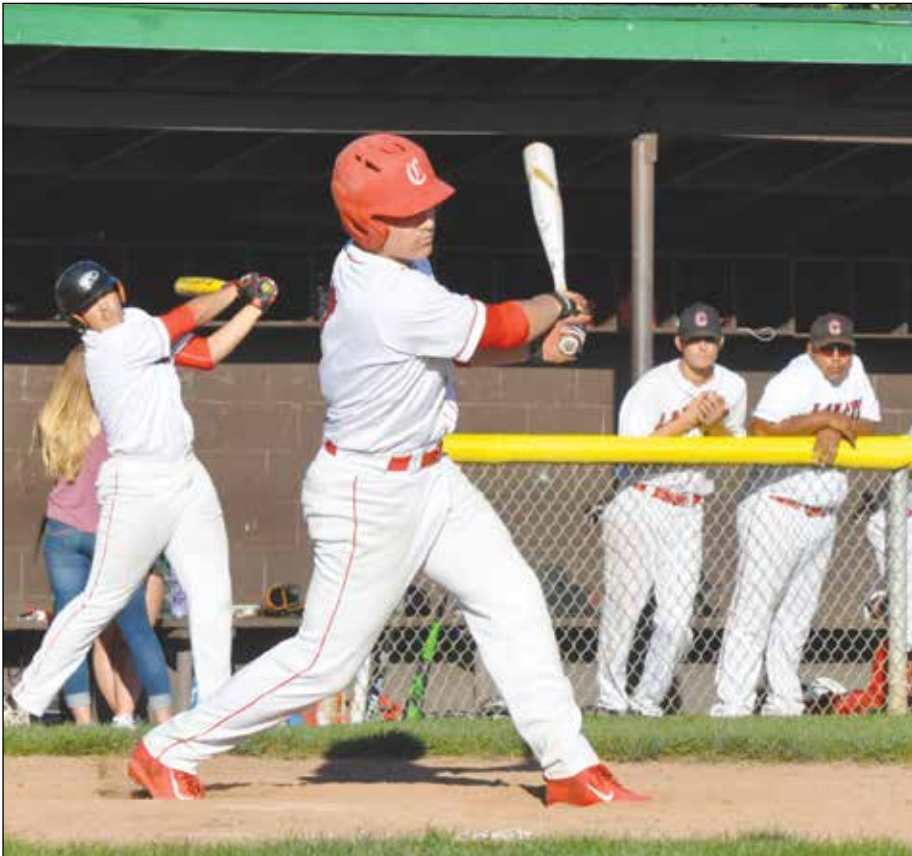

By Rich Peters, MPG Editor

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The Cordova Lancers got their offense rolling late, scoring three runs in the fifth and three more in the sixth to knock off the Union Mine Diamondbacks 7-4.

Cordova senior Trevor Ready was 2-4 on the day, driving in three RBIs along the way. Leadoff man Manix Benjamin scored three runs, while Jeremy Buck scored twice and knocked in the go ahead run.

Ryan Tipton had a pair of hits and scored one run, but it was his pitching that stood out for the Lancers. The junior went all seven innings, allowing seven hits and just two earned runs while striking out seven. It was another big win for the ballclub who has now won five of their last six.

Falcons Baseball Gets 20th Victory of Season

Ron Richardson,
Folsom Lake College
Athletic Coordinator

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The Falcons made a quick road trip to Oroville/Chico for a non-conference game at Butte College on Monday afternoon and came home with a 12-7 victory, their third straight and sixth in their last seven games. The trio of outfielders, Mitchell Hebner, third baseman Anthony Mislinski, and designated hitter Andrew Williams all collected three hits apiece – each with a single, a double, and a homer – to pace the Falcon offense. With four home runs – Jack Rotteveel also had a two-run homer in the first - the Falcons take over as the top home run hitting team in the state with 32, one ahead of yesterday’s opponent Butte. Relief pitcher Myles Corrigan earned his first collegiate win with five innings of two-run relief, spanning the third through seventh innings. The win was the Falcons’ 20th of the season as they improved to 20-8 overall. They return to Big 8 scheduled play at last-place Modesto (3-12, 13-16 overall) on Tuesday afternoon. ★
