African-American Military Service Made Known

By Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - When she was in college, Lisa Daniels received an assignment that changed her life: write a biography of someone she knew well and include something that she had not known about them. She called her grandmother, Rita Hernandez, and was surprised to hear her say immediately, “Did I ever tell you of the time I was a tack welder on the Franklin Roosevelt?” She learned a lot about her grandmother and more than that, launched what has become a lifetime passion for discovering more about the African-American military experience, whether as a civilian or in the service.

Daniels will be at the Rancho Cordova Library at 9845 Folsom Blvd. 11 a.m. to 1 p.m., Saturday, February 24, with her program, We Also Served, that includes photos, oral histories, videos and physical artifacts.

After her college beginning, Daniels started the Unsung Heroes Living History Project. “We have a very rich history because African Americans have participated in every conflict on American soil,” Daniels said. The project incorporates elementary, junior high and high school students and teaches interviewing skills, storyboard development and how to use computerized editing software to produce a mini documentary.

“The project helps bring awareness of the role African Americans played in the military as well as gives a platform for veterans to share their

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - A duo dedicated to feeding the hungry, a change agent philanthropist and a youth sports advocate who is voluntarily running three Rancho Cordova youth sports leagues, are among the outstanding volunteers to be honored during the 19th Annual Community Volunteer Awards hosted by the Cordova Community Council on March 9.

Wayne Harmer, a longtime Rancho Cordova volunteer who can boast an unparalleled range of activities ranging from Kids Day volunteer to the California Capital Airshow to regular gigs as the community Santa Claus, will be honored as the “Rancho Cordovan of the Year” – an award reserved for those whose lives have revolve around volunteering.

Harmer’s non-stop volunteer schedule also includes iFest International Festival, Rancho Cordova Fourth of July Celebration, St. Baldrick’s Day Head Shaving and more. He prides himself of the building of elaborate Fourth of July Parade floats, this year expanding to the inaugural light-studded Holiday Parade.

Cordova Recreation and Park District Celebrates 60 Years

By Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - A little over a year ago Patrick Larkin became District Administrator of the Cordova Recreation and Park District. On Thursday, February 16, at the Rancho Cordova Luncheon, Larkin gave an overview of CRPD, which is now in the year of its 60th anniversary.

The District operates on around 10-12 million dollars, Larkin said. Around 250 employees maintain the 40 parks and seven facilities and the activities that the District offers.

The day before Larkin’s presentation, on Wednesday, the new Heron Landing Park in the Anatolia neighborhood of Rancho Cordova received an award from the California Parks and Recreation Society. “We won the Facility Design and Park Planning award for District 2, which is the largest district in the State of California,” Larkin said. That evening, the District had a community outreach meeting to obtain feedback concerning the Hagan Park pool. The meeting was both formal and informal according to Rick Sloan, member of the CRPD Board. “It was a presentation and it was also a vehicle for people to stand up and express their thoughts,” Sloan said.

At the Rancho Cordova Luncheon, Larkin said

California Needs Greater, More Targeted Financial Aid Investments

Most experts identified community college students as a population particularly impacted by unaffordable college costs.

By The Institute for College Access & Success

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - A new report released today by The Institute for College Access & Success (TICAS) documents clear agreement among higher education experts that college affordability challenges have a wide range of negative implications for California students, and low-income and underrepresented students in particular. Unpacking California College Affordability: Experts Weigh in on Strengths, Challenges, and Implications summarizes interviews with 22 experts representing a broad array of experiences and perspectives.

“There is resounding consensus that unaffordable college costs are holding students back,” said Debbie Cochrane, vice president at TICAS. “Experts agree that greater and more targeted investments in financial aid are needed to close inequities in our system and help students from all backgrounds graduate from college.”

The 22 individuals interviewed include experts throughout the state of California, including student and institutional representatives from public and nonprofit colleges, independent research and policy organizations, and the state legislature and administration. They all agreed that affordability challenges contribute to inequities in college enrollment, completion, and student debt burdens. Data show that low-income students and students of color, in California and nationally, are less likely to enroll in or complete college and more likely to have borrowed for college.

All 22 experts recognized that existing state financial aid programs do a much better job supporting students’ ability to pay for tuition than other college costs, and agreed that improving college affordability in California requires better supporting lower income students’ ability to pay for non-tuition costs such as housing, food, transportation, and textbooks. According to the California Student Aid Commission, students’ non-tuition costs of college often exceed $19,000 a year.

Most experts identified community college students as a population particularly impacted by unaffordable college costs. Many specifically highlighted how critical it is for the state to better support college affordability for nontraditional and underserved students, including older and returning students, former foster youth, and first-generation students.

The expert voices chronicled throughout the report corroborate other forms of evidence about the locus and scope of college affordability challenges. As TICAS has previously documented, low-income students face particularly high college cost burdens, including at community colleges despite low tuition charges, and are most likely to graduate from college with debt.

“While important incremental improvements to California’s state financial aid have been made in recent years, much work remains to ensure that state financial aid policy supports equitable student attainment,” said Cochrane.

In addition to the need for better targeted financial aid investments, many experts underscored the need to reduce the complexity of the financial aid system and address other barriers to timely college completion, such as lengthy developmental education requirements or the lack of availability of needed coursework. While the report is geared to California policymakers, experts also emphasized the need for improved federal policy and greater investments in targeted need-based scholarships and public higher education. ★

USC Rossier/Pace Poll: California Voters Support New Public School Accountability Efforts

By Emily Gersema and Ross Brenneman, USC Media

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Launched in March 2017, the California School Dashboard is an online tool that shows how schools are performing according to the various indicators that comprise the state’s education accountability system.

State education leaders hoped the dashboard would better inform parents as well as improve equity in schools. Some organizations panned the system when it debuted, with one calling it “more confusing than practical.”

Yet a new USC Rossier/PACE poll finds that a majority of voters who have heard of the system had a positive impression, and among parent voters, 72 percent said they had a positive impression of the dashboard. Majorities of all respondents also said they thought the dashboard captured the most important measures of school quality, that it was easy to understand and that it was an effective means to communicate outcomes.

“Innovation takes time, but our schools will keep facing the same inequities unless we’re willing to take some risks, and California is taking some risks,” said Karen Symms Gallagher, dean of the USC Rossier School of Education. “It’s clear that parents are willing to give their support to a system designed to make school quality transparent and accessible, and it’s important for state leaders to keep refining the dashboard if they want to build on that support.”

The results come from the sixth annual edition of the USC Rossier/PACE poll, a partnership of the USC Rossier School of Education and Policy Analysis for California Education (PACE), a university-affiliated, non-partisan research center.

Polling firms Tulchin Research and Moore Information conducted the survey of 2,500 registered California voters online from January 21-28. USC Rossier professors Julie Marsh and Morgan Polikoff, as well as Associate Professor David Quinn designed the questions with PACE executive director David N. Plank and the polling firms.

School accountability measures

Respondents were somewhat split on how they felt toward using multiple measures in school accountability. While most states under the federal Every Student Succeeds Act now give single overall performance ratings to schools, California opted to offer several ratings, for things like absenteeism, suspension rates and graduation rates. Overall respondents were, by a slim majority, more supportive of using multiple measures than parents, a majority of whom preferred a simple overall grade.

“It may be that parents feel more pressure to actually make decisions about schools for their children, and that’s why they’d like to have a simple overall grade of some kind,” Polikoff said.

School quality

Views toward public schools are trending negative. Forty-three percent of respondents said that California’s public schools have gotten worse over the past few years, up from 39 percent in August 2016; a plurality of voters (44 percent) would give California’s public schools an overall grade of ‘C.’

When schools perform well, 68 percent of voters said that teachers deserved the most credit-the only group to get a majority of support; fewer voters (30 percent) would blame teachers if schools were failing.

More good news for teachers: 91 percent of parents gave their local public school teachers a passing grade.

State funding

Asked a variety of ways-and given information on what percentage of the state budget is spent on education, and spending amounts per pupil-a majority of voters also said that the state should spend more on its public schools.

“Public opinion appears to align with broader calls from district leaders throughout the state who report struggling with rising costs related to pensions and special education and deep concerns about adequacy of funding,” Marsh said.

Charter schools

While voters wavered on whether California should have more or fewer charter schools based on perceived political support for them by President Donald Trump or former President Barack Obama, a quarter of respondents said that the state has “about the right amount of charter schools.” ★ that the number of pools at Hagan Park and the actual program that it will serve is being discussed. “We’re excited to bring that pool project back to the community, and our goal is to have people swimming in the pool, cannonballing off the diving board, in 2020,” Larkin said. As far as a full aquatic complex with multiple pools, recreation features, slides and so forth, Larkin is looking toward the Rio del Oro development, which could be 10 to 30 years ahead.

Rancho Cordova resident Mary Nesel has taken an active interest in the Hagan Park pool. “I’m not happy with their vision of the proposed pool,” Nesel said at the luncheon. “I think that the project is too small. They’re definitely still working on it, so we’re trying to get them to up the budget and work with the community to find additional funds. . . so we can go back to a larger scale project.”

The ever present problem of the homeless is not just a Rancho Cordova problem, but a United States problem, Larkin said. CRPD has increased the security presence in their parks, but it is also offering resources for people in this situation in the parks. “We take the approach of not punitive, but helpful,” Larkin said. “It’s tragic, really, there are so many that are in our parks at this point.”

CRPD staff joined last year with Folsom Cordova Unified School District to help collect items for homeless students of the school district. The CRPD staff was moved by the heartfelt project. “We’ll be working with that group to collect donations at all of our facilities,” Larkin said. “They are mostly in need of backpacks and underwear, but we will be doing it year around, instead of just at the holidays.”

Cordova Recreation and Park District Administrator Patrick Larkin gave an overview of CRPD’s past, present, and plans for the future at the Rancho Cordova Luncheon on February 16. Headshot courtesy of Cordova Recreation and Park District

The District’s 60th anniversary will be celebrated in a number of ways. One is a Day of Service on May 5 from 9-11 a.m. at both Hagan Park and Rosemont Park. “That’s an opportunity for folks to come out and volunteer their time to support some projects that we need done in our parks,” Larkin said.

The big 60th anniversary celebration will be on July 20, a party in the park at Lincoln Village Park and Pool. There will be a reception in the Neil Orchard Senior Activities Center with wine, beer, hors d’oeuvres and a little history.

stories with our youth,” explained Daniels.

Ron Vance, a veteran of both Vietnam and Iraq, is one of those who participated. “I was working at the Boys and Girls Club, cleaning out the garden one day, you know, and I have my Vietnam veteran hat on,” Daniels said. A friend asked if Daniels could interview him. Though he thought that he had nothing to say, 20 minutes later he was still talking. “Here it is four years later; she’s got me doing programs in Fresno. I was never a person to stand up in front of an audience and talk; it’s just so easy now.”

Daniels asked Vance what it was like to be like to be an African American in the military. “It was like it’s a black and white world. With this color skin you belong over here, and you’re in this color skin you belong over there,” Vance said. “But there was a job to be done, and everybody worked together and got it done.”

Daniels felt an immense sense of pride when she learned her grandmother’s story. “She always was my role model, and with her story I can share with my students to give them a sense

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG)
- I met Mr. David Stockwell, Director of the VA Northern California Health Care System, at the VA Hospital at Mather today, and the work on the expansion at the Mather Hospital and Clinic is going well. He hopes they will be able to complete the work by this coming May 2018. They have had a few delays with the work, like I mentioned in the past with the work on our Mather Veterans Village, because of the statewide construction with the fires, floods and the Oroville Dam construction. The possibilities of what we can do in our city are looking better as time goes by. The staff that is working for you in your city has made it possible for us to move forward, and I am looking forward to even more great ideas to be accomplished this year and not much further down the road.

The Sacramento-Yolo Mosquito & Vector Control District is very skilled in all aspects of controlling mosquitoes and many other vectors (carriers) of disease throughout this district. They have been recognized in the state and with the federal government as leaders because of their staff, which not only uses the most modern equipment and knowledge but is also a model that other such districts are following. I am glad that we are protected by our district against mosquitoes.

This column will be one of my shorter columns because of time. For example, I have been at four meetings today covering quite a broad area of what I try to cover. From the VA Hospital at Mather, to Mather Veterans Village, to a Fisher House, to items on our City Council Meeting, and many others still to cover. So I apologize for not providing everything I wanted to put into my column, but I will provide more next week.

From Vice Mayor Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time.

about you (i.e. something is different about you and are you okay)?

3) YOU RELY ON SUBSTANCES TO COPE. You need a drink to relax or go to sleep more often than not.

4) YOU START THINKING ABOUT DEATH OR HURTING YOURSELF. This is a very severe path to be on. Seek help immediately and if the pressure seems too great to resist, call 911 right then.

5) YOU ALWAYS ASSUME THE WORST. Worrying and stressing about what might happen tends to overwhelm people and they tend to get nothing done. 99% of what might happen never does.

6) YOU SEE YOURSELF TAKING RESPONSIBILITY FOR OTHER PEOPLE'S PROBLEMS. You are always overwhelmed trying to help other people cope with their problems. Like when a family member is always calling to talk about what is bothering them and how you need to help them with their depression or relationship.

7) YOU FEEL HELPLESS WHEN STRESS HITS YOU. Many individuals have a problem with an "external locus of control". This is the belief they are not able to exercise any change in their environment. The perception is that it doesn't matter what they do, they cannot change the problem or their situation.

8) YOU FIND YOURSELF TRYING TO MEET EVERYONE ELSE'S IDEA OF WHAT YOU SHOULD BE. When you live your life for the praise of others, you might find yourself making compromises that aren't true to yourself. Mentally healthy people make decisions from the inside out. They don't put their beliefs and goals up for a vote.

9) NOTICE YOU ARE FEELING JUST "NOT YOURSELF." You may usually love being with your friends, but suddenly find yourself wanting to be alone most of the time. Maybe you find yourself getting angry often, when you never used to feel angry. It can be healthy to want alone time, but becoming isolated is not.

Need more info? Check out www.mainstreammentalhealth.org for some great things to think about from

Dr. John Huber and stay healthy in every way! Get ready! Get set! And live your life to the fullest! You deserve the BEST! ★

Need Help?

Do you ever think...maybe I should see a therapist? But you weren't sure if you needed one or not? What if I told you there are some signs...like nine of them...that it's time to make that appointment? They come from Clinical Forensic Psychologist Dr. John Huber who is Chairman of Mainstream Mental Health. He's been a mental health professional for over twenty years. So, let's get to the signs in your life.

1) WHEN THINGS ARE GOING WELL. This may sound silly, but people with good teeth go and see their dentist every six months. It's a checkup. Mental health checkups help you maintain and/or build a relationship with your therapist so when the world crashes in on you, you already have a trusted therapist that knows you.

2) WHEN SOMEONE THAT KNOWS YOU AND CARES ASKS IF YOU'RE ALRIGHT. They may even tell you they are concerned

Rejecting the Cloudy Logic of EPA Ozone Rules

Commentary
by Merrill Matthews

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Environmental Protection Agency just missed a court-ordered deadline to announce which regions of the country are complying with an Obama-era ozone rule. The agency says it needs more time to make that determination.

Green activists are livid. The Environmental Defense Fund accused the agency of “allowing vulnerable communities to suffer the consequences of polluted air while Administrator Pruitt stalls.”

Ozone is the main ingredient in smog. So one might assume that the nation’s city dwellers are struggling to breathe. Only the activists’ rhetoric is breathless, though. Ozone levels have dropped by a third since 1980.

This precipitous drop didn’t stop the Obama administration from issuing a strict new ozone rule in 2015. The regulation requires states to limit ground-level ozone concentrations to 70 parts per billion. Previous standards issued in 2008 had set acceptable ozone levels at 75 ppb. States are poised to waste billions adhering to these new rules -- all to address a problem that has been getting better for a decades

Regulators are working with states to ease the compliance burden as much as possible. But the EPA can’t nix the regulation on its own. Only Congress can do so.

The new regulations aren’t needed. The United States has already slashed air pollution dramatically. Since 1970, levels of six common air pollutants have dropped by an average of 70 percent across the nation, even as economic output jumped over 240 percent. Levels of carbon monoxide alone have fallen by 84 percent since 1990, while lead concentrations have dropped by 85 percent.

The 2015 regulation, known as the National Ambient Air Quality Standards for Ozone, would create an immense compliance burden on many regions of the country. In roughly 180 counties, ozone levels still exceed the 2008 requirement of 75 ppb. The new 2015 standard would move the goalposts. More than 958 counties -- roughly one-third of all counties -- could be classified as “nonattainment” areas if the standard is changed to 70 ppb.

They’ll face severe penalties for failing to meet the new standards. The federal government can freeze funding for transportation projects. And it can force factories and other buildings in nonattainment areas to install expensive emission reduction technologies.

As a result, local economies would pay a significant price. In 2015, the EPA claimed that compliance would cost states, excluding California, $1.4 billion by 2025.

The actual costs will likely be far higher. As recently as 2011, the agency calculated the annual cost of meeting the 70 ppb standard at between $19 and 25 billion. An analysis from the economic consulting firm NERA estimates that new ozone standards could cost the economy $270 billion annually between now and 2040.

Why would federal regulators choose to ignore the crippling costs associated with their rules? Because they’re required to. The Clean Air Act prohibits the EPA from considering costs when determining air-quality standards.

Congress knows the updated ozone rules will devastate the economy. This summer, the House passed the Ozone Standards Implementation Act of 2017 to delay the 2015 standards. It’s now up to the Senate to do the same.

Over the last few decades, America has made extraordinary progress in ridding the air of harmful pollutants -- including ozone. Imposing draconian ozone standards -- at immense economic cost -- is irrational and irresponsible.

Another Budget Deal Bites the Dust

Commentary
by Dr. Mark Hendrickson

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Back in September I wrote about our “ethically challenged” democratic system. I said, “We are caught in a downward, self-destructive [debt] spiral.”

If you doubted me then, those doubts should have been exploded last week. Congressional leaders agreed to increase federal spending by nearly $300 billion above the already-rising limits stipulated by the Budget Control Act of 2011, and President Donald Trump signed the deal into law last Friday morning.

We’ve seen this picture before: Congress and the White House feel a twinge of conscience, enact a law to end deficit spending, and struggle to adhere to it for a few years. Inevitably, though, political pressures to spend more become too great, the floodgates of federal spending are opened wider, and the anti-deficit law is swept away.

Following are several earlier versions of this process:

- 1) Congress passed Public Law #95-435, The Bretton Woods Agreement Act, on October 10, 1978. Intended originally to amend the U.S. Treasury’s collaborations with the International Monetary Fund, Congress added Section 7. It explicitly states, “Beginning with fiscal year 1981, the total budget outlays of the Federal Government shall not exceed its receipts.” Voilà! End of deficits, right? Alas, if only... The actual federal government deficit for FY 1981 was nearly $79 billion. That was the last year until 1997 that the federal deficit was less than $100 billion.
- 2) Congress tried to legislate itself into fiscal responsibility again in the mid-1980s. It passed the verbosely named “Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Balance Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985,” followed by the “Balance Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Reaffirmation Act of 1987.” As already noted, those long-abandoned laws never succeeded in getting annual federal deficits below $100 billion.

- 3) The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1993 (alternatively known as the “Deficit Reduction Act of 1993”) is sometimes given credit for the four-year interlude from red ink in FYs 1998-2001. (Actually, there were only two small on-budget surpluses in those years. In the other two years, the “surplus” appeared only by adding the Social Security surplus to the regular federal budget.) However, it wasn’t the 1993 act that achieved a short-lived reprieve from massive deficits. Instead, it was a one-time, never-to-be-repeated “perfect storm” of confluent events that I have explained elsewhere.
- 4) Another anti-deficit law was the plainly labeled Deficit Reduction Act of 2005. Although the federal deficit did decrease for three years after the passage of this law, bottoming out at $160 billion in FY 2007, the financial crisis that started that year blew that law to smithereens as federal spending and deficits skyrocketed to as high as $1.4 trillion in FY 2009 (the year of the Obama “stimulus” plan).
- 5) The 2011 law that last week’s law supersedes did not even pretend to be working toward a balanced budget. It had the more modest goal of reducing annual deficits. Yes, the growth of federal spending slowed for a few years after FY 2011, and with the slow but steady economic recovery, federal revenues increased enough to reduce deficits. The deficit bottomed out at $438 billion in FY 2015. Now, with last week’s law, both parties have consented to burgeoning deficits that could soon approach $1 trillion again.

The lessons are clear:

First, no law, or even constitution, has the power to thwart the will of a people who don’t want to abide by that law.

Second, the political reality is that deficits are here to stay—at least, unless the financial system (and possibly the political system) blow up from the accumulating financial stress, although as hyper-indebted Japan has shown, such an absurd situation can persist for a surprisingly long time.

Third, neither of the two major parties can be counted on for fiscal responsibility. Democrats believe that the government should oversee economic activity, and so there is no limit to what they want to spend. Some Republicans understand there are economic and ethical reasons for limiting government spending, but ever since the Nixon presidency over 40 years ago, they’ve learned that the American electorate has no stomach for “austerity” or “belt-tightening.” Thus, when push comes to shove, their political survival instinct kicks in and enough Republicans will cave to public pressure and give the voters what they want—more spending and the large deficits that go with it.

Given those partisan dynamics, red ink is here to stay and the mountain of national debt will continue to grow.

Lessons Learned from Oroville Disaster

Commentary by Senator Jim Nielsen (R-Tehama)

Sunday, February 12, 2017 was a day many of us will forever remember.

I was working on our property when an aide called to inform me that the integrity of the Oroville Dam Spillway was compromised that an estimated 30-foot wall of water was about to uncontrollably rush out of the spillway, and that Butte County Sheriff Kory Honea had called for a mandatory evacuation.

Knowing Sheriff Honea to be a measured person, I knew he would not call for such an order without strong evidence. He must have weighed all the factors in his thoughts and deliberation.

Immediately, I contacted him to offer my full support.

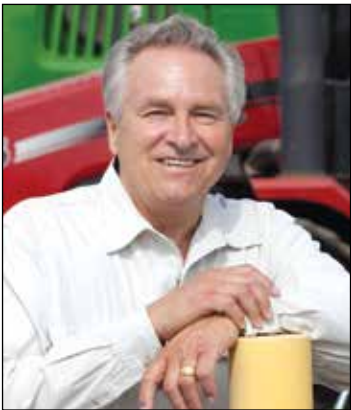

Soon thereafter, nearly 200,000 people of the North State, from Plumas Lake to Oroville, quickly loaded their treasured possessions and pets and evacuated via congested highways.

Despite heavy traffic, residents – no doubt fearing the unknown and dealing with anxiety – evacuated without chaos.

Law enforcement officials and volunteers directed citizens to where they needed to go. Hundreds of first responders assisted and transported those who were most vulnerable. Residents of neighboring regions opened their homes to displaced families.

In this time of high stress and unease, the citizens of our region held their heads high and acted admirably.

Over the next few days, Assemblyman James Gallagher (R-Yuba City) and I visited residents at the evacuation centers. We talked and shared cookies and donuts with our friends and neighbors.

Between the visits, I called the Governor's Office and the director of the Department of Water Resources (DWR) for status updates.

After this alarming incident, thousands of workers from Kiewit Corporation and its subsidiaries descended onto Oroville to make the necessary repairs to the spillway. Their hard work is greatly appreciated.

But there's more to be done.

A year later, sediment and debris from the spillway disaster still clog the channels of the Feather River and are strewn along the riverbanks. This disregard for the environment forced Butte County, the City of Oroville and local jurisdictions to file lawsuits against the state. Penalties can be as high as $51 billion.

At the state level, I have held many meetings in my office to discuss repair and communication efforts with state officials and community members. My staff and I continue to work with Sutter Butte Flood Control Agency to get funding to shore up the levees.

Along with Congressman Doug LaMalfa (R-Richvale), the Oroville Strong Coalition, Assemblyman Gallagher and I travelled to Washington, DC to lobby federal officials. Our request to have the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC) delay the license renewal is pending.

This disaster has united our community. We are now stronger than ever.

On the one-year anniversary of the evacuation, community members and leaders, businesses, and public officials affected by the order gathered on the steps of the Capitol to commemorate the event and call for efforts to prevent any similar disaster in the future.

In the coming year, we will continue to encourage the Governor to sign Assembly Bill 1270 (Gallagher), a measure to require more thorough dam inspections which I shepherded in the Senate.

I will continue my efforts to push for $100 million in state funding for flood control efforts and to clean up the Feather River system.

It is also my goal to have DWR include our community in their decision making process. We want a seat at the table when DWR decides to either send more water to Los Angeles or hold back water, among the other decisions they make.

That's why I authored Senate Bill 955. This measure would create a citizens advisory commission for Oroville Dam and the Feather River system. This commission would allow for participation by the residents who are directly affected by the dam's operations and strategic plans.

With the strength and support of the community, I am optimistic that we will achieve these goals for the safety of our people and the prosperity of our local economy. ★

Sacramento County DA Reports

Defendant Sentenced for Attempted Murder in Drug Deal

DATE: February 8, 2018

CASE: Damien Tardy (Case #16FE015244)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney James Wax, Career Criminal Prosecution Unit

The Honorable Timothy Frawley sentenced Damien Tardy to 32 years to life in prison. On July 26, 2017, a jury convicted Tardy of attempted murder. The jury also found true the allegations that Tardy intentionally discharged a firearm causing great bodily injury, and that the offense was committed willfully, deliberately and with premeditation.

Shortly after midnight on August 2, 2016, the victim met Tardy at a South Sacramento motel to purchase heroin. When the victim determined the heroin was poor quality, he went back to the motel to get his money back. The men then drove to the north area of Sacramento and purchased better quality heroin. After they sat in the car for a few minutes, Tardy said he had to get something out of the trunk and exited the car. When the victim exited the car, Tardy drew a gun and fired two shots, striking the victim in his head and neck. The victim fell to the ground and tried to crawl away from Tardy, who then fired several additional shots. The victim was struck twice in his torso and leg. Police were called to the scene and the victim was transported to a hospital where, after undergoing several surgeries, he survived.

Defendant Sentenced for Felony Auto Insurance Fraud

DATE: February 9, 2018

CASE: Sarkis Varpetyan (Case #16FE001622)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Richard Ilharreguy, Insurance Fraud Unit

Sarkis Varpetyan pled no contest to felony insurance fraud. The Honorable Geoffrey Goodman sentenced Varpetyan to 180 days in county jail, 3 years formal probation and ordered him to pay $43, 527.83 in restitution ($5,485.86 to Farmers Insurance and $38,041.97 to State Farm).

On May 21, 2015, Varpetyan was driving on Sunrise Boulevard when he suddenly hit his brakes for no reason, causing the car behind him to rear-end Varpetyan's vehicle. Several witnesses stated that it appeared Varpetyan intentionally caused the accident. On June 11, 2015, Varpetyan filed an insurance claim stating he had come to a stop because of traffic and was not liable for the accident. The claim was ultimately denied based on the witness statements and the CHP report that found Varpetyan to be at fault for the accident.

This case was prosecuted by the Sacramento County District Attorney's Office Insurance Fraud Unit.

Defendant Convicted of Multiple Child Sexual Assault Charges

DATE: February 13, 2018

CASE: Richard Craig Torres (Case #07F10409)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Catrina Skor, Special Assault & Child Abuse Unit

Richard Craig Torres was convicted by a jury of 18 counts of forcible lewd act upon a child, one count of lewd act upon a child and one count of forcible rape.

Torres sexually assaulted the female victim on a regular basis over the course of one year, starting in June 2005 when the victim was 13 years old. In May 2007, the victim disclosed the sexual abuse to her mother. In November 2007, Torres was notified about a warrant for his arrest. The next day, he fled to Mexico, where he lived under an alias for 7 years. In December 2014, the FBI received information about Torres' whereabouts, which ultimately led to his apprehension. In August 2015, Torres was extradited back to the United States to face charges.

Torres faces a maximum sentence of 160 years in prison. Sentencing is set for March 23, 2018, at 9:00 a.m. in Department 39 before the Honorable David Abbott.

Chiropractor Pleads to Felony Practicing Medicine without License, Grand Theft

DATE: February 14, 2018

CASE: Anthony Johnson (Case #16FE015230)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney David Brown, Consumer & Environmental Protection Division

James Joseph Martin pled guilty to three counts of practicing medicine without a license, four counts of grand theft by false pretenses and misdemeanor charges of illegally using 'MD' and 'physician' in advertisements.

Martin regularly appeared on a local television program, Sac & Co. His infomercials were designed to look like an interview. Martin, a licensed chiropractor, portrayed himself as a functional neurologist who practiced metabolic or pastoral medicine, specializing in treating conditions of the thyroid, neuropathy and other health conditions. Many of Martin's patients thought he was a medical doctor. Some patients paid thousands of dollars for his treatment, which primarily consisted of Martin prescribing over the counter supplements and then selling them at a significant mark up.

Martin will be sentenced to 1 year in jail and ordered to pay restitution to all victims named in the complaint. Additionally, he will be on felony probation for 5 years, required to surrender his chiropractic license and prohibited from portraying himself as someone who practices functional or pastoral medicine.

Sentencing is set for May 29, 2018, at 8:30 a.m. in Department 62 before the Honorable Patrick Marlette. ★

RANCHO SPORTS

Mitchell Wrestlers Fernandez, Valdez, Pacheco and Daw Compete in Wrestling Championships

By Joe Zilles

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Dajey Valdez (99 pounds), Destinee Pacheco (118 pounds), Aaron Fernandez (135 pounds) and Madison Daw (135 pounds) competed in post regular season wrestling tournaments this past weekend. While Fernandez competed at the boys Sacramento Area 3 Finals at Ponderosa High School, Valdez, Pacheco, and Daw competed in the Sacramento Area Girls Regional Finals.

In the highly competitive boys 135 pound weight division Fernandez wrestled hard to a third place finish, while at the girls tournament, Valdez and Daw grappled on to third place finishes as well. Both Valdez and Daw dominated their respective final matches of the day with decisive pins of their opponents; Daw won three of her four matches by pins, losing only once ultimately to the tournament champion. Pacheco was knocked out of the tournament after two hard fought matches.

Fernandez now qualifies for the boys Middle School Regional finals at Elk Grove High School on February 24, while Valdez and Daw qualify for the Girls Middle School Northern California Tournament of Champions at Casa Robles High School on March 3. ★

Cordova Basketball Secures Another Winning Season

Cordova guard Calvin Augusta goes up for a jumper in against Union Mine. The Lancers secured a must needed win to reach the playoffs. Photo by Rick Sloan

By Mike Bush

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - One more Sierra Valley Conference game.

Within 24 hours last week, the Cordova High School boys basketball team squared off twice against Union Mine’s squad. But their second meeting determined who would reach the Sac-Joaquin Section playoffs, as the conference is sending three teams, and who would be staying home watching the high school basketball playoffs from the stands.

Playing at the Diamondbacks’ gym in El Dorado on Valentine’s Day, the Lancers showed lots of loving in terms of extending their season by, at least, one more game with a 73-60 win.

After its game against Union Mine was tied 15-15 in the first quarter, Cordova jumped out to a 21-14 scoring advantage over the D’backs for a 36-29 half-time lead. The Lancers continued their scoring spree in the third quarter, 21-16, which extended their lead to 57-35.

“Both teams went into the last game thinking they had to win the game to make (the) playoffs,” said Cordova head coach Fletcher Johnson. “Our players believed they were the better players and team, so confidence was high. Union Mine played well, but momentum was with us.”

The Lancers finished the fourth quarter by outscoring the D’backs again, 16-15, for the win.

Three Cordova players scored in double figures against Union Mine. Calvin Augusta, who has been back with the team for a month after recovering from a knee injury that was sustained as a member of the Cordova High School football team six months ago, led the way with 23 points.

Following Augusta was Joe Danielyan with 22 points and Sam Danielyan with 11. Forward Caleb Clark and guard Johnle Sanders followed with five points each, Kenneth Brown four and Tyreke Tate three.

“The two wins guaranteed us a winning season,” said Johnson, who has been the Lancers’ head coach since the 2011-12 season. “Not bad for a rough year.”

Since he’s been running the program, Johnson has compiled an overall record of 117 wins and 74 losses.

On February 15 the section released its playoff brackets. Playing in Division III, Cordova (7-4 in the SVC, 14-12 overall) is the no. 14 seed. On Wednesday, February 21, Cordova plays at No. 4 seed Del Campo. Should the Lancers win their first round game, they will play the winner of the No. 12 Benicia-No. 5 Patterson game on Friday, February 23.

Falcons Baseball, Softball Light Up the Weekend

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The Falcons closed out their inaugural season on the road Thursday night with a 107-71 loss to Big 8 Conference runner-up Modesto. Isiah Maun led the Falcons in scoring with 29 points, including six three-pointers, while Zethan Dumpson added 22 points. The Falcons finished 2-23 under head coach Bill Benford, who had to deal with an extremely small roster over the second half of the season after losing players to academic issues and injuries. “The recruiting is going well and I’m already excited about next season,” noted Benford. “People will see a different product on the floor next year.”

In the opener, the Falcons rapped out 22 hits, including four hits apiece for shortstop Raven Lewis, first baseman Sara Thibaut and third baseman Delana Provan. Reserve outfielder Melanie Blazek had three hits in her starting debut while driving in four runs. McKenna Rickles pitched the complete game for the Falcons while allowing just one hit and striking out six.

In the second game, the Falcons actually fell behind 2-0 before beginning their offensive onslaught with an eight-run second inning. Catcher Tatyana Rosen had three hits, including her first collegiate home run, while driving in four runs. Melanie Blazek added two more hits and two RBI to her big day. Lauren Orris and Raven Lewis split the pitching duties in the win.

On Saturday, the Falcons again took to the road for an afternoon double-header at Cabrillo College in Aptos. In the opener, the Falcons picked up where they left off on Thursday as they won 14-4 in five innings. Leading 5-2 after two innings, the Falcons blew the game open with a nine-run fifth inning. Lefty pitcher Lauren Orris went the distance, allowing just two earned runs on five hits. Sophomore centerfielder McKenna Rickles hit her second home run of the season while driving in four runs on three hits, and freshman Hope Ferri had five more hits between them, giving them 11 total hits in the doubleheader. Rickles pitched five solid innings before giving way to Lauren Orris, who pitched the final two innings. Catcher Kaitlyn Karmazin, with four hits in seven at bats during the doubleheader, raised her team-leading batting average to .500. Of note, the Falcons improved their early-season record to 6-5, the first time in they’ve had a winning record since the program began in 2016.

M & W Tennis

The Falcons prepped for their Big 8 opener with a non-conference match at Chabot College on Thursday afternoon, but the results were not what they’d hoped for as both teams fell to the Gladiators.

The Falcon women were surprisingly shutout by Chabot, 9-0. After narrowly dropping the top two doubles matches by identical 9-7 scores, the Falcons stumbled through the singles, winning just one set.

The Falcon men gave the Gladiators a good challenge but eventually lost 7-2. With three matches going to tie breakers, the outcome could easily have been 5-4 in the Falcons’ favor. “We let them off the hook,” noted head coach Patrick Rutz. “We’ll get them next time, hopefully in the playoffs.”

Despite playing their Big 8 opening match without one of their players, the Falcon women managed to defeat Santa Rosa 4-3 on Friday afternoon in Santa Rosa.

On Friday, the Falcon men opened Big 8 Conference play at Santa Rosa with a solid 8-1 victory over the Bear Cubs.

Baseball

The Falcons kept their early-season run of success intact as they took a two-game series from Mission College in Santa Clara on Friday and Saturday

On Friday afternoon, Aidan Malm and Lee Brewer both homered and leadoff hitter John Mook had three hits as the Falcons won 7-4. Sophomore Shane Gustafson earned the win with 2+ innings of relief after starter Derek Stuber allowed just one earned run in 4 2/3 innings. Josh Winkler got the final two outs for his third save of the season. The Falcons are now leading the state with 14 home runs in their first ten games.

On Saturday, the Falcons fell behind early as the Saints scored four runs over the first two innings. But Aidan Malm got the Falcons going in the third inning with his third home run of the season – and second in two days – that cut the score to 4-2. The Falcons added three more runs in the fourth on RBI singles by John Mook, Michael Farley, and Josh Winkler for a 5-4 lead. Meanwhile, reliever Ricky Espinoza was shutting down the Saints’ offense with four innings of one-hit mastery. Six Falcons ended the day with two hits apiece as the Falcons won going away, 9-4. They are 10-1 on the season. ★

"The building was moved to its current location very early in the morning for a reason," said Budge. "It was moved at 6 a.m. in the morning of May 17, 1998, and the reason it had to be moved so early is because Sacramento Regional Transit was planning on putting in the overhead lines for the new rail system at Butterfield.
