SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) -

It is time to get your tickets for the big show! The California Capital Airshow (CCA) will take to the skies on September 9 and 10 at Mather Airport, and tickets are now available.

"The California Capital Airshow is a full-sensory experience," said Darcy Brewer, executive director of the California Capital Airshow.

"We're excited to bring the Sacramento region two full days of non-stop entertainment and unparalleled access to the world of aeronautics and aviation."

The California Capital Airshow illuminates a century of American aviation and ingenuity with miles of aircraft, from the spine-tingling civilian and military jet performances including the Patriots Jet team, U.S. Navy

F-18 tactical demonstration, U.S. Air Force Heritage Flight starring the A-10 Thunderbolt II, world-class aerobatics, barn-

storming, warbirds, and more. massive family-friendly festival, the Airshow has launched a new website, CaliforniaCapitalAirshow.com, to provide attendees a preview of what to expect both in the air and on the ground.

"Exploring exciting displays and interactive exhibits as well as pilot meet-and-greets are a great way to start the day," In preparation for this Brewer explained. "Attendees will want to be on site and ready for the action before noon, when in-air demonstrations and fly-bys begin or all things shiny, fast and loud take to the skies."

Greatest Threat? Overly Powerful Government, Says Nielsen

Story and Photos by Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - California State Senator Jim Nielsen spoke frankly and with strength at the Rancho Cordova Luncheon on July 21. He outlined many of the urgent issues California currently

Water has been a long time dilemma, and Nielsen looks to the Sites Reservoir, which may be built in the in Colusa County to at least make a start on the needs. "We cannot conserve ourselves into the future for either energy or water," Nielsen said. "California has started no projects, no major dams or storage, since Lake Oroville, about 50 years ago. No matter what kind of a storage facility that you have, if you don't have it in advance, it's not going to work."

The recent extension of the cap-and-trade program will add around 70 cents a gallon in taxes to the cost of gas. "It will probably approach a dollar before we're done, at the gas pump," Nielsen said. While the gas tax was initially intended to fix streets, roads, and highways, legislators over the years have voted to redirect that money to other things. There are two locks on the lockbox to lock money in for streets, roads, and highways. One lock, Nielsen said, is to help control pollution. But the other lock gives open door to polluters, by allowing them to "buy pollution credits."

California Senator Jim Nielsen spoke at the Rancho Cordova July Luncheon on July 21 about issues of importance to citizens of the eight counties he represents.

Homelessness is a problem even in the smallest towns such as Los Molinos and Gerber in Tehama County, where Nielsen lives with his wife. The homeless population is growing, fed in addition by the early release of prisoners from custody. Many of them have nowhere to go, Continued on page 3

Danielle Spang, BBB Marketing & Communication Manager

WEST SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Better Business Bureau (BBB) Board Chair Archie Milligan announced on July 19th, that Lynn Conner accepted the position of Chief Executive Officer (CEO) of BBB serving Northeast California. Conner also served as the interim CEO after former CEO, Gary Almond, chose to step down in late March.

"We are very fortunate to have someone with Lynn's impressive resume leading the BBB. Even more important for us, though, is Lynn's character and her commitment to our mission and values, demonstrated during her many years of service on our Board," said Milligan. "I personally appreciate the most recent example of Lynn's commitment – her positive response to my request to serve as our interim CEO, and I certainly appreciate the extraordinary efforts of the staff to convince her to take on the position permanently," he added.

"I'm honored and excited to be taking on the challenge as CEO of BBB serving Northeast California. Marketplace trust is as vital as ever, and I look forward to continuing to develop and promote programs that advocate trust and bring attention to those who have chosen to become BBB Accredited Businesses," said Conner.

Conner served on the BBB Board of Directors for six years, and was the chair of that board in 2015 and 2016, helping guide the organization during a period of significant financial growth. For the last two years she was also given the distinct honor of serving on the national board of the Council of Better Business Bureaus (CBBB), and is currently a member of the Finance Committee.

Conner brings thirty-five years of managerial and business related experience to this endeavor. Her background is both varied and extensive. She worked for Parasec, a $15 million public records research company, for 30 years, 22 years as President until she was succeeded by Matt Marzucco in 2009.

In addition, while working with Parasec, Lynn assisted a partner CPA firm for nine years, Flemmer Associates, as their Business Development Manager.

In 2010, Conner and her husband started their own company, Hialeah Terrace, a six-bed residential care facility for the elderly. She is the Licensee and Administrator for that company. Conner believes in the value of the BBB mission and has demonstrated her support by maintaining both companies, Parasac and Hieleah Terrace, as BBB Accredited Businesses.

Having served for more than 12 years on the board of the Sacramento Employment and Training Agency (SETA), Lynn's skills led to her election as Chair of the Board. In that role she continues to demonstrate her commitment to SETA's mission to develop a viable, vibrant workforce in Sacramento and the surrounding areas.

Lynn holds her Certification as a Residential Care Facility Administrator.

Lynn earned a Bachelor of Science in Botany from UC Davis, as well as a Master's of Business Administration from California State University, Sacramento.

County Making Commitment to Homeless Initiatives

Sacramento County Special Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG)

- With the approval of the recommended budget for Fiscal Year 2017-18 on June 14, the Sacramento County Board of Supervisors highlighted the County's commitment to addressing homeless initiatives with an additional $6.2 million directed toward those efforts.

The enhanced funding comes on top of the already more than $40 million Sacramento County spends annually on homeless services.

"While the County addressed a number of service and program issues with enhanced funding for Fiscal Year 2017-18, our biggest additional investment overall was directed towards efforts to reduce homelessness," said Board Chairman Don Nottoli, Supervisor, District 5.

As the major funder of homeless services—including shelters and transitional housing, rehousing assistance—as well as the largest provider of social services, Sacramento County has committed to working in partnership with government partners and community stakeholders to continue to develop and deliver the most impactful solutions to homelessness.

Following several public workshops in 2016 and 2017, the Board of Supervisors endorsed the following initiatives for FY 2017-18:

County Initiative #1: Improve Family Crisis Response and Shelters

- This initiative seeks to shelter more families annually by helping them connect to assistance and return to housing more quickly. The new shelter system will prioritize unsheltered homeless families and improve access for all homeless families through reduced entry requirements and greater accommodation of families with complex needs (such as those with health or behavioral health needs).
- By using more flexible County general fund dollars, diversion services will be funded to help some families keep their existing housing and avoid a shelter stay altogether.
- Recognizing that some families may benefit from more long-term support, the County will also fund a small transitional housing program offering employment and recovery supports for 19 families experiencing homelessness.

County Initiative #2: Preserve Mather Community Campus

- Operating on a unique Countyowned property, Mather Community Campus (MCC) has played an important role providing transitional housing, employment services, and recovery support for individuals and families experiencing homelessness in Sacramento since 1996.
- In 2016, the Volunteers of America (VOA) served over 885 individuals, families, former foster youth, and veterans through eight residential (267 units) and nonresidential programs. In addition to offering life skills, employment preparation and vocational training, VOA currently engages with over 200 businesses in its job placement services.

"While the County addressed a number of service and program issues with enhanced funding for Fiscal Year 2017-18, our biggest additional investment overall was directed towards efforts to reduce homelessness," said Board Chairman Don Nottoli, Supervisor, District 5.

This initiative identifies funding to continue operations at MCC.

County Initiative #3: Full Service Re-housing Shelter

- This initiative seeks to reach persons experiencing homelessness who have complex behavioral and/or physical health issues that often prevent them from engaging in shelter services.
- The shelter would include 24-hour dormitory accommodations for up to 75 individuals at a time, with consideration for partners, pets and possessions, and include meals, showers and laundry facilities.
- On-site case management would focus from day one on connecting participants to stable income, public benefits and permanent housing as well as to essential health services.
- As proposed, the Full Service Rehousing Shelter would serve up to 250 to 300 persons annually.

County Initiative 4: Flexible Supportive Re-Housing program

• The County proposes a new Flexible Supportive Re-housing Program (FSRP) that would provide highly flexible re-housing and stabilization services to persons who have experienced long-term homelessness, who frequently utilize costly County services (such as behavioral health, emergency response, or jail), but who could, with the right assistance, stabilize in permanent supportive housing.

• The program would provide a highly flexible solution, employing proactive engagement, "whatever it takes services," and ongoing housing subsidies to engage property owners and stably rehouse the target population.

 As proposed, FSRP would rehouse up to 250 individual and family households in the first year of the program.

Public Housing Authority Resources

In addition to these initiatives, the Board of Supervisors (acting as the Housing Authority of the County of Sacramento) directed SHRA to initiate the process to increase Public Housing resources for homelessness, including:

- Limited Preference Allocation of 150 "turnover vouchers" annually (see #4 above);
- Up to 375 project-based vouchers over three years to support new or existing permanent supportive housing;
- 50 vouchers over three years to help current supportive housing tenants "move on" to affordable housing and serve new families in need of the intensive services; and
- 100 vouchers for homeless youth participating in a new federal grant called "P3".

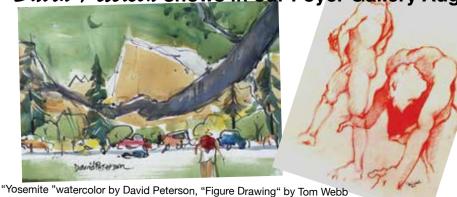

Sacramento County's Director of Homelessness Initiatives Cindy Cavanaugh said, "Over the past year, the County has worked with our partners and stakeholders to build on what's working and to create new solutions and pathways out of homelessness. This year, the Board of Supervisors made a significant investment to not only improve existing programs but to create new County programs that provide concrete support to families and individuals in their transition to permanent homes, employment, and restored lives.

and less access to treatment for mental or drug problems than when they were in prison. This leads to more drug use and more crime on our streets, Nielsen said.

Making California a sanctuary state would invite "the worst of society into our communities. I tell my colleagues when I debate, if you pass this, then it's on you," Nielsen said. "You must accept the responsibility . . . You're not going to like it, either. Because some of the victims may be your family."

Dominic Daniels, one of the patrons at the luncheon, differed with Nielsen with reference to the criminal context of the growing homeless population. Quoting Elk Grove Run4Hunger statistics, he said that nearly 500 children in Elk Grove are homeless. "Per national statistics 40% of homeless males are veterans," Daniels said. "So while

I applaud the Senator's concern for getting a handle on the criminal release program, care should be taken in understanding that many who have become homeless and labeled criminal are still very much American." Daniels is a member of Natomas Power Partners, and his business is financial services.

The greatest threat of all, Nielsen said, besides the criminals, is the power afforded our government, the California State legislative and administrative branches, including agency boards. "They over the decades have gained these enormous powers over all of us. And most of the complaints that we deal with on behalf of our constituents is about some agency of government that's giving them some type of problem. They are out of control." One of the latest developments is that of indexed fees that increase annually according to the inflation rate.

It's not all gloom and doom, though, according to Nielsen. "You never lose if you're in the arena, speaking out," Nielsen said. "That's what's important. Not just folks like me, elected representatives, but yourselves."

Although the democrats and republicans are in opposition to each other on many things, at times they are able to come together. Nielsen said a good example was the water bond and rainy day fund that he worked on with Governor Brown. "That was a great example of working together," Nielsen said. "And on the budget this year, actually the democrats were more reserved than I thought they would be, so I'll give them good grades for

During his career, Nielsen has represented 19 California counties. "Nobody's even close to that," Nielsen said. I'm getting way high up in tenure, too, in the legislature. Oh, and I have the scars to show for it."

I am very grateful that we still have the Grapevine Independent here in our city. Being able to look at the paper, or should I say papers online is okay, but I have the same feeling that many of us have expressed when you can say it is our paper. I have watched our grandchildren grab books so they can read them, and then place them aside and go onto other things, but that book is still there for them to go back and read again if they wish to do so. The same with your paper; just being able to hold it in your hand and read it, without having to bring up the website on the computer (if you can), is much more relaxing. Time will tell about today's generation of children and how they read when they grow up and have their own children. Maybe their cars will be called by voice like "The Jetsons"; they'll say "come here car," tell it where they want to go, then their driverless car will whisk them on to

Our city is changing like everything and everyone in our country and the world. This coming November, we will have a "voting anniversary." It isn't the same as July 1, 2003 in which we became an official municipality, but it is just as important because it allowed us to tell the County, the State, and the Federal Governments that we have an official voice and that we must be heard by all. "When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve

And Another Thing ...

Having Your Voice Heard

the political bands which connected them to another, and to assume among the powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them..." - United States Declaration of Independence. It definitely became necessary for us to dissolve the political bands which connected us to Sacramento County. November 5, 2002 was the day of our "Declaration of Independence!" Now granted not everyone in our community who voted that day voted for independence from the county, but 78% of the voters did.

The only time the citizens of Rancho Cordova voted with an even stronger voice was in 1996 when there was a measure on the ballot that would have separated the Folsom Cordova Unified School District into two separate districts. Everyone in the State was getting out of a recession, and the money was simply not there to pay for two administrations and all the rest of the details that were necessary. The Folsom vote was 60% to 40% for separation, but the Cordova vote was 90% against and only 10% for. The county's Registrar of Voters said they had never seen 90% of the voters agree on anything before. That gave the citizens of Rancho Cordova the first indication that their voices and votes could definitely make a difference. The next year in 1997, we passed the first school bond that was only for Rancho Cordova schools. We voiced our decision and were heard again.

And another thing about having your voice heard, when you are with friends, or at church, or at a meeting, etc., don't keep your voice silent when you have an idea or a very strong opinion about someone or something. Don't keep your good ideas bottled up inside. What you say may be just what others were waiting to hear, but no one else came up with the idea. Or maybe part of what you say could be part of the solution or part of the answer to the/their problem. And you can also help by being the person who asks a question that is hard to find the answer for, but by asking you may be surprised at who comes up with the great answer and solution to the problem.

I called Code Enforcement to check on a homeowner the other day that seemed to just be piling up junk and trash on the driveway for no good reason. Initially, I thought they were getting ready for a bulky item pick up, but I was wrong. A member of the family recently passed away, and while they were trying to dispose of some of the items, time went on and they were overwhelmed. They can't handle everything that is going on. After gathering the information, our Code Enforcement Officer suggested that they call their church for help. It is amazing how many volunteers show up to help if they know that help is needed.

At times, we all feel overwhelmed and don't know how to get out of some situations. But whether it is learning about people and events in the paper, or talking about how our city has changed and continues to change, maybe voting will be the best way to voice your opinion, and expressing your opinion or asking some questions will help get through part of life's challenges. Keep cool in today's heat. We are almost through July so it won't be long before the weather will break more often, and it will be fall and cooler weather.

From Councilman Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time.

Magical Moonshine Theatre and Python Ron Coming to Rancho Cordova Library

By Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Two entertaining shows will be coming to the Rancho Cordova Library in the second week of August.

At 10:30 a.m., Wednesday, August 9, Magical Moonshine Theatre will present a traditional Bohemian style marionette show, The Three Little Pigs. Three pigs set out to seek their fortunes with a bit of house building, but things don't go as planned in this creative retelling of the traditional story. Houses collapse, pigs and wolves play together, and audience members help the story along with lots of live music, singing, construction, and laughter.

Michael and Valerie Nelson have been puppeteers for nearly 35 years. Back in 1979, Valerie was a teacher at a Montessori school and Michael was a cabinet maker. "I just thought it would be fun to put on a show for all those cute kids she was working with," Michael Nelson said. "At first it was just for fun, but we started to meet other puppeteers and realized there were people who did this for a living, and we really enjoyed it. So we decided to see if we could make that work, and we did." Information on Magical Moonshine Theatre can be seen at www.magicalmoonshine.org.

Python Ron's Reptile Kingdom will be at the library at 4:00 p.m., Thursday, August 10. Ron McGee has been in the reptile business since he was a little kid. "Typically, what would happen with my mom and dad, they'd hand me a jar, boot me out the door, and say 'Come back when you're tired," McGee said. "I never grew

Though it is too hot to transport a few of his friends, he will be bringing a 13-ft. green anaconda, an equally large albino Burmese python, a tortoise, a tegu, monitor lizards, and a ball python. McGee said that kids are not usually afraid of the creatures. "I tell everybody the reason why kids are not afraid of them, they've simply never been lied to yet," McGee said. "Their minds are open." Python Ron also presents private childrens' shows on request. His website is www. pythonron.com.

Riley Reviews

TAUT WAR ACTION OF "DUNKIRK" HIGHLIGHTS HEROIC SURVIVAL

A Film Review by Tim Riley

DUNKIRK (Rated PG-13)

British director Christopher Nolan, acclaimed filmmaker of "The Dark Knight" trilogy and "Inception" among others, has created a masterpiece of wartime survival based upon a crucial chapter in the history of World War II in the epic "Dunkirk."

At the outset of "Dunkirk," the credits make it clear this is more than a war film, noting that the Allied forces were surrounded by the German army on the beaches of the French coastal city, merely 26 miles away from Great Britain, separated by the seas of the English Channel.

Yet for approximately 400,000 British and Allied forces, including French, Canadian and Belgian soldiers, survival was very much in doubt as air bombardments from the Luftwaffe threatened to sink all ships. The troops were hoping for deliverance and a miracle.

In late May 1940, the outcome of the war on the European front was very much in doubt even before the United States entered the fray in December 1941, when days after Pearl Harbor the Germans declared war on us.

History could have been quite different without the successful rescue operation at Dunkirk. Nolan effectively captures the precarious nature of the evacuation that occurred over the course of more than an intense week.

The structure of "Dunkirk" is fascinating in its execution. Three parallel stories are woven into one central theme. A battle in the air is short-lived, the flotilla of rescue boats occupies a day and the evacuation on the beachfront lasts more than a

If "Dunkirk" has one character to serve as the Everyman, it could fall to British soldier Tommy (Fionn Whitehead) who barely survives enemy fire in a neighboring town only to find himself stranded on the Dunkirk beach with hundreds of thousands awaiting their fate.

It's through Tommy's experiences, either trying to get a wounded soldier onto a Red Cross hospital ship that is soon bombed by the Germans or holed up with other scared young soldiers in the hull of a boat full of leaks, that we see the harrowing ordeal of the evacuation.

Meanwhile, as naval Commander Bolton (Kenneth Branagh) and ranking Army officer Colonel Winnant (James D'Arcy) organize the logistics of boats and ships docking in the challenging shallow waters, the RAF Spitfires offer the only credible line of defense.

A few hardy fighter pilots take on the superior German airpower with brilliantly staged dogfights over the English Channel. The director's keen sense of realism shows how difficult it is to align an enemy target for a direct hit with machine gun fire in tight aerial engagements.

The senior RAF pilot is Farrier (Tom Hardy), who turns out to be the heart and soul of the aerial dogfights as he defies the logistics of fuel capacity to continue the fight until he can no longer safely return to the home

The interesting thing about the pilots is that their heroism is realized only by restricted movements in small cockpits with just expressive looks hidden mostly behind protective masks. Tom Hardy has carried this off before as the masked Bane in a Nolandirected "Batman" film.

Back in coastal England, a flotilla of pleasure craft and small boats are recruited from private citizens to undertake a seagoing rescue. Mark Rylance's Mr. Dawson, motivated by patriotism, steers his small boat across the Channel with help from his son and another teen boy.

If Tommy stands for the everyday soldier, then Mr. Dawson is the embodiment of the citizen effort at sea. His journey is not without peril or added tension when he rescues a shell-shocked sailor (Cillian Murphy) who is adamantly opposed to returning to the battle scene.

On the whole "Dunkirk" is an ensemble film, even if standout performances come from young Fionn Whitehead and the middle-aged Mark Rylance. In any case, it's a story told mostly through action and not an excessive amount of dialogue or any backstory.

In "Dunkirk," Nolan captures the spirit of heroic acts, whether it's from the RAF Spitfire pilots fighting until their fuel runs out or ordinary citizens entering the dangerous mission with pleasure craft to rescue stranded soldiers.

"Dunkirk" just might be a film for the ages, a seriousminded effort that defies the usual escapist fare that dominates the summer box office. This is about heroism, though often nuanced by human errors, without silly capes and super-

Using the grandchild for money

Dear Dave.

My wife and I have been helping our adopted daughter financially for some time. She's 25, has been married for three years, and we don't see this cycle stopping anytime soon. The worst part is, they will often throw in that our grandchild will go without something unless we help. We're certain this isn't teaching them to stand on their own feet, but we don't know what else to do.

- David

Dear David,

You're right about one thing. It's time they both learned how to handle money like mature, responsible adults. I don't know how much your tried to teach her about finances when she was growing up, but it sounds like this "needing help" thing is turning into an endless cycle.

You're giving them money left and right, and it's not working. You're giving them fish, and you've heard that whole saying. You could also teach them to fish and then not give them any fish, Dave Says but I like a third choice in this scenario — give them fish only if they take fishing lessons. They get no more money from you unless they get financial counseling together and make a serious move toward straightening up their lives.

If they try to play on your feelings by saying your grandchild is hungry, tell them to send the child over for a meal. If they run out of money until payday, tell them to go to their financial counseling session to find answers. Right now, every time they have a problem they call mom and dad. Guess what? They don't have any problems as long as you're doing what you're doing.

Love them well. Hold their hands and say, "When I was your age, I wish someone had done this for me. I'm not going to give you any more money unless you go to financial counseling sessions regularly and together. If you do this, turn in a budget to us and let us coach you on how to be adults and handle your own money well, we'll help and set up a matching system. If you don't do the matching part though, you won't see anything from us."

They've figured out if they hold your feet to the fire when it comes to this grandbaby, you're going to open the wallet. They're playing you right now, and it's not to their benefit — or yours! —Dave

Borrow against retirement?

Dear Dave,

I have an opportunity to take a loan against my 401(k) retirement, and pay myself interest. Is this a good idea?

- Susan

Dear Susan,

Actually, you'll end up costing yourself interest. Never take a loan against your retirement!

When you pay interest against your retirement, you cost yourself interest. If you leave the company — which you will someday — the loan against the 401(k) is due within 60 days. If you don't pay it off, they consider it an early withdrawal and you'll get taxed and penalized

If you have a certifiable emergency, like owing the IRS or facing a foreclosure, you may have to withdraw some. You'll still get taxed, but please don't ever borrow against retirement!

Make It Fun and It Will Get Done!

The Secret to Being Organized

Pam Young's Corner

I Was Blind and Now I See!

The Decluttering Question of the Day

In a recent article I wrote about decluttering I said, "In deciding what to keep and what to get rid of, ask this question: 'Would I buy this at Goodwill?" Just that question opens your eyes to the item you're looking at. If you were at Goodwill, would you buy this? Because when you're buying something secondhand, you take your blinders off and put your examination

At home, your blinders allow you to relax in private and not see what you don't want to see, just like your sunglasses keep the sun from hurting your eyes. Your home isn't subject to scrutiny until you're going to have company at which time you get out your examination glasses and see with "company eyes."

If you'll put your timer on for 15 minutes and spend that time looking for stuff you wouldn't buy at Goodwill, you'll probably be able to fill up a box to give away or pitch. As I wrote that sentence, it inspired me to do just that. So, I'll be back in 15 minutes if I don't get sidetracked and end up taking a bath or sweeping the deck.

I'm baaaack! Well, with my blinders off, I discovered six sweaters, three shirts, two pairs of sandals and one dress that were worn-out. No they were exhausted! When you wear something that looks tired, there's a good chance it'll make you feel and look tired too. With my scrutinizing lenses in place, and the question in mind 'Would I buy this at Goodwill?' my answer for each item was "No Way!"

This is a fun exercise, especially this time of year. Before you store your winter clothes, get those scrutinizers on and go over each garment with the question 'Would I buy this at Goodwill?' (I found most of my "fatigued garments" in the pile of winter clothes that were ready to be stored.) When I pulled out my summer clothes I caught the two pairs of sandals I'd stored last fall that slipped past my scrutiny.

Isn't it amazing what clarity does for us? Don't you just love understanding something that you didn't "get" and then you do? When you suddenly realize something you didn't realize before, you might say, "Oh, now I see," or "My

When you come up with an idea you hadn't thought of before, it excites you and you want to share it. Getting an idea is what is at the core of every business. Blue cheese comes to mind. If you like blue cheese, you can probably thank someone who got the idea and the nerve to taste milk that had really gone bad and had been invaded by mold. Think of having the nerve to even try it when it looked and smelled so bad. And then to have to wait to see if you're going to die or become paralyzed would be a whole other issue!

The wonderful thing about clarity is, once you know, you can't unknow it.

Now you know how to look at your stuff with new eyes and you know the question, so put on your scrutinizers and go fill a box in 15 minutes.

IRS Expands Taxpayer Services

Adds New Features to Taxpayers Online Account

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Internal Revenue Service has announced the addition of several new features to the online account tool first introduced late last year as part of the IRS's commitment to improve and expand taxpayer services.

The online account allows individual taxpayers to access the latest information available about their federal tax account through a secure and convenient tool on IRS.gov. When it first launched in December 2016, the tool assisted taxpayers with basic account inquiries such as information about their balance due and access to the various IRS payment options. Since then, the IRS has added new features allowing taxpayers to: View up to 18 months of tax payment history; View payoff amounts and tax balance due for each tax year; Obtain online transcripts of various Form 1040-series through Get Transcript;

Give feedback on their experience with their online account and make suggestions for improvements.

"We are constantly looking for ways to improve taxpayers' interactions with the IRS and adding these new features to the taxpayer's online account is an important step in that direction," said IRS Commissioner John Koskinen. "The IRS is committed to serving taxpayers in multiple ways and now taxpayers who want to interact digitally with us in a secure environment have access to even more helpful features." Before accessing the tool, taxpayers must authenticate their identities through the rigorous Secure Access process. This is a two-step authentication process, which means returning users must have their credentials (username and password) plus a security code sent as a text to their mobile phones.

Taxpayers who have registered using Secure Access for Get Transcript Online or Get an IP PIN may use their same username and password. To register for the first time, taxpayers must have their personal and financial information including: Social Security number, specific financial information, such as a credit card number or loan numbers, email address and a text-enabled mobile phone in the user's name. Taxpayers may review the Secure Access process prior to starting registration.

As part of the security process to authenticate taxpayers, the IRS will send verification, activation or security codes via email and text. The IRS warns taxpayers that it will not initiate contact via text or email asking for log-in information or personal data. The IRS texts and emails will only contain one-time

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) -

Chairman Ken Cooley (D-Rancho Cordova) of the Joint Committee on Rules convened the second of several hearings to examine the condition of the State Capitol Building Annex and the Legislature's options for dealing with California's aging seat of government on July17th, 2017.

"The functionality of our State Capitol Annex is key to our ability to govern," said Chairman Cooley. "Today's hearing made clear that the current status of our building does not match our basic needs as a co-equal branch of government. Our partners in the Executive branch stand ready to help move us forward to build a 'People's House' we can all be proud of for the next century."

Testimony at the committee began with strong statements of commitment from Marybel Batjer, Secretary, Government Operations Agency and Daniel C. Kim, Director, Department of General Services (DGS) for the Legislature's endeavor. Jason Kenney, Chief, Project Management and Development Branch, DGS then gave a presentation regarding the current conditions and status of the building and what next steps can be taken.

Mr. Kenney remarked on lines legislative control over the

the fact that the Capitol's East Annex was finished in 1952 and was designed for a part-time Legislature and before modern technology. Today, the Annex's wear and tear has significantly increased beyond its original intended usage. There have not been any significant renovations to the major systems in need of repair. Many "band-aids" have been used, but most upgrades cannot be done while the building is occupied. According to Mr. Kenney, this project offers the Legislature an incredible opportunity to make significant upgrades to security, technology, and the free movement of people. He also spoke about the planning process to identify space for lawmakers potential Capitol Park impacts. Diane Boyer-Vine, Legislative Counsel, next spoke on the law and legal precedent for Capitol projects. She remarked that the Legislature is the law-making branch and that this is reflected in the law governing the Capitol, with the exception of the first floor that houses the Governor and Lieutenant Governor and is overseen by DGS. She also described the funding that was set up by SB 836 of 2016, which also out-and staff during construction and building and its zoning.

One of Chairman Cooley's primary considerations has been to engage security partners from the beginning so that safety components are integrated into the initial design as opposed to attempting to fit these needs as an afterthought into an already re-constructed building. To conclude the Joint Rules hearing, a presentation on public building design considerations by Senate Chief Sergeant-at-Arms Debbie Manning, Assembly Chief Sergeant-at-Arms Bryon Gustafson, and California Highway Patrol Chief Chris Main reinforced the need to make security discussions a priority. Many security considerations in the Capitol have been a reaction to incidents at the Capitol or elsewhere and are outside of the basic architectural design. A more in-depth look at the particular security needs will be delivered to the Joint Committee on Rules during a closed meeting on August 22, 2017.

The Assembly maintains a website for the Architectural Program for California's Capitol at http:// annex.assembly.ca.gov/. The full video of the hearing is posted on the website.

On July 29, 2015, Brian Sholl shot Brian Haywood to death outside of a residence in the North Highlands area. Prior to the shooting, Mr. Haywood had been drinking outside of the house with several individuals. Later that night, Sholl arrived with a friend. Mr. Haywood then challenged Sholl to a physical fight. Sholl then walked over to his car, retrieved a handgun, stood in front of Mr. Haywood and fired several shots at close range. Mr. Haywood was shot seven times and died at the scene. Sholl fled in his car, but was later identified by a witness as the shooter.

Valley Fever Cases Increase in California

Special CDPH Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The California Department of Public coccidioidomycosis, or cocci, Health (CDPH) announced July 20th, 2017, a large increase in the number of reported Valley Fever cases in California with illness onset in 2016.

From January through December 2016, 5,372 new cases of Valley Fever were reported to CDPH corresponding to an incidence rate of 13.7 cases per 100,000 people. This is very similar to the most recent peak in 2011 (5,213 cases), which was the highest number of cases since individual cases were made reportable in 1995.

"People who live in or travel to areas where Valley Fever is common should take steps to avoid breathing in dusty air," said CDPH Director and State Health Officer Dr. Karen Smith. "If they develop flu-like symptoms, such as cough, fever, or difficulty breathing, lasting two weeks or more, they should ask their doctor about Valley Fever."

Many counties in the Central Valley and Central Coast regions, where Valley Fever is most common, reported an increase in cases in 2016 compared with 2015. The largest number of cases and highest incidence rate in 2016 were in Kern County more than 250 cases per 100,000 especially if they work outdoors people, were reported.

Valley Fever, also known as is caused by the spore of a fungus that grows in certain types of soil. In California, Valley Fever is most commonly reported in the Southern Central Valley and Central Coast. People get infected by breathing in spores present in dust that gets into the air when it is windy or when soil is disturbed, such as through digging in dirt during construction. The incidence of Valley Fever depends on a variety of environmental factors and types of human activity in areas where the fungus is present. Valley Fever symptoms can be similar to other illnesses and it is not always recognized: changes in testing, diagnosis and reporting patterns can also impact reported disease levels. It is unknown why there has been such a large increase in reported Valley Fever cases in California in 2016.

While anyone can get Valley Fever, those most atrisk for severe disease include people 60 years or older, African-Americans, Filipinos, pregnant women, and people with diabetes or conditions that weaken their immune system. People who live, work, or travel in Valley Fever areas are also at where more than 2,200 cases, or a higher risk of getting infected, or participate in activities where soil is disturbed.

A person can reduce the risk of illness by avoiding breathing in dirt or dust in areas where Valley Fever is common. In these areas, when it is windy outside and the air is dusty, stay inside and keep windows and doors closed. While driving, keep car windows closed and use recirculating air conditioning, if available. If you must be outdoors, consider wearing a properly fitted mask (such as an N95 respirator mask which is widely available in retail stores), and refrain from disturbing the soil whenever possible. Employers should train their workers about Valley Fever symptoms and take steps to limit workers' exposure to dust.

Most infected people will not show signs of illness. Those who do become ill with Valley Fever may have flu-like symptoms that can last for two weeks or more. While most people recover fully, some may develop more severe complications of Valley Fever which may include pneumonia, or infection of the brain, joints, bone, skin or other organs. If you think you have Valley Fever, you should contact your physician.

For additional information on Valley Fever, please visit the CDPH website.

Aerojet Goes Three for Three in Testing for NASA's Space Launch System

By Glenn Mahone, Aerojet Rocketdyne

STENNIS SPACE CENTER, MS (MPG)

- Aerojet Rocketdyne, a subsidiary of Aerojet Rocketdyne Holdings, Inc. (NYSE:AJRD), successfully tested its third RS-25 engine flight controller today at NASA's Stennis Space Center in Mississippi. The RS-25 engine will propel America's next-generation heavy lift rocket, the Space Launch System (SLS), into space. The flight controller tested today is slated to fly on the inaugural mission of the SLS which will propel the Orion capsule around back to Earth.

"The Space Launch System is the rocket that will take humans beyond the Moon, and ultimately to Mars," said Aerojet Rocketdyne CEO and President Eileen Drake. "Evaluating the engine's flight controller under multiple conditions is one way we are ensuring that we are providing a safe, reliable engine to the nation for its deep space exploration efforts."

The flight controller translates the vehicle's commands into action while monitoring the health of the engine by making real-time adjustments to the speed of the turbopumps, combustion pressures, as well as the engine's thrust and propellant mixture ratios. Today's test focused on the engine thrust and mixture ratio precision operation.

"Achieving the optimum thrust and mixture ratio is crucial for creating an extremely efficient rocket engine," added the Moon and safely return it Dan Adamski, RS-25 program director at Aerojet Rocketdyne. "The RS-25 is the most efficient booster engine in the world, which is why it is the right engine for human exploration of deep space."

Four RS-25 engines power the core stage of the SLS for 8½ minutes to help the SLS during its climb to space; combined, the engines provide the rocket with more than two million pounds of thrust. The SLS rocket provides an unmatched capability to launch the heaviest and largest payloads faster to any destination when compared with other existing or proposed launch vehicles in development, making it the ideal rocket to explore deep space.

Aerojet Rocketdyne is an innovative company delivering solutions that create value for its customers in the aerospace and defense markets. The company is a world-recognized aerospace and defense leader that provides propulsion and energetics to the space, missile defense and strategic systems, tactical systems and armaments areas, in support of domestic and international markets. Tough Conditioning Drills for Cordova Football Players

By Mike Bush

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - On Monday afternoon, Cordova High School varsity and frosh-soph football players gathered inside Lancers

The Lancers started part of their conditioning and weight training drills. Paired up with a teammate, the players take part in one drill called resistance running. A giantsize rubber band is placed around the waist of one player, and has to run across the gym while their teammate pulls the band with all their strength to force the runner to work harder to run.

After the drill and water break, the players lined up into five groups. Each player in lines up in a 3-point stance, and on the command by Chris Kirkwood, a trainer for Mini's House of Pain in El Dorado Hills that has been training with the Cordova football players for the last two seasons, the players quickly sprint toward the other end of the gym. Once all players have gone through the drill, they repeat the exercise.

The players take another water break, and head into the school's weight room. On a white board, Kirkwood goes over the day's workouts that the players are to do. Working on their upper bodies, the players, group with three to four teammates, perform a power clean and jerk routine, which is a composite of two weightlifting movements with a barbell.

This is just some of the drills that the players have been during in voluntary workouts during the Sac-Joaquin Section's dead period, which started on July 10th and ends Sunday. During the dead period, prep football players are allowed to take part in voluntary work outs for an hour and a half a day, no more than eight hours a week Monday through Saturday. The use of any kind of football equipment, including a football, is

"Our numbers have actually been down during the dead period," said Cordova football head coach Darren Nill. "We asked the kids that if they're going to take a family vacation to take it during the dead period so they don't miss any

As for the use of a football, that will change this Monday. That is when Cordova and the rest of the section's high school football programs can officially begin practices, starting with conditioning week. The use of footballs, along with running offensive and defensive plays and going over kicking teams are allowed.

"Our first day back (this Monday) is all conditioning," Nill said. "We're going to put the kids through it. The kids were told to show up in shape." On Monday, Aug. 7th, schools can strap on the use of shoulder pads and helmets.

High school students who still want to play Cordova football, and show up Monday without having to practice prior to the start of the dead period will find that they will have to put in their time before they are issued football equipment, as the players who have been out for all or most of the summer workouts have done prior to the start of the

"We get e-mails all the time," Nill said. "We take all of the emotion out of the equation. For instance, a player that's missed (summer workouts in) June has to run 35 miles to get to play. If they show up July 31st and say 'alright I'm ready to play' it's 35 miles." ★
