New School Amazes

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Rancho Cordova families and stakeholders gathered in Anatolia on Tuesday afternoon, July 11th, as the Elk Grove Unified School District unveiled the newly constructed Robert J. McGarvey Elementary School. The District's School Names Committee voted unanimously in February 2017 to name the school after Council Member Bob McGarvey, a Rancho Cordova resident since 1967 who was instrumental in the incorporation of Rancho Cordova as a city. He currently serves on the Rancho Cordova City Council, and has served three terms as mayor.

"Mr. McGarvey, like many of our namesakes, represents what makes this area so special," said Elk Grove Unified School District Board President, Carmine Forcina.

At the ribbon cutting ceremony, Bob's wife, children, grandchildren and fellow City Council Members stood behind him as he spoke to a crowd of dozens of families and supporters about his pride and excitement for the new school bearing his name.

"To have anything named after you is a privilege and an honor, but to have a school carry your name is something that is truly special - so special that I get a little choked up speaking about it," said Bob McGarvey.

Following the ribbon cutting ceremony, new students, along with their families, received t-shirts featuring the school's Griffin mascot and toured the campus as part of Back to School Night.

Robert J. McGarvey Elementary School, which is still undergoing final stages of construction, is a state-of-the-art, energy-efficient school featuring a $100,000 library collection, computer lab, multi-purpose room, and more.

The new school will serve roughly 800 students who live in the housing development in south eastern Rancho Cordova known as Anatolia, and the number of students is expected to grow along with the rapidly growing population of Rancho Cordova. A large portion of the students are transferring to the new school from Sunrise Elementary School, another Elk Grove Unified School District which is located one mile north of the new school, based on the street address of their homes.

Employment Trends Show Over-parenting Intruding on Workplaces

Special Release from Pacific Staffing

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)

-The latest quarterly survey of Sacramento regional employers has discovered that 'helicopter parenting' is apparently landing at work. Polling employers regularly since 1992 it appears a new trend may be emerging in workplaces involving 'parental hovering'. HR contacts surveyed say they are hearing more often now from parents than in past years.

Contact by a parent on behalf of an applicant or employee was noted by twelve percent (12%) of service firms, two percent (2%) of manufacturers, six percent (6%) of construction companies and five percent (5%) of retail employers polled directly by phone between May 22 and June 22, 2017. Pacific Staffing learned one quarter, or twenty-five percent (25%) of all companies reported having had this experience recently when asked about it directly. This is an unwelcome new trend and seems to be growing in the workplace.

In anecdotal comments, the people who hire and manage people suggest they don't want to hear from parents in any way. Comments described personal contact by a parent as 'meddling', an 'embarrassment for parent and child', 'not appropriate' and whether positive or negative unwelcome as an 'intrusion' that raised 'privacy issues' and often resulted in an unfavorable view of that individual as an applicant, or as an employee.

One HR contact says they

Over $7 Million Approved for Community Enhancements

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - At the June 5th City Council Meeting, Rancho Cordova City Council Members approved 46 community projects in addition to ongoing City programs for Community Enhancement Fund grants for the 2017/2018 fiscal year, totaling $7.1 million.

The Community Enhancement Fund is funded by Measure H, a half-cent local sales tax measure that was approved by Rancho Cordova voters on November 4, 2014.

The fund generates approximately $7 million in sales tax revenue per year, with roughly $2 million going to community projects and the remaining $5 million allocated to public safety, public works, economic development and other public projects.

Stacy Delaney, the City's Community Enhancement

A mural by local artist Cathy Rowe that was funded by the City of Rancho Cordova's Community Enhancement Fund in 2016 was recently installed on Folsom Boulevard west of Los Nogales Way.

Analyst who manages the fund said the City received 69 grant applications for the 2017/2018 funding cycle.

There were 46 approved community projects for 2017 submitted by a range of individuals, organizations, businesses, and community partners.

"The Community Enhancement Fund is an incredible program funded by the community for the community, and we're excited to see what this round of projects brings to Rancho Cordova," said Stacy Delaney, the City's Community Enhancement Analyst.

"Each year, these dollars go towards meaningful projects that make a big difference in our community" said Mayor Donald Terry. "The Community Enhancement Fund has become an integral part of our City."

Compassion Through Action: Union Gospel Mission at 55

by Jacqueline Fox

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - For William Magana, it began with cutting. Up and down the Southern California native's body, he says, are more than 200 scars from self-mutilation that began when he was only 11, just after his mother, struggling to overcome a heroin addiction, was sent to prison outside Sacramento.

Until he was nearly 30, Magana lived between the two sides of the revolving door of foster homes, juvenile hall, mental wards, drug and alcohol addiction, arrests, prison, recovery and relapse.

"I supposed I was acting out because I wanted my mother, I wanted to be with her," says Magana, now 33. "So I started with cutting and then later it was drugs and drinking and all the things that go with that."

In 1997 Magana was given his first hit of methamphetamine and, for the next 17 years or so would work various jobs just to get enough money for more drugs. Stealing and robbing from his own employers, in one case $8,000 from the till at a local convenience store, for which he would be convicted of a felony embezzlement charge, became routine survival tactics.

"I worked to drug and drugged to live," said Magana. "It was just an ongoing battle."

Eventually, he overdosed on his psych medication and wound up back inside one more mental institution near downtown Sacramento. But upon his release from that hospital, Magana says, something different happened, and it would set him on a course for change.

"I got out with nowhere to go and a couple of homeless guys said 'Go over to Sacramento's Union Gospel Mission. They can help you there,'" Magana recalls. "So I went. And I thank God every day for this place."

In 2015 Magana enrolled in

Pastor Tim Lane, Director of Union Gospel Mission Sacramento.

the Union Gospel's nine week drug and alcohol rehabilitation program for men, began studying the teachings of Jesus Christ and the Bible, a requirement all who wish to receive services at Union, and started to turn his life around. But, as is often the case with addiction and mental health issues, Magana began cutting again and within a few months left and got back into old patterns of self-destruction. But the seed had been planted and he returned in March of 2016.

"You can do that here if you are willing," says Magana. "They saw me come back and they took me in again."

Now, 16 months clean and sober, Magana is a graduate of Union's rehabilitation program and is working as the Mission's kitchen intern, assisting with the preparation of the meals given out to the roughly 120 men and women who walk through doors each day.

At 55, Union Gospel is on the precipice of growth and much-needed restoration. The restrooms inside the men's rehabilitation center and living quarters at its Bannon Street facility have, through the donations of supporters, been given a makeover, complete with new floors, private stalls and granite countertops. Granite countertops and new floors, says Director Pastor Time Lane, may seem like small things, but to the men who are enrolled in the Mission's rehabilitation program, and the guests the facility serves, they represent little reminders of self-worth.

"What we want to do with the renovations is provide a space that gives our residents a sense of pride and value," said Lane, who has served in his current capacity at Union Gospel since 2005.

Union Gospel can currently house up to about 60 men in its temporary shelter, but those stays are only good for roughly seven nights, after which they must leave for a minimum of three nights before cycling back in again. This is to allow others to rotate in. They must carry a current TB card, proof of a recent, negative Tuberculosis test and inoculation and attend bible study sessions.

Meals are served twice daily inside the main dining hall. In 2016, more than 100,000 men, women and children received a hot meal at Union.

Although the area's homeless population is rising, the numbers served at the mission remain relatively consistent, but that is because availability is limited to current capacity only. Union Gospel's Bible-based, modified 12-step drug and alcohol rehabilitation program can serve up to 24 men at a time. Its goal is to steer participants toward a life of recovery, as well as a life centered on the gospel. "They don't have to convert, but they have to give us a chance to offer them information about the teachings of the Bible and how, if they want to, they can change for the better, change for good," says Lane.

Union Gospel Mission offers free showers and access to clean clothes for men who come in from the street during specified hours during the week. In addition, weekly food boxes are donated at a rate of roughly 2,000 a year. The Mission also hands out some 12,000 hygiene kits with shampoo, deodorant, toothbrushes and other essentials that are hard to come by for many of the area's homeless, as well as job-preparation training, mailroom services, locker rentals, access to a medical clinic, free haircuts, toys for children at Christmas, and other services as the need arises.

The main dining hall is transformed into a warming center in winter and, especially with the region's latest heatwave, serves as a cooling center during the day time. Every August, Union also puts on a massive birthday party open to anyone on the streets, working or living onsite, as way to provide them with recognition of a day that, for many, often goes unnoticed.

"When you're on the streets, homeless, or estranged from family members, your birthday can come and go without anyone acknowledging that," says Eileen Trussell, Union Gospel's office manager. "So we get balloons and have a giant cake and just offer one big birthday party for anyone who wants to come. It's an important thing to have someone acknowledge your birthday."

For all its able to provide the area's homeless and needy population, Union Gospel's resources for women are limited, although statistics suggest women, including those with children in particular, represent a growing sector of the homeless population across the region and nationwide.

The Bannon Street facility does provide one critical service: It's women's drop in clothes closet, where blouses, dresses, skirts, jackets, shoes, purses and even accessories, are available, free to any one in need. There is also a small inventory of clothing and shoes for children.

Lane, who was raised by a single mother, said the clothes closet fills a significant gap for many women and those with children, but added that there is a vital need to do much more, as more women are not just in need of clothing but also a place to sleep.

"We served just over 1,500 women and children through the clothing closet in 2016," said Lane. "But clothing is not enough. We are seeing more and more women on the streets with no place to go. Right now we don't have the facilities to house women who need a place to sleep, but we are moving in that direction."

Earlier this year, Union Gospel purchased a 9,600 square-foot building on B Street in the River District with the intention of establishing a women's rehabilitation program with beds for overnight stays. Permits are

He has re-established a relationship with two of this three children and is looking forward to once again having a place of his own where they can be a family again. As a condition of his parole, Magana promised to back the employer he stole from in exchange for a reduced sentence on his record. With the help of the $200 a month he earns working in the kitchen, he's managed to whittle that $8,000 down to $3,000.

"This time, I've gone deeper into God," said Magana. "I worked hard to learn as much as I could and today I have no desire to drink, use drugs or cut myself. God has taken those impulses away from me."

While the journey has included a few bumps and being pulled for the new enterprise, but unfortunately, says Lane, the process is moving very slowly, as officials have been reticent to allow for the opening of one more homeless services center in an area of town largely considered to be saturated with homeless services already.

"We are in the permitting process now, but it's moving very slowly," said Lane. "Unfortunately the city has some concerns, and we understand why. With the confluence of two rivers, you have all the homelessness you need. But the need is strong. We are seeing many more women out there than we used to see. I know one woman who literally grew up on the streets. Her mother was homeless. I don't know where she is today, but her daughter is out there. She's had three babies out there on the streets. The state takes them away each time and she goes right back out again."

But for every heartbreak story there is the potential for thousands of stories of success: More than 21,000 men received services through Union Gospel in 2016 and, of that number, 12 successfully enrolled in and graduated from the mission's nine-month rehabilitation program and started new lives in recovery and service, Magana among them.

detours, Magana is on a new path, one of recovery fueled, he says, by the power of prayer and the commitment to one day giving back what has so freely been given to him. Twice.

"I never knew how much happiness I could get out of helping others," Magana said. "It's filled a piece of me I think was missing." ★

FCUSD Appoints Next Assistant Superintendent for Human Resources

Special Release from FCUSD

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Superintendent Sarah Koligian has appointed a 20-year veteran of education to serve as Folsom Cordova’s next Assistant Superintendent of Human Resources.

Don Ogden is currently the superintendent of the Vallecito Union School District in Calaveras County and has previously held administrative positions in the Sacramento City Unified and Galt Joint Union school districts.

Ogden, 54, will serve on the superintendent’s Executive Cabinet and will oversee all employee recruitment and retention in a district with roughly 1,700 full-time employees. The position also serves as Folsom Cordova’s chief negotiator in labor relations matters. Ogden fills the vacancy left by Karen Knight, who retired June 30.

“I am thrilled for the opportunity to join Folsom Cordova’s excellent team,” Ogden said. “I’m passionate about student achievement, and I’m looking forward to building strong relationships with our staff and working together to help our kids succeed.”

The Folsom Cordova Board of Education approved Ogden’s appointment during a special meeting July 5. He will begin Monday, July 17.

“When our interview panel met Don, we were most impressed with his personnel experience and people skills, and we believe he will be a great fit with our team,” Koligian said. “Working as a superintendent in a smaller district has afforded him the opportunity to work directly as a coach and mentor and to handle complicated personnel matters.”

Ogden has been the superintendent of the three-school Vallecito Union district since 2013, where he also has taken on principal responsibilities. There, he has provided leadership mentoring and training, instructional coaching, and worked closely with the chief business officer to operate a fiscally prudent budget. All three of his schools have been named California Gold Ribbon Schools in the last two years, and in 2016 he was named Region 7 Superintendent/Principal of the Year by the Association of California School Administrators.

A former classroom teacher, Ogden has held numerous administrative positions throughout California. Before Vallecito Union, Ogden was the founding principal of the California Connections Academy @ Ripon charter school and also served as principal of Camellia Basic School in Sacramento City Unified, where he was named the 2002 Milken National Educator and his school was awarded National Blue Ribbon status. His leadership experience extends into the private sector as well: For six years, Ogden was vice president of Builders Choice Inc.

Ogden holds a bachelor of science in computer science from California State University, Stanislaus, and a master’s degree in education from the University of La Verne. He and his wife of 25 years, Lori, have two daughters and are longtime residents of Rancho Murieta. In his spare time, Ogden enjoys diving for abalone, cycling, and is on a quest to read every biography of each U.S. president. ★

By Bob McGarvey

We all become involved in school things while we are going to elementary school. We make friends that we would have never met if it wasn't for our classmates in school. We learn about music, math, sports, and the list goes on. Kindergarten, first grade to sixth grade, middle school, high school, and so on, and then before you know it, you are involved in school again; with your own children!

Then we find ourselves putting in much more time in work, church, organizations, and leadership events, etc. And like most of the people in Rancho Cordova, you don't think about whether to help people or not because you were taught that helping others is the right thing to do. Others helped me and my family when I was growing up. When my wife, son and I needed help because of an accident, there were always people in Rancho Cordova who came to our aid. Now over the years, there was never a question about giving someone else a hand if we could.

Being very involved in Rancho Cordova over the years and seeing the end results of what you have done has been very gratifying in itself. Then there was a pat on the back from the Elk Grove Unified School District, which we never even thought of. My wife and I were sitting at a luncheon before a workshop began,

And Another Thing ...

Becoming a Part of Each Student's History

and the Rancho Cordova Mayor Donald Terry stood up and said the Elk Grove Unified School District was building a second elementary school in Rancho Cordova. We were both glad we were sitting down, because he then said the school will be named "The Robert J. McGarvey Elementary School!" And there was even more of a shock when he said he was on the naming committee, and there were no other names submitted. This isn't the first time I commented about our new school in Rancho Cordova, but when you read this column, the school will be in full operation because the first day of its school year is July 13, 2017.

To have a new elementary school open and have it carry your name is such a privilege and an honor that it is almost hard to speak. There will initially be hundreds and then thousands of children who will be going through the doors of the Robert J. McGarvey Elementary School. Hundreds and then thousands of parents and other family members will also be very involved in that school over the years. The numbers are stunning. Over the next few years, the number of students will be increasing because on July 13th, the school will open with 750 students, but the school is being built to handle 1,450 students. I have to admit that an elementary school that large, with classes for kindergarten to sixth grade, is larger than any I have seen before. With the growth that is currently going on in that part of Rancho Cordova though, that is only the second elementary school in that area, and more are planned in the future along with middle schools and a high school.

This is some of what I said

To have anything named after you is a privilege and an honor, but to have a school carry your name is something that is truly special - so special that I get a little choked up speaking about it. I looked at the audience who was there to celebrate the new school, and I looked at the school itself, and I can't help but think of all of the students, parents and grandparents, teachers and administrators who will walk through those doors. Why is this truly special? Walking through the doors of Robert J. McGarvey Elementary School allows me to become a part of each student's educational history. Their first day of school, the day they learn to read, their first report card, their favorite teacher.

This year's sixth grade students will be asked, "What elementary school did you graduate from?" "Robert J. McGarvey Elementary," they'll say. When our TKers and kindergartners are in college in 2030, they will reminisce about their days at Robert J. McGarvey Elementary and how they were the first class to walk through its doors. It's an amazing feeling to have this Rancho Cordova elementary school bear my name. My wife, Terri, was a teacher in the Elk Grove Unified School District for 27 years, so being at that school feels a little like coming home for us.

I hope the Robert J. McGarvey Elementary School will be a school filled with both young and old who have a love of learning and who go on to be leaders in Rancho Cordova and beyond.

From Councilman Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time.

By David Dickstein, Gold River resident

Driving home from a long, hard day at work, and thankful that I got one as opposed to the skilled people hating every moment being unemployed, I took notice of a large banner above Coloma Food & Liquor in Rancho Cordova. You know the place – the mini-mart next to Wienerschnitzel.

What caught my eye was a large red, yellow and white sign that read, "WE ACCEPT EBT." Wrongly or rightly, my first thought was that liquor stores shouldn't be part of the Electronic Benefit Transfer Project due to the inflated prices inherent to such businesses. That's just the nature of liquor stores, mini-marts, convenience stores – whatever you want to call them. They charge significantly higher prices than conventional groceries or supermarkets because smaller retailers order lower quantities of inventory at higher per-unit prices from wholesalers. Anyone who has stepped foot in one or looks up Wikipedia knows that.

My beef when I saw the outdoor banner wasn't just with Coloma Food & Liquor, but EBT recipients who shop there. Trust me, my heart and taxes warmly go out to those on welfare who try to get off it. But if I were in need of financial aid, I wouldn't be buying groceries at a liquor store. I'd try to put more food on the table by stretching my dollars at, say, the warehouse-style Smart & Final just around the corner. And if that wasn't convenient, then a supermarket or drugstore with serious buying power, like our Bel Air and Rite-Aid that also accept EBT. These big retailers would never be undersold on essentials by a high-priced mini-mart, right?

In order to stand on my soapbox with confidence, I visited all four of those stores on a recent Saturday to price-check

'Fool's Gold'

Buying Ben & Jerry's on Food Stamps

a half-dozen like grocery items. Besides such staples as milk, bread and boxed cereal, I went with a carton of Coke because "junk foods" is routinely the second-most popular category for EBT households after meat, poultry and seafood. Sadly, according to a November 2016 report by the U.S. Department of Agriculture, 20 cents of every EBT dollar are spent on sweetened beverages, desserts, salty snacks and candy. Because "frozen prepared foods" comes in at No. 4 (vegetables are third, yippee), I also tossed a frozen pizza in the shopping cart.

Now for dessert. Super premium ice cream was my pick because a year ago I seethed over a mom on welfare splurging on Ben & Jerry's. OK, calm down all you bleeding-heart snickers. I'm not saying that EBT cardholders shouldn't enjoy the finer things of life. But even my wife and I feel guilty buying luxury brands for non-essentials, and we're double-income empty nesters, knock on wood.

So, let's get to the research. Below are the lowest non-member everyday prices I found on like products at Coloma Food & Liquor ("Coloma") and Smart & Final, also in Rancho Cordova, and the Bel Air and Rite-Aid across Sunrise in Gold River.

- 12-can carton of regular Coke: $4.99 (Coloma), $6.99 (Bel Air), $5.99 (S&F), $6.29 (Rite-Aid).
- Two 1-gallon jugs of whole or 2% reduced fat milk: $6.99 (Coloma), $5.98 (Bel Air), $4.80 (S&F), $7.98 (Rite-Aid).
- Loaf of white bread: $1.99 (Coloma), $1.28 (Bel Air), $1.59 (S&F), $2.99 (Rite-Aid).

- 12-ounce box of Kellogg's Rice Krispies: $3.99 (Coloma), $2.99 (Bel Air), $3.29 (S&F), $5.29 (Rite-Aid).

- DiGiorno frozen pizza: $6.99 (Coloma), $6.99 (Bel Air), $5.89 (S&F), $7.99 (Rite-Aid).

- Pint of Ben & Jerry's ice cream: $5.49 (Coloma), $4.99 (Bel Air), $3.89 (S&F), $5.99 (Rite-Aid).

Clearly, my knee-jerk was unfair to Coloma Food & Liquor. For a mini-mart, those items are reasonably priced. We can also conclude, based on this very small sample, that EBT funds stretch furthest at Smart & Final or Bel Air, depending on the item. As for the nation's third-largest drug-store chain, Rite-Aid should be ashamed of itself. I get it – it's not a grocery. But charging nearly double for the same box of cereal found at another store mere steps away? Not OK, and the Rainbo Bread guy who was stocking Bel Air's shelves when I was doing my thing agreed.

"Yeah," he said, pointing in the direction of Rite-Aid, "you don't want to spend your EBT over there."

So, color me enlightened. I started out my story thinking a close-by Rancho Cordova liquor store would be the villain and it winds up being the place in Gold River that fills my prescriptions. Or at least it did.

And, again, my apologies to Coloma Food & Liquor for assuming the worst. "It's a common misconception," I was told by store employee Shan that morning. He also said that for the sake of accuracy I should expand my grocery list.

"These cheap things," he said, pointing to the package of six high-fat Hostess powdered mini donuts. "That's a meal for many of our EBT customers." Sigh.

SMUD Now Replacing Dozens of Poles, Miles of Cable

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG)
- If you're a SMUD customer, there's a good chance you'll see SMUD workers out this summer along area streets and highways working to improve the SMUD electrical system. Reliability is a core value of community-owned SMUD, so a lot of the work is preventative, concentrating on replacing older power poles and installing and replacing miles of underground cable. Safety is ingrained in SMUD's culture. Doing the work now precludes needing to do it later such as during the winter storm season.

SMUD's electrical grid serves about a million and a half people. The system is about 40 percent overhead (wires and transformers and other equipment on poles) and about 60 percent underground (buried cable and other equipment, and pad-mounted transformers). SMUD plans to replace approximately a thousand poles over the rest of the calendar year and some 3,000 poles over the next several years.

Most of the electrical grid is redundant, which means most of the customers affected by an outage can be rerouted to other power lines and circuits while the underground cable or damaged pole, transformer, or other electrical equipment is fixed or replaced. Most outages last less than an hour as a result. There are, however, some people who will experience longer outages because there are no redundant power lines in their area, or the damaged equipment affects them directly.

While underground electrical equipment provides for better aesthetics, it can also present significant challenges for all utilities, including SMUD. By its nature, any problem with equipment installed underground is going to be more difficult to initially locate, sometimes taking an hour or two. Repairing it can take several hours depending on the problem and the location. The longer restoration time is a trade-off for having underground service, compared to overhead service.

SMUD line crews replaced power poles on Hazel Avenue overnight June 28/29. The poles support 69,000-volt power lines that are the backbone of the SMUD system that delivers electricity to homes and businesses. The work is part of SMUD's efforts to enhance the SMUD grid's reliability.

The underground power cables that were manufactured decades ago tend to have higher failure rates. SMUD is replacing that cable with much better cable that has benefited from more rigorous testing and better manufacturing techniques. They are replacing the older cable at a rate of about 400,000 feet—or more than 75 miles of new cable—which would be roughly the distance from Folsom to Lake Tahoe, per year over the next several years.

Meanwhile, the SMUD smart grid has become more robust every year since smart meters were installed at the beginning of the decade. The smart grid now enables more expedient identification of outages, which results in quicker restoration times. Sometimes power can be restored remotely or even automatically without having to dispatch a troubleshooter and a truck.

No one likes being without power, even for a short period of time. If your power is out, please contact SMUD and report it at the SMUD.org Outage Portal page, or by calling 1-888-456-SMUD. SMUD has optimized its outage map and outage reporting options for mobile phones as well. For more information visit SMUD.org.

Discussing and negotiating

Dear Dave,

I've accepted a promotion that would take me from an hourly wage to a salaried position. Do you have any advice for negotiating a salary?

- J

Dear J,

The quick and simple answer to this question is you negotiate it based on what you're worth to the company. Now, how do you figure that out?

There are a couple of measuring sticks you can use. One is associated with the revenue you bring in, and that's a nice, concrete reference. Another thing you can do is research some of the more reputable career websites and develop a compensation study based on comparable positions in your area.

If you're a valuable team member of mine who's moving from hourly to salary, it wouldn't be a "negotiation" — it would be a discussion. Honestly, most positions are priced initially at the amount you can be replaced for in the new role. In other words, what's the going rate for someone in your position?

If it were me, I'd produce two or three well-researched compensation studies. Give them to your bosses, and talk it through with them. Depending on the size of the company, they may not have done that much work figuring it out themselves.

It's kind of like deciding what to ask for when you sell a car. You try to appraise it for what it's worth in the marketplace to other people. That's the way you have a discussion. It's not that you're telling them what to do or presenting an ultimatum, you're asking questions and presenting information. If someone did that in my office with a respectful and professional manner, it would go a long way.

—Dave

Hands off the emergency fund!

Dear Dave,

Sometimes our budget gets busted because of home improvements and various other things. I think we should take money from our emergency fund when this happens, but my wife says it should come out of our restaurant or fun money. What's your opinion?

- Josh

Dear Josh,

Overspending isn't an emergency. If you budget a set amount in one category, and you go over that amount, you've got to reduce something in another area to stay within your budget for the month.

If something happens on a pretty regular basis, it's not an emergency, it's a predictable event. That means you need to budget a larger amount for home improvements or whatever the problem area may be.

On a month-to-month basis, if you have $200 budgeted for household repairs, and any work turns out to be $300, I'd rather you cut back on eating out or another non-essential category to make up the difference.

Your wife is right on this one! —Dave

RETURN OF “SPIDER-MAN” A WELCOME SIGHT FOR SUPERHERO ACTION

A Film Review by Tim Riley

SPIDER-MAN: HOMECOMING (Rated PG-13)

There is no escaping the fact that the Marvel Cinematic Universe, which now includes the popular comic book character Spider-Man in its orbit along with all of the Avengers, is being rebooted once again after the initial Sam Raimi effort fifteen years ago.

As good as the earlier “Spider-Man” superhero action films were when Tobey Maguire was the web-slinger in the first two installments directed by Sam Raimi, British actor Tom Holland looks appropriately youthful to be teenaged Peter Parker, aka Spidey the apprentice crime-fighter.

Moreover, Holland not only looks convincing as the 15-year-old nerdy high school student struggling with social awkwardness in “Spider-Man: Homecoming,” he has an almost uncanny resemblance to Tobey Maguire’s exuberant portrayal of the very same character.

During last year’s “Captain America: Civil War,” which featured battling superheroes that aligned with either Chris Evans’ Captain America or Robert Downey, Jr.’s Tony Stark, Holland was introduced as the up-and-coming novice Spider-Man to be mentored by Tony Stark.

The opening scenes of “Spider-Man: Homecoming” offer Peter Parker the ability to demonstrate his enthusiasm, by way of cellphone recordings of the action in “Civil War,” for graduating from his current status of the neighborhood good guy helping old ladies and thwarting car thieves.

It’s great fun to see Peter donning his homemade superhero costume so he can sling his web throughout his home turf of Queens in search of doing good deeds at night while trying to fit in at his high school by day.

Teen angst drives the science student to have a big crush on a fellow teammate on the school’s academic decathlon squad that is set to compete in a national tournament in Washington, D.C.

The object of his affection would be senior Liz (Laura Harrier), a beautiful, popular classmate who happens to have a family connection that proves to be challenging for Peter in other ways unrelated to any courtship.

Meanwhile, the sarcastic, sardonic Michelle (Zendaya) is a better fit for Peter, if only because smarts and intellectual demeanor allow her to catch on to Peter’s game. Besides, Liz is way out of the league of a nerdy sophomore.

Aside from hiding his talents from his attractive guardian Aunt May (Marisa Tomei), the object of the unrequited attention of the local deli owner, Peter must contend with the fact that his best friend Ned (Jacob Batalon) inadvertently learns of his alter-ego’s identity.

As a fellow science geek, Ned proves to be a source of comic relief as he tries to convince classmates that Peter is actually a friend of Spider-Man who could get the superhero to show up at a house party, resulting in Ned constantly teetering on the edge of spilling the beans.

Meanwhile, the brilliant Peter starts failing at school when he becomes preoccupied with a shiny new costume outfitted with serious technological gadgets provided by Tony Stark, despite misgivings about Spider-Man moving at too fast of a pace to superhero status.

Seeking to put a leash on Peter/Spider-Man, Stark dispatches his driver Happy Hogan (Jon Favreau) to keep his protégé in check, sticking to simple neighborhood chores rather than becoming embroiled in bigger things.

But fate has other plans for Spider-Man’s evolution when only Peter realizes that a serious criminal enterprise has formed before his very eyes with super villain Adrian Toomes (Michael Keaton, in fine bad guy mode) running a salvage operation of the debris left behind by the Avengers’ alien battle in “Civil War.”

Thanks to the machinations of Tony Stark, Toomes loses the salvage contract to a bunch of officious bureaucrats and federal agents that toss his crew from the wreckage site, but not before Toomes makes off with some dangerous weapons grade technology.

From that point forward, Spider-Man is pretty much alone in fighting the Toomes gang as they seek to destroy the Washington Monument during the school field trip to the decathlon that is spectacularly well-staged.

Ordinarily, I would be skeptical about the surfeit of superhero movies that seem to dominate the summer box office, but “Homecoming” actually works for a doubter like me, and I suspect that fans of the genre would likely be thrilled with this one.

Overall, “Spider-Man: Homecoming” functions well on a personal level of fleshing out Tom Holland’s Peter Parker as an ordinary guy wanting to do spectacular things, and then allowing just enough dazzling action scenes to generate plenty of excitement and wonder. ★

TRUSTEE SALE NOTICES

T.S. No. 17-46453 APN: 072-0310-031-0000 Loan Number: 025026-1
NOTICE OF TRUSTEE'S SALE
YOU ARE IN DEFAULT UNDER A DEED OF TRUST DATED 2/5/2008. UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER. A public auction sale to the highest bidder for cash, cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, check drawn by a state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, or savings association, or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state will be held by the duly appointed trustee as shown below, of all right, title, and interest conveyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described below. The sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, expressed or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to pay the remaining principal sum of the note(s) secured by the Deed of Trust, with interest and late charges thereon, as provided in the note(s), advances, under the terms of the Deed of Trust, interest thereon, fees, charges and expenses of the Trustee for the total amount (at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale) reasonably estimated to be set forth below. The amount may be greater on the day of sale. Trustor: CRYSTAL D. If no street address or other common designation is shown, directions to the location of the property may be obtained by sending a written request to the beneficiary within 10 days of the date of first publication of this Notice of Sale. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county

recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (714) 848-9272 or visit this Internet Web site www.ellipostandpub.com, using the file number assigned to this case 17-46453. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligations secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of this Notice of Trustee's Sale is estimated to be $263,419.74 (Estimated). However, prepayment premiums, accrued interest and advances will increase this figure prior to sale. Beneficiary's bid at said public sale may include all or part of said amount. In addition to cash, the Trustee will accept a cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, savings association or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the California Financial Code and authorized to do business in California, or other such funds as may be acceptable to the Trustee. In the event tender other than cash is accepted, the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed Upon Sale until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right. The property offered for sale excludes all funds held on account by the property receiver, if applicable. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. Notice to Potential Bidders If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a Trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a Trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same Lender may hold more than one mortgage or Deed of Trust on the property. Notice to Property Owner The sale date shown on this Notice of Sale may be postponed one or more times by the Mortgagee, Beneficiary, Trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about Trustee Sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call In Source Logic at 702-659-7766 for information regarding the Trustee's Sale or visit the Internet Web site address listed below for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, CA08000354-17-1. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. # Slim Randles’ HOME COUNTRY

Billy had to get his chores done early. It was the heat, of course. Now that it’s summer, he no longer has to escort the kids across the street while Martin holds the sign. No kids at the crosswalk for a couple of weeks now.

So Billy, being the official town dog, was still kind of feeling his way along in this business, because he was not quite a year into his reign and he was learning to roll with the seasons. He got up from his bed under the elm tree before it was even daylight and went on down to the Mule Barn truck stop and coffee shop, because they turned their lights on first. Well, except for the police station, and nobody needed him there, really. So he’d go to the back door of the Mule Barn and wait until the kid with the apron came out with some trash. Then he’d wag real hard and sometimes it means fried egg scraps, sometimes a porch chop bone, and if he was lucky, a slice of bacon. Real bacon. The kind that crunches.

Then he’d kinda hang around in the park for a while in case anyone who was out for a walk and was dogless would like to have him tag along for company. Walking without a dog, everyone knew, just wasn’t right. And the water in the fountain was always good.

After the old folks had their coffee and breakfast at the Rest of Your Life Retirement Home, they go in the activity room and watch the news on television. Billy always helped them with that. There were good ear rumplers in it for him by experienced rumplers.

But in the heat of the day, there wasn’t much else to do but go to the shade and sleep.

I mean, not every day can be as much fun as helping the kids get to school. But September’s coming. He just had to nap and wait. September’s coming.

Hepatitis C Rates in Young Adults Increasing in California

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - New data released by the California Department of Public Health (CDPH) show an increase in newly reported hepatitis C cases among young adults in the state. Between 2007 and 2015, newly reported hepatitis C infections increased 55 percent among men 20-29 years of age and 37 percent among women in the same age group.

These data are consistent with increases in hepatitis C across the country and highlight the importance of hepatitis C testing, treatment, and prevention. Injection drug use among young adults increases their risk of both hepatitis C transmission and infection. Prevention strategies, including access to sterile syringes and safe injection equipment and treatment for opioid use disorders, can reduce the rate of new hepatitis C infections among young people who inject drugs by 60 percent.

“As a physician, I have seen firsthand the deadly effects of hepatitis C,” said CDPH Director and State Public Health Officer Dr. Karen Smith. “Patients with advanced liver disease may not know they are infected until it’s too late,” said Dr. Smith. “However, this is preventable. New treatments can cure hepatitis C in as little as two months. I urge people to speak with their doctors about getting tested.”

An estimated 400,000 Californians live with chronic hepatitis C, but many do not know they are infected. Hepatitis C-related deaths now outnumber those due to HIV.

The U.S. Food and Drug Administration (FDA) recently approved the use of new treatment for adolescents 12 years and older, raising hopes for teenagers infected with hepatitis C. Although young Californians (ages 20-29) make up an increasing number of newly reported infections, baby boomers account for about one out of two newly reported chronic hepatitis C cases.

“Two groups are top priority for hepatitis C testing – young people who inject drugs and baby boomers,” said Dr. Smith. “Drug users may be at high risk for transmitting hepatitis C to others if they are not being treated, and baby boomers may be at risk for developing serious liver disease, even if they have no symptoms.”

CDPH urges all Californians who have ever injected drugs, even once, and all people born between 1945 and 1965 to talk to their doctors about getting tested for hepatitis C. Patients who test positive should receive care from an experienced provider.

The Department is working to address hepatitis C on multiple fronts, including monitoring hepatitis C trends, producing data reports, educating health care providers on hepatitis C screening and treatment guidelines, and supporting hepatitis C testing and access to care in settings where at-risk people are served. CDPH also supports coordinated HIV and hepatitis C testing in non-traditional settings, such as mobile health vans. In 2016, about 7,200 people received hepatitis C testing through these programs.

The California Legislature allocated $2.2 million in July 2015 for three-year pilot projects to help ensure people with hepatitis C are aware of their infections and linked to care.

Game Plots

Games Show is Out of Touch

By Noah Howard

The Electronic Entertainment Expo (more commonly known as E3) is the video game industry’s Comic Con and Cannes rolled into one, a massive press-only event (until this year when they let in the public for the first time) that serves simultaneously as a showcase for the best that big-budgets have to offer and as an opportunity to beat consumers over the head with flashy advertisements. E3’s “press conferences” have been anything but for a number of years, transforming into massive professionally designed theatrical shows where gaming world superstars share the stage with stadium-like screens, showcasing the best of what a company has to offer. To the delight of viewers everywhere (even when E3 was press-only, anybody could tune in to watch online for free) the biggest most bombastic games would burst onstage with trailers and demos designed both to awe and to whip up a frenzy of preorders.

But the E3 conferences, one each for Playstation, Xbox, Electronic Arts, Ubisoft, and, to a lesser extent, Bethesda Game Studios, more often than not undermine their strengths. Though all five companies have been much better in recent years of listening to consumers and delivering what they want, this year’s E3 served to painfully show just how corporate these entities are, and just how out of touch they can still be with who exactly “gamers” are and what they want to see. Electronic Arts announced Need for Speed Payback with a thrilling Fast and Furious style trailer...but felt the need to bookend it with an awkward YouTube celebrity reading (badly) off of a prompter. They showed off some beautiful gameplay for Star Wars Battlefront 2, but overlaid annoying live commentary from Internet personalities who hadn’t the slightest clue what they were talking about. Microsoft decided to announce a new model Porsche onstage (we’re at a game show, not a car show), Ubisoft CEO Yves Guillemot posed in a stiff “Charlie’s Angels” pose with Nintendo designer Shigeru Miyamoto, and Bethesda spent most of their show talking about downloadable extras we don’t care about for games we don’t care about.

Sony had been the light in the dark these past few years, but they laid so many of their cards out on the table at their Playstation Experience event that they had almost nothing new to announce. While its competitors were awkward as usual, Playstation’s show was laughable simply because of its excess. A live band in front of a light show projected onto a three story indoor waterfall is a bit melodramatic for a two-minute trailer for a game we’ve seen before.

The ultimate result was an E3 that couldn’t help but feel at once

This year’s E3 served to painfully show just how corporate these entities are, and just how out of touch they can still be with who exactly “gamers” are and what they want to see.

overly rehearsed and exceedingly amateur. What we want to see is new and exciting games, not filler or rehashed versions of experiences we’ve already seen. What we want to see are developers speaking with genuine passion (designer Michel Ancel tearing up with happiness after the announcement of Beyond Good and Evil 2 was Ubisoft’s best moment), not dryly repeating the same jargon-filled lines we’ve heard every year for a decade. What we definitely don’t want to see are focus-grouped inclusions of celebrities or advertising for products that have nothing to do with gaming. E3 is at its best when our mutual passion for games as both creators and consumers comes through in the smiles of the developers, the cheers of the audiences, and, of course, in the games themselves.

CORDOVA SPORTS

Cordova Gets ‘Competition’ at 7-on-7

By Mike Bush

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Against three teams, the Cordova High School football team experienced competition on the field without pads.

The Lancers were one of four prep football teams that competed in round-robin 7-on-7 non-padded and non-contact games at Jesuit High. Cordova played host Jesuit, along with St. Patrick’s/St. Vincent of Vallejo and Cosumnes Oaks of Elk Grove.

“The 7-on-7 is all about getting competition,” said Cordova head coach Darren Nill of the games. “You want to know how the kids respond. It’s not so much if you win, it’s not so much if you lose, it’s about competing and which people are going to step up and rise to that occasion.”

Cordova matched up well with Jesuit, which advanced to the Sac-Joaquin Section Division II semifinals last fall.

“They were huge,” said Nill of the Marauder players. “They were competitive. They were getting at my guys, and my guys responded. I couldn’t have been happier.”

Next for Cordova was St. Patrick’s/St. Vincent, which posted a 13-3 record that included a state Division VI title last fall, and Cosumnes Oaks. Cordova’s offense was led by quarterbacks Tyreke Tate, a senior who started at free safety on last year’s squad that won a share of the Sierra Valley Conference title, and Johnnele Sanders, a junior who will be one of the Lancers’ wide receivers and at defensive back this season.

“He’s done a little bit of quarterbacking throughout his career,” said Nill of Tate. “The kid (Sanders) can throw. He’s stepped up.”

St. Patrick’s/St. Vincent came out with strong athletes, Nill pointed out. But his Lancers were able to contain them on both sides of the ball.

“We took care of them pretty handedly,” Nill said. “They were competitive, but we out-athlete them.”

The Lancers substituted freely against St. Patrick’s/St. Vincent after taking an early 21-0 lead. That allowed the Cordova coaching staff to evaluate players looking for playing time.

“We played everybody in that game,” Nill said.

In the final game against Cosumnes Oaks, Cordova flexed its muscles against another D-II school that is moving to D-I in the section’s next league realignment cycle for 2018-22.

“Competition is something totally different than reputations in practice,” said Nill of the Wolf Pack. “They have a ton of athletes that showed up ... to be even with them was pretty impressive.”

At the end of the games, Cordova performed well on both sides of the ball that had many players getting their reps on the field.

“That’s what we’re trying to do is get a feel for what each kid can do under a little bit of fire,”

Nill said. “I couldn’t have been more happier with the way they responded.”

Prep football players are allowed to take part in voluntarily weight training and conditioning during the section’s dead period that started Monday.

On Monday, July 31st, Cordova and the rest of the section’s high school football teams can begin conditioning. On Monday, Aug. 7th, schools can start practicing in pads. Cordova opens its season against Rio Americano at Del Campo High on Friday, Aug. 25th. ★ were surprised when a parent called to say they fired their child without taking time to really ‘understand’ them. The response was ‘just need them to do the job, not understand them’. Another described a parent who called to say they should not rescind a job offer as a parking valet, but couldn’t dispute the decision when they learned the individual was let go when they could not drive a stick shift. A fact not revealed in the interview or to the parent.

With seventy-two percent (72%) of employers in the Sacramento region hiring in the next three months, new challenges are emerging. They include finding qualified applicants, including a wide variety of IT positions, construction equipment operators and skilled trades, sales, customer service and adequate numbers of entry level people. HR contacts also report retention of current workers and growing wage pressure from the thin talent pool as issues in Q3. Nineteen percent (19%) of hiring was motivated by seasonal needs in July, August and September.
