New Employment Report Shows Poor State Leadership

By Paul Scholl

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The Center for Jobs and the Economy recently released its full analysis of the May employment data.

In the State Employment Growth Rankings, California dropped to 3rd place behind Florida and Texas Between May 2016 and May 2017, Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) data shows the total number of employed in California increased by 250,000 (seasonally adjusted), or 13.4% of the total net employment gains in this period for the United States. California dropped to 3rd place behind Florida (which has a civilian working age population only 55% as large as California's) at 409,600 and Texas (68% as large) at 254,800.

Measured by percentage change in employment over the year, California dropped to 33rd highest. Adjusted for population, California dropped to 35th.

The report shows California's Labor Force Participation Rate at its lowest level since 1976. California's participation rate (seasonally adjusted) in May declined to 62.0%, while the US rate dropped only 0.2 point to 62.7%. Improvement in the unemployment rate at both the California and national levels came from these contractions in the labor force numbers.

The seasonally adjusted California participation rate in May was at its lowest level since 1976. The unadjusted rate was at its second lowest level since 1976. In the recent May Budget Revision, the Governor again pointed to the increasing share of lower wage jobs as one of the prime causes of slowing state revenues growth.

"The level of wages has been revised downward, and cash receipts have been significantly below forecast." - Gov. Jerry Brown.

Brown continues to not take responsibility for the many lost high paying jobs leaving California for better business climates in other states. California ranks last in the United States for being pro-business. Over one-third of jobs growth over the past 12 months has been in the low wage industries.

Speaker Highlights Rancho Cordova Economics in Megaregion

By Shelly Lembke

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Barry Broome, President and Chief Executive Officer of Greater Sacramento Economic Council, was the guest speaker at this month's Cordova Community Council Luncheon. Broome's presentation to the group painted his vision of what he thinks Sacramento area economics can be: a data and evidence-driven "megaregional" hub extending far beyond Sacramento. Broome is developing an inclusive strategy playing to the strengths of northern California. It's a methodology he has developed throughout his professional life.

An Ohio native, Broome was working in the inner city of Cleveland when the mayor of Toledo called, looking for a new economic development director. "He had been through seventeen," said Broome of infamous Carty Finkbeiner. Toledo was in

Cooley Honors Local Business at 2017 Salute to Small Business

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - On Monday, June 5, Assemblyman Ken Cooley (D-Rancho Cordova) honored Kniesel's Collision, Inc. as the 8th Assembly District's 2017 Small Business of the Year.

Every year, members of the California State legislature take time to honor a small business from their district. The Salute to Small Business event provides an opportunity for small business owners to meet and share success stories with other small business owners from across the state. The California Small Business Association is a volunteer-driven, non-profit, non-partisan organization with the mission to provide small businesses with a meaningful voice in state and federal government.

"To honor Kniesel's Collision as my Small Business of the Year brings me great pride," said Assemblyman Cooley. "Kniesel's commitment to customer service and to their employees truly exemplifies servant leadership."

After emigrating from an Austrian refugee camp after World War II, Richard Kniesel founded Kniesel's Collision in 1968. Richard has since handed the reins over to his two sons, Robert and Tom. Having grown up in the business, they remain strong in their commitment to the family's founding core values: integrity, trust, and quality. Kniesel's Collision also provides support to numerous charitable organizations including local food banks, high school athletic booster clubs, Boy Scout Troops, Court Appointed Special Advocates, and breast cancer research.

"It is truly an honor and I am humbled to be recognized as the Small Business of the Year for our area," said Richard Kniesel. "When I landed at Ellis Island in the early 1950's, I was bound for Chicago, Illinois, but by the grace of God, I came to Citrus Heights instead, and I am forever thankful."

Assemblyman Ken Cooley represents the 8th Assembly District which includes the communities of Arden-Arcade, Carmichael, Citrus Heights, Rancho Cordova, Rancho Murietta, Rosemont, Wilton and other portions of unincorporated Sacramento County. Divine Love: the Answer to Universal Health

International Speaker to Address Effective Health Care Through Prayer

Submitted by Christopher Cheney

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - Jose de Dios Mata, of Elsa Illinois, will give a free lecture to the public in Carmichael on Thursday, June 29 at 7:30 p.m. The talk is titled "Divine Love: The Answer to Universal Health" and is sponsored by First Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmichael, as a gift to the community and will be given in the church edifice at 4949 Kenneth Ave., Carmichael. During the talk free parking and child care are included.

This lecture is about the power of God as divine Love and the direct influence for good it can have on lives individually and collectively when spiritually understood. It explores the Biblical basis of God as divine Love whose law Christ Jesus taught and practiced in his healing and teaching ministry. It brings out the relevance of his command "to love your neighbor as yourself" and the worldwide healing impact this can have.

The ideas in this lecture make clear the importance of loving from the standpoint of God, Love, as our source and each of us as God's tenderly cared for children. Praying from this standpoint heals disease, saves us from wrong thinking and acting, and awakens us to the reality that our lives are safe in the law of Love. How powerful divine Love is to answer every problem we might be facing. This lecture includes experiences of healing that resulted from prayer and a deeper understanding of God as divine Love based on the teachings of Christian Science.

The speaker, José de Dios Mata, is originally from Spain, but has been living in the United States for a number of years. As a teenager, he felt a special interest in music and decided to study guitar, with an emphasis on flamenco. This led him to form his own group and perform in various venues.

Later, he worked for the government for a decade, the last five years of which were spent as a special agent in the Intelligence

José de Dios Mata, is originally from Spain, but has been living in the United States for a number of years.

Services. In his personal life, he faced an enormous challenge in early 1979. A relative's sudden illness, for which the doctors could find no cure, as well as his own almost complete loss of hearing due to a congenital lesion, which he was told would require immediate surgery or result in total deafness — and he could not continue in his position at work until he had surgery — forced him to seek a solution to these difficulties. He chose not to have surgery. After trying a series of different alternatives, in December of that year José de Dios was introduced to Christian Science by a doctor, his guitar student, who knew of his reluctance towards conventional medicine and encouraged him to explore this system of spiritual healing. Both situations were quickly and completely healed solely through reading the textbook of this religion, Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy.

He soon realized that the spiritual understanding he had just achieved enabled him to heal others. After several years of proving the practical effect of these teachings in the healing of illness and other inharmonious situations of day-to-day life, he gave up his career in 1986 and decided to move to the United States to enter the public practice of Christian Science as his only profession. His desire to teach others how to practice spiritual healing led him to take Christian Science Normal Class in 2009, in Boston, in order to become an authorized Christian Science teacher in Spain. ★

Feral Cats Project Seeks Volunteers and Community Support to Curb the Feral Cat Population

Spaying/Neutering of stray, feral, and abandoned cats will prevent hundreds of litters of kittens, literally thousands of cats yearly.

By Linda Morgan, Director Sacramento Feral Resources

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Unwanted feral/stray cats are everywhere and the proverbial "kitten-season" is in full-swing. In an effort to help these newborn kittens, people often put them in a box and rush them to the local shelter. Too often the outcome for these kittens isn't what the well-intentioned person expected. So how can you change this outcome? Spay/Neuter of stray, feral, and abandoned cats will prevent hundreds of litters of kittens, literally thousands of cats yearly, from being born in areas where they are not wanted and struggle to survive on their own.

Sacramento Feral Resources (SacFerals) recently introduced the Feral Cats Project.

The focus of the Project is to recruit volunteers and involve residents county-wide to help humanely curb the feral cat population in Sacramento County through a Trap-Neuter-Return (TNR) program. We are looking for the best ways to reach residents in communities throughout the County.

Feral cats are a neighborhood issue that can have good resolution when working together to TNR. In fact, Sacramento County supports TNR - not euthanasia, starvation, or relocation (which is illegal) of feral cats. The good news is that there are low-cost and free spay/neuter clinics available.

Residents who want to help improve the feral cat situation can learn more about the Project, feral cats, TNR, feral colony assistance, and other volunteer opportunities at monthly Free Feral Cats Workshops. Workshops open to the general public. Meetings are held at 5605 Marconi Ave in Carmichael. The Workshop Schedule, class descriptions, and sign-up information is available online: <http://www.sacferals.com/>

Why establish a Feral Cats Project? In 2013 SacFerals introduced a public website to offer resources and assistance to anyone with feral cat issues. Over time, traffic to the website as well as requests for help have substantially increased. During the past two years, SacFerals has received reports of more than 9,000 feral/stray cats. The need for assistance has out-paced the current volunteer staff.

With an estimated 98,000 – 220,000 feral cats in Sacramento County, as the saying goes, "It takes a village" to make a huge dent in reducing the number of litters born in the County every year and to ultimately control and reduce the community feral cat population in Sacramento County. ★

Speaker Highlights Rancho Cordova Economics

The city was teetering on bankruptcy, but it was worse, said Broome. "The river caught fire and the lake was dead," he said. Once a burgeoning industrial city, Toledo had fallen on tough times. The Cuyahoga River was so polluted by dumped industrial waste that in 1969 it famously caught fire. The Cuyahoga is a tributary for Lake Erie, which around 1960, began garnering headlines for massive fish die-offs, algal blooms and yet more pollution. By the late 1980s, Toledo was situated in what would become known as "The Rust Belt," as recession and automotive industry struggles deeply impacted the local economy.

After the first six applicants turned down the job with Finkbeiner, Broome accepted and was instrumental in brokering a deal to keep Jeep manufacturing in Toledo, where it had been located since World War I. The new facility required hundreds of homes and business properties to be acquired and a river to be rerouted (undoing an old WPA project that had moved it from its original path), but was successful.

Broome then headed to Michigan. A 2003 Chicago Tribune article had this to say about Broome: "He hits the ground and the place starts to shake," says Don Parfet, a fourth-generation Upjohn heir. A sign taped to Broome's door in the cramped offices of Southwest Michigan First, Kalamazoo's non-profit economic development agency, reads, "Bull, China Shop."

Since then, Broome served as CEO and president of the Greater Phoenix Economic Council, bringing in approximately 260 companies before being hired in late 2014 to come to Sacramento. He doesn't seem to have lost any of his momentum and brings a "no guts, no glory" attitude. His experience, including Toledo, which he called "a do or die situation for that community," has enabled him to collectively lure and retain hundreds of companies, thousands of jobs, and raise over a billion dollars of investment in economic development.

California is sorely lacking in a statewide economic plan, according to Broome, comparing California to states like New York and Texas, which have such plans and are consequently financially healthier than California. He is carefully cultivating a regional brand for northern California, working with Sacramento and other counties to identify and consolidate an identity. "It's so impossible to work together without understanding how assets work and connect together," said Broome.

Broome's approach to economic development digs deep into community nuts and bolts, identifying each piece and showing it to its best advantage. Highlighting infrastructure, workforce development and learning to move beyond what Broome called "provincial thinking" are integral parts of Sacramento's economic future.

Community services (infrastructure) such as transportation, schools, shopping, arts and entertainment, cost and quality of life and employment opportunities are all vital to recruiting and retaining a talented, educated workforce, which is then attractive to companies looking to hire or relocate, according to Broome.

While Sacramento has long been prone competing with, say San Francisco, Broome is an advocate for pooling area resources. Greater Sacramento has partnered with the Bay Area Council to promote the megaregion brand. The move is intended to make the area a key player in a global economy. California consistently ranks lowest among the 50 states for being "business friendly." Broome wants to change that and be what he calls, "The California Option, where people invest when looking at California."

Broome says Greater Sacramento receives dozens of inquiries every week from businesses and individuals looking at locating in or relocating to the Sacramento area, and the numbers are expected to grow. Concerns regarding things such as cost of living, taxes or litigation in the state are frequent and not without merit, but Broome has a track record and a plan to prove how desirable and obtainable life and business in Sacramento, and surrounding communities like Rancho Cordova, can be.

Easy access to public transportation, the highway system, farm fresh dining, world class universities, arts and culture, affordable commercial and residential real estate are all hallmarks of Sacramento area living, says Broome. Further enhancements such as making Sacramento part of a high-tech corridor, creating a university research park, expanding river front possibilities and developing a thriving corporate center are investments in the future.

"We need to have a different conversation," Broome maintains. Creating a megaregion with its own brand, sharing analytics with the communities, removing politics from the equation and emphasizing northern California's assets, will lead to tangible results and effective decision making. Replacing business as usual will allow California to compete on larger stages, regionally and internationally, and stop other states like Texas from poaching businesses and talent. According to Broome, "Texas is taking our jobs while we're not looking." ★

Street Rehabilitation Begins in Cordova Meadows

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - The City of Rancho Cordova recently began work on its 2017 Street Rehabilitation Project, a $4.1 million public works project to improve driver and pedestrian safety and comfort, as well as stormwater drainage, in the Cordova Meadows neighborhood.

The project is supported by the City's Community Enhancement Fund and includes new asphalt overlay, sidewalk and ramp replacements, and minor stormwater upgrades.

The stormwater upgrades have been completed throughout the neighborhood.

Sidewalk and ramp replacements have begun and are anticipated to be completed by the end of June, weather permitting. There will be minimal sidewalk closures during this work. The City of Rancho Cordova will use signage to inform residents of any closures.

A gap in the road that was left from construction workers cutting out area around the ramps is temporary and will be filled once the ramp replacements have been completed.

The next step of the project will be paving the streets with a new asphalt overlay. The City anticipates this work to begin in July, weather permitting. Recently, an ultra-thin layer of asphalt was applied to the road to make the road a smoother surface during the construction project, however, additional improvements to the road are still being made.

Residents with questions or concerns may contact Zach Bosch at (916-851-8906 or zbosch@cityofranhocordova.org).

By Bob McGarvey

"Whiskey is for drinking, and water is for fighting over." At least that quote is attributed to Mark Twain most of the time. But whether that is accurate or not, the part about fighting for water is as correct today as it was in the past. The decision to put in two huge tunnels or not will be made this coming September, and then I imagine the next steps will be in the courts. The discussion about taking care of 26 million Californians seems to leave out the other 14 million Californians.

The Delta Stewardship Council talks about "coequal goals" when talking about the twin tunnels. And, according to the Council, "coequal goals" means the two goals of "providing a more reliable water supply for California and protecting, restoring, and enhancing the Delta ecosystem." The 'scientists' who are supporting the twin tunnels are, not surprisingly, from Southern California. The "California WaterFix," according to some papers, is "the only viable plan to secure our water supply." The majority of water for Beverly Hills, Hollywood, and Los Angeles comes through the Delta, according to the Delta Stewardship Council, and the "California WaterFix" is the only viable plan to secure their water supply. My only question is: what about the needs of Northern California citizens?

And Another Thing ...

"Whiskey is For Drinking, and Water is For Fighting Over."

I have watched the news about the heat wave and how much more dangerous it is becoming because our temperatures are over 100 degrees every day. We are used to having the heat during the day, but then we receive a cool off during the evening and night. During the last heat wave that hit us in this area, we opened City Hall to help our citizens who find themselves without a place to go and cool down. And even though the heat wave may have cooled down to 99 degrees instead of 100 degrees (ha ha) by this weekend, we became a city so we could help each other as much as we can, and this is definitely a time of need for help. When your air conditioner goes out, the fact that you have a home will not help if you are in dire straits.

My wife and I will be going back east this week, and will be coming back next week, to visit my family. My wife is a native Californian, as are all of our kids, and the only person in the family not native to California is yours truly. I was given an opportunity to visit California (Mather Air Force Base) when I was in the Air Force, so of course I went. I didn't want to hurt anyone's feelings or anything, especially the people who sent me the orders that told me where to go. Anyway, like many we'll be on vacation for a week, but I'm pretty sure I'll have a column next week too. Keep cool!

From Councilman Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time.

Dave Says

envelope, treat yourself to a nice dinner out, or buy something that's food-oriented.

But it's okay to carry a few categories over from month to month. Just make sure you don't get crazy and blow that money on something outside the intended category, or on stuff you really don't need.

—Dave

Too much risk

Dear Dave,

I have some company stock my grandparents bought for me years ago. Would be a good idea to cash out the stock and roll it into an IRA?

—Dylan

Dear Dylan,

Technically, you wouldn't be rolling it into an IRA. You would cash it out and use the money to establish a Roth IRA. And yes, I would do that.

It was very kind of your grandparents to buy you a gift like this, but I think you can do better. You didn't mention an amount, but let's say you've got $10,000 in that company's stock. Now, would you buy the stock if you had $10,000 sitting on the table? Most people, myself included, would say no because there's too much risk. I wouldn't advise having the majority of your wealth — the highest percentage of your net worth — tied up in one single company. That's bad news.

So yes, I would sell that stock and use the money to fund a Roth IRA or multiple Roth IRAs. I invest my Roth IRA money in mutual funds that have a solid track record of outperforming the S&P 500 for 10 years or longer.

—Dave

What to do with the leftover?

Dear Dave,
When you use the envelope system, what should you do with any leftover money?

—Mandy

Dear Mandy,
My suggestion would be to carry it over to the next month. Lots of folks don't use all the money in their clothing envelope during a month. There's nothing wrong with letting a little extra build up in one of your categories if you don't spend it all in a given month or two.

You should be hitting the budget pretty close each month on categories like food. Getting out of debt and managing your money wisely doesn't mean going hungry. If you do end up with a little left over in the food

Getting Back to the Constitution in Education

Commentary
by Harold Pease, Ph. D

In an executive order (EO) issued April 26, President Donald Trump ordered a roll-back of what he termed “a federal power grab” in education. Constitutionally this order is profound and long over due.

The order begins, “By the authority vested in me as President by the Constitution and the laws of the United States of America, and in order to restore the proper division of power under the Constitution between the Federal Government and the States... it is hereby ordered as follows.” It instructs Secretary of Education Betsy DeVos to review and report on regulations and directives as far back as the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 (ESEA). Highlighted for her review were the General Education Provisions Act (GEPA) April 30, 1970—Dec. 10, 2015, the Department of Education Organization Act (DEOA) Dec. 10, 2015, and the Every Student Succeeds Act also of Dec. 2015, which replaced George W. Bush’s No Child Left Behind with Obama’s Common Core.

The word education is not found in the Constitution, nor inferred, and no new amendment to the Constitution has been added moving it from a state to a federal prerogative. Instead, from its inception, the Constitution protected the philosophy of federalism, (shared government), the federal government to manage foreign, the states domestic policy. Some ill-informed might argue that certainly the words “general welfare” in the document included education but this phrase was restricted to seven areas (Article I, Sec. 8, Clauses 2-9) specifically identifying what was to be general welfare, with education excluded.

Otherwise, the federal government might conclude that they should manage everything in the name of general welfare. This interpretation could destroy the Constitution as a restrictive document on governmental power. And this is what was meant by the words in the Trump executive order “to restore the proper division of power under the Constitution between the Federal Government and the States.”

Until 64 years ago the federal government honored this division of power leaving education to the states as constitutionally designed. Their first major inroad into this area was the creation of The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare (HEW) on April 11, 1953. Heretofore both health and education were understood to be state prerogatives only. President Jimmy Carter signed the bill creating the Department of Education on October 17, 1979; without constitutional authority. This action resulted from the immense pressure applied by the “all powerful” teacher union—the National Education Agency (NEA)—which sought to nationalize education removing it from local control. Carter rewarded their support in his election with the new cabinet post.

But an executive order is not enough and can be rescinded by the next president, as Trump is doing to his predecessor. The EO restricts itself to “under the law” and Congress (both parties) clearly passed these major education laws identified in the order. Trump must more fully hinge his argument on the Constitution and on the doctrine of federalism, which preceded the Constitution as a carry-over from the Articles of Confederation, our first national constitution. He should do so by arguing that he has no authority to enforce law that violates the separation of powers as created by the Constitution, which he has sworn to uphold. He must also encourage Congress to rescind those laws or, through the states, create a new amendment to the Constitution using Article 5 of the Constitution. Otherwise this immediate victory, his EO, will be short lived.

One of the first questions I ask students in an into to government class, since every textbook has a chapter on federalism is, “Who cares most whether Johnny can read, his mother or federal bureaucrats located hundreds often thousands of miles away.” It is generally agreed his mother does and is in a position to do most to remedy the problem by direct access to his teacher and school and can run for the school board if not satisfied.

A second question, “Who suffers most if the school fails Johnny?” Again, his mother as responsible bureaucrats have moved on and she is left long term with the consequences of their failure with Johnny. As a life-long student or instructor I have never seen evidence that the federal government can administrate the needs of Johnny better than most parents.

My best and most caring teacher did her “magic” in a remote country school of two rooms; one a library the other a classroom. She taught all grades 1-8 at once with two or more students from each grade. No electronic aid or devices—only a chalkboard and books. Government policies and money raining down from afar generally discourage individuality in teaching and creativity. Instead they often spawn collective thought, (the enemy of real education), by their distribution of money favoring some ideas and groups.

Federalism and the wisdom of the Founding Fathers to retain it and to specifically list the powers of the federal government in Article I Section 8 leaving all other powers, in this case education, at state and local levels, was brilliant. Hopefully the Trump E O will strike a new public debate eventually removing all federal influence and funding in education. Trump is not yet a constitutionalist but this move alone shows him closer than the vast majority of presidents in my lifetime.

Watershed Stewardship and Education Grant

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG)

- Does your organization or school have a project you feel could improve our waterways and keep them clean? The Sacramento County Department of Water Resources (DWR) could help you make that project come to life. The window has opened for submission to the 2017-2018 Watershed Stewardship and Education Grant program.

Schools and community groups are encouraged to review program requirements and submit applications to the Stormwater Quality Program for review. This is the thirteenth year DWR has funded environmental efforts to protect our waterways.

The grant is open to the following: schools and student groups; service clubs, youth organizations; homeowner's associations; community and neighborhood groups; not-for-profit groups; and informal groups with innovative ideas. Individuals and for-profit groups are not eligible.

DWR will offer up to $2,500 for each project chosen for the grant. The amount will depend on the needs of the organization. Last year's grant winners included Will Rogers Elementary, Mira Loma High and Sierra Oaks School. This will also be the first year the grant will be available to non-profit community groups.

The final date to apply is July 1, 2017. Eligible projects must be located within the Sacramento County Stormwater Utility Boundaries or directly affect the residents of these areas. For more information, please review the application to determine if your project is eligible on the Stormwater Quality Program page.

If you have additional questions about the 2017-2018 Watershed Stewardship and Education Grant program, contact Jeanette Huddleston, 916-874-4711.

Slim Randles' HOME COUNTRY

"How about 'Dear Aunt Tillie's Sainted Hairnet!'"

"Salamander sandwiches and great Grecian toads!" said Dud, lurching into his never-really-assigned position at the Mule Barn truck stop's philosophy counter and world dilemma think tank.

Mavis stood there holding the pot of Farmer Brothers coffee as she waited for Dud to flip his coffee mug to the correct upright position.

"You want some coffee before the toads are done?" she asked.

"Sure," Dud said, laughing. "Just practicing my epithets."

Mavis poured. "When you die you want toads and salamanders on your headstone?"

"No, no, no," Dud said, in what we'd come to learn was his quasi-professorial tone. "Not an epitaph. An epithet, dear lady, is a spontaneous outburst, a grand flinging of words to the wild ether that is the very air we breathe ..."

He talks like that sometimes.

"... an expression of polysyllabic perfection designed to both stun and impress those within hearing range."

Doc looked at me. "I'm sufficiently stunned."

"Me, too."

Mavis filled everyone's cups.

"Going to be one of those mornings, I guess."

"Let's get this straight," said Doc. "To stun and impress people and amaze everyone on our block, we have to talk about salamanders?"

"Of course not, Doc," said Dud. "It could be anything. Now I've just been gathering up a few of those for use later on, you see, to be used when a great epithet is called for. Let's say I walk in here one morning and you tell me the river went over its banks last night and is flooding the south valley. That would be a good time to use salamander sandwiches and great Grecian toads, you see."

"I see. The salamanders and toads because they both like water and the river overflowed, and..."

I could see the twinkle in Doc's eye.

"No," said Dud, "although you do have a good point there. But you could just as easily use an epithet like ... 'Well, put Bluebeard's potatoes in a sack!'"

Doc looked at me. "Doesn't have the same stunning effect as salamander sandwiches."

I nodded.

"How about 'Dear Aunt Tillie's sainted hairnet!'"

"Better than Bluebeard's spuds, I think."

Mavis looked at us and said "Stunning."

Sacramento County DA Reports

Defendant Convicted of Murder, Robbery in Marijuana Transaction

DATE: June 1, 2017

CASE: Kane Thompson (Case #16FE009089)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Kari Reeve, Homicide Unit

Kane Thompson was convicted by a jury for the first-degree murder and robbery of Nicholas Jaffray. The jury also found true the special circumstance that the murder was committed in the commission of a robbery.

On May 7, 2016, Kane Thompson met Nicholas Jaffray at a marijuana dispensary. Mr. Jaffray was a marijuana grower who was at the dispensary to sell his products. Thompson represented himself to be a marijuana delivery man and legitimate marijuana vendor. Thompson then told Mr. Jaffray that he would like to do business with him. Later that day, Thompson and Mr. Jaffray met in an apartment complex parking lot and began to negotiate a marijuana transaction while sitting in Mr. Jaffray's car. As a third man with a shotgun walked out from the apartment complex towards the car, Thompson pulled out a handgun and told Mr. Jaffray "not to get killed over a pound of weed." Mr. Jaffray attempted to flee in his vehicle, but Thompson shot and killed him as he was exiting the parking lot. Thompson and the unknown accomplice stole Mr. Jaffray's backpack containing the marijuana before fleeing the scene.

Thompson faces a maximum sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole. Sentencing is set for July 14, 2017, at 9:00 a.m. in Department 12 before the Honorable Maryanne Gilliard.

Defendant Sentenced for Robberies

DATE: June 2, 2017

CASE: Pierre Cleveland (Case #15F05965)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Kristen Andersen, Career Criminal Prosecution Unit

The Honorable Raoul Thorbourne sentenced Pierre Cleveland to 25 years in prison. On May 4, 2017, a jury convicted Cleveland of two counts of robbery for two separate robberies. The jury also found that Cleveland used a gun during the course of the first robbery and was a felon in possession of a firearm.

On September 7, 2015, Cleveland went into a Chevron station on Florin Road with a firearm and robbed the sole employee. He stole money from the register and after the victim refused to get on the ground, he shot the firearm off two times before fleeing the scene. On September 29, 2015, Cleveland went to the Florin Shopping Center and robbed another victim of $5,600 in cash. The victim had just withdrawn the money from his bank and was about to get in his car when Cleveland struck him over the head and stole his money. Cleveland then fled the scene in a car that was waiting for him in the Sears parking lot. Officers were able to locate Cleveland in a nearby parking lot after the license plate of the fleeing vehicle was obtained. Cleveland was detained by law enforcement and was found to have half of the victim's money and the gun from the first robbery on his person.

Gang Member Convicted for Possessing Firearms

DATE: June 15, 2017

CASE: Todd Williams (Case #16FE021370)

PROSECUTOR: Deputy District Attorney Kristen Andersen, Targeting Armed Recidivist Gang Enforcement Team (TARGET)

Todd Williams was convicted by a jury of two counts of felon in possession of a firearm. The jury also found true a gang allegation on both counts.

Todd Williams is a validated member of the G-Mobb/Guttah criminal street gang. On August 17, 2016, Williams was in a car that law enforcement attempted to stop. Williams fled from the car, and officers gave chase. When Williams was apprehended, he was found to be in possession of two loaded firearms.

Williams has a prior 2010 strike conviction for accessory after the fact to attempted murder with a gang enhancement. He previously served 7 years in prison for this offense.

Williams faces a maximum sentence of 17 years and 8 months in prison. Sentencing is set for July 21, 2017, at 9:00 a.m. in Department 22 before the Honorable Russell Hom. ★

CORDOVA SPORTS

Trio Looking to Make Impact in Cordova Football

By Mike Bush

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - On a warm afternoon earlier this month, the Cordova High School varsity and frosh/soph football teams descended onto the turf at Lancers Stadium.

After spending more than an hour pumping iron inside the school's weight room, the players on both teams worked on drills in T-shirts and shorts participated in offensive drills that ranged from 7-on-7 to running plays. Among the players were three girls on both teams.

For the first time since Darren Nill became the Cordova varsity football coach in 2015, the Lancers have two girls on the varsity team and another on the frosh/soph team. Kiran Pooni and AJ Williams are vying for playing time on the varsity team and Yancy Alfaro on the frosh/soph team.

Pooni is already a proven student-athlete at Cordova. Last winter, the incoming junior started at midfielder on the Cordova varsity girls soccer team. She also played on the school's junior varsity girls basketball team.

"Kiran came up to me during the (last) school year and said, 'Coach, I'm really interested in playing football,'" said Nill of his conversation with Pooni. "She said she wants to do it. I asked around campus, and have been told she's one of the best female athletes on campus. I felt pretty sure she knew what she was doing. She can handle herself."

Pooni added, "I've always had an interest in it. I wanted to show people that just because out. And I thought for sure after that first practice we'd never see her again. And she kept coming back out, and I applaud her for that."

Williams added, "Football has been very good."

Pooni admitted that she had limited confidence when practices first started. But as each day and time in the weight room and football field passes, she's continued to build her self-esteem to a higher level.

In fact, the coaches Pooni has been working on punting and kicking for the Lancers. After all, she did a lot of kicking on the girls soccer team last winter.

"It's much more intense," said Pooni of football. "You have to have a lot more focus."

Pooni and Williams, along with Alfaro, and Cordova open the season on Friday, Aug. 25th against Rio Americano at Del Campo's field. ★ you're a girl don't mean you can't do things that guys can do."

Williams and Alfaro came out when the Lancers started their practices earlier this month.

"I saw AJ the first week of practice," said Nill of Williams, who will be a senior when the 2017-18 school year starts in early August. "She showed up and said she wanted to play."

Williams, who will be a senior when the 2017-18 school year starts in early August, added, "He's helped me step-by-step ... he's been very helpful."

Pooni and Williams, along with Alfaro, worked out at wide receiver and defensive back in practices. Those are the spots that the trio would be listed when the season starts toward the end of August.

The male football players on both teams have embraced all three players, Nill notes. The girls are treated the same way as the boys.

"We wouldn't have it any other way," Nill said.

Williams added, "They've treated me like one of the team. They don't even care that I'm a female."

When practices first started earlier this month, Nill felt that the girls felt intimidated. But they stood their grounds in practices and weight room.

"AJ, what I like about her, is her grit," said Nill of Williams. "She came out and had some problems; running, health. I don't think she was probably hydrated when she first came
