Read Across America Day, Celebrated on Dr. Suess's Birthday, Promoting Literacy and Inspiring Children

Rancho Cordova Vice Mayor Zak Ford (above) reads to an excited group of kindergarten youngsters at the Cordova Villa Elementary School. Pre-K through second grade classes at the Read Across America Day event at Cordova Villa Elementary School were treated to a visit from the Dr. Seuss character, The Cat In The Hat (AKA: Ed Austin, at right).

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - In celebration of Read Across America Day, 3,000 books were distributed at no cost to pre-K through second grade children in 14 Rancho Cordova schools. Nationwide, more than $250 million worth of reading materials were handed out, courtesy of the non-profit Literacy Empowerment Foundation.

For children at Cordova Villa Elementary School, it was a big day. The youngsters were to

Despite the excitement, kindergarten teacher Megan Bussman was expertly holding the attentions of nearly two dozen excited five- and six-year-olds. This annual event is held on March 2nd: Theodore Geisel’s birthday. Geisel is better known— to children and adults alike—as “Dr. Seuss.” Geisel was a leading proponent of literacy in children and his books continue to thrill and educate

Scholarships Available for High School Seniors

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - City employees are looking for this year’s scholarship recipient! The 2016 Community Pride Scholarship is open to graduating 2016 high school seniors who live within the City limits of Rancho Cordova.

Last year, the City of Rancho Cordova helped to make Puspita Hutajulu’s college dreams come true by awarding her a $500 scholarship. The Cordova High graduate came highly recommended by her peers for outstanding leadership and a passion for serving her community.

“The Community Pride Scholarship is a great way for the City to give back to Rancho Cordova’s graduating students,” said Puspita, “and it can help in so many areas. Since it is given out like cash, you can use it to help pay for a new laptop or iPad, or if you don’t need new technology, you can always send it to the school to be used to pay for tuition or books.”

To be considered for the scholarship, applicants must have a minimum 3.0 GPA, submit a 700-word essay, letters of recommendation, and an application by 5 p.m. on Monday, April 4th, 2016. Applications are available online at cityofranhocordova.org/scholarship.

The Community Pride Scholarship program was established in 2009 to show City employees’ support of youth and education in Rancho Cordova. For more information or questions, please email pridescholarship@cityofranhocordova.org.

WE SUPPORT OUR MILITARY

Food Locker Seeks Funds for New Truck

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - “We feed everyone who comes to us for food.” The Rancho Cordova Community Food Locker has been living by this statement since it was founded in 1987 by a group of concerned Rancho Cordovans.

The Food Locker has given out 15 million meals to feed 500,000 hungry families and 1.7 million individuals in our community. None of this would have been possible without a sturdy truck to pick up food donations and deliver them to those in need.

Now, the Food Locker needs help funding a new truck to ensure this service continues! Since the non-profit organization is completely funded by donations, they are looking for generous persons, organizations, and businesses to pitch in to help them reach their $40,000 fundraising goal.

“Our clients come from all walks of life—unemployed or between jobs, seniors, the homeless, working poor, or simply those having bad luck,” said Founder Walt Little. “Big-hearted volunteers and donors have always pitched in to make the food locker the best it can be in Rancho Cordova, and we need your help once again.”

All donations will contribute towards the cost of the new truck and any maintenance or repairs needed to get it up and running.

Family History Fans Find Help in Search of Roots

Story by Margaret Snider

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - This year’s RootsTech Family Discovery Day on March 5th provided genealogy and family history aficionados the opportunity to network with others and to learn about many related subjects.

The event, put on by The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, offered more than ten instructors and more than a dozen classes on various topics including Tips and Tricks for Successful Research, Introduction to FamilySearch, Creating Life Stories through Pictures, and Personal Ancestral File on Steroids – Ancestral Quest. Event coordinator Allan Bosch of Rancho Cordova said the workshop was a family friendly event with something for all ages, and classes were scaled from beginner to expert. A course in Latin American research was offered, taught in Spanish.

Snacks and refreshments were provided, as well. “But the greatest enjoyment comes through discovering family relationships that had been lost, both living and deceased,” Bosch said.

A difference in this year’s workshop was a special focus for youth. “After the last one, we decided we didn’t really have engaging classes for the youth,” said Wayne Jensen, first counselor in the presidency of the Sacramento Cordova Stake of the LDS church. “They kind of felt like they were in another classroom situation, almost attending school on a Saturday. We didn’t want that necessarily to be their experience.”

One thing the youth have been especially good at is in helping with indexing. This FamilySearch project began in 2006 with the purpose of creating searchable digital indexes from scanned images of historical documents. The documents are drawn primarily from a collection of 2.4 million rolls of microfilm containing photographic images of historical documents from 110 countries and principalities: census records, birth and death certificates, marriage licenses, military, property, and other vital records maintained by local, state, and national governments. The indexers, in this case the young men and women, put the data from the documents into an online format in FamilySearch so that they can be more readily found by researchers.

Katrina Huhtala, 14, of Rancho Cordova was one of those doing indexing. She said she got started at church last year when the youth received a challenge—whoever indexed the most names in three months got a prize. She did 1,000 names and won first place.

“That got me interested,” Huhtala said. “It was fun to do it in competition.” She enjoyed indexing the draft records from World War II, because there was a lot of personal information included. “You get to see, oh, they have blond hair and blue eyes, they have a scar on their left wrist, all about them—where they came from, and where they lived. “I think that’s pretty cool that you get to hear their life story.”

Family history is a growing field that will be enhanced and improved over time, according to Josh Arnold, family history consultant. “One of the most fun things is that it’s addictive,” Arnold said. “The technology is getting so much bigger, it’s hard to keep up...it could be on your handy-dandy phone even, where you can do family history research. It’s very interactive.” Arnold taught a workshop class on mobile family history apps, and also offers family history help from 6:30 to 8:30 p.m., Tuesdays and Wednesdays at the LDS church meetinghouse, 2400 Cordova Lane in Rancho Cordova.

There are wonderful resources around the Sacramento area, Jensen said. The Sacramento FamilySearch Library, at 2746 Eastern Ave in Sacramento is open Monday through Friday and every second Saturday. See www.sacfamilysearchlibrary.org/

Andy Warhol: Portraits

Now at the Crocker Art Museum

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The status symbol of the disco era was the commissioned Warhol portrait. Opening in March 2016 at the Crocker Art Museum, “Andy Warhol: Portraits” features more than 160 works exploring the development of the artist’s iconic portrayal of the famous or wealthy. Included are Polaroids, fashion sketches, photo-booth film strips, and more. Visitors will also have the interactive opportunity to create their own Warhol Screen Test using a 1960s film camera outfitted for the digital era.

“Andy Warhol: Portraits” spans Warhol’s life-long preoccupation with self-portraits in addition to images of the 20th-century luminaries who eagerly sat for him. Featured in this career survey are fashion scion Yves Saint Laurent, playwright Tennessee Williams, Pulitzer-Prize winner Truman Capote, and artists Keith Haring, Robert Mapplethorpe, and Jean-Michel Basquiat. Actors Judy Garland, Jane Fonda, and Sylvester Stallone epitomize Warhol’s fascination with Hollywood and filmmaking.

“Celebrity fascination never goes out of style. It evolves with us generation by generation, through the transformation of media,” said Crocker Curator Diana L. Daniels. “Andy Warhol was an original in making us lust for what we already have in abundance: images of sex appeal, power, and wealth.”

Significantly, it was Warhol’s commissioned portraits that became synonymous with power and beauty, wealth and accomplishment. The basis for Warhol’s paintings was always his

Polaroid photography. After 1968, sitters posed privately for dozens of unique images taken by the artist. Only one from a session resulted in a final portrait, and commissioned works were sold in pairs. This practice was profitable, but also paradoxical. The dual image emphasized the vanity of the sitter while the doubled-up presentation effaced the notion of the sitter’s originality, or being one-of-a-kind.

The exhibition, which runs through June 19th, 2016, will be complemented by additional Museum programming, including portrait-making workshops for youth in March and April, live performances, Warhol-inspired parties, a symposium, and more. The Crocker is the only California venue for this career survey, which was organized by The Andy Warhol Museum, one of the four Carnegie Museums of Pittsburgh.

The Crocker Art Museum was the first art museum in the Western U.S. and is one of the leading art museums in California today. Established in 1885, the Museum features one of the country’s finest collections of Californian art, exceptional holdings of master drawings, a comprehensive collection of international ceramics, as well as European, Asian, African, and Oceanic art. The Crocker is located at 216 O Street in downtown Sacramento. Museum hours are 10 a.m.–5 p.m., Tuesday–Sunday; 10 a.m.–9 p.m., Thursdays. Every third Sunday of the month is “Pay What You Wish Sunday” sponsored by Western Health Advantage. For more information, call (916) 808-7000 or visit crockerartmuseum.org.

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - SaveCalifornia.com invites you to join national Christian leader Franklin Graham in Sacramento, Thursday, March 31st, for an important election-year rally supporting faith, family, and freedom.

As our nation hangs in the balance, the “Decision America Tour” is your opportunity to unite and take a public stand for Godly, moral values and for your constitutional freedoms. It’s a time to pray for God to do what only He can do, and a time for you to commit to what He’s called you to do.

The vision: “Franklin Graham is traveling to all 50 states in 2016 to hold prayer rallies, to preach the Gospel, and to challenge believers to take a stand and take action. He’ll be urging Christians to vote, to live out their faith in every part of their lives, and to pray for our nation just as Nehemiah cried out to God to rebuild the walls of Jerusalem and restore hope to His people.”

This totally aligns with the moral, family values of SaveCalifornia.com—and you!

Books Here and There and Everywhere

young people long after his passing. The many Seuss books that have been continuously in print have marked the literary starting point for generations of young readers.

President Barack Obama declared that Dr. Seuss’s 112th birthday on March 2nd was to be a day to celebrate “the power of reading.” In his proclamation, the president said, “I call upon children, families, educators, librarians, public officials, and all the people of the United States to observe this day with appropriate programs, ceremonies, and activities.”

In that spirit, Rancho Cordova Vice Mayor Donald Terry said, “We reach out and partner with city departments and council members and involve the community in every possible way.”

According to Cordova Villa Elementary School Principal Jessica Hutchinson, “community members and representatives of the police and fire departments would serve as readers.” Having police officers and firefighters read to them would not only expose the kids to the value of reading, it would also give them a close-up look at public servants, putting any of them within touching distance for the first time in their young lives.

Each child received a book. For some, it was the only book they owned. They even got to write their name in it, which Rancho Cordova Communications Specialist Ashley Downton said “gives the children a sense of ownership.” It was hoped that this small gift would ignite the children’s curiosity and inspire them to get into a regular habit of reading for the rest of their lives.

The books were available in both English and Spanish and varied in subject by grade level. The books covered every topic imaginable, ranging from flowers to facts about California.

Dozens of youngsters in Bussman’s class also took part in a live KCRA Channel 3 television broadcast with reporter Brian Hickey doing the interviews. The group was even visited by the “Cat In the Hat (AKA: Ed Austin),” an iconic Dr. Seuss character.

Vice Mayor Terry signed up for a turn at reading. “There’s no better way to start the day than reading to kids,” Terry said. “It’s also a great opportunity for leaders to see what’s happening in schools.”

Angela Griffin Ankhelyi, in charge of community outreach, joined the event to involve the entire city of Rancho Cordova in the program and to encourage literacy.

As Dr. Seuss wrote those many years ago, “The more you read, the more things you will know. The more that you learn, the more places you’ll go.”

For the room full of eager children, this day would be the start of their journey.

And Another Thing ...

Welcoming New Additions to the City

I was working on this column Monday, and I saw a nice report on Channel 10 that showed the inside of our new and beautiful Cordova High School Performing Arts Theater. This is a new chapter in the history of Cordova High. The students who are lucky enough to go to Cordova High will have new memories of their high school. In the future, when they go over their Cordova High remembrances, they will see in their mind's eye this beautiful theater as an addition to all that was part of high school. The pictures in their yearbooks will show not only the music, shows, friends, and teachers that were part of their past, but it will show them, possibly, on stage with their families in the audience.

The Rancho Cordova River City Concert Band will perform there, along with the Rancho Cordova Civic Light Orchestra. It will be something that the residents of the City of Rancho Cordova will also cherish not only because of what they see there, but because they are the people who made the decision to pay for and create this theater.

Many of the citizens of Rancho Cordova who voted for the school bond had children that went to Cordova High in the past and have now grown up with families of their own. Something that was talked about in the Channel 10 story, was that it is the community's theater as well as the Cordova High students' theater. I am looking forward to seeing a musical performed on that stage. When our kids were going to Cordova High, they performed musicals in the Little Theater. That was then, and this is now! The Cordova High School Performing Arts Theater grand opening was on Thursday evening, and I hope everyone will see it very soon.

Over the last eight or nine days, we have been given the rainy and stormy weather that we were hoping for. The weather reporter on T.V. said that the Sacramento region is only two-tenths of an inch from the average amount of rain. Building the Mather Veterans Village apartments has been done faster because of the dry weather, and building the Performing Arts Theater has been done faster for the same reason. But I think we can all be very thankful we have gotten through the drought thus far. And we've been able to get the buildings completed that will mean so much to so many people. We've been given more rain than many people thought we would receive. We are only halfway through the month of March, and we still have the rest of the rainy season to go through, but I think the rain this year will leave us much better off than we have been for the last four years. We will continue to move forward into the future of Rancho Cordova together, and we are able to do that because we have been through some pretty rough times in the past, and look where we are now.

Speaking of the past, the Rancho Cordova Historical Society has been working very hard gathering years of copies of the Grapevine Independent, and they will be putting them online soon for everyone to see. Maybe you will be able to find something that happened to your family because it was in the paper, and you have been trying to find it for a long time. I am looking forward to being able to see our past in our local paper The Grapevine Independent.

From Councilman Bob McGarvey, God bless, and see you next time. ★

The school sure picked the right guy for the job. If you want someone who can stand out there every morning in heat and rain and snow and spring winds, just look for an old cowboy.

Martin' took all his "tough lessons" ages ago. His assistant each morning was Billy, the town dog. The two of them make a dynamite security squad.

The problem Martin' was having, however, was that he had more time than children, and that led to his current traffic-control methods. He watches carefully, and if a car is coming from a right angle, he steps out and blows the whistle and stops us. And if the car slows, Martin' waves him on whether he wants to go that way or not. And that's when there aren't any kids around.

But no one complains. He's there early, he'd stop a train to let kids cross the street, and he works for free. So what's a few whistle blasts and marching orders among friends?

You have to admire professionalism wherever it may be found.

By Sal Arrigo, Jr.

If you have ever experienced moving from one house to another, you know this can be a stressful time in your life. If you are someone with dementia, it only adds to the stress. I spoke about this with Carrin Jankowski, owner of Silver Lining Transitions, a company that assists families in moving older people from their homes to a new living environment. Often these senior citizens are moving from a home they have lived in for decades, and now, because of circumstances beyond their control (e.g. dementia, a loss of spouse, or the upkeep of residence that is too daunting), these seniors must move.

Carrin started Silver Lining Transitions in 2014 and is currently a student in the Gerontology Department at American River College. As Carrin made her way through the educational system she came into more and more contact with people who were facing the difficult task of transitioning loved ones to a new living environment. It was not just simple tasks, such as what should a person take or leave behind, but it was much greater than this.

A medical diagnosis called “Relocation Stress Syndrome” is affecting senior citizens. It causes “physiologic and psychological disturbances that are triggered by transferring a person from one environment to another.” Symptoms may include exhaustion, sleep disturbances, depression, and disorientation. These symptoms are increased in someone who has dementia, or who is already in poor health. One of the findings is this: people usually developed this syndrome when, without much notice, were moved into an assisted living facility. However, it is not just being forced to leave one’s home, but findings show that people who are moving of their own choice are also developing relocation stress symptoms.

Carrin Jankowski, owner of Silver Lining Transitions

When Carrin is hired to help move an older family member, she told me: “This is more than dollars and cents.” Carrin engages the family in all aspects of the move, from packing boxes to taking pictures of the new surroundings, and, as much as possible, “creating the exact setup of the living space from old to new.” As Carrin told me about her business, she mentioned that “people have their whole life story in front of them, and this is unsettling, and signals a loss of control in their environment.” Silver Lining Transitions provides a wide range of services that includes placement, geriatric counseling, downsizing, packing, removal, staging, move coordination, and setting up the new home. Carrin said she does this “with a sense of humor.”

The move is tough enough she said, so maintaining some sense of normalcy is a positive for all. Silver Lining Transitions has a list of professional references, if needed, such as realtors, elder law attorneys or in-home care services.

If you or someone you know can benefit from the services that Carrin provides, you can contact Silver Lining Transitions at (530) 409-4614. You can find additional information at www.sltransitions.net. ★

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Now that last week's rain storms have come and gone through the Sacramento region, the Cordova High School baseball team can focus on Sierra Valley Conference action.

After its SVC home game against Union Mine was stopped after one inning because of rain (continued on Wednesday) Cordova hosted El Dorado on Tuesday. Despite banging out eight hits, the Lancers fell to the Cougars by a 6-3 score.

"We made some little mistakes," said Cordova head coach Doug Hughes. "We are still learning but I'm happy with our effort; my guys never quit."

Three Cordova players had two hits each in the game: Jeremy Buck, Logan Appino, and Jerimiah Anderson. Buck and Anderson had a double each.

Spencer Gudgel, along with Michael Brown and Jarrett Harris, had an RBI each for Cordova (0-1 in the SVC, 0-3-1 overall).

After Wednesday's make-up game with the Diamondbacks, Cordova hosted Galt yesterday, Thursday.

Tomorrow, Cordova will play at Florin in a non-conference game that is scheduled to start at noon. ★

Half-Dozen Lancers Make All-SVC

By Mike Bush

RANCHO CORDOVA, CA (MPG) - Conference honors have come in for members of the Cordova High School boys and girls basketball teams.

Three Cordova boys hoop players were honored by the Sierra Valley Conference during the coaches' All-SVC meeting recently. Guards DeAnte Wilkins along with fellow backcourt players Damion Baldwin and Jason Novik, were named to the all-SVC team.

Wilkins, a senior, led the Lancers in scoring, averaging 14 points per game in 25 games this season. Wilkins, at 6 foot 3 inches, also made 29 of 52 free throws for 56 percent in the season.

"He's done quite a bit," said Cordova Head Coach Fletcher Johnson, whose squad posted an 8-2 record in the SVC and 17-12 overall that included a Sac-Joaquin Section outbracket playoff win. "He came through in many games for us."

Baldwin, another senior, averaged 8.9 points per game in 26 games this season. In addition, he also had nine three-pointers and 51-of-102 free throws for 50 percent.

Novik is the lone junior among the three who made the all-SVC team. In 26 games he averaged 10.5 points per game. Behind the arc, he canned 27 three-pointers and sank 52-of-84 free throws for 62 percent.

The quickness of the trio, along with many back-court and frontcourt players, helped the Lancers to winning most of their preseason games. That also included capturing the 40th annual Cordova Christmas Classic three months ago with wins over Encina, Grant, and Wood, which beat Cordova in the section's Foundation Game prior to their second meeting in the Lancers' tournament.

The future looks bright for Johnson and the Lancers. Novik is one of six juniors who are expected to return next season. On top of that, the Cordova junior varsity boys basketball team posted an 8-2 record in the SVC and 21-6 overall.

Rounding out the SVC was Liberty Ranch, which won the conference title. Isaiah Halsey was named the conference's MVP. Three additional Hawk players were named to the all-SVC squad and their head coach, Josh Williams, was named Coach of the Year. The Hawks finished the regular season at 27-0 and 30-2 that included reaching the section's D-IV semifinals and the second round of the California Interscholastic Federation's State Championships Nor-Cal D-IV playoffs.

For the Cordova girls basketball team, which finished in second place in the SVC at 7-3 and 13-14 overall, three players made all-SVC. Lancer Head Coach Raymond Bradley wanted to withhold the names of those players until the program holds its end-of-the-season banquet next month. ★

END OF THE BENCH BY GERRY SCHOLL

Sorry About That, Chief

Poor, poor pitiful Grant Napear. He sounds so deflated, and so does his sidekick, Jerry Reynolds. A lot of people would just love to have their jobs, but would also have to feel sorry for the guys and the jobs they must do these days.

That pair comprises the television broadcast team of your Sacramento Kings, a franchise that, in many ways, might be described as...well, pitiful.

This was supposed to be a season the Kings would make a run at the playoffs after nine years of not reaching the NBA's "second season." But led by a prima donna, coach-killing, perpetually-pouting superstar, a meddling owner that envisions an unique offense like the one he once had in CYO basketball, and an aging, grumpy (though highly-successful, ranking fourth all-time in wins) head coach dealing with his own health issues, it was foolish to think the current edition of the Kings would break through.

The subdued tones of Napear's voice as Sunday afternoon's home loss wound down --- 108-99 to the uninspiring Utah Jazz --- spoke volumes about the state of the team, now 25-40 and thinking about next year.

As the Jazz scored at will during the third quarter, Reynolds remarked with exasperation, "That's way too easy. The fans are not liking that kind of defense."

You might be inclined to call it "Matador Defense," except that no Kings' defenders would waste their breath shouting out, "Ole!", nor would they flash any red capes around the rim, electing, instead, to wave an invisible white flag of disinterested surrender.

As the Jazz' lead grew to 22 points (soon to peak at 25), the fans at Sleep Train Arena awakened from their collective slumber, momentarily, to shower a chorus of "boos" upon their Kings as they left the floor for a timeout.

"The world I would use," said Napear, "is 'energy,' or lack thereof. I haven't seen any of that this afternoon from Sacramento." He later added, pointedly, "You've got to come out with some professional pride and some enthusiasm. This is what you are paid to do."

All-Star center DeMarcus Cousins, in his sixth season, fills up the stat sheets with impressive individual numbers, but can't get along with his coach and wouldn't be classified as a true team leader, often complaining about his personal frustrations. He just returned from a one-game suspension for conduct detrimental to the team, something that seems to occur quite often but usually goes by unpunished.

Cousins possesses undeniable talents but, so far, is not a winning player. He is a volume shooter and scorer, but plays defense when he feels up to it. He pads his rebounding totals by oftentimes being uncommitted to team defense and hanging around under the basket. When he handles the ball at the offensive end, teammates stand around watching to see what DeMarcus will do next.

The team seemed to have put together a better roster this season, but it turned out to be lacking in chemistry and loaded with fractured relationships that leads to disjointed play on the court, realized in their third-worst turnover percentage in the league.

Perhaps things will change when the sorry Kings move into their new downtown arena next season, but they just might need a new everything else, too. Poor Grant and Jerry are doing alright, but they do deserve a better game to call.

Meanwhile, there are others --- besides any team that plays the 60-6 Golden State Warriors --- that also deserve our sympathy. Every March they are easy to spot just after the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Tournament bracket comes out. First, feel sorry for the members of the selection committee, just because they can never please everybody. Then, feel for the snubbed --- teams like St. Mary's College, Monmouth, Florida, San Diego State, South Carolina and all of those teams that won their conference regular-season titles but fell short in those dastardly conference tournaments and the automatic NCAA bids.

St. Mary's, 27-5 and regular-season co-champ of the West Coast Conference, defeated co-champ Gonzaga (a NCAA No.-11 seed) two out of three, but fell to the Zags in the WCC tourney title game. The Gaels lost at Cal (a best-ever, No.-4 seed, set to face Hawaii) in a hotly-contested game in the closing moments. Cal (23-10), lost late at Virginia (a No.-1 seed) early in the season. How might St. Mary's do versus Virginia at a neutral site? We'll never know.

Two losses to Pepperdine and what turned out to be a mediocre non-conference schedule hurt the Gaels. But SMC was tops in the nation in field-goal percentage (50.9), seventh in 3-point accuracy (41.3), fifth in scoring defense, third in fewest turnovers and No. 1 in assist/turnover ratio. Those are impressive figures against anybody --- they should've been in, but have been relegated to hosting New Mexico State in the NIT. Four teams selected over St. Mary's --- Wichita State, Vanderbilt, Tulsa and Michigan --- all had Ratings Percentage Index (RPI) worse than the Gaels. What's up with that? Sorry.

You can also have a little sympathy for the fates of the No.-16 seeds in The Dance --- they surely face a one-and-done, since no 16-seed has ever defeated a No. 1. But you could say, "They have a chance."

As the Major League Baseball season approaches, there are some rebuilding teams --- namely Philadelphia, Colorado, Atlanta, Cincinnati, San Diego, Milwaukee, Seattle, Minnesota and, dare we say, Oakland --- whose fans could be told that their teams have "no chance." Sorry.

But if you truly should feel sorry for anybody above everyone else, it's all of those young Little League players that had their Opening Day parades and early-season practices rained out. ★
