Food Closet Shifts Generations

By Elise Spleiss

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - Despite the economic downturn in the past year due to Covid -19, the Sunrise Christian Food Ministry (SCFM) aka Sunrise Food Closet is doing surprisingly well. "We have been blessed" said Rocky Peterson, Director of Operations in an interview. "The community has been very generous. We have been able to remain solvent." However, survival has not come without hurdles.

In mid-March 2020 when the government order came for those ages 65 and over to stay at home, SCFM immediately lost 80 volunteers, the mainstay of their operation. Peterson said they "had to begin again from scratch." As of January, 2021, their client numbers had risen 58% from 2019. To handle the increasing volume of work, twenty workers a day are now needed, plus Saturday workers to help assemble the hundreds of bags of food distributed each day.

Their saving grace was Hands on Sacramento, an online volunteer resource which provided immediate help. While a few former volunteers are trickling back, two in their 90's and two in their 80's, most of today's workers are younger and eager to work. Businesses are still closed leaving employees with time on their hands. Students as young as 12 years come with their parents, high school students earning their school work hours, dental assistants earning professional credits and nursing students are stepping up. Local churches provide volunteers. American Express allows their employees a day with pay to volunteer.

More recently, clients are becoming volunteers. Vera Hill, Volunteer Coordinator, said, "Most are very appreciative and want to give back with their time and energy". They do not work to get the food but to fill need to give back. Maranda, a personal caregiver, had just lost her client of 13 years. It was her first day. She told this reporter, "I'm happy to be here. There is a joy to giving and meeting new, friendly people."

Besides volunteers, there is a continual need for food of all kinds, and

Story by Shauna Boyd

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - At the January 28, 2021, regular meeting, the Citrus Heights City Council heard a variety of department reports.

Assistant City Manager Ronda Rivera provided an Administrative Services report that highlighted the accomplishments of City staff during the unique challenges of the COVID-19 pandemic. Rivera applauded all City employees for "their ingenuity, dedication to providing customer service, and the patience and perseverance to keep our city running smoothly during this difficult time."

City staff were recognized for their efforts to rapidly implement online access to information and services when their doors were shut due to the pandemic. Basically overnight, policies and procedures were developed to guide the new virtual workplace and meet the public safety requirements to protect workers who still had to work on site.

"I am very proud of everyone at the City - every department, every person came together to maintain the services that we need to provide to our community in a safe and reliable manner," said Rivera. She also thanked residents for their support.

A review of the 2020 accomplishments of the City's communications team was presented by Communications Officer Nichole Baxter. To meet the Council's strategic goal of improving community vibrancy and engagement - even in the midst of the pandemic - the communications team worked to provide consistent content on existing channels of communications. Baxter reported 27K combined followers on the City's various social media platforms. The City's newsletter proved to be a valuable tool, with extremely high engagement at 51%, which is more than double the average for government agencies. And the communications team worked to streamline the City's website with clear, concise, up-to-date information.

The team also developed new methods of communication to reach residents, such as virtual open houses and remote workshops. "In the midst of COVID, that became so important. We needed to adapt and pivot and meet our residents where they were to provide them important education

Safeway Makeover with History

By Thomas J. Sullivan

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - A major interior remodel of the Safeway grocery store on 7301 Greenback Lane is well underway with a projected March completion date likely, store management said. As part of the makeover, each shopping aisle is named after a prominent street in Citrus Heights.

"Many customers are now rediscovering our store as we remodel, and shopping this Safeway for the first time," said store manager, Rich Lopez. "I think they will be quite pleased with the new improvements the company has made."

"We're excited to be in the process of a major remodel at the Citrus Heights Safeway," said Wendy Gutshall, director of public and government affairs for Safeway's northern division. The design decision to add city names to the store's aisle top-toppers helps Safeway make a strong connection to the greater Citrus Heights local community, she said.

The Citrus Heights

Safeway store employs about 100 people. Lopez, who lives on Mariposa Avenue, and has been store manager for the past four years said he was delighted to see that local street names were incorporated in the company's redesign of his store.

"The store was in need of a refresh," he said. Construction began in late

Looming Tax Tsunami Requires Immediate Action to Protect Unemployed

By Jacqui Nguyen, Senate Republican Caucus

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - California Senate Republicans are concerned about the looming tax tsunami facing unsuspecting and unemployed Californians stemming from mismanagement and fraud in the state's Unemployment Insurance program. Senate Republicans delivered a letter to Governor Newsom urging him to take immediate action to help those innocent victims.

Californians will begin receiving 1099-G tax forms summarizing their taxable earnings from unemployment benefits. Not only will the tax bill come as a shock to recipients, there is a distinct possibility many victims of fraud will be left on the hook for taxes on money never received. The Employment Development Department (EDD) has struggled to do even the slightest thing right during the pandemic and to think this agency could straighten this out on its own prior to tax day is unfathomable.

By the end of 2020, EDD had paid out $10.4 billion in benefits to claimants whose identities were unverified and that figure could climb as high as $30 billion. This resulted in frozen bank accounts, stalled benefit payments and a variety of other problems each of our offices has been tirelessly working to help these individuals with over the last ten months.

The Auditor's report last week underscored Californians' worst nightmare by pointing out the potential problems with regard to tax liability. Without immediate action by the Governor and our federal representatives, innocent people will be left to fight the IRS over tax liabilities for benefits they never received.

Senate Republicans share the auditor's concerns, and want to ensure the Newsom Administration is taking every action possible to enact the auditor's recommendation to promptly assist victims of identity theft and help them avoid tax liabilities for unreceived benefits. April 15 is just a few months away and Republicans are rightfully concerned the agency will be unable to effectively address this new challenge.

An excerpt of the letter is below. For the full letter visit cssrc.us/sites/default/files/210202_EDD-Fraud-Tax-Liability-Audit.pdf.

... As we enter the tax filing season, many Californians will be surprised to learn that they have tax liabilities for UI benefits that were fraudulently claimed in their name. This is because 1099-G forms will soon be arriving in the mailboxes of taxpayers who were victims of identity fraud. Even more concerning is that there will be victims of identity fraud who will have no idea why they even received one of these forms until after they file taxes. This is because EDD is generally going to mail the 1099-G to the most recent addresses of record, which are the ones the bad actors used to obtain UI benefits.

The State Auditor shares our concern for the tax liabilities for victims of this identity theft and recommends that EDD should prepare to assist victims of identity theft to ensure that they receive prompt assistance and avoid tax liabilities for benefits they never received. Specifically, the auditor recommends that EDD must prepare to respond to victims of identity theft who receive incorrect tax forms, and should, by mid-February 2021, provide information on its website and set up a separate email box for such individuals to contact EDD and receive prompt resolution. We wholeheartedly agree with this recommendation, but remain skeptical about the agency's ability to do it effectively, if at all. Our offices are currently hearing from the same amount of constituents as we did last spring, who are seeking help from EDD because of problems with identity verification, backlogged claims, and frozen accounts. ...

Last week, Senate Republicans requested legislative leadership for an immediate oversight hearing to discuss ways to implement the State Auditor's recommendations. An oversight hearing was held on Wednesday, February 3 with the Joint Legislative Audit Committee (JLAC) and the Assembly Insurance Committee. ★

Mystery Brings Unlikely Departments Together

By Ken Casparis, Sacramento County

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - This past December, a routine storm drain clearing led to an inter-departmental collaboration to identify the remains of a missing local man.

On Dec. 8, 2020, Sacramento County Department of Water Resources (DWR) employees were clearing a storm drain near Gordon Drive in Sacramento. While unclogging their vacuum machine, the crew manually pulled what was thought to be a stick out of the muck that clogged the machine only to find a shoe attached. It turned out to be a human leg bone and foot. DWR crews stopped work and notified the Sheriff's Department.

"Water Resources works regularly with law enforcement. Our staff teams up with deputies throughout the year as we clean up drainage culverts and water pipes because we run into homeless camps. We ask for the deputies' assistance to make sure nobody is harmed by our machines," said Water Resources Director, Michael Peterson. "So when our crews came across human remains, while shaken up by their discovery, they kept their cool and knew to call the Sheriff's Office for assistance."

When Sheriff's Office detectives responded to the scene, they discovered what appeared to be an additional bone in the storm drain. Detectives contacted the Sacramento Coroner's Office to assist with further evaluation of the remains.

Deputies and a Forensic Pathologist from the Coroner's Office responded to the scene. The leg bone and an additional bone found in the storm drain were determined to be human. Coroner personnel also searched a second area of the storm drain and discovered even more bones. The bones were retrieved by Coroner personnel and were found to be an almost complete human skeleton.

In addition to the skeletal remains, a debit type card with no name printed on it was also recovered. The debit card company was contacted by the Sheriff's Office and it was learned that the card belonged to a male subject that had been reported missing. The male subject was last seen in November of 2018.

After seeing news reports of remains being found in the area of Stockton Blvd and Gordon Drive, the family of the missing male contacted the Sacramento County Coroner's Office to see if the bones found in the storm drain could belong to their missing relative.

The brother and daughter of the missing person provided DNA samples to the Sacramento County Coroner's Office. The Coroner's Office ran the DNA samples provided by the family and a sample from the remains using their ANDE Rapid DNA instrument. The Coroner's office was able to confirm that the remains belong to the missing male subject, and this case came to a close.

"While my team often works with the Sheriff's Office, we don't usually work with Water Resources, so this was a unique experience for us," said Kim Gin, Sacramento County Coroner. "This was a great example of County employees, that don't usually work together, coming together to identify this local man and bring some closure to his family."

The Sacramento County Coroner's Office has 73 active "John Doe" and "Jane Doe" cases dating back to 1975, and they need your help to identify them. If you recognize the description of someone on this site that could lead to an identification, please contact the Coroner's office by calling (916) 874-9320 or email coronerweb@saccounty.net ★

Safeway Makeover with History Food Closet Shifts Generations

With the remodel came new digital screen displays throughout the store to help inform shoppers. Photo by Thomas J. Sullivan

Lopez said major improvements include a refreshed deli, produce section, meat department and an upgraded pharmacy.

Improvements include new freezer cases and aisle shelving. New digital screen displays can be found throughout the store. A larger assortment of higher-end meats, produce, deli items and grocery items can also be found throughout the store, he said.

When customers walk down aisle four named for Kenneth Avenue, they will find frozen pizza, vegetables and breakfast items in bright, new display cases. Take a turn down aisle five named for Carriage Drive to find frozen desserts and ice cream.

Expect heavy family traffic on aisle seven, named after Mariposa Avenue where baby food, diapers and paper goods can be found.

“I live on Mariposa Avenue, not far from San Juan High School, so that’s one of my favorite aisles,” Lopez said.

Pet owners may promenade down aisle eight, named for San Juan Avenue, to pick up dog and cat food.

Aisle names also include Trenton Way, Oak Avenue, Hazel Avenue and Wachtel Way.

“The staff and I are delighted to see the ongoing progress of the remodel. We’re expecting it to be done by March 10th at which time Safeway will have a public celebration,” he said.

“We’ve had quite a few customers notice the new aisle signage, especially those who live on those well-known city streets,” he said.

Lopez said the best part of his job is taking care of his customers and having them leave his store happy, knowing they saved money on their groceries at Safeway.

“We also added new self-checkout lanes about eight months ago, and they’ve also proved quite popular,” he said.

News that the remodeled Citrus Heights Safeway carries an historic theme came as welcome news to Larry Fritz, president of the Citrus Heights Historical Society.

“It’s a great way to celebrate local history,” Fritz said. The Citrus Heights Historical Society has had its own historical panel displays featured inside the Sunrise Mall.

Gutshall said she would encourage Fritz to reach out to Safeway’s corporate office in Pleasanton for the possible placement of historic photos in the remodeled Citrus Heights store.

“Feel free to pass along my contact information to Larry Fritz at the Citrus Heights Historical Society. I would be interested to learn more about the historical photo opportunity and share with the appropriate individuals for consideration,” she said.

For convenience, customers at the Greenback Lane Safeway store are offered curbside grocery pick-up. A “drive-up and go” pick-up service allows customers to place their grocery orders online for a scheduled pickup-time. A Safeway associate will put the groceries directly into the customer’s vehicle, Lopez said. ★ other products such as toiletries, household items and pet food. While SCFM is federally funded they also count on their other sources. SCFM obtains 40% from the Sacramento Food Bank, and purchases 20% of what they need from WinCo and Grocery Outlet. Peterson said they count on their sponsors and other community resources for the remaining 40%. Churches, service organizations and individuals are helping this happen. Sponsor stores include local 7-Elevens, Safeway, Raley’s, Food Max, Walmart, Costco, and Sam’s Club. Twenty Citrus Heights churches contribute with drive-through or in-house food drives. Local Kiwanis and Rotary clubs provide grants and donations. Individuals are donating their Covid-19 stimulus checks.

During the holidays, employees at Sutter Care Vituity raised funds and donated over $4k of food, toiletries, and other items to SCFM. Parents and students at Summit Christian School in Fair Oaks worked hard and in just 3 weeks collected over 1,000 food and other items to donate.

Those seeking food during this time continue to grow. Prior to the pandemic clients came once a month, now some come every 15-20 days. College students and others have returned home during the pandemic. Instead of feeding two or three people, there are now four or five family members. Some large Eastern European immigrant families have up to 12 children. They are so grateful to be in this country, they appreciate whatever aid they are given.

On a recent day at the beginning of the month, registration records showed a total of 109 vehicles carrying 325 people comprising 213 families served from 11:30 a.m. to 3:00 p.m. that day. Of those 109 vehicles 10% were new clients. There can be up to four family units in each vehicle. Each family in a vehicle (two adults and 4 children) receives two bags of food to last for up to six days. In addition they each receive a family box full of cold meat and fish, bread, crackers, cookies and produce plus pies and cakes from Costco and Sam’s as available.

The homeless/unsheltered are welcome. They walk in, or arrive by bike or bus. They may be on the street, live by the river, or sleeping on a friend’s couch. Ready to eat sandwiches and pastries are provided for them, especially by 7-Eleven stores. As Peterson said, “This is a changing environment; it may go on for a long time.” The Sunrise Food Closet is adapting to these changes. Donations of all kinds and volunteers always welcome.

State Lifts Suspensions of Half a Million Driver's Licenses

By Robert Lewis, CALMatters.org

More than 400,000 Californians had their driver's licenses reinstated last month after an appeals court ruled that the state was illegally penalizing people who failed to appear in court on costly traffic tickets.

The lawsuit was part of a broader, ongoing effort by legal advocacy organizations to roll back California's traffic fines and court fees, which they contend disproportionately impact low-income residents and communities of color.

More than three million traffic infraction citations are issued in California every year, averaging between $600 and $700 each.

California has among the highest traffic ticket penalties in the country due to a litany of state and county add-on fees. A ticket for running a red light – which has a base fine of $100 – actually costs nearly $500 because of state and local fees, and more than $800 if the driver misses a deadline to pay or appear in court.

The ruling “limits this blunt instrument of punishing people for not taking care of traffic tickets when in reality, for many Californians, traffic tickets are simply too expensive to take care of,” said Rebecca Miller, senior attorney at the Western Center on Law and Poverty, one of the organizations that sued the Department of Motor Vehicles.

“Like any state in the country, we have over-policing of lower-income and black and brown communities in California.”

Several Bay Area residents sued the DMV in 2016 when their licenses were suspended after they failed to pay a traffic ticket or appear in court. Last June, a three-judge panel in the First Appellate District ruled in their favor, deciding that the state inappropriately suspended the licenses of drivers without formal notices from traffic courts that their failure to appear was willful.

As a result, the DMV lifted suspensions on 555,000 driver's licenses. Because some had additional suspensions for other reasons, about 426,000 motorists were eligible to have their licenses reinstated, according to the DMV.

Legal aid groups – the Western Center on Law and Poverty, Bay Area Legal Aid, the Lawyers' Committee for Civil Rights of the San Francisco Bay Area and the East Bay Community Law Center – represented the plaintiffs.

The lead plaintiff, Guillermo Hernandez, of Richmond, had been ticketed in 2013 for not updating his driver's license information and driving without a valid registration, court records show.

Hernandez said he tried to go to court to take care of the ticket but was told twice that clerks couldn't find it in the system. It was only later when he tried to renew his license that he discovered there was a hold on it for more than $900 in fines and fees.

“At that time I just didn't have the money. I didn't have work. That's a lot of money... How am I going to pay it?” he said, speaking in Spanish.

Hernandez had to cut back on his work buying and selling secondhand goods around the area. “I was afraid they would grab

Guillermo Hernandez, who uses his van for his businesses, lost work when his license was suspended in 2013 for failure to pay a ticket. He sued the DMV along with several other Bay Area residents and won. Photo by Anne Wernikoff, CALMatters me and make me pay more money for tickets,” he said.

Hernandez said he's glad he saw the lawsuit through the appeals court even after his attorney helped him get onto a repayment plan and get his license back before the case concluded.

“I feel really proud that I did something for society,” he said.

The appellate opinion is somewhat narrow and technical: By law the DMV is supposed to suspend a license if it receives a notice from a traffic court that a driver “willfully” violated a written promise to appear in court, according to the opinion. The DMV argued that when it receives notices a driver failed to appear in court that indicates that the actions were willful. The trial court agreed, but the Appeals Court found that the DMV needed a more formal notice that a driver broke the law.

The DMV said in a statement to CALMatters that from now on it “will only impose a (failure to appear) suspension based upon misdemeanor (failure to appear) notifications submitted by the courts.”

But attorneys involved in the case said it's too soon to tell how the case will affect license suspensions going forward.

Fees Tacked onto Traffic Fines

Economic justice advocates and some government officials are examining court fines and fees as part of a national reckoning over racial disparities in the justice system. A growing body of data suggests black and brown drivers are more likely to be pulled over than white motorists, and they often face staggering bills for traffic tickets.

That's because state and local governments have tacked on numerous fees that have nothing to do with traffic violations, said Martin Hoshino, the state Judicial Council's administrative director, who served on a national task force regarding fines, fees and bail practices.

“It became unnerving to think that courts had been turned into revenue centers, and judicial officers were in this really awkward position of perhaps knowing they were imposing a fine or fee for which their court operation was benefiting. I think that's wrong,” Hoshino said.

Records and interviews show fees in criminal court, including for traffic violations, have funded an array of services and projects in California, including court construction, DNA collection, emergency medical air transport and sunken vessel recovery off the coast.

“When you put all of the decisions together and look at it holistically 30 years later, you find out you've created a regressive, harmful, at times self-defeating revenue system because you're pushing people into debt traps,” Hoshino said.

In addition, “you're not able to collect the debt,” he said. Uncollected debt on court fines and fees doubled over the past decade to roughly $10 billion in California.

Stacey Kmetz knows about the burden of traffic ticket debt. The San Jose resident, who was out of work and sleeping on a friend's couch, got a nearly $900 ticket in Marin County for driving without proof of insurance.

“I was really stuck. I asked everybody I knew for help,” Kmetz said.

When she didn't appear in traffic court by the date on her citation, her license was suspended. Kmetz ultimately went to court and got a $78-a-month payment plan, records show. But the court did not notify the DMV to lift the suspension.

“I pleaded to have that license so I could pay my bills and look for work,” she said. “I was working with two temp agencies who wanted nothing to do with me when I explained the situation.”

Legal Aid attorneys stepped in and got the court to recall the failure-to-appear notification. Kmetz was able to get her license back in October after six months without it.

“It was terrible. The anxiety of the whole dilemma...it was awful,” she said, adding that she's since used her license to work as a driver for some delivery apps.

Pilot Program To Avoid Court Appearances

Lawmakers and court officials have taken some recent steps: They have eliminated license suspensions for failing to pay traffic tickets and developed payment plans.

The court system also developed a pilot project that makes it easier for low-income motorists to request a traffic ticket fee reduction. A website called MyCitations allows motorists to request a reduction online. The courts can consider a driver's income and other information on their ability to pay before deciding whether to lower a penalty.

The virtual ticket system was created so that motorists wouldn't have to appear in person at a courthouse if they wanted to get their ticket debt reduced.

Many Californians can't afford a day off work to plead their case to a judge. But when they don't pay and don't show up at court, the fines increase, their licenses can be suspended and if they are caught driving on a suspended license, they face criminal charges.

“It's the criminalization of poverty,” said Asher Waite-Jones, staff attorney and clinical supervisor at the East Bay Community Law Center.

The pilot project includes seven counties. Tulare, Shasta and Ventura counties launched the first year, San Francisco and Santa Clara counties are in year two and Fresno and Monterey counties are launching now.

From April 2019 through Nov. 2020, nearly 7,000 drivers requested a fine and fee reduction through the pilot program. More than 85 percent of those drivers reported incomes below the poverty line and their debt was an average of 447 days outstanding, according to a recent report on the project the Judicial Council prepared for the legislature. Three quarters of the requests were approved; the penalty was reduced an average of $347 per ticket, according to the report.

The governor's current budget proposal includes money to bring the pilot system statewide. Ongoing funding would increase to $58.4 million by 2024-25.

“It's been really important during the pandemic

because it gives people a way to request a discount without going into traffic court,” said Anne Stuhldreher, director of the financial justice project in the San Francisco treasurer's office. “We should be able to hold people accountable without putting them in financial distress.”

Stuhldreher and legal service attorneys suggest a better fix is doing away with many of the fees. Last year, lawmakers eliminated a number of fees levied in criminal court. Advocates are pushing them to do the same with traffic tickets.

When courts do reduce a driver's ticket penalty, the amount varies, depending on the court and judge; the reduction can be 50 percent in some courts and 80 percent in others.

“Fifty percent is not necessarily meaningful to many of my clients who are homeless or completely destitute,” said Waite-Jones, the East Bay Community Law Center attorney.

The court system administrator, Hoshino, recommends more substantial changes from lawmakers.

But he also worries about how California will make up the revenue for vital services if the fees are slashed. The state collected $1.4 billion in court fines and fees – all cases, not just traffic-related – in 2018-19.

“If you're going to remove $1.4 billion for state and local programs, you're either going to end up abolishing those programs or you're going to have to find alternatives,” Hoshino said. ★

A Divided House Makes a Happy Home

By Rev. James L. Snyder

Never has our world been more divided than today. Politics, religion, sports and on and on I could go. For the most part, so many people think being divided is a negative thing. And for many people it is.

However, after being married to the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage for almost 50 years, I have discovered that a divided house can be a very happy house.

All of this came to focus recently when we finally finished adding an office room to our house. It has been in process for at least four years. That's where my "forbearance" comes to play.

Last year we were almost ready to finish when the coronavirus hit and put everything on the pause. I'm not too fond of pause unless on a cat or dog.

This has brought our house to the Great Divide, which has brought a lot of happiness to our home.

On the other side of our house is a room called the Craft Room, which the Gracious Mistress of the Parsonage supervises. This is a room that, although I may be allowed to step in, for various reasons, I don't. I look into that room, and I see all kinds of crafty stuff that I have no idea in the world what it is. And believe me, I am not going to ask what anything in that room is.

So, at one end of the house, we have my wife's Craft Room, and at the other end of the house, we now have the Pastor Cave, of which I am the sole supervisor and administrator. It is the place where I am in control of everything.

When my wife is in her Craft Room on one side of the house, and I'm in my Pastor Cave on the other side, we are significantly divided but enthusiastically happy.

The saying is true, what divides us may destroy us. But, if put together craftily, what divides us may bring us together on a different level.

She's happy in her room, I'm happy in my room, and the house rings with enthusiastic happiness.

One of the essential aspects of a good marriage is knowing what the other person delights in.

For example, my wife delights in crafts. I could not spend five minutes in a craft room working on some craft. I would go absolutely insane. I probably would cut myself using some of them in her craft room.

My wife takes great delight in working in her craft room. And you know what they say, a delighted wife means a delighted husband.

I am delighted when she is delighted, and that makes everything come together.

I'm happy when I'm in my Pastor Cave and take great delight in what I'm doing. I have everything at my fingertips that I need to do that makes me happy.

If our home weren't so divided, we wouldn't have all that delight that we enjoy right now.

I read in the Bible just the other day a wonderful verse, "Can two walk together, except they be agreed?" (Amos 3:3).

Amos must've been a husband to say something like this. The important thing is the focus of the agreement. At the opposite ends of our house, my wife and I are in full agreement.

By Pastor Ray Dare

Last year was a year of unprecedented trouble with the global pandemic, political tensions, economic uncertainty. It was a year of loss. Maybe you lost your job, or health, a person you love, friendships or the fellowship of your church family. During tough times it's easy to forget God's faithfulness, his love, his care and his presence.

Have you ever felt like God as a million miles away? The truth is, he's not and he never was. Whatever struggle you're going through; you can rest assured; you are not alone. Jesus with you.

You're not the only one who has ever wondered where God was during a struggle. On the very first Easter morning, right after Jesus' crucifixion, the disciples wondered the same thing. In Luke 24, a pair of disciples were walking down a road, talking about all the bad things that had happened to them – Jesus' arrest, beating, crucifixion

Pastor Ray's Encouraging Words

You Were Never Alone

– and trying to make sense of it all. They thought Jesus was the Messiah; but now their dream was shattered, and so was their hope.

Suddenly Jesus himself came alongside the disciples and joined them on their journey. Yet they were in so much grief, they didn't recognize him. Jesus asked about what they were discussing, and so the disciples let him in on the discussion. Jesus went on to share Old Testament passages that explained the events of the past few days. That night, as they ate dinner with Jesus and the Bible says that "Suddenly, their eyes were opened, and they recognized him. And at that moment he disappeared!" (Luke 24:31 NLT)

Imagine what that experience was like for these disciples. The guy they thought was God was crucified and dead. Then they hear he's been resurrected, but they don't believe it. Then a stranger walks along the road with them, eats with them, and suddenly they realize that it's Jesus himself! And then he disappears.

Here's the point, in their grief they couldn't see Jesus. They needed God to open their spiritual eyes so they could see him. In your grief and in times of struggle you need the same thing. In your difficulty, realize that Jesus is with you, and he has always been with you. I don't know what you lost in 2020 – whether it was a loved one, your health, your job, a relationship, your joy, a dream. Whatever it was, you may have missed the fact that Jesus was walking with you through the entire experience. You were never alone. You couldn't see him, but he was there.

Today, ask God to reveal himself to you, to open your spiritual eyes. He wants you to know you were never alone in 2020 and you will be never alone in 2021! Reach out to him today. He will never leave you, never forsake you, never abandon you. Read Ps. 46, He is your very present help in time of trouble

Almighty God Will Have His Way!

Most consider a certain building their church, but we do recognize that church can occur where ever a person may feel close to Almighty God. Recently our pastor gave a message about "the assembly of believers who have accepted Jesus as their personal Savior and made Him Lord of their lives." His message related to us - regardless of the denomination - where one may choose to worship and serve – that (those who have made that decision) ARE actually the true church and we are joined together IN HIS LOVE.

Some people are so convicted (of their personal sins) after attending church, they begin to say unfavorable things about the people (Christians) who do attend regularly. Yes, their unkind words might draw away from themselves, but they are not fooling an all knowing God who knows everything about everyone!

Truth is: those who attend on a regular basis are all on their personal individual journeys to learn the ways of God. Some are young in their walk, while others are old and still learning. Not one of them is in the exact same place, to know how to do it all and to love Him with their heart and soul. Plus, each one is learning God's Word the Scripture and seeing it "come alive" on all kinds of different individual ways in their lives.

God does not expect us to be carbon copies of each other or some kind of robot. God loves everyone and everything He has created. Just look how different animals are and the flowers, birds and trees! His plan for every life is unique and beautiful, original and special. His desire for humankind is that every single one of us will desire and seek Him with all our heard and discover His plan for our whole life, heart and soul.

The initial Annual Percentage Rate (APR) is currently 4.25% for a new Home Equity Line of Credit (HELOC), and is fixed for the first 5 years of the loan which is called the draw period. After the initial 5 year period, the APR can change once based on the value of an Index and Margin. The Index is the weekly average yield on U.S. Treasury Securities adjusted to a constant maturity of 10 years and the margin is 3.50%. The current APR for the repayment period is 4.625%. The maximum APR that can apply any time during your HELOC is 10%. A qualifying transaction consists of the following conditions: (1) the initial APR assumes a maximum HELOC of $100,000, and a total maximum Loan-to-Value (LTV) of 70% including the new HELOC and any existing 1st Deed of Trust loan on your residence; (2) your residence securing the HELOC must be a single-family home that you occupy as your primary residence; (3) if the 1st Deed of Trust loan is with a lender other than El Dorado Savings Bank, that loan may not exceed $200,000 and may not be a revolving line of credit. Additional property restrictions and requirements apply. All loans are subject to a current appraisal. Property insurance is required and flood insurance may be required. Rates, APR, terms and conditions are subject to change without notice. Other conditions apply. A $25 early closure fee will be assessed if the line of credit is closed within three years from the date of opening. An annual fee of $85 will be assessed on the first anniversary of the HELOC and annually thereafter during the draw period. Ask for a copy of our "Fixed Rate Home Equity Line of Credit Disclosure Notice" for additional important information. Other HELOC loans are available under different terms.

How Long Will California Economy Languish?

By Dan Walters
CALMatters

As COVID-19 began surging through California a year ago, Gov. Gavin Newsom declared a state of emergency and ordered widespread restrictions on personal and economic activity to curb infection rates. His actions immediately triggered a severe economic recession. California had been enjoying record-low unemployment just before the shutdown, 3.9% of the labor force, but within weeks the jobless rate quickly shot up to a record-high 16.4% as employers laid off workers. Initially, there was a fingers-crossed hope that the recession would be what economists call a “V” – a deep plunge followed by an equally rapid recovery. However, as the public health crisis and the recession continued, it became apparent that it would be a “U” – a steep decline that reaches bottom, eventually followed by a gradual recovery. Employment actually rebounded somewhat during summer and autumn months as Newsom loosened economic controls, although certain sectors such as tourism and travel continued to lag. However, when infection rates, hospitalizations and deaths shot upward again late in the year – thanks, probably, to too many holiday gatherings – Newsom clamped down again, businesses closed and joblessness again increased. The state’s official unemployment rate – the percentage of the labor force not working – edged upward in December to 9% but when those who dropped out of the labor force or were involuntarily working part-time are included, the real rate is more like 15%. Even without that adjustment, 9% is still very high and, according to the federal Bureau of Labor Statistics, the third highest of any state. Only tourism-dependent Nevada and Hawaii are higher, with South Dakota and Nebraska at other end of the scale at 3%. Overall, California has lost 1.5 million jobs in the last year of pandemic and economic turmoil, leaving a salient question hanging in the air: How long will California’s pandemic-induced recession continue? The answer depends on two unpredictable factors – when and if vaccinations can tame COVID-19 and whether President Joe Biden and Congress pump additional billions, or even trillions, of borrowed dollars into the nation’s economy. Newsom’s proposed 2021-22 budget projects, “Businesses are expected to continue to operate at limited capacity into 2021. Increased automation and a shift to online retailing will lead to permanent job declines in leisure and hospitality, retail, and other services.” The budget also implies that the bottom of the “U” will continue for some time, saying, “Nonfarm employment for California is projected to recover to pre-pandemic levels in 2025.” The millions of Californians affected by the pandemic’s economic fallout are understandably worried about their futures and their angst is one of the drivers of a petition campaign aimed at recalling Newsom. Whether from concern for his constituents or worries about a recall, Newsom is proposing “a broad-based recovery package to support businesses, individuals and job creation both during the pandemic and as the state recovers. It totals $14 billion, including $3.5 billion in immediate relief for individuals and small businesses disproportionately impacted by the pandemic.” While Newsom wants fast action from the Legislature, its fiscal advisor, Gabe Petek, wants a more deliberate and skeptical approach, noting that “unlike the federal government – which can run a deficit to pay for fiscal stimulus – the state must balance fiscal stimulus with other one-time and on-going spending priorities.” In other words, a dollar spent on Newsom’s economic recovery plan is a dollar that can’t be spent on something else – unless, of course, the governor and legislators are also willing to raise taxes. As the pandemic, the recession and the recall campaign evolve, big state stimulus expenditures will be one of the year’s more interesting issues. Dan Walters has been a journalist for nearly 60 years, spending all but a few of those years working for California newspapers. ★

Red Shouldered Hawk Photo Wins WCA Contest

Rick Reed Public Relations

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The non-profit provider of regional rehab, recovery and release of injured, orphaned and displaced birds and small animals, Wildlife Care Association (WCA) challenged the community to send their best bird photos and you did! Congratulations to all our photo entry participants!

Our 2020 honors go to Jody Reese of Fair Oaks for her sharp picture of the Red Shouldered Hawk, one of many Raptors resident in the Sacramento Valley. The Hawk is an important part of the ecological balance in maintaining the environment, primarily thru rodent control. Reese captured the stunning view many don't see as the birds soar high in the sky seeking prey. The Red Shouldered Hawk is in sharp focus and the picture captures its beauty and power at rest.

The annual Wildlife Care Photo contest seeks to promote outdoor activity, appreciation for nature and offer a unique view of the avian life in the Sacramento region. Contest entries begin on Oct 1st and continue to December 31st. Photo entries are free to kids under 12 and this year Honorable Mention goes to eleven-year-old Dylan Nguyen of Milpitas who submitted a compelling picture of a bird seen across the region, the Blue Scrub Jay. See all the photo entries displayed in the WCA Photo Album on Facebook on the Wildlife Care Association

Birds can be found everywhere around us when we take time to look for them as they help balance our environment and maintain our quality of life in the Sacramento region.

Prizes included a crystal sculptured Soaring Raptor, a collectible edition of the Reader's Digest "Birds, Their Life, Their Ways, Their World", a copy of Lone Pine's Field Guide "Animal Tracks-Northern California", a Golden "Guide to Field Identification-Birds of North America", a WCA T-shirt, a set of glass Owl salt and pepper shakers and a personal tour of the Wildlife Care Association rehabilitation facility at McClellan Park.

and updates," said Baxter.

Baxter also highlighted the efforts of the Public Information Team, which is comprised of employees from various City departments. Baxter said, "They really took on a lot of extra work during COVID to support our communications efforts. This meant being a conduit for their division and the communications team, and ultimately our residents, to get out updates and important information from their divisions."

In total, the City's communications efforts resulted in more than 11.6 million impressions in 2020 across all the various communication channels. Baxter said that impact has "helped educate and make our residents feel connected."

Even as the pandemic forced some services online, many City projects moved forward as planned. City Engineer Leslie Blomquist reported on the 2020 Accessibility and Drainage Upgrades Project. This project targeted 13 roadway segments throughout the City that needed repairs. The City replaced sidewalks and curbs and installed new ADA-compliant curb ramps to improve pedestrian safety and increase accessibility. Storm drain manholes and inlets were replaced or installed as needed to increase the longevity of the storm drain system. Other major repairs included the removal of aging and failing corrugated metal storm drain pipes, which required ongoing maintenance. New plastic drain pipes, which have a significantly longer lifespan, were installed to reduce future maintenance costs and reduce localized flooding.

The total cost of the project is approximately $833,849. Funding sources include $393,000 from the Community Development Block Grant, $123,000 from Senate Bill 1 Local Partnership Program, and $317,849 from the Storm Water Utility Fund.

Stephanie Cotter of the Community Development department highlighted valuable resources for renters—an issue that has become even more critical during the pandemic. The Renters Helpline is a multi-jurisdictional program funded through a partnership between Sacramento County and the cities of Citrus Heights, Elk Grove, Folsom, Rancho Cordova, and Sacramento. Citrus Heights' funding for the program comes from part of its annual Community Development Block Grant funding allocation.

The Renters Helpline is administered by Sacramento County Sacramento Self Help Housing, in collaboration with Project Sentinel and Legal Services of Northern California. The Helpline offers free counseling and advice about tenant rights and fair housing to renters who reside within Sacramento County. If a renter's issues can't be resolved over the phone, the Helpline can also provide referrals to other resources. To contact the Renters Helpline, call (916) 389-7877 during regular business hours or visit <https://www.rentershelpline.org/en/>. ★

Rent Community Center Kitchen for Your Drive-Thru Fundraisers

Although the Community Center remains closed for all publically in-house and in-person events, you can still rent the commercial kitchen for drive-thru fundraisers. Photo: City of Citrus Heights

City of Citrus Heights

CITRUS HEIGHTS, CA (MPG) - Due to the State's guidelines for COVID-19 rental facility closures, the Citrus Heights Community Center remains closed publically for all in-house and in-person events. For this reason, the Community Center team has created a unique solution to support various organizations' fundraising goals for 2021.

The new Citrus Heights Community Center "contactless drive-thru package" includes the rental of the commercial kitchen within the facility to either prepare or package take-out style meals for drive-thru pick-up. Packaged meals may also include sealed alcohol sales (ABC Permit is required).

Two Citrus Heights community organizations have already taken advantage of this unique opportunity. The group's combined event sold approximately 200 meal tickets and featured two separate pickup times to avoid any traffic congestion. Safety measures taken by the organizations included limited volunteers directing drivers to the pick-up location, directional signage for drivers, social distancing, and wearing masks and gloves.

The organizations also held an online auction before the drive-thru date and the winners were able to pick up auction items along with their meals.

If your organization is interested in the contactless drive-thru package, please contact dcarpenter@citrusheights.net and msaario@citrusheights.net for details and available dates. ★
