Tax the Rich? Not So Much

Why California's eco-friendly, tax-the-rich electorate killed Prop. 30

By Ben Christopher,

Voting down Proposition 30 might seem a little off-brand for the California electorate.

These are the voters, after all, who showed no qualms just a decade ago about hiking income taxes on top earners and also hit up millionaires in 2004 to pay for mental health services. These are the California majorities who, as recently as June, told pollsters that they were either considering or had already purchased an electric car. Most named air pollution, wildfire and climate change as areas of major personal concern.

And yet the ballot measure that would have increased taxes on about 43,000 multimillionaires (on income above $2 million a year) to fund electric car rebates and combat wildfires has suffered an unambiguous defeat. In the statewide vote count as of late Wednesday, 59% rejected the proposal.

At first glance, the fate of Prop. 30 may be the most compelling head-scratcher of the 2022 California election. But for the campaigns on both sides of the highly contested measure, and for many independent political observers to boot, there's an obvious answer to this electoral mystery — and its name is Gov. Gavin Newsom.

"You can't remove the governor from it," said Matt Rodriguez, campaign manager for No on 30. "He's a credible messenger on the opposition side, simply because I think a lot of people and a lot of Democrats take their cues from him."

Newsom's decision to come out swinging against Prop. 30 in mid-September caught many political observers by surprise. That's both because his position seemed at odds with his reputation as a climate advocate in general and a booster of electric cars specifically, and because his opposition was so fervent. Of the seven measures on the state ballot this

YUBA CITY, CA (MPG)

- Yuba-Sutter artists, crafters, hobbyists and creators will be gathering to share their talents with the community at the Yuba-Sutter Small Business Holiday Vendor Fair.

The Yuba-Sutter Chamber of Commerce will host area Small Businesses from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on November 19 in their parking lot.

Focusing on Home-Based and Cottage Industry businesses from around the area, the community will be able to shop vendors unique to our community. The event will include more than 25 vendors, small businesses, food, music, festivities and more. This is an opportunity for the community to get out and support local Small Businesses. And Santa will also be attending.

The Yuba-Sutter Chamber of Commerce hosts 3 Small Business Vendor Fairs per year. The focus of the Vendor Fairs are to provide a public space for area small businesses, like cottage industry and home-based businesses, to help grow within the community. The event is open to the public and free to attend. The Chamber is located at 1300 Franklin Road in Yuba City, in the WinCo parking lot.

Local business is built on establishing long-term relationships. That is why it's important businesses get their products and services in front of the community. By creating these events, The Chamber is helping to increase visibility of our small businesses by bringing the community together.

Vendor spaces for the vendor fair are still available, but limited with preference given to the cottage industry and home-based businesses as well as businesses selling retail items. Booths cost $50 for Chamber members or $75 for non-members.

To sign up as a vendor, visit www.yubasutterchamber.com, call 530-743-6501 or email kperry@yubasutterchamber.com.

'Walnut-Buying Period' Announced in Yuba-Sutter

Yuba County
News Release

YUBA COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Sutter and Yuba Agricultural Commissioners Lisa Herbert and Stephen Scheer announced the walnut buying period began on November 1, and continues through the end April 2023, as required by each county's Walnut Theft Prevention ordinance.

The ordinances were established to deter thefts from commercial walnut growers, by creating a timeframe for walnut purchases, as well as the use of documentation to identify walnut growers.

Walnuts are the second highest valued agricultural commodity in both Yuba and Sutter counties. According to the Sutter County 2021 Crop Report, there were 39,413 harvested acres in Sutter County with a market value of $121,405,000. The Yuba County 2021 Crop Report reported 17,193 harvested acres with a market value of $55,705,000.

"The Walnut Theft Prevention ordinances are intended to deter theft, and proof of ownership is a mandatory requirement of the ordinances," Scheer said.

The walnut buying period is the declared conclusion of harvest for the Chandler variety of walnuts by the Agricultural Commissioners, after consultation with walnut growers, during which non-processing walnut buying operations within Sutter and Yuba counties may lawfully purchase and receive walnuts that have not been dried or processed.

For more information, or to access a proof of ownership form approved by these offices, please see the Agricultural Commissioners websites: (Sutter County - <https://bit.ly/2G7wsja>) (Yuba County - Yuba.org/walnuts).

There are similar ordinances in place in Butte, Tehama, and Glenn counties, and in several counties to the south ★.

Holiday Concert with Tom Galvin and the Ukuladies

YSA News Release

MARYSVILLE, CA (MPG) - At Yuba Sutter Arts & Culture, the holidays are all about music. And what better way to immerse yourself in the spirit of the season than to get out and enjoy live music performed by our many talented local ensembles and individual musicians. Enjoy concerts by the Yuba-Sutter Master Chorale, the Oratorio Society's annual performance of the Messiah and on Saturday, December 3rd, you can hear Tom Galvin at the Sutter Theater Center for the Arts.

Tom will share stories about well-known holiday songs and how they became popularized. And fair warning, audience participation will be gently encouraged adding to the holiday cheer of this concert. Tom will tell stories about the history of many well-known holiday songs as well as some possibly less well-known tunes. It is guaranteed, however, that

Arrests Made in Marysville Included Drug Possession and Sex Offenders

Marysville PD News Release

MARYSVILLE, CA (MPG) - The Marysville Police Department made 24 arrests over the weekend of October 28-31. There were 3 DUI arrests, 6 drug related arrests, 3 sex offender warrant arrests, and several other arrests.

On Friday, October 28th, 2022, at around 5AM, the Marysville Police Department conducted a traffic stop on a vehicle on the 300 block of E Street in Marysville. Officers located over two ounces of fentanyl, meth, drug paraphernalia, evidence of drug sales, and over $3,000 in cash. The driver, Candelario Vargas Jr. of Marysville, was arrested for several charges including possession of narcotics for sale.

On Monday, October 31st, 2022, the Marysville Police Department conducted a sex offender compliance check detail. Three separate people had arrest warrants due to violating terms of their sex offender registration requirements. All three were located in the City of Marysville and arrested.

Officers also increased their proactive enforcement efforts in the downtown area, including Ellis Lake. One person was arrested for a felony arrest warrant and over a dozen people were issued citations. Those citations were for possession of meth, possession of drug paraphernalia, open alcohol container, and other miscellaneous crimes.

New Yuba-Sutter Rotary Night Club

YSA News Release

MARYSVILLE, CA (MPG) - Earlier this year, it was announced that there was a new Rotary Club in town. The Yuba-Sutter Rotary Night Club was formed in April and is going strong. The club's emphasis is on community service, of course, and helping to enhance the local quality of life through increased experiential and participatory opportunities in the arts and culture, all through a diversity, equity, and inclusion lens. The club was created for community members who want to serve, but who are unable to attend lunch or breakfast meetings and find an evening meeting more convenient.

The Yuba-Sutter Rotary Night Club meets twice each month, on the first Wednesday of the month at Oya Mediterranean Restaurant in Marysville and on the third Wednesday of the month at Marcelo's Italian Restaurant in Yuba City. Fees are intentionally kept very low to eliminate another possible barrier to participation.

Since its inception, the club has founded a new Interact Club at the Marysville Charter Academy for the Arts. This is Rotary's high school-based community service and leadership program. The club has undertaken maintenance projects at the Veterans Art Park in Marysville (soon to be relocated) and at the Arboga Assembly Center Memorial Park in South Yuba County. It will hold its first ever holiday party and dinner at the Sutter Theater Center for the Arts on December 17 just prior to the Yuba-Sutter Big Band concert and dance. Other service club members are invited to attend the party as well as members of the public. Just be sure to pre-register so organizers can anticipate attendance numbers.

The new club members are working hard to live up to the Rotary International mantra "Service Above Self." Rotary International is a storied institution with a 100+ year history of service on a global scale. There are over 46,000 clubs worldwide and a membership base of 1.4 million. Our three other Rotary Clubs in Yuba-Sutter have been serving the community tirelessly for decades. One of Rotary's most conspicuous programs has been Polio Plus which, as part of a global effort, has helped to all but eliminate polio with only two countries, Afghanistan, and Pakistan, still reporting a few cases each year.

Rotary International has evolved over the years and encouraged new clubs with alternate formats; satellite clubs, passport clubs, interest, or cause-based clubs, etc. By teaming up with Rotary with a new club format, it is hoped that additional funding opportunities will be available to support relevant local initiatives.

For more information, contact Abbie Cesena at 530-713-8784 or abbicallencesena@gmail.com.

Rotary International is a humanitarian service organization founded in 1905 by Paul Harris in Chicago which brings together people in order to provide community service, promote integrity, and advance goodwill, peace, and understanding in the world. It is a non-political and non-religious organization. Membership is open to all. There are over 46,000 member clubs worldwide, with a membership of 1.4 million individuals, known as Rotarians. ★ year, the governor only lent his likeness and directed his own campaign resources to two — the overwhelmingly successful Prop. 1 to codify abortion rights in the California constitution, and Prop. 30, a riskier political gambit.

That was a coup for the anti-Prop. 30 forces. Comparing polls taken before and after the governor cut his first “No on 30” ad, public support wilted — especially among his supporters.

“The drop among those who approve of Newsom was three times greater than those who were disapproving,” said Dean Bonner, associate survey director at the Public Policy Institute of California. The No campaign found a similar shift in its private polling.

Mary Creasman, CEO of California Environmental Voters and a member of the campaign supporting Prop. 30, also said Newsom’s role “100%” contributed to the measure’s demise, though she also blamed the “No” campaign for what she said were “lies” about what the ballot measure would actually do.

Prop. 30 “had a record number of billionaires against it, it had complete falsehoods thrown at it, and it had the most popular Democratic leader in the state against it,” she said. “And we still got 40% of the vote.”

Specifically, Creasman said the suggestion, made by Newsom and in many No on 30 ads, that Prop. 30 would have specifically benefited Lyft was false. In fact, though the measure could have helped the rideshare company meet some of the state’s vehicle electrification mandates, it would have done so by subsidizing zero-emission vehicles and expanding charging infrastructure in general, not by providing money to Lyft directly.

Lyft, however, provided roughly 94% of the funding, nearly $48 million, for the Yes on Prop. 30 campaign.

Creasman said she was especially puzzled by the governor’s position, given his support for a state policy to phase out the sale of new gas-powered cars by 2035. The governor and Legislature have committed $10 billion on zero-emission programs and subsidies over the next five years. But Creasman argued that making the mandated transition will require more, and more reliable, public funding.

The failure of Prop. 30 puts the ball in the governor’s court, she added.

“Where’s the money going to come from?” said Creasman. “If the governor has some exciting, innovative new stuff that he can pull out of his pocket and say, ‘Here’s how we’re gonna pay for it,’ we are all in.”

Both Creasman and Rodriguez cautioned against drawing any sweeping conclusions about California voters’ policy preferences from the outcome of this single contentious proposition.

Will voters “still be progressive on tax policy? I think possibly,” said Rodriguez. “Will they still be very progressive on climate? I think absolutely. I don’t think any of that is gone. I just think that voters weren’t fooled.”

David Vogel, author of “California Greenin’: How the Golden State Became An Environmental Leader” and a UC Berkeley professor emeritus, agreed.

“I don’t see it as a referendum at all on climate change or the environment,” he said of Prop. 30. He pointed to the governor’s opposition, the neutrality of some high-profile environmental organizations including the Sierra Club and the allegations of self-dealing by Lyft as top reasons for voter skepticism.

The Sierra Club’s decision not to endorse was motivated by concerns that some of the money that the measure would have directed toward wildfire mitigation could have funded clear-cutting forests.

But that was only one of many dueling endorsements and non-endorsements in the Prop. 30 campaign that may have confused voters.

In opposing the measure, Newsom joined traditional allies in the state’s two largest teachers’ unions, which warned that Prop. 30 could reduce state funding to public schools. But he broke with many Democrats and was on the same side as stranger political bedfellows, including the California Republican Party, the state Chamber of Commerce and the Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association.

On the yes side, the Democratic Party, many environmentalists and trades unions joined Lyft, even though they battled the corporate giant just two years ago over its successful referendum to exempt the company’s drivers from a state labor law.

The utter strangeness of those coalitions likely contributed to the defeat of Prop. 30 too, said Paul Mitchell, with Political Data Inc., an election analysis firm that works with Democrats.

“I don’t think it was so much the governor’s messaging, but it was confusing to voters. It was like, ‘Wait, this is an environmental thing? It’s a Lyft thing? The governor isn’t for it?’” he said.

Mitchell pointed to the trend in California politics that ballot measures frequently lose support as Election Day nears. That’s often because undecided and puzzled voters are driven by a “first do no harm” principle and, erring on the side of the status quo, vote “no.”

“Confusion is the best friend of the ‘no’ side,” said Mitchell. “You don’t have to even win the argument, you just have to muddy the waters.” ★

A Cornerstone of Modern Medicine is on the Brink of Collapse

Commentary
by Dr. Michelle McMurry-Heath

Roughly a century after the first antibiotics revolutionized medicine, the development pipeline for these critical drugs is on the brink of collapse.

Without policies to reinvigorate research into newer, more potent antibiotics, the world may soon face another global public health crisis as devastating as COVID-19.

According to an analysis in The Lancet, more than 1.2 million people died from drug-resistant bacteria in 2019. By 2050, these superbugs could kill as many as 10 million people each year.

Since the discovery of the first marketed antibacterials in the early 1900s, these wonder-drugs have become indispensable. By the end of the 20th century, the U.S. Food and Drug Administration had approved 135 new drugs that kill bacteria or inhibit their growth.

These included breakthroughs such as penicillin-like drugs and medicines like erythromycin. These drugs made it possible to treat many infections, like pneumonia and strep throat.

But in recent decades, new antibacterials have become alarmingly rare. In the past 35 years, the FDA has approved just one antibacterial drug with a novel way to kill target pathogens.

This slowdown in antibacterial innovation is in stark contrast to new superbugs that are increasingly resistant to today's therapies. Absent a global effort to develop more new and novel antibiotics, antimicrobial resistance could undo much of modern medicine as we know it.

If today's antibiotics stop working, routine medical procedures, such as cesarean sections and hip replacements — not to mention open-heart surgery — could become impossibly dangerous.

Yet the chief obstacles to antibiotic development are economic, not scientific. It costs on average $1.58 billion to develop a new antibiotic. And since antibiotics should be used judiciously to preserve their effectiveness, it's exceedingly challenging for research firms to recoup costs through traditional sales models.

As a result, investors aren't funding antibacterial research adequately. Over the last decade, venture capital funding for U.S. antibacterial development amounted to $1.6 billion, compared with $26.5 billion for oncology. Biotech startups drive the vast majority of antibacterial research and development. Small companies discovered more than 80% of antibacterial treatments in clinical trials. But so great are the market challenges that many of these businesses fail — even when their drugs succeed.

Take the biopharmaceutical firm Achaogen, which earned FDA approval for its antibiotic plazomicin in 2018. The next year, the company filed for bankruptcy.

From the scientific standpoint, the prospects for new antibacterials look distinctly promising. Between 2011 and 2020, antibacterial drugs starting early clinical trials had a 16.3% likelihood of reaching FDA approval. That's more than double the 7.9% success rate across all diseases.

With the right financial incentives, the biopharmaceutical sector is more than capable of building a pipeline for antibacterial drugs that can meet the challenge of antimicrobial resistance.

Thankfully, there are policy reforms pending in Congress that could fix the broken antibiotics market. The Pioneering Antimicrobial Subscriptions to End Upsurging Resistance (PASTEUR) Act would establish a subscription-like model for new antimicrobials that treat the most pressing resistant threats. It would ensure availability of new products, while providing a predictable return on investment for biopharmaceutical firms that is tied to the drug's value to public health, not the volume sold.

Another proposal known as the Developing an Innovative Strategy for Antimicrobial Resistant Microorganisms (DISARM) Act would enable appropriate access to newer antibiotics by modernizing how Medicare reimburses these drugs.

These are the two most important steps policymakers can take to address a public health crisis that is threatening our very existence.

Dr. Michelle McMurry-Heath is a physician-scientist and the president and CEO of the Biotechnology Innovation Organization. This piece originally ran in The Mercury News and the East Bay Times. ★

Agencies Pledge to Conserve Additional Water

Natural Resources Agency News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - California water agencies that rely on Colorado River supplies have stepped up to propose reducing their water usage by up to 400,000 acre-feet each year beginning in 2023 through 2026 to protect storage in Lake Mead and help stabilize the Colorado River reservoir system.

In a letter to the U.S. Bureau of Reclamation and the U.S. Department of the Interior, four water agencies and the Colorado River Board of California volunteered to conserve water — totaling 1.6 million acre-feet over that four-year period — that otherwise would be used by California communities and farms to help stabilize low reservoirs amid unprecedented drought conditions across the Colorado River basin.

"Given dire drought conditions across the region and dangerously low reservoir levels, we firmly believe that all water users within the Basin must take immediate voluntary actions to stabilize water supplies in the Basin's major reservoirs," the letter stated.

The agencies — Metropolitan Water District of Southern California, Imperial Irrigation District, Coachella Valley Water District and Palo Verde Irrigation District — said they would need to utilize funding opportunities provided by the federal Inflation Reduction Act and other federal programs to enable this voluntary conservation. They also said the voluntary conservation actions were dependent on a clear federal commitment to contribute to efforts to stabilize the Salton Sea, which is receding due to reduced inflows from existing water conservation actions in Imperial Valley and will further shrink as additional water is conserved in the region.

California has invested billions of dollars in urban and agricultural water conservation across Southern California through programs that reach virtually every Colorado River water user in the state. Since 2003, these conservation efforts have resulted in over 13 million acre-feet of Colorado River water being conserved and transferred to other water users in Southern California.

"California has long been a leader in water conservation within the Colorado River Basin, including through the nation's largest agricultural to urban water conservation and transfer program, the Quantification Settlement Agreement, and through billions of dollars in investments in agricultural and urban water conservation,"

the letter stated. "In fact, through a variety of activities, California's water agencies have voluntarily conserved nearly 2 million acre-feet of water supplies in Lake Mead since 2007 that has added more than twenty feet to Lake Mead elevations and aided other Lower Basin water users from experiencing previously agreed upon shortage reductions that would have otherwise occurred as early as 2015."

The letter noted that while a broader multi-state agreement to conserve water has not yet been reached, the California agencies are prepared to take voluntary action now — contingent on federal funding and commitments on the Salton Sea — to conserve water in coming months.

"California water agencies are stepping up in a big way with this proposal," explained California Natural Resources Secretary Wade Crowfoot. "Everyone in the basin agrees that extraordinary measures are needed to prevent the system from collapsing. But to date, months of negotiations have yielded no concrete action. Simply put, we can't wait any longer to act and are therefore stepping up to leave more water in the reservoirs. We hope water users across the basin will follow suit."

"The effects of climate-driven extremes are being felt across the West," said California Department of Water Resources Director Karla Nemeth. "The time to adapt is now, and California is aggressively moving to transform the way we use and manage water so we can thrive in a hotter, drier future."

In August, the Newsom Administration outlined actions it will take to help restore, recycle, de-salt and conserve water it will need to keep up with the impacts of climate change. "California's Water Supply Strategy, Adapting to a Hotter, Drier Future" calls for investing in new sources of water supply, accelerating projects and modernizing how the state manages water through new technology.

This year's state budget includes $3.6 billion over four years for immediate drought support and long-term water resilience, including relief to hard-hit communities, water conservation and environmental protection for fish and wildlife. Including allocations made in the 2021 Budget, a total of $8.7 billion has been dedicated to support drought resilience and response, enabling emergency drought response, improving water conservation to stretch water supplies, and supporting scores of local drought resilience projects. ★

Thanksgiving:
Have an Attitude of Gratitude

Thanksgiving is much more than a big meal with family and friends. It's a time to reflect on, and be thankful for, all of the good things you have. It's important to be grateful, not just on Thanksgiving, but each and every day. Rather than lamenting what you feel is lacking in your life, begin each new day by developing an attitude of gratitude. Take inventory of your blessings and you will be surprised at just how much you have to be thankful for.

If you have enough to eat, a place to live, a way to get around, people who care about you, or people you care about, then you are wealthy. If you lack any of these elements, you must still be grateful for what you do have, while striving to obtain whatever is absent.

Focus on all positive aspects of your life. Take nothing for granted. Every morning, recharge your appreciation. Be happy for everything there is, not upset over what you feel is missing.

Dreams of the future shouldn't diminish appreciation for the present. If all you do is concentrate on what you want, you won't enjoy today. Don't be jealous of others; what they do or have has no bearing on you.

You can feel bitter or resentful for a variety of reasons. Perhaps you feel something is missing from your life, things aren't going your way, or you have been treated unfairly. You may wonder, "why do these things always happen to me?"

Life's problems tend to dominate your thoughts, turning your focus to what you feel is wrong. You may start to resent those who appear to be better off. You're apt to dwell on things you think would make your life better if you had them. If only you had more money, more time, a bigger house, a different car, a different job, a different boss, had picked a different career, etc.

Once your attitude becomes one of deficiency instead of abundance and appreciation, you can become overwhelmed by feelings of frustration and feel like a victim. As this happens, a consuming vicious cycle starts.

Being bitter or resentful blows situations out of proportion. People who are bitter frequently find that their situations deteriorate and their mental and physical health decays.

It's difficult, if not impossible, to achieve your goals while you are bitter or resentful. Regardless of what challenges might befall you, bitterness makes finding solutions much more elusive.

There is no point to feeling bitter since it accomplishes nothing, harms you and makes things worse. Filling yourself with gratitude on a daily basis makes you feel good, while driving out negative feelings.

Begin your practice of gratitude each morning as soon as you wake. Every day is a great day. If you have any doubts, try missing one. Take inventory of everything, no matter how small or seemingly insignificant, that is good in your life.

If it helps, make a written list of all things you are grateful for. Read your list every day. As you do this, you will build and reinforce your attitude of gratitude. Don't waste any time with what you feel you don't have.

Keep things in perspective. Consider all the people who have overcome difficulties far worse than yours. Don't be consumed by your problems, there is always a solution. Maintaining an attitude of gratitude allows your mind to devise a resolution for your circumstances.

Make everyday a day of Thanksgiving and you will be amazed how much better your life will become.

Could the Ocean Slake California’s Thirst?

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

“Water, water, every where, And all the boards did shrink; Water, water, every where, Nor any drop to drink.”

Poet Samuel Taylor Coleridge penned those words in his 1798 poem, “The Rime of the Ancient Mariner,” to describe the plight of becalmed sailors who could die of thirst while surrounded by limitless expanses of undrinkable seawater.

In a way, it also describes California’s plight. Despite its 3,427 miles of Pacific Ocean coastline, including bays, inlets and tidal marshes, the state has an ever-widening gap between its demand for water and its supply.

Naturally, there has been a decades-long debate over whether the state should tap into that endless supply of seawater to bridge the gap, emulating other arid and semi-arid societies, particularly in Australia and the Mideast.

From a technical standpoint, it’s a no-brainer. Desalination plants, including a few already operating in California, do exactly what they are supposed to do — strip the salt from seawater, converting it into freshwater suitable for drinking or any other purpose. The barriers to building dozens of desalination plants along the coast are economic, environmental and political.

Such plants require oodles of electrical power to pump in the seawater, push it through filters that remove the salt and then return the uber-salty brine waste either to the sea or into another process.

A massive desal program would place a new burden on a power grid that already struggles to keep up with demand on very hot days as it evolves from natural gas-fired power plants to renewable sources such as wind and solar. Desal’s power demand also contributes heavily to the bottom line costs of producing water, making it more expensive, at least so far, than water from other sources.

Finally, environmental groups have generally opposed desal projects on assertions that pumping seawater into the plants and returning brine to the sea run the risk of damaging delicate marine ecosystems. But the groups have another, unspoken reason for opposition. Restricted water supplies have been used as a tool to oppose new residential development and increasing water supply undercuts that political tool.

In combination, all of those points were cited in the California Coastal Commission’s rejection of a much-debated desal project at Huntington Beach in Orange County earlier this year. The plant would have been a near-clone of a desal facility in Carlsbad, further south along the coast.

At the time, it appeared to be a death knell for the expansion of desalination in California — something that Gov. Gavin Newsom’s administration envisions in its overall plan for closing the demand/supply gap as climate change and semi-perpetual drought diminish traditional supplies from winter rains and snowfall.

However, last month the Coastal Commission approved another Orange County desal project, one that would use somewhat different technology to pump in seawater and dilute the leftover brine before returning it to the sea.

Environmental groups gave their blessing to the Dana Point project, which made a big difference in the Coastal Commission’s attitude, as is the fact that it’s only one-tenth the size of the Huntington Beach project and would serve purely local customers of the South Coast Water District.

The approval was an indication that desalination could, as the state’s water plan envisions, play a significant role in California’s water future, which will be much different than its abundant past.

That said, desal probably wouldn’t be the silver bullet of limitless supply that some have hoped it would be. It would be more of a reliability factor, something that Californians could depend on working when traditional supplies fall short.

As our local population gets older (and tired) all of our volunteer organizations face the problem of continuing. We strongly recommend that as you look at retirement, consider getting involved with an organization that will hold your interest. It is a healthy life when one stays interested in things, stay busy. So consider the Mountain Quilt guild as it meets on Wednesdays and make beautiful quilts, they encourage people to knit or croquet, too. The Thrift Store always needs help, a good way to rehome unneeded items and support the volunteer firefighters. Stone Soup meets on Thursdays at noon. Because of attrition we need more soup makers as well as people to help set up and clean up. Books and More always encourages volunteers to keep it going. Yuba Feather Community Services needs help in keeping the parks in good shape as well as volunteers at any event. Mountain Fair is looking for help as they begin to plan for next year. Check in at Mountains Top Coffee Shop and see what they are doing to create a great meeting place. Stay busy and enjoy life.

Holiday season is picking up as we have had our first winter storm. Here in Brownsville we did not have snow on the ground, but up the hill there was plenty the further up you went. Watch for notices of the special events happening: Thrift Store's Holiday Bazaar, Hometown Christmas at the museum on Nov. 26, and Peddler's Fair at Ponderosa Community Center on December 3. We are trying to organize a Toy Run, too. It is always a busy time of year.

Look Back in Time – In 1914 Challenge Hotel owned by Dr. J. Van Male, burned to the ground in the early morning hours. It was a great loss to Challenge and to travelers (not as much loss as the Paradise fire, but related).

~ Hope to see you in Brownsville soon. Yvonne ★

Where there is Vapor there is Bitcoin

I have always said cyber coins like Bitcoin are vapor. And every so often I am confirmed that I am not far off from the mark. I also get a lot of hate mail when I negatively cover bitcoin. So goes it for a financial analyst covering the world of finance and trying to help people.

No, bitcoin isn’t all vapor, but it’s certainly more vapor than it was the last time I wrote about it. My articles and radio shows on bitcoin started when it was around $60,000 a coin. Then I penned another article at around $41,000, again at about $30,000 (it drops so fast I can’t keep up), another article and radio show when it breached $19,000 (on the downside of course), and last week it fell another 15% into the $16,000’s.

When my emails light up shortly after these articles hit the news wires, I get mail from the usual suspects (people that own it), and the usual comments, like I don’t understand it.

If you read each of my crypto articles, they usually begin with the statement “I don’t fully understand it”, so I am not sure why they reiterate that in their emails. I mean “I already said that!”

I will say it again, I don’t fully understand what Bitcoin is. Nor do probably 90% of the people that own it. What I do understand however, and likely my detractors don’t, is what an asset mania is.

Yes, I get it. Bitcoin is a decentralized currency that can’t be destroyed, is in cyberspace or even onboard a localized “wallet” that one can physically possess, and supposedly the currency of the future.

Well, on the currency of the future part, I will add: not in its present form. Currencies have to retain a store of value. That translates to being stable, and that means in both directions, up and down. Bitcoin and those other “vape coins” like it are anything but stable. In fact with 20,000 cyber coins now available, likely most of them are just a Ponzi scheme. My opinion of course.

The latest cause for this most recent musing is the news that one of the largest exchanges where people trade and store bitcoin is in trouble. Financial trouble of course and is there any other when it comes to cyber coin?

What happened: On November 8th, an article came out on a crypto news service suggesting that the CEO of one of the largest cyber coin exchanges FTX, Sam Brinkman-Fried, was using the firm’s funds, aka clients, to bail out one of FTX hedge funds, a highly illegal transaction. Apparently Brinkman-Fried said as much when hours later he admitted in an interview:

“I screwed up.”

That sounds pretty clear to me as an admission.

Bitcoin plummeted another 15% on the news.

Then on November 11th, they filed of bankruptcy. Then good ol’boy Sam stepped down.

Whoops!

Hence another “caveat emptor” article on the dangers of cyber coins by yours truly.

It wasn’t but a few months ago similar shenanigans surrounding Bitcoin and their exchanges rocked the cyber coin universe in what is becoming a familiar theme here on Money Matters.

No, I don’t hate cyber coins. I actually own a tiny amount of them, or at least I did. I haven’t checked lately and kind of kissed off the funds when I bought them at, where else, FTX.

Irony isn’t it.

No, I don’t fully understand Bitcoin, but I know a mania when I see one, and there have been many throughout mankind’s financial history.

They all have a great story: The early money makes a ton, imitations pop up (how about 20,000 of them), everybody believes they can only go in one direction (up), celebrities, banks and businesses start to participate (and they have), then crookery starts to pop up, prices start to flatten, illiquidity in dealers begins to appear, followed by bankruptcies, then the news wires are flooded with denials and assurances by remaining participants all is fine (we are here), then more firms fail, and the entire thing implodes with devastating losses to many. Then regulators dissect the whole mess and the event is complete.

I don’t know if cyber coins will run the gamut and implode entirely, nor does anyone else. It might go up in a grand ball of vapor, or it might become the greatest currency of all. My prognostication is the first one if you haven’t guessed.

But ask yourself, given the above description of all other previous manias in history, do you see any resemblance here?

I sure do.

Virus Spread by Thrips Ravages Lettuce in Salinas Valley

A virus spread by insects is causing widespread damage to lettuce crops in the Salinas Valley. The impatiens necrotic spot virus, or INSV, is spread by thrips, tiny insects that reproduce rapidly and feast on vegetable crops. Salinas Valley produces more than one-half of America’s lettuce, and farmers in the region are predicting big financial losses from INSV this year. They say they expect the crop loss to be worse than in 2020, when the bug-spread virus cost growers an estimated $100 million in lost revenue.

California Dairies Harness ‘Cow Power’ for FuelsProduction

The Golden State has become a leader in harnessing “cow power” to produce renewable fuels and other clean energy. Currently, more than 100 methane digesters are operating in California, and more than 100 others are in various stages of development. Although dairy digesters have been around for decades, their numbers have exploded in recent years, thanks to state funding aimed at helping dairy farmers reduce greenhouse gas emissions. Under Senate Bill 1383, the sector must produce 40% less methane than in 2013.

Ongoing Drought Challenges Efforts to Protect Groundwater Supplies

California’s 2014 Sustainable Groundwater Management Act requires local agencies to balance aquifer supplies in different state basins by 2040 and 2042. But some farmers say severe drought and ongoing economic challenges are making that more difficult. Farmers are facing severe cutbacks in surface water supplies and rising costs of agricultural production. As California is in the process of reviewing plans to protect groundwater supplies, some farmers fear the solution is to remove more farmland from production.

Federal Officials Warn of Potential Colorado River Water Restrictions

Federal officials are warning they may curtail flows into the Colorado River from Hoover Dam in Nevada and Glen Canyon Dam in Arizona if California and six other states can’t agree on a water-sharing plan to help the depleted reservoirs. Interior Secretary Deb Haaland said officials are “committed to taking prompt and decisive action necessary to protect the Colorado River system.” Winter vegetable farmers in Imperial Valley, who rely exclusively on Colorado River water, have already significantly reduced water use. ★

California Invests Nearly $3 Billion for Transportation Improvements

Caltrans News Release

SANTA BARBARA, CA (MPG) - The California Transportation Commission (CTC) has allocated nearly $3 billion for projects to repair and improve transportation infrastructure throughout the state. The allocation includes more than $452 million in funding from the federal Infrastructure Investment and Jobs Act of 2021 (IIJA) and more than $123 million in funding from Senate Bill (SB) 1, the Road Repair and Accountability Act of 2017.

“This allocation – which includes a significant federal investment – allows Caltrans and our local partners to continue building the equitable, sustainable, and safe transportation system on which future generations will depend,” said Caltrans Director Tony Tavares.

Projects approved include:

$3.5 million in federal IIJA funding for a City of Rancho Cordova project for roadway, sidewalk, curb ramp, bike lane and traffic signal improvements on Mather Field Road between Folsom Boulevard International Drive;

$2 million in State Highway

Operational and Protection Program (SHOPP) funds for project development and right of way costs for intersection and safety improvements at Live Oak Boulevard/Encinal Road and State Route 99 in the Lomo Crossing area in Sutter County;

$520,000 in SHOPP funds to develop a safety project for a new traffic signal at the intersection of State Route 32 and County Road P near Orland, Glenn County.

The CTC allocated more than $2.1 billion to Caltrans’ Division of Local Assistance in its annual federal fiscal year investment. These local assistance funds are used by more than 600 cities, counties and regional agencies throughout California to build and improve roads, bridges, tunnels and other transportation infrastructure, and for projects that enhance safety and help protect the environment. Annually, more than 1,200 new projects are authorized through the Local Assistance Program.

SB 1 provides $5 billion in transportation funding annually that is shared equally between the state and local agencies. Road projects progress through construction phases more quickly based on the availability of SB 1 funds, including projects that are partially funded by SB 1. ### LOCAL FISHING

Four days on the North Fork Yuba River. Downeyville was our first stop to get tuned up. Using dry flies ie., Parachute Adams, Humpy, Royal Wulff resulted in several nice rainbow limits. Ladies Canyon Creek is designated a "Wild Trout Section". We caught and released many 16 inch rainbows. Hatches included: Golden Stone, Baetis Mayflies, such as: BWO, Hares Ear, Birds Nest, and Sparkle Duns. At the mouth of Haypress Creek we kept limits of 4"-6" brook trout. Using: Red/Yellow Humpy, Adams Parachute, Hares Ear, Elk Hair Caddis, all on tiny 6 X tip-pets. We never miss Salmon Creek for 16 inch Brown trout. Using: attractor flies such as: Royal Wulff, Renagades, Prince Nymphs, all on a dropper with Pheasant Tail Nymphs and BH Biots.

SAN FRANCISCO BAY-DELTA

Charter boats landing limits of halibut in the central bay. USE: Live Anchovy. (b) Delta West Bank, white sturgeons. Four slot fish, one shaker, one oversize. USE: Fresh Roe. (b) Delta Montezuma Slough. Stripers are scattered. Trolling...USE: Spoons. (g)

COASTAL WATERS

Dungeness crab season opened. Sport fishermen can use personal net and hoops, but not to be left overnight. Legal size is 6 3/4 inches. USE: Squid offal. (b) Bodega Bay, Cordell Banks. Blue fin tuna galore. USE: 200 g Nomad MadMac lure. (b)

LAKES RESERVOIRS AND RIVERS

Lake Oroville; Chinooks up to 2 1/2lbs. at 5-15ft deep. Watch your sonar for schools.

Jerk Baits

USE: Jerk Baits. (a) Note: When bringing salmon up from one atmosphere depth, they may develop "Barotrauma" (exploding air bladders). Use an inverted barbless hook with an 8-ounce bell weight. Insert the hook in the fishes lip and drop it back down to the depth. When the weight hits bottom, jerk the inverted hook sharply up to release the salmon. They will swim away freely as their bladders deflate to normal size. Fisherman's Comment: Brownie, my salmon is 16 inches long and 4 inches wide. How much edible meat do I have? I use the formula { A=GxL } * Signed. Avid Reader. Fisherman's comment: Brownie, please tell your Avid Reader that without scales, he should use my formula { GxGxL/800 } ** to determine his edible meat available. I prefer pounds of salmon to his Area/Bulk for my dinners. Signed. Bob B

* Ans: 64 sq inches ** Ans: 1.28 lbs. Butt Valley Reservoir; Fish the power house outlet to the Cool Springs Campground

for nice 18" rainbows. USE: Damselfly, Dragon Fly. (b)

RIVERS

American River above Ansel Hoffman Park closes Jan 1, 2022. No steelhead moving today. USE: Silver Hilton. (g) Lower Yuba River steelhead; Parks Bar. Bank fishermen USE: Assassin, Herniator. (a) Klamath River debris clearing up. Steelhead, 12 halfpounders and six adults. USE: Streamers. (a) Trinity River steelhead; USE: Fresh Roe. (a)

UNLESS YOU TAKE ACTION TO PROTECT YOUR PROPERTY, IT MAY BE SOLD AT A PUBLIC SALE. IF YOU NEED AN EXPLANATION OF THE NATURE OF THE PROCEEDING AGAINST YOU, YOU SHOULD CONTACT A LAWYER. NOTICE is hereby given that PLACER FORECLOSURE, INC., as trustee, or successor trustee, or substituted trustee pursuant to the Deed of Trust executed by: PAUL W. PETERSON, AN UNMARRIED MAN AND THOMAS G. PETERSON, A SINGLE MAN Recorded 04/15/2016 as Instrument No. 2016-004361 in book , page of Official Records in the office of the Recorder of Yuba County, California, and pursuant to the Notice of Default and Election to Sell thereunder recorded 7/19/2022 in Book, Page, as Instrument No. 2022-011153 of said Official Records, WILL SELL ON 12/01/2022 at the front entrance to the County Courthouse, 215 5th St., Marysville, CA 95901 at 01:30PM AT PUBLIC AUCTION TO THE HIGHEST BIDDER FOR CASH (payable at the time of sale in lawful money of the United States), all right, title and interest conveyed to and now held by it under said Deed of Trust in the property situated in said County and State hereinafter described: As more fully described on said Deed of Trust. The property address and other common designation, if any, of the real property described above is purported to be: 15171 VAVASSUER WAY, DOBBINS, CA 95935 The undersigned Trustee disclaims any liability for any incorrectness of the street address or other common designation, if any, shown herein. Total amount of the unpaid balance of the obligation secured by the property to be sold and reasonable estimated costs, expenses and advances at the time of the initial publication of the Notice of Sale is: $90,184.88 In addition to cash, the trustee will accept a cashier's check drawn on a state or national bank, a check drawn by a state or federal credit union, or a check drawn by a state or federal savings and loan association, or savings association, or savings bank specified in Section 5102 of the Financial Code and authorized to do business in this state. In the event tender other than cash is accepted the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right. Said sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to satisfy the indebtedness secured by said Deed, advances thereunder, with interest as provided therein, and the unpaid principal balance of the Note secured by said Deed with interest thereon as provided in said Note, fees, charges and expenses of the trustee and the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The

law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 or visit this Internet Website www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case PFI-221760. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Website. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. NOTICE TO TENANT: Effective January 1, 2021, you may have a right to purchase this property after the trustee auction pursuant to Section 2924m of the California Civil Code. If you are an "eligible tenant buyer," you can purchase the property if you match the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. If you are an "eligible bidder," you may be able to purchase the property if you exceed the last and highest bid placed at the trustee auction. There are three steps to exercising this right of purchase. First, 48 hours after the date of the trustee sale, you can call (855) 313-3319, or visit this internet website www.clearreconcorp.com, using the file number assigned to this case 098757-CA to find the date on which the trustee's sale was held, the amount of the last and highest bid, and the address of the trustee. Second, you must send a written notice of intent to place a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 15 days after the trustee's sale. Third, you must submit a bid so that the trustee receives it no more than 45 days after the trustee's sale. If you think you may qualify as an "eligible tenant buyer" or "eligible bidder," you should consider contacting an attorney or appropriate real estate professional immediately for advice regarding this potential right to purchase. # Grant Bolsters CHP’s Focus on Sideshows and Street Racing

CHP News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Illegal sideshows, takeovers, and street racing remain a major cause of death and injury on California roadways.

The California Highway Patrol (CHP) recently received a federal grant that will support the state’s redoubled efforts to crack down on reckless driving behaviors that continue to wreak havoc throughout the state.

Building on the $5.5 million in the 2022-23 state budget for the CHP to implement the Campaign to Eliminate Street Racing and Sideshows (C.E.S.R.S.), the $1.5 million Sideshow, Takeover, Racing, Education, and Enforcement Taskforce (STREET) grant will help efforts to decrease the number of fatal and injury traffic crashes attributed to illegal sideshows, takeovers, and street racing.

In 2019-2020, speed was a factor in approximately 40 percent of all fatal and injury crashes in California. In years 2020-2021, preliminary data reflects the number of people killed in crashes caused by reckless driving increased 21 percent from the previous period. The CHP continues to receive a high number of reports on sideshows and street racing and the negative consequences associated with such careless exploits.

“Reckless driving behaviors are a significant threat to all who use California’s roadways,” said CHP Commissioner Amanda Ray. “The STREET grant will provide for a focused education and enforcement campaign, targeting aggressive driving behaviors, street racing, and sideshow activities.”

During the past two years, California has seen significant increases in the number of incidents from unsafe driving behaviors, including motorists exceeding 100 mph on state highways, illicit street racing and sideshow activities, and speed-related crashes.

To address the issue, from January 1, 2021, to September 30, 2022, the CHP conducted enhanced speed enforcement operations on state routes that have seen an increase in speed-related issues. During this period, the CHP issued 40,593 citations to motorists exceeding 100 mph. CHP also collaborated with allied law enforcement agencies, leading to the creation of street racing and sideshow task forces and social media campaigns posting the dangers associated with high speed, aggressive driving behaviors, and street racing.

The STREET grant allows for a comparable campaign starting this month through September 30, 2023. Funding for the STREET program is provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

As an added deterrent, Governor Gavin Newsom recently signed Assembly Bill 2000 (Gabriel), making it illegal for a person to participate and/or engage in a motor vehicle speed contest or in an exhibition of speed in an off-street parking facility. The measure goes into effect on January 1, 2023.

The mission of the CHP is to provide the highest level of Safety, Service, and Security. ★

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate or both of Tony Wheeler Zrofsky

A Petition for Probate has been filed by: Tonya M. Kinyoun and Tracy M. Husted in the Superior Court of California, County of: Yuba

The Petition for Probate requests that (name): Tonya M. Kinyoun be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: December 12, 2022 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 4 located at Superior Court of California, County of Yuba, 215 5th Street Ste. 200 Marysville, CA 95901.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58 (b) of the California Probate code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code.

Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California Law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

CSU Chico News Release

CHICO, CA (MPG) - Glorious Sounds of the Season is ringing in the holiday by bringing people together again after a hiatus during the pandemic. This annual scholarship fundraiser for the Department of Music and Theatre at Chico State is a much-beloved holiday tradition. This year the event will be under the creative direction of Chris Navarrete, director of bands, for the first time. Glorious Sounds of the Season takes place December 2 and 3, with both shows beginning at 7:30 p.m. The final performance will be a 2 p.m. matinee on December 4. All performances are in the Harlen Adams

Theatre (PAC 144) on the Chico State campus. “Our goal is to leave the audience feeling happy, joyful, and excited,” Navarrete said. “This concert is focused on the performance of holiday music. We hope to jumpstart everyone’s holiday spirit as we transition into the end of the year.” The concert is traditionally fast-paced, lasting about 90 minutes, and filled to the brim with holiday cheer and a diverse array of musical ensembles. Expect performances from talented Chico State students and faculty and Chico community members, including the Children’s Choir of Chico, the Acapella Choir, Chamber Singers, Wind Ensemble, Jazz X-Press, various soloists, mixed ensembles and theatre groups, and more. In addition to performances by instrumental, theatre, and choral ensembles, there will be narrated storytelling throughout the duration of the concert, said Navarrete. Attendees can also expect the sing-along tradition to continue with the audience encouraged to join in on holiday classics such as “Sleigh Ride” and “Have Yourself a Merry Little Christmas”. Proceeds from the concert go directly to the support scholarships given to Chico State music and theatre students. Tickets are $20 for reserved seating and are available online and in person at the University Box Office, 530-898-6333. For those who need special seating accommodation, please call 530-898-6333. ★

DWR Takes Actions to Support State’s Future Water Supply Strategy

DWR News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - On September 29, the Department of Water Resources (DWR) announced new steps that, if approved, could save enough water to supply 4.7 million Californians annually while making conservation more affordable through financial assistance and tax exemptions. The actions improve long-term water conservation and reduce wasteful outdoor water use as California adapts to a hotter, drier future driven by climate change. The new actions will build on California’s ongoing long-term efforts to make water conservation a way of life while advancing water efficiency efforts outlined in California’s Water Supply Strategy: Adapting to a Hotter, Drier Future. DWR will be implementing and supporting actions that include: Outdoor Water Use Recommendations To help prepare for a hotter and drier future, DWR has submitted outdoor water use efficiency recommendations to the State Water Resources Control Board. With outdoor water use accounting for 50 percent of urban resident water use on average, the recommendations outline standards that would provide urban retail water suppliers with a framework to support more efficient outdoor residential water use. The framework will also include standards for the irrigation of large commercial, industrial, and institutional (CII) landscapes in their service areas. DWR’s outdoor water use recommendations combined with indoor residential water use recommendations submitted in November 2021 would result in expected long-term water savings of 450,000 acre-feet per year starting in 2030 – enough water to supply about 1.6 million homes or about 4.7 million residents for both indoor and outdoor annual needs. The recommendations would also result in near-term savings of 100,000 acre-feet a year starting in 2023. DWR’s recommendations will be evaluated by the State Water Resources Control Board through a formal rulemaking process, which will include additional analysis, engagement, and opportunity for public comment.

Indoor Water Use Legislation Signed California also recently took additional steps to increase indoor water use savings with Governor Newsom’s signing of Senate Bill 1157 (Hertzberg), which adopts recommendations made by DWR and the State Water Board last year to reduce indoor water use targets to 47 gallons per day by 2025 and 42 gallons by 2030. By adjusting indoor water use standards to reflect the joint recommendation of DWR and the State Water Board, the legislation will help increase water conservation and water use efficiency, ensuring a more water-resilient future for California. Financial Assistance for Turf Transition and Conservation DWR has developed a set of funding programs that will help build resiliency in all communities including underrepresented communities and Tribes. The funding programs include financial assistance for projects that strengthen resiliency in urban communities, turf transition for residential and commercial landscapes and water conservation programs for urban water suppliers. DWR’s programs will help to clear some of the hurdles that underserved communities face with direct install programs and support for local water agencies, while also helping build resiliency with equity in mind. DWR plans to release these grant programs in October. These new programs will build on the momentum created by the millions of dollars in grant funding that has been distributed by DWR in 2022. Turf Tax Exemption For those making smart water decisions to replace their lawns now and, in the future, Governor Newsom signed Assembly Bill 2142 (Gabriel), which will exempt from state income tax calculations any grant, rebate or additional financial assistance awarded from a state or local agency for turf transition. The law will provide the exemption through tax year 2027. For more information on water use efficiency and the recommended standards, visit DWR’s Urban Water Use Efficiency Standards webpage. For information about other DWR and State drought response efforts and funding programs, visit drought.ca.gov. ★

USDA Forest Service partners with Alliance for Green Heat to expand firewood banks nationwide

USDA Forest Service News Release

WASHINGTON, D.C. (MPG) – The U.S. Department of Agriculture’s Forest Service awarded more than $712,000 from President Biden’s Bipartisan Infrastructure Law to the Alliance for Green Heat to expand firewood banks in 2022 and to add more banks in 2023 to serve more people. Firewood banks, like food banks, provide a local, renewable and cost-effective heating source for people in need. The Forest Service is partnering with the Alliance for Green Heat to provide key financial assistance through its small grants program, which helps to supply firewood banks with needed tools and equipment. This winter, Alliance for Green Heat will provide grants between $5,000 and $15,000 to support firewood banks. There are more than 100 firewood banks across the country that distribute firewood to needy families. Often, firewood is their only source of heat at a time when gas, oil or electricity is less affordable. “For many tribal and rural communities across the country, firewood is the primary source of heat,” said Forest Service Chief Randy Moore. “The Alliance for Green Heat and the firewood banks they serve will improve access to renewable wood energy, helping those without access to this life saving resource when they need it the most.” Firewood banks receive logs from towns, tree trimmers, loggers and other donors. They largely rely on volunteers to cut, split, season, and deliver firewood to local households who have run out of firewood and cannot afford to buy more. Some firewood banks are small and may only produce 10 cords (about 128 cubic feet), or enough wood for 10 households. Other firewood banks are much larger, processing up to 100 cords in a season. This funding from the Forest Service will also help the banks with the most common needs, such as chainsaws, splitters, protective clothing, and material for sheds to properly season the wood.

“Firewood has always been ‘the people’s fuel’, used both by households wanting to get off of fossil fuel and by those who can’t afford fossil fuel,” said John Ackerly, president of the Alliance for Green Heat. “This grant will go a long way to bolstering a national network of people helping people to stay warm this winter. This year, the Alliance will distribute up to $590,000, primarily to existing wood banks that served households last winter. A primary goal is to increase the capacity of existing wood banks to provide greater volumes of seasoned wood. Next winter, the Alliance will also focus on newly formed wood banks. Applications may be submitted beginning on Oct. 15 at firewoodbanks.org. For more information about firewood banks, visit firewood-banks.org. About the Alliance for Green Heat The Alliance for Green Heat promotes modern wood and pellet heating systems as a low-carbon, sustainable and affordable energy solution. The Alliance works to advance cleaner and more efficient residential heating technology, particularly for low and middle-income families. Founded in Maryland in 2009, the Alliance is an independent non-profit organization and is tax-exempt under section 501c3 of the tax code. ★

Pride's Rush Attack Ends Indians' Season in Quarterfinals

By Steven Bryla

MARYSVILLE, CA (MPG) - The Marysville varsity football team had its season end on Friday, November 11, as the Indians lost to the Bradshaw Christian Pride 21-7 in the quarterfinals of the 2022 Division VI CIF Sac-Joaquin Section Football Playoffs.

Marysville (7-4) earned a first-round bye as the No. 4 seed in the postseason tournament. Friday night's game had 10 total possessions with each team having five a piece, making every drive matter.

The game began with a 71-yard offensive drive from the Indians that ended when senior quarterback Kayden Ellyson scored from three yards out to give Marysville an early 7-0 lead in the first quarter. The Indians were able to move the ball throughout the game as they never had to punt, but Marysville was unable to get the ball into the end zone following the opening drive.

Indians coach Will Claggett told the Territorial Dispatch that the game went just as he imagined it would. Claggett explained that he knew Marysville would be able to move the ball throughout, but it wasn't enough on Friday night.

Bradshaw Christian (9-2) is a young group and has only three seniors on its roster, according to MaxPreps. The Pride's rushing attack is led by a trio of sophomores that include running backs Nathan Zeppieri and Brandon Burden along with fullback Mateo Mojica.

Burden put Bradshaw Christian on the scoreboard

with an eight-yard rushing touchdown early in the second quarter to tie the game. Zeppieri scored on the ground from three yards out to take the lead with 20 seconds left in the first half.

Zeppieri recored the final points of the game with a little under nine minutes to go in the third quarter, scoring a five-yard rushing touchdown. From that point on, the game went scoreless and long drives by both squads ate up the clock for the rest of the game.

The Pride will travel to Tuolumne to play No. 1 seed

Summerville (10-1) in the D6 semifinals on Friday night.

As Bradshaw Christian celebrated after shaking hands with the Indians, hugs and tears started to flow on the Marysville sideline. The Indians tallied the most wins in a season and made the playoffs for the first time since 2016.

With Claggett's first season at the helm of the program complete, the two consistent words you heard from every player on the Indians' roster was "family culture."

"He brought an entirely new energy to the team,"

Ellyson said.

Senior running back Danny Lanini, who led the Indians in rushing yards throughout the season, told the Dispatch that the biggest step Marysville took this season was buying into the culture environment that Claggett attempted to instill in the program.

"Coach (Claggett) came, he showed us a new way of running things and this is where we got to today," Lanini explained.

He added that his favorite moment this season was the win over Wheatland because he had a great game on October 14, that consisted of 144 rushing yards with two touchdowns offensively and six tackles defensively.

The Indians have a lot of seniors graduating this season. 75% of the team is in the Class of 2023 as 33 of the 44 players will be moving on.

Therefore, next season players like junior center/defensive end Gerald Prescott will be looked at for leadership. Prescott said that he felt connected to his teammates the whole season. The junior added that he is going to work on his communication before next season.

Senior running back Joseph Endicott reiterated the concept of everyone buying into the foundation that Claggett is building at Marysville.

"He's great and with this loss, it's sad and the consequences suck, but I'm satisfied," Endicott told the Dispatch. "We had a great year and everyone on the team bought into coach."

Endicott added his best memory of the team came from the weight room because since he had grown up with many members of the team over the years, seeing one another get stronger together just being a football player will be a lasting memory.

Claggett's favorite memory for the Class of 2023 happened on October 28, when they had a 28-point lead on Twelve Bridges through the first half of play.

"That was so much fun being able to recognize them and see our entire field lined with seniors and then to come out like we did," Claggett recalled. ★

Sutter Advances to Playoff Semifinals with Low-scoring Win

By Shaun Holkko, sports editor

SUTTER, CA (MPG) - The Sutter varsity football team moved one step closer to its first CIF Sac-Joaquin Section title on Friday night with a gritty 14-0 win against Ripon in the quarterfinals of the 2022 Division V CIF SJS Football Playoffs.

The No. 1 seed Huskies (11-0) received a first-round bye as the top seed in the bracket. Sutter and the No. 8 ranked Indians (5-7) had a stalemate in the first 24 minutes of action, as the game was knotted at zero going into halftime. The Huskies scored a touchdown in each of the final two quarters, while shutting out Ripon, to ultimately win 14-0.

Sutter began its first scoring drive with great field position at their own 41-yard line following an Indians punt. Junior quarterback Jagger Beck ended the stalemate with a 15-yard touchdown pass to senior running back Luke Miller with under a minute to go in the third period.

Dylan Humes hauled in an interception and returned it 15 yards for the pick six.

converted the point after try, as he did twice Friday. Sutter won 14-0 and advanced to the final four of the D5 bracket, where they will host No. 5 seed Escalon (9-3).

Beck finished with a pedestrian stat line, completing 3-of-8 pass attempts for 31 yards and a touchdown. However, the Huskies haven't earned an 11-0 record this season with their passing game, Sutter has relied heavily on the run.

The Huskies had three senior running backs combine for 164 rushing yards, which is well below the team's average of over 300 rushing yards per game coming into Friday. Robbie Faupula racked up a game-high 77 yards on 13 carries.

Troy Brucie recorded 15 rushes for 59 yards. Miller tallied nine carries for 28 yards. All three players each caught one pass from Beck.

Sutter will play in the semifinals of the D5 CIF SJS Playoffs on Friday night against Escalon with kickoff scheduled for 7 p.m. ★
