Can State of California protect the vaccine from people jumping the line?

By Ana B. Ibarra, CalMatters.org

What seemed like a Herculean task just months ago is now here: the COVID-19 vaccine.

For the next several weeks, vaccines will be available in limited amounts in California and across the nation – and only to high-risk individuals, with supply expected to ramp up in the months to come. Experts estimate vaccines will be available to the general public sometime in the spring.

Until then, step in line. But the pandemic already has showcased deep inequalities, scams, greed, fraud and a system that favors the rich and famous. Will it be the same with the COVID-19 vaccine?

“We will be very aggressive in making sure that those with means, those with influence are not crowding out those that are most deserving of the vaccines,” Gov. Gavin Newsom said in a recent press briefing.

The state, he said, will be monitoring distribution very closely.

There is cause for concern, however. Early in the pandemic, when testing was in short supply and unavailable to most, the affluent were getting their hands on tests through membership-based medical concierge services, Reuters reported in March.

Even before Pfizer’s vaccine was authorized for use in the U.S., celebrities joked about having already received their shot, a nod to Hollywood’s privilege that allowed celebrities like Heidi Klum and Kris Jenner to get tested early in the pandemic. Meanwhile the National Hockey League had reportedly begun planning the private purchase of doses soon after Canada OK’d the Pfizer vaccine.

Acknowledging a system that is not always fair, Newsom and other California leaders have promised equity in distributing what’s available.

On Monday, from Kaiser Permanente’s Los Angeles Medical Center where selected health workers got some of the first vaccines in California, Newsom said he is confident in the vaccine’s efficacy and safety – but would not cut in front of those who are “more deserving.”

NCS Sues Newsom and Padilla to Stop CA Electoral College Votes

New California State Press Release

YUBA CITY, CA (MPG) - New California State and its President Paul Preston are asking the Sutter County Superior Court to order all “votes” from alleged defective mail in ballots not be “counted” from the November 3, 2020 general election due to statutory non-compliance pursuant to California State Election code §13200 (2019). The code states: “Ballots not printed in accordance with this chapter shall not be cast nor counted at any election.”

Governor Newsom and Secretary of State Padilla were negligent in their responsibilities to ensure that ballots were printed in compliance with California’s election law that require the California citizens were clearly instructed on how to mark their selection for electors to represent their vote for the President and Vice President of the United States.

In the November 2020 election, California State’s ballots were missing mandated language of the Election Code for California. In 53 of the 58 Counties, mandated language of Election Code §13205 (b) was missing from the ballots and in the 5 remaining counties, mandated language of Election Code §13205 (c) was missing from the ballots. Both of these paragraphs give instructions to the voters regarding the election of the Electors representing the State at the Electoral College election for the President and Vice President.

Since “Presidential Electors” were elected pursuant to these faulty ballots that, in terms of California Election Code §13200 “shall not be cast nor counted at any election”, any Electoral College “vote” that these electors have allegedly cast should be ruled void for all purposes.

In his position as Governor, Gavin Newsom has the supreme executive power in the State of California and is responsible to see that the law is faithfully executed. He must supervise the official conduct of all executive and ministerial officers to ensure their duties are performed including the California Secretary of State Alex Padilla. As the chief elections officer, California Secretary of State Padilla is responsible

Free and Brave Conference Coming

Commentary by Lou Binninger

A meme on social media reads “The CDC says that the flu is defeated this year because of wearing masks and social distancing. The CDC also says that Covid-19 is out of control because of people’s failure to wear masks and social distance.” The CDC (Centers for Disease Control) is noted for its contradictory proclamations embarrassing itself.

As 2021 begins, the nonsensical propaganda of the media and our medical dictatorship continues into its second year. Fearful people have embraced serfdom, school is over, and hundreds of thousands of small businesses are closed. Globalist mission accomplished.

While restaurants sat empty, customers were forced to freeze or swelter to dine outdoors and eat with masks on. Healthy people were told to stay indoors while the ‘plague passes.’ Most Americans cannot remember their Constitutional rights, while others have gladly accepted their rights trodden asunder to be ‘saved.’

Meanwhile leaders that took an oath to defend the Constitution against foreign and domestic foes have stood down due to cowardice and cash. While mega-businesses reap monster profits, small enterprises are shuttered by state force, fines, arrest, armed raids and removal of utilities.

Any society under attack will have those that quickly surrender. However, others will resist. In California, there is a Governor recall in process and lawsuits against Newsom are piling-up. A move to create a new state is progressing, and there are patriot meetings everywhere exposing media and medical lies, government corruption and more.

On January 15-17 the “Free and the Brave Conference—Empowering Patriots to Defend Their Freedoms” will be hosted at the Church of Glad Tidings campus, 1179 Eager Road in Yuba City, Ca. The schedule is Friday night from 6:30-9:00, Saturday 8:30am-8:45pm, and Sunday 10am-1:30pm for the free event.

Topics include exposing government and media lies, Covid-19 and vaccines, medical fraud, the Constitution and your freedom, parental rights, finding truth amidst fake news, better education for children, saving small businesses and more.

Speakers include research scientist and author (Plague of Corruption) Judy Mikovits. Mikovits’ Doctoral Thesis brought advancements to the treatment of HIV-AIDS saving millions of lives; Former Prosecutor and Constitutional Attorney, educator (Liberty First University) and author KrisAnne Hall; Author (Unleash the Supernatural) Lenka Koloma; Christo

Hartman from the Constitutional Law Group; Human Rights Attorney Leigh Dundas who over the last twenty years has been working with International law firms and human trafficking cases; Peggy Hall, founder of The Healthy American, a national leader in the freedom movement and is dedicated to “breathing life back into liberty.” Peggy is the former Director of Teacher Education at the University of California, Irvine, a small business owner, and an educator of more than 30 years. She has a background in health, politics and activism. Additional speakers are being confirmed.

Those planning to attend can register at Churchofgladtidings.com or at 530-671-3160 as well as sign-up for a catered lunch and dinner.

As the Free and Brave main conference concludes on January 17 Peggy Hall is also offering her ‘Open

$500 Million in Grants for Small Businesses Now Available

California Small Business Association

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG)

- The first round of applications for the Small Business COVID-19 Relief Grant Program is now open. On November 30, 2020, Governor Newsom and the State Legislature announced the allocation of $500 million available to small businesses and nonprofits that have been impacted by the COVID-19 pandemic. The program is administered by California's Office of the Small Business Advocate (CalOSBA), part of the Governor's Office of Business and Economic Development (GO-Biz).

"Small business owners and our nonprofits serve as the economic heart of every California community," said Governor Newsom. "This grant program isn't the end, it's the beginning. It's a bridge to help the millions of Californians, whose dreams and livelihoods are now on the line, as we work with the State Legislature to create additional support."

Grants will not be issued on a first-come, first-served basis and will be awarded after the close of each application round. This first round of applications deadline has been extended to January 13 at 11:59 pm. Details for the second round will be announced shortly.

"Inclusive, equitable relief is fundamental to the small business support developed by this administration," said Isabel Guzman, CalOSBA Director. "This grant program provides that support through a network of Community Development Financial Institutions and Community Based Organizations ensuring reach to those highly impacted small businesses in disadvantaged communities, underserved small business groups, and industries disproportionately impacted by this pandemic."

The California Small Business COVID-19 Relief Grant Program provides grants ranging from $5,000 to $25,000. Lendistry has been designated by the State to act as the intermediary for the Program to disburse the grant funds.

"As an organization dedicated to efficiently providing capital to underserved small businesses, and with a deeply experienced senior management team that mirrors the diversity of our home state of California, Lendistry is proud to partner with the CalOSBA in this bold and critical effort," said Everett K. Sands, Lendistry's founder and CEO. "Since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic Lendistry has assisted 20,000 small businesses in a dozen states and deployed nearly a half-billion dollars in capital, and we are bringing the full force of our technology, expertise and relationships with partner CDFIs and community organizations to bear on CalOSBA's landmark commitment to California's small businesses."

The Program will prioritize distribution based on priority key factors, including the following: Geographic distribution based on COVID-19 health and safety restrictions following California's Blueprint for a Safer Economy, county status and the new Regional Stay-at-Home Order which can be found at <https://covid19.ca.gov/safer-economy/>; Industry sectors most impacted by the pandemic; Underserved small business groups served by the State supported network of small business centers (i.e., businesses majority owned and run on a daily basis by women, minorities/persons of color, veterans and businesses located in low-to-moderate income and rural communities)

Mission-based lenders and small business advisory and technical assistance providers can help small businesses with the application process in multiple languages and formats. Many of the State supported small business centers, which prioritize the expansion of technical assistance to underserved business groups, are also available to help. vaccine...but I'm not going to get in the way of any of the critical workers," he said.

The plan is to first offer vaccines to health workers and nursing home residents, then to other essential workers and individuals at high risk of becoming ill. Newsom created a panel of experts to draft those plans and then a separate advisory group to offer input on who should go next and why. Those Californians who will follow health workers and nursing home residents have not yet been decided.

In an email, the California Department of Public Health said that to aid transparency, it will report data on the vaccine's administration on a public dashboard that will be updated regularly.

"We will release as much data as possible while remaining fully in compliance with federal and state patient privacy laws," a department spokesperson said.

Dr. Trudy Larson, dean of the School of Community Health Sciences at the University of Nevada, Reno, thinks the close monitoring will help guard against any significant fraud, especially in the first months. Every dose will have to be accounted for, she said.

States, for example, will be collecting information from people who get the vaccine. That data will be inputted into a state immunization registry.

"My sense is that this may be one way for them to be able to say 'Good, we're reaching the folks we're supposed to get in Tier 1, now we can move to Tier 2,' but it also might be a disincentive for people trying to get to the front of the line," Larson said.

California's public health department said that it will not share names, addresses or any identifiable information with the federal government. California's immunization program does not collect social security numbers.

However, once distribution moves beyond the first phase and doses start to be sent directly to doctors and local pharmacies, the potential will mount for people to try to pull strings to get the valuable shots, experts said.

There will always be someone who tries to cheat the system — "It's impossible for that not to happen," said Dr. Belas Matyas, Solano County's health officer. The question, he said, is whether it will happen enough to truly disrupt distribution. He hopes not.

But abusing the system isn't just about people buying their way to the front of the line. There also is the possibility of vaccine theft and counterfeit shots. In 2004, during a flu vaccine shortage, federal officials seized thousands of doses imported illegally and headed to the black market. In 2009, during the swine flu pandemic, the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reported a number of "distribution and marketing irregularities" involving the H1N1 vaccine.

Earlier this month, the International Criminal Police Organization (Interpol) issued an "orange notice" globally, warning countries that COVID-19 vaccines will likely be a prime target of organized crime, both online and in-person. It warned of theft and the possibility of people advertising, selling and administering fake vaccines.

Experts said the public should remember that vaccines will be free of charge, and should beware of anyone offering an early dose for payment. Also, ads promoting therapies, supplements and other products as COVID-19 cures are most likely scams. As of last month, the Federal Trade Commission had sent 330 warning letters to companies that made unsupported claims that their products helped against the virus.

The California Attorney General's office deferred questions about potential fraud related to vaccines to the governor's office. The state's medical board, which oversees disciplinary action for physicians, said it will be reviewing complaints it receives regarding the inappropriate administration of vaccines, as it does with any other complaint.

California Opens with New Traffic Safety Laws

California Highway Patrol rings in the new year with new laws. Photo: CHP

By Jaime Coffee,
California Highway Patrol

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - As 2020 comes to a close, the California Highway Patrol (CHP) wants to highlight some new roadway safety laws that take effect in 2021.

License points for distracted driving (AB 47, Daly; 2019): Using a cell phone in a handheld manner while driving is currently punishable by a fine. Beginning July 1, 2021, violating the hands-free law for a second time within 36 months of a prior conviction for the same offense will result in a point being added to a driver's record. This applies to the violations of talking or texting while driving (except for hands-free use) and to any use of these devices while driving by a person under 18 years of age.

Unattended children in motor vehicles (AB 2717, Chau): Exempts a person from civil or criminal liability for trespassing or damaging a vehicle when rescuing a child who is 6 years old or younger and who is in immediate danger from heat, cold, lack of ventilation, or other dangerous circumstances. The law takes effect January 1, 2021.

"Move Over, Slow Down" amendments (AB 2285, Transportation Committee): Extends the provisions of the "Move Over, Slow Down" law currently in place on freeways to also apply to local streets and roads so drivers approaching a stationary emergency vehicle displaying emergency lights, including tow trucks and Caltrans vehicles, must now move to another lane when possible, or slow to a reasonable speed on all highways, not just freeways. The law is effective January 1, 2021.

Emergency vehicles (SB 909, Dodd): Allows authorized emergency vehicles to use a "Hi-Lo" warning sound. This distinctive sound, different than a siren, would be used to notify the public of an immediate need to evacuate an area in an emergency. The CHP is currently developing regulations to standardize the Hi-Lo warning sound statewide. Until the regulations are adopted, law enforcement agencies can use the Hi-Lo warning sound by obtaining a permit from the CHP. The law went into effect September 29, 2020.

The mission of the CHP is to provide the highest level of Safety, Service, and Security. ★

Farm Bureau President Outlines Priorities

By Dave Kranz,
Farm Bureau Federation

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Calling for "farmer-led solutions" to issues confronting agriculture, California Farm Bureau President Jamie Johansson pledged the organization would respond to state government actions on the pandemic, climate change and other policies.

Speaking to members via webcast from the Farm Bureau building in Sacramento during the 102nd California Farm Bureau Annual Meeting, Johansson said farmers and ranchers acted quickly and responsibly during the COVID-19 pandemic, to adjust working conditions and provide personal protective equipment to employees, and to assure a worried public about the continued availability and safety of food and farm products.

"Make no mistake about it, when it comes to worker safety and when it came to our families' wellbeing, farmers and agriculture led the way," Johansson said.

"We'll continue to work as we move forward through this pandemic, looking into the future of what we need to do to take care of our employees," he added, noting in particular the need to remove roadblocks to creation of more and better housing.

Describing agriculture as "the original green industry," Johansson said state and federal climate policies must recognize the positive contributions farms and ranches make to the environment. He also urged the state to act quickly and decisively to address chronic water shortages and the increasing wildfire threat.

The annual scourge of wildfires "shouldn't become normal," Johansson said. "We should be outraged." Noting that the state has directed significant resources toward wildfire prevention and forest management, he said Farm Bureau will review how effectively those resources have been used and will advocate for timely action.

Johansson celebrated the defeat of a November ballot initiative to create a split-roll property tax, saying farmers and ranchers "changed the debate" on Proposition 13 by describing its likely impacts on food production and prices. With the state government facing budget deficits, he warned of potential new efforts to raise taxes and fees, saying the state can't continue to balance the budget "on the backs of the California taxpayers."

With a new administration about to take office in Washington, D.C., Johansson said Farm Bureau will advocate for balanced environmental, immigration and trade policies.

"We have challenges ahead of us, but we will continue to speak out and make a difference," Johansson said.

The California Farm Bureau works to protect family farms and ranches on behalf of nearly 34,000 members statewide and as part of a nationwide network of nearly 5.6 million Farm Bureau members. ★

Republicans Urge Gov. to Help Foster Children

By Jacqui Nguyen,
California Senate
Republicans

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Senate Republican Leader Shannon Grove (R-Bakersfield) and members of the California Senate Republican Caucus delivered a letter to Governor Newsom strongly urging him to allow thousands of foster children who are ready for adoption to move forward through the court system. Pre-COVID, there were approximately 7,200 foster children awaiting placement and about one-third of them just need a judge's approval to go to their forever home. COVID-19 guidelines and restrictions have halted this process. Click here to read the full letter.

"During this holiday season, there is no greater gift we can give to these foster children than a forever home and family," said Senate Republican Leader Shannon Grove. "It appears that there is no end in sight for some of these guidelines and foster children deserve to be given a safe home immediately.

"Senate Republicans strongly urge the governor to take necessary long and short-term steps to ensure that there are no more delays to the adoption process. With modifications, having a home will become more than just a Christmas wish, it will become a reality for many of California's foster children." ★

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

47 U.S. Code § 230 Communication Decency Act was implemented in the 90's to protect internet platforms like Facebook from liability or responsibility of content posted by contributors which may be illegal, offensive or libelous. Facebook, you falsely believe you occupy the moral high ground. You believe you are the arbiters of truth, but only your truth. You are abusing "Act 230," it's intent by singling out persons with whom you disagree, censoring their content, therefore, forfeiting the protections afforded under the "Act." By forfeiting those protections, I believe your censorship of free speech becomes a violation of the First Amendment. In my opinion, Facebook, Google and other liberal platforms, should be prosecuted under anti-trust laws and broken up like "Ma Bell" in the 80's. No Biblical Foundation No America

Commentary
by Lou Binner

The government education system is corrupted and too far gone to be reformed. What little that is taught about our founding history is fiction used to indoctrinate naïve, impressionable students. Most young victims are failing in other subjects, as well.

The founders were convinced that if schools failed to teach students to be Biblically moral and upright the republic would not survive. Today, many dishonest or ignorant teachers deny the Christian mooring of our nation.

However, the Bible was found to have directly contributed to 34% of the Founding Fathers' quotes. A review was done of 15,000 items written by the founders such as newspaper articles, pamphlets, books, monographs etc. The other main sources quoted by the founders were Montesquieu, Blackstone, Locke, and Pufendorf who themselves took 60% of their quotes directly from the Bible. Direct and indirect links combined reveal that nearly all of the Founding Fathers' quotes were based in the Bible.

In 1740 England, Thomas Dilworth published his schoolbook, the 'New Guide to the English Tongue.' Due to his reputation as a distinguished educator and textbook writer his book also grew in popularity in America until 1765 when it was adopted for use in all of America's New England schools.

The book contained spelling, reading, and grammar lessons all utilizing Bible passages. The first lesson of words of three letters or less contained the following sayings:

"No Man may put off the Law of God. The Way of God is no ill Way. My Joy is in God all the Day. A bad Man is a Foe to God."

Noah Webster, known as the "Schoolmaster to America" used only Dilworth's book and the Bible in his earliest school. However, many American schools today promote a disdain of Christ and mock children from faith families, more so than even in God-denying Communist countries.

Now, families must sue schools to protect their children from sexual perversion and other nonsensical propaganda. A high school senior of mixed ethnicity is suing a taxpayer-funded charter school in Nevada over the "coercive, ideological indoctrination" that is central to its Critical Race Theory curriculum. The training forces students to associate aspects of their identity with oppression.

Plaintiffs William Clark and his mother Gabrielle Clark claim their First and Fourteenth Amendment rights were being violated. Students were told that by refusing to identify with an oppressive group, they were exercising their privilege or underscoring their role as an oppressor.

Clark, a student at Democracy Prep School in Las Vegas, whose mother is black and deceased father white, claims there was a hostile classroom environment and that he felt discriminated against in the mandatory, year-long "Sociology of Change" course required for graduation. There is another required class, "Change the World," in which students carry out a political or social work project.

"The Intersectionality and Critical Race Theory sessions were not descriptive or informational in nature, but normative and prescriptive: they require pupils to 'unlearn' and 'fight back' against 'oppressive' structures allegedly implicit in their family arrangements, religious beliefs and practices, racial, sexual, and gender identities, all of which they are required to divulge and subject to non-private interrogation."

William was directed "in class to 'unlearn' the basic Judeo-Christian principles [his mother] imparted to him, and then [the school] retaliated against [him]."

"Some racial, sexual, gender and religious identities, once revealed, are officially singled out in the programming as inherently problematic, and assigned pejorative moral attributes by Defendants," the complaint said.

The complaint also indicated that Clark was required by his teacher "to reveal his racial, sexual, gender, sexual orientation, disabilities and religious identities." The instructor greeted the students with, "Hello my wonderful social justice warriors!" Clark was told the next step would be to determine if parts of his identity "have privilege or oppression attached to it." Privilege was defined as "the inherent belief in the inferiority of the oppressed group."

While the Clark's suit is a positive sign the best approach is for parents to get their kids out of these indoctrination camps yesterday. Jesus asked, "Can one blind person lead another? Won't they both fall into a ditch?" The school system is in the ditch.

- Now our military is veering toward diversity and "how you look", while abandoning meritocracy. Think about it for a moment, in this critical example. If you are a pilot or passenger would you want your aircraft to be certified for flight by a crew chief selected solely on the basis of color or gender to make the diversity stats look better? Would you feel safe? Our current military leaders with all their stars claim it is a "moral imperative" to change from competence to diversity from top to bottom. What moral imperative? Out with competence, in with "wokeness"?
- Purple, red, orange and yellow. Sounds like a kindergarten lesson. Tiers based on what? Apparently the tighter the restrictions, the more the virus spreads. Do our illustrious leaders have any idea what they are doing? The experts are no better today than they have been in the past. Remember Y2K? - Some say that Feinstein is losing her mind. How would we know?
- Perhaps our elected officials didn't get the memo. The US Supreme Court has ruled, "Not only is there no evidence that the applicants (churches) have contributed to the spread of COVID-19 but there are many other less restrictive rules that could be adopted to minimize the risk to those attending religious services." The court went on to say that the Court members "are not public health experts, and we should respect the judgment of those with special expertise and responsibility in this area. But even in a pandemic, the Constitution cannot be put away and forgotten." Associate Justice Neil Gorsuch added, "It is time – past time – to make plain that, while the pandemic poses many grave challenges, there is no world in which the Constitution tolerates color-coded executive edicts that reopen liquor stores and bike shops but shutter churches, synagogues, and mosques." The court has ruled. Newsom and his cronies should straighten up.

CoVid-19 Shut Downs, Economic Damage to Many Americans has been Devastating

No doubt with the CoVid-19 shut downs, economic damage to many Americans has been devastating. Oddly enough, some crafts and vendors are barely effected by the shut-downs and others are telling me they are busier than ever.

Generally speaking, certain service sectors like salons, gyms and the like have been heavily restricted in their ability to service their patrons. Restaurants, bars and boutiques, among some select other sectors, have also been severely affected.

Hence the universally agreed upon government stimulus and supplemental paycheck and unemployment programs were sent out fairly early in the crisis by Uncle Sam.

Although many programs lasted months, those programs helping individuals and small businesses all eventually ended. The larger systemic supplemental payments and backstops in a variety of areas however never ended and are ongoing, such as the open market operations and repurchase agreements of the Federal Reserve. These programs are designed to keep the large money conduits open to large businesses and financial institutions and encompass much larger amounts than was sent out to individuals.

Certainly a bone of contention among many, the claims that the amounts going to individuals are woefully insufficient abound. I would add that if the average Joe knew the amounts funneled into the financial gears of the economy compared to what Joe is getting, it is like comparing hundreds of billions to many trillions.

Keep in mind a billion is a 1,000 million and a trillion is a 1,000 billion. And although the second round of stimulus checks are still log jammed in the ivory halls of Washington, the money spigots remain wide open in order to keep the financial markets from seizing up, much like they did during 2008/09.

For example, individuals received in the first CoVid package about 560 billion with small businesses garnering another 377 billion. Large corporations, financial entities, cities and states received about 840 billion. Doesn't sound like a huge difference but that's not all the assistance funds pouring out of the Federal Reserve to aid the CoVid issue in the money conduits.

The Repurchase Agreement Market alone (REPO) has swallowed up anywhere from 300 to 900 billion a month since March and the Brookings Institute brings this eye popping mention forward:

"It (the Federal Reserve) is offering $1 trillion in daily overnight repo, and $500 billion in one month and $500 billion in three-month repo. The Fed has extended the facility to run until March 31, 2021."

I had to reread those figures again to make sure I wasn't suffering from a macular degeneration moment.

This is only some of what we do know, and upon digging deeper, one finds program after program living beneath the ground, all initiated by the Feds in some form or another, and none of them held up by political gridlock.

One could argue the other programs are monetary in nature, therefore undertaken by the Federal Reserve, while the stimulus programs to mom and pop are fiscal in nature, which is undertaken by the Treasury.

Both however obviously have the permission of elected officials or they would never be.

Another argument for the difference in one arm of programs being ongoing and the stimulus program being held up and debated is that both political aisles may agree that the massive monetary injections are systemic in nature and without such ongoing payments, the system itself would collapse.

Seems like Déjà vu all over again doesn't it?

No matter what the financial happenings really are behind this curtain of money, it is unarguable a wall of money, or better described as a Tsunami of cash. With records being set every day as to the copious amounts that are being administered during this crisis, it is apparent that at least the financial system will likely survive CoVid-19.

We can only hope that, although the system will come out the other end, that enough everyday Americans will also fair as well.

COVID19 May Have Permanent Economic Impacts

By Dan Walters
CALMatters

When the state Employment Development Department released a new report on jobs this month, it had a tinge of optimism.

California's unemployment rate had dropped to 8.2% in November, exactly half of the record-high 16.4% recorded in the spring as the first wave of COVID-19 pummeled the state and Gov. Gavin Newsom shut down large segments of the economy.

Viewed narrowly, the report indicated a strong recovery of about half of the more than two million jobs that had been quickly erased by the early shutdown orders. But appearances were deceiving.

After seemingly retreating during the summer and early fall months, thus allowing many economic sectors to resume hiring, the stubborn disease exploded with a vengeance in late November and Newsom has once again clamped down on businesses deemed to be infection hot spots, such as restaurants.

Unemployment is also soaring again as affected employers shed workers, likely sending the jobless rate over 10% again.

"In isolation, California's November job performance is not terrible; in 2019, a 'normal' year, it would have been by far the best preforming month," Taner Osman, research manager at Beacon Economics and the UC Riverside Center for Forecasting, said. "But because job losses since February measure at more than a million workers, and because of the continued surge of new COVID cases in the state, this is not a report that will bring much-needed cheer to California's workers."

The pandemic is straining health care providers to the breaking point.

"We are at or near capacity everywhere," Greg Adams, CEO of Kaiser Permanente said as he and other medical executives pleaded last week with Californians to avoid infection-spreading holiday gatherings. "As the bed count continues to dwindle we simply will not be able to keep up if the COVID-19 surge continues to increase."

The undulating nature of COVID-19 and the state's economic decrees bode ill as 2020 stumbles to a close and a new year beckons.

We obviously don't know how severe this current COVID-19 flareup will be or how long it will last. Although vaccines have been approved and are beginning to be administered it will take months – perhaps a year – for enough Californians to be vaccinated to put at least a semi-permanent lid on the disease.

We cannot know how long the current economic restrictions will be in place, but we do know that the longer they remain, affected businesses, especially small businesses, are less likely to reopen.

Their doors are closed and they have no revenue, but their rents and loan payments continue and many will not survive.

The pandemic has clearly widened California's socioeconomic fault lines. Those on the upper rungs of the economic ladder and their employers have fared relatively well because they have adjusted through working at home and other arrangements. But service businesses that depend on personal patronage, such as restaurants and hotels, and their relatively low-income employees don't have such options.

Between November 2019 and November 2020, the state lost a net of 1.4 million jobs and a third of those were in the "leisure and hospitality" sector, more than twice the losses in any other category. However, the "financial activities" sector that includes banks, insurance companies and stock brokerages was actually employing 4,300 more Californians in November than a year earlier.

The economic effects of COVID-19 will be severe and in many cases permanent. We may be seeing another economic mega-evolution, akin to the explosion of the state's high-technology industry four decades ago or the collapse of its aerospace industry three decades ago, with life-changing impacts on housing, education, transportation and even politics.

Dan Walters has been a journalist for nearly 60 years, spending all but a few of those years working for California newspapers. ★

UK judge refuses US extradition of WikiLeaks founder Assange | 04 Jan 2021 | A British judge on Monday rejected the United States' request to extradite WikiLeaks founder Julian Assange to face espionage charges, saying he was likely to kill himself if held under harsh U.S. prison conditions. In a mixed ruling for Assange and his supporters, District Judge Vanessa Baraitser rejected defense arguments that the 49-year-old Australian faces a politically motivated American prosecution that rides roughshod over free-speech protections. But she said Assange's precarious mental health would likely deteriorate further under the conditions of "near total isolation" he would face in a U.S. prison. "I find that the mental condition of Mr. Assange is such that it would be oppressive to extradite him to the United States of America," the judge said.

Facebook Shuts Down Page for GOP Senate Campaigns Just Before Georgia Runoffs | 02 Jan 2021 | Facebook shut down a fundraising page for Sens. Kelly Loeffler (R-Ga.) and David Perdue (R-Ga.) just days before voters head to the polls to decide between the Republicans and their Democratic challengers. The National Republican Senatorial Committee (NRSC) runs the Georgia Battleground Fund, a joint fundraising committee for the NRSC and the campaigns for Loeffler and Perdue. According to a screenshot from the committee, Facebook alerted them that the page for the fund was disabled "for policy violation." ...A Facebook spokesperson told news outlets that what happened was a mistake.

Husband sues for right to touch wife in New Mexico nursing home amid COVID-19 pandemic | 31 Dec 2020 | A New Mexico man fought the law for the right to touch his wife, and he appears to have won. A state judge ruled to change a health order that has forced the couple apart during the COVID-19 pandemic. Gary Hein and Ann Severine, a couple of more than three decades, live in the same care facility in Santa Fe, New Mexico - Hein in independent living and Severine in memory care.... The loving husband took part in a lawsuit in which he claimed his constitutional rights were violated and both his health and that of his wife had declined. He said nursing home staff, even employees who had been exposed to COVID-19, were allowed near her, but he wasn't, even though he's repeatedly been tested for the virus.

Georgia Election Data Shows 17,650 Votes Switched From Trump to Biden - Data Scientists | 02 Jan 2021 | Georgia election data indicates 17,650 votes were switched from President Donald Trump to Democratic presidential candidate Joe Biden, data scientists testified on Wednesday during a state Senate hearing. A team led by Lynda McLaughlin, along with data scientists Justin Mealey and Dave Lobue, presented the results before the Georgia Senate Judiciary Subcommittee on Elections . Mealey worked as an electronic warfare technician in the U.S. Navy for nine and a half years and was a former Central Intelligence Agency (CIA) contractor as a data analyst and programmer for the National Counterterrorism Center. He currently works for one of the "Big Four" accounting firms as a programmer. Lobue is a data scientist with over a decade of experience in a number of industries.

Pennsylvania Republicans find 'alarming discrepancy' twice the margin of Biden's victory | 29 Dec 2020 | Republican lawmakers in Pennsylvania say an "alarming discrepancy" in the presidential vote count is two times larger than the margin of President-elect Joe Biden's victory in the state. Their analysis, released on Monday by state Rep. Frank Ryan and more than a dozen colleagues, found different vote counts when comparing Election Day data from counties and the Statewide Uniform Registry of Electors, or SURE, system used by Pennsylvania Secretary of State Kathy Boockvar. They also raised suspicions about tens of thousands fewer votes in the presidential race than overall ballots. Boockvar, a Democrat, cast the analysis as yet another misinformation effort designed to cast doubt on the integrity of the election. Wanda Murren, a spokeswoman for the Pennsylvania Department of State, told the Washington Examiner that the "so-called analysis was based on incomplete data."

BCSO Press Release

OROVILLE, CA (MPG) - In October of 2020, detectives received information Michael Anderson, age 58 of Oroville, had stolen money from a deceased victim's bank account. Anderson is the President of Northern California Treatment Services, which provides sober living environments for substance abuse treatment. Detectives began conducting an investigation into the theft and determined the deceased victim was residing at a sober living residence managed by Anderson prior to his death.

During the investigation detectives located evidence showing Anderson went to a local funeral home after the victim's death and falsely stated he was the victim's nephew. Detectives determined Anderson is not related to the victim. Anderson continued to provide false information, and was eventually able to obtain a death certificate for the victim listing Anderson as the victim's next of kin.

During the investigation detectives located evidence showing Anderson took the aforementioned death certificate to a local bank in Chico, and provided the bank with a copy of the death certificate. After presenting false information to bank staff, Anderson stole a significant amount of money from the victim's bank account. In December of 2020, detectives obtained an arrest warrant for Anderson. On December 21, Anderson was placed under arrest.

After Anderson was placed under arrest, detectives served a search warrant at Anderson's residence, which is located near the 100 block of Highlands Blvd., Oroville. During the service of the search warrant detectives located numerous evidence items to include methamphetamine and over $35,000 in United States currency.

Anderson was booked into the Butte County Jail for felony counts of theft by false pretenses, knowingly filing a false document in a public office within the state, grand theft, and a misdemeanor count of possession of a controlled substance. Anderson is scheduled to be arraigned at the Butte County Superior Court on Wednesday, December 23, at 3 PM.

The Sheriff's Office is asking anyone with additional information about this investigation to contact Detective Matt Galvez at 530-538-7671. ★

Two Costly New Laws to Open the New Year for Small Businesses

John Kabateck

NFIB California Press Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The state's leading small-business association today publicly shared a part of its educational campaign to forewarn its members and other Main Street entrepreneurs about two new laws awaiting them come the first of the year, and to remind them of another already in effect.

"I wish we could tell small businesses that fewer regulations and lower taxes were coming their way starting January 1," said John Kabateck, California state director for NFIB, "but not even a pandemic could throw our State Legislature off course from their mad drive to create more burdens."

The three current and soon-to-take effect laws are discussed in detail in a half-hour podcast featuring renowned labor and employment law attorney Ben Ebbink, a partner in the Sacramento firm of Fisher & Phillips, LLP. The current and coming new laws under review are:

The changes made to the California Family Rights Act made by Senate Bill 1383, which, among other things, dropped the employee threshold for complying with from 50 to five or more employees. Furthermore, the new leave time provisions can be taken in segments, including a whole day, and the new law severely crimps the flexibility of employers to work with their employees. Yes, it's unpaid leave, but benefits must still be paid, and the job must be there for a returning employee.

The new notification requirements for exposure to COVID brought about by Assembly Bill 685. Ebbink and NFIB California's chief legislative advocate Kevin Pedrotti talk about what triggers an obligation to notify employees and if the information is public.

And what legislative changes Senate Bill 1159, already in effect, made to the governor's executive order making all COVID cases, for those working outside the home, workers' compensation cases? What is a conclusive presumption vs. a rebuttable presumption? Will workers' compensation premiums go up for small-business owners? "Essentially what this [new law] is doing, if you take a step back, is it's shifting the medical costs of the COVID crisis onto the backs of the workers' compensation system," said Ebbink.

Previous NFIB California podcasts have discussed extending the state's sales tax to services, Proposition 15, the political landscape in the state, and the lessons learned from the first round of Paycheck Protection Program loans and if there will be a second round. Defensible Space Advisory Services (DSAV) Says Prepare for Next Fire Season

By Yuba Watershed Protection and Firesafe Council

YUBA CITY, CA (MPG) - January, February and March are the perfect time to start preparing for next summer's fire season. It is the time of year to start looking at your home, outbuildings, and surrounding landscape to plan defensible space work and home hardening projects to reduce the risk of losing your home and outbuildings to a wildland fire! Conducting home hardening, defensible space work and vegetation reduction projects on the rest of your property will also help increase, or at least maintain, your property values. Dry periods during the winter months are perfect for conducting many of the home hardening and vegetation reduction projects.

We will comply with the county COVID guidelines to ensure your safety during our visit.

If you are not sure what work needs to be conducted there are trained advisors provided by the Yuba Watershed Protection and Fire Safe Council (YWP&FSC) and Yuba County Resource Conservation District YCRCD). These trained advisors will survey the outside of your home and outbuildings and adjoining landscape, and then they will provide you with information on what you need to do to increase the chances of your home surviving the next wildland fire." This service is provided for free for all residences within the Yuba County foothills.
