"This is just like, salt-of-the-earth, heartland America," Rober says. Between Leishman and his neighbors, the crew had access to anything they needed for construction. Rober says, "The community that came together for this and for Fletcher ... It's like a new-age, YouTube barn raising!" GRIDLEY, CA (MPG) - In August, the community of Gridley was secretly invaded by a team of engineers and scientists, led by former NASA engineer and current YouTube sensation, Mark Rober.

The covert mission was two-fold. One: Rober and his crew intended to re-take the Guinness Book of World Records title for the World's Largest Elephant Toothpaste and Two: Give one of Rober's biggest fans a birthday that he would never forget.

A little over a year ago, twelve year old Fletcher Rollinson was diagnosed with an extremely rare form of brain tumor called Pineal Parenchymal Tumor with Intermediate Differentiation or PPTID for short. Fletcher and his family uprooted their lives and moved closer to St. Jude's for his treatment, where mom Megan said, "We spent a lot of time in the hospital watching Mark Rober videos." Rober's YouTube channel, dedicated to fun, science and engineering based experiments, has millions of viewers worldwide. During her son's battle with the cancerous tumor, Megan reached out to Rober, asking if he'd be willing to contact Fletcher. "Absolutely" was Rober's response and the surprise video call between Rober and super-fan -Fletcher that followed would inspire Rober to dedicate a day of record breaking fun, literally, to the young man.

Rober vowed that if Fletcher made it to his next birthday, he would throw him "the most crazy birthday party ever." On Fletcher's birthday weekend August 22nd -23rd, wearing a Fletchers Army tee and sitting along a retaining wall along a driveway in Gridley, Rober says, "SO, here we are...6 months later."

But why Gridley? Rober happens to have ties to our little town in the way of a friendship with the Leishman family. Dale and Lynne Leishman had extended the use of their property to Rober if the need for space ever arose for something "BIG." Well, it had and for 5 days, the Leishman property became ground zero for Rober's latest project. Dale volunteered the use of his equipment as crews of engineers, chemists and physicists worked in the heat and smoke to erect structures intended to shatter the current world record of the largest (and tallest) Elephant Toothpaste and merchandise a multi-barreled contraption that would trigger a dangerously explosive Devil's Toothpaste.

What is Elephant's Toothpaste? According to Rober, Elephant's Toothpaste is the result of an exothermic reaction of hydrogen peroxide and sodium iodine. For a dramatic visual effect, soap and food coloring are added to create a "foam" that explodes at a high rate of speed from whatever container houses it - in this instance, a 20 ft tall volcano shaped flask made of steel, lumber, hurricane glass and sealed with flex-seal tape and caulk. A push of a button would mix the chemicals that would hopefully secure the new record. Devil's Toothpaste could be considered

PG&E Provides $117,000 to North State Food Banks

By Paul Moreno, PG&E

NORTHERN CALIFORNIA, (MPG) - Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) is providing $675,000 to 37 food banks serving communities in PG&E's service area in Northern and Central California. This grant includes $117,000 to five food banks serving 10 North State counties.

The funding will help the nonprofit food banks provide critical food support to residents coping with the impacts of the COVID-19 pandemic. The funding also assists area food banks in preparing to serve vulnerable community members during natural disasters and potential Public Safety Power Shutoffs (PSPS), which are intended to reduce the risk of major wildfires during severe weather.

Receiving grants are the North State Food Bank (Community Action Agency of Butte County) serving Butte, Colusa, Glenn, Plumas and Sierra counties; Dignity Health Collective Living serving Shasta County; Tehama County Gleaners; Trinity County Food Bank; and Gleaners Food Bank serving Yuba and Sutter counties.

"We know that many in our communities struggle with financial uncertainty and food insecurity, in some cases created or worsened by the global pandemic. These challenges can be even more difficult to cope with during emergencies. That's why we're supporting local food banks to help them meet critical food needs during disasters and power outages," said Carl Schoenhofer, senior manager of PG&E's North Valley division.

PG&E's grants take into account whether a food bank is located in a Tier 2 or Tier 3 High Fire-Threat District as designated by the California Public Utilities Commission. These areas are at elevated or extreme risk for wildfires. To promote equity among counties with higher need, grant amounts will take into account county poverty and unemployment levels, using the California Department of Social Services' formula.

In April 2020, PG&E announced it provided a $150,000 charitable contribution to help the California Association of Food Banks establish the California Food Bank Rapid Response Fund. The fund provides critical funding for food banks to increase their capacity to purchase food and supplies and supplement their staffing. Customers in need of assistance can call 833-544-2374. ★

California Reaches 21 Million Registered Voters Milestone

From the Office of
Secretary of State

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG)

- California officially surpassed 21 million active registered voters for the first time in history. This milestone comes 60 days before the November 3, 2020 General Election. The Secretary of State's next official Report of Registration will be issued later this month with breakdowns of registration by party, political jurisdiction, and age.

"2020 is another record setting year for voter registration in California," Secretary of State Alex Padilla said. "Even during the COVID-19 pandemic, our democracy remains strong and resilient."

"If you've recently turned 18, recently become a US Citizen, or even if you've never voted before - don't wait. Register to vote today at registertovote.ca.gov. It only takes a few minutes to register and to make your voice heard in one of the most consequential elections in our nation's history. And if you're already registered to vote, I encourage you to verify your registration status and to sign-up for ballot tracking."

Starting on October 5, 2020 all counties will begin mailing ballots to every active, registered voter in California; Voters will be able to vote early, in-person at their county elections office.

Tips for Voters

Californians are encouraged to take the following steps to prepare for the General Election: Check your voter registration at VoterStatus.sos.ca.gov; Update your voter registration if you've moved or changed your name at RegisterToVote.ca.gov; Sign-up for automatic updates on the status of your vote-by-mail ballot at WhereMyBallot.sos.ca.gov

Voter Registration Deadline

October 19 is the traditional voter registration deadline for the November 3, 2020 General Election. If an eligible Californian misses the October 19 deadline, they can complete the same day voter registration process and cast their vote that day. However, this option is only available at county elections offices and in-person voting locations.★

News Outlook

By Josh F.W. Cook

When there are eminent The smoke that fills the air reeks of fifty years of bad government policy. Suppressing forest fires on Federal lands has created a massive fuel load in the forests. In times past the native people would do controlled burns to reduce the underbrush and smaller trees. The Federal Government owns more than 60% of the land in California. Taking on the issue of undoing this, and other, policy mistake will take time and money. One of the obstacles to reform is the infrastructure of sawmills and entire communities that built up around them no longer exists in many places - they were shuttered by lawsuits in the 1990's related to spotted owl protections. Yes the climate does change, so why do we see so little progress in building dams and changing laws around forest, water and wildlife management? If the government has promised water to millions of people and they know we are going to have less rain and snow, would you not make adjustments for that? Perhaps we need a climate change of another sort. A political climate change, one that responds to the science related to natural resources and actually creates policies that reflect scientific research, not the emotionally driven hopes of politically active special interests. Science tells us that grazing helps protect watersheds and forests; science tells us logging and controlled burns have a role to play in saving forests from catastrophic destruction. Public policy should align with reality. When it does not - we see disasters like the ones we have now. These restorative activities would also produce jobs and restore small communities.

Please donate to the Red Cross, it is the most efficient way to get people help in times like these.

Garamendi, Hamilton 3rd District Race

Lou Binninger

Commentary by Lou Binninger

The Founding Fathers thought it dangerous and unwise for the republic to have people make a career of politics. Nor, did they approve of elected officials being paid. They feared that both scenarios corrupted the politicians and the government. They were correct.

Third District Congressman, 75-year-old Democrat John Garamendi is the poster boy for what the Founders feared. He has held elective or appointed office almost constantly since 1974 or for forty-six years. After graduating from college and then a 1-2 year stint in the Peace Corps he was elected to the California Assembly the same year the Democrats achieved a Super-Majority of seats in both chambers, the first time since the 1800s.

A Super-Majority means one political party holds 2/3s of the seats and can pass whatever they please from a taxation bill to a Constitutional Amendment without the opposition party's assistance. That means that since the mid-1970's California looks exactly like the democrats have envisioned. They have held a majority or a Super-Majority nearly always since that year.

Liberals have dictated every policy - water, power, forestry management, welfare, immigration, Sanctuary Cities, personal and business taxes / regulations, school curriculum, homelessness, environmental restrictions, fuel taxes and road maintenance, criminal justice, nullifying gender, pro-pedophilia and more. Their decisions have led to thousands of businesses and millions of taxpayers leaving the Golden State.

Everything is much more expensive and harder to accomplish in California. Nowhere in America is the government undermining personal liberty as here.

So, whatever you think of the state, you can credit the democrats and Mr. Garamendi who may be California's record holder for the most political posts since 1974. Few officials, except for Governors have had the accumulated impact of Garamendi while serving as assembly member, senator, lieutenant - governor, insurance commissioner, US House member, and Deputy Secretary of the Interior under President Bill Clinton.

Eight North Valley Counties comprise the Third Congressional District (Colusa, Sutter, and Yuba plus most of Glenn, Lake, Solano, and Yolo counties and a portion of Sacramento County.) The boundaries of the Third District were redrawn in 2011 to favor liberal candidates.

In the past, Californians have been good at complaining but then sending the same people back to office, namely democrats. Will that change on November 3? Nationally, black voters seem to be saying they are done with being used, abused and lied to by democrats. How will others feel?

Interestingly, a conservative black woman from Dixon, Tamika Hamilton, is opposing Garamendi. This is her first attempt at elective office but she is no novice at what's going on. Born in Calvert County, Maryland in 1984 to an underage mother, and estranged from her father, Tamika was raised by her grandparents, both military veterans and then farmers.

She credits her grandparents with instilling in her the importance of public service. Tamika served in the United States Air Force on active duty for over 14 years. She deployed twice to the Middle East in support of Operation Enduring Freedom, the United States Global War on Terror. Her husband Ray Hamilton, a Navy veteran, is a police officer. They have four children.

Both Ray and Tamika are active in their church and serve with local community groups. Tamika's work with the homeless, particularly with homeless veterans, is part of what motivated her to want systemic change and to run for Congress.

Last Saturday, New York Times best-selling author and film maker Dinesh D'Souza came to Yuba City to speak at a fundraiser for Hamilton. D'Souza's new feature film "Infidel" just opened in 1724 theaters. His documentary "Trump Card," an exposé of the socialism, corruption and 'gangsterization' that now defines the Democrat Party, will be released in early October this year.

D'Souza, a speaker in high demand, being willing to come to rural Northern California to help Hamilton is a sign of his confidence in her character and ability. While California democrats have made U-Haul outlets wealthy, republican leaders are noted for being confused cowards.

It's going to take citizens from various political paths, sick of political corruption, to vote a new breed into office to make a course correction for California. Nov 3 will tell us if voters are becoming more like our Founders.

Gerry Mains Announces Candidacy for Yuba City Council

Gerry Mains

Dear Yuba City residents,

My name is Gerry Mains, I've been a resident of California for 65 years, and a residence of Yuba City for 13 years. I'm a born again Christian and have been a servant of the community with my wife Dinah Tupas Mains for the last 6 years. I am running for Yuba City Council, as a Republican and as a firm believer in your Constitutional rights. I need your help and support!

My vision is to give the people a voice in leadership. I am pursuing a mission as a councilman, of building confidence with the people through servant leadership, re-opening businesses, and freeing our city from debt ($3 million to be specific).

If you are willing to endorse me in any way, big or small, the following things would really help me spread the word about my campaign, and what I stand for.

I'm in need of the following:

Financial support of the campaign for printing flyers and sharing online material; Forums and time to speak to your congregation and the public; Servant leaders willing to spread campaign messaging.

Announcement of Two Week Closure of EDD Shatters Public Confidence

By Nghia Nguyen

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - In a late Saturday night announcement, the Newsom Administration said they will not accept new unemployment claims over the next two weeks. Advocating for his frustrated constituents, Senator Jim Nielsen (R-Tehama) issued the following statement:

"Since the Governor shut down the state's economy in mid-March, approximately a third of California's workforce, or more than 6 million people, have applied for unemployment benefits, according to the California Policy Lab.

"Six months later, more than 1.5 million Californians have yet to receive help. They have exhausted their savings, racked up credit cards and borrowed from anyone willing to lend them money. These people are not numbers or cases; they are our friends and neighbors.

"Now, the failed California Employment Development Department will shut down for two weeks. And they made this catastrophic news public on a Saturday night in hopes that the people won't notice.

"If this closure is to improve services for public benefit, why the late Saturday night news dump?"

"This is not right. Government needs to work for its people in time of need. The Governor must step up. The buck stops with him."

Elected to the State Senate in January 2013, Senator Nielsen represents the Fourth Senate District, which includes the counties of Butte, Colusa, Glenn, Placer, Sacramento, Sutter, Tehama and Yuba. To contact Senator Jim Nielsen, please call him at 916-651-4004, or via email at nielsen@senate.ca.gov. ★

Surprise! Mark Rober disguises himself as the Gridley High School Bulldog, to surprise a shocked Fletcher. This was the first time the two had met in person. Photo by Seti Long

Elephant’s Toothpaste on steroids - a mixture of the same chemicals but at stronger concentrations resulting in a faster, more violent and ultimately more dangerous reaction.
The day before the big show, Rober gave the Gridley Herald an exclusive run-down of the events about to unfold. “I can’t sleep, I’m so excited,” Rober said. The YouTube star was flying the Rawlinson family out from Ohio under the guise of visiting their “cousins” walnut farm. The Leishman family would pose as the “cousins” while Rober disguised himself as the Gridley High School Bulldog to surprise a completely clueless Fletcher.
It went off without a hitch. After arriving to be surprised by a previously unknown bunch of extended family, Fletcher was shocked when the Bulldog Mascot removed its head to reveal Mark Rober beneath. This was the first time the two had met in person and Rober quickly whisked him away, the sequence of the “best 13th-birthday-ever” events set in motion.
Fletcher was treated to a party only a mind like Rober could concoct. There were bubbles you could cut into shapes, bubble pits you could launch yourself into, a bubble cannon, fire tornados, an Elon Musk flame thrower to light bubbles on fire, high-speed Tesla rides (for the guest of honor), great food, lots of fun and most importantly: Devil’s Toothpaste and Elephant’s Toothpaste.

Rober had broken the Guinness Book of World Records record previously with his 4 foot version of the Elephant’s Toothpaste flask and in a poignant moment, gifted the certificate for it to Fletcher. Rober also announced that Fletcher would also have the honor of pushing the trigger for both the Devil’s Toothpaste, and the record-breaking finale.
The moments before 8 months of experimentation and preparation culminated in the World’s Largest Elephant Toothpaste, the exclusive crowd in attendance moved to safe viewing distances and held their breath. A sharp clang announced that Fletcher had pushed the button, and within seconds, red foam filled and exploded from the giant 20 foot flask. The reaction, estimated to be hotter than 300° inside, was so forceful that it rocked the structure 5 feet into the air before blowing out the bottom. The intended 100 foot plume didn’t make it to its destination, measured by drone, but still “crushed the previous world record by more than double” - Rober.
And in good fun, Fletcher got to actually crush the structure, completely demolishing it, like his PPTID tumor. Fletcher was cleared of all signs of cancer in July of this year.

Grand Opening of a New Online Art Auction

Watercolor by artist Agnes Laurent

Yuba Sutter Arts & Culture Press Release

MARYSVILLE, CA (MPG) - Yuba Sutter Arts & Culture (YSAC) misses the monthly art gallery openings both in our home gallery in Marysville and at the Theater Gallery in Yuba City. Our local artists have been traumatized by the lost revenue due to COVID-19. However, in lieu of the customary opening receptions complete with fine wines and appetizers, YSAC is still able to offer some fantastic art pieces created by artists who are all part of the Yuba-Sutter creative economy. It is all made possible by the magic of the internet via online virtual art auctions. And the online gallery is open 24/7!
In response to the continuing pandemic-induced lock down, local artists and Yuba Sutter Arts & Culture have once again come together to create a formidable online collection of original art representing a wide cross section of subject matter. It is the third virtual art auction since April, and the response has been excellent. Nineteen artists have submitted nearly forty original visual art works for the online gallery showing and auction. YSAC partners with the Bidding Owl online auction site to create these opportunities. 80 percent of the proceeds go directly to the artists with the remainder shared between Bidding Owl and YSAC.
The virtual gallery show and auction are “live” now. To view the online art auction, please go to: <https://www.biddingowl.com/Auction/index.cfm?auctionID=21311>
Participating artists include watercolorist, Agnes Laurent, western landscape painter and Viet Nam Veteran, Bert Johnson, still life and landscape oil painter, Dorothy Champion, pencil artist, P.D. Thompson, maritime artist and Navy and Army Veteran turned fine artist, Aaron Burks, and Nikki Pearson, ceramist.

“This series of online virtual art auctions has put a lot of original art in front of a lot of new people that might not necessarily come into an art gallery, let alone attend a gallery opening reception,” said David Read, YSAC Executive Director. We are proud to be able to support our artists in this way to help get their work

YUBA COUNTY PET OF THE WEEK

MISS DIXIE

Hello Miss DIXIE - ID#A185542 Dixie has been at the shelter since August 28th and really would like a coop of her own to roost in. Chickens are great bug eliminators and did you know a hen can lay over 300 eggs a year. A few more chicken facts: chickens have a great memory; they can distinguish between over 100 different faces of people or animals. They actually dream dreams when they sleep.

Chickens have full-color vision, love to play and chickens can feel pain or distress. Miss Dixie would love to be part of your flock and provide you with fresh farm eggs. Call the shelter if you would like to meet this little lady.

Printing Money Solves Economic Problems

I have always said if printing money solves economic problems how come we still have economic problems?

Our money supply, basically our currency the U.S. dollar, is handled by the Federal Reserve (Fed). One of their missions is to assist in the financial stability of the system any way it can. It has limits on what it can do, yet some argue it has exceeded those limits in recent decades.

The savings and loan bailout in the 80's, the 1997 Long Term Capital Management rescue, the dot com crash combined with the Y2K scare, then 9/11, the 08 real estate crash and now CoVid 19, the reasons for Fed intervention can be argued on each occasion. Interestingly, each subsequent crisis has been bigger than the last, and therefore each intervention by the Fed has encompassed more and more money.

The Fed has a handful of tools it can use to try and juice the economy from what ails it. Those tools include lowering overnight interest rates (Fed Funds Rate) so financial institutions can borrow money cheaply. Lower overnight rates bleed over to consumer credit rates making overall borrowing costs cheaper. The Fed can also add funds to the Repurchase Agreement mechanism (REPO) which lubricates the conduit for corporate credit. The REPO market can and has frozen up during times of severe market stress. The Fed can buy Treasury and agency debt (called Quantitative Easing (QE). QE is often mentioned in the news as a major tool of the Fed. Increasing QE increases the U.S. government deficit. It is seldom argued the tools mentioned are outside of the Fed's permitted actions.

Where the Fed's cross into the proverbial grey area is in the purchasing of private debt (corporate bonds and bond funds) or outright loaning money to private for-profit companies. They may also, in conjunction with the treasury department or related government entity, be buying individual company stock or stock funds outright. Most analysts agree this would definitely be outside their scope of permitted actions.

Much of the money created by the Federal Reserve is funneled to the U.S. government directly for stimulus payments and programs, infrastructure and other projects and direct assistance to consumers.

Each time questions have been raised about the legality of Fed intervention, the reasoning trumps the discussion. In other words, many in Congress may be hesitant to voice concerns over reining in the Fed's actions when Americans are in dire need of assistance.

It is interesting to note that the Fed's obviously feels the tools it explicitly has is not enough if it is tip toeing around in the grey areas of its mandate.

The Fed could be said to have ventured off course in the recent bailouts starting even before the 08 housing crisis without much objection. The Fed governors may be of the opinion as long as the economic needs are great enough, the rules it operates under should and will be relaxed. After all, it has repeatedly dipped its proverbial toe into other areas of influence without much fanfare throughout the many economic crisis that have occurred in recent decades.

The real question may be does the main tool of the Fed, which is manufacturing paper currency (the U.S. dollar) to throw wherever needed, really solve a crisis or is it just "papering over a symptom" of a much greater problem?

Since the bailouts are getting larger and larger with each crisis, are they using permanent solutions or are they just pushing the day of reckoning (if there is one) further out into the future?

If the next crisis is even larger, when it comes, can the same tools be used again and again without ramifications?

Experts disagree on the answer to this question but a major concern is inflation raising its ugly head sometime in the near or far future due to the massive increase in the money supply from all the bailouts.

Other countries throughout civilization who have tried monetary creation to permanently solve economic crisis have not come out unscathed. The ramifications have run the gamut to moderate inflation, creeping stagflation (economic stagnation coupled with inflation) or a complete currency collapse.

Home Invaders: Prop 15 and 19

Commentary by Lou Binninger

Every election government wants more money. If a voter believed he had to pay off the bond himself, no revenue measure would ever pass. However, the massive nature of government, hundreds of thousands of employees and trillions of dollars in budgets obscure what is really happening to most citizens.

So, the Attorney General (AG) deceives the voters with a fraudulent ballot description of the purpose of the bond request and the citizen ignorantly votes to unlock the door for the home invaders. AG Xavier Becerra, a liar with a license, calls Prop 15 "Schools and Communities First." Your representatives are suit-wearing blood-suckers.

The survival defense is to vote against all revenue authorizing measures. The problem is not that there are too few taxes being paid. It is that most of the money is wasted, horribly managed, lost, and given as political pay-offs to unions.

The November 3rd ballot features Proposition 15 (one of thirteen statewide propositions) which will begin undoing 1978's Prop 13 tax protection for business property. Prop 15 will raise property taxes on nearly every enterprise not once, but over and over again whether they own the real estate or not. Remember, corporations, buildings and dirt do not pay taxes, people do. And those increased expenses are paid by owners and passed on to renters, lessors and finally consumers.

If passed, commercial and industrial properties would be reassessed to current market value every three years. Because Prop 13 limited annual increases in assessed values to 2% until there is a change in ownership, the owners of long-held properties will see immediate massive tax increases. Prop 15's passage would affect nearly every business where Californians are employees or customers.

Residential and ag property are exempt but ag processing facilities would be reassessed. Prop 15 would trigger higher prices and job losses as tax increases put more pressure on already struggling employers.

The California Assessors Association has taken a negative stance on Prop 15 saying it would be "impossible" to implement as written. It is too complicated to sort out exemptions, implementing costs are exorbitant and trained assessor personnel are not available to reassess all the properties affected.

Prop 15 is step one to eventually undo Prop 13 entirely by also eliminating residential protections and raising all property taxes. Ending Prop 13 will force millions of citizens from their homes and businesses.

Another State Capitol Scam is Prop 19. AG "The Liar" Becerra says the new money will go to Wildfire Agencies. How convenient. It takes away two important taxpayer protections for a billion dollar tax increase according to Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association (HJTA). Prop 19 nullifies Prop 58, the 1986 measure that allows parents to transfer a home and other property to their children without the property being reassessed to market value.

Prop 58 protected the extended family from extreme tax increases when property is transferred. Prop 19's passage means family members would receive a new tax bill for 1% of the property's current market value. Families could avoid the measure's requirements if the inheriting children moved into the home as their personal residence within a year. That could be complicated and unreasonable for many beneficiaries.

If a quick move isn't possible, Prop 19's costs would force many families to sell the property to satisfy the government's tax bill. Prop 58 was approved by 75.7% of voters to protect families but Prop 19 would hurt them.

Prop 19 also voids another protection created by Prop 193 preventing reassessment of properties transferred between grandparents and grandchildren in the event the children's parents are deceased.

Legislators tossed in a bit of 'candy' to get the voters into their Prop 19 van. Prop 60 and 90 allows homeowners age 55 and older to transfer their 'Prop 13' tax assessment to a home of equal or lesser value in the same county or one that accepts the transfers. Proper 19 'candy' permits three transfers versus just one.

Socialist legislators have a fundamental issue with parents keeping the wealth that they have earned, payed taxes on and now want to use to help their children with an inheritance. The brown shirts really believe the state owns your property and the state deserves those assets when you die to give to others who do not or will not work.

Say no to the home invaders from Sacramento.

Full Accounting of Fire Losses Will Take Some Time

Timber, grazing and ranch lands appear to have borne the brunt of the agricultural impact so far from California's destructive wildfires. A Cal Fire information officer says damage-assessment teams have begun their work, and county agricultural commissioners say a full accounting of the losses could take weeks or months. Smoke from the fires also threatens winegrapes, which can absorb chemicals that produce an off-taste in wine.

Farm Bureau Coalition Supports Wildfire Bill

A wildfire-mitigation bill goes before a U.S. Senate subcommittee Wednesday, and a coalition of Western state Farm Bureaus says the measure would help the region address its "catastrophic wildfire crisis." Thirteen state Farm Bureaus and the American Farm Bureau express support for the bill, the Emergency Wildfire and Public Safety Act. It would implement projects to manage forests, remove hazardous fuels and accelerate post-fire restoration and reforestation.

Farmers Say They've Hopeful About Rice Crop

Rice harvest will gain momentum in the Sacramento Valley this week. Rice farmers and marketers say they're optimistic about the crop and its prospects, though they say the pandemic has created an unusual marketing situation. In the early days of the pandemic, Americans stocked up on rice and other staple foods. That trend has eased, and demand from restaurants and other food service businesses remains low, but most export markets for the crop look promising.

Produce Business Responds To Pandemic Disruptions

The fresh-produce business has shown resilience in response to pandemic-related swings in demand, according to a University of California professor. UC Davis assistant professor Kristin Kiesel says the pandemic caused "astonishing disruptions" to the produce business, especially as sales to restaurants and other institutions mostly evaporated. She says the overall produce business is now operating at about 20% below pre-pandemic projections..

NOTICE OF PETITION TO ADMINISTER ESTATE OF BOBBIE EDWARD PRUITT SR. Case NO. CVPB 19-59

To all heirs, beneficiaries, creditors, contingent creditors, and persons who may otherwise be interested in the will or estate or both of BOBBIE EDWARD PRUITT SR.

A Petition for Probate has been filed by: LORENE L. VALDEZ in the Superior Court of California, County of: Yuba

The Petition for Probate requests that (name): LORENE L. VALDEZ be appointed as personal representative to administer the estate of the decedent.

The petition requests authority to administer the estate under the independent Administration of Estates Act. (This authority will allow the personal representative to take many actions without obtaining court approval. Before taking certain very important actions, however, the personal representative will be required to give notice to interested persons unless they have waived notice or consented to the proposed action.) The independent administration authority will be granted unless an interested person files an objection to the petition and shows good cause why the court should not grant the authority.

A hearing on the petition will be held in this court as follows: October 19, 2020 at 9:00 a.m. in Dept. 4 located at Superior Court of California, County of Yuba, 215 5th Street Ste. 200 Marysville, CA 95901.

If you object to the granting of the petition, you should appear at the hearing and state your objections or file written objections with the court before the hearing. Your appearance may be in person or by your attorney.

If you are a creditor or a contingent creditor of the decedent, you must file your claim with the court and mail a copy to the personal representative appointed by the court within the later of either (1) four months from the date of first issuance of letters to a general personal representative, as defined in section 58 (b) of the California Probate code, or (2) 60 days from the date of mailing or personal delivery to you of a notice under section 9052 of the California Probate Code. Other California statutes and legal authority may affect your rights as a creditor. You may want to consult with an attorney knowledgeable in California Law.

You may examine the file kept by the court. If you are a person interested in the estate, you may file with the court a Request for Special Notice (form DE-154) of the filing of an inventory and appraisal of estate assets or of any petition or account as provided in Probate Code section 1250. A Request for special Notice form is available from the court clerk.

In the event tender other than cash is accepted the Trustee may withhold the issuance of the Trustee's Deed until funds become available to the payee or endorsee as a matter of right. Said sale will be made, but without covenant or warranty, express or implied, regarding title, possession, or encumbrances, to satisfy the indebtedness secured by said Deed, advances thereunder, with interest as provided therein, and the unpaid principal balance of the Note secured by said Deed with interest thereon as provided in said Note, fees, charges and expenses of the trustee and the trusts created by said Deed of Trust. NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call 916-939-0772 or visit this Internet Web site www.nationwideposting.com, using the file number assigned to this case PFI-201456. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. Robots, Veterans, Apprenticeships: What's Next for California's Job Market

By Lauren Heplers,
CalMatters.org

It's just one facet of California's economic recovery, but the state's unemployment rate is starting to drop after an unprecedented spike during coronavirus lockdowns.

The state's jobless rate fell to 11.4% in August, the Bureau of Labor Statistics reported today, down from a record 16.4% unemployment this spring. The unemployment rate has dipped below the rate of the Great Recession a decade ago but remains more than twice the 3.9% rate in February.

The unemployment data is good news for California workers who have had to make do picking up side gigs, liquidating retirement accounts, skipping rent or meals – without new economic stimulus measures from the state or federal government. Yet more than 2.5 million people remain out of work in the nation's most expensive state.

A turbulent job market also raises bigger questions about the future of work in the state. Beyond monthly employment ups and downs, how many workers are still being shut out of increasingly tech-centric high-paying jobs? And do the maze of state, local and educational programs focused on workforce development actually stand a chance in such a chaotic environment?

"This is an opportunity for the state to really grapple with, 'What will work look like in California?'" said Soraya Coley, president of California State Polytechnic University, Pomona, during a CalMatters and Milken Institute virtual event today.

The event was part of a series examining California's response to the pandemic and its lasting economic implications. Moderated by CalMatters higher education reporter Mikhail Zinshteyn,

The need now is to collect more real-world data from employers on its impacts in different sectors, and to analyze those findings by region and type of job. "We want to upskill our Californians before they are displaced." Image by Gerd Altmann from Pixabay the session explored workforce development efforts with four leaders: Soraya M. Coley, president of California State Polytechnic University, Pomona; Abby Snay, deputy secretary for the Future of Work at California Labor & Workforce Development Agency; Jessica Ku Kim, senior director of Workforce Development at the Los Angeles County Economic Development Corporation; and Greg Nosal, senior director of talent acquisition at Northrup Grumman Corporation.

Here are five of the biggest takeaways for tomorrow's job market:

Quality vs. Quantity

In many parts of California, Northrup Grumman is hiring: 500 engineers and trade workers in Palmdale, 800 engineering roles in Redondo Beach and 100 people each in San Diego and Sunnyvale. "It's a robust job market right now," he said, despite the bleak overall economy.

For Snay, the challenge is ensuring that across California, the path forward is a "high-road recovery," or one where scarcity doesn't overshadow factors like job quality, equity, living wages and safety.

"We want to address the inequity and the gaps that existed before the crisis," Snay said.

In recent years, labor productivity has soared more in California than any other state. But inequality has also spiked, illustrating how income isn't rising with employer gains. It's a mismatch that has heightened concern that automation is about to make things a lot worse.

While it is wise to keep an eye on automation, Kim said the real question is how soon jobs will be impacted and the degree to which technology could displace workers.

Don't Fear The Robots – Yet

"COVID-19 has definitely accelerated digitization," she said.

But the need now is to collect more real-world data from employers on its impacts in different sectors, and to analyze those findings by region and type of job.

"Are we talking about 25% of that job? 100% of that job?" Kim said. "We want to upskill our Californians before they are displaced."

The College Question

In a job market increasingly polarized between high and low-paying work, how important is a four-year degree? Very, the panelists agreed, but there are companies establishing more partnerships with community colleges, particularly for technical support or operations roles.

Longer term, the question is how looming budget cuts could affect those efforts, and whether students will be able to find upward mobility in the job market, since Coley said today's grads will change jobs an average of 17 times across five sectors by the time they retire.

As of this fall, the pandemic has already cost the University of California system nearly $2.2 billion (and counting) in lost revenues and new expenses – a number that has ballooned almost $400 million since July. Next year's state budget will provide $300 million less next year for the UC system after cuts to address part of a sudden $54 billion deficit. And that could be just the beginning if housing woes continue and schools are forced to cut jobs.

Thinking Outside The Pipeline

While college is still king for earning power in many industries, Snay said her agency is among those focused on forging other kinds of career "bridges" and "on-ramps," including apprenticeships in fields like cybersecurity, health care and food safety.

Also not to be overlooked, Kim said, are small- and mid-sized businesses. In Los Angeles County, for instance, more than 90% of employers are small businesses, she said, and "we can't take the paradigms that work for our industrial and manufacturing economy."

Turn Weaknesses Into Strength

For many economists, variables like high veteran homelessness, a "silver tsunami" of baby boomer retirements and California's profound lack of affordable housing would be big negatives for the state's labor market. But there are efforts afoot to reinforce weak spots with new job initiatives.

Northrup Grumman is experimenting with a job transfer program for veterans coming out of the military, who often already have the high security clearances that defense contractors need.

In government, Snay said many positions are poised to open in public transportation, building affordable housing and retrofitting hotels for homeless housing, which could benefit both younger workers and people who were formerly homeless themselves.

"There are many opportunities at the state level and, more importantly, at the local level," she said.

Housing, for one, was a welcome suggestion: "Yes," Kim responded. "Please build."

CAL Matters

Congratulations California, you've done it again.

The Census Bureau has once again found that California has the highest real-world poverty rate of any state, 17.2% over the previous three years and much higher than the national rate.

The "supplemental" poverty rate includes factors ignored by the outdated "official" poverty rate, such as living costs. And our sky-high living costs, particularly for housing, impoverish at least 7 million Californians.

We topped the poverty charts even as California's overall economy was booming in the 2017-19 period. The state now is mired in its worst recession since the Great Depression, thanks to the COVID-19 pandemic, and poverty has surely increased.

A new report from the California Policy Lab at the University of California reveals that in August nearly 20% of California's workers were drawing unemployment insurance benefits, calling it "startlingly high."

Moreover, even before recession struck, the Public Policy Institute of California, using methodology similar to that of the Census Bureau, had calculated that as high as our "supplemental poverty rate" may be, roughly the same number of Californians are in "near-poverty." Combining the two categories means that about a third of the state's residents are struggling to keep their heads above water.

The major driver of California's high poverty indices is, as mentioned earlier, that too many Californians must spend too much of their incomes on housing due to meager construction.

The reasons for the failure to meet housing demand are many but one long-ignored factor – the insanely high cost of building so-called "affordable" housing – is beginning to be recognized.

Last year, I wrote about a $28 million city-financed project to rehabilitate 74 dilapidated, low-rent apartments in Sacramento and noted that it worked out to $378,000 per unit, markedly higher than the median cost of a detached, single-family home in Sacramento at the time.

Last week, two more examples found their way into print.

The Los Angeles Times did a deep dive into the tortured history of a low-income housing project in Solana Beach, a wealthy seaside community in San Diego County. Times reporters found that it originally was to cost $414,000 per unit, but by the time the developer pulled out after a decade of trying to line up financing and permits, it had exploded to $1.1 million.

The Times called it "an alarming example of how political, economic and bureaucratic forces have converged to drive up the cost of such housing at a time when growing numbers of Californians need it."

"California leads the nation in the cost of building government-subsidized apartment complexes for low-income residents," the Times said, reporting that its "analysis of state data found that apartments cost an average of about $500,000. In the last decade, the price tag has grown 26%, after adjusting for inflation."

Solana Beach is not alone. The Times reported that in Alameda, an island community in San Francisco Bay, a low-income development called Everett Commons cost $947,000 per unit.

Meanwhile, back in Sacramento, city housing officials are still spending too much to get too little. The Sacramento Bee reported that redeveloping the downtown Capitol Park Hotel into tiny, 250-square-foot units for low-income residents costs more than $445,000 per unit, higher than the median price for a detached single-family home. At $1,100 per square foot of living space, it is double what a luxury suburban home would cost.

These are outrageous numbers, driven by bureaucratic tangles, misplaced environmental restrictions and high mandated labor costs, and unless state officials do something about them, we will never solve our housing shortage and we will continue to have shamefully high rates of poverty.

Trump to nominate successor to Ginsburg 'without delay' – President signals he will swiftly move to secure third appointment to US Supreme Court | 19 Sept 2020 | President Donald Trump has vowed to push ahead with a Supreme Court nomination "without delay" following the death of Ruth Bader Ginsburg on Friday night. The US president tweeted on Saturday that he considered it an "obligation" to put forward a nominee, who if confirmed would tilt the balance of the court decisively towards the conservatives. Mr Trump tweeted: "We (Republicans) were put in this position of power and importance to make decisions for the people who so proudly elected us, the most important of which has long been considered to be the selection of United States Supreme Court Justices. We have this obligation, without delay!" ...The Republicans hold a 53-47 majority in the Senate and need a simple majority to secure a Supreme Court appointment. Mike Pence, the vice-president, would vote to break the deadlock in the event of a tie.

Schumer: 'Nothing is off the table' if GOP moves forward with Ginsburg replacement | 19 Sept 2020 | Senate Minority Leader Charles Schumer (D-N.Y.) told Democrats on Saturday that "nothing is off the table" if Republicans move forward this year with filling the Supreme Court vacancy created by Justice Ruth Bader Ginsburg's death. "Let me be clear: If Leader McConnell and Senate Republicans move forward with this, then nothing is off the table for next year. Nothing is off the table," Schumer told the Senate Democratic caucus, according to a source on the call. The rare Saturday conference call comes as Senate Democrats are trying to strategize ahead of a looming election-year Supreme Court fight sparked by Ginsburg's death, which gives President Trump an opening to put a third justice on the court.

Package containing the poison ricin and addressed to Trump intercepted by law enforcement | 19 Sept 2020 | A package containing the poison ricin and addressed to President Donald Trump was intercepted by law enforcement earlier this week, according to two law enforcement officials. Two tests were done to confirm the presence of ricin. All mail for the White House is sorted and screened at an offsite facility before reaching the White House. The FBI and Secret Service are investigating the matter. Ricin is a highly toxic compound extracted from castor beans that has been used in terror plots. It can be used in powder, pellet, mist or acid form.

Coronavirus isolation killing thousands of Alzheimer's patients | 17 Sept 2020 | Some 13,200 more people than usual have died from dementia since March, and health care professionals are placing much of the blame on isolation (allegedly) intended to prevent the spread of COVID-19. According to a new report in The Washington Post, analysis of federal data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention reveals that more than 134,200 people have passed away from diseases like Alzheimer's since the coronavirus pandemic gripped the nation. Social and mental stimulation both play a critical role in slowing dementia, and doctors have reported increased backsliding in patients who had been stable for years... Although only a tiny portion of the U.S. population resides in senior care facilities, nursing home deaths have accounted for around 40% of U.S. deaths from COVID-19.

'Ivermectin can kill COVID-19 within 48 hours', Monash University study finds | 21 April 2020 | A collaborative study led by Australia's Monash Biomedicine Discovery Institute (BDI) with the Peter Doherty Institute of Infection and Immunity (Doherty Institute), a joint venture of the University of Melbourne and Royal Melbourne Hospital, has shown that an anti-parasitic drug already available around the world kills the virus within 48 hours. The Monash Biomedicine Discovery Institute's Dr Kylie Wagstaff, who led the study, said the scientists showed that the drug, ivermectin, stopped the SARS-CoV-2 virus growing in cell culture within 48 hours. "We found that even a single dose could essentially remove all viral RNA by 48 hours and that even at 24 hours there was a really significant reduction in it," Dr Wagstaff said. "Ivermectin is very widely used and seen as a safe drug. We need to figure out now whether the dosage you can use it at in humans will be effective – that's the next step," Dr Wagstaff noted. ★
