Marysville Veterans Day Parade

Marysville, Ca.
“Veterans Day is the day for all Americans, intended to honor the contributions of service men and women throughout our Nation's history. Veterans Day also commemorates the time and day at which the major hostilities of World War I were formally ended: the 11th hour of the 11th day of the 11th month of 1918. Hence, every November 11th at 11:00am marks the official parade commencement, rain or shine. The Marysville parade route follows "D" Street, will turn at 2nd Street and finish at "C" Street at 5th Street. This year's parade is on track to be bigger than ever. The Parade is sponsored by the Yuba-Sutter Veterans Day Parade Committee and the City of Marysville.
Entry forms are due by Nov. 1st but we will take late entries if there's room.

Following the parade numerous events are planned: (1)The Rivers Edge Pub (#1 E-12th St. Marysville) will putting on a free Bar-B- Q. The fun will start at approximately 1:00 P.M. ing a drawing throughout the day and are asking for help to collect donations for prizes. If you know anyone who might be interested in helping us out with a donation for a prize it would be wonderful if you pass on my provided contact information.

We are a small group of veterans whose years of service spans from WWII all the way through to Our current conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq. We may not be able to serve our country in uniform anymore, but we continue to serve our community.

is always high. This year in the Marysville Veterans Day Parade will be no exception. There will be a nice number of tractors in the parade.
The group will be led by a WW11 Ford Jeep. While it may seem for tractors to be led by a Jeep as unusual, not so. After WW11 thousands of surplus Jeeps found their way to farm use. In fact the Willy's corporation experimented with the Agri-Jeep which had a PTO and belt pulley, five experimental's were built. However; the effort was not successful on the market.
The second tractor will be a big old John Deere G producing the "Johnny Popper" noise

California's Future

Socialism is deadly. The current international tragedy in Venezuela is the poster child of the chaos and insanity created by the government takeover of the means of production. The outcome is that the wealthiest country in South America has collapsed.

The average Venezuelan has lost 20 lbs. or more, big rigs hauling food are being hijacked by starving citizens. Grocery shelves are empty. Zoo animals and pets have become the family entrée. The nationalized oil industry with the greatest crude oil reserves in the world is in disarray. Venezuela now must import gasoline.

The resulting humanitarian crisis is now the worst in the Western Hemisphere, with more than 4 million refugees and migrants. That's about 10 percent of the country's total population. Four of every 10 people still in Venezuela want to leave.

The United Nations estimates there will be 5.3 million Venezuelan refugees and migrants by the end of 2019, rivaling the scale of the Syrian crisis. By 2020, there will be 8 million Venezuelan refugees, making this crisis the largest such problem in the world.

Nearly 90 percent of the country's population now lives below the poverty line and more than half of families are unable to meet basic food needs. Newborns in Syria have a better chance of survival than those born in Venezuela today.

Medical facilities in Venezuela are breaking down and losing their electricity at the same time that the cost of medications has become astronomical. There is a shortage of around 85 percent of all medicines in the country.

Meanwhile, 13,000 doctors have left Venezuela in the past four years. The failed infrastructure has led to a resurgence of communicable diseases. The World Health Organization (WHO) reports that malaria cases in Venezuela have consistently increased in recent years — from fewer than 36,000 in 2009 to more than 414,000 in 2017.

The desperation, poverty, starvation and resulting chaos have contributed to one of the highest crime rates in the world. In 2017, more than 73 Venezuelans died a violent death each day.

The Left's Work

by Lou Binninger

Prior to the left's takeover of California government, utilities were well-run, rates reasonable and living costs manageable. Power outages were rare and brief. Fires were caused by storms or humans but were rarely ever a holocaust, devouring entire cities and hundreds of people.

Resource rich (water, power, oil) California, once the envy of the world is now a mockery. State leaders are dismantling the state's infrastructure and discarding natural resources on the altar of global warming. Political leaders full of pride and arrogance have been given over to a spirit of stupidity after decades of despising God.

Why all of a sudden has PG and E founded by George H. Roe after California's Gold Rush become unable to safely and reliably deliver power at a reasonable rate? By 1984, it had become the nation's largest electric utility.

Power companies nationwide remove wide swaths through wild lands for power lines. However, a PG&E meteorologist commenting on shutting off power before the Kincade Fire said "It's likely that many trees will fall, branches will break, which could damage utility infrastructure and start a fire." Really, did they quit clearing trees near lines? Or was it the state forbidding the maintaining of forests?

If poorly maintained infrastructure is not the reason PG and E cut power to Californians, what might have led them to do so? Some are suggesting that PG and E's state - mandated reliance on renewable energy (solar and wind) means they don't have enough power to deliver when a major weather event occurs.

Thousands of acres covered in solar panels are useless at night or in overcast conditions. And, there is not sufficient battery storage to store solar power when it is not immediately needed by the grid.

Richard Trzupek writes in 'The Epoch Times' that "The main operating constraint of wind power is, of course, wind speed. At the low end of the scale, you need about a 6 or 7 mph wind to get a turbine moving. This is called the 'cut-in speed.' To generate maximum power, about a 30 mph wind is typically required. But, if the wind speed is too high, the wind turbine will shut down. This is called the 'cut-out speed,' and it's about 55 mph for most modern wind turbines."

Trzupek explains that each wind turbine rotor is connected to an electric generator inside the turbine housing. The connection is through a gearbox that is sized to turn the generator at an exact speed required to produce 60 Hertz AC power.

Though the wind turbines are huge, they are sensitive. The pitch of the blades must be exact and propelled by the right amount of munity Services will hold its monthly meeting on Tuesday, Nov. 12. This group organizes the use of Ponderosa Park and Community Center. The public is welcomed to get involved in the various activities, helping bring our communities together on various projects. The meeting will start at 7 pm downstairs at the community center Monday, November 11th is Veteran's Day. We should always keep our veteran's and current military personnel in our thoughts and prayers, but Veteran's Day is a great time to make an extra effort to show our appreciation for their sacrifices with a handshake or hug. Without them all, we would not be able to live our life of freedom.

This Christmas we invite you to visit Israel in the year 0000 to explore the life of Mary, Jesus's mother; just an average teenage girl in the town of Nazareth born to Jewish parents. She had brothers and sisters, friends and extended family, she carried responsibilities at home while nurturing dreams of her own. The event that set her apart was sealed when she put all that aside and said YES to God's call, unknowingly setting in motion Hell's opposition to the miracle of bringing salvation to all men. Share her faith, her obstacles, her triumph as she chooses obedience to Heaven's call.

FISHIN' TALK

by Boots Johnson

Dan "Boots" Johnson has fished and hunted in California for more than 75 years. Anyone with questions or comments can email him at boots3@syix.com

As we predicted there have been some nice sized trout taken in reservoirs and lakes in the north state. This time of year the big boys as well as the smaller fish go on a feeding frenzy getting ready for winter. It is not uncommon to find brown trout cruising the shallows next to shore as they gorge themselves preparing for the cold months to follow along with snow and ice in some areas.

The Mackinaw lake trout up at Lake Tahoe have gone into the spawning mode. The fish have been holding at between 140 and 200 feet down and are cooperating with anglers fishing minnows.

The Department of Fish and Wildlife have announced they will stop the planting of trout in rivers, streams and reservoirs soon. As of now trout have been planted in Little Grass Valley Reservoir and Jackson Meadows along with other areas. The planted trout program will be back next spring.

A report from Clear Lake tells us if you love bass fishing now is the time to go. Bigger bass are being taken at this time, some in the six and seven pound range. Best bet is to use jigs with crank baits and deep diving lures coming in second.

It is getting cold, real cold up in the high country with Lake Almanor and Eagle Lake showing a little colder at this time. Eagle Lake temperature has been 65 degrees daytime and 34 degrees nighttime and dropping. Quincy, which is close to Little Grass Valley Reservoir has been holding at around 69 or 70 degrees in the daytime, but dropping down to 27 at night. Expect these reading to continue to drop as we continue into November.

The trout fishing at Collins Lake continues to be good after the recent plant. Catfish are still being taken on a regular basis. Expect this reservoir to be a good bet for trout throughout the winter due to the continued planting program for rainbow trout.

Closing thought: "Work for a cause, not for AP-PLAUSE and live to EX-PRESS not to IMPRESS."

Yuba City H.S. Grad and Army Vet Builds Career as an In-Demand Hollywood Filmmaker

Yuba City, Ca.

David Mansanalez, a 2003 graduate of Yuba City High School in Yuba City, is gaining traction in the entertainment industry as a screenwriter and film producer. He also brings a unique background to his work in Hollywood: he's a decorated Army veteran who fought in Kandahar, Afghanistan.

"Given my experience in the battlefield, it was really easy for me to adapt to the long hours and hectic schedules of the film business," says Mansanalez, who was initially trained as a Petroleum Supply Specialist. Mansanalez was later assigned to be a Driver and Gunner in an Oshkosh M-ATV Mine Resistant Ambush Protected Vehicle when he was in Kandahar.

"Something that always makes me laugh is when movie or TV people get really angry or stressed out when they're on a set. To me, whatever problems arise during a production can be solved. People in this industry are fortunate to be able to get paid to be creative. They either don't realize that or they've never been in situations that are truly stressful."

Mansanalez became a film buff when he was a child. Growing up, his favorite movies were "Ghostbusters," "La Bamba," and "Blood In Blood Out," and his favorite directors were John Singleton and Martin Scorsese. As a Latino, seeing the representation of characters in stories and situations that he found relatable was a big influence on his filmmaking vision.

After high school, he joined the Army in 2008 and completed his service in 2012 as a Corporal (E4) with a variety of military honors - including a Combat Action Badge (CAB).

Ready to take on his next mission, Mansanalez considered becoming an audio engineer, but pivoted to follow his interest in filmmaking. He enrolled at his top choice, The Los Angeles Film School (LAFS), where he eventually earned two degrees in 2016: an Associate of Science Degree in Film and Bachelor of Science in Entertainment Business.

"If you have ambition, The L.A. Film School is a great place to network and find like-minded individuals to collaborate with," says Mansanalez, who has worked as a production coordinator on commercials and TV projects for AT&T, Mitsubishi, Google Play, Netflix, Hulu, and many other clients.

"The school's film and business programs are a perfect combination for anyone who aspires to be both a creator and an entrepreneur in the entertainment industry. Having an academic background in the two areas gave me a great head start in my journey and - along with my military experience - set me up for success."

Along with his for-hire work, Mansanalez also co-owns a production company called 4 Ways Entertainment, which he started with five fellow filmmakers, including other L.A. Film School graduates. Along with shopping their original scripts for full-length feature films and a TV series, the 4 Ways release "Slipping Into Darkness" is nominated in the Best Drama category at the Official Latino Film and Arts Festival and is a contender in The L.A. Film School's Military Veteran Film Festival with the tractor which will be remembered by the old timers wafting through the night cutting beans in the Sutter Basin. This machine is owned by Jim Eschman of Browns Valley.

The following group will be the famous "Tractors for Humanity" who highlight the need to end Cancer, Domestic Violence, Downs Syndrome and the Wheel Chair Compatible Tractor. The beautiful blue Allis Chalmers, dedicated to Autism, has moved to the Phoenix area and is stirring up interest there.

The colorful "Politicians Wagon", a restored manure spreader, owned by the Greenwoods from Nevada City will be present loaded with some very special people including children. A variety of other makes and models will be present, some of which have a historical connection with our great agricultural region.

This year the tractors will end their parade involvement and will go to 8th street and go due west to Tracey's Diner for lunch. The tractors will be on display for the public to enjoy after the parade.

A great big thank you to Cynthia Verrill, the parade organizer, for her assistance in the planning to make this extra effort possible. A warm and generous response from Wendell Anderson, our Sheriff, and Chris Sachs, the Chief of Police, were amazing in their assistance to make this additional activity for the tractors a memorable and safe. The drivers will get to view several of the of the excellent examples of post WW11 Marysville houses. The harmony and involvement is greatly appreciated. Their leadership demonstrated a blessing for the citizens they serve.

So, please join us in honoring our veterans who have helped make this a country safe and bountiful. The legacy they protected is desired by millions across the globe. The sacrifice they made is special and has made the US unique in the history of civilizations.

THANK YOU! SEE YOU on November 11th.

Veteran of the Year

RON BRAISER

Occupation: Retired veteran. I spend my time sharing God's plan with folks as a pastor, and I direct a community-based ministry called A Hand-Up.

Hobbies, interests: I spend my spare time camping, doing estate sales and traveling. I enjoy doing anything with my hands - arts, crafts, construction and destruction.

In 1972 stopped in Yuba City to visit family, where he fell in love with the area and his loving wife, Renee, and decided to make the area home.

Ron was a Green Beret when he was diagnosed with emphysema and was told he would only live for a short time. But, he said, he trusted in the Lord and made it through surgery and chemotherapy. After his military career ended, he went into ministering and founded A Hand Up Ministry through the Church of Glad Tidings, spreading the word of God to the homeless.

Ron has served as chaplain on the board of The Yuba Sutter Veterans Stand Down for many years. He is always there to offer blessings over Stand Down events and to offer support to the many Veterans served by the Stand Down.

Ron describes the importance of his faith as: "If not for my faith and the faith of oh so many in my church and family, I would not be here today. Faith has carried me through many many storms. I stand firm on these facts: Without faith, I would be a shell of a man. With faith, I have God, hope and belief. With faith, all things are possible through God. I spend most of my time sharing God's plan with others, finding the hurting, helpless folks and loving on them as Jesus did. I share my passion for God, life and eternity with folks. I continue to listen to my pastor's teachings and training to better prepare my daily walks. I follow along in my Bible daily. I do all God gives me as tasks to do his will in my walk."

Ron works in the homeless community serving all people in need, including the Veterans who are among the homeless population. Ron's ministry continues to provide meals and worship services and through his outreach into the community, Ron and the Hands Up Ministry is able to reach out to and provide to the ever-growing homeless community. An annual Donation Station and Chili Cookoff led by local businessman, David Holycross collects donations of clothing, blankets and other essential items to be donated to The Hands Up Ministry for Ron to distribute to those who need the items.

Ron was described one of the many served at a past Thanksgiving Dinner event as One of God's finest servants on planet Earth!

MARVIN KING

Since 2003, Marvin King has served as Veteran's Advocate through the Yuba Sutter Veterans Service Office. This role involves helping our veterans with navigating through the VA disability process, to include application, record research and retrieval, and appeals.

Prior to his position with the Veterans Administration, Marvin was in the United States Air Force. At the time of his retirement, Marvin served as Section Supervisor for the Electronic Warfare / Data Link maintenance shop.

Marvin attended Yuba College from 2003 - 2007 where he received an Associate Degree in Business Administration and Management, General

He continues to pursue his education through University of Phoenix with the goal of obtaining a Bachelor's degree in Business Administration, Bachelor's degree in Government Administration, and a Masters in Government Administration.

Marvin has served on the board of The Yuba Sutter Veterans Stand Down for many years. Marvin keeps Stand Down members aware of the changes in VA regulations that affect their benefits.

Under Marvin's leadership, Yuba County is nearly tops in the state for veterans financial services. It ranked second best in the percentage of veterans receiving compensation or pension benefits through the United States Department of Veterans Affairs. Sutter County wasn't too far behind, Marvin King, said he believes the area's success boils down to the outreach efforts that the local County Veterans Service Office has focused on.

"From my perspective, we have been doing outreach for decades; we've been doing our best to reach into the veteran's community to help every one of them obtain any benefits they are entitled to," King said. "Looking at our utilization rate shows that we have been reasonably effective at it."

Marvin and his team work diligently with Veterans, Spouses and family members of deceased Veterans to help them understand and apply for benefits they may be eligible for.

"We encourage veterans to come in, talk to us, let us look at their cases and see if there are any ways we can help or get available benefits to them," King said.

"There are a lot of different specialty categories that we understand and have been trained on that we can help our vets obtain those benefits that they might not realize are available," he said.

There could be available benefits for ex-POWs, a veteran who was exposed to agent orange or radiation, or even for someone who experienced symptoms of ALS, also known as Lou Gehrig's disease.

When Marvin's office gets involved, they look at the reasons the VA may have turned a veteran down and determine what we need to do to overturn those denials to turn them into grants. It's almost like a mission for them to, it gives them great satisfaction when they win one for the veterans.

TOM WALTHER

have relocated to other countries now resort to offering services like manicures or washing windows or peddling small items like candy, bread and coffee on the street just to feed themselves and their children, or to pay for a safe place to sleep at night.

Due to a lack of housing in neighboring countries and a lack of income most refugees sleep on the beach, in parks or in other public areas. If they make enough money through street hustling they rent hammocks in yards or spaces on the floor in private homes.

When people arrive in Colombia, they often beg until they have enough money to buy small items to sell. They are fortunate if they earn between $2 and $5 a day, which they use to scrape by or send back to Venezuela. For those who do get informal jobs, they are subject to low pay, long hours and exploitation.

This is all occurring because Venezuelan politicians and the left believed that the means of production, distribution, and exchange of goods and services should be owned or regulated by the government rather than by individuals. This is a government-created crisis.

Meanwhile, the children of Venezuela's elite flaunt their wealth as the rest of the nation starves and many turn to prostitution to survive. Among the spoiled socialist ruling class is Maria Gabriela, the oldest daughter of the late President Hugo Chavez, who is said to be Venezuela's wealthiest woman.

According to a 'Forbes' magazine article in 2015, Hugo Chavez was worth an "estimated $2 billion at the time of his death in 2013. "Today, his daughter Maria Gabriela is the wealthiest woman in Venezuela, worth double that." It is believed that the 38-year-old's fortune is hidden in European bank accounts.

Maria's younger sister Rosines Chavez, in her twenties, has been studying at the University of Paris. In 2012, Rosines drew attention to the family's extreme wealth by posing on social media flaunting a hand full of US currency.

Current President Nicolas Maduro's stepsons, Yoswal and Walter Gavidia Flores spent $45,000 on accommodations at the Ritz Hotel in Paris — the equivalent of the monthly wages of 2,000 Venezuelans.

Venezuelan socialism should put California on notice.

However, as the socialist left has a firm control of California's administration, electrical power is already intermittent as Governor Newsom wants to take over utilities now ruined by government over-regulation.

Healthcare is headed toward state control and a water rationing plan is in place due to a moratorium on creating more water storage. Funds are being withdrawn from road improvements to force people to move to cities and out of cars. The oil industry is being shut down.

The only people benefiting nicely from socialism are those controlling political power.

$5 Million of Road Repairs from 2017 Storms Complete

Marysville, Ca. – Over $5 million worth of roadwork repairing damage from the historic 2017 storms has been completed. Roads to the west of Bullard’s Bar Reservoir in the Yuba County foothills received repairs, retaining walls and guardrails. Knife River Construction of Chico got to work in May, and Indiana Ranch, Fountain House, Oregon Hill and Moran roads re-opened this week. The wettest winter in nearly a century brought significant damage to Yuba County roadways, the bulk being slipouts—where parts of embankments and road slipped down the hillsides. Retaining walls help hold in the embankment to rebuild a base for the roadway. In addition to Yuba County’s work, nearly 430,000 recycled tires were utilized as fill materials in repairs along seven roads thanks to a separate grant from CalRecycle. The TireDerived Aggregate (TDA) is made from shredded scrap tires and is used in projects like retaining wall backfill, lightweight embankment fill, and landslide stabilization.

The material is lightweight, cost-effective, and drains well in wet conditions. For more information on this specific work, visit CalRecycle’s website: <https://bit.ly/2r1UN1P>. Another $2.8 million repair project is also being done east of Bullard’s Bar. Eschelman Construction of Brownsville began work in August and is expected to complete the project by the end of November. Upper Pendola Road is currently closed due to this construction. The bulk of these storm road repairs were funded by the Federal Emergency

Management Agency and California Office of Emergency Services, while Yuba

County funded a small portion (around 6 percent).

Because Your Money Matters!

Marc Cuniberti hosts "Money Matters" on KVMR 89.5 FM Thursdays at noon. His website is www.moneymanagementradio.com

I've done many media pieces on running a restaurant but apparently although many readers and fans of Money Matters are reading them, few restaurant owners apparently are. That said, we all want better service in our local eateries so let's put out our peeves (suggestions) once again.

There are cardinal sins, forgivable oversights and outright stupidity when it comes to how to run a restaurant.

Have I ever run one?

Nope, but my father in law had one of the most successful restaurants in the second largest city in the world, Sao Paulo, Brazil. I learned some from him of course, but most of the suggestions border on some obvious do's and don'ts and frankly I am surprised I keep seeing at least a few of these mistakes more often than not when I dine out.

The cardinal sins are so obvious but seldom is a restaurant error free. I can think of one or two eateries that just have it down, then there's the rest. I eat out a lot and although I am not a food connoisseur by trade (whatever that is) I know good food when I taste it and good service when I see it. And vice versa.

I am also not one of those who give glowing reviews on every restaurant I eat at under the guise "they're trying and I am nice person and don't want to burn any bridges".

Hey, I don't like burning bridges either but what good is a review if every restaurant I review is positive?

On the contrary, giving honest reviews is no jab against an owner. It's an honest evaluation on how to improve and therefore get more business. So what's wrong with that? Also for every one person that complains there are likely ten more that don't. That's the Pareto rule of eateries.

So here we go. Make these mistakes and you'll find empty tables at prime-time if not at all times.

How many of these do you recognize or are guilty of?

A customer should never have to ask for silverware or napkins, salt or pepper. I mean really. That's kind of a no brainer but it happens more often than you would think. Owners: prepare your tables, and that include making sure they are clean, as in very. Also nothing is more unappetizing then left over food on the floor. Sweep up! Thoroughly and often. Check after every table is vacated.

Immediately upon sitting get their drinks! Don't make them wait. Getting drinks right away makes customers more patient and if you serve alcohol, do it immediately. Like within 3 minutes. They'll order more food, be happier, likely also order more drinks (a high profit item) and you'll make more money both on food and drink. Practice this one diligently and owners can increase check totals by up to 20%. Remember alcohol stimulates appetite, loosens up the pocket book, trashes common sense (good for the restaurant) and patrons have a better time. Tell that talkative bartender to zip it and get on his horse and quickly mix drinks! This one is the easiest way restaurants to make more money (a lot more money) yet many just leave patrons sit for 5, 10 or 15 minutes before their drinks are served. Stupid. Let's fix that right now!

Don't be a show off and memorize orders. Write it down. Nothing makes a patron more nervous than a showoff server memorizing 4 orders with sides and specials. They will be looking for mistakes and its nerve wracking. Drinks maybe, but not complete food orders. Use a pad Einstein.

Serving cold food. I once had a waitress tell me after I told her the food was cold she would talk to the cook. Think about that one. The cook had to use HEAT to cook it. Cold food meant it sat. That is the servers fault period

Serve all dishes at the same time. Nothing spells disorganization more than dishes arriving at different times. An amateurish mistake and shows a disorganized cooking staff. And don't forget the toast! And if you do, get it immediately.

Don't forget the ____ (fill in the blanks). Salad, toast, cream ,sugar, a spoon, drinks, sides. Whatever. Make sure they get what they ordered and at the right time and correctly.

Don't serve brown or wilted salad or fruit. Fresh is fresh. Serving ugly or old greens mean it made it by the cook AND the waitress. Note very good quality control. Each person in the restaurant should have the authority to stop food from going out and asking for a correction.

Don't bring dirty dishes or the wash tub to an occupied table. Yuck. And don't leave the dirty dishes out for customers to see. I once was invited to the fanciest steak house in Portland and they had the dirty dish cart full of dishes in the entry way. I kid you not.

Know what the soup of the day is. I can't tell you how many times I ask the waitress what the soup of the day is and they answer "let me go find out". Really? Check at the start of every day! And make sure its HOT!

Don't ever say "I'll get your waitress" for simple things like water or coffee. Every worker should have the authority to serve coffee or get something for a customer. Every customer is everyone's responsibility.

Don't ask how the food is when you see patrons eating and talking. They're obviously happy. Don't bother them. Walk by and take a peek instead. If they need something they'll stop you. Be subliminally available, always looking but never interrupt them with full mouths or while they're obviously doing fine without you.

Don't clear plates before all customers are eating and done. So many restaurant staffer and owners alike think clearing dirty plates from patrons quickly is good service. It's not. It's rude and make patrons feel rushed and some like to pick. Fancy restaurants that know what they're doing never do this. Don't clear plates or offer to until all patrons are completely done.

Ask patrons if they desire dessert. Better yet, tell them the desserts in detail without them asking. If it sounds good enough they might just split one, or better yet order a few. Suggestive selling works and it's why the smart fast food behemoths do it. Even a breakfast or lunch can be topped off with that homemade pie. Yumm. More coffee with that sir?

Don't make people ask for their check. Another amateurish mistake. After telling them about and/or serving dessert, ask them if they are ready for the check. Don't make them ask and don't just plunk it down like a wet fish. Be polite and gentle. It's the money part, be nice about it.

Finally make sure your servers are nice and friendly. If they're rude, have an agenda, are snobby or are the "b" word, get rid of them. They are your FACE to the customer. A rude waiter or waitress can make a customer not come back. Then they will tell ten friends. Word of mouth can make or break you.

And if you're opening a restaurant, be ready on day one! Many will only give you one chance. Blow the open and say goodbye to your investment. It's very difficult to recover. First impressions in the restaurant business are SO IMPORTANT. Don't make excuses like "we just opened". If you're not completely ready, DON'T OPEN. Then take the extra time to TRAIN your staff well. On all the above. And make it known anyone not onboard with this kind of knowledge and service will be shown the door.

9 out of every 10 new businesses fail. In the restaurant business, 14 out of 15 don't make it pass the first two years. If you currently own a restaurant, review all your practices and make sure you're not overlooking some of these no-brainers. Ignore at your own peril.

Kincade Fire sweeps through farming region

Assessing agricultural damage from the Kincade Fire will take some time, once the fire has been contained. Flames have destroyed or damaged wineries, barns and other structures in Sonoma County. A 107-year-old cattle ranch lost nearly all of its buildings. Reports indicate between 10 and 20% of the region's winegrapes remain on the vines. The county Farm Bureau has helped relocate evacuated farm animals and organized a hay drive.

California almond, walnut crops to be smaller

Rainy spring weather that reduced California almond and walnut crops will lead to ripple effects on world markets. A government report says world almond production will be down 3% this year, mainly due to a smaller California crop though production will also be down in Europe. However, world walnut production will rise 6%, despite a reduced California harvest, because better weather in China allowed its production to rise sharply.

Drought-tolerant plants could result from research

In work that could help plants resist drought, a research team at the University of California, Riverside, says it has developed a chemical to help plants retain water. Known as O.P., the chemical mimics a natural hormone plants produce in reaction to drought. Researchers say the O.P. chemical could ultimately allow farmers to treat plants that would otherwise wilt from lack of water. The treatment slows a plant's growth, so it won't consume more water than available.

Pumpkin crop looks healthy

It may be obvious from looking at jack-o'-lanterns on front porches around the state, but California has produced a "healthy" pumpkin crop this year, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture. California ranks third in the nation in tonnage of pumpkin production, behind Illinois and Texas, but ranks No. 1 in crop value, because nearly all the state's crop is sold in the ornamental market. San Joaquin County leads the state in pumpkin production.

Zombieland: Double Tap

Starring: Woody Harrelson, Jesse Eisenberg, and Emma Stone. Rated: R. Runtime 1 hour, 39 minutes

A cadre of apocalypse survivors travel to Washington DC to make the Whitehouse their home. Soon, discord arises that necessitates a road trip.

Zombieland: Double Tap, earns two out of five: Hook Hanging Monkeys. The story is shallow and well designed for cheap entertainment for a quick dollar. The acting is good and the action and cinematography are very well done.

This isn't a horrible movie. It is just not a great movie. The jokes and gags were easy and grew tiresome as the body count rose. My suggestion is to stay home and wait for it to hit free streaming.

wind speed to deliver power to the electric grid. When the wind blows too hard the blades cannot adjust to produce power and the turbine shuts down, lots of wind but no production.

Meanwhile politicians in the name of Green Energy have taken over the power industry. In 2001, Energy Information Administration data reveals that the state generated 74.3 percent of its electricity from fossil fuels and nuclear. Hydroelectric, geothermal, and biomass-generated power accounted for most of the remaining 25.7 percent, with wind and solar contributing only 1.98 percent of the total.

By 2018, the state's renewable energy was up to 43.8 percent of total generation, with wind and solar now accounting for 17.9 percent of the total. San Onofre and Diablo Canyon nuclear plants are gone. This is a clue to why PG and E is going broke, while rates are skyrocketing and power is unreliable.

Governor Newsom's appointment of an Energy Czar will do nothing for sustainability, reliability, safety or reasonable rates. It is political window dressing, like the Soviet Union's five-year agricultural plans, always a disaster. People starved.

The government taking over utilities will create another US Postal Service, Department of Motor Vehicles or California Public Employee Retirement System, all massive losers.

Worse than embarrassing, a state-run utility will be a disaster endangering lives, property and emptying the state of businesses and taxpayers.

The Rest of the Story

It is deeply troubling to read in more than one news article this past week that the State Auditor is just about ready to conduct an audit of the City of Marysville's finances based on outdated information from the City's 2016-17 Audit (source: Sacramento Bee, October 25, 2019, These 3 Northern California cities have shaky finances. Can they recover?).

For the record, in June of 2016, Marysville voters passed a 1% General Sales Tax. In less than two years, the City's General Fund Reserve has gone from $269,729 (as of 6-30-16) to $2,456,504 (as of 6-30-18) and from total General Fund Revenues of $7,385,154 (FY16-17) to $9,252,199 (FY18-19). In Fiscal Year 2019-20, General Fund Revenues are projected to exceed $10 million. Furthermore, the City's S&P and Moody's bond ratings moved up for the second year in a row to 'A/Stable' and 'BAA2', respectively.

The City is also realizing the tax benefits of two marijuana dispensaries, as well as opening its doors to allow for indoor Cannabis cultivation, lab testing, volatile extraction and edible manufacturing.

Just a month ago, the City issued new and reissued old bonds for two burdensome liabilities - its unfunded pension liability and a Certificate of Participation for real property - the total savings to the City will be approximately $385K per year and more than $9 million over the life of both bonds. The City is also currently refinancing a sewage bond that is expected to bring additional savings to the City's Enterprise/Sewage Fund.

In addition, cost recovery efforts have been instituted in both the Fire and Community Development Departments, as well as realizing cost savings by changing medical insurance providers, scrutinizing and updating historic contracts and revisiting old payment plans.

The City has also developed a financial model in order to forecast revenues and expenses over a seven-year horizon, plan for the future, and prepare for future changes in the economy.

In addition to all of these efforts, the City is also on the cusp of updating its 32-year old General Plan to develop a 20-20 vision for a revitalized Marysville that is anticipated to lead to more growth, development and economic opportunity. It's also developing a financial strategy and plan to address its deteriorating roads and other infrastructure challenges.

Unfortunately, the State Auditor's damaging and outdated remarks only further hinder the renaissance of cities like Marysville by deterring already difficult to attract private investment and public-public partnerships, as well as exacerbating historic and negative stereotypes of the City.

There are plenty of positive stories to tell about the City of Marysville, including its improved financial future. Hopefully moving forward, more media outlets will be interested in telling those stories instead of the ones that keep us living in the past.

Is Northern California a Third World Country?

By Richard Crist, OMD

PG&E has reduced the people of Northern California to live as if they were living in a Third World Country. Instead of using modern technological advances to create ways to monitor their power lines and equipment for faults that might cause a fire, they have chosen to use the no-technology approach of just shutting off the power when there's any sign of high winds.

The people in PG&E's hierarchy who thought up this antiquated idea need to be immediately fired for their lack of confronting a problem in a way that best meets the needs of the public, which PG&E is "mandated by law to serve." These people, who were in charge, are the reason that these power lines and equipment got into this state of disrepair. That by itself should be reason for their removal. Let alone the fact that they have implemented this harebrained idea that virtually cripples mass areas of the population, causing more harm than any possible good for the people.

Blacks Law Dictionary states "The test of a public utility is whether it has held itself out as ready, able, and willing to serve the public;" and "To constitute a True Public Utility, their devotion to the public use must be of character that the public, which it serves, who has accepted the service, has a legal right to demand that service be indiscriminately continuous, efficient, and affordable or they will be subject to the police power of the state."

PG&E has not and is not fulfilling their obligation to the public. Instead they're serving themselves and their shareholders, with this ill-thought-out and disastrous plan. It's time for this giant, self-serving, mismanaged, bankrupt, corporation to be broken up into smaller more people oriented municipal companies. Like SMUD who has had no blackouts; the public needs a company who will honor their mandate to serve their needs, and getting rid of PG&E management and shareholders is the first step. Republicans Storm Closed Door Hearing to Protest Impeachment Inquiry

Following, in part, is the incident as reported by The Hill reporters Mike Lillis, Rebecca Klar, Olivia Beavers and Juliegrace Brufke.

House Republicans stormed a closed-door hearing Wednesday, 10-23-19, to protest Democrats' impeachment inquiry process, breaking up the deposition of a top Defense Department official who was testifying about President Trump's dealings with Ukraine.

"They crashed the party," said Rep. Harley Rouda (D-Calif.), a member of the Oversight and Reform Committee, one of three House panels leading the impeachment probe.

Dozens of Republicans, including some members of leadership like House Minority Whip Steve Scalise (R-La.), barged into the secure hearing room in the Capitol basement where Laura Cooper, the deputy assistant secretary of Defense for Russia, Ukraine and Eurasia, was set to provide private testimony. The deposition got underway after a five-hour delay.

Several lawmakers said that, in response to the Republican protest on Wednesday morning, House Intelligence Committee Chairman Adam Schiff (D-Calif.) left the room with Cooper and postponed her interview.

"The fact that Adam Schiff won't even let the press in — you can't even go in and see what's going on in that room," Scalise told reporters outside the hearing room. "Voting members of Congress are being denied access from being able to see what's happening behind these closed doors, where they're trying to impeach the president of the United States with a one-sided set of rules, they call the witnesses."

GOP Reps. Andy Biggs (Ariz.), Bradley Byrne (Ala.), Matt Gaetz (Fla.), Louie Gohmert (Texas) Steve King (Iowa) and members of the conservative House Freedom Caucus also entered the room.

"When we walked in, they looked dumbfounded and the room just came to a stop," Byrne told The Hill. "And we lined up along the wall or sat in chairs expecting them to do something. And after several minutes, Adam Schiff got up and just walked out. And while he was walking out I said, 'Don't go.'"

Republicans have repeatedly blasted Democrats for choosing to only allow members of the House Intelligence, Oversight and Foreign Affairs committees to attend the hearings and depositions,

A LARGE GROUP of REPUBLICAN CONGRESSPEOPLE are shown as they surged into the secure hearing room in the Capitol basement where infamous "secret" hearings were being held by Intelligence Committee Chairman "Shifty" Adam Schiff. Out of the large group, only about 25 Republicans were able to squeeze into the remaining space of the hearing room.

arguing the information and transcripts should be made available to all members given the gravity of the consequences of impeachment.

They have also accused Democrats of selectively leaking information from those hearings to the press.

Rep. Roger Marshall (R-Kan.) said Schiff said "nothing" after Republicans forced their way into the hearing room.

"He doesn't have the guts to come talk to us," Marshall said. "He left, he just got up and left. He doesn't have the guts to tell us why we can't come in the room, why he doesn't want this to be transparent. It's the biggest facade, biggest farce of my life."

But Rep. Mike Waltz (R-Fla.) said Schiff postponed the hearing as he left the room. Waltz also said Schiff was "threatening" GOP members with ethics violations.

Some of the Republicans who barged into the hearing room were in possession of cellphones, a violation of the rules governing the so-called sensitive compartmented information facility, known as the SCIF, where the depositions have been taking place.

Roughly 25 Republican lawmakers occupied the room, according to Rep. Debbie Wasserman Schultz (D-Fla.). "It appears that they're refusing to leave," she said at the time.

Wasserman Schultz, who said Cooper was not in the room when the Republicans entered, added that impeachment probe has "far too much fact for their comfort level, so they have to try to stop it from moving forward."

The move by House Republicans comes a day after another witness, top diplomat William Taylor, testified that Trump withheld military aid to Ukraine to pressure the country to conduct a pair of investigations — one into 2016 election hacking, the other into the family of former Vice President Joe Biden — that might have helped Trump's reelection campaign next year.

Scalise on Tuesday led more than 50 GOP members in a floor speech rally railing against impeachment efforts. The previous day, Trump called on Republicans to be more vocal in their defense of him as Democrats push forward with their impeachment efforts.

Some Democrats were outraged by GOP lawmakers bringing cellphones and cameras into a secure room.

"In short, they have compromised the security of the room. And they not only brought in their unauthorized devices, they may have brought in the Russian and Chinese with electronics in a secure space," Rep. Eric Swalwell (D-Calif.) told reporters.

Rep. Mark Meadows (R-N.C.), a member of the Oversight Committee and a key Trump supporter, suggested the concerns over the cellphones were overblown.

"There's no cameras or phones in the SCIF, so I think that those phones actually went in, just because everybody went in," Meadows told reporters. "I can tell you I actually collected phones and brought them back out. You certainly want a secure environment but at the same time I think everybody wants to hear exactly what's going on."

Rep. Chris Stewart (R-Utah), a member of the Intelligence Committee who is allowed in the closed-door hearings, said Republicans were not trying to stop the hearing.

"We want to hear from this witness but so do the other members of Congress," he said. "This may be within House rules, that's not the question. The question is, is it a good idea to try and impeach the president in secret hearings?"

Asked whether Republicans will attempt to enter other closed-door hearings, House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy (R-Calif.) told reporters that the GOP "will continue to fight to find information because we have a responsibility to our constituents and we will not be denied that."

Other Republicans who took part in the action included Reps. Mark Walker (N.C.), Jody Hice (Ga.), Mo Brooks (Ala.) Buddy Carter (Ga.), Doug LaMalfa (Calif.), Alex Mooney (W.Va.), Gary Palmer (Ala.) and Bill Johnson (Ohio).

A Veteran Died Today

He was getting old and paunchy, and his hair was falling fast,
And he sat around the Legion, Telling stories of the past.

Of the war that he once fought in, And the deeds that he had done,
In his exploits with his buddies; They were heroes, every one.

And 'tho sometimes, to his neighbors, His tales became a joke,
All his buddies listened quietly For they knew where of he spoke.

But we'll hear his tales no longer, For ol' Joe has passed away,
And the world's a little poorer For a Veteran died today.

He won't be mourned by many, Just his children and his wife.
For he lived an ordinary, Very quiet sort of life.

He held a job and raised a family, Going quietly on his way;
And the world won't note his passing, 'Tho a veteran died today.

When politicians leave this earth, Their bodies lie in state,
While thousands note their passing And proclaim they were great.

Papers tell their life stories, From the time that they were young,
But the passing of a Veteran Goes unnoticed and unsung.

Is the greatest contribution To the welfare of our land,
Some jerk who breaks his promise And cons his fellow man?

Or the ordinary fellow, Who in times of war and strife,
Goes off to serve his country And offers up his life?

The politician's stipend And the style in which he lives,
Are often disproportionate To the service that he gives.

While the ordinary Veteran, Who offered up his all,
Is paid off with a medal And perhaps a pension, small.

It was not the politicians With their compromise and ploys,
Who won for us the freedom That our country now enjoys.

Should you find yourself in danger, With your enemies at hand,
Would you really want some cop-out, With his ever-waffling stand?

Or, would you want a Veteran, His home, his country, his kin
Just a common Veteran, Who would fight until the end?

He was just a common veteran And his ranks are growing thin,
But his presence should remind us We may need his likes again.

For when countries are in conflict, We find the Veteran's part
Is to clean up all the troubles That the politicians start.

If we cannot do him honor While he's here to hear the praise,
Then at least let's give him homage, At the ending of his days.

Perhaps just a simple headline In the paper that might say
"Our country is in mourning, for a veteran died today."

Farm Bureau Supports Agricultural Immigration Bill

Noting that California farmers and ranchers have long sought reforms and improvements to immigration laws that would enhance the lives of agricultural employees and their families, the California Farm Bureau Federation said it supports a bipartisan bill.

The Farm Workforce Modernization Act of 2019, introduced by Reps. Zoe Lofgren, D-San Jose, and Dan Newhouse, R-Wash., would improve agricultural visa programs and accommodate immigrant agricultural employees already in the United States, while assuring border security.

"This comprehensive legislation contains key elements that address current and future workforce needs for agricultural employers and employees in California and throughout the nation," CFBF President Jamie Johansson said. "The reforms in the Farm Workforce Modernization Act of 2019 will provide much-needed solutions for agricultural employers and employees."

The act would allow immigrant agricultural employees in the United States to earn legal status through continued agricultural employment.

"We need to deal fairly with the existing agricultural workforce and their immediate families," Johansson said. "The people who work on farms and ranches are valued members of rural communities. Their contributions to our communities and our food system should be recognized by allowing them a chance to gain legal status."

The bill would also modernize and streamline the existing H-2A agricultural visa program, to provide more flexibility for employers and ensure critical protections for foreign employees.

"Improvements to the H-2A program would make it much more flexible and valuable to California farm employers and employees," Johansson said. "For example, a pilot program in the bill would allow H-2A employees to move from farm to farm for employment, a portability option California producers have long sought. And, for the first time, the bill would accommodate guestworker visas for year-round operations such as dairies and nurseries."
