Grand Jury in Attendance

by John Mistler

Brownsville, Ca. – The October 24th meeting was packed to room capacity (29) including members of a Grand Jury Committee.

Under public comment Yuba Water Agency Director, Charlie Mathews, commented on the agency's approval of the grant for North Yuba Water District.

The North Yuba Water District (NYWD) board voted 4-1 to approve an out of district service agreement with Aro Pines Homeowners Assoc. and the district may consider annexing Aro Pines into the district.

The district also voted, unanimously, to upgrade the Challenge Redwood storage tank and to line the Forbestown and Rackerby water storage tanks.

The board voted 4-1 to approve a contract increase to $40,000 with Smart Marketing for Public Relations and Consulting. Director Flohr cast the no vote saying she believed Smart Marketing had a conflict of interest because Smart Marketing also worked with the Yuba Water Agency (YWA) and is managing the political campaign for two of the YWA Directors. Director Hawthorne said that Smart Marketing had done a good job for the district in the past and he did not believe there was a conflict of interest. He expressed the need was greater now since the Yuba Water Alliance was putting out so much bad information to the public that they needed to be able to let the public know the truth about what the district is doing. Using an example; he wanted to correct, the Yuba Water Alliance had put out information, anonymously, that the water saved by piping the Forbestown Ditch would be used to attract development. "That is not true" he said, "we have people in the district that are not receiving water and water savings will go to them." The Yuba Water Alliance is an informal group of citizens who among other issues are opposed to the piping of the Forbestown Ditch. Alton Wright who is the contact person for the Yuba Water Alliance went on record as opposing the contract with Smart Marketing.

Closed Session was interesting as it was a conference with legal counsel about "Initiation of Litigation".

North State Lawmakers Announce Legislation to Combat Power Shutoffs

Butte Co. – To further protect their constituents, state lawmakers - Senator Jim Nielsen (R-Tehama) and Assemblyman James Gallagher (R-Yuba City) - who represent the Town of Paradise and Camp Fire survivors, announced their intent to introduce legislation that will help prevent future wildfires and Public Safety Power Shutoffs (PSPS) by PG&E. The lawmakers are authoring legislation to direct additional funding into utility infrastructure upgrades and forest fuel reduction projects – two of the leading factors in catastrophic wildfires and cited by PG&E in declaring power shutoff events.

PG&E is currently spending roughly $2.4 billion annually to uphold a legislative mandate to buy renewable power. At the same time, the company spent only $1.5 billion to update its century old infrastructure in 2017. A century-old transmission tower was cited as the ignition source of the Camp Fire, and a utility tower reportedly may also be the source of the Kincade Fire currently burning in Sonoma.

The legislation by Nielsen and Gallagher will temporarily pause the state's renewable power mandates until infrastructure and vegetation management conditions are improved. The legislation will require that savings from this temporary relief may only be used by Investor Owned Utilities (IOUs) to harden the grid and reduce forest fuels. Also during this time, executive compensation at IOUs would be frozen and any proposed bonuses shall be put on hold.

"PG&E needs to get back to the basics of providing safe and reliable power," said Gallagher. "There is no doubt that PG&E's mismanagement is the primary culprit in these devastating fires and PSPS events. But policies coming out of the State Capitol that distract from these primary objectives only make matters worse."

Senator Nielsen called the legislation a common-sense approach to help end power shutoff events and reduce fire risk. "We are not waiting ten years. No more power shutoffs. It needs to happen now," said Nielsen. "Millions without electricity is what a third world country looks like, not a state that is the 5th largest economy in the world."

California IOUs have already met their goals of reaching 33% renewable solar and wind energy and PG&E is already producing 85% of its power from renewable and carbon-free sources. The lawmakers noted that every dollar spent on the additional cost of renewable energy is one dollar that is not available to be spent on vegetation management, line insulation, undergrounding, and other grid-hardening measures.

"Dollars spent on forestry management have been found to do more to reduce carbon than other measures. Science shows that redirecting funding to forestry management gets us a better bang for our buck in carbon reduction," added Gallagher.

The lawmakers will also be introducing a joint Resolution that will urge the federal bankruptcy court to rescind PG&E's current high-cost renewable energy contracts. Reports show that some of PG&E's pre-2012 solar contracts now cost the company an added $2.2 billion per year due to outdated above-market prices. These contracts could be voided in the bankruptcy to allow PG&E to buy the same renewable power at a lower price. Savings from renegotiating these bloated contracts could be used to invest in projects that reduce fire danger and future blackout events.

"Bankruptcy is typically a place to get out of bad contracts," said Senator Nielsen. "Victims and ratepayers must be the priority. Our legislation is another opportunity to get back to the basics of providing safe and reliable power."

The North State lawmakers noted that California is moving backward on its carbon reduction due to recent wildfires. Last year's fires generated 45 million metric tons of carbon - more than nine times California's combined reductions achieved in 2016 and 2017.

"California must get smarter about its climate goals. Century-old infrastructure, tinderbox forests and PSPS events are unacceptable. Renewable energy mandates that take away from addressing these issues while fires continue to burn are intolerable. With our plan, we can do better on carbon reduction and combating catastrophic fire," Gallagher concluded.

Nielsen and Gallagher will formally introduce the legislation when the Legislature reconvenes in January.

New Law to Help Child Sex Abuse Victims

by Lou Binninger

There has been a shocking turn-of-events in the California legislature. The legislative body known for its immorality, perversion, and setting a day each year to honor a pedophile has passed AB 218 increasing the time survivors of sexual abuse can seek justice. On October 13, 2019, Governor Newsom signed the bill into law.

The law increases that statute of limitations on reporting childhood sexual assault and bringing a civil suit against a perpetrator. Under the new law, childhood victims of sexual assault have until the age of 40, or anytime thereafter within 5-years of discovering a psychological – related injury, to file a civil lawsuit for damages. It also provides a three-year "look-back" window for revival of claims that would have otherwise expired because of the previous statute of limitations.

Furthermore, the legislation says that if the abuse was covered-up, the victims may be entitled to up to triple the damages. Some believe that this law will allow 1,000 additional victims to pursue relief from perpetrators and others who were complicit in a cover-up.

The bill authored by Assemblywoman Lorena Gonzalez (D-San Diego) passed the Assembly 69-0 and 33-0 in the Senate.

"The idea that someone who is assaulted as a child can actually run out of time to report that abuse is outrageous," Gonzalez said. "More and more we're hearing about people who were victims years ago but were not ready to come forward to tell their story until now. We shouldn't be telling victims their time is up when in reality we need them to come forward to protect the

by Lou Binninger

Marysville residents found themselves $144 poorer each year beginning October 1, 2019 as the council voted a sewer fee increase on September 17. The monthly rate bumped from $36.80 to $48.95, a 33% increase. The justification was to make payments on debt incurred through a sewer bond.

Marysville is mired in numerous bond and pension debt payments, wants to add more employees, and struggles with regulatory compliance. Don't you dare try this at home or you'll end up living at the '14 Forward' homeless camp in a Tuff Shed.

After the Central Valley Water Board (CVWB) fined Marysville $3.1 million for not filing 11 quarterly waste water reports, CVWB then agreed to a negotiated reduced fine of $288,288 in 2017. CVWB further authorized the use of 50% of the $288,288 fine to rehabilitate Ellis Lake.

A final report on the lake rehab was due to be presented to CVWB in January 2019, but the work has not been started. Unfortunately, the city is again out of compliance by not getting the lake clean-up completed.

A CVWB option of pumping Yuba River Water to the lake was offered to be done and paid for by businessman Charles Mathews and retired Fish and Wildlife employee Dale Whitmore. The council declined, favoring instead nearly a million dollar project to essentially convert the lake into an aquarium plus spend $45,000 in annual maintenance. EKI engineers, the promoters of the idea, offer no project guarantees except that the water will not be clean enough for human contact.

Now, the California State Auditor Elaine Howle says Marysville ranks 16th among the top 18 most "fiscally challenged" cities in the state. The auditor evaluated 471 cities. More than half the cities were listed as moderate to high risk for financial problems. The primary ailment is employee pensions and benefits. They're too expensive.

These problem cities' lousy financial state exists in spite of California's overall economy, now in its 115th month of growth, breaking a record set in the 1960s. Unemployment is at historic lows and the state has so much tax revenue that the Legislature approved a budget earlier this year with a $21.5 billion surplus. The next downturn will be catastrophic for the troubled cities.

Howle said 337 of 471 cities have not saved enough money to pay for future retiree health benefits. Nearly half of the cities are not saving enough money to pay pension benefits in five years. She also was alarmed to see some cities borrowing money to pay pension obligations.

The auditor's office used 10 indicators to measure financial health, including whether cities had enough money to pay their bills, how much debt they have, how much money they have in savings, and if the city has enough money to pay retirement obligations. The office used those indicators to rank cities from worst to best.

Marysville was rated "high risk" in the following categories:

Art & Oysters

The Third Annual Celebration of Everyone's Favorite Bivalve

Marysville, Ca.

"Art & Oysters" is back this year and promises to be even bigger and better than ever; more oysters, more music, more art. A collaboration between Yuba Sutter Arts and South Yuba County Rotary, Art & Oysters will be held on Sunday November 10th from 4 - 8pm.

The location will once again be Justin's Kitchen, 628 Plumas Street in Yuba City. Tickets are $40 each or two for $75 in advance. Tickets at the door, if available, will be $50 each. Admission includes all you can eat oysters and side dishes. Tickets are available online at yuba-sutterarts.org and in person at Yuba Sutter Arts' offices in Marysville. The event is limited to the first 100 guests so do not delay if planning to attend. The live music, art, atmosphere and great company are all included. Proceeds from the event will benefit youth education and arts programs in Sutter and Yuba Counties.

So, what might one expect at an event titled "Art & Oysters" you ask? This year there will be multiple oyster stations serving over 800 oysters. You can select from barbequed, "Rockefeller," or on the half shell oysters without the long wait times. The oysters will include Justin's selection of the finest est oysters from the north coast with a special selection of his unique sauces and mignonettes. And for those who don't yet have their "oyster legs," chicken and a wonderful array of side dishes will be available. "He was a bold man that first ate an oyster," or so said author Jonathan Swift who wrote "Gulliver's Travels." No boldness will be required at Art & Oysters.

Live music will be provided by the Grover Anderson Ensemble from Calaveras County with a selection of original songs and covers of popular music. And what about the "art" in Art & Oysters? Our featured artist this year will be Pam Nowak who just completed a gallery show at the Theater Gallery. Pam will present "Pam on Paper," past and new works in mixed media on paper including watercolor, pen and ink and color pencil.

There will be hand-painted oyster holiday ornaments in addition to oyster wreaths, oyster frames, oyster with succulents, oyster candleholders and other custom oyster-inspired creations all available in time for holiday gift giving.

Come support a great seasonal community event with a special twist. And remember, just like in the "Oyster and the Carpenter" by Lewis Carroll, "Oysters," you've had a pleasant run! Shall we be trotting home again? But answer came there none — And this was scarcely odd, because they'd eaten every one."

All right, title, and interest conveyed to and now held by the trustee in the hereinafter described property under and pursuant to a Deed of Trust described as:

NOTICE TO POTENTIAL BIDDERS: If you are considering bidding on this property lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on this property.

NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER:

The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call (866)-960-8299 or visit this Internet Web site <http://www.altisource.com/MortgageServices/DefaultManagement/TrusteeServices.aspx> using the file number assigned to this case 2019-00226-CA. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the Internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale.

community from future abuse.”

The Gonzalez legislation arose following allegations of the sexual abuse of minors by Catholic priests and after Larry Nassar, former US Olympic gymnastics team doctor, was sentenced to life in prison in January 2018 for crimes committed against young female athletes over a span of two decades. More than 250 women testified against Nassar.

“Childhood abuse continues to ruin children’s lives and continues to shock the nation because, unfortunately, perpetrators continue to abuse, often with impunity, and sometimes, with the help of third parties who either choose not to get involved or actively cover-up the abuse,” according to the Assembly Floor Analysis of the bill.

In cases where a child is sexually abused, AB 218 allows courts to award damages to the victim from anyone found guilty of engaging in the cover-up.

“This reform is clearly needed both to compensate victims who never should have been victims – and would not have been if past sexual assault had been properly brought to light – and also as an effective deterrent against individuals and entities who have chosen to protect the perpetrators of sexual assault over the victims,” Gonzalez noted in the bill’s analysis.

The Victim Policy Institute (VPI) said in support of the bill that too many abusers avoid accountability for their actions. “The only good thing to come out of recent scandals was an environment that encouraged well-known women – actors or Olympians – who were victims of childhood sexual assault to come forward.” VPI wrote, “It is time for the law to recognize what we all now know that it can take decades before some survivors are capable of coming forward.”

Though the bill rightfully shames and targets the very institutions (schools, athletic organizations and churches) that should protect children, it makes no mention of Planned Parenthood and other abortion providers that ignore their duty as mandated reporters where minor girls receive treatment and abortions resulting from being sexually active with adults.

Sexual deviancy and child sacrifice have become religious rituals of this secular society. Abortionists and clinic workers are its ministers. They ignore reporting possible crimes when it comes to the sexual abuse of children.

The justice system is complicit with the cover-up as well. Law enforcement and probation perform stings to catch stores and bars selling tobacco products and alcohol to minors, they seek kids who skip school, but then look the other way as young teen girls are trafficked, pimped-out, molested and then taken to Planned Parenthood for services while a crime is never reported.

AB 218 is a step forward but the government’s blind eye to millions of minor girls being violated while tax-funded businesses are protected from prosecution is evil.

Blazing Political Correctness

About a year ago I penned an article about the recent, as in a decade or so, movements to destroy, relocate or otherwise deface historical artifacts like statues and monuments because of political correctness. Civil war statues are moved from courtyards or courthouses, protesters deface or destroy them, sports team’s names are under fire, once famous food branding is altered or changed altogether. The list goes on and on.

My original article took the spin that an historic work of art or plaque, saying or allowing representation of, displaying or promoting, or just allowing such historic things to exist in today’s time no more says that you support whatever it was that it signified, just as removing or altering such a thing indicates that you don’t.

Here is an example to illustrate what I’m talking about:

A friend of mine got a pair of healing snakes tattooed on her leg and when I asked why, was told to represent she was healing from a past relationship. Such a story might also apply to a lovers name tattooed on one’s arm. She had one of those too. Go figure right?

The reality of it is just because you have a healing snake tattoo doesn’t mean you are necessarily healing and not having one doesn’t mean you aren’t.

The same could be said tattooing a lovers name doesn’t mean you love them anymore and not having one doesn’t mean you love them less.

Ditto for destroying or defacing, removing or altering civil war flags or statues. Just because you did doesn’t mean racism no longer exists and just because their on display doesn’t mean you support slavery.

Travel down that path and half the world’s art and artifacts would go up in a protestor’s puff of smoke.

These are historic artifacts and a part of our history, like it or not. I where we came and that applies to all Americans. Many of these pieces are precious works of art.

So following their logic, if you could call it that, Rome killed Christians because of their religion. Obviously a restriction of religious freedom and a major violation of human rights. Shall we destroy all Roman statues or knock down the Coliseum?

Hitler attempted and partially succeeded in massacring an entire race. Shall we now destroy all the WW2 German artifacts? Or is it simply we pick and choose because of the amount of time that has passed.

Obviously Rome was a long time ago, so apparently it’s ok we let those artifact remain. Wait minute, the Nazi regime was only about 80 years ago, and the Civil War 158 years ago. But WW2 artifacts are ok but the civil war is not?

Humm.

Something’s not adding up. Perhaps those that want certain past representations destroyed because of bias yet allow other artifacts to remain have their reasoning in who or what group was enslaved, killed or tortured rather than a blanket protest against discrimination itself?

Let’s see now. The Nazi’s targeted Jews and the Romans hunted the Christians.

Suppose I dare not go there.

In any case the logic is idiotic and the acts ridiculous. The hurling of rocks at civil war statues. The destruction of certain collector flags, the removal of a gold miner statue at a college in so called respect of the Native Americans because gold mining was a scourge of native lands. The removal of books like Huckleberry Finn from certain school districts. Even flying an American flag can get you into trouble in some places apparently because it means you support a certain President.

I would say “what the ----” but this is a family newspaper and I’m supposed to be a respectable columnist.

In any case the latest in the saga of the destruction of American culture akin to the Nazi’s burning books the political correctness Gestapo have set their sights on Mel Brooks and his award winning film “Blazing Saddles”. Those of you who saw it, and likely not many haven’t, know its contents. I won’t hash it out for the four or so people who haven’t seen the flick but just know it’s a parody on racism set in cowboy times.

It’s a ridiculous assumption to think Mel Brooks, a brilliant film producer, is a racist. In fact he is a Jew and made another film just as controversial called “The Producers” which takes a similar tact on the Nazi regime. And to destroy or not air the film or even protest it is another in many slippery slopes those that advocate such things are going down.

That the social warriors of correctness continue their zero tolerance practices against anything they find offensive, the irony and contradiction is too funny for words. Actually it’s not funny at all.

Considering all the works of art and books that the Nazi’s burned and destroyed, it’s a sick twist on life that those trying to preserve their so called perfect view of America, in aiming for a world with no references to intolerance to be left standing, that in course of their self-administered “purification” of America, they are not only wiping clean some of its history, they are acting a lot like the subjects they so abhor in the two Mel Brooks films.

Think that ever dawned on them? Not likely. They’re too busy trying to find more examples of intolerance that they can’t tolerate.

The Addams Family

Featuring the Voices of: Oscar Isaac, Charlize Theron, and Chloe Grace Moretz. Rated: PG.

Runtime 1 hour, 27 minutes

A Macabre family is driven from their homeland by a frightened populace and find respite by infesting an abandoned insane asylum. Through the years the family settle into a routine of casual torture and attempted murder, said routine is interrupted when a new town is built in the idyllic vision of a reality TV, home designer.

The Addams Family, earns two out of five, Sword Dancing Monkeys. The story seems to be written more as a sight gag film than a fully realized premise. The animation is crisp in its style and reveals an interesting palate. The voice acting is top notch larynx acrobatic gold.

The Addams Family, is a fun film to see at home after it is released to streaming and video, not so much worth the price of a ticket to see on the big screen. However, if you are a fan of the TV show, don’t listen to me go and watch what you want and enjoy, or else...

State Auditor Adds to Marysville's Woes

Debt burden, pension obligations / funding, future pension costs, OPEB – other post-employment benefits funding. The city was “moderate risk” in general fund reserves and revenue trends, and pension costs. It was “low risk” in liquidity and OPEB obligations.

Yuba City was ranked at 26 in overall risk. Compton achieved the number one spot for most “fiscally challenged” cities and was noted by Auditor Howle for a lack of transparency.

Marysville residents are irritated with paying an additional 1% sales tax, higher gas taxes and DMV fees with no benefits. For example, all SB1 road improvements are occurring in adjacent jurisdictions (Linda, Olivehurst, Yuba County foothills, Yuba City, Sutter County), everywhere but Marysville.

And finally, Marysville residents pay triple the cost for water compared to Linda, Olivehurst and Yuba City. The service rate starts off higher then there is a premium for going over your use-budget and finally a charge because customers are not consuming sufficient water to provide California Water Service enough profit.

The Marysville management philosophy of a path to financial health seems to be raise taxes and fees, incur more debt and increase the size of government while making one poor decision after another.

THINK About It!

Pelosi Refused to Read Trump's Letter to Erdogan ... Then the Three Amigos Walked Out

Pelosi refused to read Trump's letter to Erdogan...then the Three Amigos walked out!

The Three Amigos, House Speaker Pelosi, Senate Majority Leader Chuck Schumer and Majority Whip Steny Hoyer had an abrupt press conference after they walked out of a meeting at the White House on the Turkey-Kurd problem in the Mid-East.

Speaker Pelosi summed up the gathering as an opportunity for the president to have a “Meltdown”... and that's the reason for leaving the meeting. Representative Kevin McCarthy, House Minority Speaker, had a totally different story to tell on Laura Ingraham's Fox News show that same night, November 16, 2019, in part:

INGRAHAM: The Democrats can dish it out but they can't take it. Wow. I was expecting one of them to go like the Three Stooges. All right, joining me now the other side of the story, House Minority Leader Kevin McCarthy. All right, Congressman you were in the meeting. Accurate description.

REP. KEVIN MCCARTHY, R-CALIF.: Not at all. You know the most interesting part. They left the meeting. Other Democrats stayed and we had the most normal meeting you could ever have. It was productive with the General, the Joint Chiefs, the Secretary of Defense and the President talking about how do we keep the homeland safe.

INGRAHAM: Tell us what happened.

MCCARTHY: The President starts out and he provides the letter that he sent to the President of Turkey Erdogan. Very strong letter not to go into this area, as he passes it around, he starts with me, we hand it to every leader. You know what Speaker Pelosi did. She doesn't read it, she turns it over flat to show in the President's face, she's not going to read his letter.

Then she starts to smile. The President calls her out, “Nancy. Why are you laughing? This is a serious item.” The General, the Joint Chief tells how he recommended to the President that he removed some of our men because they were in danger. He didn't want them to be harmed. We've got the Vice President over in Turkey trying to get a ceasefire and everything they care about is impeachment.

INGRAHAM: They were looking for a fight coming in. When I saw those three come out to the cameras. Literally, that was like the Three Stooges.

MCCARTHY: They meet beforehand, and they say the exact same thing. When they'd ask the President a question, the Secretary of Defense goes, I had that. No, the President has to answer. And the President goes to answer - it was so amazing. I've never seen this.

INGRAHAM: But Trump has been listening to them, jaw boning about him for months and months. That's two, or three years now. I mean they're liars. He's this. He's Russian asset. I mean these have said the most hateful horrible things about him and he's supposed to just sit there and say, how the grand-kids, Nancy? How's San Francisco? How's Paul? How are they all doing?

All right Congressman, here's what your colleague Steny Hoyer, one of the three amigos said about your characterization of the meeting today.

HOYER: I worked closely with Mr. McCarthy and I tried to be constructive. I think many times he tries to be constructive, but I don't consider him an objective source of information on President Trump.

INGRAHAM: So, Americans shouldn't consider you objective, but the media should just lap up anything they say because they would never ever mischaracterize.

MCCARTHY: The idea that Schiff lied to the American public that he had proof beyond circumstantial. These people are infatuated. They're fixated on impeaching this President instead of worrying about fixing our problems. You would be appalled.

INGRAHAM: I didn't see one person on that debate stage last night and I think they know it. They've got to try to remove him from office. They know they're not going to win this election. I don't care. I'm just going to keep saying it. I think they know. And they have to come out of meeting saying, well, it was a meltdown, it was a meltdown. How many times has she said that? Back in May, they said, it was a meltdown.

MCCARTHY: This is the important part. Who is the leader? The president is the person who stayed in the room and had a discussion.

INGRAHAM: Yes.

MCCARTHY: The people who left the room are the ones who can't handle it. If you're going to have an exchange of ideas, but you can't handle it, you get up and walk out.

INGRAHAM: The walk-out was planned. It's like the kids who wanted a new candy machine in the cafeteria, we're going to walk out, we didn't get the candy machine. That's exactly what's going on here.

MCCARTHY: This isn't the first time she's done it. This is pattern behavior. And when she left, she made a statement that was like threatening the President. And I believe -- I took it about an impeachment --

INGRAHAM: What did she say?

MCCARTHY: She said, “You just watch what we'll do.” You could see it in her eyes. And I took that to mean that you watch what we do about impeachment.

INGRAHAM: Don't mess with granny. Don't mess with granny. She's mad.

MCCARTHY: Yes. And she's trying to make a determination without having any facts, just as she moved to impeachment inquiry without waiting 48 hours to see the letter to the Turkish President.

INGRAHAM: Was Trump mad about that vote, the Kurd vote?

MCCARTHY: Not at all. He supports it. Remember this is five things in there. The president, I'm sitting in the Oval Office, he says he supports all five. This isn't about the president. The president sent a letter to the president of Turkey and said, “Don't come in this area.” That is exactly what he said.

INGRAHAM: He said he was going to pull these troops out. Why is everyone surprised he wants to pull the troops out. He said he was going to pull the troops. He ran on it, Obama ran on it, and the American people didn't want to go into Syria. That's why Obama didn't go into Syria, they didn't want it.

MCCARTHY: You know what, I was in that same room when President Obama was president. He put a redline, and he said he was really going to -- INGRAHAM: How many of these Democrats who are complaining now complain about that? How many of them are complaining about what's going to happen to the Kurds, they're going to be in jeopardy? And no one ever talks about the poor Christians. They've been completely displaced and subjugated, and no one ever talks about the Christians.

MCCARTHY: You know why they are so shocked? They have a president now who keeps his word. The president likes to joke he kept more promises then he made. But he actually is governing exactly what he said he would do.

Feather River Tea Party Patriots

With Special Guest Speaker Tamika Hamilton

Conservative, Veteran, and Candidate for Congress, CA-03

Yuba City, Ca.

The Feather River Tea Party Patriots announced Tamika Hamilton, a candidate for John Garamendi's CA-03 House of Representatives seat, will be the Special Guest Speaker for their next meeting, Monday, November 4, 2019.

Tamika Hamilton served over 14 years of active duty in the U.S. Air Force. She has been stationed at five different bases and was deployed twice in the Middle East as part of Operation Enduring freedom, the United States Global War on Terrorism. During her 14-year military service, she was awarded several prestigious medals, including the Air Force Achievement Medal, Joint Service Accommodation Medal, Air Force Meritorious Unit Award, and the Air Force Good Conduct Medal.

Two years ago, Tamika chose to become an active Air Force Reservist to spend more time with her family. She and her husband Ray Hamilton live in Dixon, California with their four children. Ray is a U.S. Navy veteran and now serves in the community as a police officer. Both Ray and Tamika are active in their local church and volunteer in their community. Tamika's volunteer experience with homeless veterans inspired her to run for Congress and unseat Socialist/Communist John Garamendi.

"Wouldn't ya know it, my opponent John Garamendi (D-CA) joined his liberal colleagues once again voting to fund medical screenings for illegal aliens over our nation's veterans. Join me in standing up against this insanity." – Tamika Hamilton, The PEOPLE'S Choice for Congress CA-03.

Don't forget – Our regular feature In The News with Paul Preston, Agenda 21 Radio Host and New California State movement President. Paul will follow our Special Guest Speaker and will be discussing events of the day.

Everyone is welcome. There is no membership and no cost to attend. The Feather River Tea Party Patriots meeting starts at 6:30 p.m. sharp and will be held at Crossroads Community Church, 445 B Street, Yuba City. Fishery Plans Should Add Flexibility to Water System

New biological opinions for fish in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta open the way toward additional flexibility in the California water system, according to the California Farm Bureau Federation. CFBF President Jamie Johansson said the opinions released by federal fisheries agencies enhance prior protection for fish while adjusting operation of water projects to improve water supplies.

"Everyone wants to see endangered fish recover," Johansson said. "But the methods of the past haven't worked. Doubling down on those failed methods would make no sense. It's time to try something new, and we're satisfied that the career scientists at the federal agencies have taken the time they need to create well thought-out plans that reflect advances in knowledge acquired during the past 10 years."

Johansson said the biological opinions can lead to progress in restoring balance to California water management.

"We expect these new biological opinions to approach fishery recovery through a variety of tactics, including habitat restoration, improved science, and flexibility in dedicating enough water at the right time to maximize fishery benefits and improve water deliveries to people," he said.

"Narrow solutions based only on water flow mandates have failed to restore fisheries, at great loss of water for people. Water used for environmental purposes should be analyzed for efficiency, just as people are when they water their lawns, run their dishwashers or irrigate their crops," Johansson said.

"Californians face a challenging water future as we seesaw between extreme drought and flood, incorporate new restrictions on groundwater and work to accommodate a growing population while enhancing the environment and sustaining agricultural production," he said. "We hope these new biological opinions will move California toward those goals, and that state and federal leaders will work together in pursuing them."

Federal agencies update biological opinions for delta fish

New biological opinions for fish in the Sacramento-San Joaquin Delta should add flexibility to the state's water system, according to the California Farm Bureau Federation. Federal agencies announced completion of the opinions Tuesday, affecting operations of water projects in the delta. California Farm Bureau President Jamie Johansson said the opinions enhance existing protection for fish while adjusting water-project operations to improve supplies.

Congressional subcommittee discusses farming technology

California farmers and ranchers stand ready to adopt new technology, according to congressional testimony--especially if it's readily available, scientifically tested and affordable. Speaking Tuesday to a congressional subcommittee on behalf of the California Farm Bureau Federation, Fresno County farmer Don Cameron recommended continued investment in federal cost-share programs, and urged flexibility in applying new technology to California's diverse farming environment.

Processing tomato harvest heads to finish line

As farmers finish their harvest of processing tomatoes, they report their crops will be smaller than anticipated. The California Tomato Growers Association says late-season rain and hail contributed to reduced yields of processing tomatoes, which are used to make ketchup, sauces and other products. That will likely reduce inventories of tomato products, and encourage planting of more tomatoes next year.

California Farm Bureau celebrates centennial

The state's largest farm group, the California Farm Bureau Federation, turns 100 years old Wednesday. It was founded Oct. 23, 1919, when delegates from 32 county Farm Bureaus met in Berkeley. The organization has since grown to 53 county Farm Bureaus representing all forms of agriculture throughout the state. Farm Bureau leaders gathered in Sacramento Tuesday to mark the centennial and dedicate the organization's new offices.

BALD MOUNTAIN NURSERY

6195 BALD MOUNTAIN ROAD • BROWNS VALLEY, CA • 530-743-4856

The past month of October has taken us from the extreme heat of summer to the much cooler temperatures that usher in the lovely fall season. The fall season can be quite beautiful as leaves on many deciduous trees and plants turn various colors before falling to the ground. It is a great time to go on a nice ride to the higher foothills and enjoy all of the color show. The downside is that most folks don't want their lawns and flowerbeds littered with all these leaves – time to get out the lawn rakes and leaf blowers!. There are a few other things to be done, too.

There is a new thing to keep in mind as we head into fall. The power shut offs when the dry north wind comes up. Be sure to water your plants before the power is turned off so they have a good soak to get through the few days without stress. If you rely on your well for watering your landscape, it's going to be a good practice to get into when this happens.

There is one chore that needs to be done at this time of the year. It will need to be done three times this fall and is referred to as "dormant spraying" since it needs to be done when fruit trees are bare of leaves. The three times are late November (Thanksgiving), late December (Christmas), and, mid February (Valentine's Day). Referring to the holidays makes the timing a bit easier to remember. This spraying is done to prevent some fungal infestations that are prevalent at that time of the year. If all the leaves have not fallen off the trees, they can probably be knocked off with a stick, or blown off. Any debris that might have collected under the trees should be cleared away. Do the spraying on a day that is dry – no rain or thick fog to dilute the spray. Spray them as thoroughly as possible, including the cleaned up soil at the base of the trees. Sometimes it is hard to find a good day due to the winter weather. Just do the best you can, but do try to get it done.

If basins had been created at the base of the trees to provide irrigation water for the trees during the hot summer, cut an opening on a side of the basin when the rains start. That will allow the rain water to drain, preventing a slow draining puddle that remains and could possibly cause root rot should we have a very wet winter.

It is still a good time to plant winter vegetables. The season is still warm enough to get them in and get them going before the cold weather arrives. If you are going to plant them, do it soon.

It is nice to have color in the yard during the winter days. There is still time to plant some winter annuals to add something bright and pretty in the yard. When choosing what to plant, don't pass up white flowers. They add brightness and tend to set off the colors of the blue and darker colors that were selected. The planting of these should make some pretty additions to the yard.

It should be done soon in order to give them time to gain a good root system in order to withstand the colder weather as we reach the coldest part of winter. Pansies and violas are very nice and durable for that use – the secret is to do it soon. If done too late the plants may survive the winter but not gain the size to do much blooming until the weather begins to warm up for spring. It is too bad to miss the color that might have been enjoyed all winter because of procrastination.

This is the time to plant sweet peas for their lovely colored sweet smelling flowers next spring. It is time for planting edible peas, as well. Both pod peas and snap peas. Enjoy our transition into the fall weather.

"The Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks"

The Elks was founded in 1868 in New York City under the name "Jolly Corks" by 15 actors and entertainers. The purpose was to promote and practice the four cardinal virtues, Charity, Justice, Brotherly Love and Fidelity. And also to promote the welfare and enhance the happiness of members; to quicken the spirit of American Patriotism and cultivate good fellowship.

The original Elks building in Marysville was built in 1902. There have been several locations that have not survived. This talk will be held at the present building near Ellis Lake and include a walking tour of the Elks Lodge and its history. Light refreshments will be served. The full tour requires walking up and down stairs.

HOW DO I PREPARE FOR A PUBLIC SAFETY POWER SHUTOFF?

WHAT EVERY PG&E CUSTOMER NEEDS TO KNOW

Do you have an emergency kit with nonperishable food, one gallon of water per person per day, medications, flashlights and batteries?

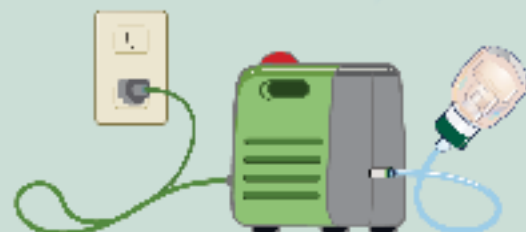

Public Safety Power Shutoff, or PSPS, is a safety program that proactively shuts off electric power lines when there is an elevated fire risk.

All PG&E customers should be prepared for possible power outages that could last for multiple days.

If power is temporarily turned off, customers should consider these questions:

Do you know how to open your garage door manually?

If anyone in your family depends on electricity for their medical needs, have you made preparations?

Do you have a personal safety plan for all members of your family, including your pets?

If you own a generator, is it safe to operate?

Are your mobile phones fully charged? Do you have a portable back-up charger or a solar charger?

To learn more ways to prepare, visit safetyactioncenter.pge.com.
