Making a Difference

by Rod Hisken

Jeff Magill

Life can be quite an adventure. Many of the decisions we make determine what branch of the road we take. Sometimes the consequences are intended, and sometimes the results are unintended.

As a retired school principal and a veteran of a few thousand speeches at schools across the west and Canada representing NASA talking about the Aerospace Sciences, I have acquired some biased perceptions. Some of these views will have some agreement and others will not.

I deeply feel I know quality education when I see it.

One of the trails I could have followed when Clair Engle offered me West Point or Annapolis right out of high school would have had a dramatic influence as my life unfolded. However, I chose to be a school principal with a few acres of land as had Mr. Thompson my 6th, 7th, and 8th grade teacher, principal, and mentor.

James claimed that "The best use of our lives is to share it with those who outlast us." Many philosophers espoused about Utopia on earth. The Bible suggests it doesn't exist on earth. However, performing a task of our choosing and causing a positive influence on others is a great blessing.

There are perhaps millions of persons who go to college to become a teacher. Several hundred thousand each year get their credentials. Many of those interview and secure a contract. Thousands excitedly step foot in their classroom. Unfortunately, many leave after

by Lou Binninger

In the 1950s - 60s, California schools were tops in the nation. Today, California is a habitual underperformer, way below the national average, a bottom feeder of the industry. How the mighty have fallen.

Politicians and union raconteurs say it's all about the money. Government schools need more money and better facilities they say. And, schools are faced with poor children, addict parents, absentee fathers and non-English speaking households to overcome. Good teachers, but lousy parents they say.

In 1997, Doug Escheman, became principal of Mary Covillaud Elementary School founded in 1858. Located in downtown Marysville, Escheman discovered the K-5 school performing horribly. In math and reading, only 1 of 7 students functioned at grade level.

Even in 1999 on the state Academic Performance Index (API), of all state government schools, 10 being the highest, Covillaud ranked a 2. Teachers said it's due to all these incompetent kids, parents and poverty. However, when compared with schools of the same demographics, Covillaud still ranked 2. Covillaud scored 536 on the API when good would be 800.

Talk of the school was full of justifications for failure. Poor kids, pathetic parents, pitiful performance. What would you do if you were principal?

An old paperback, "No Excuses – Lessons from 21 High Performance High Poverty Schools," sits on the corner of Escheman's desk. It's been there for years.

Contrary to state and district policy Escheman moved Spanish-speaking students from segregated classrooms to learn with other children. Today, more than 45% of his students are Latino with about 37% white, 7.4% multi-ethnic and 5.6% Black.

Yes, there is American-style poverty, some homeless kids and a transient population. The school distributes $15-30 thousand in clothes to students each year. However, the school is now rich with family-building, student-encouraging extra-curricular activities. Covillaud students are now succeeding.

Covillaud's mission statement today is "All learners will learn." In other words, no child will be left behind, for real, not rhetoric. Twice each day, for 25 minutes, teachers divert from their planned curriculum to focus on where each student is not thriving. Those weak spots are corrected. Those on task receive enrichment instruction.

Utility Times Are Changing

by Lou Binninger

PG and E once was popular around Yuba-Sutter Counties. Most people knew the local manager. The company was very involved in the community similar to Recology (Waste Management Company) today. Then, like other large corporations they reorganized how they did business and became more aloof from customers.

Though the state has a glut of oil, natural gas and hydro-power, utility rates went way up rather than down. State global warming regulations added to the pay-more-for-less utility world. Today, some surveys show PG and E rates 60% higher than the national average.

Then PG and E got into social engineering. In November 2008 there was a measure on the ballot to create an amendment to the State Constitution stating that marriage is a union between a man and a woman. It passed with 52.24% of vote. Earlier in May of that year a majority of Supreme Court Justices had ruled that same-sex marriage was a constitutionally-protected right in California.

California first explicitly defined marriage in 1977. The Cali-

Strawberry Valley First Snow 2019

Strawberry Valley, Ca.

Strawberry Valley in northern Yuba County is 3,750' above sea level. It has an annual rainfall between 80 and 86 inches and annual snowfall of 94". On Sunday January 20, 2019 they received their first snowfall of the year, 4" of snow, and year-to-date 39.76" of rainfall.

Three and a half weeks earlier On Jan. 3, California Dept. of Water Resources conducted its first snow survey of 2019 at Phillips Station, near Lake Tahoe. The survey recorded 25.5 inches of snow depth and a snow water equivalent of 9 inches, about 80 percent of average for the site. Water Resources conducts five snow surveys each winter – near the first of January, February, March, April and May – all at Phillips Station. California began 2019 with lower-than-average snowpack measurements — just 67 percent of the year-to-date average.

"On average, the snowpack supplies about 30 percent of California's water needs as it melts in the spring and early summer," said Michael Anderson, a climatologist with Water Resources. "The greater the snowpack water content, the greater the likelihood California's reservoirs will receive ample runoff as the snowpack melts to meet the state's water demand in the summer and fall."

So far this year, as of January 28th, Strawberry Valley has received 9" more rain than the same time period in 2018. California's weather is very unpredictable, you may have a drought one year and above average rain fall the following year.

Though many consider the worst of California's drought to be in the past, forecasters warn that the Central Valley will need several average-to-wet years to fully recover. "We have not fully recovered from the drought in terms of groundwater recharge," Borgioli said. "Some areas of the Valley have experienced 5 to 6 feet of subsidence."

Next snow survey is early February.

Artist in Residence Program

Meet the Artists at a Public Reception

Marysville, Ca.
 What does it mean to be an artist in residence? In some cases, an artist residency is literally a place where artists go to produce work for an extended amount of time. The National Park Service, for example, has an artist in residence program at most of its parks that cover all genres of art. Sometimes residencies require the artist to participate in programming and present lectures and they can even provide time and space for artists to work.
 Yuba Sutter Arts' Artist in Residence program is still in its infancy, however. Begun in 2018, the program is designed to encourage artist-to-artist communication and collaboration in curating shows, events and ongoing programs in Yuba-Sutter. It also provides a stipend to local artists to help support their own work.

 The first three Yuba Sutter Arts Artists in Residence are poet, Marcelo Hernandez Castillo, musician, Gay Galvin, and visual artist, Lila Rivera. You can meet these artists when they are introduced to the community at a free Meet the Artists Reception at the Burrows Theater at Yuba Sutter Arts on Saturday, February 2 from 11-1. The address is 630 E Street in Marysville. A continental style brunch will be served. Each artist will talk about their personal journey and their inspiration and share some samples of their artistic work.

Marcelo Hernandez Castillo is a poet, essayist, translator, and immigration advocate. He is the author of Cenzontle, chosen by Brenda Shaughnessy as the winner of the 2017 A. Poulin, Jr. prize and one of NPR's "Good Reads" of 2018. Cenzontle maps a parallel between the landscape of the border and the landscape of sexuality through surreal and deeply imagistic poems. His memoir, Children of the Land is forthcoming from Harper Collins in 2020 and explores the ideas of separation from deportation, trauma, and mobility between borders. Marcelo is the lead teaching artist for this year's Poetry Out Loud program in Yuba and Sutter County Schools.

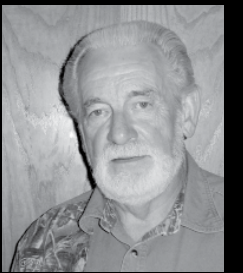

Gay Galvin has been playing piano since she was six. Trained in classical and jazz styles, she has worked in big bands, musicals, jazz trios and various classical ensembles. Married to singer/songwriter, Tom Galvin, the couple has performed at the Burrow Theaters in concert as a duo. Gay has performed both solo and in various ensembles throughout the region including concerts at Yuba College and in productions at The Acting Company. She teaches classical/ Suzuki piano and jazz/improv in her studio in Marysville and leads the monthly "Third Sunday Jazz Jam" at Yuba Sutter Arts. Gay is the Director of the Yuba Sutter Youth Choir.

Lila Rivera is a working artist. She has curated shows at various locations in Sacramento as well as at Yuba Sutter Arts. Lila has extensive contacts in the artist community, both locally and regionally. She has worked as an art teacher for Twin Rivers Charter School and as a Families Learning in Play teaching artist for the Sutter Children and Families Commission. For the past two years, Lila has curated the Celebration of Souls - Day of the Dead event at Yuba Sutter Arts and in 2018, began the "For the Love of Frida" art and culture show. Lila is married to artist Randy Rivera and they have a son named Kahlo.

FISHIN' TALK

by Boots Johnson

Dan "Boots" Johnson has fished and hunted in California for more than 75 years. Anyone with questions or comments can email him at boots3@syix.com

My son Ted and I ventured up to Hammond Grove and left the Pickup at the last parking area. We dropped down to the Yuba River, along a marked trail, to investigate the condition of the Yuba River in regards to steelhead fishing. The water was up bit and was running on the murky side. This area would be a good bet for trout or steelhead. Both swim in this river. The rainbow trout is considered to be a steelhead when it reached 16 inches. In addition, both wild and planted fish are here. The wild fish are protected and cannot be taken at any time, but must be released immediately. You can tell a wild fish from a hatchery fish by the small fin on the fishes back near the tail. If the small membrane is clipped and therefore does not exist it is a hatchery fish. By the same token fish with the fin intact are wild and must be released. At the end of the last parking lot are signs explaining the rules and regulations, including barbless hooks and no bait allowed along with sections of the Yuba River which have different regulations.

Driving into Hammond Grove past the neat barbeque area and seeing Dry Creek and what was left of the concrete swimming pool wall brought back many memories at the park long before Yuba County decided to clean it up and make it a day use park. I can recall the swimming parties, the picnics and the beer busts which took place back in the 40-s and 50s. It was not unusual to see large crowds of people, most of them party goers, but a few were fishing.

I have fished Dry Creek over the years past and have had success catching a variety of fish, including catfish, smallmouth bass, northern pike, and all varieties of pan fish such as crappie, bluegill, and sun perch and so on. In fact, back in the 40's the stream had so many catfish which ran in schools you could see them in the clear water swimming in the current, traveling from one deep hole to another. It was a beautiful sight to see.

 Upstream from Hammond Grove there were several pools which ran up to ten feet deep. This was always the place to go to catch catfish for supper. However, over the years, including the floods in 1950, 1955, 1986 and 2005 the deep pools in Dry Creek gradually filled in and changed the natural flow of the stream.
 Closing thought: "Sometimes it is best to just be quiet and listen."

CalRTA touring the Silver Dollar

Touring Historic 1st Street

by Shirley Barajas

Marysville, Ca.

On Wednesday January 16, 2019 the CalRTA (California Retired Teachers Association) group enjoyed touring the Historic 1st Street of Marysville. For many of the group, it was the first time see the up-stairs of the Silver Dollar Saloon, the Bok Kai Temple, the Chinese School Museum and the newest business, The Local Spicery. The group enjoyed lunch at "Szechwan Restaurant" and after lunch several members of the group dropped in to see another new interesting shop/gallery, "Whatnot", that has renovated the space which was once the "Kings Inn", a tour of the basement was a bonus which will soon be the Speakeasy Space. Thanks to each of the tour guides that made the tours so exciting.

There are 86 Divisions of CalRTA (California Retired Teachers Association) in the state. Division 53 serves Yuba, Sutter, and Colusa Counties which has 260 members. They always encourage all retirees to join their association. They meet for lunch and business the second Wednesday of October, December, February, April and June. In addition, members enjoy five or six day-trips to museums, galleries and events. CalRTA's mission is to protect and advocate for retired and active educators' pensions and other retirement benefits and to support education in our communities. Covillaud's Escherman Era

Escherman says his school is now a Professional Learning Community (PLC). The late education guru Richard DuFour stated that initiating and sustaining a PLC "requires the school staff to focus on learning rather than teaching, work collaboratively on matters related to learning, and hold itself accountable for the kind of results that fuel continual improvement."

That's Mary Covillaud today. What counts is what is learned, not what a school district says is taught. Teachers understand what students are to know at each grade level and then are expected to get them there.

Escherman says that great teachers have been attracted to the school wanting to do what they love, see children thrive and be a part of a successful education mission.

Mary Covillaud has been Marysville Joint Unified School District's best kept secret. By 2002 the school ranked with top schools but did not submit an application for state recognition. Covillaud was noted as a California Distinguished School in 2006. Between 1999 and today scores have continued to rise.

In 2018-19, Covillaud was recognized as one of only four schools north of Sacramento to be a Distinguished School and scored the highest of the four. Covillaud is also an Honor Role School meaning it is among the top 25% of all schools in the state.

Escherman says that incorporating weekly Character First training beginning in 1999 helped students focus, behave and learn. Discipline issues are minimal with only 2 students suspended so far this year.

Of the school's 510 students more than 40% have transferred in from other areas and districts. They didn't come for the facilities. Covillaud has the 2nd worst infrastructure in the district including numerous stress fractures in its newest old building.

On November 4, 2008 district voters agreed to borrow $47 million to construct new buildings throughout the district. Covillaud parents were promised a new playground, a 2-story classroom, an administrative office modernization and new parking lots. Although classrooms, gyms and playgrounds were installed in school after school, Covillaud was ignored.

In fact, you will find no 2018-19 Distinguished School banner in the District boardroom or a news release or proclamation celebrating the extraordinary accomplishment of the teachers and support personnel of Covillaud.

The Escherman era is nearly over. The question is how long will it take for the school to resemble the rest of the underperforming district when he retires. In the meantime, parents count your blessings with the Covillaud School staff.

54th Annual Colusa Farm Show February 5-7, 2019 Making a Difference five years. Many districts have excited teachers doing great things with the students, some operate in a vacuum with the door closed so as to not be chastised by the non-performers. Rarely, there is the one who excels, is out in the open, and changing lives of young people.

Wheatland High School had one such until he recently retired, Jeff Magill.

Jeff went to Cal Poly and entered Agricultural Education at the suggestion of a member of that great school's staff. He began teaching in 1981 and has performed at four different schools. He was given an old tractor. Jeff is a skilled Mechanic and Welder.

Mr. Magill felt a Vintage Tractor offered an outstanding medium to teach how things work. They are simple, work well, and open a spectrum of possibilities of skills to be learned. The farm mechanic program has been involved in the restoration of approximately 40 units. Most have been auctioned at the Yuba Sutter Fair and the money went to future needs of the classes. Jeff continues to be involved one day a week at the school shop and teaches a night school education class on welding. His skill and enthusiasm has earned the support of the Vintage Tractor Hobby members and many have donated tractors, parts, paint, tires, and other needed ingredients for the completion of the various projects. He has given the gift to numerous students of how to diagnosis and fix, rather than how to change parts.

Jeff has been an outstanding influence on the lives of young people and many are blessed to have been enrolled in his programs. I am now a close friend of one of his products. My acquaintance was a slender, tall, quiet type young man who went on to a quick graduation from Sac State Mechanical Engineering and is now employed as an engineer at a local farm equipment manufacturing company. He recently was sponsored by the company in a sophisticated programming effort for a LASER cutting tool. Lucas Skinner we are very proud of you and hope not to embarrass you.

What we leave is far more important than what we take.

USDA also extended a deadline for farmers affected by retaliatory tariffs to apply for aid.

Cling-peach farmers diversify to compete

Subsidized imports from China continue to encroach on markets for California canned peaches, leading to what a grower group called the state's smallest cling-peach crop in modern history. The U.S. imposed higher tariffs on Chinese canned peaches last year, but the California Canning Peach Association says that led to a spike in import volume, as buyers rushed to beat the tariff increase. Peach growers have been removing trees and diversifying crops to stay in business.

Studies show grazing, other tools can slow fire threat

Livestock grazing, prescribed burns and other land-management tools could reduce wildfire risks and bring other benefits, according to presentations at a "rangeland summit" meeting. Experts gathered in Stockton to discuss the role of livestock grazing in preventing wildfire. A University of California land-management specialist said her studies find that regular grazing, combined with other treatments, proved effective in managing potential wildfire fuels.

Wildlife authorities battle nutria infestation

Close to 400 nutria have been trapped in California since the invasive rodent entered the state last year. Most have been found in Merced County, with multiple nutria also trapped in San Joaquin and Stanislaus counties. Nutria can destroy crops and other vegetation, and can cause flooding by burrowing into levees. State wildlife officials say they're optimistic about chances for eradicating the pests, and say they've had good cooperation from affected landowners.

Recycling Industries Use Permit Appeal

Yuba City, Ca. – On January 15, 2019, the City Council considered an appeal to the Planning Commission's decision to amend a use permit of a Large Value Transfer Station for Recycling Industries (RI) at 140 Epley Drive in Yuba City. RI submitted an application to the City that would have significantly increased the amount of material that could be accepted at their proposed facility. On January 15th, the City Council provided direction to staff to move the project forward which would allow RI to expand from three to four acres but places additional restrictions on the facility which are currently not in place. Below is a table that briefly describes the current use permit, RI proposals and the direction provided by the City Council. The Upside Starring: Kevin Hart, Bryan Cranston and Nicole Kidman. Rated: PG-13, Runtime: 2 hrs, 6 minutes.

A parolee searches for a job and happens to fall into a job interview that requires him to care for a quadriplegic and not be the janitor of the building as he expected. The unlikely pair forge a friendship that makes their lives more fulfilling.

The Upside, earns five out of five, Paragliding Monkeys. Based on a true story, this is a heartwarming tale that has the inevitable troubling second act and the reconciling third act that gives you hope for the world as you walk out into a dark rainy night. The acting is good. Bryan Cranston continues to nail every role he is in and Kevin Heart is working out his acting chops. He is more character than, Kevin Heart, now and regardless of what he is in I will spend cashy money to see it. The Upside, is a fun film and well worth the trip to see on the big screen.

Day by Day By Retired Vet

We walk down a road with many snares,
Is there anyone out there who really cares?
Viewing the handicapped, homeless and poor,
Just acknowledging their presence we've become bored!

The gangs are alive and ruling our streets,
Victims lay dead beneath cold, bloody sheets.
The Law and Justice, these two shall never meet,
Before the paperwork's done, they're back on the street!

A drug addict OD's and gives up the ghost,
Sally gets raped and a child is abused.
George is still sitting behind his oval desk,
Do you think he's worried about our risks?

Drugs can be bought any time of the day,
Like women, weapons, and politicians; what can I say?
The sun still shines and the moon will set;
History tends to repeat itself... I bet!

As it was in the days of Lot and Noah, so shall it be again!
I do hope that you appreciate the Truth in it?

THINK About It!

President Trump's Proposal on the Table!

Our local daily paper hasn't given hardly any space in their reporting of President Trump's nationwide speech this recent Saturday, January 12th, on his efforts to end the government shutdown and solve the humanitarian crisis on the southern border. Here, in part, unedited, are vital parts of his speech:

"Just a short time ago, I had the honor of presiding over the swearing in of five new great American citizens. It was a beautiful ceremony and a moving reminder of our nation's proud history of welcoming legal immigrants from all over the world into our national family. I told them that the beauty and majesty of citizenship is that it draws no distinctions of race or class or faith or gender or background. All Americans whether first generation or tenth generation are bound together in love and loyalty, friendship and affection. We're all equal. We are one team and one people proudly saluting one great American flag.

We believe in a safe and lawful system of immigration, one that upholds our laws, our traditions and our most cherished values. Unfortunately, our immigration system has been badly broken for a very long time. Over the decades many presidents and many lawmakers have come and gone, and no real progress has been made on immigration. We are now living with the consequences -- and they are tragic -- brought about by decades of political stalemate, partisan gridlock, and national neglect.

There is a humanitarian and security crisis on our southern border that requires urgent action. Thousands of children are being exploited by ruthless "coyotes" and vicious cartels and gangs. One in three women is sexually assaulted on the dangerous journey north. In fact, many loving mothers give their young daughters birth control pills for the long journey up to the United States because they know they may be raped or sexually accosted or assaulted. Nearly 50 migrants a day are being referred for urgent medical care. Vast quantities of lethal narcotics are flooding through our border and into our communities, including meth, cocaine, heroin and fentanyl.

Drugs kill 78,000 Americans a year and cost our society in excess of $700 billion. Heroin alone kills 300 Americans a week; 90 percent of which comes across our southern border.

Illegal immigration reduces wages and strains public services. The lack of border control provides a gateway, and a very wide and open gateway, for criminals and gang members to enter the United States, including the criminal aliens who murdered a brave California police officer only a day after Christmas. I've gotten to know and love angel moms, dads and family who lost loved ones to people illegally in our country. (Writer's note: Numerous Angel Moms recently waited in Nancy Pelosi's office lounge... but she wouldn't come out to see them)

I want this to end; it's got to end now. These are not talking points. These are the heartbreaking realities that are hurting innocent, precious human beings every single day on both sides of the border. As a candidate for president, I promised I would fix this crisis, and I intend to keep that promise one way or the other. Our immigration system should be the subject of pride, not a source of shame, as it is all over the world.

Our immigration system should be the envy of the world, not a symbol of disunity and dysfunction. The good news is these problems can all be solved, but only if we have the political courage to do what is just and what is right. Both sides in Washington must simply come together, listen to each other, put down their armor, build trust, reach across the aisle and find solutions.

It is time to reclaim our future from the extreme voices who fear compromise and demand open borders, which means drugs pouring in, human trafficking and a lot of crime. That is why I am here today, to break the logjam and provide Congress with a path forward to end the government shutdown and solve the crisis on the southern border.

The radical left can never control our borders. I will never let it happen. Walls are not immoral. In fact, they are the opposite of immoral, because they will save many lives and stop drugs from pouring into our country. Our plan includes the following: $800 million in urgent humanitarian assistance; $805 million for drug detection technology to help secure our ports of entry. An additional 2,750 border agents and law enforcement professionals, 75 new immigration judge teams to reduce the court backlog of - believe it or not - almost 900,000 cases. However, the whole concept of having lengthy trials, for anyone who sets one foot in our country unlawfully, must be changed by Congress.

This includes a new system to allow Central American minors to apply for asylum in their home countries, and reform to promote family reunification for unaccompanied children, thousands of whom wind up on our border doorstep. To physically secure our border, the plan includes $5.7 billion for a strategic deployment of physical barriers, or a wall. This is not a 2,000 mile concrete structure from sea to sea. These are steel barriers in high priority locations.

Much of the border is already protected by natural barriers, such as mountains and water. We already have many miles of barrier, including 115 miles that we are currently building or under contract. It will be done quickly. Our request will add another 230 miles this year in the areas our border agents most urgently need.

A steel barrier will help us stop illegal immigration, while safely directing commerce to our lawful ports of entry. Many of these security ideas have been proposed by Democrats themselves, and all of them have been supported by Democrats in the past, including a physical barrier wall or fence.

Furthermore, in order to build the trust and goodwill necessary to begin real immigration reform, there are two more elements to my plan. Number one is three years of legislative relief for 700,000 DACA recipients brought here unlawfully by their parents at a young age many years ago. This extension will give them access to work permits, social security numbers, and protection from deportation, most importantly.

Secondly, our proposal provides a three-year extension of temporary protected status or TPS. This means that 300,000 immigrants whose protected status is facing expiration will now have three more years of certainty, so that Congress can work on a larger immigration deal, which everybody wants -- Republicans and Democrats. And our farmers and vineyards won't be affected because lawful and regulated entry into our country will be easy and consistent. That is our plan. Border security, DACA, TPS, and many other things -- straightforward, fair, reasonable, and common sense, with lots of compromise.

This plan solves the immediate crisis -- and it is a horrible crisis. It is a humanitarian crisis like we rarely see in our country. And it provides humanitarian relief, delivers real border security and immediately reopens our federal government.

Whatever we do. I can promise you this: I will never forget that my first duty and ultimate loyalty is to you, the American people. Any reforms we make to our immigration system will be designed to improve your lives, make your communities safer, and make our nation more prosperous and secure for generations to come.

Thank you, and God bless America. Thank you."

It is amazing to see so many commercials demeaning men, boys and husbands. The commercials are most likely written by some men who have a problem with their own masculinity and by women who subscribe hook line and sinker to toxic feminism. These ads are sending the wrong message to boys and are destined to destroy our future men. Insanity.

Obama can fly $150 billion in the middle of the night to Iran to use to build missiles to kill our friends without Pelosi/Schumer say so. Why can't these brain-dead "leaders" hand over chickenfeed of a few billion for a border wall to make us safe?

In the 1970's the claim of a new Ice Age fell flat, so the lefties went to Global Warming. When that idea proved to be a dud the usual suspects turned to "climate change." Same thing is happening with "bullying." When that term hit a brick wall, it became "toxic masculinity." What is going to be next?

Laws, rules and regulations against sexual harassment have been around since the early 70s, if not earlier. But the House, led by Pelosi and her cronies, last week extended such protection to federal government interns. How nice of them to be decades behind the curve. Will anyone get zapped?

New York Democratic Rep Alexandria Ocasio-Cortez has come under fire for claiming to be a "girl from the Bronx" when she actually grew up in a wealthy suburb in upstate New York. Ocasio-Cortez graduated in 2007 from Yorktown Heights, which is a middle-to-upper class area in Westchester County in upstate New York City. Another image from the alleged yearbook appears to show that Alexandria went by the name "Sandy Ocasio." According to HYPERLINK "https://www.trulia.com/real_estate/10598-Yorktown/" Trulia, the average price of a home in Yorktown goes for $477,000. That's almost half a million dollars for a home, which signifies how nice of an area she grew up in. She's the darling of the poor? Not really. But she is the darling of the ignorant.

The Election Integrity Project CA won a round against the Registrar of Voters of Los Angeles County and the Secretary of State of California. L.A. is forced to remove 1.5 million voters from the "inactive" rolls. No wonder Hillary did so well in California. And the decision also will force the other 57 California counties to do the same purge.

Think carefully about it. Russia donated nothing to the Trump campaign. But they gave $146.6 million to the Clinton Foundation. Now who should be investigated?

What is it with all these billionaire savants? They all trot around the world touting climate change. Jeremy Grantham, "a legendary investor" claims the Earth is experiencing rapidly warming temperatures. Really? Where? Of course he lives a fabulous carbon life, but wants the rest of us in caves.

Newsom is starting off with a bang. He wants to give federal employees affected by the shutdown California Unemployment Insurance, against all the laws, rules and regulations in California jurisprudence. If he does so, he better get it all back when the feds receive their back pay.

Now there is a movie theatre which allows dogs. Maybe that's not so bad. The level of most movies these days makes them appropriate for dogs, whose level of intelligence is said to be that of a two to four year old child.

The California legislature is setting up an office to deal with complaints of sexual harassment and sexual assaults. They are only five decades behind the curve, and they are going to need a major high rise to house all the investigators they will need.

LA school teachers (and soon Oakland) are pounding the picket lines demanding, more and more and more. Even with "more", California schools will still be nearly the basement of success in graduating well-educated children. More money does not mean more success.

Another ignorant actress has opened her mouth without a script. Cynthia Nixon says ICE is a terrorist group. No. Actually the Obama IRS, the Deep State and the most of the FBI are the terrorists. Oh, add to the list, the Hollywood crowd.

How many snowflakes are continuing to flap their lips over climate change being the prime cause of the Camp Fire? There actually are some real culprits, but not CO2 in the atmosphere. Try on some suspects like town planning not considering sound evacuation routes out of the fire-prone area. How about allowing buildings in the middle of flammable brush and trees? How about propane tanks prone to explode? How about electricity brought in with overhead wires? How about environmentalists crushing the attempts to clean up the forest land?

San Fran Nan claims the wall is immoral. Then she is one of the "immoral" folks she complains about. Isn't there a wall (and guards) around her own residence? Why doesn't she "Tear down this wall" as a start to her u-turn to morality?

US networks and members of the mainstream media are taking the position that all major national concerns go directly against American Interests. Our advice? Drop the subscription and change the channel.

Recall how the left promoted the idea that no one has the right to express judgment against anyone? Now this thought process has morphed into hatred and is glorifying incredible violence throughout the country. The "no judgment" movement has washed morality down the sewer. The mainstream media and Hollywood need to do an immediate 180 before we lose the country completely.

Banks can decide not to do business with any person or group who supports the NRA? But a local cake maker can't make a similar decision?

To all snowflakes and Democrats. The Constitution includes the 2nd amendment which guarantees all citizens the right to keep and bear arms. Every law, rule and regulation restricting this right is illegal. If you folks want restrictions, then first remove the 2nd Amendment according to the provisions found in the Constitution. Nope, you won't do that; you now want to eliminate the Constitution completely. With what do you fools think you could replace it with to make things better? Does the phrase "Civil War" ring a familiar bell?

Feather River Tea Party Patriots with Guest Speaker Patrick Dorinson, The Cowboy Libertarian Author, Radio Talk Show Host and Television Commentator

Yuba City, Ca.

The Feather River Tea Party Patriots announced author, radio talk show host, and national television commentator Patrick Dorinson, The Cowboy Libertarian, will be the Special Guest Speaker for their meeting, February 4, 2019.

The Cowboy Libertarian preserves the spirit of the American west, when you are ready to listen! Listen to his perspective on government and what is going on in the world today.

Patrick Dorinson is a political communications strategist, radio talk show host, and commentator who has been on both sides of the aisle and in the aisle itself, having worked over the last 28 years for Republicans and Democrats in both politics and government. He likes to say that "wisdom comes from experience, most of it bad" and like others before him his political and life philosophy has evolved over the years.

Of his political journey he says, "I have chased more false prophets than the ancient Hebrews in the Old Testament", and he has come to the realization that neither mainstream political party is willing or able to "fix what needs fixin." He believes in rugged individualism and self-reliance. He believes that encroaching, intrusive government is the most dangerous threat to our freedom. And he believes that the simple truth that right is right and wrong is wrong. Through it all he has come to consider himself a Libertarian Conservative who believes in limited government in all things and the basic right of all Americans to live their lives as they see fit as long as they abide by the laws of the land. Or put another way, government should keep their hands off the public's wallet and their nose out of folk's private lives. He will be signing his book: "It's Nutt Cuttin' Time America! The Moment of Truth has Arrived."

Don't forget — Our regular feature "In The News" with Paul Preston, Agenda 21 Radio, will follow our Special Guest Speaker. Paul will be discussing events of the day and a recap of the New California State 3rd Constitutional Convention.

There is no membership requirement to attend and everyone is welcome. Doors open at 6:00 pm; meeting begins promptly at 6:30 pm. Come early to register, socialize with like-minded patriots, and get a good seat.

The meeting will be Monday, February 4, 2019, at the Crossroads Community Church, 445 B Street, Yuba City, CA 95991. Contact Larry or Carla at (530) 755-4409.

Cannabis Delivery in California Headed Toward Legal Battle

by Chris Reed a regular contributor to Cal Watchdog.

Reed is an editorial writer for U-T San Diego.

In 2016, many California police chiefs and sheriffs opposed to legalized recreational marijuana use were placated by a provision in Proposition 64 that said local governments would have the right to block recreational sales.

The Ballotpedia overview of Proposition 64 reflected the conventional wisdom at the time it passed: "Local governments were also allowed to completely ban the sale of marijuana from their jurisdictions." The text of the ballot measure stated: "Allows local regulation and taxation of marijuana."

And as CalWatchdog has reported, 80 percent of local governments have declined to authorize the opening of local pot stores.

But last week, the state Office of Administrative Law approved rules crafted by the state Bureau of Cannabis Control that say marijuana sales by delivery services can operate in any community — even if local governments object.

This led to an immediate backlash — and strong hints that the rules will lead to a court fight.

"This decision puts the public safety needs of communities across the state at risk," Carolyn Coleman, executive director of the League of California Cities, said in a statement.

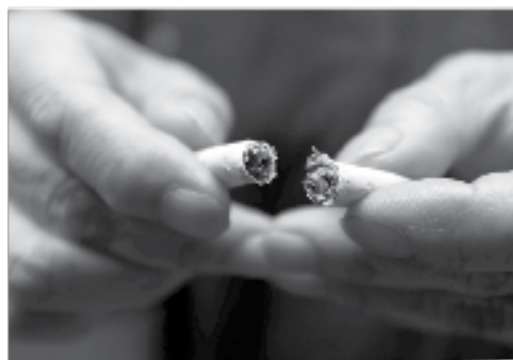

"We are deeply concerned with the adoption of the new cannabis regulations, which allow for the delivery of cannabis anywhere in the state. We are already having trouble enforcing a new and complex industry, and this allowance will only make enforcement even more difficult," California Police Chiefs Association President David Swing told the Sacramento Bee.

Marijuana industry officials disputed the idea that the delivery-anywhere ruling went against the spirit of Proposition 64 or its language. They said the ruling reflected the will of Californians, who approved the measure 57 percent to 43 percent — a 2 million vote cushion.

But even some supporters of Proposition 64 appeared unsure if the cannabis bureau's ruling squared with what the ballot measure said. Assemblyman Ron Bonta, D-Oakland, told the Associated Press that he thought only medicinal marijuana deliveries should be allowed. Bonta thinks clarifying new legislation may be in order.

Even with such legislation, lawsuits over the state regulations appear inevitable. California has decades of history of courts being asked to interpret poorly or vaguely written ballot measures approved by voters.

Utility Times Are Changing

California State Legislature passed a law declaring that marriage is a “personal relation arising out of a civil contract between a man and a woman.”

In 2000, voters passed ballot initiative Proposition 22 with a margin of 61%, formally defining marriage in California as between a man and a woman. Proposition 22 was a statutory change via the initiative process, not a constitutional change.

Then in 2004, San Francisco Mayor (now Governor) Gavin Newsom performed same-sex marriages in his city, which were subsequently judicially annulled. This case, and some others, eventually led to the decision announced on May 15, 2008 of the California Supreme Court, which by a 4-3 vote reversed Proposition 22.

So, in the campaign against the traditional belief of what marriage was PG and E spent $250,000 of ratepayers' money to defeat Proposition 8. The utility monopoly supported same sex marriage.

Let's say that was a blow to PG and E's stellar image for some Californians. Then, September 9, 2010, a natural gas pipeline exploded in San Bruno, CA leveling 35 homes, killing 8 and injuring more than 50. A federal jury found the company guilty of obstructing justice by lying to regulators about its pipeline-testing policy. PG&E was also accused of collaborating with a top state regulator (California Public Utility Commission) to find a judge who would be friendly to the company.

Since then, there have been dozens of horrific fires, hundreds of deaths, hundreds of thousands of acres burned, tens of thousands of structures destroyed, and hundreds of thousands of people displaced. Early indication is that PG and E is at fault. Meantime, customers are hit with high rates, then higher rates to absorb the damage settlements and finally the cost of evacuating and in many cases losing homes and loved ones.

In other utility news Governor Newsom wants to tax drinking water to clean-up some tainted water in a few areas around the state. But Jon Coupal of the Howard Jarvis Taxpayer Association said he thinks improvements for water systems shouldn't be addressed with a new tax when the state is sitting on a $14.8 billion budget surplus.

Speaking of water and taxes, the ballot initiative banned by the board of Yuba County Water Agency was rejected because they say it would have amounted to an unlawful tax on about 100 farmers making millions off selling water. The initiative would have shared some of the revenue collected off Agency water and power sales with all of Yuba County citizens.

Most Yuba County voters wouldn't agree that a few people “own the water” since those making millions didn't produce the water to sell. The farmers / water pumpers along with Agency leaders manipulated control and sales benefits to favor a few. Voters would believe that they indeed are being deprived of their rightful benefit (are being taxed) for corporate welfare parlayed to farmers.

Yuba County voters made the decision over 50-years back to borrow money for Bullards Bar Dam and guaranteed payment of the bonds.

The Agency is rewriting history by downplaying the election to permit the sale of bonds and minimizing the annual transfer of $400,000 or more in property taxes (the people's assets) for 50 years to operate the Agency. The hindsight contrived argument that there was no risk with the bonds since PG and E would get the hydro-power and make the payments is foolish.

PG and E nearly went bankrupt once and probably will now due to negligence and mismanagement. Thankfully, Yuba County dodged a financial bullet by PG and E paying off the bonds in 2016.

The Value of Activism?

The economic benefits of all types of employment can usually be measured in just that way: economically. In other words, how does society benefit from an employment, what does the product or service cost and who is willing to pay for it?

A plumber fixes leaks, a taxi driver gives you a ride and someone who farms provides food to eat. There are other not so quantifiable jobs such as relationship or life coaches, or mentors, but if someone is willing to pay for it, then it has value, and conversely, if someone isn't willing to pay for it, it's not really a vocation.

There are certain things in life that make me scratch my head and certain jobs, if you could call them that, do make me either smirk in laughter or frown in disgust.

On occasion and usually not on an employment site but instead on social media, I see the employment section filled in with the word “activist”.

Now seriously folks, because I understand English I do know what the word means, but listing it as job?

When I see that moniker as someone's job, I can hear my poor dead uncle screaming “troublemaker”.

Not to say that's what activists are or aren't, but for some reason my uncles face with that word coming out of his mouth always hits the visual cortex area of my brain.

The term activist actually means “a person who campaigns to bring about political or social change”.

Ok, sounds like something real I suppose, but really, what does an activist really do all day? I try to imagine what a work day looks like for an activist, but no matter how hard I try, my brain just keeps seeing my uncle and then a few seconds later another word shoots out of his mouth and that word is “freeloader”.

I suppose we need people to bring about political change but isn't that why we elect politicians? And from the looks of things, we have plenty of those and an equal number of their opinions to go along with it. I actually can't think of an issue an “activist” could petition for that isn't pushed for in a professional and “real” political arena by some elected official so why would we need someone with less influence pushing for the same thing an elected official would already be covering. My brain wanders and wonders.

What I do think about is what an activist actually does in real life. Sorry but another few words pop out and they are: “not much of anything”.

Yes, they speak at rallies and write stuff on social media and if they're any good, maybe get published somewhere, but do they earn a paycheck or just run around shooting their mouths off about things paid politicians espouse anyway?

I can't seem to think they issue an invoice to anyone nor does anyone ever really “hire” them, although I'm sure and have read somewhere that some activists are paid to appear on occasion and give a speech or two, or maybe cause trouble, but outside of that, I wonder how these professional “activists” earn their keep.

Its doubtful those attending any rallies are paying an admission fee and I rarely see any hats being passed around to pay for a speaker, although I can't say for sure this doesn't happen.

But truthfully folks, when I see that job title listed under the “profession” tab, what does come to mind, besides my raving uncle that is, are visions of someone who occasionally or consistently dips into the myriad of public “assistance” programs, gets free healthcare, cashes checks from the federal or state government (or both) and then puts on their activist hat and complains about how unfair the system is.

I'm not saying all activists are cut from this same stone mind you, I'm only stating what comes to mind.

As an economic analyst and student of most things money however, after the left side of my brain is admonished by the right side, beaten into submission under thoughts of compassion, I still try to figure out who might actually pay these “activists to “activate”, if you follow what I'm saying here.

I'm sure there are some people out there that love their activists, and I'm sure the activists themselves think their worth their salt. I just wonder, when equated to actual dollars, who if anyone, is actually paying these people. And if they're not being paid, you really couldn't call it a profession now could you?

They say somethings are worth what you pay for it.

In conclusion, need I say more?

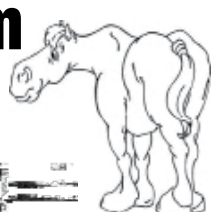

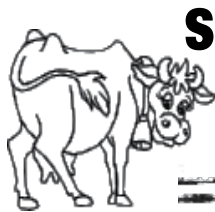

Or did my Uncle sum it just right?

“Poetry Out Loud” Competition Season is Here

Call for Sutter and Yuba County Students to Compete

Marcelo Hernandez Castillo

outloud.org. Only versions of poems from the website are eligible for use in the contest. Students are sometimes additionally motivated by teachers who offer extra credit for their participation or they accept Poetry Out Loud participation in lieu of an essay assignment.

The Sutter County competition will be held on Tuesday February 5th and the Yuba County competition will take place on Thursday February 7th. Competitions will be held at the Burrows Theater, 630 E Street in Marysville starting at 6pm with pizza for all. The two county champions will go on to the state finals at the Capitol in Sacramento on March 10th and 11th.

Our first-place winners for each county will receive $150, second place winners will receive $75 and third place winners, $50 each. The California State winner will receive $200 and an all-expense paid trip to Washington, D.C. in April to compete at the National Finals for college scholarship funds.

This year's local spokesperson for Poetry Out Loud is nationally renowned poet, Marcelo Hernandez Castillo, who lives in Marysville. Marcelo is visiting classrooms to talk about the Poetry Out Loud program from a very personal perspective. He knows several of the contemporary poets whose works are listed in the Poetry Out Loud anthology. Marcelo is also one of Yuba Sutter Arts' teaching artists for the Jump StArts program in Yuba and Sutter County schools for at risk youth.

Poetry Out Loud judging is based on Accuracy, Physical Presence, Voice and Articulation, Dramatic Appropriateness, Level of Complexity, Evidence of Understanding and Overall Performance. Students may not use props or wear costumes during their recitations.

Another special friend of Yuba Sutter Arts and an Actor's Equity member for over 40 years, Gary S. Martinez, will be available on January 31 and February 1 and 2 to provide coaching for students who might like to “up their game” and chances of winning. Gary is a marvelous coach and often appears in plays at the Sacramento Theater Company. He also runs theater workshops for youths as well as adults.
