Yuba County Board of Supervisors Meeting

by John Mistler

Buck Weckman

Marysville, Ca. At the September 26th meeting of the Yuba County Board of Supervisors, under the "Public Communications" portion of the Agenda, Buck Weckman, long time opponent of the marijuana industry, took the opportunity to update the Board of Supervisors on recent illegal activities related to the growing of marijuana in the foothills.

He stated that he really had no problem with the marijuana plant itself; it is the criminal human element that is associated with the growing and distribution of this illegal drug.

He first pointed out that on September 12 there was a daylight shooting and burglary in Browns Valley. The two suspects were arrested on the same day and a search of their home in Olivehurst revealed an illegal marijuana grow and a Butane Honey Oil Lab.

Weckman also related a disturbing Email he had recently received through his Yuba County FACT (Families Against Cannabis Trafficking) Web Site. He said he could not give the man's name because it would endanger his life. The unidentified man and his wife live in a Yuba County area where even Law Enforcement will not go alone. According to the email, four trucks had recently pulled up to a ten foot gate just past his home and several men got out with many guns waiting to gain entrance. This man knew several marijuana grows were behind this gate. The man also stated: "I fear for my kids lives".

Finally Weckman recounted a recent CHP Code Three pursuit through Brownsville and Challenge, resulting in a felony arrest in front of 10013 La Porte Road in Challenge. The person claimed to be a Sureno Gang Member and associated with the house at that location. At the arrest site and within view from La Porte Road was a marijuana grow. One of the plants was over ten feet tall. Weckman provided the Board of Supervisors with a photograph of this grow site. A Google satellite photograph of the site was also given to the Supervisors which showed a Yuba County Road Department Building and Road Equipment storage area right next door. Weckman pointed out that this situation could result into another shooting similar to the shooting of our Sheriff's Deputies in Oregon House. He further stated he liked the work the Road Crews were doing on New York House Road and it would be a shame if some of the work crew got shot as innocent bystanders during a marijuana theft.

Following Mr. Weckman at the podium was Heidi Lepp, the reverend, founder and CEO of the Rastafarian Church in the 9000 block of Marysville Rd., Oregon House, The Reverend Lepp said they use cannabis as a sacrament in their religion. She stated to the Board that she was willing to work with them and share her knowledge at no cost to the county. Reverend Lepp said that she was at the last board meeting and had taken the boards Oath of Office. Since they were not honoring the oath in violation of the First, Fourth and Sixth amendment she was now filing a "Notice of Liability regarding The War on Drugs, Violations of Religious Freedoms with "Cannabis Ordinance Technology". Each Supervisor was served as well as the Sheriff.

Big Time Wrestling and the NFL

by Lou Binninger

Back in the day before TV ruled, Big Time Wrestling would come to Marysville at the noisy Veterans Memorial Auditorium with its cigarette smoke, hardwood floors and mezzanine. To a youngster, the 'wrestlers,' the ring and the close-up were magical.

It was a few years before the gig was up. It was all an act. In fact, maybe the contenders were not only fake but someone you wouldn't hang-out with either. We learned too much.

The recent throwing of the Raiders-Redskins game by black players because their white quarterback Derrick Carr stood for the National Anthem was a come to Jesus moment for those who for decades have watched NFL games. Fans assumed the best about the teams, the players and commonly-held beliefs. The problem is that the fans' NFL persona was a myth.

Millions this season are realizing they have little in common with the players, certainly not their athletic ability, nor wealth, and neither their value system. In fact, it seems players may allow their quarterback to be sacked, a player to get injured and passes to be dropped to force political conformity. What about the pursuit of victory, giving it all? Busted.

The truth is that though the players are amazing athletes and physically disciplined, NFL teams spends millions on classes to shore up young men skimpy on character, clueless on finances, about how to stay out of jail and the downside of being a gigolo. It's a fulltime job.

The expressions on the players' faces at the recent Packers / Bears game came across as rich spoiled brats. We are standing up

An Eighth of a Teaspoon Kills a Bear

The founders believed that a populace unwilling to exercise self-discipline based upon Biblical principles would eventually lose the republic, their freedom and self-destruct. The framers believed a very small governmental presence was needed to protect from foreign invaders and neighbors running roughshod over neighbors by violating what amounts to the Ten Commandments.

Today, government is seeking to dictate every facet of life, every move citizens make. We are now a fledgling totalitarian system though we still throw around words like liberty, freedom and the Constitution. Very few Americans understand the document or adhere to it, including legislators and judges.

They discover novel concepts like welfare, education and abortion in the document. You can liken it to some members of the population that introduce creatures into their anal cavity. It just wasn't intended to be so.

Legislators lord it over the law-abiding and have an impotent bent when it comes to law breakers. The prima donnas get rough and tough on when to water the lawn, whether kids can wash cars to earn money for a school project, and grocery bags. Then, they spend years debating a marijuana-growing ordinance that is really enforceable or the funding of enough deputies to withstand the takeover of rural counties by rebels.

Dr. Mourad Gabriel, field agent for the Integral Ecology Research Center has been studying the mess left at illegal marijuana plots. It's toxic, very toxic, killing insects, small and large animals and surely making humans ill at the very least. Remember the days when meth labs were discovered occasionally with dead cooks when the recipe went wrong.

Women's Self-Defense Classes

The Marysville Police Department teamed up with Twin Cities Martial Arts over the weekend to provide three women's self-defense classes. The free training was held at 407 D Street in Marysville and there were over 100 women who attended. Women were taught to get away from a potentially bad situation, but they were also taught techniques which could be used to defend themselves. Self-defense instructors from Marysville PD and from Twin Cities Martial Arts were on hand to make sure each student was learning the moves.

These classes represented the core principals of community oriented policing. Community oriented policing only works if we all come together and help each other. The idea to set up a class for women's self-defense was just that, an idea. It took the collaboration of Police and local business to make the idea a reality. Once we had the classes setup, then the important part was to fill the classes up, which we did. The women who attended were high school students, business owners, and teachers, just to list a few.

On behalf of the Marysville Police Department we would like to thank everyone who helped make this happen, and we look forward to future events.

All Service Club Challenge and Community Trapshoot

South Yuba County Rotary "Throws Down the Gauntlet"

Fred Gebert, Past President of the South Yuba County Rotary Club and avid shooter, encourages everyone to come out for a fun day at this year's Service Club Challenge and Community Trap Shoot.

Marysville, CA: South Yuba County Rotary is pleased to announce the date of its 9th annual Trapshoot fundraiser. This year's event will be held on Saturday, October 21st, 2017 at Coon Creek Trap & Skeet Club, 5393 Waltz Road in Rio Oso near Lincoln. Shooting starts at 10am.

The Pre-registration form is available at 9th-trapshootrotary.eventbrite.com. On-site check-in begins at 9:30 a.m. Early bird special pricing is $60 until October 6 after which the price increases to $65. The registration fee on the day of the event is $75. The fee includes 50 targets, ammunition, a Tri-tip and chicken lunch with all the trimmings and two raffle tickets.

Raffle prizes this year will include lots of outdoor gear along with several new-in-the-box firearms.

Shooters of all skill levels are welcome to participate. Instruction and loaner equipment will be available. As always, this event is open to all. Once again, South Yuba County Rotary is sponsoring a Yuba-Sutter service club challenge. Members of Kiwanis, Lions, Exchange, Soroptimist, 20/30 and other Rotary Clubs, are encouraged to send a squad of their "champions" to compete against other clubs for bragging rights as "Best Service Club Trap Team in All of Yuba-Sutter" plus a $500 check for the club!

South Yuba County Rotary President, Abbie Cesena said, "We thought it would be fun to once again challenge our brothers and sisters in our other local service clubs to a friendly competition." "This is a really fun event for all level shooters so send a team of five or more shooters for a chance to win $500 for your pet project," she added.

Profits from this and other Rotary events are used to support local youth programs such as scholarships, back-to-school shopping events, RYLA Rotary summer camp, speech contests, high school Interact club activities, high school trap teams and much, much more.

"There was some controversy earlier this year about Rotary International's policy regarding shooting events as fundraisers," said committee co-chair, David Read. "Suffice it to say that the abundant misinformation has been clarified and this event is fully compliant with Rotary guidelines," he added. "The right of the people (and all Rotary trapshooters!) to keep and bear Arms, shall not be infringed."

The club is seeking sponsors and additional raffle item donations to support this event. Please contact David Read, 530-749-8065 or drandolphread@gmail.com to learn how you can help.

We hear from the Fish Hatchery at Oroville. The salmon count is way down this year with just a third of the fish showing up at the hatchery. The fall run of Chinook salmon will be over the middle of October so there is still time to process eggs.

Officials at the hatchery do not know what has caused the reduction in fish returning to the hatchery, but some feel it is an ocean problem while some say it could be other factors.

One thing is for sure. If the fish do not show up there will be less fish returning after being planted into the Feather River, live in the Ocean and eventually return to Oroville. Hopefully the fish will be late this year and show up this month.

Closing thought: "Friendship consists in forgetting what one gives and remembering what one has received."

Sutter Surgical Hospital-North Valley Awarded Certification

from The Joint Commission for Hip and Knee Replacement accredited hospitals, critical access hospitals and ambulatory surgery centers seeking to elevate the quality, consistency and safety of their services and patient care.

SSH-NV underwent a rigorous onsite review. Joint Commission experts evaluated compliance with disease-specific care standards and hip and knee replacement requirements, including orthopedic consultation, and pre-operative, intraoperative and post-surgical orthopedic surgeon follow-up care.

"Achieving Hip and Knee Replacement Certification recognizes Sutter Surgical Hospital-North Valley's commitment to provide care in a safe and efficient manner for patients," said Patrick Phelan, executive director, Hospital Business Development, The Joint Commission. "The certification will help them better provide coordinated and comprehensive care to patients undergoing hip or knee replacement."

"We are very happy to receive certification from The Joint Commission, the premier health care quality improvement and accrediting body in the nation," added Dennis Sindelar, Chief Administrative Officer for Sutter Surgical Hospital North Valley. "We feel this validates the work we do to provide our patients with safe, quality care as they receive joint replacement services."

Women in the foothills and north state area who sew are asked to help with an area wide humanitarian effort. This project is so simple but needs many volunteers to each do a little. All a helper needs to do to help a poverty girl in threat of being kidnapped by a human trafficker is to make one or more small girl's dresses which demonstrate to traffickers that the girls are being watched and looked over.

The Soroptimist of Grass Valley who are heading this movement locally will send a dress pattern and requirements to seamstresses willing to make a dress to save a life via email so they can join dozens of area women making 200 dresses for little girls in Uganda. The finished dresses will be taken to the children's village by club members Lynn Costa and Judy East.

It is possible interested helpers may have remnants around a home sewing space they can use and this dress, which may save a life and can be made in the time spent on one TV show.

Volunteers Needed for Humanitarian Effort

Submitted by Marilyn Adams

The requirements include all cotton material and the use of bias tape, and elastic As Soroptimist humorously explain to their helpers, it needs extra strength so the children can wash them in a stream beating them clean on rocks, says Lynn Costa, project chairman.

Let the women's club know if you can make one dress or more on your own or join in an old-fashioned sewing event on Sat. Oct 21st. at 1 PM or Nov. 4th at 1 PM until 5 PM at Twin Cities Church on Rough and Ready Road in Grass Valley. Other locations will be announced later according to Costa.

If a seamstress will make one at home SIGV will send instructions and a pattern to you and when done, you can mail the dress to Soroptimist International at their PO Box. "Let's make our area proud and make 200 dresses for 'girls around the world'", adds Costa.

Caltrans, Sutter County Meet

To Discuss Stop Light at Highway 99 and Oswald Road

Caltrans District 3 Director Amarjeet S. Benipal said Caltrans would commence a traffic count study in connection with preparing plans and a cost estimate for a traffic light at the intersection of Highway 99 and Oswald Road.

Mr. Benipal and Deputy Director Andrew Brandt met with Whiteaker, Assistant County Administrative Officer Steve Smith, and Joseph Brennan, a representative from Assemblyman James Gallagher's office. Some residents from the neighborhood and some representatives of the local trucking industry were present for a portion of the meeting and spoke to Mr. Benipal about their concerns.

Mr. Benipal said a traffic signal could cost as much as $3 million, and part of the cost would be shared by the County. He discussed various funding options.

Chair Whiteaker said a traffic light or some other modification to the intersection is one part of a potential solution for challenges raised by the growth of commercial trucking operations south of Yuba City. A Commercial Trucking Ad Hoc Committee of Board members Ron Sullenger and Dan Flores has been appointed to make recommendations to the full Board of Supervisors.

"No matter what other solutions we find to balance the legitimate concerns of the residential neighborhoods and the commercial trucking operators who provide many jobs and are integral to our economy, we have to address the safety issue at the intersection of Highway 99 and Oswald Road first," Chair Whiteaker said. "This was a good meeting. Caltrans is very sensitive to the conditions and is prepared to assist us in dealing with this safety concern."

Sutter County will also be examining improvements to other portions of Oswald Road itself.

At its October 10 meeting, Supervisors will be considering a 45-day moratorium on new commercial trucking operations as the County searches for ways to mitigate issues raised by residential neighbors.

BALD MOUNTAIN NURSERY

Welcome to October. It is usually a nice month bringing cooler weather giving us welcome hints that fall is pushing summer into the background. Changing seasons that are noticeable certainly make the weather more interesting. October is one of the most enjoyable months for me. All of the fall color that begins creeping into the landscape is a pleasure to see. October can be a very busy month for a gardener and is the best time of the year to plant trees. The soil retains the heat from the long hot summer on into the winter months, the air begins to cool, top growth slows, and deciduous plants lose their leaves as they go dormant. The roots, however will continue to expand in the warm soil and slow their growth as the soil cools with the winter temperatures. Not having to support the top growth of leaves, the roots will continue to grow slowly through those winter months making them almost a year ahead of a tree planted in the spring that has to support root growth as well as top growth while becoming established.

Considering that October has warmer soil, but cooling temperature as we go into the cold winter months, it is quite obvious that many things can be planted and thrive, but the planting should be done early enough that they can become established before the very cold weather comes along. Even the cool weather plants that are not fairly well established before encountering very cold temperatures might be stunted by those cold temperatures. They withstand the very cold temperatures but may not develop and flourish until the warmer spring temperatures. All of the color and pretty foliage could have been enjoyed all winter long by earlier planting. This same message applies to other things as well, such as a winter vegetable garden, and ground covers. They do best with this early warm soil to help them become established. Plant root vegetables such as beets, turnips, carrots and radishes from seed now. Edible peas are cool weather plants, as well as sweet peas that bloom with the lovely fragrant flowers in early spring, and they all can be planted now. If you are planning a winter vegetable garden, it is time to get it done. I know some folks were anxious and have their gardens all planted by now.

The best time to plant California native plants is in the fall when they are going dormant. They then become established naturally by Mother Nature during the cooling of the warm soil. They can be more difficult to get started in the spring since most of them are quite drought tolerant and they are easily ruined by over watering them as the weather gets hotter. Let them become established naturally, and then water them being careful not to drown them during the summer months. It's much easier to let Mother Nature get them started.

This is the time to plant other things. Bulbs are available now, or soon will be. Get them planted for the beautiful variety and color they add to the yard. They are a bit of work to plant, but they may repeat year after year. Gophers can be a problem since they like some of them. Narcissus and daffodils are in the same family and they are safe from the gophers and can naturalize in your yard. Iris are also safe from gophers. Wildflower seeds should be scattered anytime now. Because some of the seeds are very small, it is a good idea to mix them thoroughly with some sand or other medium to add some bulk to make them scatter more evenly, and also to cover a wider area. In September it was suggested that fertilizing should be done, but it was so hot that it was hard to find just the right time. It can still be done if you weren't able to do it. Realize that trees with fall coloring or falling leaves probably won't utilize it well, but all the trees with green leaves and green shrubs will be fine.

It is hard to know what is ahead with the weather, but don't stop watering with the first sign of rain. The soil is very dry with such a hot summer and it will take significant rainfall to moisten it down several feet to sustain vegetation without supplemental irrigation.

Looking forward to November, we start getting the bare root edibles such as asparagus, berries, rhubarb, Artichokes, onions, and garlic. The transition into to fall is a such a pleasant time of the year!

Kingsman: The Golden Circle

Starring: Taron Egerton, Colin Firth, and Mark Strong. Rated: R, Runtime: 141 minutes.

One year after the events of the first Kingsman movie, another insanely rich insane person sets their sights on molding the world to their ideals by controlling the masses. The fall of the Kingsman is their first goal and fortunately for the world the Kingsman are resourceful. With the help of their American counterparts, the Kingsman are able to continue in the fight against their antagonist.

The story is a chaotic mass of action and snappy music. It is almost cartoony at times, to the detriment of the overall work. The acting is good in most instances and the effects are just plain amazing. The camera work as well as the pacing of the film could be a little smoother.

Kingsman: The Golden Circle, earns three out of five, Blue Rash Monkeys. This isn't as good as the first film, but still not a waste of money if you happen to find yourself at the box office.

THE Brownsville Bailiwick & Beyond

The new Art Workshop, Do Art, that met last month was a success. Mainly, it was fun. We did a great deal of cutting and pasting, making Soul Cards. Jani Beckwith is the leader of the workshop and it will be held each month on a Saturday mid-month from 1 -4. For more information call Books & More (675-3275). The store will be closed for vacation until Oct. 18, but the workshop will meet Oct. 14

Don't forget the great Hill Top Breakfast on the second Sunday of each month except May (it will be held on Father's Day and they go "dark" in December. This month it will be on Oct. 8; you can have a full, all you can eat breakfast, for only $6 and that helps support our medical van.

Look Back in Time – In 1911 citizens formed the Dobbins Athletic club; the first boxing match was between Virgil Peachy and Kid French (now we just watch it on TV or laptop).

Hope to see you in Brownsville soon.

Food and Farm News

Tomato harvest may fall short of estimates

Spring rains and summer heat have combined to reduce the California tomato harvest. Farmers say the wet spring delayed planting, and hot summer temperatures brought stress to tomato plants. As a result, a growers group expects the harvest of processing tomatoes will be 1 million tons smaller than estimated by a government survey. California farms grow most of the nation's processing tomatoes, which are used for sauce, ketchup and other products.

California leads in organic agriculture

More than 1 million acres of California farmland have now been certified for organic production, according to an annual government report. It says California continues to lead the nation in the number of certified-organic farms, acreage and value of organic sales. The state saw increases in the amount of organic cropland and grazing land during 2016, and sales of organic products from California represented nearly 40 percent of the national total.

Research aims at heat-tolerant broccoli

Most of the broccoli grown in the U.S. comes from coastal areas of California, because broccoli thrives in cool weather. Plant researchers want to expand the areas where broccoli can grow, by breeding plants that tolerate higher temperatures. U.S. Department of Agriculture scientists in South Carolina say they have identified genetic markers that help broccoli resist heat. They're growing trial plantings of heat-tolerant broccoli in Southeastern states.

Survey shows small rise in food prices

A seasonal survey of retail food prices shows a slight increase compared to a year ago. The American Farm Bureau Federation says its fall market basket survey of 16 retail food items showed prices up about 3 percent. Bacon, chicken breasts, orange juice and flour were among the items showing higher average prices. The survey found lower prices for bagged salad, ground chuck, eggs and potatoes.

Recology, A True Community Steward

We've had a business in Yuba City for 31 years, and during that time I've called Recology to remove everything from a mattress to needles and syringes that have been dumped in my lot. Within a day they have always been removed. The same goes for the old railroad right of way, across the street from our shop, where even discarded cars have been removed by Recology! How many cities can say they have a refuse collector who goes to those lengths for their customers?

I'm also a member of the Rotary Club of Marysville. We've put on the Sodbuster's fundraiser event on the Friday night of Rodeo weekend for the past 7 years, and one constant that has always stood out, is the presence of Recology Yuba-Sutter. Every year the employees of Recology provide much of the supplies and manpower to cook the dinner, a huge feat. The Appeal did a great job covering the Rodeo this year. It's truly amazing that community leaders like the Rosser family, and community stewards like Recology, come together to put on such a fabulous class act and community event.

Sodbuster's and the Rodeo are just a couple of the hundreds of events Recology has been involved in, around our area, for over 40 years. I would venture to say Recology has been engaged in some way, shape, or form with over 75% of the numerous fundraisers in our close-knit community. Recology employees live and work here, raise their families here and contribute untold community service hours for the betterment of our area. Their commitment to fellowship and stewardship is unmatched.

Unfortunately, the Yuba City City Council has decided to put Recology's refuse collection contract up for bid, without even first negotiating with Recology, a decision that went against advice from their own City staff, against public opinion, and against consultant recommendations that they paid upwards of $150,000 to receive.

Recology has been a model business citizen, so why make a change without first having a discussion with them? Let's not push Recology aside like some refuse! Let's stand together and send a message to negotiate with Recology. As the saying goes, "Let's Get This Done!"

With Sincere gratitude,
Mike & Gayle Cowley/

Support for Recology

As the District Representative for Operating Engineers Local 3, I represent 110 Recology employees. I am truly heartbroken for these hard-working men and women that the Yuba City Council voted to go straight to bid for a new garbage provider without even negotiating with Recology first.

The culture Recology has built in our community is extremely positive. I have heard nothing negative about Recology from the employees, or the customers.

Dozens of Recology employees attended the Yuba City Council meeting with me. I spoke to the Councilmembers and asked them to simply show respect for the decades of excellent service provided, and allow Recology to negotiate their contract. I pointed to all the Recology employees in the room and asked that these employees be able to negotiate for their jobs, THEN if negotiations failed, go to bid. The Yuba City Council disregarded my plea, they disregarded all the hardworking men and women in the room, and voted to go straight to bid.

If you respect the job that Recology and their employees have done for you in Yuba City, please contact the Yuba City Council by phone or email and tell them. Ask that the Yuba City Council reverse their decision and negotiate with Recology.

Don't Use The Post Office When Shipping Valuables

I want to warn the public of the ever growing incompetence of the USPS. Over the last 10 years the Post Office has lost or delivered to the wrong address mail and valuable packages we had been expecting on an almost yearly basis. Now I understand stuff happens, but their total lack of caring about it has gotten to the point that when you call to complain they basically tell you, "Tough... too bad, get over it!" Even if your mail or package was sent signature or delivery requested or guaranteed you have none. That is worthless since my experience has been the carrier will mark the mail or package "Delivered" and once they mark it Delivered you are S.O.L. because as far as the Post Office is concerned, you got.

We have had literally damn near $10,000 dollars worth of mail and packages that has either been delivered to the wrong address or just plane lost or stolen by the Post Office over the last 10 years... and forget about getting a package back if it was delivered to some low life, because you can guarantee they'll keep it or try and cash checks if they think they can get away with it! We always receive someone else's mail, it's getting more and more commonplace these days, and always put it back in the mailbox with the outgoing mail the next day. But it seems we are the exception, most low lives just keep it or throw it away apparently, which is a sad reflection of what society has become. Just recently a check I was expecting for almost 7 grand was lost in limbo and the company that sent it to me had to cancel that check and reissue it. I also just had a package I had ordered on Ebay go to God only knows where, that was delivered to God Only Knows who, and since the tracking number and Post Office says it was delivered, guess who eats that cost, yeah ME! The Post Office didn't care, and said: "Oh well, it says the carrier delivered it, so we don't know what we can do about it." So I lost 100 bucks and had to reorder it. About a Year ago a $380 dollar order that also never arrived yet the carrier marked it delivered...once again to whom is the question, because we never got it, and we have cameras running 24/7 and we see all around the house... He never delivered it to our home. Over the years the Post office has steadily gotten more incompetent and totally non-responsive to this problem. Now UPS guarantees packages up to $200 dollars without needing additional insurance, and is the only way to go if you want to have some kind of guarantee, because you surely aren't going to get one from the Post Office.

We Are Proud of Our Flag and Country?

I see our over paid and spoiled NFL players have decided to sit, kneel or some decided to stay in the locker rooms.

Now while these high paid prima donnas act like children, it is time for each sports fan to boycott them for a change. Fans have put up with higher ticket prices and parking prices so high that a day at the middle class cannot afford to enjoy the sport. Do players care if they demand higher salaries that the tickets go up? They know the fans will pay the increase.

All I know is I am one of the 8 to 10 percent of fans that are not going to take this any longer. I have not watched one NFL game this year and I hope to see the boycott grow. Remember you pay a large part of the income buying tickets, parking, television, shirts, etc. Do not watch the NFL.

Big Time Wrestling and the NFL

on the outside but taking a knee on the inside. Good for them. It's great to see who people really are. You just never see them the same again.

They didn't just become different from you. They always were. It's a little painful to lose a fantasy friend.

One player told fans to stay home if they didn't like what the players were up to. Hilarious, this stuff is too good to be true. How would you like to go into Raley's Grocery Store and the manager tell you to "F-off" after you'd been shopping their all your life?

A local judge whined about fans discussing boycotting Budweiser. He wanted them to think about all the good souls that would lose their jobs from fewer sales. Who's kidding whom? Every choice made and dollar spent is a vote for a person or a product and a vote against the rest. People make hundreds of buying decisions each week contributing to the success of some and the demise of others. Where do these judges go to school, anyway, the Lenin Academy?

President Trump suggested firing employee - athletes who don't reflect the owners' values and appreciate the country. Welcome to the real world. He has a right to his view. Obama talked plenty of smack. Lefty eunuchs moved up a couple octaves excited about Trump interjecting politics into football. Really, is that what happened?

ESPN once had all sports enthusiasts slobbering 24 hours-per-day over their programming until they became social-boycotting Budweiser highlights. Trump may be the only political figure alive willing to tell the truth about the left's takeover of sports broadcasting.

For those thinking this has something to do with free speech please read the First Amendment to the Constitution. "Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or prohibiting the free exercise thereof; or abridging the freedom of speech, or of the press; or the right of the people peaceably to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances."

Congress never made a law limiting what the players are doing, but Congress did violate the Constitution by giving millions of taxpayers' dollars to the NFL each year.

And, no one in America is being forced to agree or disagree. The players are betting their careers on their beliefs. Good for them. Let's see how it all turns out. Transparency is a healthy thing. It's never good to live a lie, for the players or us.

Starbucks became vocal as anti-marriage and pro-illegal immigration. I don't hate them. I'm just happier buying coffee elsewhere. Same with the NFL, no ill-will or bitterness, life is short, make yours count somewhere.

Your One Minute News Digest

by Don Rae

an Army Base in S. Korea rebelled against what was being taught. Why? Because the “common core” math curriculum made no sense to her. She had previously been taught in traditional math classes. When she and her family were transferred to Colorado, she was tested in math in her new school, (which did not use common core), and was found to be in the upper echelon of students. Why? She knew the concepts of mathematics and had educated herself at home with her parents help. She told her parents after the Colorado test – “It made sense.”

• Another young student complained to her school board about the stupidity of “common core.” She said she and all other students were required to sign a form instructing them not to talk with their own parents about the contents of the standardized test. “I do not feel good about a form that you have to sign ensuring that you can’t even discuss the test with your parents. I am not comfortable signing something like this. I have the right to talk to my parents about any and everything related to school and my education,” she declared. Since when do schools demand that students not talk to their parents? Nazism at its worst.

• The Ventura Star, part and parcel of the mainstream media, in a recent editorial, denounced the City of Simi Valley for the “crimes” of closing down brothels in the City and also not allowing practitioners of pedophilia to be near children on Halloween. Hopefully this sort of anti-family rant isn’t going to spread.

• The British have a problem which will be more devastating than earthquakes and hurricanes. As of this writing, at least 9 major cities, including London and Oxford, have Muslim Mayors. This achievement has been gained by some 4 million Muslims out of Britain’s population of 66 million. There are now “Muslim Only” areas in the country and more than 130 Sharia courts. To cap the problem off, the majority of Muslims are not working and are drawing free government benefits, including housing.

• On top of all of this, two of the suspects in the recent London subway bombing are refugees.

• Moonbeam Brown recently compared Trump supporters to prehistoric cave dwellers. “They’re both kind of very similar,” Brown said. “You should check out the derivation of ‘Trump-ite’ and ‘troglodyte,’ because they both refer to people who dwell in deep, dark caves.” Huh? Is Moonbeam really that dumb?

• Look at another example of federal waste in the “swamp”. The fish & Wildlife Service recently took Johnston’s Frankenia—a 1 to 2-foot-tall shrub—off the endangered species list because “it recovered.” Not so. The 1984 study which resulted in it being put on the list was flawed in that it reported only a few plants left standing. However, subsequent “look-sees” reported there were millions of the plants hanging around. Even so, the bureaucrats still have a monitoring plan costing more than $100K to make sure nothing happens to this useless weed.

• The National Institute of Health has untold ways to waste taxpayer money. The NIH funded a $4 million study claiming that perfume and female clothing can “strongly trigger gendered assumptions” that can prevent women from becoming cardiologists.

• Oakland and San Francisco have sued five oil companies, claiming Big Oil should cover the costs of sea walls and other projects needed to protect the cities from the consequences of climate change supposedly caused by the oil companies. Since man-made climate change is a hoax and the sea is not rising, tax payer money should not be spent on such lawsuits. In fact the bureaucrats who filed these suits should be required to pay back all costs to the taxpayers.

• Elizabeth Warren commented recently that Senator Ted Kennedy fought for health care benefits for all Americans. He was especially proud that he had a good health insurance policy when his child had a medical emergency. Listen up Pocahontas, what Kennedy didn’t say was that thanks to his bootlegger father’s millions passed on to him, he could have paid the bill himself instead of depending on others who contributed to the insurance pool.

Dennis Hauck Announces Run for Sutter County Sheriff

for Sutter County Sheriff

Yuba City, Ca.

Lifelong Yuba-Sutter Resident and Yuba City Police Sergeant Dennis Hauck, announced his candidacy for Sutter County Sheriff via a radio broadcast early Wednesday morning.

In his official announcement, Hauck stated that his focus as Sutter County Sheriff will be on staffing, increasing rural patrols as a crime prevention measure and changing Concealed Weapon Permits (CCW) to a ‘Right to Carry’ platform while removing the 3-gun limit. “The number one question my constituents have asked is how I feel about CCWs,” said candidate Hauck. “I believe that society is safer when law-abiding citizens who are properly trained and free from mental defect, can protect themselves and their families,” said Hauck.

A member of the Howard Jarvis Taxpayers Association, Hauck feels taxpayer dollars must be spent sparingly. The Sheriff-hopeful believes that one of the best ways to accomplish this is to look for opportunities for local agencies to work together to consolidate tasks that are currently duplicated by multiple agencies. “When local government agencies collaborate, the taxpayers win,” Hauck said.

A 24-year law enforcement veteran, Hauck began his career at Yuba County Sheriff’s Department, later moving to Marysville Police Department where he rose to the rank of Sergeant. Nearly a decade ago, Hauck began serving the citizens of Sutter County when he went to work for the City of Yuba City Police Department, where he currently serves as Sergeant and Cadet Coordinator. Voted by his peers, Hauck is a three-time recipient of the Officer of the Year Award, a Medal of Valor recipient, Department Employee of the Year recipient, and Chief’s Spirit Award recipient.

“Dennis is respected by both peers and subordinates in the law enforcement community,” said Shon Harris, Councilmember for the City of Yuba City. “His contemporary leadership style, 24-years of hard work, and a solid balance of experience, commitment and humility, makes him a great fit to lead the Sutter County Sheriff’s Department into the future,” Councilmember Harris said.

Hauck plans to focus on enforcing existing laws and ordinances related to homeless issues, working with the City of Yuba City to turn over Happy Park police services to YCPD (an area the City annexed 18 years ago) in order to make more deputies available for rural patrols and establish a 6-member Citizens Advisory Panel to provide public input on law enforcement issues.

“I find myself at a point in my life where I can make a greater contribution to this community, the community that raised me,” said Hauck. “I want to leave this County better than I found it. I want the children and families who live in this community, to feel safer; to actually feel protected,” he finished.

ing perspectives from a greater number of people regarding a constitutional state split from California.

They are looking for committed citizens who want to become involved in the Sutter County Council of Representatives and want to be part of the historic formation of a New State.

Members of the current SCCR will be present to provide information on the New State movement and answer your questions.

Judge Rewrites Ballot Description Initiative Repealing Gas Tax

Sacramento County Judge Timothy Frawley has rewritten the ballot description of the initiative repealing the gas tax increase. The judge found that the title and summary written by California State Attorney Xavier Becerra was misleading. Judge Frawley rewrote the title and summary after a lawsuit was filed by Republican Assemblyman Travis Allen.

Becerra’s title said the ballot measure would eliminate transportation funding by repealing revenues. Frawley’s rewrite says, the initiative would repeal gas and diesel taxes and transportation funding associated with the increase. The actual title says, “Repeals recently enacted gas and diesel taxes and vehicle registration fees. Eliminates road repair and transportation programs funded by these taxes and fees.”

An Eighth of a Teaspoon Kills a Bear

Gabriel finds fertilizers, poisons and insecticides. Unwelcome bugs, animals, and humans who wish to partake of the crop are the enemy to growers. Gabriel says one of the more gnarly chemicals repeatedly discovered is Carbofuran. Carbofuran, an extremely toxic pesticide that’s effectively banned in the United States, is a favorite product among many growers and Mexican drug cartels. Gabriel says it is at 60 to 70 percent of illegal grow-sites he visits, often mixed in bottles that have no warning label.

“An eighth of a teaspoon would kill a 300 pound black bear,” says Gabriel. Farmers in Malaysia discovered 18 cows dead from Carbofuran in 2010. In 2009, it was used to poison lions in Kenya. The chemical is also highly toxic to fish, and is believed to be one of the main contributors to the reduction of salmon populations in the northwest.

Will it take a couple dead youngsters that were out for a hike and partook of some grow-site’s baited fruit to get politicians on their soap boxes? When reasoning and pleading fail, someone’s dead kid is always good fodder for remedial action.

While some local politicians cash-in playing ‘cat and mouse’ on marijuana growing, Carbofuran residues could become Yuba County’s own little Love Canal. Because of its long soil half-life (from a few days up to 60 days) Carbofuran has a high potential for groundwater contamination and has been detected in surface water.

This highly restricted chemical is responsible for the deaths of millions of birds and wildlife since its introduction in 1967. The pellets often resemble plant seeds commonly eaten by birds and are often applied on newly cultivated soil. One highly toxic granule can kill a small bird and can move up the food chain when dead birds are eaten by predatory species. It can also be obtained as a liquid.

China is manufacturing and then exporting Carbofuran all over the world. It can be obtained online. If delivery is difficult in the US bringing it through Mexico is a popular option where another illegal Chinese killer, the super-opiate Fentanyl or China White is finding its way here.

While food-producing farmers are harassed and fined over the location of portable toilets, tissues, shade structures, drinking water, their monthly spray reports and the posting of notices, thousands of pot growers are slinging killer chemicals with no consequences, all for the sake of profit and a buzz.

It’s actually no surprise at all. It’s always easier to snatch some good citizen’s freedom than pursue his abuser.

A Celebration of Souls: Day of the Dead

at Yuba Sutter Arts Honor Loved Ones and Enjoy an Afternoon of Family Fun and Entertainment

David Read, Ellie Cate Flora, Abbie Cesena at last year's Day of the Dead Event.

Marysville, Ca.
On Sunday, October 21, Yuba Sutter Arts will present a "Day of the Dead" or "Dia de Los Muertos" celebration. The event will be held at Yuba Sutter Arts' Marysville theater, courtyard and art gallery from 11 - 4pm.

The holiday has become a part of our popular culture through the whimsical skeleton figures and other art work along with films like "The Book of Life" and "Frida." Day of the Dead is celebrated throughout Mexico, in particular the Central and Southern regions, and is acknowledged around the world in other cultures. The holiday focuses on gatherings of family and friends who pray for and remember friends and family members who have died, and to help support their spiritual journey. It is a Celebration of Souls.

This community cultural celebration is free and suitable for all ages! There will be food, drinks, movies, face-painting and vendors with Day of the Dead and Frida Kahlo inspired art! Come celebrate with and support local artists! Featured artists will include Lila Solorzano Rivera, a painter and the show's curator who will be conducting a live art demonstration, Randy Rivera, an air brush artist who will also be creating art during the event and sculptor and jewelry maker, Toni Rodriguez. Other artists will include painter, Raul Mejia, photographer and painter Ruben Briseno Reveles and John Huerta, painter.

Featured entertainers will be the Mariachi Guadalajara Kings from Sacramento. The trio will perform traditional songs on accordion, bass and vihuela.

Day of the Dead is a day of celebration and remembrance of loved ones who have passed. Because it is celebrated at roughly the same time of year as Halloween and the two share some common roots, Day of the Dead is sometimes referred to as the "Mexican Halloween", however, the focus of the two holidays is quite different. Day of the Dead is in some ways more similar to the American observation of Memorial Day. As celebrated today, Day of the Dead is essentially a family time, a time of reunion for both the living and the dead.

There are many traditions related to Day of the Dead. The flower most commonly associated with the holiday is the marigold which is thought to attract "Soul (spirit)" souls of the dead to the offerings. Traditionally, toys are brought for children who have passed (los angelitos, or "the little angels"). Families also offer trinkets or the deceased's favorite candies. Altares or altars are also created in homes, usually with foods such as candied pumpkin, pan de muerto ("bread of dead"), and sugar skulls. The ofrendas or offerings are left out in the homes as a welcoming gesture for the deceased.

Honoring Our Vets

War Veterans have put their life on the line and the saying goes "All gave some and some gave all".

The quintessential act of giving one's life for their country is an act of the utmost valor and selflessness.

Although all of us sleep, rise and live under the blanket of freedom provided by such men and women, we have often forgotten them once the guns are holstered and the uniforms are hung in some dusty closet somewhere.

What remains among us are the very men and women who wore those uniforms and shouldered the task of our protection.

In our personal lives, we pass vets daily, some of whom we will never know of their service. My 92 year old father is a WW2 vet, yet never volunteers that information unless asked. Other veterans work among us, or recreate with us, wait tables for us or do the myriad of jobs around us, never asking for anything but what is earned.

Still others hang out in alleys or on street corners, in homeless shelters or mental institutions, much of their plight likely caused by the horror they've seen or by the simple fact that they were little more than teens when integrated into the most sophisticated and largest military in the world, both in mechanism and regimen.

For a myriad of reasons, both obvious and others not so obvious, some vets have difficulty in adjusting to societal norms and therefore not living what some might call normal lives.

Some vets are homeless, institutionalized or living on the outer margins of society. At times it may seem the same government that called them into service has now forgotten many of their needs. Luckily we are fortunate to have those who care enough to reach out and try to help in whatever way they can.

"Welcome Home Vets" and the "Stand Down" organizations are two such entities.

Welcome Home Vets provide support and transitional services to vets and their families. This may include mental health therapy, assistance in navigating the various veteran support systems, and increasing public awareness.

The Stand Down Organization's main focus is helping homeless vets by providing a broad range of basic services and items such as food, clothing, medical, dental, legal help, mental health assistance, job counseling and basic companionship when needed.

The local chapters of both recently held one of their many events to raise funds for providing these support services. The annual Welcome Home Vets motorcycle rally and BBQ was held on September 16, 2017 and the Stand Down event date is October 6th and 7th at the Nevada County Fairgrounds. At this two day event, veterans can access clothes and other basic necessities including medical, dental, 12 step addiction counseling, PTSD counseling and referrals, job counseling and other assistance.

Both entities accept public support and can be contacted through their local chapters found on any web browser or the national websites below:

Welcome Home Vets: Welcomehomevets.org
Stand Down: Standdown.org

In conclusion, I attended the Welcome Home Vets BBQ event and early in the day spoke to many of the people who were prepping for the event. I found their dedication and conviction of cause both heartwarming and extremely moving.

Colusa County Cameos - Stonyford by Carol Withington

Stonyford is located in a mountain plateau at an elevation of approximately 1200 feet above sea level. The community was originally known as Smithville after pioneer John L. Smith.

Smith, a native of Illinois, traveled to California in 1863, where he settled on the banks of Stony Creek. He soon after erected a hotel, livery stable, blacksmith shop, a lumber mill and grist mill operated by Ernest Seidel, Smith's son-in-law.

The town retained the name of Smithville until 1890 when a "so-called" promoter by the name of H. C. Stillwell literally moved the existing town to its present site and changed the name to Stonyford. According to research, Stillwell laid out the new town and paid the expenses of the relocation of the buildings. Some were moved as they stood; others were torn down and rebuilt.

It must have been quite an undertaking. For example, the old Smithville Hotel and a store, operated by W. J. King and Ragain were moved and torn apart. A horse then pulled the buildings after they had been placed on rollers. It is said that business was continued at the store as usual while the moving process was underway. Unfortunately, the Smithville Hotel burned down two years later.

Other businesses involved were two saloons with George Howard and Silas Tatum proprietors; two stores, a restaurant, a livery, a feed stable and a blacksmith shop which was operated by P. D. O'Connor.

Stillwell also reportedly spent $20,000 to build a flour mill. It took an additional $8,000 for the construction of a ditch to bring water power to the mill. However, the investment proved profitable. A "brisk" market in Colusa and the large amount of wheat raised in the area kept the mill busy almost continuously.

A Post Office was established in 1891 with Henry Engraham serving as postmaster. Residents in the area were given twice a week delivery service with mail brought to Stonyford by stage.

At one time, Stonyford became a tourist stop as people came to spend time at the several hot springs that "dotted" the hills above the town. Among the destinations were Cook Springs, Wilbur Springs and Fouts Springs.

According to old photographs now housed at the Stonyford Museum, the community once sported planked sidewalks, a large hotel and a variety of stores. However, the hot springs later were out of vogue and a fire destroyed the hotel and other buildings.

The Stonyford Cemetery was first used as far back as 1862, when a man named Smith was buried there. Other pioneers in this cemetery include Daniel Smith, who passed away in 1868 and John Martin Smith, the son of John L., who died in 1883 at the age of 30 just seven years before the town named after his father was changed to Stonyford.

The former hamlet of Leesville will be featured in November.
