Ongoing Monitoring of Events at Lake Oroville

On February 7, DWR Temporarily suspended flows down the Oroville Dam spillway to investigate concrete erosion discovered on the lower half of the spillway. On the afternoon of February 8, DWR launched a test flow to determine the appropriate level of water to release down the spillway. (Photo: Kelly Grow)

Marysville, Ca. – Public safety officials learned Thursday (2/9/17) that water from Lake Oroville was once again being allowed to flow over the damaged spillway and that flow would continue as long as engineers monitoring the flow determine it is safe to do so.

They also learned that DWR was stepping up releases from Lake Oroville to keep it from reaching its maximum capacity. As the lake was nearly full.

“We want to make sure our residents know that we have people here in the community keeping an eye out on the situation,” said Scott Bryan, Emergency Services Manager. “So far, the flood control efforts we completed a few years ago are doing an excellent job of keeping our residents safe.”

As a contingency plan, on Thursday brush and trees were removed from below the emergency spillway. If the spillway is needed this would minimize the amount of debris that might cause more problems downstream. The spillway has never been used although it came close in 1997.

Friday evening all that changed as the spillway began spilling for the first time ever and Oroville Lake was completely full for the first time.

On Sunday afternoon a hole was discovered in the most northerly part of the emergency spillway, by the rate of erosion it was determine that failure of the spillway was eminent and mandatory evacuations were in place from Oroville to Gridley and the low lands of Yuba County. Hours later after further monitoring it was determined that the rate of erosion had lessened and a plan was begun to place boulders or large rocks into the hole using helicopters. As of Monday morning the plan was to lower the lake, do temporary repairs to the spillway and the emergency spillway before the next rains Wednesday evening.

Anita was born in San Francisco and is still a fan of the San Francisco Giants. She is a very active and outgoing senior. HAPPY BIRTHDAY ANITA!!

Marysville, Oroville and the Dam

Op/Ed by Lou Binninger

To the casual observer it is no surprise that Marysville was ranked last among 511 counties and cities in fiscal health by the California Policy Center. Yuba City, Live Oak, Sutter County and Yuba County did fairly well with Yuba City ranking lowest at 367 and scoring an 86 in fiscal strength among this group.

Oroville, a city that once was considered similar to Marysville in demographics and economy, has moved on up. Oroville scored a 99 in fiscal strength and ranked at 152, higher than any jurisdiction around here. Good for them. They have wrestled with high unemployment, poverty, drug abuse and done well.

With Oroville receiving national attention due to the Oroville Dam debacle, the city may experience a financial rush. The initial estimate of $200 million to fix the dam may end up being just a down payment.

The clean-up, correcting the environmental damage, repairing the power plant, redoing connections to the power grid and building a new spillway system may cost a half a billion dollars or more before it's over. Oroville should receive some nice collateral benefits from the activities to make the dam whole again.

Marysville, contrary to Mayor Samayoa's quote in the Appeal Democrat, is not headed in the right direction. A few months after the new 8.5% sales tax took effect citizens learned that the city will pay penalties of $288,000 for not filing 4-years of quarterly reports to the State Department of Water Resources. Who is taking responsibility for that?

Does anyone know why the 12th and J Street improvements were not completed as promised? On February 28th a $700,000 loan plus 1% per annum and a $7,000 administrative will be repaid to Yuba County. The loan was to enable the city to collect $1.8 million in grant funding for street and drainage repairs. However, no work was done. More money wasted, nothing accomplished and whose fault is that? City Hall has holes in its pockets.

To add salt to the eye of the public, city management wants a 7% raise. Why, because they are still breathing? This is exactly what the opponents to the sales tax increase warned. There were no restrictions on how the new taxes could be spent.

Just a few months since the sales tax increase and the new revenue stream is mixed into the general fund to raise salaries and pay for management blunders. Pro sales tax voters were easy prey for the bait and switch bureaucrats.

Governor Edmund G. "Pat" Brown's (1959-1967) legacy includes the California highway system and the statewide water project. Both accomplishments when created were nationally renowned. The innovations enabled California to become an international economic powerhouse, but today they are a laughing stock. Pat Brown's son, Governor Jerry Brown, has dedicated himself to undoing his father's work.

New highway development has been nil, road repair underfunded and though population has doubled in the state no new water resources have been created for over 40 years. Today, Californians are dealing with a decaying infrastructure designed for half the population courtesy of a spoiled heir to the Brown legacy and fortune.

Former Caltrans director Will Kempton says he's never seen the state's road system any worse. Starting work at Caltrans in 1976, Kempton served five years as head of the agency under Gov. Arnold Schwarzenegger.

California's roads are considered 48th poorest in the union. Similarly rated are our schools, both of which were known as the nation's best in the 1960's.

With the calamitous failing of the Oroville Dam spillway nary a word has been spoken about Governor Brown being stingy on dam maintenance. Repairs were reportedly made after cracks appeared in 2009 and 2013. Obviously the dam is not performing as designed and in its present condition.

The fact that the power house outlet could not release water without being connected to the power grid is a system that should have been modernized long ago. The power lines draped across the face of the dam and over the failing spillway is strategically lame. The auxiliary spillway is a mess.

The entire fiasco reeks of neglect and a misallocation of the state's resources undermining the safety and well-being of the taxpayers. This is what the citizens have come to expect from Brown and cocky liberal legislators.

Resident Evil: The Final Chapter
Starring: Milla Jovovich, Iain Glen, and Ali Larter. Rated: R, Runtime: 106 minutes.

This is somewhere between the sixth and the seventy-eighth installment of the Resident Evil, franchise. It says the final chapter in the title, but I have a feeling they are lying to us.

A deadly virus that reanimates dead flesh and mutates it into various frightening forms that dredge images of out our darkest nightmares, is loosed on the world. The Umbrella Corporation wanted to corner the market on everything so set about to destroy the world. Now they are the only company in business but their sales are down, I am not sure they understand why.

The story is shaped with little regard for past story lines and molded to put the heroes into various situations where they can make great kicks and punches and slide along the floor while shooting monsters. The actors did a great job putting themselves in the alternate state of a mid-apocalyptic world. The effects I am sure were awesome and took many years of man hours to perfect for the big screen. However the director thought "You know what? These are some really great shots. Lets shake it all around so no one is sure what is going on and can't fully appreciate the amount of time and effort the actors and effects crew put into making some truly stunning and interesting visuals."

Resident Evil: The Final Chapter, earns a solid two out of five, Claymore Slinging Monkeys. This is a fun movie full of action, action, action. If the camera were steady it would be worth seeing in theaters. The shaky cam can be excused if used very little, however if it is a constant feature it quickly becomes irksome then just plain insulting. It is as if the producer said "You paid ten dollars to see a movie I spent millions of dollars to make, let me shake the camera to frustrate you while you drink your five dollar soda and seven dollar popcorn." If you are a fan you have already watched it and if you are thinking of seeing it, wait for it to be released on video and watch in on Net Flix.

FISHIN' TALK

by Boots Johnson

Dan "Boots" Johnson has fished and hunted in California for 70 years. Anyone with questions or comments can email him at boots3@syix.com

Several months ago we were praying and hoping for rain. After four years of drought the water picture, which included fishing, was bleak. Fast forward several months and we are now hoping the rains stay away and the snow in the mountains stay in place until spring. Sadly, this is not the case. Our weather source advice us to expect rain on the valley floor and foothills starting on Wednesday or Thursday and continuing through the weekend with snow above 6000 feet.

The current high water will certainly benefit those of us who fish. The high water will bring more fish into the Feather River as well as the Yuba River. Striped Bass fishing on the Feather right in Yuba City should be great and black and spotted bass should be first hand in local reservoirs. Trout in reservoirs will be on the bite once the water clears.

The last four years of drought has taken its toll on lakes, reservoirs and rivers in Northern California. The Department of Fish and Wildlife rearing pens for trout took several hits with disease caused by the lack of water and with the water being too warm. The trout planting program really slowed down because of the drought. Some streams, which were spawning areas for salmon almost dried up.

With all the water now in local reservoirs which is rushing down the Feather, Yuba, Bear and American Rivers we will be seeing many changes. Some of those changes will be the depth of water, the removal of obstructions and the additions of other trees and debris which was not it that certain spot prior to the high water.

Once the Feather River stabilizes and is fishable I would not be surprised to see anglers hooking onto that prehistoric sturgeon. These monsters are bottom feeders and there is usually a striped Fisherman in the Sacramento River getting surprised with a sturgeon. The high water in the Feather will make this a chance as well. So folks, if you see the end of your pole move slightly, twitch a little and then slowing pull down it might not be a crawdad but one of the big guys. If this is your day set the hook hard and hang on for a wild ride.

Closing thought: "Be calm and crazy....laugh love and live it up because this is the oldest you have been, the youngest you will ever be again."

“Portraits of Veterans” Project

Gallery Show Scheduled for March 2017

Marysville, Ca.

Following its Veterans Art Park and Veterans Bronze casting projects, Yuba Sutter Arts proudly announces its next art project by and for Veterans. This project will engage Veterans in the process of creating semi-formal photographic portraits. A professional photographer will work with small groups of Veterans and enable them to make photographs of each other within a basic studio environment. After a brief discussion about the fundamentals of portrait photography and photographic technique, samples will be shown of the style of portraits to be created.

Professional photographers will oversee the technical aspects of each session. A portable photo studio will be set up at each location with all of the required equipment; tripod, cameras, lighting, etc. Veterans will be asked to sign a model release. The images will involve the subject or subjects, photographed against a plain background, but in high resolution for maximum clarity. The project is open to all Veterans.

It is hoped that during the process of meeting, learning and collaborating, Veterans will experience positive reinforcement of their service and enjoy creating an intimate, lasting work of art with the help and support of fellow Veterans. This is another way for Veterans to convey their stories and to honor their service in a unique and creative way.

Each photography session with individual Veterans should take 10-15 minutes; enough time for each Veteran to pose and be photographed by another Veteran. Yuba Sutter Arts welcomes the involvement of Veteran couples. Each Veteran will receive a print of the portrait and/or electronic versions of the photographs.

Yuba Sutter Arts will then produce 20”x30” black and white enlargements of the photographs to be displayed along with each Veteran’s bio (as much as they care to share) in its gallery at 624 E Street in Marysville during March 2017. They will be shown along with the Veterans Bronze face castings as part of a Veterans Art Show. A reception for the Veteran Artists will be held on Friday March 10 from 5-7pm.

Yuba College -
Veterans Resource Office Bldg. 725
2088 N. Beale Road, Marysville 95901
February 16

Children and Cell Phones

by Richard Cristdahl, OMD, drchristdahl@gmail.com

You've probably seen children, even toddlers on Television talking on a cellphone; they're in advertisements smiling and having fun. So how old do you think your child should be to have a cellphone? Do you think cellphones are safe for children? Before you answer these questions let's discuss some preliminary questions that you might not ask or know about like: How cellphones are tested for safety? What are they testing for? And why they use these tests?

Federal Communications Commissions (FCC) allows two different methods for certifying cellphones, Specific Anthropomorphic Mannequin (SAM) and Finite-Difference Time-Domain (FDTD). Testing a cellphone with SAM they use a plastic head, patterned from a 6' 2" 180 pound man, representing about 3% of the U.S. population. A homogenized liquid containing 40 tissue samples of the head is poured into a hole at the top of this head and an electric probe is positioned within the hole. The cellphone to be certified is clamped to SAM approximately one-half-inch away from its head. They're testing electric field intensities for Specific Absorption Rate (SAR), or how much radiation is absorbed into the soup within the head. If the maximum absorption is at or below the exposure limit of 1.6 W/kg, a threshold for heating the body, the phone is certified for sale. There is a ±30% tolerance of the SAM certification process. SAM doesn't test for any specific organ, gland, or tissue just the soup. SAM doesn't differentiate between men, women or children and is the only test ever used for cellphone certification.

FDTD testing is a computer algorithm and for decades has been the best way to simulate the amount of absorbed microwave radiation in tissues. In 1997 the FCC stated, "Currently, the finite-difference time-domain algorithm is the most widely accepted computational method for SAR modeling". The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) uses FDTD for testing medical microwave treatment devices. FDTD tests using the "Virtual Family" and can test for: any age either male or female, even pregnant with fetus; any body part or organ, eyes wearing glasses with or without metal frames; breasts in a bra with or without metal stays; glands and different tissues. FDTD costs less than SAM, and has never been used to certify cellphones. So why does the TCI choose a more expensive testing, one that is less accurate, can't test the difference between men, women or children, and can't test tissue, organs or glands? There's no way to know for sure so I can only speculate trying to use common sense and some facts.

The TCI's choice of size, inaccuracy, and SAM representing only large males, it's reasonable to think they would rather test something that can absorb more radiation so their phones can be more powerful and still pass testing. Having a more powerful cellphone means better reception, less dead zones, and fewer dropped calls, creating a more desirable product.

If the TCI used FDTD and tested children and women, there could be cellphones that would not be certified or would have to have warning labels for these population groups that have higher absorption rates than large men. If organs, glands and tissue were tested especially brain tissue and parotid glands warning labels might be required stating how close a phone is to be held to your head. It's reasonable to conclude that they're cellphones being sold today that couldn't pass the FCC "Safety Guidelines" if the FDTD testing was used. TCI uses the FCC "Safety Guidelines", which allows cellphone certification if radiation intensities don't heat your body within six-minutes of use.

May 30, 2011 The World Health Organization classified EMF/RF radiation a Class 2B Possible Carcinogen. May 27, 2016 our Governments National Toxicology Program completed $25 million rodent study initiated by the FDA that connected cell phone use to cancer. All this coupled with the TCI's resistance to put warning labels on their cellphones denoting safe usage and in light of all the studies showing adverse health effects; it's now time to educate yourselves and take action for your children's safety. If you feel your child absolutely needs a cellphone please consider a 3G cellphone used only on an as needed basis. These phones radiate only when you're talking, texting when sending or receiving, whereas a 4G phone radiates constantly. Cellphones are not safe for children and parents should wait one year after menarche or voice change before getting your teenager a 3G cellphone and monitor their use.

Friday, February 17th is Random Acts of Kindness Day. Handing out Random Acts of Kindness has a domino effect and before you know it, people are helping each other all over the place. So be generous with those acts of kindness, and just maybe, you'll be on the receiving end.

Monday, February 20th is President's Day. It is a National Holiday so the kiddies will be out of school, banks will be closed, as well as government offices. This day was set aside to honor all of our past and present President's birthdays. Happy Birthday to you!

Look Back in Time – In 1903 Mrs. Knotwell had her store and post office in Forbestown lighted with gasoline lamps, a great improvement (wonder what they used before gasoline).

Hope to see you in Brownsville soon.

Annual Italian Dinner

The Yuba Sutter Legal Center for Seniors will celebrate 40 years of providing free legal services to the community's elderly at its Annual- Italian Dinner fund raiser Friday, Feb. 24 at the Veterans Hall in Yuba City.

One of the first senior legal offices started under the older Americans Act, the Legal center began offering free legal advice and assistance to the Yuba Sutter community in 1977.

During its 40 years, the Legal center has assisted thousands of seniors in landlord-tenant matters, obtained restraining orders to stop abuse, resolved consumer disputes, and obtain benefits to which they are entitled.

Each year the Italian

Dinner serves as the Legal Center's major fund raiser.

"This is an important fund raiser to help sustain these essential services to our community, said Susan Townsend, directing attorney.

All monies raised will be used to provide free legal services to area seniors.

Volunteers from employee owned Recology Yuba-Sutter will provide and prepare the dinner.

Students from River Valley High school will attend to the tables.

There will be raffle prizes, a silent auction and a dessert auction. Sutter County Supervisor Jim Whiteaker will emcee the dessert auction.

Sponsorships for tables, auction items, etc., are available. Persons can also support the legal Center by donating silent auction items, raffle prizes or desserts.

The evening starts at 6:30 p.m. with a no-host wine and beer bar provided. Dinner is at 7 p.m.

The Legal Center is a Yuba Sutter United Way agency and is also funded by the Agency on Aging/Area 4.

Tickets are $15 each or $80 for a table of six.

For more information, to sign up as a sponsor or to get tickets, contact, the Legal Center, 725 D. Street, Marysville, or call 742-8289 or 742-2334.

Valentine's Day means brisk business for California floral sector

This year's midweek Valentine's Day, allowing for more at-work floral deliveries, will be a boon to the business, say California flower growers and wholesalers. Demand for all flower varieties is up, with a rising interest in locally and sustainably grown blooms buoying requests for California-grown alternatives to the traditional, but mostly foreign-grown, rose. Recent wet weather throughout California may put a squeeze on supplies, however.

Study suggests grapes may help protect against Alzheimer's disease

A recent University of California, Los Angeles, study suggests regular consumption of grapes may help protect against early decline in cognition associated with Alzheimer's disease. Participants ate the equivalent of 2 1/4 cups of grapes each day for six months and demonstrated beneficial changes in brain metabolism, cognition and working memory performance. The study adds to the growing evidence of the beneficial role grapes may play in cardiovascular and neurologic health.

U.S. production of pulses on track for record-breaking year

Strong exports and an increase in domestic demand have encouraged U.S. farmers to plant more pulses--dried beans, lentils and peas--with production of lentils and chickpeas set to reach a record high for the 2016-17 marketing year. A growing interest in healthy snacks and gluten-free foods has increased American consumption of pulse products. Retail sales of chickpea-based hummus, for example, have exploded from less than $10 million in the 1990s to as much as $800 million in recent years.

California cling peach growers seek to secure future of crop

California growers of cling peaches face a volatile future due to mounting challenges from increased labor costs and stiff price competition from China, Greece and Chile, according to the California Canning Peach Association. California grows nearly all the nation's cling peaches, used mainly for canning and baby food. In a bid to secure the future of the crop, growers are turning increasingly to mechanized harvesting to lower labor costs, and are focusing on high quality and advocating for a "Buy American" provision for school-lunch program purchases to drive demand.

Your One Minute News Digest

by Don Rae

are going to raise taxes on the purchasing of a house. Are they smoking those funny cigarettes again? Notice the media says nothing about this.

- All these snowflakes and their pacifier, cry-in loony cohorts keep listening to the left. For example Obama pontificates over how divided the country is. But who is responsible? Recall Obama forced the Affordable Care act (ACA) without a single Republican vote. Harry Reid changed the Senate rules to get the ACA through. Obama called a local Massachusetts police department “stupid.”: Hillary had an infamous “reset” but-ton with the Russians. Obama had an open mike slip telling the Russians that once he was re-elected he could do what he pleased. The list could go on forever. Everything the former administration did was designed to tear apart the fabric of America. Good riddance.

- We keep hearing about a Black Caucus as the best thing since sliced bread. Just think if there was a White Caucus. Riots in the street.

- UC Davis students and faculty are so tolerant they could not stand the thought of listening to a conservative gay person. So they protested and the college Republicans had such backbone that they cancelled the talk.

- Those who advocate for sanctuary cities claim they fear that immigration law enforcement will drive illegals into the shadows which the “do gooders” claim will make Americans less safe. Really? Let’s try that logic on, say, burglars. Enforcing the law against burglary will force burglars into the shadows and make the rest of us less safe. Illogic of the Left.

- The ACLU, the Asian Law Caucus and the Council on American-Islamic Relations sent a letter to the San Francisco political hierarchy expressing concern over the City’s Police Department’s cooperation with the FBI on immigration matters. It makes it apparent that the ACLU wants to protect terrorists rather than citizens.

- Charles Piller wrote recently that it’s been more than 10 years since California launched experiments in medical research when voters approved a $3 billion fund to start looking for stem cell therapies. So far it is $3 billion down a rat hole. The California Institute for Regenerative Medicine has not moved any possible experimental therapies into clinical trials. Even The National Institute of Health has sent 3.5 times as many human trials on their way. California bureaucracy is not looking very competent.

- Senator Elizabeth Warren lambasted Betsy DeVos, new Secretary of Education, for promoting charter schools and vouchers. She prefers government education.

Warren’s husband is a private school headmaster. Hypocrite. Drain the swamp.

- Johnny Carson once called California the State of “quakes and flakes”. Still is.

- The Department of Energy, (just about the time Obama slammed the White House door behind him), redefined the words in the light bulb law, to include a lot more types of light bulb including three-way bulbs. Another ridiculous regulation. But it could have been expected as Obama set a record with 97,110 pages of regulations costing around $350 billion.

- For years, documentation about fraud, corruption and wholesale voting by illegal aliens has been trashed, forgotten or laughed at by the libs and the press. But since these folks survive by fraud and corruption nothing is done to correct something so vital to our national character. A recent poll claims that approximately 13% of illegal aliens vote. And it is estimated that 80 percent of noncitizens vote Democratic. Any surprise?

- What an idiot. An LA Councilwoman named Nury Martinez learned that Trump will publish a weekly list of crimes committed by immigrants in the country as a way to pressure sanctuary cities. “If that is not a declaration of war and intimidation, I don’t know what is,” She said. Martinez doesn’t want to know what crimes are being committed and how many? Snowflake in public office.

- Trump is considering giving State’s a block grant instead of providing money based on the number of individuals on any individual program. In California this would force the Moonbeam to decide if he wanted to keep 200,000 illegal aliens on medical care.

- Some things never change. And history tends to repeat itself when a nation is ignorant of the past. An example is a short story written by Sir Arthur Conan Doyle in 1912, but published in 1914. The story is “Danger!” a fictional account of a war between England and a country called Norland. Norland had a submarine fleet. England did not and did not believe any country would employ such a weapon especially against passenger liners. A fictional Captain John Doyle, a submarine commander, says “Common sense should have told her (England) that her enemy will play by the game that suits them best – that they will not inquire what they may do, but they will do it first and talk about it afterwards.” Recall that in 1915, the passenger liner Lusitania was sunk in a surprise attack by a submarine. The moral of this story is that preventative measures in anticipation of what an enemy is capable of doing is wise policy. Keep at it Trump.

What True Democracy Looks Like

Congressman McClintock delivered the following remarks on the House floor

Our nation has come to a crossroads between two competing visions of the future that don’t easily reconcile. At such times as these, emotions run high.

The good news is that our institutions are the best ever designed to resolve such political disputes. In other countries, the government is the sovereign and rights flow from it to the people. In America, the people are sovereign.

But in America, the sovereign doesn’t govern. It hires help to govern during an election. In-between elections, the sovereign people debate how the hired help is doing. That’s the real debate: the one that goes on every day wherever Americans gather. And after that family discussion, we decide whether to fire the hired help or keep it for another cycle.

As long as we are TALKING WITH each other and not SHOUTING AT each other, our system works well.

Once in our history, we stopped talking with each other. That was the election of 1860.

That election was marked not by reconciliation, but by rioting in those regions where the opposition dominated. The opposition party refused to accept the legitimacy of the election itself. Political leaders pledged resistance to the new administration by any means necessary. They asserted the doctrine of nullification, the notion that any dissenting state or city that opposed federal laws could simply refuse to obey them. Finally came the secession movement – the ultimate rejection of our Constitution and the rule of law.

Have we not started down that road once again?

Even before this election, we saw violent mobs carrying foreign flags, physically attack Americans for the sole reason that they wanted to attend a political rally for the candidate of their choice. The violence in Berkeley last week warns us that this behavior is rising.

Some prominent elected officials are again asserting nullification by declaring their jurisdictions “sanctuaries” where federal immigration laws will simply be ignored. And in California, a formal secession movement is supported by nearly a third of the population of my own suffering state.

I have held more than a hundred town hall meetings in my district throughout the last eight years spanning the entire life of the Tea Party and Occupy Wall Street movements. Through all those heated debates, the police have never had to intervene. Until this weekend, in Roseville, when the Roseville Police Department determined that the size and temper of the crowd required a police escort to protect me as I left the venue.

The vast majority of the people attempting to attend the meeting were peaceful, decent and law abiding folks sincerely opposed to President Trump, wanting to make their views known to their elected representative. But there was also a well-organized element that came to disrupt – and disrupt they did.

In the last four elections, our country has turned dramatically away from the left. The Democrats have lost 67 House Seats, 12 Senate Seats, 10 Governors, more than 900 state legislative seats and now the Presidency. That happened in large part because those who opposed their policies talked with their neighbors about the future of our country.

Instead of pursuing that successful example, the radical left seeks not to persuade their fellow citizens by reason, but rather to impose its views by bullying, insulting, intimidating -- and as in Berkeley, by physically attacking -- their fellow citizens.

This is not a tactic likely to change minds, but if it persists, it could tear down the very institutions of democracy that have served us so well for so long.

I would ask the many sincere citizens who have been caught up with this disruptive element, do you object because the President is breaking his promises? Or do you object because he is keeping them? And if your objection is because the President is keeping the promises he made, is that not because the sovereign people – your neighbors and fellow countrymen – directed these changes over the last four elections?

If your love of our Constitution is greater than your hatred of our President, I implore you to engage in a civil discussion with your fellow citizens. That is what true democracy looks like.

Another Breach in the Forbestown Ditch

No Disruption in Service Anticipated

Brownsville, Ca.

A new breach in the Forbestown Ditch was discovered 2/7/17. Approximately 200 feet of the ditch has washed out, about 230 feet downstream of the previous breach that occurred on January 11. No residents or structures are in the vicinity of the breach.

The ditch feeds the NYWD treatment pond, the source of water for approximately 2500 residents. The treatment pond stores enough water for 10-14 days of potable water production, and this current storm is producing enough runoff below the breach to extend this timeframe. While no disruption in service is anticipated at this time, customers are again being asked to conserve water. A call with this new information went to customers of NYWD 2/8/17.

“Again we are asking our customers to avoid all unnecessary water-related activities until the ditch is repaired,” said Jeff Maupin, NYWD Manager. “The contractors have been out there, but it’s just not safe to begin any work until this storm passes. It’s hard to express how saturated the ground is in that area.”

Northstar Engineering of Chico and Duke Sherwood Contracting Inc. of Oroville are again performing the work. The previous January breach was repaired ahead of schedule and below budget. As with the previous breach, the affected area will be piped as the repair method.

“Piping the entire Forbestown Ditch is really what’s needed,” said Maupin, “until that is accomplished, we will always be dealing with an open ditch, exposed to the environment and subject to complications like

The NYWD Board of Directors voted in December to pursue a $500,000 State grant to begin planning and engineering to pipe the Forbestown Ditch. Moving to a piped Ditch would lower the possibility of breaches like those experienced over the past month. A piped Ditch would also save a significant amount of water lost from seepage and evaporation, increase the amount of water available for irrigation customers and eliminate a vast majority of dirt, trash and contamination from entering the treatment pond.

Additional calls will go to NYWD customers as updates on the breach become available.

Indoctrination Center Ahead

Author Chuck Frank

There was a time when the general population was concerned about their individual freedom, constitutional issues, justice and unalienable rights (i.e. God given rights.) Yes, there are millions of us that remain in America who still desire this. However, there are numerous others that have been led down a not so ivy covered path by sleazy educators, administrators, facilitators, BAR attorney's, and basically traitors who have embraced an ideology of Marxism which is a system meant to change the economics of a society while also remaking the culture which will then produce a government from the top down instead of from the bottom up.

Following this model a bit farther and then watching its development, a child today experiences a top down system which begins in school and the classroom. Children learn very quickly how to submit to a system of staunch rules and then will bring that entire package with them into adulthood. That's the plan.

It is the Marxist state of conformity which is the end game while freedom to deviate from the pack is discouraged. Creativeness and individuality is replaced by collective thought to where the ability to think freely is lost. Thus comes the danger and the loss of critical thinking which is accompanied by force able indoctrination while inducing someone to give up basic political, social, or religious beliefs and attitudes thereby accepting contrasting regimented ideas through persuasion by propaganda and mainstream media news that favor a specific top down goal.

This agenda is masked within the realm of the "intellegenta" that ushers in their own set of beliefs while also forming a political correct standard which furthers the tyrannical foundational order of Marxism. The Communist Manifesto published in London by Karl Marx in 1848 emphasizes some of these main points.

- Abolition of private property in land and application of all rents of and to public purpose.
- A heavy progressive or graduated income tax.
- Abolition of all rights of inheritance.
- Confiscation of the property of all emigrants and rebels.
- Centralization of credit in the hands of the state, by means of a national bank with state capital and an exclusive monopoly.
- Centralization of the means of communication and transportation in the hands of the state.
- Extension of factories and instruments of production owned by the state.
- Combination of agriculture with manufacturing industries
- Free education for all children in government schools.
- Combination of education with industrial production.

What is missing in the above points? It is my own newest addition to the list which is called the "Environmentalism Order", yet soon to be dismantled by President Trump & Company. Yes, we are looking forward to the funeral.

lien, you should understand that there are risks involved in bidding at a trustee auction. You will be bidding on a lien, not on the property itself. Placing the highest bid at a trustee auction does not automatically entitle you to free and clear ownership of the property. You should also be aware that the lien being auctioned off may be a junior lien. If you are the highest bidder at the auction, you are or may be responsible for paying off all liens senior to the lien being auctioned off, before you can receive clear title to the property. You are encouraged to investigate the existence, priority, and size of outstanding liens that may exist on this property by contacting the county recorder's office or a title insurance company, either of which may charge you a fee for this information. If you consult either of these resources, you should be aware that the same lender may hold more than one mortgage or deed of trust on the property. NOTICE TO PROPERTY OWNER: The sale date shown on this notice of sale may be postponed one or more times by the mortgagee, beneficiary, trustee, or a court, pursuant to Section 2924g of the California Civil Code. The law requires that information about trustee sale postponements be made available to you and to the public, as a courtesy to those not present at the sale. If you wish to learn whether your sale date has been postponed, and, if applicable, the rescheduled time and date for the sale of this property, you may call, 916-939-0772 for information regarding the trustee's sale or visit this internet Web site, www.nationwideposting.com, for information regarding the sale of this property, using the file number assigned to this case, T.S.# 9948-2069. Information about postponements that are very short in duration or that occur close in time to the scheduled sale may not immediately be reflected in the telephone information or on the internet Web site. The best way to verify postponement information is to attend the scheduled sale. If the Trustee is unable to convey title for any reason, the successful bidder's sole and exclusive remedy shall be the return of monies paid to the Trustee and the successful bidder shall have no further recourse. ## Taking care of ex-presidents

As President Trump takes office, one has to wonder what golf course Barrack Obama might be twiddling away the hours on and what the heck retirement is like for an ex-President of the United States.

Well fret not dear listener, life isn't too bad for those retiring from the highest office in the land. After two full terms in the White House, the American tax payer will make sure the Obama's won't have to get any odd jobs to make ends meet, no sireee Bob.

Unlike some pension's plans where you have to be a certain age to start collecting, Obama will start collecting paychecks immediately. This year he will collect a hefty sum of about $208,000.00 and similar amounts each and every year. During his presidency Obama petitioned to cap the total yield value of tax-advantaged retirement payments at $205,000 a year. Humm.... no goose/gander parallels drawn here of course.

But no worries. There's a lot more where that came from. He gets a transition expense for stuff you and I pay for like phone, stamps, staff and whatever else he might need to conduct business, whatever that means. This payment can be hefty. George Bush racked up over $900,000 in 1993. He also gets office allowances to pay for staff, materials or whatever else his "business" might need for the rest of his life. Those max out at $375,000.00 for about 30 months then it drops to a paltry $96,000.00 a year for the duration.

Lifetime protection from the Secret Service is included as well. Before Obama took office that protection expired after 10 years but Obama himself extended that for life for Bush, himself and all presidents to follow. Estimates on the cost for this protection is about 20 million a year (Daily Mall). Ouch.

If he or any of his family get sick, they get the Federal Health Benefit Program which means no Obamacare for Obamas.

They will also get funds to build a library named after him of course as do all Presidents and the speaking circuit will likely yield millions more in income if history proves to be any example.

Not to make you feel bad of course nor draw any conclusions about whether ex-presidents deserve this kind of compensation. I'm just telling you Obama won't be in the ranks of the middle class. With all this money coming his way, he will likely be closer to the 1%'ers than he will be to those 99%'ers he so staunchly defended. Life does have its ironies.

ONE HUNDRED SIXTY FIVE YEARS OF FARMING TRADITIONS AND THE TRADITION CONTINUES

When Larry Young came to Oregon House in 1852 via the Oregon Trail, it was in hope to find fortune in the rich quartz gold mines of the Yuba Foothills. The word of rich gold strikes, fertile soil, abundance of water and a mild Mediterranean climate brought settlers from New York, Indiana and from Europe.

The original settlers realized that gold was deep within quartz veins below the surface, mainly in deep pockets of water.

When the spark of gold fever dwindled, the settlers who remained turned to ranching cattle and other livestock.

The land that encompasses Oregon House Farms was the original Oregon House Stage Stop with a livery barn on the corner of Indiana School Road and Frenchtown Dobbins Road. The original forge is in the front yard of the home of Jenny Cavaliere. The farm has been in ranching and raising cattle for over 165 years.

In 1989, a new age rancher settled on the site of Oregon House and she has continued the ranching tradition and named her land, Oregon House Farms.

Raising purebred Aberdeen Angus for seedstock replacement bulls and calves, the need to expand the farm which now encompasses 63 acres in Oregon House and Dobbins.

At the corner of Indiana School and Frenchtown Dobbins Road, a large green barn welcomes visitors on Saturdays and Sundays between the hours of 10-3:00pm. In July 2007, Jenny opened her Oregon House Farm Store to market her branded High Sierra Beef. THE BEEF IS ORGANIC, ANGUS, AND GRASSFED. You can purchase a single cut, or a quarter, half or whole beef. Especially recommended here are the rib eye steaks, tender and delicious.

Also available are pork, lamb and whole chicken. Inside, and decorating the outside are artifacts made by local artisans along with antiques, fine art, vintage clothing, pottery, jewelry, books, you name it.

Jenny is a favorite auntie within her own family and highly regarded by other school children who visit in droves with their educators. They learn what farming, ecology and organic foods are all about. In the summer, they may dive into Meadow lake for a refreshing swim or a water fight.

A tour of Oregon House Farms can be seen on DVD by visiting YouTube "Jenny Cavaliere," https://www.youtube.com/channel/UCIPKbtB1MA4GUiKv\_51F0w.

Learn and Understand the Constitution of the United States

by Larry P. Arnn, Hillsdale College

President Trump is going to leave his mark on the U.S. Supreme Court. In addition to Justice Scalia's replacement, it is likely that another seat will be vacated during his term. Donald Trump's nominees could keep the court split or they could tip the court back toward limited constitutional government for an entire generation. An opportunity exists to undo the Progressive judicial activism that has undermined our Constitution the past century. This court's docket will certainly include controversial issues--such as Obamacare and immigration--and Donald Trump's nominees will play an important role in the direction of our country. Although the Supreme Court is tasked with interpreting the Constitution, many today think of the Supreme Court as the final authority on the Constitution. This was not the intention of those who wrote it. All three branches were to be responsible for upholding the Constitution, and the ultimate responsibility was to lie in the hands of those who established it - "We the People."

Hillsdale's Supreme Court course looks at several of the most important cases in the Court's history-cases that have had a dramatic effect on our politics and our society today. We will also look at the intended role of the Supreme Court, how that role has changed, and the ways in which that change has undermined our Constitution and our freedom. I teach the first and last lecture, and the others are taught by our world-class Hillsdale faculty. There is no cost to take the course and you can watch the lectures at your leisure. I hope you'll take the opportunity to learn about this important topic. I invite you to enroll in Hillsdale College's new free online course, "The U.S. Supreme Court."
