Where's Everybody Going?

Persistently shrinking population and the reasons why

The latest population estimates from the U.S. Census Bureau, California's total population declined by more than 500,000 between April 2020 and July 2022.

By Ben Christopher, CALMatters.org

In 2021, it was big news — the "California exodus." Now, it just looks like the new trend: California's population is still shrinking.

According to the latest population estimates from the U.S. Census Bureau, California's total population declined by more than 500,000 between April 2020 and July 2022.

Put another way, 1 out of 100 people living in California at the beginning of the COVID-19 pandemic had, two years later, left the state — either by U-Haul or by hearse.

Where'd they all go? Some died, though there were far more births; Some left the country, though on net, more immigrants arrived; The major driving factor: Californians departing for other states.

Just counting out-of-staters coming in and Californians leaving, the state's population saw a 871,127 net decline. If you're wondering why the state lost a congressional seat at the beginning of this decade, this is why.

This isn't a national problem. It's a California, New York, Illinois and Louisiana problem. California is one of only 18 states that saw its numbers decline and had the fourth biggest drop as a share of its population.

Topping the list of rapid growers are other Western states that aren't on the pricey coast: Idaho, Montana and Utah.

That may be why Utah Gov. Spencer Cox recently pleaded with Californians to stay put rather than come as "refugees to Utah." UCLA economist Paul Ong was quoted: "While salaries in other regions and states are lower, the cost of housing is even lower."

But not all of California is shrinking at the same rate. And no surprise, housing seems to be the key explanation why. A San Francisco Chronicle analysis of local population changes

Bayrouthy Named Voice of the River Cats

Sacramento River Cats Communications

WEST SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - After receiving interest from across the country, the Sacramento River Cats, proud Triple-A affiliate of the San Francisco Giants, are thrilled to announce Zack Bayrouthy as the new voice of the franchise.

Bayrouthy replaces long-time River Cats announcer Johnny Doskow, who accepted a position with the Oakland Athletics in January. The Worcester, Massachusetts native Bayrouthy becomes the fourth voice of the River Cats, following Jeff Walker (2000), Doskow (2001-2022), and Spanish-broadcaster Jose Reynoso (2000-2008).

"We received an overwhelming amount of interest in the position and Zack quickly separated himself from the pack with his mixture of on-air talent designed to put American experiences in Vietnam in a historical and cultural context.

The 2023 national The Wall That Heals tour is generously sponsored by USAA. Through a partnership with the Truckload Carriers Association (TCA), the trucking industry, and Blue Beacon, the exhibit is able to travel across the country.

Since its debut in 1996, the exhibit has been on display in more than 700 U.S. communities in addition to an April 1999 tour of the Four Provinces of Ireland and a visit to

Canada in 2005. The Wall That Heals is a program of VVMF, the nonprofit organization that built the Vietnam Veterans Memorial in Washington, D.C. in 1982. The Wall That Heals is the only traveling exhibit affiliated with The Wall in Washington, D.C. and includes the largest Wall replica that travels the country. Two VVMF staff members lead volunteers on site, educate visitors and students, and ensure the reflective atmosphere of The Wall. More information can be found at: www.thewallthatheals.org. PG&E Urges Customers to See if They Qualify for Federal Program

PG&E News Release

OAKLAND, CA (MPG) - As Low Income Home Energy Assistance Program (LIHEAP) Action Day in Washington, D.C. occurred on February 16, 2023, Pacific Gas and Electric Company (PG&E) urges customers who are struggling to pay energy bills to learn more about the program and see if they qualify.

National Energy and Utility Assistance Coalition (NEUAC) hosted the LIHEAP Action Day. Hundreds of community advocates from throughout the country will travel to Capitol Hill to urge continued, substantive funding for the program, including PG&E and local LIHEAP service providers.

The federally funded program helps low-income households with their energy bills, including those at risk of having service interrupted for non-payment. LIHEAP is overseen by the California Department of Community Services and Development (CSD) and administered by nonprofit agencies that can help financially impacted residents in providing assistance toward their energy bill. Eligibility for the program is determined by income, household size, place of residence, and other factors.

Last year marked the highest amount of bill credits received by PG&E customers – in total, more than $75.4 million. This January, PG&E customers received a total of $8.6 million, with the average bill credit totaling nearly $1,000. Available funds will vary based on customer circumstances and funding availability.

PG&E is not responsible for administering the LIHEAP program. To find the local LIHEAP agency in your area to apply, visit csd.ca.gov/energybills or call (866) 675-6623 for more information.

To take advantage of additional programs, tools and savings opportunities, PG&E recommends customers become more familiar with the following:

Separate from CARE, income-qualified households with three or more persons can apply for the Family Electric Rate Assistance (FERA) Program at pge.com/FERA for an 18% discount on their electric bill;

Relief for Energy Assistance through Community Help (REACH) provides income qualified customers with financial assistance during times of hardship;

Customers on the Medical Baseline program who have special energy needs due to certain qualifying medical conditions can receive a lower rate on monthly energy bills;

Budget Billing averages customers' monthly energy costs to help monthly payment amounts remain more consistent, even if energy use changes significantly from season to season.

Extend your bill due date or make a payment arrangement. Access your online account for details. ★

Where's Everybody Going?

between 2010 and 2020 found that the fastest growing city in California was the East Bay bedroom community of Dublin, which permitted four-times as many new housing units per person as nearby San Francisco.

But as California lawmakers grapple with the housing and homelessness crisis, a familiar clash is emerging between state and local lawmakers.

Despite a no-nonsense warning from Attorney General Rob Bonta, elected officials in Huntington Beach are vowing to fight state mandates to permit more than 13,000 new units over the next decade. They also pledged to push forward a local ordinance to exempt the city from the "builder's remedy" — an untested state law that punishes cities that haven't met their state housing goals by allowing developers to build as many units as they like, so long as at least 20% are set aside for low-income residents.

In the well-to-do 'burbs of Silicon Valley, builder's remedy applications are beginning to pour in. But some cities are refusing applications outright, while others are charging five-figure processing fees.

A nonprofit financed by the California Association of Realtors has been on a state-spanning lawsuit spree, asking courts to invalidate multiple cities' housing plans, paving the way for builder's remedy applications.

With hundreds of cities still deemed "out of compliance" with state housing requirements, the Department of Housing and Community Development set up a new web portal inviting Californians to "report potential violations of state housing law."

Remember when San Francisco Sen. Scott Wiener introduced a bill earlier this week that would require any developer who wants to make use of a particular housing law to pay their workers union-level wages — but stopped short of forcing developers to hire union members?

In an ideological divide between the state building trades union and the carpenters, that put Wiener squarely with the carpenters.

The trades responded. They aren't impressed. Trades President Andrew Meredith, in a statement: "Proponents' attempts to paint this as an affordable housing play are disingenuous. This is clearly all about putting more money in developer pockets."

And in many places in California, high housing costs are a driver of the gap between rich and poor. ★

Two individuals inside the residence were detained by deputies as they began to conduct the investigation. Subsequently, the Sacramento Sheriff's Office said one individual was arrested in connection with the murder although it is not certain whether the suspect was one of the original detainees.

Is Ending Homelessness Just a Matter of Money?

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

Being what it is, California has a mélange of complex public policy issues – some of them fully blown crises – that defy resolution year after year, decade after decade.

Rather than recognize and deal with their complexities, the state's politicians tend to condense responses into money.

K-12 education exemplifies the syndrome. The state's nearly 6 million public school students perennially fail to make the cut in national tests of academic achievement, often trailing states that spend far less per-pupil on their schools.

It indicates that money is only one factor, and perhaps not the most important one, in educating children. Nevertheless, the political debate over the state's educational deficiencies begins and ends with how much money is being spent, thereby providing a convenient excuse for failure.

California's newest crisis, the nation's highest level of homelessness in both absolute and relative terms, is following a similar arc.

Why upwards of 200,000 Californians, and probably more, are homeless involves factors that, much like educational aptitude, are as individual as fingerprints. While theories on causes and potential cures abound, once again the politics of the issue is focused on money – how much to spend, who spends it and who, if anyone, is held accountable for outcomes.

The politics of homelessness – or rather of spending on homelessness – appear to be entering a very contentious phase.

Early in his governorship, Gavin Newsom appointed himself as the state's homelessness czar and during the first three years of his governorship (2018-21) the state spent nearly $10 billion on battling the social malady, according to a new state report. The money paid for 35 different programs administered by nine different state agencies.

That total does not count billions more in homelessness spending by federal and local governments or the additional billions in more recent years. The 2022-23 budget allocated another $10.2 billion while Newsom, facing deficits, proposes an additional $3.4 billion for 2023-24.

Despite the spending, homelessness numbers have continued to rise and legislators know that the voting public is losing patience.

"It's very frustrating for the general public when they hear that in the state, we're spending billions – and that's billions with a B – of dollars on homelessness and housing. And yet they don't feel that they're seeing enough of an impact in their communities," Assemblywoman Laura Friedman, a Burbank Democrat, said.

In recent months, Newsom has blamed local governments for a lack of aggressiveness, saying he would be "hard-pressed to make a case to the Legislature to provide them $1 more" if local officials don't accelerate homelessness responses.

Newsom has not yet told the Legislature how he would compel stronger local action. Local officials say they need clear lines of accountability and a dependable stream of money to finance ongoing programs rather than yearly allocations that can vary widely.

"When you look at child welfare, transportation, criminal justice, health care, education, it's clear who's supposed to do what and how it's funded," says Graham Knaus, CEO of the California State Association of Counties. "Not with homelessness."

So, one might wonder, if successfully battling homelessness is a matter of money, how much would it take?

Fourteen months ago, the Corporation for Supportive Housing (CSH) and the California Housing Partnership released a report projecting that California could end homelessness by 2035 were it to spend $8.1 billion a year until then – the vast majority of it for housing.

That totals more than $100 billion, a big number that does not include ancillary services such as food, medical care and treatment for mental illness, drug addiction and alcoholism. However, it might be a bargain if, in fact, it worked.

Dan Walters has been a journalist for nearly 60 years, spending all but a few of those years working for California newspapers. ★

Unprecedented Levels of High Severity Fire Burn in Sierra Nevada Forests

By Kat Kerlin, UC Davis News and Media Relations

High-severity wildfire is increasing in Sierra Nevada and Southern Cascade forests and has been burning at unprecedented rates compared to the years before Euro-American settlement, according to a study from the Safford Lab at the University of California, Davis, and its collaborators. Those rates have especially shot up over the past decade.

For the study, published in the journal Ecosphere, scientists analyzed fire severity data from the U.S. Forest Service and Google Earth Engine, across seven major forest types.

They found that in low- and middle-elevation forest types, the average annual area that burned at low-to-moderate severity has decreased from more than 90% before 1850 to 60-70% today.

At the same time, the area burned annually at high severity has nearly quintupled, rising from less than 10% to 43% today. (High-severity burns are those where more than 95% of aboveground tree biomass is killed by fire.)

Lead author and UC Davis project scientist John N. Williams said this ratio is severely out of balance.

"We're seeing more 'bad fire' and less 'good fire,'" said Williams, who is the coordinator of the California Prescribed Fire Monitoring Program. "Any consolation we'd get from the idea that, 'At least we're burning more than we used to,' isn't really a consolation because it's often coming in the form of the wrong kind of fire."

Good Fire, Bad Fire

Many fire ecologists talk about the need to burn more acreage by putting "good fire" on the ground, such as through prescribed burning, while preventing "bad fire." In forests like oak woodland, yellow pine and mixed conifer, good fire refers to the low-to-moderate severity burning that the dominant species are adapted to. They are typically ignited by lightning or by people to enrich and restore the land. Many such fires were set by Native Americans before the mid-19th century through the practice of cultural burning.

Before 1850, much more land burned each year in California compared to the present day. The study indicates that gap is beginning to close. Unfortunately, more of what is burning comprises damaging, high-severity fire.

That represents the most concerning result, say the authors: The average area of high-severity burning in the region is now above the best estimates of high-severity burning that took place before Euro-American settlement, even though overall burning in the modern day is still much lower.

"At current or even projected rates of forest management by federal and state agencies, the amount of forest treated or restored is going to be a drop in the bucket compared to the need and compared to the huge unmanaged areas that are going to burn, often at high severity," said senior author Hugh Safford, a UC Davis fire ecologist and chief scientist of environmental public benefits corporation Vibrant Planet. "I'm not exaggerating when I say that the very existence of montane conifer forest in California is at risk, especially in the southern part of the state."

A Severe Decade

Nine of California's 10 biggest wildfires occurred within the past decade. The state's record-breaking 2020 fire year — when nearly 9,900 fires burned 4.3 million acres — was the only year in which the annual area burned exceeded historical levels, but much of that burned at high severity.

The authors say this trend is especially concerning because most of the low- to middle-elevation forest types affected are adapted to low-to-moderate severity burning. Excessively severe fires in these forests can harm landscapes and the habitat and ecosystem services they provide.

Other research carried out by the Safford Lab at UC Davis and its partners has shown that negative effects of severe burning in these forest types are serious and long-lasting to biodiversity, carbon storage, soil biogeochemistry, air quality and forest regeneration.

Getting the Right Mix

The study's results highlight the need to better balance fire exclusion with management practices that proactively reduce forest fuels and increase resilience to climate change and other ecological disturbances.

"We need to burn much more each year, but we want the right mix," Williams said. "The current trend is going in the wrong direction if we want to restore forests and their natural ecological processes." ★

Are You Willing To Do What It Takes?

Dear Dave,

I'm an anesthesiologist, and I make between $260,000 and $270,000 a year. My wife is a stay-at-home mom who takes care of our preschool-age kids. We have about $50,000 in a retirement fund, $50,000 in consumer debt, $220,000 in student loan debt, and we owe $280,000 on our house, which is worth around $500,000. We're thinking about using our retirement fund to pay off credit cards and such, then selling the house and using the money to pay off the student loans. After that, we'd live in an apartment for a while, save up 20% or more for a down payment on the next home, and do things right financially moving forward. What do you think about this game plan?

- Jake

Dave Ramsey Says

Dear Jake,

Wow, I really appreciate your motivation, man. You're willing to do whatever it takes, and that's pretty cool. Not many people have the determination to do the kinds of things you're talking about.

I almost never tell people to sell their homes. If you actually can't afford it, that's one thing—and in that case, we'd sell the house. If it's the only way to avoid bankruptcy, we'd get rid of it in a heartbeat. But in your case, things are a little different. You're in a pretty deep hole, but your income as an anesthesiologist gives you a really big shovel you can use to carve out some steps, get up out of that hole, and fill it in so you never fall in again.

Now, this is going to mean some real lifestyle changes for a few years. I'm talking about beans and rice, and no vacations. There's no more living like a rich doctor, because you're not a rich doctor—you're a broke doctor. We're going to temporarily stop adding to your retirement fund, not cash it out, and we're going to start living on a written, monthly budget where every single dollar is given a name and a purpose.

Cleaning up $270,000 of debt sounds scary. But with a $260,000 income and the other changes we talked about, you could put $90,000 a year toward all this and have it completely cleaned up in just three years. That's what I'd do if I woke up in your shoes. It will set you free for the rest of your lives to invest and save.

Get on it, doc. You can do this!

- Dave

Armed Subject Taken into Custody after Pursuit

Sac County Sheriff's Dept News

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - In the early hours of January 12, 2023, North Patrol deputies responded to two calls for service for a man who made threats with a knife. Unfortunately, he could not be located either time. Shortly afterwards, at approximately 1:54 A.M., deputies were dispatched to the same area for a male who threatened a security guard with a gun. The suspect matched the description of the previous two calls. When units arrived on the scene, the subject got into a truck and attempted to drive away.

Deputies attempted to conduct a vehicle stop, but the suspect, later identified as 47-year-old Jose Hernandez, refused to stop, leading deputies on a lengthy pursuit throughout the north area of Sacramento County.

Hernandez's vehicle was disabled with spike strips and he eventually came to a stop. Hernandez refused to exit and threatened "suicide by a cop," leading to a standoff. The Sheriff's Enforcement Detail (S.E.D.) arrived on scene and assisted patrol units. After approximately two hours, Hernandez surrendered peacefully and was taken into custody without further incident. Hernandez is currently being held on $50,000 bail at the Sacramento County Main Jail, awaiting his court appearance scheduled for January 12, 2023 at 3:00 P.M. ★

Defendant Convicted of First-Degree Murder, Special Circumstance

Sac County DA News Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Brelen Page was convicted by a jury of the first-degree murder of Tymon "Malik" Rodgers. The jury also found true the allegation that Page intentionally and personally discharged a firearm causing death, and the special circumstance that Page discharged the firearm from a motor vehicle.

On January 1, 2020, the victim and his family were visiting friends in the parking lot of an apartment complex in North Sacramento. Brelen Page drove by the parking lot multiple times. On his final pass, Page produced a 9mm semi-automatic handgun and fired six to eight shots at the victim. One of the rounds struck the victim in the head and he died in the hospital three days later. Detectives identified Page's vehicle and he was taken into custody the next day. A handgun that was found in the vehicle was analyzed by the District Attorney's Crime Lab and identified as the weapon used in the murder. The gun was unregistered.

Page faces a maximum sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole. Sentencing is set for March 3, 2023, at 1:30 p.m. in Department 40 before the Honorable Steve White. ★
