SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - The increase in homelessness is not just noticeable, but a glaring concern to our communities. During the pandemic, people were let go from their jobs or even lost their businesses and did not even think that homelessness was going to happen...until it did. But, just what kind of numbers are we dealing with in California? “On any given night, the state has more than 160,000 homeless persons,” says Jialu Streeter from the Stanford Institute for Economic Policy Research.

You might be thinking, how can I prevent my family and I from going homeless? First, look at your immediate needs. You can call 2-1-1 in Sacramento or (916) 498-1000 for outside the area and go to: <https://www.211sacramento.org/211/guided-search/> for information on over 1,600 services through the Sacramento Community Resource Directory. When you call, a caring specialist at Sacramento 211 will do a holistic evaluation of your situation and provide internal referrals to the agencies and organizations that are able to fulfill your immediate needs, whether to prevent homelessness or aid you while you are experiencing it. Your case management could involve: eviction prevention, housing subsidies, shelter, medical care, legal, elderly, veteran, financial assistance, transportation, food, etc... Some of the departments or organizations you could interact with would be the Sacramento County Department of Human Assistance <https://ha.saccounty.gov/Pages/default.aspx> at (916) 874-3100 or the Sacramento Housing and Redevelopment Agency (SHRA) <https://www.shra.org/housing-choice-voucher-program/> at (916)-440-1390, which is “acting as the Housing Authority of the County of Sacramento,” that provides the Housing Choice Voucher (HCV) program for housing assistance to low income individuals and families.

Second, do not forget to seek out your elected officials for help. If your spouse is in the military reserves who abandoned you and your family, check out your congressman at: <https://myreps.datamade.us/> to locate your spouse and, in combination with family court, get help for spousal and child support. Third, trim your expenses as much as possible and find ways to help your budget, such as using the cash you get from a recycling center to pay your phone bill or instead of upgrading your cell phone, use it for years.

Under the United States Code 42 USC 11302, being homeless does not always mean living on the street; it is someone that “lacks a fixed, regular, and adequate nighttime

Failed Silicon Valley Bank, the Newsoms, and Connected Friends

By Katy Grimes, CaliforniaGlobe.com

The Silicon Valley Bank failure and shut-down is because of “idiot bank management under an incompetent board,” according to Shark Tank star Kevin O’Leary.

“O’Leary joined Fox News hosts Bill Hemmer and Dana Perino on Tuesday to discuss the Silicon Valley Bank failure and the announcement that deposits would be protected,” Mediaite reported. “President Joe Biden announced this week that people’s ‘deposits are safe.’”

“O’Leary blasted the plan, arguing it will simply provide a safety net for mismanagement. The Shark Tank star argued Silicon Valley Bank collapsed because of ‘idiot management,’ as opposed to a regulatory issue. ‘Idiot’ managers, he said, are now free to behave more irresponsibly.”

It appears there are plenty of idiots and incompetents involved in the bank, focused on Diversity, Equity and Inclusion loan and investment goals, rather than responsible financial outcomes.

But the bailout/cover up may be more of the story in the long run – as in Why did Janet Yellen, Secretary of the Treasury in the the Biden administration state last Friday that there would be no bailouts, and by Sunday, the President effectively said there would in fact be a bailout and depositors would be made whole.

What changed in 48 hours?

For one thing, pure panic in the Silicon Valley Democrat donor base. And as likely is pure panic from California’s governor and the “First Partner.”

As the Globe reported Sunday:

“California Governor Gavin Newsom issued a statement Saturday morning in response to the appointment of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) as receiver of Silicon Valley Bank:

“Over the last 48 hours, I have been in touch with the highest levels of leadership at the White House and Treasury. Everyone is working with FDIC to stabilize the situation as quickly as possible, to protect jobs, people’s livelihoods, and the entire innovation ecosystem that has served as a tent pole for our economy.”

The Intercept just reported Tuesday Gov. Gavin Newsom failed to mention that President

Defendants Convicted in No-Body Revenge Murder

Sacramento County DA News Release

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - On March 17, 2023, Robert Manor and Victor Merle Gray were convicted by a jury of the first-degree murder of Raymond Wright, with the special circumstance that the murder was committed during the commission of a kidnapping. Manor and Gray were also convicted of kidnapping for ransom causing death.

In 2011, the victim was a DUI driver and caused a collision in which Robert Manor and his wife were seriously injured. The victim was prosecuted for felony DUI by the Sacramento County District Attorney’s Office. The victim served his time and completed his probation. However, Manor held a grudge against the victim for years and put his plan for revenge into motion in 2018.

The victim was a resident of Rocklin, California. On January 11, 2018, the victim mysteriously disappeared. Concerned family members checked the victim’s Rocklin home and a shop he rented in Rio Linda. When the victim remained missing, the search extended statewide. On January 13, 2018, the victim’s brother encountered a strange man inside the victim’s home and called the police. The man ran out of the house, but a soda cup filled with a fresh drink was found in the kitchen. The straw from the cup was tested for DNA and uploaded to the CODIS database.

On January 27, 2018, Victor Gray was under the influence and led CHP on a high-speed chase. The chase ended in a crash, which caused injuries to innocent victims. Gray’s van was towed from the scene. When the van was searched, a blood-soaked raincoat, the victim’s wallet and other property belonging to the victim were found inside. Much of the property was charred and the blood on the raincoat matched the victim’s DNA. Further investigation revealed a letter from Gray to Manor complaining about not being paid for “delivering dude” and asked Manor to take care of the person “who hand delivered you your revenge.” Other evidence also linked Manor to the revenge killing and the hiring of Gray to kidnap the victim from his shop in Rio Linda. The DNA uploaded to CODIS then returned a full profile match to Victor Gray, who was a prior felon.

Raymond Wright’s body has never been found.

Manor and Gray both face a maximum sentence of life in prison without the possibility of parole. Sentencing is set for April 28, 2023, at 10:00 a.m. in Department 32 before the Honorable James Arguelles.

The investigation in this case was led by the Placer County District Attorney’s Office, the Rocklin Police Department with the involvement of many other regional law enforcement agencies as well as the Sacramento County District Attorney’s Office. ★

Aging Workers Are in Demand; They Are Reliable, Mature and Professional

Commentary By John Grimaldi, AMAC

WASHINGTON, DC, (MPG) - It's a given that the state of the U.S. economy over the past several years has caused many elders in our population to go back to work or, for those who are already in the workplace, to keep their jobs as long as they can. The inflationary cycle triggered by the policies of the Biden administration didn't make it easy for older workers to make ends meet. The cost of living has increased considerably over the past two years. But, according to a survey conducted by the Transamerica Center for Retirement Studies, "almost half of Baby Boomer workers (49 percent) expect to or already are working past age 70 or do not plan to retire. Their reasons for doing so are almost as likely to be healthy aging-related (78 percent) as financial-related (82 percent)."

The first boomers, those of us born between 1946 and 1964, celebrated our 65th birthdays in 2011 but many of them opted to keep working. The online employment agency, Indeed, says these aging workers are in demand. For one thing, "Baby boomers often aim to work as long as it takes to reach their goals and try to differentiate themselves by attaining the promotion, raise or acknowledgment they want. This generation has experienced the benefits of hard work and dedication, which is something they expect from their employer."

The senior services organization, Vantage Aging, says that this results "in a strong work ethic. With an older worker, you often find yourself with someone who works hard to get the job done right. Photo courtesy of Pixabay.

What makes senior citizens particularly valued members of the American workforce? Reliability, maturity, and professionalism. The senior services organization, Vantage Aging, says that this results "in a strong work ethic. With an older worker, you often find yourself with someone who works hard to get the job done right. It is estimated that the aging of the U.S. will continue for another four decades during which the numbers of the 65-year-old population will increase by more than 37 million, increasing from 46 million today to more than 98 million in 2060. The American Psychological Association reports that, going forward, "older adults will live longer than ever before: One out of every four 65-year-olds today will live past age 90. This demographic shift has moved the focus of researchers, health care providers and policymakers from how to extend the lifespan to ways to improve the quality of our later years. Staying healthy, active, and productive are admirable goals for our nation's older adults. However, society's view of 'old age' has not always kept up with the reality of being old in America. Many current beliefs about aging were based on information that is no longer valid given recent scientific advances." The aging process is not kind to the elderly. Many of us will have memory issues, we might find some complex chores are harder than they used to be, and we might have difficulty staying focused. But the National Institute on Aging that o [NIA] tells us that "aging may also bring positive cognitive changes. For example, many studies have shown older adults have more extensive vocabularies and greater knowledge of the depth of meaning of words than younger adults." However, the NIA also points out that "despite the changes in cognition that may come with age, older adults can still do many of the things they have enjoyed their whole lives. Research shows that older adults can still: learn new skills, form new memories, and improve vocabulary and language skills." ★

Is Silicon Valley Bank’s Failure An Omen For California?

By Dan Walters, CALMatters.org

It would be difficult to overstate Silicon Valley’s financial importance to California.

The San Jose-centered high technology industry exploded four decades ago as California’s manufacturing sector, which had boomed during and after World War II, was shrinking.

It became the state’s single most powerful economic engine, creating products and services that transformed California and had immense global impact. A few days ago, Gov. Gavin Newsom described it the “tent pole for our economy” and for once he wasn’t exaggerating.

As other economic sectors and other regions stagnated, Silicon Valley boomed. Without it, California could not have become the fifth – and very possibly the fourth – most powerful economy in the world.

Silicon Valley’s mega-corporations, such as Apple, Google and Twitter, sucked in immense amounts of money from every corner of the globe – not only making investors very rich, but creating countless jobs and pumping hundreds of billions of dollars into the state treasury as high income tax rates tapped into the new wealth.

However, there’s reason to wonder whether Silicon Valley has reached its peak.

In recent months, Silicon Valley’s corporations have been laying off workers and venture capital activity has slowed. A few weeks ago, a local industry organization, Joint Venture Silicon Valley, issued its annual report on the region’s economy, stressing a transition from a cauldron of start-up companies to dominance by a few giants.

“Tech is going through a painful period,” Russell Hancock, president of the organization said, adding hopefully that “there is no way to construe what is happening as a crisis” for the tech sector.

That was happening before Silicon Valley Bank, which was founded in 1983 as the region began to boom and rode the wave into becoming one of the nation’s largest financial houses, suddenly collapsed last week.

The bank experienced a run from depositors and could not raise enough cash to meet demand. State and federal financial regulators quickly stepped in, shuttered the bank and began seeking a buyer. Its failure sent shockwaves through Silicon Valley because of the bank’s prominent role in financing start-up companies and providing cash for payrolls and other expenses.

Relatively small depositors were covered by insurance, but hundreds of corporate customers had deposits over the $250,000 insurance limit and suddenly were unable to make withdrawals.

The immediate crisis was averted on Sunday when federal authorities arranged for Federal Reserve loans that would allow depositors to make full withdrawals. They also made money available to shore up other specialty banks that might be vulnerable to depositor runs.

Despite the emergency action, however, Silicon Valley Bank’s failure is a serious blow to the tech industry because of its pivotal role in financing innovation as a direct lender, as a financial service provider and as a midwife for attracting venture capital.

Federal authorities are looking for a buyer to absorb Silicon Valley Bank, quite possibly one of the nation’s larger banks. Even if a buyer emerges, however, the new owner would not have an intimate relationship to the region’s yeasty culture of aggressive innovation.

The bank’s owners prospered by deeply immersing themselves into that culture but that narrow focus made it vulnerable to outside economic factors. When the Federal Reserve System began raising interest rates to battle inflation, the bank’s portfolio of bonds lost value. When the bank was forced to sell those devalued bonds to meet withdrawal demands from depositors, it went into a death spiral.

The question is whether the bank’s failure is a harbinger of Silicon Valley’s decline.

Back to the Future

Have you ever wondered where you came from and who you came from that might influence who you are today? Kathy Lynne Marshall did and has written about several families including her own in “Finding Marshalls.” So why does a person who worked for the CHP change gears and turn to the past? Kathy has an insatiable curiosity. Information is her driver and now genealogy is her passion. She has delighted audiences at the Sons and Daughters of the United States Middle Passage conference and served as consultant to the West Virginia’s Beverly Heritage Center, among many more local and national media. She encourages others to look into their past to influence their future. So, on my POPPOFF Radio Show, I asked Kathy to give us some tips on how to get started out of curiosity, or perhaps write a family book on your own heritage for publication or just sharing with your family.

1. Decide which person or family line you want to check out. Determine what you want to know about them. For example: Who was my great-grandfather? What did he do for a living? Did he fight in WW I? Was he an ironworker like me? Where in Italy was my great-grandmother born.

2. Using a free digital resource like FamilySearch.org or a for-fee genealogy company, build a family tree and Include birth, death, and marriage dates and places for yourself, your spouse/partner, children, parents, grandparents etc.

3. Do a google search to find more information about the selected person of family line, such as probate records, land records, and newspaper articles. Chronicling-America is a free source for historical information.

4. Organize the research documents you gathered in binders or computer folders by person.

5. Interview your relatives for family stories and more facts.

6. DNA test several relatives in the selected family line. You’ll receive thousands of names of people who share common ancestors with your family. In addition, DNA testing will estimate where in the world your ancestors came from Kathy’s “Family Harambee” How to discuss challenging Discoveries in your family tree and her “Finding Otho” books present critical information about this DNA topic.

7. Create a document on your computer for the manuscript if that’s what your goal is. Format the pages to look like an outline of the book, e.g. title pages, table of contents, Chapter One etc.

8. Write your story or get someone to help you put it all together. If you want to publish it, you can always get a ghost writer to help you.

9. If you go the book route, get an editor and book cover creator. Your former high school English teacher is not necessarily a professional editor.

10. Print your manuscript, but remember you can self-publish it as a book or for a family keepsake for members of your immediate family.

Social Security Matters

How Do I Withdraw My Application for Social Security?

By Russell Gloor, AMAC Certified Social Security Advisor

Dear Rusty: I will be 67 next month and reached my full retirement age in July 2022. My wife and I are discussing whether we should take Social Security now or wait until we are age 70 to get a higher benefit. I remember reading that you can start Social Security and, if not needed, pay it back within a year and then “reset” to get a higher benefit by waiting longer. Please describe the steps of this process to take now and repay the year’s benefits if we do not need them. Signed: Uncertain

Dear Uncertain: Well, to exercise the so-called “do over option” (which is essentially withdrawing your application for benefits), you need to contact Social Security (1.800.772.1213 or your local SS field office) and request that your application for benefits be withdrawn. You can also download and complete form SSA-521 and deliver the same to your local Social Security office. You can get that form at this link: www.ssa.gov/forms/ssa-521.pdf.

This “do-over option” is only available within 12 months of the date you submit your application and can only be done once in your lifetime. If you use it, you will be required to repay Social Security for all payments made on your behalf, including not only your monthly payments but also any income taxes you had withheld, and any Medicare premiums which were withheld from your monthly payments (Social Security will inform you how much you must repay). Once the repayment is made, it will be as though you never applied for benefits, meaning your benefit amount will be higher when you later re-apply (which would also be the case if you simply didn’t apply – your benefit entitlement continues to grow until you claim, up to age 70 when your maximum SS benefit is attained). This process would be the same for both you and your wife.

However, I suggest you consider whether you really need to withdraw your application. Be aware that since you’ve already reached your full retirement age (FRA) you can claim now and, if you later decide you don’t need the monthly SS money, you can simply temporarily suspend your benefit payments to avoid repaying Social Security everything they’ve already paid to you and on your behalf (you don’t need to formally withdraw your application). By simply suspending (and not withdrawing), your benefit amount will start growing again with each month your benefits are suspended (about .67% more for each month you do not get benefits) and you can keep everything you’ve already received to the point you suspend your payments. To suspend your payments just call Social Security at the number provided above and tell them you wish to suspend your benefits and grow your payment amount. While you can only use the withdrawal process once in your lifetime, you can temporarily suspend your benefit payments multiple times if necessary.

It May Take A Little Time

Dear Dave,

I’ve having some problems with my parents, and I’m hoping you can help. Last summer I borrowed $2,500 from them, and it is taking me longer to pay them back than we agreed. Since the pay back date passed, they have made several comments about money when we’re together, and our relationship seems strained. I have taken steps in the last couple of months to become more financially responsible. I am now doing things like living on a budget, and putting something from each paycheck into a savings account. How should I approach this issue with them?

– Remi

Dave Ramsey Says

Dear Remi,

Loaning money to, or borrowing money from, relatives or friends often leads to bruised feelings. I’m sorry you’re going through this, but I hope it will teach you and your folks a valuable lesson going forward. There’s nothing wrong with giving money in a situation like this, as long as you’re not enabling bad behavior by doing so. But a loan between friends or family is something I never recommend.

If they choose to hold a grudge there’s really not a lot you can do, especially if you took longer than agreed upon to pay them back. It just takes more time with some people—and in some cases even parents—for those kinds of things to heal. You have to remember, in their minds there’s an element of responsibility and trust involved here. But considering it’s your mom and dad we’re talking about, I’d say they’ll lighten up and become a little easier to be around with time.

Until that happens, though, maybe you could look for chances to mention your new approach to finances during conversations with them. Even something as simple as an off-hand remark about how much you were able to put into savings from your recent paychecks may encourage them to see things in a different light. Letting them know you’re actively working to change your ways and gain control of your finances could mean a lot to them. Give it a try!

There Are 171 Trillion Plastic Particles in Our Oceans

With more than 418 million tons of plastic thought to be produced annually, our oceans, rivers, food, land, and air are overrun with pollution. Courtesy photo

Commentary by Madie Aughinbaugh, Earth Day Network

After decades of big corporations producing trillions of oil-based plastics, the negative consequences of pollution caused by these products are startling and undeniable. It’s recognized as one of the most pressing environmental and public health hazards of modern times. With more than 418 million tons of plastic thought to be produced annually, our oceans, rivers, food, land, and air are overrun with pollution.

It is time to accelerate solutions to combat plastic pollution by activating governments, citizens, and businesses to do their part to invest in our planet, everyone accountable. YOU have a part to play and can begin by doing something as simple as hosting or partaking in a cleanup in your community. EARTHDAY.ORG (EDO), the global organizer of Earth Day, has a worldwide campaign known as The Great Global Cleanup focused on ridding the environment of plastic waste for good.

Cleanups are a fun, easy, and effective way to amplify your impact in protecting our planet. If you are unsure of how or where to start, no worries! We’ve got you covered. Here are the seven keys to hosting a successful cleanup:

Organize a planning group. Whether you want to be an environmental rockstar solo or with friends and family, make sure to rally your troops and decide who is going to take the lead in organizing the cleanup. Once you’ve appointed a cleanup captain, have them assign tasks and designate roles to ensure a smooth sailing event.

Choose an ideal date, site, and time. Parks, rivers, and other similar public community sites are great options for your cleanup. And, depending on where you are, choosing a time allowing for plenty of daylight and comfortable temperatures is essential.

Gather volunteers. Use social media and word of mouth to spread awareness about your cleanup. Another great way to rally volunteers is by registering your cleanup on EARTHDAY.ORG’s Great Global Cleanup Map. This will connect you with a global network of volunteers who are just as passionate as you are about helping heal our environment.

Line up cleanup supplies and arrange for waste disposal. Asking for donations of trash bags, refreshments and equipment is a great way to keep your cleanup well supplied and financially efficient. In fact, local hardware stores are often eager to donate resources to you for the great work you’re doing. Make sure to also coordinate with local waste management for disposal after your cleanup and don’t forget to show appreciation by giving credit to contributors for their donations.

Start your cleanup. As you get closer to the date, check the weather so you can dress accordingly and make sure to send a text the night before your cleanup to remind the group! Take pictures before and after your collection to share on social media. You can also invite local media outlets to cover your event to help spread awareness about the great work you’re doing.

Dispose of waste. Sort your waste properly into trash, recyclables, and hazardous waste. Once you’ve done this, take it to the location you’ve chosen to properly discard.

Pat each other on the back for a job well done! Make sure to say thank you to everyone who helped make your cleanup a success. Post your event photos on social media using the hashtags #GreatGlobalCleanup, #TrashTag, and #Plogging and share them with local newspapers and magazine.

Real change needs to be made and you have the power to make a difference. For information about how to sign up to be a partner with The Great Global Cleanup, please visit: <https://www.earthday.org/partner-with-the-great-global-cleanup/>. ★
