Covered CA Rates to Increase

Currently 1.7 million Californians buy their coverage through the state marketplace. Photo courtesy Nyul Dreamstime.com

By Ana B. Ibarra, CALMatters.org

Premiums for health insurance plans sold through the state marketplace will increase an average of 6% next year, Covered California officials announced.

This rate hike is the largest California has seen since 2019. In the last three years, insurers had kept average increases under 2%.

Rate changes vary by region – from an 11.7% increase in Imperial, Inyo and Mono counties to zero change in Fresno, Kings, and Madera counties.

When premiums increase, an individual's financial aid usually does, too. Aid is based on household income, so subsidies may offset some of the increase. But people who don't qualify for subsidies will bear the full cost of the rate hike.

"Premiums are a capturing of what health care costs are, how they vary across geographies and communities, how health care costs are growing over time, which we know in this country are already too high and rising," said Jessica Altman, executive director of Covered California.

She noted that California's rate hike is still lower than it is in other states. A recent Kaiser Family Foundation analysis found a 10% average premium increase proposed by 72 insurers in 13 other states.

The rate increase, Altman said, is largely attributed to people resuming doctor visits and procedures that they postponed during peaks of the COVID-19 pandemic. There is also the cost of general inflation.

About one percent of the increase, however, is attributed to the potential loss of enhanced subsidies from the federal government, which are set to expire at the end of this year. Without the additional aid, people will pay more for their premiums, likely pushing young, healthy people to drop their coverage. And when healthy people leave the marketplace, premiums go up for everyone.

The federal government's American Rescue Plan last year provided California with around $3 billion designated for two years of additional financial aid through Covered California. The new law helped further reduce what people paid for their monthly premiums, driving more people to sign up for health insurance. It also expanded who was eligible for savings to include middle-income individuals.

Currently 1.7 million Californians buy their coverage through the state marketplace. Covered California has estimated that if Congress does not renew the American Rescue Plan subsidies, about 1 million people will see their premiums double

Horseback through a McDonald's Drive-thru

RIO LINDA, CA (MPG) - You may be wondering if your eyes deceived you last Friday, July 22, at the Elkhorn Plaza. They did not.

Yes, you did see horses and riders at the McDonald's drive-thru in Elkhorn Plaza on Friday in Rio Linda.

Good Day Sacramento was also on location, live and filming the uniqueness of rural living in Rio Linda. This is a horse friendly town. What else explains three girls on horseback coming to McDonald's to have a bite?

"It used to be (where) we would walk through the drive-thru and the horses got a little jumpy when the food bag was handed to us," said horse rider Justice Scott. "Plus, we were limited to what you could carry and safely stay on your horse at the same time. Now with the new horse area, with its new hitching post and sandy area for tying up your horse, (it's easier.)"

Other riders were satisfied with the improvements as well.

"It's much easier and much safer using that area," Renae Negri told The Rio Linda News. "We were really glad when McDonald's remodeled the store and took us horse riders into consideration."

TV reporter Rachel

Wulff, from Good Day Sacramento heard about the story idea and came to the local Mickey-D's to report about this uniqueness in Rio Linda. Wulff did a live report Friday at

Unity in the Community: A Huge Success

Story and photos
by Cecilia Feser

RIO LINDA, CA (MPG) - Blowing Bubbles, Police Dogs, the wonderful smell of grilling hot dogs and hamburgers. Squealing children were delighted while their parents were tagging behind. There were over 20 different tents each with different Police themed information. The Sheriff's Activity League was there to bridge the gap between the police and the community. Ron Briggs said, "Please go to www.ssdsal.org/," it will talk about all the ways we help the community. Michell Vang was behind a table representing The Toy project. Michelle Harp told me, "We are here to help the less fortunate to have a positive Police experience. If a family is in crisis, we will get an internal request from our different offices, the family's name and the situation they are facing. It feels good to help those families. It can be from providing clothing, food or temporary housing," Officer Michelle Harp told me. The Bohomaz family was there together. Max the dad said, "Michael, 4 years old, is here to see his heroes. He loves anything police. Even his LEGOs are about building a house for his police trucks." I also ran into Tomas, 5 years old and his sister Charlotte, 7 years old of the Hill family. They were there with their very youthful grandma

Melanie McAlpine. She was holding onto all the 'free' gifts the kids were collecting. It was not too hard as one of the free gifts were backpacks. Melanie opened the bag to put their other goodies in and got a huge smile on her face as she pulled out a big packet of pens and pencils. "This will make going back to school a little easier," she smiled. K-9 Yogi was there with his handler Officer Will #216. This was a new one to me. He then told me, "By using a number sign and our badge number, it helps us stay safe." What a really good idea. You can still find him, maybe a follow-up question, you would call the police department and they would give him your name and number. Clever! The smell of cooking food sent me to get a hamburger and something cold to drink. You could get water, a soda, chips, and or hotdog and hamburger. The line was not too long and was moved along with expertise. In line I noticed a lot of officers kinda grouping around someone. The man looked familiar; then I heard someone say, "Did you see Sheriff Scott Jones over there?" Yeah, that is why he looked so familiar. It was so good of the sheriff to hang with his guys/girls all trying to keep everything running as smooth as possible in Rio Linda with the help from the residents. Smile it is still good out there. ★

8:30 and 9 a.m. but that wasn't all. Good Day Sacramento, which is an affiliate of CBS13 Sacramento, ran the featured segment all weekend long on Saturday and Sunday as well. Rio Linda came to TV in a fun way and unique way!

Kids ran out of McDonald's to greet the horses. Who doesn't love petting a horse?

Renae let a couple kids sit on her horse. Big smiles by the girls and from the grandfather that had brought them. The horses who made the trip deserve a great big, good job with carrots and lots of neck rubs. They were so well behaved. "With animals and kids, you never know how it will go," Wulff said during one of her live shots.

Towards the end of the live shot, the ladies said they would be willing to ride through the drive-thru like they always do. While they were in line, the people in the cars were smiling and taking pictures of them.

The kids in the cars were rolling down windows with looks of amazement draped all over their faces. You never know what you'll find on the rural roads of Rio Linda! ★ and about 220,000 would likely drop their coverage.

"(The rate increase) for the subsidized population is almost divorced from what they pay out of pocket. What's more important is what happens with the (American Rescue Plan) subsidies," said Christine Eibner, a senior economist for the RAND Corporation, a think tank.

Altman said the sooner Congress acts the better the chance of avoiding consumer confusion in the fall. Covered California usually sends renewal notices to enrollees beginning in October, ahead of the sign-up period, and having clarity for people by then is key.

"There have been references both ways, 'Will it be permanent? Will it be temporary? Will it stay in the current form?... Or will there be some adjustments to it?' - and we really don't know," Altman said about the conversations happening in Washington, D.C.

California's 2022-23 budget includes $304 million for middle-class marketplace enrollees that would kick in if Congress does not renew the aid. While helpful, it would not fill the hole the annual $1.7 billion federal aid would leave, Altman said.

Covered California also announced that another insurer, Aetna CVS Health, will join the state marketplace and be an option for people in El Dorado, Fresno, Kings, Madera, Placer, Sacramento and Yolo counties. Meanwhile, Anthem Blue Cross will expand into San Diego County. ★

Doug Kohlberg is the friendly artisan of Gonzo Glass.

Story and photos by Cecilia Feser

RIO LINDA, CA (MPG) - Being forever young is what you would say when you meet Mr. Doug Kohlberg. Happy, laughing and talking to everyone like they were his best friend. He got his start in glass art by training with Dale Chilhuli. "Anyone who knows about glass blowing will know this man's name. He is very famous and taught me much that I still use in my art," he said.

"It was just my sister and I growing up. There was a strong sibling rivalry going on. So, when Kathy started doing glass jewelry and stained-glass windows, I had to do it better! She infected me with glass madness," he chuckled. "We both became well known, but still chided each other, because that is what siblings do!" he said sadly.

I asked him why he seemed so sad all of a sudden.

He took a deep breath and told me his beloved sister Kathy died early this year. Also, that he wasn't doing good dealing with the loss.

Then he smiled at me and said, "I have many, many great memories and lots of her work in my home. That helps."

While I was looking at his artwork, he was telling me he still listens to Steppenwolf, Beach Boys and the like, while working. "It makes me see things, and that comes out in the piece I am working on."

He was also saying that the great thing about glass is if you mess up, you just remelt it and start over. There are no mistakes when working with glass. I believe in what Hunter Thomson's words say, "If it's worth doing, it's worth overdoing it!" He was laughing again when I waved and walked to the next booth. ★

Knocking Down Barriers and Beer Cans

The story of River Cats outfielder Austin Dean

Story and photos
by Shaun Holkko,
sports editor

WEST SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Have you ever seen that viral video from September 2019 when a Miami Marlins outfielder threw a baseball at a tower of beer cans? If you haven't, you're missing out.

The Major League Baseball (MLB) player who participated in such a unique, in-game, event was Austin Dean, who is now with the San Francisco Giants' Triple-A affiliate, the Sacramento River Cats. The viral moment occurred on Sept. 20, 2019, during a matchup between the Marlins and eventual World Series Champions, Washington Nationals, a game that the Nationals won 6-4.

Dean's game within the game didn't take place in just any regular season affair. The video of Dean recorded by a fan went viral across the country on the same day that Miami suffered its 100th loss of the season. Therefore, some fans in attendance at what was once known as "Marlins Park," now known as LoanDepot Park, needed some extra entertainment to get through the end of what had been a tough season for Marlins fans.

"The funny thing about it was, is that they had already started that pyramid by inning one. So, it was working its way up," Dean told the Messenger Publishing Group with a smile before taking on the El Paso Chihuahuas at Sutter Health Park on June 22. "It was (being built at) the AutoNation Alley (Deck) so there were quite a few people. There were at least three guys."

Dean was impressed with the commitment and determination of the three gentlemen building the pyramid. The video, originally posted by the Marlins' Twitter account, shows the pyramid at a strong and sturdy 54 cans by the time Dean caved into the fanatics' demands.

"The seventh inning rolls around and it's huge, it's at its peak," Dean said. "I finally looked at them like, 'you know what, whatever, I'll give it a shot.' I finally looked at them and gave them the nod."

By that point, Dean was in, and operation beer can pyramid was a go! The 28-year-old outfielder, who was 26 at the time, slowly walked towards the fans standing in left-center field, lined it up, and as NBA broadcaster Mike Breen would say, "BANG," bullseye. Dean didn't take down the entire pyramid, but he perfectly nailed the single beer can standing atop the five-story creation.

"My biggest thing was like, 'alright, I can't go short here, you can't miss it,' right? Just aim for the vicinity of the area and just hope we knock some down, right? I throw the ball, had a little cut on to it, and it was just perfect," Dean explained. "Knocks the top can over, they go nuts."

His teammates at the time doubted him, but the video evidence spoke for itself, garnering 3.4 million views just on Twitter with what Dean described as a "fun moment."

"After the end of the game, (my) phone is just blowing up," Dean recalled. "Probably 300-500 messages, just like notifications about all that going on. I was like, 'this is absolutely incredible.' If you get me to do that again, there's no chance that I could do that again. I wasn't looking for clout."

Dean explained that the video gets posted randomly, once or twice a year, by various baseball accounts on social media. However, the various accounts usually don't tag him in the video because nobody seems to remember that he was the guy that made the moment happen!

As for Dean's career on the field, he was traded from the Marlins in January 2020 to the St. Louis Cardinals, who have arguably the best fans in all of MLB according to many.

"I would agree, they have probably one of the best fan bases in baseball," Dean said. "Especially playing in Busch Stadium as a Cardinal is awesome. I've played as an opponent as well and I can even say, it was even great there. Everybody was super nice in the outfield. That's the epitome of baseball right there, (with) amazing fans and an amazing atmosphere as well."

Dean spent the 2018 and 2019 seasons with Miami before playing two seasons in St. Louis in 2020 and 2021. On Nov. 5, 2021, the Giants claimed Dean off waivers. In March 2022, he was designated for assignment and began his career as a River Cat.

"Austin comes to play every day and he's the same guy," River Cats manager Dave Brundage told MPG on June 22. "He might be goofy at times, (but) he's here to play and wants to win, he wants to succeed and he brings a lot of energy every single day. I appreciate that from a manager's standpoint, somebody that loves to play the game and plays it correctly."

So far this season for Sacramento, Dean has a (.249) batting average with 11 home runs, 36 RBI and 68 strikeouts in 68 games played.

"He is really good in the clubhouse and has been a really good leader," River Cats hitting coach Damon Minor said about Dean to MPG in a phone interview on June 23. "On the field, he has been a really good strength (for us)."

Dean and his wife are expecting a baby in December and the gender is being kept a secret to be shared among close friends and family. However, the 28-year-old did indicate that when he found out the gender on June 20, it made him, "really, really, really happy," so take that as you may.

"I was very fortunate enough that the Giants got to pick me up," Dean said. "I got put on waivers during spring training and it's not something that you want to go through. But at the same time, I still got a job, which I'm happy about, and this is a time where I need to reflect and find ways to get better and kind of prove myself again." ★

California Streamlines Access to COVID-19 Testing and Treatment

CDPH News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The California Department of Public Health (CDPH) and OptumServe are upgrading testing sites across the state to provide both testing and treatment for individuals who test positive and qualify for COVID-19 treatment.

Test to Treat sites allow individuals to get tested, be seen by a provider, and receive a prescription for antiviral pills. This will improve access to COVID-19 treatments for uninsured Californians, especially in communities hardest hit by the pandemic, a foundation of California’s SMARTER Plan.

California is launching 146 OptumServe Test to Treat sites throughout the state over the next couple of weeks. A Test to Treat locator map is available for Californians to easily see where they can access these services.

“We are working to ensure that Californians who have symptoms of COVID-19 have access to rapid testing and immediate treatment, regardless of insurance coverage,” said CDPH Director and State Public Health Officer Dr. Tomás Aragón. “Our goal is to help Californians recover if they get COVID-19 and ensure high-risk patients have access to treatments that can keep them out of the hospital.”

California’s expansion of Test to Treat sites aligns with the federal government’s Test to Treat initiative in the National COVID-19 Preparedness Plan. Testing and treatment provided at OptumServe locations is designed for people without insurance. Sites will offer tele-health medical services and provide antiviral pills (Paxlovid or molnupiravir) or prescriptions to eligible patients. Services will be free of charge.

While COVID-19 vaccines and boosters remain the safest way to prevent the virus, COVID-19 treatments can lower risk of severe illness and hospitalization. They work best when taken soon after symptoms begin. If a person has symptoms, they should call or email their health care provider right away to ask about testing and if they qualify for COVID-19 treatments. If they don’t have a health care provider or don’t hear back from their provider, they can visit a Test to Treat location to get rapid testing and find out if they are eligible for treatments.

Communities may have other Test to Treat locations not included on the Test to Treat locator map. To learn about other locations, people are urged to contact their health care provider or local health department. Testing and treatment will be free of cost to all patients at OptumServe locations, but other treatment facilities may charge for the administration of an antiviral. Individuals should check with their insurance provider to see if their plan covers treatment.

Get Vaccinated or Boosted When Eligible

With COVID-19 cases increasing statewide, public health experts urge Californians to get vaccinated or boosted when they are eligible. Vaccination appointments can be made by visiting myturn.ca.gov or calling 1-833-422-4255. The consent of a parent or legal guardian may be needed for those under age 18 to receive a vaccination. Visit Vaccinate All 58 to learn more about the safe and effective vaccines available for all Californians age 5 and up. ★

ARC News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - American River College (ARC) theatre students won big this spring at the Kennedy Center American College Theater Festival regional and national events. The Kennedy Center events are among the most prestigious and competitive for theatre students across the U.S.

At the regional event ARC’s Doshima Iyorlu won the coveted Irene Ryan Acting and the Musical Theatre Initiative awards and Alexandria Wilson was awarded the Irene Ryan Best Partner Award. Then, at the national festival Doshima received the National Summer Intensive Scholarship, which will fund her tuition, travel, and housing for the Dell’Arte International School of Physical Theatre Summer Intensive program. In addition, Alexandria received the national Kingsley Colton Award for Outstanding Partner.

Doshima’s dual achievements at the regional event are the first time an ARC student has won both awards. Alexandria’s national award is also the first time an ARC student has received that recognition.

“We are so thrilled for Doshima and Alexandria and immensely proud of their amazing work. Both of these competitions see hundreds of participants annually, so it is amazing to see our student artists recognized for their work and craft,” said ARC President Melanie Dixon.

The college has an outstanding record for academic quality and is among the top community colleges in the state for transferring students to the University of California and California State University systems. News Release

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - This. Is. MONSTER JAM™! The most action-packed motorsports experience for families in the world today returns to Sacramento an adrenaline-charged weekend at the Golden 1 Center on August 5–7, 2022. Celebrating its 30th anniversary this year, Monster Jam features world-class athletes locked in intense competitions of speed and skill.

The popular Monster Jam Pit Party fan experience will return to Sacramento on both Saturday and Sunday, where fans can see the massive trucks up close, meet their favorite drivers and crews, take pictures and enjoy other family-friendly fun. This unique experience is the only place that allows people to get up close access to the Monster Jam teams and get an insider’s look at how these trucks are built to stand up to the competition. Pit Passes are priced at $20 each for this VIP experience.

Sactown motorsports fans will witness heated rivalries, high-flying stunts and fierce head-to-head battles for the Event Championship. Engineered to perfection, the 12,000-pound Monster Jam trucks push all limits going head-to-head for points in Freestyle, Skills, Donuts and Racing competitions. Monster Jam drivers are trained, world-class male and female athletes who have mastered not only the physical strength and mental stamina needed to compete, but the vital dexterity to control 12,000-pound machines capable of doing backflips, vertical two-wheel skills and racing at speeds up to 70 miles-per-hour to produce jaw-dropping, live motorsports action seen around the world.

The Sacramento event features eight skilled athletes fighting for the championship while putting on a spectacle, constantly innovating and always entertaining. Tyler Menninga gets behind the wheel of the legendary black and green wrecking machine Grave Digger®, celebrating its 40th anniversary this year.
