Story and photos
by Cecilia Feser

RIO LINDA, CA (MPG) - I was getting information on the FFA Car Show several weekends ago in the Rio Linda High School.

There was a loud commotion going on in the Football Field behind us. Happiness, shouting, is always something I want to know about, so into the Football Field I wandered. These were the finishing tests of the previous year's JROTC class. Groups of young people wearing matching shorts, T-shirts and running shoes. In front of the groups were Uniformed Military persons. Each group had a specific flag denoting their squad.

First, I learned ROTC is Reserve Officers' Training Corps. This is open to all college students who plan on going on to the Military after graduation for a career. What I was watching was JROTC. Who knew? This is geared to students starting High School for the same purpose, working towards a military career. I was introduced to Command Sargent Major Campbell for more information about what I was watching. She was very confident and very friendly. We walked over to the trophy table to chat while I was watching the end of the year finals.

The goal of the JROTC, according to Major Campbell, was to steer young minds to be better citizens, community responsibility and having life goals. The students will enter the military at a higher grade if they graduate with honors. They learn teamwork and problem solving to use for the rest of their lives. Most importantly, just because they choose to participate in the JROTC doesn't make them have to join a military branch.

Help Us Prevent Fires in Our Parks

By Ken Casparis,
Sacramento County

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Summer is just around the corner and with the increase in temperatures comes an increase in fire risk. While the Sacramento County Department of Regional Parks is working to protect the Regional Parks system by reducing combustible fire fuels, they would like to remind residents and park visitors of the steps they can take to prevent fires in our beautiful parks and open spaces. Visitors to Sacramento County Regional Parks should be aware of the following regulations:

Smoking is only allowed in developed picnic areas, asphalt surfaces, golf courses and levee tops in the American River Parkway; Open flame fires are not allowed and barbecuing is only permitted in designated picnic areas.

"In 2021, we had approximately 170 fires in our Regional Park system," said Liz Bellas, Director of Regional Parks. "Most of these preventable fires occurred along the American River Parkway. We would like to remind all of our park users that BBQs and other sources of fire are only allowed in designated picnic areas."

In preparation for this fire season, Rangers are making it a high priority to continue their fire prevention efforts through education and enforcement.

Recently, Rangers have seized well over 50 barbecues and other items used to contain or produce fires, and this number is expected to grow as residents flock to our parks this summer. Please help us protect our valuable and beloved resources by following the rules in our parks. If you see smoke or a smoldering fire, call 9-1-1. All other non-emergency issues can be reported via 3-1-1 or on the park's website, regionalparks.saccounty.gov. ★

No Gas for You

By Rachel Becker,

California's clean-air regulators unveiled a far-reaching proposal requiring a ramp-up in sales of zero-emission cars, culminating in a ban on new gasoline-powered cars by 2035.

The rules to force Californians to end their dependence on conventional cars are a critical component to California's goals to tackle climate change and poor air quality.

If adopted by the California Air Resources Board this summer, the regulations would be the first in the world and could pave the way for nationwide standards. At least 15 other states pledged to follow California's lead on car standards on previous clean-car rules, and the federal government usually follows.

sale of gas-powered cars in California by 2035, the new proposal sets in motion the public regulatory process. Public comments will be collected for 45 days, then a hearing will be held on June 9 and the board is expected to vote in August.

"This is a hugely important inflection point.

This rule finally, definitively puts us on the path to 100% zero-emission vehicles," said Daniel Sperling, a member of the Air Resources Board and founding director of the University of California, Davis Institute of Transportation Studies.

An alliance representing nearly all automakers said in a statement Wednesday that they are "committed to electrification and a net-zero carbon transportation future." Many major manufacturers, including General Motors, have already announced goals to ramp up clean-car models on a similar timeframe.

But the automakers added that it's critical for governments to ensure

Girl Scouts Take on the Outdoor Gender Gap

Girl Scouts Heart of Central California News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Girl Scouts Heart of Central California aimed to crush the outdoor gender gap on April 23 and 24, when nearly 600 girls and 260 adult volunteers in an 18-county region descend on Lake Camanche to learn or improve their skills in archery, fishing, paddling, and horseback riding.

The Outdoor Adventure Campout is an overnight camping experience, April 23-24, for Girl Scouts in grades K-12. Participants choose from one of four “trails,” to focus their week-end on fishing, horses, paddling, or target sports. All girls will be able to hone their outdoor survival skills, climb a rock wall, swim in a lake, camp with their troop, and learn more about nature.

According to the 2021 Outdoor Participation Trends Report, funded by the Outdoor Foundation, the philanthropic arm of the Outdoor Industry Association, 2021 had the highest rate of American participation in outdoor activities on record, largely due to COVID-19. However, nearly half of the U.S. population did not share in the positive health outcomes of the outdoors. In addition, female participation in outdoor activities remained stagnant at just 46%, despite the fact 51% of the U.S. population is female. The study also revealed an extreme lack of diversity in outdoor activities, with nearly 75% of outdoor participants identifying as white.

believe girls are forces of nature, and they were meant for outdoor adventures. GSHCC is dedicated to supporting year-round outdoor experiences because every outdoor adventure grows a Girl Scout’s “I’ve got this” attitude. And once they unlock that confidence, they’ll aim as high as the stars they see outside their tents.

The inaugural Outdoor Adventure Campout occurred in 2019 with 600 total participants, including adult volunteers. Out of concern for the health and safety of girls and volunteers, events in 2020 and 2021 were conducted virtually, and girls camped in their backyards and living rooms.

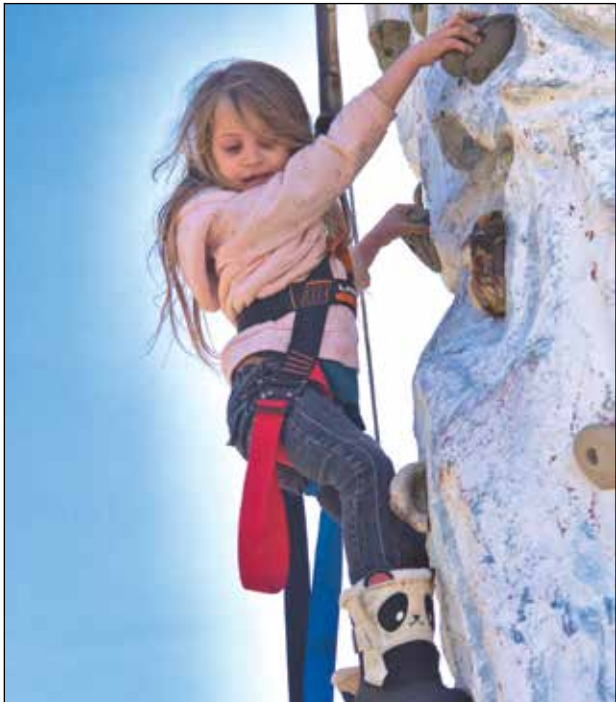

“We are thrilled to see a 40% participation increase from the 2019 Outdoor Adventure Campout,” said GSHCC CEO Dr. Linda E. Farley. “We are even more thrilled to bring this in-person event back to girls in Central California. It is absolutely essential to us that girls have a safe place to get outside, try new activities, and feel supported by their peers and the adults around them.”

Daughters of the American Revolution

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - On April 28, 2022, the Sacramento Chapter Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR), presented the Sacramento History Alliance with a donation contributing towards paying interns to learn to professionally care for historic photographs and film. The interns will acquire practical experience while digitizing some of the Sacramento History Center’s collection. This gift is the third of three to the Sacramento region, celebrating the Chapter’s centennial anniversary. The first gift funded two Sacramento City College nursing scholarships. The second helped 4Paws2Freedom acquire shelter and rescue dogs to train as service dogs for Sacramento area veterans diagnosed with PTSD. “The Sacramento Chapter is delighted to contribute towards the preservation of Sacramento historic records and the education of interns,” said Janet Fulton, Regent. She continued, “The three areas of emphasis for DAR in nationwide community service are Historic Preservation, Education and Patriotism. This project touches on two of the three.”

If you are interested in learning more about DAR membership, visit <https://sacto.californiadar.org/> or contact corresponding@sacto.californiadar.org. If you would like more information about the Sacramento History Alliance, visit <http://sachistorymuseum.org/about/sacramento-history-alliance/> or contact dmello@sachistorymuseum.org.

The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution (DAR) is a women’s service organization whose members can trace their lineage to an individual who contributed to securing American independence during the Revolutionary War. Today’s DAR is dynamic and diverse, with over 185,000 members in 3,000 chapters in the United States and abroad. DAR members annually provide millions of hours of volunteer service to their local communities across the country and world. DAR chapters participate in projects to promote historic preservation, education, and patriotism. Over one million members have joined the organization since its founding in 1890. ★

Homeless Man Convicted of Multiple Violent, Sexual Assaults

Sacramento County District Attorney

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - Layman McFadden was convicted by a jury of rape by force, three counts of oral copulation by force, two counts of domestic violence, three counts of assault by means of force likely to produce death or great bodily injury, two counts of false imprisonment and making criminal threats. The jury also found true allegations that McFadden’s crimes involved great violence, cruelty, viciousness, and/or callousness; McFadden took advantage of a position of trust to commit the crimes; and McFadden committed sex offenses against more than one victim.

Between 2019 and 2021, McFadden was homeless and living in camps along the American River Parkway. During that time, McFadden assaulted three women who were also homeless and living in the same camps. In September 2019, McFadden strangled, raped, and forced one of the victims to orally copulate him. In June 2021, he strangled, assaulted, and threatened to kill a second victim. In July 2021, McFadden strangled, assaulted, and forced a third victim to orally copulate him. McFadden faces a maximum sentence of 78 years to life in prison. that “everything from (electric car) infrastructure, demand, critical minerals and supply chain are in place.” Even then, the companies said the state’s proposed rules “will be extremely challenging even in California and may not be achievable” in other states.

If enacted, 35% of new cars, SUVs and small pickups sold in the state must be zero-emission starting with 2026 models, then increasing yearly, reaching 51% of all new car sales in 2028, 68% in 2030 and 100% in 2035. Of those, 20% can be plug-in hybrids.

The rule does not apply to sales of pre-owned cars, and it wouldn’t do anything to force the millions of existing gasoline-powered cars off roads. Only about 2% of cars on California’s roads were zero emissions in 2020.

Vehicles that run on gasoline or diesel fuel are the state’s biggest sources of planet-warming greenhouse gases, smog and dangerous particles. Under the proposed regulation, about 384 million fewer metric tons of greenhouse gases will be emitted between 2026 and 2040, according to air board staff – a little less than the total amount that the state emitted in 2019 across its economy.

California has already enacted standards that will require roughly 8% of new cars sold in the state to be zero emission in 2025, according to air board staff. That goal already has been exceeded: About 12% of California’s 2021 new vehicle sales were clean cars, according to state data.

But the pace would have to triple in just five years to reach the new target, which the automakers dubbed “aggressive.”

One of the biggest roadblocks could be the lack of charging stations for electric cars. Nearly 1.2 million chargers will be needed for the 8 million zero-emission vehicles expected in California by 2030, according to a state report. Right now, there are only about 70,000 with another 123,000 on the way, falling far short.

Another obstacle is the cost of the vehicles. “The cost to manufacturers will be high per vehicle in the early years, but significantly decrease over time by 2035,” the air board’s staff report says.

The economic benefits of the mandate are expected to exceed the costs: The costs could run $289 billion over the lifetime of the rule while the economic benefits could reach at least $338 billion – a net benefit of $48 billion, according to air board staff.

Electric cars now cost more to purchase, but price drops plus savings on gas and maintenance would add up, saving consumers an estimated $3,200 over ten years for a 2026 car and $7,500 for a 2035 car, the air board calculated.

In an effort to address consumer reluctance, manufacturers would be required to meet minimum performance, durability and warranty requirements for zero-emission vehicles.

Cars must be able to drive at least 150 miles on a single charge, up from the current 50-mile mandate, and batteries will need to last longer and carry a manufacturer’s warranty.

The goal is to ensure that new and used zero-emission vehicles “can serve as full replacement vehicles for conventional vehicles in every household in California,” the air board says.

Environmental advocates had raised concerns about previous drafts, saying they ramped up too slowly, allowing millions of cars powered by fossil fuels to remain on the roads since the average car is driven for 12 years.

Starting at a sales requirement of 35% is “a marked improvement,” said Don Anair, research and deputy director of the Union of Concerned Scientists’ clean transportation program. Still, he said, “It’s kind of the bare minimum. So we really see that as a floor, not a ceiling, to get started.”

Environmental groups urged the board to set a more stringent target of 75% zero-emission sales in 2030. They also are seeking mandatory equity provisions that would ensure electric cars are in communities that suffer the most pollution.

Under the proposed rule, car manufacturers would be allowed to meet a small portion of their sales targets through 2031 with credits aimed at helping low-income residents. For instance, they could earn credits for selling less-expensive new zero-emission cars costing less than $20,000 or ensure that vehicles are offered up for resale in the state.

Last year Newsom approved a $3.9 zero-emission vehicle budget that included about $1.2 billion to bolster rebates and other clean-car incentives, particularly for low-income and disadvantaged communities. Another $300 million will go toward building charging and fueling infrastructure.

Newsom touted the $10 billion zero-emission vehicle funding package in his January budget blueprint, which he said would “expand access and affordability for all.”

The state auditor has warned the Air Resources Board, however, that it “has generally not determined the effects its incentive programs have on consumers’ behavior and thus, has overstated (greenhouse gas) emissions reductions its incentive programs achieve.”

While battery-powered cars emit no pollutants, the generation of the power that runs them does. However, air-quality regulators say emissions from electricity generation are far lower than from vehicles. Much of California’s electricity comes from natural gas, solar, wind and hydropower.

Other nations are on similar paths toward phasing out fossil fuel-powered vehicles, but no state or nation has adopted a rule that bans them. However, the European Union is considering a large package of climate change laws that would, in effect, prohibit fossil fuel cars by requiring a 100% cut in all carbon dioxide emissions by 2035.

California’s proposal comes as gas prices soar to more than $5 per gallon in the state. Critics say the Newsom administration is sending mixed messages about gasoline-powered cars by proposing rebates for car owners.

The zero-emission vehicle proposal will require approval of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency for implementation. Since the 1960s, the state has led the country in cleaning up the exhaust that creates California’s choking smog. The federal Clean Air Act gave California authority to set its own tailpipe emissions standards.

The Trump administration acted to eliminate that authority but President Joe Biden’s EPA overturned the decision in March. Newsom called it “a major victory for the environment, our economy, and the health of families across the country” and said the state “looks forward to partnering with the Biden Administration to make a zero-emission future a reality for all Americans.” ★
