CHP Graduates New Canine Teams

CHP Special Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The California Highway Patrol (CHP) recently announced the graduation and deployment of its 10 newest canine teams. The ceremony at the CHP Academy in West Sacramento is the culmination of 400 to 600 hours of intense training for each officer and their canine partner.

"After weeks of rigorous training, these new teams are ready to assist in the CHP's mission of protecting and serving the State of California," said CHP Commissioner Amanda Ray. "Our canines are a tremendous asset to the Department, and the addition of these 10 teams to our existing resources will supplement the already highly effective canine program."

The CHP uses its canines to perform a variety of functions, including detecting human scent, contraband, and explosives. A canine team can improve the safety and effectiveness of officers as well as saving time and money. The CHP canines are also used to assist allied agencies in apprehending criminals, detecting explosives or drugs, and in locating "at-risk" missing persons.

This is the only graduation in 2021 for CHP canine teams trained in handler protection and narcotics detection or handler protection and explosive detection. The canine teams completed between 11 and 15 weeks of intensive training at the CHP Academy, depending on their specialty.

All handlers are CHP officers with departmental experience ranging from 4 to 15 years. The graduating canine teams represent the following CHP Divisions: Valley, Golden Gate, Central, Southern, Border, and Inland. Following this graduation, the CHP now has 48 canine teams deployed throughout the state.

The mission of the CHP is to provide the highest level of Safety, Service, and Security. ★

Undercover Sting Catches Unlicensed Contractors

Contractors State License Board
News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Construction is thriving in Sacramento County and unlicensed contracting is a real threat to consumer safety. A recent Contractors State License Board (CSLB) sting in the city of Elk Grove found unlicensed activity that included a contractor who provided a $60,000 bid for a kitchen remodeling project. By law, a contractor's license is required in California for construction jobs over $500.

"Consumers need to protect themselves by hiring a licensed contractor, especially when taking on a project like a remodel that may cost tens of thousands of dollars," says CSLB Registrar David Fogt. "Just because someone is asking for a lot of money doesn't mean they have the skills or ability to satisfactorily perform the work."

The September 21 and 22 enforcement operation was conducted with representatives from the California Department of Insurance and the Sacramento County District Attorney's Office. The operation focused on the Elk Grove area just east of Interstate 5. CSLB's Statewide Investigative Fraud Team (SWIFT) members posed as residential homeowners and contacted suspected unlicensed contractors through their advertisements to perform concrete, flooring, landscaping, remodeling, and painting work.

Fifteen people were issued Notice to Appear in criminal court citations for unlicensed contracting violations. Three of the unlicensed persons were also cited for requiring excessive down payments.

CSLB-licensed contractors have met experience and testing requirements, carry a license bond, passed a criminal background check and carry workers' compensation insurance for employees.

All suspects were ordered to appear at the Sacramento County Superior Criminal Courthouse, on December 21 and 22, 2021.

Tips for Hiring a Contractor

Hire only California-licensed contractors. Ask to see the license. The number must be on all advertisements, contracts, and business cards.

Check the license number on CSLB's website or by phone at 800-321-CSLB (2752). Confirm the contractor has workers' compensation insurance for employees.

Lions Club of Rio Linda/Elverta Holds Annual Car Show

By C.L. Feser

RIO LINDA/ELVERTA, CA (MPG) - Last Saturday I was invited to a day of Classic Cars, Older Trucks and flashy boats.

The Lions Club of Rio Linda/Elverta were putting on their yearly Classic Cars, Trucks and Boat Show. Beautiful day, beautiful Park at the Rio Linda "White House" on Dry Creek. "Just one of the many fun projects the Lions Club puts together for the community's benefit," said Stacy Bastian, the current president. This event was giving out plaques and beer mugs with the date and event engraved. Stacy was so animated telling me of all the things she wanted people to know about what

Beat a Cyberbully: Here’s How Parents Can Help

With just a click, cyberbullies can taunt, harass and threaten relentlessly, even reaching into the home via cellphone or computer. As a result, victims report feeling hopeless, isolated and even suicidal. Photo by Andrea Piacquadio from Pexels

By Alejandro Feria, Jehovah’s Witnesses Northern California

SACRAMENTO REGION, CA (MPG) - While remote learning during the COVID-19 pandemic lowered reported instances of bullying, parents fear that, for some students, going back to school will mean going back to being bullied.

“Bullying is something we worry about, especially with the beginning of each new school year,” said Zury Bourque of her family of four in Cypress, Texas.

Now 15 years after the inception of National Bullying Prevention Month in October, technology’s ever-greater presence in children’s lives has given bullying a new outlet. With just a click, cyberbullies can taunt, harass and threaten relentlessly, even reaching into the home via cellphone or computer. As a result, victims report feeling hopeless, isolated and even suicidal.

What can parents do to protect their kids? Taking an interest in their children’s online world can make a difference, says the National Parent Teacher Association.

This interest does not necessarily require parents to become tech experts. Instead, the federal stopbullying.gov site advises parents to watch for subtle clues that something is wrong, such as their child becoming withdrawn, hiding their screen when others are nearby or reacting emotionally to what is happening on their device.

For Zury Bourque and her husband Chris, that has meant being keenly aware of what “normal” looks like for their two boys, ages 12 and 10.

“Knowing my children’s moods is very important because I can then detect shifts or changes in their personalities that might signal something is going on,” Chris said.

Talking with kids openly – and often – helps too. “The more you talk to your children about bullying, the more comfortable they will be telling you if they see or experience it,” UNICEF says in its online tips for parents.

As their two daughters enter their teens, Houston parents Thiago and Auboni Cordolino have found that talking less and listening more works best. “We try to focus on being approachable and listening actively without reaction,” Thiago said.

Beyond talking, listening and observing their kids, parents should not be afraid to make and enforce rules for online activities, experts say. ★

I entered where they were setting up their Raffle prizes, three long tables of fun and useful gifts to win. I met Diana Hargis the treasurer. She was standing next to a very large, inflated LION. Folks were taking pictures of themselves in front of it.

As I started to the cars, there was a beautifully restored 1965 Falcon. Jim Frasinette said he had spent 20 years restoring ‘her’.

“As the wallet allowed,” he laughed. He bought it on eBay 20 years ago. It was 1/2 restored when he bought it. I learned if you use the term “restored” it means you keep the original look of the car. “Modifications” are done for safety reasons. Sweet, I own a Modified 2001 sweet red Corvette. Next year I was invited to enter my baby into this show, can’t wait.

Finally, I wanted to mention a 1969 Chevy, owned by Jeff Cowan. He proudly told me it was a son and dad restoration project. His dad,

COVID Booster Shot FAQs

Sacramento County Public Information Office

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - The Centers for Disease Control has recently released additional information regarding booster shots, outlining guidance for who should get a third vaccine dose and who can receive a booster. If you are confused, you're not alone. Here are some helpful FAQs to clear up the confusion around third doses and boosters.

Who can get a booster shot?

The only booster currently available is Pfizer. The CDC recommends individuals receive a booster if it has been at least 6 months since their second Pfizer dose AND they.....

Are 65 years or older; Are 18 to 64 and considered to work in high-risk environments (which include nursing homes, hospitals or healthcare settings, or school settings); Are 18 to 64 and have certain underlying medical conditions.

Can I get a Third Dose?

Let's start with the difference between a booster and a third vaccine dose. Individuals who are severely immunocompromised may not achieve full immunity from the two-dose regimen. Third doses are available for persons who are moderate to severely immunocompromised. They are only available for those who receive Moderna or Pfizer vaccines and can be given at least 28 days after the second dose.

Can I get a booster if I received the Moderna or Johnson and Johnson vaccine?

Boosters for those who received the Moderna or Johnson and Johnson vaccine are not yet approved by the CDC. Additional information and guidance is expected in the near future.

Where can I get a booster or third dose?

Individuals who are immunocompromised and would like to get a third dose should contact their primary care provider. Healthcare providers, pharmacies and community clinics are currently administering Pfizer boosters for those who are eligible.

For questions or to find out more about vaccination clinics, contact the Sacramento County Immunization Assistance Program at 916-875-7468 or visit www.sacvax.com. ★

Grant Helps CHP Focus on Aggressive Driving Behaviors

CHP News Release

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Excessive speed and aggressive driving are a major concern on California freeways. A federally funded grant will continue to help support the California Highway Patrol's (CHP) lifesaving grant campaign targeting dangerous driving behaviors.

The goal of the Regulate Aggressive Driving and Reduce Speed (RADARS) VI grant is to decrease traffic crashes attributed to speed and the number of people killed and injured in these crashes. In federal fiscal year 2018-2019, speed was a factor in approximately 45 percent of all fatal and injury-causing crashes in California. That year, 36,036 speed-related crashes killed 335 people and injured 53,060 others.

"Reckless driving behaviors are a significant threat to all who use California's roadways," said CHP Commissioner Amanda Ray. "The RADARS grant will provide for a focused education and enforcement campaign targeting speeding motorists and aggressive driving behaviors, including street racing and sideshow activities, to help prevent crashes resulting in death or injury."

Since the start of the COVID-19 pandemic in March 2020, CHP has noted a significant increase in incidents of unsafe driving behaviors: motorists exceeding 100 miles per hour on state highways, illicit street racing and sideshow activities, and speed-related crashes.

Between April 1, 2020, and September 30, 2021, the CHP issued more than 44,500 citations to motorists traveling in excess of 100 MPH. To address the issue, the CHP used federal grant funding to conduct enhanced speed enforcement operations on state routes with a history of speed-related incidents, collaborated with local law enforcement agencies to create street racing and sideshow task forces, and conducted social media campaigns to educate the public about the dangers of speeding, aggressive driving, and street racing. The RADARS grant will allow the CHP to conduct a comparable campaign from October 1, 2021, through September 30, 2022.

Funding for this program was provided by a grant from the California Office of Traffic Safety, through the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration.

The mission of the CHP is to provide the highest level of Safety, Service, and Security.

Biden Administration on Parents’ Right to Engage Elected Officials

The Republican Party of Sacramento County

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Democrat leaders from Washington to Sacramento took a stand against a parent’s right to protect their child. First, Governor Newsom announced mandatory vaccines for school children, regardless of natural immunity, and then President Biden’s Administration weaponized the FBI and the DOJ against those who speak out against education officials engaging in indoctrination and politicized healthcare mandates.

During at-home schooling, parents saw firsthand how their kids were being taught, and now they’re engaging their elected school boards to demand change. “SacCountyGOP is on record as strongly opposing any acts of violence or intimidation to advance a political agenda, regardless of the cause,” said Sacramento County Republican Party Chair Betsy Mahan.

“This announcement by AG Merrick Garland is an attempt to discourage parents from standing up for the most important thing in their lives - their kids. Actions being taken by politicians at the local, state and federal levels have provoked a passionate response from moms and dads from all political parties, and no one should be surprised,” said Mahan.

The Sacramento County Republican Party encourages parents to express their opinions and influence decision makers without crossing the line of violence. “Threats and intimidation will only lead to closed minds and spreading a false narrative that we are politically motivated rather than caring about our kids’ health and future,” said Mahan. “Now is not the time to be silenced, and civil discourse must continue.”

The Sacramento County Republican Party is working with parents, taxpayers, and school board members to make sure those who engage are informed and effective. More information is available on their website at SacCountyGOP.com/Schools. ★

Let’s Tweak that Idea a Little

Dear Dave,

I am on Baby Step 2, and I started a YouTube channel earlier this year that led to a new opportunity to make additional income. I try on and review clothing, and I’m paid $30 for each clip that’s anywhere from 30 seconds to two minutes long. Right now, I have about 1,000 viewers. This requires me to buy items from several brands. I usually return the items when I’m through filming, but I’m currently funding this with a credit card I only use for this project. I only pay the minimum each month until I get the refund, so at any given time there can be up to $4,000 on the card in rotation. I make about $86,000 at my normal job, so is this an okay way to fund my project and chalk it up as a business expense?

– Amber

Dear Amber,

You’re taking a risk here, from a business perspective, by playing around with $4,000 in debt to make $30 a pop. That’s inordinate. And you shouldn’t be paying for the clothes in the first place. These brands should be giving you clothes to review – that you keep – for the marketing exposure, but I’m not sure you’ve got enough eyeballs on you yet to justify them giving you the clothes for free.

Basically, it sounds like you’re trying to put yourself in a position to be an influencer. And the way influencers get paid is by monetizing eyeballs. Obviously, YouTube and other platforms will pay you if you can get the eyeballs. But 1,000 viewers really aren’t a lot these days. You’re getting there, though, and I’m glad you’re working at it and trying to make things happen.

You make good money, Amber. I want you to set aside $2,000 or $3,000 for this business, maybe out of the business income, and prime the pump one time. By that, I mean open a separate checking account that’s for your clothing exchange process only. Here’s the thing, let’s say you bought $1,000 worth of stuff from one of these companies, and they suddenly decide they’re not taking it back. You just ate that $1,000. And guess what else? Now, you really have credit card debt.

There are three things you can always be sure of in business. One, it’s going to cost twice as much as you think it will. Two, it’s going to take twice as long as you think it will. And three, you are not the exception to these things. While we’re at it, add this to the list of stuff you can always be sure of – you’ll never find me advising or endorsing credit card debt!

Newsom, Legislature Push the State Leftward

By Dan Walters
CALMatters

Before celebrating his 54th birthday Sunday, Gov. Gavin Newsom closed out the landmark 2021 session of the California Legislature by signing the last of the 770 bills he decided should become law.

It was a remarkable session because a new wave of COVID-19 was hitting, Newsom was facing a recall election, he and legislators had many billions of dollars in federal pandemic aid and unanticipated tax revenues and, finally, because they spent much of that money on an array of new and expanded public services.

The new spending on health care, social services, public schools, early childhood education and increasing personal incomes of the poor makes California the national leader in advancing the European-style “social democracy” model that the Democrats’ left wing wants the federal government to embrace.

Before this year’s session began, for instance, 94% of Californians had some form of medical care coverage, thanks to Obamacare and a sharp expansion of the state’s Medi-Cal program for the poor to more than a third of the state’s population. This year’s additions push California very close to universal coverage, a long-sought goal of those on the left and Newsom’s oft-expressed ambition.

The leftward tilt of the session is also evident in other ways that do not spend money, such as making ethnic studies a requirement for high school education, banning gasoline-powered lawn equipment, imposing new restrictions on guns, or compelling department stores to have gender-neutral toy and child care departments.

The Legislature and Newsom also continued to move the state’s criminal justice system leftward, reducing punishment for some crimes and cracking down on police officers who misbehave by lifting the licenses, called “certifications,” they need to be employed.

Interestingly, while Newsom endorsed 770 bills that the Legislature sent to his desk, he also vetoed 66 of them, in some cases because, he said, they went just a bit too far.

One of his more significant – and surprising – rejections was the latest of many years-long efforts by Democratic legislators to help the United Farm Workers Union expand its tiny foothold among the state’s agricultural workers.

Assembly Bill 616 would have allowed pro-union workers to sign cards rather than having an election on whether the UFW should be recognized as a contract bargaining agent. It faced stiff opposition from farmers and Newsom said in his veto message that the bill contained “various inconsistencies and procedural issues related to the collection and review of ballot cards.”

The UFW had backed Newsom in his successful victory in a September 14 recall election, and he vetoed the union’s bill eight days later, earning a denunciation from the union’s leaders, who likened the measure to the all-mail state election process that Newsom and legislators have decreed.

AB 616 was just one of two bills on the California Chamber of Commerce “job killer” list to reach Newsom’s desk intact. While he vetoed it, he signed the other, Assembly Bill 62, also a union-sponsored measure than bans piecemeal pay in the garment industry.

Legislative leaders tout this year’s session as one of the most expansive in history, and they are correct. The state is now a beacon for the national progressive agenda that President Joe Biden is trying, so far unsuccessfully, to move through Congress.

There’s every reason to expect that Newsom and the Legislature will continue to paddle California’s canoe to the left. Republicans are powerless and the influence of Democratic moderates has waned. The only question is whether the economy will continue to churn out enough money to pay for the new benefits without tax increases.

Here's What “Everyday Low Prices” Can Teach Us About Health Care

Commentary
by Sally C. Pipes

“Everyday low prices” are coming to health care. Walmart recently launched its own analog insulin, a synthetic form of the hormone that’s genetically modified to be released rapidly or slowly, depending on a person’s needs. It will be manufactured by pharmaceutical giant Novo Nordisk – but cost 75% less than brand-name analog insulin.

The deal stands out as proof that markets can deliver outcomes that work for producers and consumers alike – if we let them.

Generally speaking, the “market” for medicines is dysfunctional. It bears little resemblance to the markets for groceries or electronics, where consumers can compare prices and product reviews, shop around for the best deal, and purchase what they want.

Instead, patients typically pay for prescription drugs through their insurance plans. They may be responsible for a co-pay or co-insurance – a set percentage of a drug’s nominal price – and their insurer pays the rest.

The exact co-pays and co-insurance are determined by entities called pharmacy benefit managers – middlemen hired by insurers to administer drug plans and negotiate drug prices with pharmaceutical companies.

Because PBMs decide which medicines are, and aren’t, available through a given plan, they have immense leverage over pharmaceutical companies. Three PBMs handle more than 70 percent of prescriptions filled in the United States.

That leverage allows them to extract deep discounts from drug manufacturers. If drug makers want to have their products included on an insurer’s formulary, they have to pay up. If they don’t, the PBM will simply go with a drug maker that will.

In the market for insulin, PBMs routinely extract discounts exceeding 70%. They pocket some of that money and pass the bulk along to insurers.

Patients, meanwhile, pay a percentage of the insulin’s full list price, which is many times higher than what the PBM negotiated with the manufacturer.

Consider the insulin made by Sanofi. From 2012 to 2019, its list price increased 140%, from about $150 to more than $350 per vial. But the amount of net revenue that Sanofi received, after paying discounts to insurers and PBMs, declined 41% during that time period.

Those insurers and PBMs didn’t share those rebates directly with the people buying insulin. Instead, consumers had to cover for co-pays and co-insurance based on the escalating list price.

A patient with a 25% co-insurance requirement on a $350 drug got a bill for $87.50 at the pharmacy. That co-pay is greater than Sanofi actually received in total.

By cutting out these middlemen and selling directly to retailers like Walmart, drug makers can maintain or even increase their profit margins. The retailers charge a small mark-up, just as they do for everything they sell.

And in this case, patients save money, too.

Middlemen siphon billions of dollars out of the healthcare system each year – while providing questionable value to consumers. As the deal between Walmart and Novo Nordisk shows, market principles offer a better way.

Capitol Waste Indeed

Commentary by Bruce Lee

Just months ago, we anticipated a $54 billion state budget deficit, expecting cuts to funding and resources that would continue the economic onslaught of the pandemic. However in 2021, we found ourselves with a $15 billion one time budget surplus, and a proposed 2021-22 budget of $221 billion. Finally a $262.6 billion was approved, which includes $1 billion dedicated to the wildfire and forest resilience action plan; $1.5 billion in relief for small businesses; and $2.7 billion to achieve the state's zero-emission vehicle goals.

These are big needs and big numbers! Shouldn't we expect that our electeds spend these dollars wisely and serve us with our interests in mind? At the same time we are spending $1 billion on our wildfires, our legislators are also spending a little more than $1 billion on a luxury project for themselves.

It should not be too much to ask that a luxury project which sidelines the needs of Californians should itself be sidelined. This project – known as the Capitol Annex Project – will demolish-and-rebuild the historic Capitol Annex (which houses lawmakers' offices), build an underground parking structure exclusively for high-ranking elected officials, and construct a visitor center, to the tune of a whopping $1.2 billion dollars.

To put this sum in perspective, consider similar spending plans outlined in the state's 2021-22 budget as mentioned above. There is no doubt $1.2 billion can go far in helping Californians – so why waste it on a project that would only benefit our politicians?

Certainly, ensuring the safety of our legislators' workplace is important. Yet, experts say that the Capitol Annex can be retrofitted to address health and safety concerns for a fraction of the cost of the current plan. Additionally, a "Swing Space" that is housing legislators during the Annex rebuild is already funded at $450 million, with office space and parking aplenty. As for the visitor center, moving forward with a Disneyland-like attraction during a pandemic is ill-conceived.

Most concerning of all is where the $1.2 billion project funding will be pulled from – the wallets of taxpayers. Since the project was approved to be funded using revenue bonds in a fiscal emergency, that means we are racking up 30% more in interest on the debt to be repaid over 30 years, ballooning the cost of the project.

To make matters worse, the Capitol Annex scheme was concocted with little to no input from interested parties or the public. The legislature denied project information to the Historic State Capitol Commission – which was created by the legislature in 1976 to protect the State Capitol's historical and architectural restoration integrity – resulting in the resignation of two commissioners in protest. Assemblyman Ken Cooley and the Joint Rules Committee are calling the shots. Why all the secrecy?

Even without the COVID crisis, the Capitol Annex project is a stunning waste of taxpayer dollars – especially when the state has so many pressing matters that need to be addressed. While we can be hopeful about having a budget surplus, we need to face the realities of today. Many Californians are still struggling to put food on the table, and many continue to face homelessness.

When the Legislature resumes session, they have a responsibility to focus on our economic recovery, ensuring Californians needs are met first. Under the umbrella of Save Our Capitol!, the Sacramento Taxpayers Association, small businesses, preservationists and environmentalists call upon Governor Newsom and the legislature to pause the Capitol Annex Project, and reevaluate its need with input from experts and the public. If you'd like to join us, visit www.SaveOurCapitol.org today – our elected officials must be held accountable.

One Arrested for EDD Fraud and Possession of Illegal Weapon

From the office of the District Attorney

SACRAMENTO COUNTY, CA (MPG) - A joint investigation by the California Department of Corrections and Rehabilitation (CDCR) and the Sacramento County District Attorney's Office based on numerous EDD applications made in the name of state prison inmates resulted in a search warrant executed on October 3, 2021, at the Natomas home of Tanesha Ross. During the course of the search, officers found an illegally possessed FN-9 handgun, evidence of EDD fraud and $50,000 in cash. Ross was arrested and is currently scheduled to be arraigned on October 12, at 3:00 pm in Department 62 of the Sacramento Superior Court.

According to District Attorney Anne Marie Schubert, "We continue to see staggering amounts of fraudulent EDD activity combined with illegal firearms in our communities. This dangerous combination undoubtedly has fueled a dramatic increase in violent crime throughout the state. Sacramento's law enforcement agencies will continue to partner together to investigate EDD fraud and the havoc it brings to our community." ★
