RIO LINDA, CA (MPG) - What a difference a day made. Friday was day one for Farm and Tractor Days. I was there Fri and wrote up an article that ran in the online version of TheRioLindaNews.com. I stated I thought people were still nervous about coming out to be in a crowd. Also, it could just have been it was a Friday. The morning was still informative and the tractors beautiful. There just seemed to be more booths than people walking around.

I went back Saturday to get a few more pictures of owners and their tractors. What a whole different day. It was hard to park, and many, many families were walking and playing. It was a party atmosphere. Now I was at a Farm and Tractor Party. There were more vendors to visit too.

I walked over to one tent and found Ken also known as KE6RMN the call sign he uses when using his Amateur Radio. Ken told me, "Amateur Radio is like HAM RADIO, but on steroids!" When he said "call sign" I thought of the Top Gun movie and "Maverick". A person is assigned by the Federal Communication Commission (FCC). He also said, just like vanity car plates, you can apply for a vanity "call sign". I asked him if he was part of the emergency system when phones are down?

"That is my favorite part!" he said, "We can talk in a 'relay' system to pass on information. We also are in contact with Emergency departments that have similar systems. Emergency is not a word we ever want to hear, yet, being prepared will help keep the calm." He gave me a website if

Two Officer Safety Bills Stall in the Senate

By Will Hixson,
California Association of Code Enforcement Officers

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) -

As acts of violence and threats towards code enforcement officers rise, two California Senate bills aimed at increasing safety measures have stalled after being placed on the Senate Appropriations Committee's suspense file. At a time when violent acts against code enforcement officers are on the rise, stalling these two bills on the suspense file is particularly alarming.

Code enforcement officers risk their lives to uphold the public health, safety and general welfare standards that protect people, property values, and the environment. In many jurisdictions, code enforcement officers are now tasked with enforcement of various violations traditionally addressed by sworn police/sheriff personnel. These violations include, but are not limited to, illegal cannabis operations, illicit massage operations and homeless encampment abatement. Code enforcement officers are also the first-line enforcers of COVID-19 regulations, and do considerable enforcement against slumlords who operate in underserved communities.

Since 2015, the California Association of Code Enforcement Officers (CACEO) has received 86 reports of safety incidents including, but not limited to: nine death threats, 11 physical assaults, 10 occurrences of weapon brandishing, 17 physical threats, and six stalking incidents. Tragically, 20 code enforcement officers have given their lives over the years. Because there is no requirement to report safety incidents to CACEO, the true numbers are likely higher than the aforementioned figures indicate.

Code enforcement officers are now, more than ever, living with the fear of threats to their lives. In January, a Sacramento County inspector was stabbed outside of a strip mall. The week prior, a Tracy resident was accused of attempted homicide after he intentionally hit a code enforcement officer with his vehicle. Sadly, these are just two recent examples of the many incidents of homicide or attempted homicide on a code enforcement officer in recent years.

Earlier this year, CACEO introduced Senate Bills 101 and 296 which are aimed at increasing code enforcement officer safety.

Our Shrinking State

California's population shrank in 2020, but don't call it an exodus?

By Ben Christopher,
CALMatters.org

The COVID-19 pandemic has done what more than a century of past plagues, recessions, crime waves, droughts and earthquakes couldn't.

It shrank California's population.

According to new data released today by the state Department of Finance, California's population declined by 182,083 people in 2020. That's the first time that annual statistic has come with a minus sign since 1900, when the department began collecting these estimates.

The new report adds a disappointing coda to what has already been a dour few weeks for California's demographers. Last week, the U.S. Census Bureau put out its decade-long population counts showing that though the state grew between 2010 and 2020, it did so at a slower rate than the rest of the country.

Hence, that other bumper of a historical first: The state is losing a congressional seat.

The new population estimate also provides more fodder for Gov. Gavin Newsom's critics who took last week's Census announcement as evidence that the Golden

State is in decline.

State forecasters stress that the factors that contributed to this population dip are unique to this period – and therefore temporary. In

Parental Stress During the Pandemic: You Are Not Alone

By Hania Arshad

Staying isolated from friends and family, committing to indoor activities, and the switch to a virtual lifestyle are only a few of the many adjustments individuals have made during the COVID-19 pandemic. Isolation is essential in preventing the spread of COVID-19 but has resulted in heightened feelings of worry and frustration, especially among parents.

Families, understand that you are not alone. Those stressful, negative emotions are natural and reactionary behaviors – the result of an abnormal period in our lives. According to a survey conducted by the American Psychological Association, almost 50% of parents reported high stress levels because of the pandemic<sup>1</sup>. Feeling trapped at home, facing overwhelming financial worries, and the constant need to supervise your child’s educational day can understandably feel debilitating.

Parental stress can cause harmful and lasting consequences for both children and parents without healthy outlets and protective factors. Multiple research studies<sup>2</sup> determined that stress is a large contributing factor in child abuse. An accumulation of parental stress, generated from emotional and physical demands of parenting, contributes to abusive parenting methods: controlling behavior, neglect, and even harsh forms of discipline. A case study from The National Center for Biotechnology Information revealed that economic, emotional, and physical stressors from the coronavirus have significantly elevated feelings of stress, anxiety, and depression in households<sup>3</sup>. Parents who continuously find themselves in stressful situations are more prone to developing aggressive behaviors or increased frustration; as a result, potential for child maltreatment has risen during this time. However, parents who are in supportive environments and have outlets and skills to manage their emotions are far more likely to have reduced levels of stress, and therefore, a lessened risk of compromised parenting. Greater parental support and perceived control during the pandemic are associated with lower perceived stress and child abuse potential.

NP3 school psychologist Dr. Jeremy Greene emphasizes the importance of combating parental stress during this difficult time. He states that “parents are the foundation of their child’s life and often are the individuals who the child looks towards in assessing how to react in regards to a stressful situation. Thus, considering the pandemic and the shifts that have occurred for most of our children, it is important that parents continue to be mindful of how their stress impacts their child’s stress levels, as well.”

Fortunately, there is an abundance of resources available which offer support to parents and children who feel overwhelmed with their role of parenting as a result of the current pandemic.

Senate Bill 101, sponsored by Senator Jim Nielsen, would close the loophole in existing law by prohibiting the disclosure of the home addresses of code enforcement officers by the Department of Motor Vehicles (DMV). This bill will add an important layer of safety that will help ensure that all code enforcement officers will have their DMV information protected.
Senate Bill 296, sponsored by Senator Monique Limón, would require cities and counties to establish safety protocols specific to the duties and risks faced by code enforcement officers in their particular jurisdictions. Currently, many jurisdictions do not have programs to properly train and help protect code enforcement officers from threats, assaults, batteries, or worse.
Both senate bills have been placed on the Senate Appropriations Committee's suspense file. The suspense file is where the committee pigeon holes all bills that are purported to have cost issues. This despite the fact that SB 101 includes language which provides that all costs associated with its adoption will be covered through a fee paid by the applicant for the service provided by the DMV. SB 296 also does not require new spending or costs. As written, jurisdictions will retain the control to design and implement training and safety protocols within their existing budgets based on the dynamics of their community.
CACEO is urging the Senate Appropriations Committee to remove both bills from the suspense file to allow them to proceed with the legislative process. With the rise in violence and threats towards code enforcement officers, the stakes have never been higher. It's time for state representatives to demonstrate that code enforcement officer safety matters and that a dollar value cannot be placed on the life of a public servant. ★

2020 roughly 51,000 Californians died of COVID-19. Travel restrictions and fear of contagion also dramatically tamped down the number of new arrivals from abroad, the main source of the state's population growth over the last decade.
"Going forward, we anticipate that those two factors that tipped us temporarily into negative territory are going to change over the next few months," said Department of Finance spokesperson H.D. Palmer.
But even if California reaches herd immunity, the state isn't likely to experience a serious growth spurt anytime soon. Our pre-pandemic plodding rate of growth is thanks to a few long-term trends.
The state birth rate, which took a dip in 2020, has been on a gradual decline for years.
The number of Californians who have left the state for more affordable corners of the union has also been a drag on the state's head count for three decades. That "net-domestic outmigration" exceeded the number of new immigrants from around the world for the first time in 2018, according to Department of Finance estimates.
Palmer went out of his way to stress that Californians packing it up for Texas and Colorado are not the primary cause of the state's striking population decline.
"Some people who run with statistical scissors will try to extrapolate or hyperventilate that this is evidence of some sort of 'Mad Max' style 'exodus' from California and that is not the case," he said.
California's conservative critics have spent the better half of this century warning that the state's relatively steep tax rates on higher-income individuals and voluminous regulations will chase the Golden State's job creators to less taxed and regulated states.
But a new analysis from the Public Policy Institute of California says the state remains as attractive as ever for the well-off. It's people in the working and middle classes who are leaving, largely due to high housing and other costs. "In the past five years the flow of middle-income residents out of the state has accelerated," wrote Hans Johnson, a demographer with the institute.
The overall numbers of Californians coming and going mask much larger changes within the state. The more dramatic "exodus" has not been from California to Florida, but from the Bay Area to the Central Valley and from Los Angeles to the Inland Empire.
According to the state's new estimates, San Francisco's population declined by 1.6% while Los Angeles' population dropped by 1.3%. The beneficiary of all those work-from-anywhere emigrants lie inland. Since January 2020, the populations of Merced, Manteca and Tracy in the north San Joaquin Valley and Banning and San Jacinto in Riverside County all grew by more than 2%.

California Still Mistreating Its School Kids

By Dan Walters
CALMatters

The traditional school year will soon end, but the maltreatment of California’s 6 million public school students – especially those from poor non-white families – shamefully continues.

Although on paper California’s schools have reopened their classrooms after being closed to battle the spread of COVID-19 infection, most pupils will close out the year still struggling to learn at home or, in too many cases, having given up for a lack of technical and human support.

EdSource, an online site devoted to California education trends, detailed the educational disaster in a recent article, having delved deeply into state Department of Education data.

“Although 87% of California’s traditional public schools have reopened for some form of in-person instruction, fewer than half of students have returned either full time or part time in a hybrid model,” EdSource revealed. “A total of 55% of all public school students, including those in charter schools, were at home, in distance learning, as of April 30, according to an EdSource analysis of new data released by the state.

Get a veteran journalist's take on what's going on in California with a weekly round-up of Dan's column every Friday.

“EdSource found that two-thirds of students in district schools with the largest proportions of low-income families were in distance learning, compared with only 43% of students in schools with the fewest low-income families – a disparity that may partly explain a widening learning gap between wealthy and poor students that researchers and teachers suspect the pandemic has enlarged.

“Higher COVID rates in poor communities contributed to the disparity. Parents in highly infected areas have been reluctant to send their children back to school, and teachers in those areas resisted returning. Parents in low transmission areas, meanwhile, pressured school boards to reopen.”

California is something of an outlier, according to monthly surveys of school reopening by the federal government’s Institute of Education Sciences. With full classroom access available to only 11% of its students, the state is at or near the bottom, according to its March survey. Other states ranged to as high as 100%. In arch-rival Texas, 93% of students have full classroom access.

Months-long stalemates between teacher unions and local school leaders over the terms of reopening have been a major factor in California’s tardiness. Gov. Gavin Newsom and the Legislature’s dominant Democrats, who are politically allied with the unions, have been noticeably unwilling to intervene.

However, leaving reopening decisions in local hands has undermined the promise of universal public education and led to the disparity that EdSource noted – classroom access for kids in upscale communities and homebound status quo in poor communities.

California already had an immense “achievement gap” before the pandemic flared and there’s absolutely no doubt that the disparity has widened over the last 14 months, as a December report from McKinsey & Co. on national school trends underscores.

“Educators, parents, and students know firsthand the high cost of this prolonged period of remote learning, from rising rates of depression and anxiety to the loss of student learning,” the report declared. “The COVID-19 pandemic has taken an especially heavy toll on Black, Hispanic, and Indigenous communities. Along with robbing them of lives and livelihoods, school shutdowns could deny students from these communities the opportunity to get the education they need to build a brighter future.”

Newsom, facing a recall election next fall, has been running around the state declaring that the worst of the pandemic is over, that California’s economy will soon fully reopen and that he expects that schools will return to normal schedules after summer.

Even if those predictions come true, California’s neediest children will have fallen further behind their peers with diminishing chances of ever catching up.

Ask Toni
Understanding Hospice!

Toni King

Hello Toni:

As a certified case manager and critical care unit RN, I am advising adult children who are desperately seeking advice for their parents that are closing in on end-of-life issues. Those that have serious health care issues should be offered every option for proper planning as end-of-life care...most appropriately... hospice!

Can you explain hospice for your readers as I am sure this will help those who are seeking answers for their frail loved ones and give the caregiver some well needed rest?

Thanks in Advance...Susan from Denver

Susan:

HOSPICE ... is a subject no one wants to discuss to their elderly family member when they are ill but can seriously help a family when their loved one is terminally ill as the illness takes a toll on the caregiver and the patient.

Many people wait too long to begin hospice benefits and believe hospice is for the last days to help a person die peacefully. Many doctors and individuals wait too long to order and receive hospice.

Hospice can give hope along this journey with education, medication to manage symptoms, support to the patient and family, and counseling services for the patient, family members and care givers.

Health care professionals in the hospice system consist of physicians, nurses, social workers, spiritual counselors, certified nursing assistants and volunteers. A hospice provider comes to where the patient lives to provide the care.

In the Medicare & You handbook, it explains what hospice is in Medicare terms and what Medicare covers for hospice under Part A of Medicare. A doctor that orders hospice must certify that you are terminally ill and have 6 (six) months or less to live. When you agree to hospice care, you are agreeing to comfort care (palliative care) instead of care to cure your illness. You also must sign a statement choosing hospice care instead of other Medicare-covered treatments for your terminal illness.

Hospice can be recertified every 6 months by a hospice medical director or hospice doctor if you are still terminally ill. Original Medicare will be billed for your hospice care.

Hospice will cover all medical care for the terminal illness and Medicare will pay for health problems that are not related to your terminal illness (co pays will apply). Medicare-certified hospice care is usually given in your home or other facility where you live, like a nursing home.

For those who are enrolled in a Medicare Advantage plan, when you are receiving hospice, the hospice benefit will be paid for by Original Medicare, not your Medicare Advantage plan. You will pay your co pay for any medical care that is not associated with the terminal illness.

Medicare costs under Hospice:

- You pay nothing for hospice care (Medicare pays)
- You pay a copayment of up to $5 per prescription for outpatient prescription drugs for pain and symptom management.
- You pay 5% of the Medicare-approved amount for inpatient respite care.

You can choose to walk through this journey helpless or have control over your end-of-life plan of care. Know that hospice provides comfort, dignity, protection of your wishes, love, and support.

Talk with a geriatric case manager or geriatric doctor if you have some concerns or need some advice with your loved one’s terminal healthcare issue.

May is American Stroke Month

By Liz Faris,
American Heart Association

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - The American Heart Association/American Stroke Association, the world’s leading voluntary organization focused on heart and brain health, is raising awareness about strokes for American Stroke Month in May. Strokes don’t discriminate. They can happen to anyone, at any age - and about one in four people worldwide will have one in their lifetime. The good news? 80 percent of first strokes may be prevented.

Stroke prevention is especially important now as much of what puts you at risk for a stroke, uncontrolled high blood pressure, smoking or unhealthy weight, also increases your risk for complications due to COVID-19. High blood pressure is the leading preventable cause of stroke and up to 40% of Black adults in the U.S. have high blood pressure.

Stroke recovery begins the moment you suspect a stroke. The sooner a person can be treated for stroke, the more likely they are to have a successful outcome. He advises everyone to be ready to act FAST if they suspect a stroke.

The acronym F.A.S.T. stands for: Face Drooping - Does one side of the face droop or is it numb? Ask the person to smile. Is the person's smile uneven? Arm Weakness - Is one arm weak or numb? Ask the person to raise both arms. Does one arm drift downward? Speech Difficulty - Is speech slurred? Is the person unable to speak or hard to understand? Ask the person to repeat a simple sentence, like “The sky is blue.”

Time to Call 9-1-1 - If someone shows any of these symptoms, even if the symptoms go away, call 9-1-1 and get to a hospital immediately. (Tip: Check the time so you’ll know when the first symptoms appeared.)

Stroke is largely beatable through high-quality rehabilitation and patient support as well as implementation of the Association’s Rehabilitation Guidelines. Stroke rehabilitation can help patients build their strength, capabilities and confidence, potentially regaining skills and returning to independent living. Rehab can also help patients better manage other conditions they have, which may affect daily living or their risk for a second stroke.

More than any Amount of Money

Dear Dave,

My husband and I are both 29, and we have good jobs that allow us to bring home $100,000 a year combined. Recently, we began talking about starting a family. We live on a budget, but we still have about $15,000 in credit card debt and student loans we're working hard to pay off. Do you think couples should wait until they are debt-free to have children?

– Missy

Dear Missy

You and your husband are chipping away at your debt, and that's a good thing. It sounds like you two are determined to get it paid off and take control of your finances. You're also making pretty good money, so keep up the good work!

Dave Ramsey Says

Ok, so the truth is kids can be expensive. From medical costs and diapers, to child-care and beyond, it costs money to raise a family. But here's the thing: If you let money alone, or the perfect financial situation, determine whether you have kids or not, you may never have them. Now, would it be easier from a financial standpoint only to wait on having kids until you're debt-free and there's a huge pile of cash in the bank? Sure, it would. But children are worth more than any amount of money. If you love each other and want to be parents, and you're mature adults in every other area, don't let this debt stop you.

A child isn't going to derail your journey to financial peace. Having kids might cause you to press pause for a while on some financial matters, or slow your pace a little bit, but as long as you both stay focused and determined to manage your money wisely, chances are things will work out fine.

Just don't make the mistake lots of parents do – especially first-time parents. Many of them think they have to run out and buy a new, "safer" car, spend a fortune on a fancy crib, or buy all things baby from some overpriced boutique. Do you get what I'm saying, Missy? Why buy a brand-new, $400 stroller, when a friend or relative has a perfectly good, barely used one they're willing to give you?

It's easy to get carried away spending for a baby. But children will be just fine as long as they have food, clothing, shelter – and most importantly – loving, caring parents. God bless you two!

– Dave

Governor's Actions Point to Need for Long-Term Water Investment

By Dave Kranz, California Farm Bureau

SACRAMENTO, CA (MPG) - Actions in a widened drought emergency order issued by Gov. Gavin Newsom will provide some short-term benefit through voluntary water transfers and exchanges in parts of drought-stricken California, the California Farm Bureau said, while the organization expressed concern about emergency powers granted to the state water board and re-emphasized the need for significant, long-term investments to secure future food production in the state.

The pandemic has reinforced that farming is an essential business and the drought has reinforced that water is essential to farming," California Farm Bureau President Jamie Johansson said. "We appreciate any effort the state can make to provide more water in the short term to farmers who need it. At the same time, we must not lose sight of existing water-rights priorities and the need to balance supplies for food production, fisheries and cities.

"By widening the drought emergency, the governor has recognized the reality facing much of rural California: Our future is not guaranteed," Johansson said. "By proposing to invest in canal repairs and other projects, he has shown a willingness to address part of that longer-term problem, but where are the projects the voters invested in when they approved a water bond seven years ago?

"Following a year of economic shutdown for our communities, record wildfires, black-outs on the state's electrical grid and soaring home prices, it is apparent Californians face a quality-of-life issue. We hope this is a watershed moment in which we realize that building, not just planning, will preserve that way of life," he said.

"In addition to longer-term infrastructure needs, we also need to ensure family farms – and the people, communities and businesses that rely on them – are able to survive this year. We urge the governor to engage with family farmers, at the local level, to understand how best to ensure that our farms and the food they produce will be available to Californians for years to come," Johansson said.

"Water to farms means food for families, jobs for farm employees and much-needed help for rural economies," he said. "With predictions that climate change will lead to even less certainty about precipitation and water supplies, California must commit to a full-scale program to increase storage, enhance efficiency and create new supplies through water recycling and desalination."

The California Farm Bureau works to protect family farms and ranches on behalf of nearly 32,000 members statewide and as part of a nationwide network of nearly 5.6 million Farm Bureau members. ★

No rate increases for a FULL year
AND
Second Month FREE
ALWAYS

That's right. If you ask those other guys, they'll freely admit you're going to get three and four rate increases in the first year. That means if you move in at $125, by the end of the year you could be paying DOUBLE that, $250, or even more!

We don't do business that way at A-1 Storage. We respect our customers and we appreciate your business. If we quote you a price, we stand behind that price for a full year.

Call us at 916-432-2790. Allow us to quote you a price on a clean and convenient storage unit, and then go talk to the other guys. No rush.
