

New PEAS program creates partnership between local minority farmers and school districts

Last month, local nonprofit Yolo Farm to Fork secured a coveted Farm to School Incubator Grant from the California Department of Food & Agriculture. They were one of only 14 nonprofits statewide to be awarded. The $250,000 grant will be used to create a unique new program, Partners in Education for Agriculture in Schools (PEAS). PEAS seeks to empower new minority farmers to deliver healthy, fresh produce to Food Services for student meals in Woodland Joint and Washington Unified school districts.

Participating farmers will contract 6-12 months in advance for the delivery of specific amounts of freshly harvested produce for meals and snacks paid for by the National School Lunch Program. Farmers may secure additional income by teaching their "climate smart" farming strategies to students in the school site edible gardens.

PEAS will focus on supporting new, small farms owned and managed by women, BI-POC, LGBTQ+, veterans, and immigrants. Dozens of such farms have been created throughout Yolo County in the past 5 years.

While many new small farms can't yet afford to be certified organic, the program will have a special emphasis on "climate smart" agricultural practices. "Climate smart" essentially means sustainable and regenerative farming practices," explains

Yolo Farm to Fork Executive Director Anya Perron-Burdick. "Climate smart" agriculture helps mitigate climate change effects through practices like soil carbon sequestration and reducing greenhouse gas emissions."

Finally, the program will offer support for school kitchen staff transitioning from pre-packaged foods to culturally relevant meals, many cooked from scratch. Karri Pina, Director of Food Services for Washington Unified School District, observes, "The sudden changes in food delivery from meals served at school sites to

Washington Unified Offers Comprehensive Summer Enrichment Opportunities in 2021

In June, Washington Unified will offer comprehensive summer enrichment opportunities providing supplemental instructional support to ensure student needs for academic, social-emotional, and other areas will be met.

The extraordinary circumstances of this last year underscore the immense need for such opportunities for students to continue developing and accelerating the necessary skills they need to be successful throughout their educational journey in WUSD.

Here are the programs available in summer 2021:

Summer Boost - Summer Boost 2021 is academic intervention support provided for targeted students currently in grades K-8 using multiple measures to identify students needing extra help. Although this program is not open to all students, the goal is to increase the number of opportunities for targeted students to accelerate their learning, to catch up on foundational literacy (reading) and numeracy skills (math) to close the achievement gap, and to reconnect with their friends with an emphasis on Social Emotional Learning (SEL). Please contact your school administrator to see if your student is eligible and for more information.

NorCal Wildflower 'Super Bloom' This Year!

BY CAROL BOGART

I love wildflowers. Love love love LOVE them. As a kid, I scoured the folks' woods for Spring Beauties, Trillium, wild violets, even ... if I was reeally lucky ... Little Boys Britches: creamy white wildflowers that look like tiny pantaloons bunched on stems. It was pointless to pick them, I knew. Wildflowers won't last a day; they wilt that easily. But I always made a bouquet anyway for my mom, just to show her. She had a special little vase just for these bouquets, and put them in her kitchen window to look at as she did dishes.

I'd never seen wild lupine 'til I moved to California, and the first I saw here in West Sac. If you know the 'borrow pit pond' at the someday site of the California Indian Heritage Center ; the lupine was growing on the bank of that pond. If the big tree's still there near the north end of the pond, it was about there where I saw it, not far from where you can take a dirt path, rather than

OP-ED: The Yolo Way Meets the American Rescue Plan

BY ADELITA SERENA

You may have seen an internet meme that began as a March 2020 Graeme MacKay editorial cartoon. In one version, a "COVID" tsunami threatens a coastal city; behind it comes a larger "Recession" tsunami; behind it a "Climate Change" tsunami; and finally behind it a "Biodiversity Collapse" tsunami.

Despite Yolo County's inland location, we need to take seriously the message of this cartoon—that our recovery from the pandemic must also be a response to the climate emergency.

It must also address deeply entrenched economic and social inequities causing these crises to strike some communities and demographics much harder than others.

One immediate way to do this is to use our American Rescue Plan funding to develop narratives, programs, and projects that do all three: repair damage from COVID-19, fight climate change, and follow the leadership of frontline and long-disadvantaged communities for whom these efforts have the highest stakes.

We can call our approach to these problems "The Yolo Way," by which we signal our local recognition of what Martin Luther King called "an inescapable network of mutuality" and our commitment to making that network more healthy, just, fair and sustainable.

The importance of outreach to, and leadership by, BIPOC (Black, Indigenous, People of Color), low-income communities, women, and frontline populations is illustrated by my personal story. My family comes from a long line of farmworkers.

My parents became farmworker advocates, my father organizing for the United Farm Workers in Coachella under his boss Cesar Chavez and my mother advising farmworkers of their housing rights at California Rural Legal Assistance. Through these means of empowerment, my parents helped their communities obtain better working conditions, better housing, and stronger protections of their human rights.

Here, in Yolo County where I have lived for two decades and am raising two sons, I continue the transformative work of grassroots organizing, pushing back against the disproportionate impacts of the pandemic, climate change, and intersecting inequities on frontline and vulnerable communities.

The American Rescue Plan authorizes the expenditure of $1.9 trillion in COVID-19 support to individuals and families, businesses, public health providers, and state, local, and tribal governments. The County of Yolo will likely receive $42.7 million, its four incorporated cities $40.9 million, and its public schools $41.1 million. There is additional categorical funding for transportation agencies, capital projects, and disaster assistance. Half the funds will be available immediately; the other half in 2022; all funds are required to be spent by 2024.

The timeline for the County to create its expenditure plan is short, with approval by the Board of Supervisors as soon as July. Community workshops are not scheduled until June, after internal and cross-agency consultations.

Those who have been most affected by the pandemic and by manifestations of climate change, such as wildfires and extreme weather events, must speak up now and make known our priorities for healthier people and a healthier environment. Below are some of those priorities, which are also consistent with the county's principles for selecting projects to fund.

People-friendly and climate-friendly transportation. Public transportation took a significant hit in the pandemic, as people stopped riding due to the lockdown. The County of Yolo should partner with its four cities to create a substantially enlarged and improved bicycle infrastructure. Many parts of the county, rural and urban, need major safety and connectivity upgrades. Safe bike lockers are needed in apartment complexes, workplaces, commercial developments, and schools. Bike share systems, especially ones offering electric bicycles, are sorely needed. A strong bike culture would support numerous small businesses and many jobs not just in Davis but in our other cities. Complementing a robust countywide bike infrastructure should be abundant electric buses, including school buses, with myriad benefits for health, safety, and the climate.

Neighborhood-serving community gardens. Problems with food insecurity pre-existed the COVID-19 pandemic, as households—including families with kids, college students, and seniors on fixed incomes—were encountering increases in regular expenses, most notably in the cost of housing, while incomes were not keeping pace. Then as people lost jobs and income in the pandemic, food insecurity grew, as did lines at food banks. A network of community gardens serving city neighborhoods and small towns would provide less-disadvantaged households with greater food sovereignty and security. In addition to people raising food for themselves and neighbors, they could also be the basis for community tianguis, or open-air markets, where food could be sold, food-related classes could be held, and small food businesses could be established. Healthy foods and healthy, regenerative climate-friendly ways of growing it would be promoted. Yolo County, as well as its incorporated cities, could help acquire land, water, and equipment for these endeavors, and hire staff to launch this program.

Resilience hubs. Community centers traditionally offer a variety of services to local residents, designed with awareness of local cultures and languages. A resilience hub adds to this mix of programs those resources that will help neighborhoods cope successfully with the impacts of climate change. These might include classes on how to weatherize and de-carbonize your home; nurses on site to do health checks when the air is smoky from wildfires or the temperatures become threateningly high; and consultants who can help you solve problems with your bike, your digital technology, or your garden. Resilience hubs would also become shelters during emergencies when people had to leave their homes. Yolo County needs to create a network of resilience hubs across the unincorporated county and to coordinate with cities doing the same. In addition to suitable programming, resilience hubs also need supplies and equipment for disaster preparedness. Photovoltaic panels and a battery storage system could allow them to function off the grid for several days. The American Rescue Plan could fund a model resilience hub as a demonstration project.

Climate-friendly landscapes and landscape practices. Local governments, including the county, should cooperate to review the landscaping of all their properties to identify opportunities to increase its carbon-sequestering capacity, in vegetation and in soil. Landscapes should be transitioned to native species suited to withstand hot, dry summer conditions. Collaborating with landscape maintenance workers, practices that do not require gas-powered equipment or fossil-fuel derived chemicals could be developed on these local public lands. Patwin native plant experts should be hired to participate in landscape transformation projects and related educational programming. Potential benefits include new jobs and the healthy air, water, and soil called for in the county's strategic and sustainability plans, as well as desirable in recovery from the COVID pandemic.

Please support these ideas by contacting your Yolo County supervisors, city council representatives, school board members, and other agencies receiving funds from the American Rescue Act. Also contact non-profit organizations and businesses who are likely to be interested in your ideas and who can join you in advocating for them.

May is Mental Health Awareness Month

Yolo County Criminal Justice partners helping to decriminalize those who live with mental illness

Yolo County's Criminal Justice partners, which include the Probation Department, the Health and Human Services Agency (HHSA), Yolo County Superior Court, the Public Defender, and the District Attorney (DA), have been working diligently to decriminalize those with mental illness and substance use disorders, who often find themselves mired in the criminal justice system after committing crimes driven by their illness. Having a criminal record can impede a person's ability to get employment and housing and become productive members of society.

Programs that have received statewide attention are Yolo County's Mental Health Court (MHC) and Addiction Intervention Court (AIC) which involve a minimum 18-month court-based treatment and monitoring system for adult offenders with a serious mental illness and/or substance abuse disorders. MHC and AIC are programs designed to increase the treatment engagement of the participants while reducing arrests, hospitalizations, and jail time during and after their involvement and participation in the program. The County's criminal justice team provides participants with wrap-around treatment which includes a focus on mental health, substance abuse, housing, vocational and school, and physical health. The goal is to address the criminogenic factors and reduce recidivism. When participants are close to graduation, they participate in a Restorative Justice conference.

The most recent outcome measures for MHC that ended June 30, 2020 show impressive results. In 2020, 91 individuals were referred to the AIC and MCH programs though only 68 individuals can be enrolled in the AIC and MHC programs combined, at a given time. Many that get placed in the AIC program also suffer from mental illness. For those who enrolled, when comparing the 12 months prior to starting Mental Health Court to the 12 months after Mental Health Court, there was a 69% decrease in arrests, a 48% decrease in jail bed days, a 100% decrease in local hospital bed days, and a 100% decrease in state hospital bed days.

"These numbers are impressive," said Chair of the Yolo County Board of Supervisors Jim Provenza. "The Yolo County team is dedicated but we know the hard work begins and ends with the participants."

Clients are referred to the programs mainly by the defense attorneys though the District Attorney has some ability to refer individuals.

No referral is ever denied though the treatment team (Probation department and HHSA) may find someone unsuitable for the program after an assessment. MHC participants must suffer from a serious mental illness, such as bipolar disorder, schizophrenia, or schizo-affective disorder. For those living with a less severe mental illness, there are other diversion options such as Mental Health Diversion Law, where individuals who commit crimes and who live with any mental illness are eligible. The DA can also place individuals into Neighborhood Court with a managed mental health care component.

To support these efforts, the Yolo County team received a grant of $747,280 from the Federal Bureau of Justice Assistance that allowed Mental Health Court participants to double from 15 to 30 and provided staff to support these additional participants. Additionally, this past year the team received a grant for $1.1 million from the Department of State Hospitals that allows justice partners to divert some individuals, who are deemed incompetent or are at risk for being incompetent, from standing trial. This allows the team to treat these individuals within the County and avoid sending them to a State Hospital.

The MHC team presented at the annual CA Forensic Mental Health Association Conference in April 2021 and was awarded the Yolo County Spirit Award for Teamwork in 2019. Additionally, the team is excited to once again participate in the National Alliance on Mental Illness walk on May 22 in honor of Mental Health Awareness month.

Summer Programs

Virtual Summer Acceleration Program - The Summer Acceleration Program is entirely virtual and open to all TK through 8th grade students providing the opportunity to participate in standards-aligned lessons and activities in ELA, math, science, social studies, art, music, PE, and more. Students will be able to access Week-at-a-Glance lessons, including links to engaging academic activities that are standards-based and developed by WUSD teachers and staff. Participation in Summer Acceleration will be voluntary for students and will be self-guided. District staff is developing a structure on how to include a live instructional component for students to interact directly with WUSD certificated teachers virtually and provide feedback on completed activities and lessons. This six-week program will run June 14-July 23. The Summer Acceleration Program Week-at-a-Glance lessons will be available by June 14 at <http://bit.ly/WUSDacceleration>. Program Contact: Amanda Divelbiss, Coordinator of Instructional Technology at adivelbiss@wusd.k12.ca.us or Matt Ainsworth, Director, Curriculum, Instruction, and Professional Learning at mainsworth@wusd.k12.ca.us.

English Learner Institute & Extended School Year - The EL and ESY summer program provides rich, engaging science content and ELD instruction based on the ELD Standards. Throughout our 19-day program, students will engage in rich language production, authentic peer collaboration, and activities that promote academic language skills and participate in pre- and post-assessments in Listening, Speaking, and Writing to measure growth. Program Contact: Stacey Tran, Coordinator of English Learners, STran@wusd.k12.ca.us and Karla Salvo, Program Specialist, Special Education, Karla Salvo, ksalvo@wusd.k12.ca.us.

River City and Yolo High School Credit Recovery - In-person and virtual options, Edgenuity for Virtual, blend both hybrid and virtual instruction to recover credits for students who are credit deficient. Credit Recovery courses allow students to recover previous D or F grades toward graduation and acceptance into a CSU/UC school (A-G recovery). Additionally, students can engage in Credit Advancement courses to earn credits to get ahead in placement or get requirements out of the way to pursue other interests during the school year. In-Person classes are instructor-led (direct instruction). Edgenuity allows students to spend more time on what they need and less time on what they've already mastered through self-paced virtual learning and pre-testing. invited to sign up for the River City High School (RCHS) Summer Bridge Program starting on August 2, 2021. This program aims to ease the transition to high school and support a student's educational journey by providing the academic skills and social resources needed to succeed in a high school environment. Additionally, RCHS teachers and LINK Crew students host the extended orientation program focusing on high school skills such as organization, note-taking, AVID strategies, resources, FEV tutoring, and more. More information will be sent to all freshman families. Program Contact: Jessica Rodgers, Assistant Principal, RCHS, jrogers@wusd.k12.ca.us.

VAPA Enrichment - Camp Yampa is a free exploratory Visual & Performing Arts (VAPA) summer camp for the creative-minded middle schoolers of Washington Unified School District. Students will learn elements of various art styles in large group activities and also develop honed skills in an art focus area of choice. Certificated teachers will work alongside Camp Counselors (River City High School Home Run Interns) to keep students learning in active, hands-on VAPA experiences. A collaborative performance will culminate the camp to highlight the skills learned over the four weeks! Learn more on the Camp Yampa website. Program Contact: Christopher Hanks, CTE Arts, Media & Entertainment Teacher, chanks@wusd.k12.ca.us.

FEV Tutoring - WUSD has once again partnered with FEV Tutoring offering students and families around-the-clock support from any location! These programs can be accessed on any type of technology (laptop/tablet) without special technological adaptations as long as there is an internet connection. FEV Tutoring is also aligned to school and district instruction by connecting the tutoring program with WUSD instructional leaders. Together, we will look at current academic initiatives, benchmark data, curriculum, and online courses to provide highly connected and data-driven personalized instructional support, which is available 24/7 at any time, any place to meet each family's unique scheduling and academic needs. FEV Tutoring will be sending out notices directly to all WUSD families in grades 3-12 with instructions on how to participate.

Over 908 New Crimes Committed by Individuals Released on $0 Bail

Nearly 42% of those released on $0 Bail have been rearrested at least once

As a result of the Yolo County Superior Court's continued use of $0 bail, over 908 new crimes have been committed as of April 21, 2021. In April of 2020, the California Judicial Council imposed the "$0" Emergency Bail Schedule in response to the COVID-19 pandemic. Although rescinded in June of 2020, the Yolo County Superior Court continues to use the Emergency Bail Schedule although the court recently indicated an intention to end the use of the Emergency Bail Schedule.

Since April 13, 2020, individuals released on $0 bail have committed over 908 new crimes. Those new crimes include 387 felonies and 521 misdemeanors, including crimes such as Attempted Murder (2 new victims), Assault with a Deadly Weapon or Assault by Means of Force Likely to Produce Great Bodily Injury (21 new victims), Robbery (12 new victims), Burglary (52 new victims), felony domestic violence (14 new victims), possession of an assault weapon, gang crimes, and dozens of other new felony and misdemeanor crimes. Since the COVID 19 pandemic began, 522 individuals have been released a total 680 times on $0 bail. Of those released on $0 bail, 41.6% have been rearrested at least one time.

Used throughout the vast majority of the pandemic, the Emergency Bail Schedule simply looks at the arresting offense and releases individuals on $0 bail, even those on probation or parole, without conducting a risk assessment for dangerousness. Additionally, upon release on $0 bail, offenders are given a court date 4-5 months in the future. This makes it nearly impossible to assess those individuals who are homeless, suffer from a substance use disorder, or from a serious mental illness in order to enroll them into one of the county's diversion programs such as mental health court or addiction intervention court. Additionally, each subsequent arrest moves the initial court dates further into the future.

In March, the Yolo County Superior Court indicated its intention to end its use of the Emergency Bail Schedule once a 2021 Felony and Misdemeanor Bail schedule is finalized. The judges in each county set bail schedules. The court distributed the proposed bail schedule to the criminal justice partners for input. If adopted, the proposed schedule will significantly reduce bail amounts to fractions of amounts previously set in the current bail schedule.

For example, bail amounts for the crimes of possession of child pornography, felony driving under the influence, stalking and dissuading a witness will be reduced from $50,000 to $5,000.

Domestic violence and elder abuse may be reduced from $50,000 to $15,000 while a number of forcible sex crimes and child molestation crimes could be reduced from either $250,000 or $100,000 to $50,000. Typically, to post bail an individual needs only to produce 10% of the bail amount upfront. The District Attorney's Office has submitted comments on two separate occasions raising concerns about the reduced amounts among other objections.

Since the beginning of the pandemic and the use of the $0 bail schedule, one individual has been rearrested 19 times after a $0 release. Another individual was rearrested 10 times after a $0 release; one individual rearrested 9 times after a $0 release; three individuals were rearrested 8 times after a $0 release; eight individuals were rearrested 7 times after $0 release; four individuals were rearrested six times after $0 release, and nine individuals were rearrested 5 times after $0 release.

The 2021 Yolo County Fair will not run as planned and will not be open to the public.

When discussing plans for the fair, CEO Vannucci, Fair Board & staff expressed concern for public health, as well as the financial impact of hosting a fair that would adhere to current safety protocols and the lasting impacts of the long-term sustainability of the event.

Although vaccination rates are improving significantly each day, California continues to fight the battle against COVID-19 including the new variants. Where we are today in this struggle makes it difficult to plan a large-scale entertainment event like the free gate Yolo County Fair, especially not knowing where we will be, or what Yolo County and the State of California will look like, in August.

In addition, the important safety practices that have been put in place to protect Californians, including indoor seating capacities, live events seating capacities, proof of testing or vaccines, and other restrictions may lead to attendance that is considerably lower than previous years. The financial implications of hosting a typical Yolo County Fair with the same overhead costs as previous years, but far less revenue, could be devastating to our association. In a typical year, the Yolo County Fair's budget is designed to break even or have a nominal profit. Holding a full fair this year would likely lead to significant financial loss.

While we wish we had the ability to see the future we do not. Taking all the above into consideration CEO Vannucci, the Board of Directors and fair staff feel that the best decision is to greatly limit the traditional aspects of the Yolo County Fair. While this is a difficult decision, we feel it is the best way to protect the long-term sustainability of the Yolo County Fair, as well as the safety of those involved.

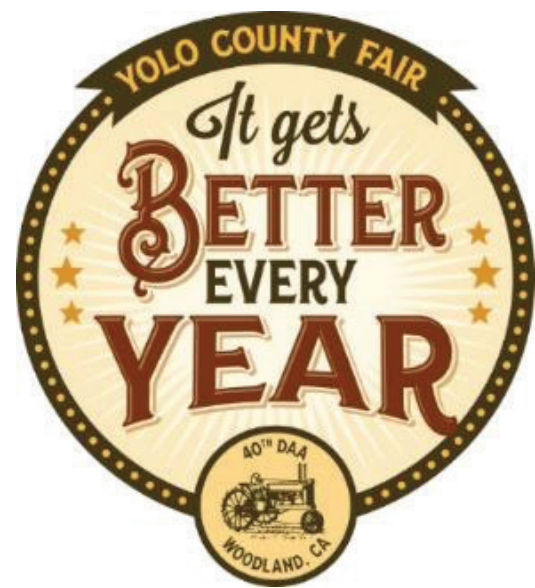

The 2021 Yolo County Fair will be limited to FFA Market Animal exhibitors and their family members for a week-long event that will culminate with a Live Auction on Saturday August 21st.

We fully plan on bringing back the full Yolo County Fair in 2022, with its carnival rides, the 2-night demolition derby, the rodeo, entertainment, food vendors including local beer booths, livestock shows and all the homegrown exhibits you have come to expect.

Detailed plans for the FFA Market Animal Event are forthcoming on our website.

Stay tuned for news on our website about a Family Event Center coming to our grounds complete with Carnival Rides & Food July 29th to August 8th, plus a Virtual Stills Showcase where you can enter your arts, crafts, sewing & photography and just maybe a Summer Rodeo.

Eddy's Walkabout "Bryte Trail"

BY EDDY SALMONS

Perhaps that is not the official name, but it works for me. Many times I have walked the trail on the levee off of Riverbank Road. It is sandwiched between Bryte Park and the Sacramento River. Recently in the last couple of weeks, I have revisited this place. I have also added a few images from Walkabouts past.

I have seen many things along this trail. An assortment of flora and fauna thrive along the trail. From the California Golden Poppy, wild blackberries that fruit in summer in abundance, the mighty oak trees, to a plethora of other plants. Redtail hawks drift and swoop so low at times you can almost touch them. They hover over effortlessly over the grass on the levee patiently waiting to swoop down on unsuspecting "dinner." Also from the grass and traversing the path are garden snakes and lizards. There are also, somewhere deep with the protective blackberry bushes, feral cats. Some look to be relatives of Norwegian tree cats. With thick coats and plenty of field mice to eat, they survive in the bush.

From the levee that overlooks Bryte park, one can witness soccer and softball games, people walking around the age-old track, or just picnicking in the park or playing a friendly game of volleyball. I enjoy seeing the downtown Sacramento skyline at sunset.

In my eyes, besides the many people who walk, bike, or jog the trail daily, and of all nationalities which is awesome to see, the sunsets, or rare morning clouds along the trail are something to see. Sunsets are my favorite.

The one drawback to the trail, in my eyes, is the graffiti sprayed on the nice benches and visitor information signage. It is sad really. No need to spoil such a beautiful spot. Other than that, the trail is a great place to take a stroll or even watch fireworks on the 4th of July which I have done many times. There is quite a view. I do hope we will have fireworks this year. They represent freedom to me, something that seems to have been in short supply as of late.

the levee road, back to the river.

I used to walk my dog along that path to bank fish (with zero luck) from Bryte Beach (opposite Discovery Park). I loved that trail. Especially fun was seeing turtles sunning on a log. Plop plop plop, off the log they'd go, as they heard us approaching.

There used to be a beaver family. So many kinds of birds. I haven't been back there in a long, long time. Are lupine blooming now I wonder?

On Next Door recently, I read our area is having a 'Super Bloom' this year. Northern California wildflowers you may see in abundance include our state flower, the California Poppy, lupine of assorted colors (don't let your dog eat it. Some varieties are toxic, it seems, to everything but goats); wild geranium, mustard and much much more.

A simple local walk in an 'ungroomed' area might let you see some, but if you're up for a day trip that includes streams, pools and waterfalls, go to North Table Mountain. Just past Oroville, the North Table Mountain Ecological Reserve is located in Butte County.

Open from dawn to dusk, The reserve's trails require a day pass if you're 16 or older, unless you have a valid hunting license. Organized youth groups, such as schools, and adults with them don't need a pass, but a permit is required. For more information, Google search Visiting North Table Mountain Ecological Reserve. Like the Yolo County Bypass Area, the reserve is managed by the California Dept. of Fish and Wildlife. The self-guided walks are free and you can bring your dog.

A little history: Table Mountain is made up of volcanic rock! And in many places, you can see it! Have to wonder how many ancient animals are trapped in as fossils. Fossils. Another fascinating topic! Be aware, though, that no collecting of any kind is allowed at Table Mountain - no rocks/minerals, no plants, no artifacts, no fossils. Dogs have to be on-leash. Ten feet max, no longer.

This is a huuuge reserve: 3,300 acres, give or take. The California wild lupine, also known as bluebonnet, can be toxic to livestock, especially sheep but including cows and horses, if consumed in large quantity. May be present in hay. ancient lava flows resulted in an elevated mesa. From it, you can see wildflowers, waterfalls, lava outcrops, seasonal streams and vernal pools. Rare Northern Basal Flow Vernal Pools appear due to impermeable hardened lava. Usually, fissures in the lava (basalt) soak up winter rains. In the spring: voila, streams and waterfalls. These water sources ultimately dry up. Only certain animals and plants have evolved to survive this habitat over time.

You'll also see cattle grazing. For safety, stay at least 300 feet away. Grazing cows help control invasive plant species and protect the reserve's spectacular array of wildflowers.

IF YOU GO: Here's a downside: There are no restrooms or trash receptacles, so pick up after both your dog and you, then throw it away at home. Like in any beautiful natural area, you'll want to help keep North Table Mountain pristine for the next person. The following individuals are exempt from wearing Persons younger than two years old. Very young children must not wear a face covering because of the risk of suffocation.

Persons with a medical condition, mental health condition, or disability that prevents wearing a face covering. This in-

Persons for whom wearing a face covering would create a risk to the person related to their work, as determined by local, state, or federal regulators or workplace safety guidelines.

*Note: Persons exempted from wearing a face covering due to a medical condition who are employed in a job involving regular contact with others must wear a non-restrictive alternative, such as a face shield with a drape on the bottom edge, as long as their condition permits it.
