Sinking her “otter” claws into education:

Riverbank principal metamorphized struggling school into an information powerhouse

BY FORREST GARDENS

SPECIAL TO THE NEWS-LEDGER

At Riverbank Elementary, Principal Kristin Rodriguez has sunk her “Otter Claws” into the beast of education in West Sacramento. While the school is north of the tracks, she is also taking learning northward, embarking the entire community on a journey to destination education.

Our school isn't just a place for instruction by gifted teachers: it's the glue, the motor, the spokes of the community. Families across the Bryte/Broderick neighborhood face so many challenges due to the “just trying to survive” routine — the school provides the stability so many kids yearn and need.

Rodriguez has metamorphized (ah, I can remember my 3rd grade science terminology) from a struggling campus into the up-and-coming information powerhouse we need to get these kids from the poverty-inheriting environment we have now.

The woman is handling so many issues, on so many fronts, and holding it all together. If I spent 10 minutes in her mind, I'd have to take a nap.

For all you folks who want to see the numbers, the grades, the statistical differences, I can't provide that. I can tell you, the kids are calmer, nicer to one another, and were more “wide eyed.” These intangible “upgrades” are setting the foundation for a long-haul approach. Which goes against the grain of the parent-entrenched and albeit, misplaced value of immediate gratification of quid pro quo.

Yes, we've had some pain, but that's expected when we grow, it's part of the process. Pain? Let me explain. We have such a diverse community that school meetings look like a United Nations summit. Just about everything she does is seven-fold.

English to Spanish, Spanish to English, English to Russian, Russian to English, Russian to Spanish, Spanish to Russian. I almost forgot...translating all that into So-val Pharë (i.g. Hobbit speak) for the kids.

Who must capture all this? Who must incorporate all the community needs? Who must implement them? Who has to say no, to some things? Yup, you guessed it: Principal Kristen Rodriguez.

COVID-19 Outbreak at Gloria's Country Care

Yolo County is announcing an outbreak of Coronavirus Disease 2019 (COVID-19) at Gloria's Country Care, a licensed residential care facility for the elderly located in Woodland. As of August 19, there are 16 confirmed cases (7 residents and 9 staff) and there have been no deaths. A resident tested positive for COVID-19 the weekend of August 15-16 and Yolo County Public Health staff immediately tested all residents and staff, as designated by the State of California's updated testing guidance that prioritizes testing for individuals who are high risk.

Results from the tests came in late on August 17 and the facility has now been added to the County's long-term care dashboard. At this time, the County asks that residents and staff be given space and privacy to focus on their health and work.

Yolo County has offered and provided a collection of resources and services to Gloria's Country Care to help limit the spread of COVID-19, such as:

Testing patients and staff and offering additional rounds of COVID-19 testing at regular intervals

Regular communications between Gloria's Country Care and Yolo County Public Health staff

Yolo County and Community Partners Provide Housing for Hundreds of Individuals Living Homeless During COVID-19

The Yolo County Health and Human Services Agency (HHSA) partnered with the Cities of West Sacramento, Davis and Woodland as well as eight motels across the County and service providers to serve approximately 390 homeless individuals and house an average of 202 individuals per night through Project Room Key from March 17 to June 29.

In an effort to house and protect individuals experiencing homelessness and vulnerable individuals during the COVID-19 crisis, the State of California launched Project Room Key with the objective of protecting public health, isolating the medically vulnerable and thinning out shelters to allow for social distancing. On April 3, 2020, Yolo County was recognized by Governor Gavin Newsom for leading the way in providing non-congregate shelter for those experiencing homelessness during the pandemic. Yolo County obtained a $600,000 grant from the County Medical Services Program to cover the initial costs of behavioral health services as well as funding from Dignity and Sutter to cover the costs of mobile medicine. Up to a 75% cost-sharing reimbursement from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA) may be available to offset the costs of motel rooms, security, food, and laundry.

To provide essential services, Project Room Key required the teamwork of many local partners, including: two local restaurants, Broderick's Roadhouse, Savory Café; Empower Yolo; Yolo County Children's Alliance; Turning Point; CommuniCare; Love Laundry; Agency of Aging Area 4; and the Yolo Food Bank. Project Room Key participants ranged in age from two to 94, with the mean age of 50 years old. At the peak of the project, 240 rooms were available with the mean length of stay being approximately 59 nights.

During their stay, each individual was provided with the following assistance onsite at each motel:

- Aid in applying for Medi-Cal as well as help in understanding their qualifications for various benefits (i.e. CalFresh, CalWorks, and General Assistance)
- Assistance in completing housing applications
- Procurement of medical care, mental health screenings or substance use screening appointments

THIS 'n' THAT Extreme Heat Hard on Animals

BY CAROL BOGART

Let's see. We've all heard 'trouble comes in threes' and, sure enough! Here's number three!

1. The virus (which, as predicted, has now mutated)
2. No 'stimulus check' a second time
3. Unsafe air triggered wildfires triggered by 'dry' thunderstorms and lightning strikes not to mention rolling blackouts (i.e. no A/C).

The National Weather Service Sacramento says those early morning thunder clouds 'cooled things off' a little bit yesterday and today (8/18). 'Only' 104, down from 112 they say.

Yeah, well. As I glance out at my Sycamore, the birds are panting and, on my shaded balcony, a squirrel is napping in my bird bath.

If you're active on social media, which I am, you'll find many posts about suffering animals. Between heat and wind

OBITUARY

Jeffrey (Jeff) Earl Handy

Jeffrey (Jeff) Earl Handy, a civil engineer and longtime resident of West Sacramento died in his home on July 14, 2020, at the age of 55.

Jeff was born in Sacramento on September 10, 1964, to Earl Handy and Margaret Handy. Jeff will be survived by his mother, Margaret Handy; his sister, Diana Handy; his brother Mark Handy; his children, Rene Handy, Lance Handy, Eric Handy; and his grandchildren, Landon Handy, and Emmett Garcia. He is predeceased by his brother, Bill Handy; his father, Earl Handy; his grandparents Earl E. & Myrtle F. Handy and his maternal grandparents Earl and Margaret Simmons.

This year Jeff celebrated his 25th year at MacKay & Somsps. He was an experienced design engineer who had expertise in site plan, master plan, and complex land development projects. He often designed with a red pencil and was a great mentor to the younger engineers. His problem-solving attitude and attention to detail will be greatly missed by his colleagues.

Jeff was a larger than life type of person, his jokes would fill the air with laughter and there was never a dull moment when he was in the room. He was passionate in all things that he loved including baseball, basketball, football, fishing, grilling, camping, and being a family man.

Jeff was the proud winner of his 2019/2020 fantasy football league. Although this upcoming season he will be playing for a different team, we know that he will be winning. Jeff is no longer physically with us, but his legacy will live on in the hearts and minds of everyone who had the pleasure of knowing him. In light of current COVID concerns we are compelled to celebrate Jeff's life at a time in the future.

Project Room Key

- COVID-19 testing, as warranted

As individuals exit the program, some will return to emergency shelters or previous dwellings, while others may obtain vouchers or subsidized housing. Whether individuals obtain long term housing or not, many participants have had remarkable experiences.

"I don't know how to thank you all enough for all of what you're doing for us out here. I've been staying at the shelter but got pneumonia back in March and was in the hospital. I have a bad heart, and my kidneys don't work how they're supposed to," said one participant. "We knew with this virus I'd be at risk. Somebody from the county called me on up and I got this room where I can rest and recover. They've got a doctor and meals and laundry out here, and I get some peace of mind."

"I don't know what I'd do without Project Room Key. I'm on dialysis and have asthma" said another participant. "I lost my home last year and have been staying in my car or at the shelter. This room makes me feel safe so I can stay inside, and away from COVID."

"I've never been in this situation before. I went through a divorce last year and lost everything. I take medications for my heart, and when I was diagnosed with COVID I thought I was going to die in my car," said a third participant. "Project Roomkey got me a room, checked on me daily to make sure I was okay during the worst I've ever felt in my life. You put your own lives at risk to come check on us and give us meals and meds and make us feel like we matter here. Thank you."

Project Room Key continues to be an amazing community driven effort to care for some of the most vulnerable individuals and provides an opportunity for service providers to reach those who may otherwise shy away from assistance. It has been a true demonstration of what can be accomplished when partners come together utilizing a housing first approach in a united effort to protect public health and isolate the medically vulnerable.

HHS received a portion of the County CARES allocation to continue Project Room Key through December 2020 and is working with all involved parties to determine appropriate options for sustainable housing and services. For more information on Project Room Key, please email Ian Evans at Ian.Evans@Yolocounty.org.

Outbreak

- Providing recommendations for isolation and quarantine
- Advising staff be designated to isolation and quarantine units for specific groups of residents
- Providing guidance to mitigate staffing shortages
- Offering supplies of Personal Protective Equipment (PPEs) and training in appropriate use

- Launching contact investigations as needed
- Advising on proper disinfection techniques

In addition, the County has recommended other mitigation measures, such as screening staff for symptoms, performing onsite walkthroughs to improve physical distancing, creating donning/doffing stations for PPEs, and more. Locations like residential care facilities, where people are living in congregate settings and the population served are often older or elderly with underlying health conditions, are at the highest risk of being infected.

Tuleyome “Nature & You” Lecture: “Ringtails”

The ringtail is a relatively unknown small mammal found in the United States and in Central America. As implied in the name, they have a long, black-and-white banded tail and are stealthy predators during nighttime hours. They are about the size of a small house cat and are sometimes called ringtail cats...even though they are not related to cats and in fact, are actually related to raccoons.

Would you like to know more about these fascinating mammals here in California? Then join us for a Zoom lecture about Ringtail Ecology in the Sutter Buttes by wildlife biologist David Wyatt. He will be screen sharing a PowerPoint presentation full of photographs and information about ringtails from the research he has conducted over the years and is excited to share his passion for this beautiful animal. Please join us!

David Wyatt is a professor of Biology at Sacramento City College and teaches a variety of classes in the Field Ecology Program. He was first introduced to ringtails in 1985 by Dr. Gene Trapp and they have been a part of his life ever since. Dave just completed a nearly decade-long study of ringtails in the Sutter Buttes and is looking forward to his next encounter with this charismatic and fascinating mammal. This lecture will be ONLINE in a Zoom meeting. You must register on the event page from <http://tuleyome.org/events/> (be sure to include your email address) and download Zoom. (There is no need to create an account.) After registering, participants will be sent an email with login information. Attendees will be able to ask questions via Zoom's chat feature.

This lecture is part of the free monthly “Nature and You” lecture series sponsored by Tuleyome, a 501(c)(3) non-profit conservation organization based in Woodland, California. The word “Tuleyome” (pronounced too-lee-OME-ee) is a Lake Miwok Indian word that means “deep home place”. The term “deep home place” exemplifies our deep connection to our environment, our communities and our regional public lands.

A $10 donation to Tuleyome is requested, but is not required to participate in this event.

Respecting the Dignity of Every Human Being: Reflections on John Lewis

BY JACK PAYDEN-TRAVERS

"You're an embarrassment!" he shouted as he came across the street. "To your race" is the part of the phrase he implied but didn't add.

My wife and I have been vigiling each afternoon on a busy street corner one-and-a-half blocks from our home in Winston-Salem, NC, for the past two months. It is our attempt to "get in the way" and to "find some good trouble," in the words of the late John Lewis.

After the death of George Floyd, we attended two Black Lives Matter protests in our city, yet quickly realized that social distancing and protesting in large groups don't work for those of us in the category of folks considered "at risk" during the Covid-19 epidemic.

I don't know the name of the man who was so infuriated at me for holding a "Black Lives Matter" placard and my wife for bearing one which reads "Dismantle Racism: Work for Justice & Peace, Respect the Dignity of Every Human Being." He ranted at us as we tried to talk with him, but he kept shouting and was just returning to his car when another car driven by a young African American man pulled in between in an effort to protect us.

The situation could have escalated but we asked the young man not to get involved, so he just sat in his car, a visible barrier between the two philosophies. The upset white man drove away after a few more rants. Our daily vigils continue and the support of our fellow Winston-Salemites is apparent in the large number of honks and the waves we receive each day. Not that all the fingers are a thumbs up, but the obscene gestures are few and far between.

Does it matter? Are we making any difference? We occasionally have white drivers shout at us "All lives matter!" We agree with them, by the way, as would Congressman Lewis. I have a bookmark inscribed with the words of Gene Testimony Hall: "Let's be clear, We said Black Lives Matter. We never said Only Black Lives Matter. That was the Media, Not us. In truth, we know that All Lives Matter. We've supported your lives throughout history. Now we need your help with Black Lives Matter, for Black lives are in danger."

I know the truth of that statement each day when I read our local paper. Last week two 14-year-olds died outside on a lawn, victims of a drive-by shooting. I have a litany I pray on the vigil line that goes "Say their names: Eric Garner, Michael Brown, Breonna Taylor..."

"The news is replete with tributes to Rep. Lewis these days, as well it should be. But I have found many of the stories missing a vital component: his forthrightness in addressing the connections between racism, excessive materialism, and militarism in American society. Lewis believed heart and soul in nonviolence to confront these "triple evils" named by Dr. King. He believed that love was the answer. In the words from my wife's protest sign and the Baptismal Covenant of the Episcopal liturgy: Will you strive for justice and peace among all people, and respect the dignity of every human being? John Lewis certainly replied: I will, with God's help."

I can't but think of the interconnectedness of events of late. Is it coincidence that the Federal Building around which protests in Portland, Oregon, are taking place each evening is named in honor of the late Senator Mark Hatfield, and that he and Congressman Lewis were the sponsors in their respective chambers of the Religious Freedom Peace Tax Fund Act? That is how I met John Lewis. I was the director and federal lobbyist of the National Campaign for a Peace Tax Fund, and John Lewis, Representative of the Fifth Congressional District of Georgia, was the Congressional sponsor of our bill. Each session of Congress he would re-introduce the Peace Tax Fund Act.

Ironically this bill, first introduced on "Tax Day," April 15, 1972, is as old as my 1972 marriage to Christine, my vigil partner, which took place at the headquarters of the Fellowship of Reconciliation (FOR), an organization of religious pacifists. This legislation was originally sponsored by Rep. Ron Dellums (D-CA, 1971-1998), who worked with FOR on legislation opposing the war in Vietnam.

This bill would establish a Peace Tax Fund into which those of us who are conscientiously opposed to war and the militarism of our society would pay our taxes each year. The money in the Fund could not be allocated for military purposes. Thus, the Peace Tax Fund could not be used to pay for nuclear weapons, wars in other nations, the militarization of our police forces, the military recruiting of our youth, etc. American taxpayers who oppose war as foreign policy could legally redirect our tax dollars to education, health care, social needs, infrastructure projects, etc. Christine and I have also, since 1972, resisted through protest, tax resistance, and the courts, the right of our government to use our tax dollars as weapons of war.

At times the Peace Tax Fund bill has had upwards of 50 representatives and senators as co-sponsors. But for the last decade Rep. Lewis was the sole sponsor. Just this year Rep. James P. McGovern (D-MA) joined Congressman Lewis and became a co-sponsor of H.R. 4169.

There hasn't been a Senate sponsor since Mark Hatfield retired in 1997.

Due to funding issues and compassion fatigue there came a time, a few years back, when the National Campaign's board of directors was considering dissolution of the organization. They were tired after decades of lobbying and discouraged by decreasing sponsorship of the bill. It was John Lewis who convinced the directors that this bill was such a significant piece of legislation that the National Campaign for a Peace Tax Fund needed to be revitalized, especially during an era when few Americans considered the right of conscientious objection to war. The Congressman's website had a banner headline that emphasized our bill and spoke of the right of conscientious objection to war.

Lewis was known as the "Conscience of the Congress" because he spoke out, sat-in, and stood up for the rights of all regardless of race, gender preference, or philosophy. His office door was open to all and Georgia peanuts and ice-cold water were there for the taking.

Like John Lewis I believe in nonviolent direct action as a way of speaking truth to power. My arrests number in the double digits, yet that still represents less than half of the 40 times Rep. Lewis was handcuffed and carted off to jail. I have never suffered the beatings he underwent during the civil rights era.

Lewis called on us, if we really wanted to change society, to adopt love as a way of life. "This sense of love, this sense of peace, the capacity for compassion, is something you carry inside yourself every waking minute of the day. It shapes your response to a curt cashier or a driver cutting you off in traffic."

Of his beatings he wrote: "It can be nothing more than a sad and sorry thing without the presence on the part of the sufferer of a graceful heart, a heart that holds no malice toward the inflictors of his or her suffering."

One of his last acts of civil disobedience was a 2016 sit-in on the floor of Congress seeking the right to vote on gun control legislation. We know of him largely because of his civil rights activism but his commitment to liberation and social justice was broad and intersectional; he demonstrated against the Iraq War, was arrested with the Dreamers in 2013, and demonstrated at the Sudanese Embassy leading to two arrests for speaking against the genocide in Darfur. He stood in solidarity with the tired, the poor, the immigrant, those yearning to be free. On his last day in Washington, DC, before being hospitalized, he went to Black Lives Matter Plaza and spoke with the demonstrators to let them know they did not walk alone, he was with them.

May we live like John Lewis advised in a tweet in 2018: "Do not get lost in a sea of despair. Be hopeful, be optimistic. Our struggle is not the struggle of a day, a week, a month, or a year, it is the struggle of a lifetime. Never, ever be afraid to make some noise and get in good trouble, necessary trouble."

Jack Payden-Travers was the director and federal lobbyist of the National Campaign for a Peace Tax Fund.

This 'n' That

as breeding season is wrapping up, baby birds are flooding Wildlife Care Association's rescuers in Sac County. Last night on the sidewalk next to Lighthouse I saw a small white egg, broken on the sidewalk. Not hatched. Recently laid, and broken. I guess the wind blew its nest away.

On the subject of sidewalks and other outdoor surfaces that absorb the sun, one Facebook commenter posted a 'graphic' warning with a photo: A dog's paw; the pads raw and bloody. Burned off from walking on such surfaces during the non-stop heat. Walking 'barefoot' on such a surface is like touching a burner set on high.

As much as my Nikky does love his walks, I don't take him 'til 10 p.m. when outside temperatures have been down to 80 for at least an hour. And even then, he mostly walks in shade or on grass.

NO walks when the sun is up. For that, I've stocked up on puppy papers. After 10 I give him more time outside, on grass, as I soak my garden.

Didn't water last night because, being stuck inside for days, I was out of stuff, so I made myself go to Walmart.

In the afternoon. About 3:30. In the heat. Felt a little shaky when I got home. Worried I might have a touch of heat stroke, I drank ice water, splashed cold water on my arms and face, then parked myself on the couch with A/C blowing on me, and berated myself for being stupid. Poor Nikky. No walk last night. (I feel fine today.)

Two nights ago, I brought in the feeders for the hummingbirds I have on my balcony, even though the feeders still were pretty full. I'd been watching 'my' hummingbirds fly up, attempt to drink, give up, and fly away. When I realized the liquid, out in the heat for two days, must be too hot to drink; I replaced it with cold water.

People on Next-door say they're seeing scruffy friendly cats. Someone's pet, they think. When offered food or water, the cats go to the water first. With people conserving energy (closing blinds and windows, opening doors less frequently to keep the hot air out), maybe their indoor-outdoor cat is thirsty. In heat like this, even a full bowl of water will quickly evaporate. And maybe they're not hearing a thirsty kitty at the door.

One man posted about his small pond with waterfall that a raccoon and three babies had discovered. He said every night for several they'd been showing up. He finally covered it with a wire screen weighted down with rocks after the raccoons ate all but one of his Chinese koi.

I tried to cheer him up with a Carol Fable. Told him if he misses his nightly visitors, he could adopt them. Just set out some cat food. Raccoons LOVE cat food, I said, which I discovered when I was feeding feral cats in Castro Valley.

Walking out the front door of my townhouse one early evening, I heard a noise in the small tree where I hung my birdhouse. Looking up, I saw three sets of eyes. The babies (two) and mama raccoon were so cute, I smiled at them and continued to my car.

Those devils reached into that birdhouse and ate eggs just laid by my Chickadee! Well, now, Chickadees are my favorite bird. I took down the birdhouse, and no more feeding the feral cats by my front door.

The cat food I moved to my back patio, which was surrounded by a tall concrete wall. Didn't deter the feral cats but, no raccoons. The little family likely would have discovered where I hid the cat food but for Dodger's periodic presence - our wolf-mix family dog.

Note the water marks on the edge of the birdbath. That's where a squirrel dangled, paws and head down, sound asleep, with its tail and half its body soaking in the water. Pretty enterprising, I thought. Using a birdbath to escape the heat.

Carol asks that you please put out cool water for thirsty birds and animals. Between heat and fires, so many are dead or dying. By the time you read this (Wed. 8/26), the National Weather Service Sacramento said the high for today would be 100 degrees. For actual current conditions plus the 5-day outlook, go here: <https://www.weather.gov/sto>. Questions, comments? Contact Carol at carol@bogartonline.com.
