

Introducing Dawnté Early-West

BY MICHELE TOWNSEND

As the current political terms come to an end, most people that hold a seat on the City Council (or other political positions in the government) hope to maintain their positions... or perhaps advance. Babs Sandeen, however, is planning to step down from the West Sacramento City Council. Babs was appointed to the City Council in 2014 and then elected into the position in 2016, where she has held the seat as Mayor Pro Tem. With Babs stepping down, this leaves an opening on the council. Dawnté Early-West would like to be the person that fills that spot. Dawnté believes with all of her heart that with her vast knowledge, experience, and passion for this community that she can be of great service to West Sacramento and should be elected into the upcoming empty seat. Dawnté said, “I think that this is an amazing community, from Southport to Broderick and everywhere in between. I think that especially with the changes from COVID, it’s going to take all of us to work together to rebuild our community, and I know that I can help!” Dawnté was born a U.S. citizen, on a U.S. Air Force base overseas. Both of Dawntés parents served in the United States Air Force, so Dawnté was raised a “military brat”. When asked if she grew up in a strict and highly structured home, she smiled and said, “I was brought up being taught that you always do your best, whatever that is, and that you always strive to do what it takes to help the greater good... such as your team, your school, your community, your country.” This is Dawntés driving force in life. She seems to be a great example of the adage? “Be the change that you want to see in life.” As part of that change, she wants to help West Sac recover and move forward. Dawnté has lived in many places but spent most of her childhood in Sacramento. In her early teens, her family was again transferred overseas, but they returned to Sacramento for her high school years. Dawnté was an excellent student academically, as well as captain of the basketball team. It was here that she learned the importance of teamwork. Dawnté graduated from Folsom High School with multiple academic and sports scholarship offers to choose from. Ultimately she chose a full academic scholarship to the University Alabama A&M. “I chose the academic scholarship,” she said, “because there may have been someone out there that needed a sports scholarship if they weren’t necessarily able to get an academic scholarship.... Plus then it would bring more good players to our team!” Dawnté eventually moved back to the Sacramento area to be close to family. She transferred to UC Davis where she graduated with a Bachelor of Science in Psychology. She continued her education at UCD and earned her Master’s in Child Development, a Ph.D. in Human Development with a Minor in Quantitative Psy-

Six West Sac Police officers involved in shooting of a Black man they say was armed with a handgun

BY MONICA STARK

West Sacramento Police killed a Black man, about 30 years old, who they say was holding a handgun on Sept. 12 at about 3 a.m. on the 1800 block of West Capitol Avenue. Four officers were directly involved with the shooting; two others were on scene.

According to a press release from WSPD, several police units arrived in the area and contacted an individual who was determined to not be related to the call. As officers continued searching the area, one officer noticed someone seated in a vehicle behind the police units at the intersection of Merkley and Poplar avenues. As the officer attempted to contact the driver, the unidentified Black man exited the vehicle armed with a handgun and a shooting ensued.

Officers immediately requested emergency medical personnel to the scene as they themselves performed life saving measures. Shortly after paramedics arrived at the scene, the subject was pronounced deceased. No other injuries were reported to any officer or civilian bystanders.

No on Prop 22 caravan left West Sac for the capital on Labor Day

Cars decked out in No on Prop 22 signs caravanned from West Sacramento to the State Capitol on Labor Day morning. Dubbed the “Sick of Greed! Labor Day Caravan – No on 22”, the caravan sought to honor gig economy workers by urging the public to vote “no” on the App-Based Drivers as Contractors and Labor Policies Initiative, which is on the ballot for the November 3 general election.

Fabrizio Sasso, the executive director of the Sacramento Center Labor Council of the American Federation of Labor and Congress of Industrial Organizations, said traditionally on Labor Day, the AFL-CIO holds a number of events, but because of the pandemic affecting everyone they decided to do a socially distanced caravan. “We are working with the folks on No on 22 because it is the most dangerous proposition on

THIS ‘n’ THAT Covid Vaccine – Who’s First?

BY CAROL BOGART

There’s a debate brewing over who will be first in line for what may be a limited supply of Covid 19 vaccine. Most agree it will take a safe effective vaccine for the world to return to some semblance of ‘normal.’

While there are those who argue people like me – older with underlying health problems – should get the vaccine first, I would argue for first protecting ‘essential workers’ – including teachers – followed by ANYONE with a health condition that puts them more at risk of dying from the virus. Recent research has found that 94 percent of Covid fatalities had one or more pre-existing health condition(s), such as diabetes, obesity, high blood pressure and others.

If the vaccine or some version of it is deemed safe of children, vaccinate school kids next. Mandatory. Sorry parents, but this should join the list of ‘have to’ vac-

OBITUARY

Fidel Martinez

Fidel Martinez of West Sacramento, passed away after a brief yet brave battle with cancer, on September 10, 2020 at the age of 77 years.

Fidel was born in San Francisco to Manuel and Erlinda Martinez on June 22, 1943, and was raised in Broderick, now West Sacramento, his beloved hometown.

In 1961, Fidel married his sweetheart, Judie Ellis, and they had three children, Dan (Kari), Rick (Sly) and Erin (Rob Snyder).

He is also survived by siblings, Manuel Martinez, Joe Perez Jr. (Helen) and Linda Perez, his grandchildren, Joshua (Analisa), Danny, Amber, Vincente (Kelsey), Morgan, Noah, Logan & Ally and his great grandchildren, Addie, Eliott, Emma and Kacey.

While raising their family, Fidel obtained his AA from Sacramento City College, BA from California State University, Sacramento and Juris Doctor from McGeorge School of Law in 1972.

While first on his mind was his love of God, salvation of his soul through Jesus as the Christ through the power of the Holy Spirit, he was equally passionate about his longtime love, his partner in life, Judie.

Fidel and Judie were four months shy of their 60th (diamond) wedding anniversary. Fidel practiced law in his hometown for 48 years. He represented the residents of West Sacramento and surrounding areas in their family law and criminal defense matters. Fidel prided himself in helping as many people as possible regardless of whether they could afford his services or not.

In addition, Fidel has been community minded and is fondly remembered for his time serving as the Washington Little League President, Little League and Bobby Sox coach, and is known as one of the founding leaders who helped incorporate the City of West Sacramento in January of 1987. As such, he was incredibly honored and humbled to serve on the first City Council of WS as Vice Mayor, later becoming the Cities second mayor.

Fidel's greatest joys were spending time with his kids, grandkids, and great grandkids. He never missed a game, school activity or extracurricular event involving his family. His praise and love for his family is unmatched.

Visitation hours will be Friday, Sept. 18, 2020 from Noon to 3:00 P.M. at River Cities Funeral Chapel, 910 Soule St., West Sacramento. That same day a 4:00 P.M. Yolo County Becomes First District Attorney’s Office in Nation to Offer Life-saving De-escalation Technology to First Responders

As a District Attorney serving nearly 220,000 residents, Jeff Reisig intimately knows the challenges facing Yolo County’s residents and its law enforcement officers. He’s always been committed to increasing county-wide cooperation and has a long history of taking advantage of technology to help public servants work smarter and respond more efficiently. Reisig believes Vitals technology will do that and more. Most importantly, he says, the service will make everyone safer while creating more collaboration between law enforcement officers and communities they serve that are often misunderstood.

“It is important to find ways we can all work together to protect each other. With Vitals, I believe we’ve found a platform that leverages technology, which can help create peaceful interactions with first responders and the communities they serve. By increasing communication and providing crucial information used to de-escalate responses to individuals in crisis, we create a win-win situation built on understanding,” District Attorney Reisig said.

Vitals participants voluntarily provide the individualized information in this cutting-edge program revolving around technological innovation. When authorized emergency service workers respond to calls regarding Vitals enrollees, they automatically receive important information on their smart phones to help them de-escalate or resolve a situation by providing a response catered to a person’s specific needs and vulnerabilities.

Yolo County becomes the second community in the State of California to offer Vitals to its public servants and residents. However, this is the first place in the nation where a district attorney is bringing the service to first responders and the community.

“We often hear first responder agencies, mental health advocates and school officials who learn about Vitals saying ‘why didn’t we think of that?’ When District Attorney Reisig approached us and said he wanted to help facilitate this service to the entire County of Yolo and its residents, we responded by saying ‘why didn’t we think of that?’ It is amazing to see the level of cooperation between first responders, mental health advocates, residents, and now prosecutors, in Northern California. We believe this is another big step in safeguarding adults and children with visible or invisible disabilities to receive compassionate and individualized service in every corner of Yolo County,” Vitals President/CEO Janeé Harteau explained.

The Folsom Police Department, on the other side of the metro area from Yolo County, was the first in the state to launch Vitals in January of this year.

With this pilot project, the Vitals service has been made available for all first responders in Yolo County, an area that covers more than 1,000 square miles between Sacramento and San Francisco.

The ultimate goal is for every public safety agency in Yolo County to embrace the new technology. This first phase of implementation includes Yolo County probation officers, police officers and firefighters from Winters, police officers from West Sacramento and Yolo County DA Investigators.

Individuals and families who believe they will benefit from the service are encouraged to sign up now at www.thevitalsapp.com. As a part of the Yolo County Vitals launch, 100 beacons are being offered at no cost to enrollees.

The Vitals platform is supported by advocates and caregivers serving people with mental health, autism, Alzheimer’s and dozens of other conditions. The company has also recently been in contact with customers across the nation who are very dedicated to serving transient and homeless populations, which remain core areas of focus for Yolo County as well.

IN THE SUPERIOR COURT OF THE STATE OF CALIFORNIA IN AND FOR THE COUNTY OF SACRAMENTO

In the matter of the Adoption of: ANTONIO GONZALEZ, Amended Petition for Termination of Parental Rights

Case No. 16AD00127 CITATION TO APPEAR

To ESTEBAN GONZALEZ: By order of this court you are hereby cited to appear before the judge presiding in Department 124 of this court on 10/19/2020 at 11:00AM, then and there to show cause, if any you have, why your Parental Rights should not be terminated according to the petition on file herein.

The address of the above court is 3341 Power Inn road, Sacramento, CA 95826.

The following information concerns rights and procedures that relate to this proceeding for the termination of custody and control of ANTONIO GONZALEZ as set forth in Section 7820, et seq. of the Family Code.

(1) If a parent whose termination of parental rights is being sought appears without counsel and is unable to afford counsel, the court must appoint counsel for the parent, unless the parent knowingly and intelligently waives the right to be represented by counsel, pursuant to Family Code Section 7860. The court will not appoint the same counsel to represent both ANTONIO GONZALEZ and their parent.

(2) The court may appoint either the public defender or private counsel. If private counsel is appointed, he or she will receive a reasonable sum for compensation and expenses, the amount of which will be determined by the court. That amount must be paid by the real parties in interest, but no by the minor, in such proportions as the court believes to be just. If, however, the court finds that any of the real parties of interest cannot afford counsel, the amount will be paid by the county.

(3) The court may continue the proceedings for not more than 30 days as necessary to appoint counsel and to enable counsel to become acquainted with the case.

this year’s ballot and we felt it was appropriate to let people know that they need to vote No on 22 and Labor Day is a perfect day to get that message out,” Sasso said.

A “yes” vote determines app-based transportation (rideshare) and delivery drivers as independent contractors and adopt labor and wage policies specific to app-based drivers and companies.

A “no” vote opposes this ballot initiative, meaning California Assembly Bill 5 (2019) could be used to decide whether app-based drivers are employees or independent contractors. According to Ballotpedia, “AB 5 established a three-factor test to decide a worker’s status as an independent contractor. The three-factor test requires that (1) the worker is free from the hiring company’s control and direction in the performance of work; (2) the worker is doing work that is outside the company’s usual course of business; and (3) the worker is engaged in an established trade, occupation, or business of the same nature as the work performed.”

On August 10, 2020, the Superior Court of San Francisco ruled that Uber and Lyft violated AB 5 and misclassified their workers. On August 20, the California First District Court of Appeal stayed Superior Court Judge Schulman’s ruling from taking effect.

“Prop 22 basically allows Uber, Lyft and Doordash not to pay overtime, pay sick leave, or pay into the unemployment insurance. It’s harmful for the state of California that they are not paying their fair share of taxes and so because of that, people have to vote ‘no,’” Sasso said.

“We shouldn’t be making special rules of fewer enforceable labor laws that makes the working conditions and the work that these workers are doing, contributing to the billions of dollars of profits to these companies and they are not giving back. They are spending $100 million on this proposition and that money is better spent on their employees to make sure they have health care, paid sick leave and overtime and they have a flexible schedule as well,” he added.

Mekela Edwards, a former teacher and driver for Lyft and Uber, said she stopped driving in March due to having asthma. “With Covid, I would have a 15 percent chance of dying,” she said. Complicating the matter is the fact she never received the two weeks pay that was promised to her. “I applied for that but never received any of that. I know other people who actually got sick and they were having trouble with it as well. They made it really complicated to apply anyway... I know the CEO of Uber, Dara Khosrowshahi, brags about it.”

Because of the high unemployment rate, looking for work that will keep Edwards safe right now has been a challenge. “And, we don’t know when this pandemic is going to end,” she added. “In San Francisco, their largest market, the customers are working from home now and so the demand isn’t as high. Even Uber staff who work at their headquarters are working from home now. It’s hard to maneuver in a place like that. I think about going back to work but at this time, it’s just not safe enough and it’s not profitable enough.”

Erica Mighetto said the protest denouncing Prop 22 held significance to her because it was on Labor Day, 2019, that she received a 60-day notice to vacate her apartment in downtown Sacramento. Since last November, she has been living in her car and storage unit. As a driver and organizer, Mighetto has been meeting drivers at the airport and talking to them about their stories. “I am not alone. There are a lot of drivers who are living out of their cars. It’s very clear when you approach their vehicle at the airport who is.”

“So, I am here today because I don’t want to see any more drivers like myself be driven into homelessness and I think prop 22 could be devastating to drivers and I want to make sure they have the protections that they deserve.”

Common stories she has heard from fellow drivers include regular pay cuts. “We know when the app asks us to update, that’s a pay cut... They are constantly moving the goal post. We are constantly working longer and longer hours so that we can get a bonus but that’s really just a guarantee that you are going to net minimum wage so they are going to force you to work more and more hours just so that you can get by at this point,” she said.

Mighetto said there was this time last year where she had to work 60 hours a week in order to pay her rent and it’s really tough. “That’s kind of the common thread. Lots of pay cuts and lots of moving of the goal posts and no reimbursement for expenses,” she said.

“Your vehicle gets worn and you are having more and more of these maintenance issues and they are cutting your pay and you are needing a new battery. In my case last year I needed a new clutch. So the longer you drive rideshare, the more you see it’s not equitable for drivers at all,” Mighetto said.

City council member Martha Guerrero took her West Sacramento mayoral campaign to the streets on Labor Day in support of the No on 22 crowd. “Any worker who is willing to put all the hard work in to get the job done right for their employer needs to be provided with wages and benefits and support whether it be pension or any plan or long term. I don’t think it’s fair for any employee to not have holidays, paid sick days. I don’t think it’s fair for any of them to be without that support and independent contractors don’t receive it,” she said.

Guerrero highlighted the privately-run Via program that was supplementing West Sacramento’s public transit and YoloBus. “All of those workers were not receiving any benefits and those are our public taxpayer dollars and I believe that the citizens that are putting money in for public dollars, it should be known that they are going to be helping the workers,” she said.

“The workers don’t have any health insurance and they’d be getting sick. They were transporting children, transporting the elderly. And, what happens to a worker when they are not taking care of themselves? They’re going sick on the job and they don’t have any sick time.”

She said that the owner of Via did not resist the implementation of AB5 and asked for additional support from the city, including a revision of the contract so that the council could reincorporate the additional financing needed for him to provide the additional benefits. “I was supportive of that but the mayor decided not to re-open the contract. So it really made a hole for the owner to be able to provide support for his workers,” she said.

As a privately-run business that relies on public support, Guerrero said the situation appears deceptive. “It’s deceiving because they put the West Sacramento logo on the door of the Via vans. None of them are city employees; it’s just a city owned van,” she said.

Edwards is a part of a group of 15 female drivers who act as a support for each other. “We meet every Tuesday on Zoom. We definitely are still supporting and discussing each other and talking about the pros and cons of the proposition. The only pro that I see is that they are still promising flexibility, but other than that nothing in the bill will protect us from what’s on the books right now which is ab 5, which they are not following,” Edwards said.

She added that she believes the most important thing supporters can do right now is protect gig economy workers. “We should just be treated better. We are essential workers. We offer things that help this economy move. We deliver groceries. There are just so many cracks,” Edwards said.

Get Ready for Dynamic & Diverse “Sac Open Studio” Virtual Experiences Starting Next Week Presented by Verge Center for the Arts, A Series of Exciting Online Activities Take Place September 17-20

Verge Center for the Arts is excited to present the 15th Annual Sac Open Studios event with a dynamic and diverse variety of live online activities scheduled for September 9-13 and 17-20, 2020. Sac Open Studios is a free self-guided tour designed to showcase artists who live and work in the greater Sacramento region. The ever-evolving event is the region's oldest, largest and most prestigious artist studio tour program that provides a platform for the community to connect with and support regional artists while making new discoveries along the way.

With 120 artists participating from throughout Sacramento County and the City of West Sacramento in 2020, the community can watch and/or engage in a variety of ways, including a Sac Open Studios kick-off event, interactive “Conversations with Artists” opportunities, various “Artist Livestreams” when the community can watch artistry in action, individual events offered by some of the participating artists, and more.

“While the format may be a bit different this year, significantly more people will now have the opportunity to discover the depth of amazing talent that exists in our artist and maker community,” said Liv Moe, Founding Director of Verge Center for the Arts. “This year, all that is needed is a computer or smartphone to engage, experience and enjoy a creative getaway live from the comfort of living rooms everywhere or from virtually anywhere.”

Sac Open Studios Kick-Conversations with Artists and Artist Livestreams – September 17-20 (times vary)

Conversations with Artists is a series of virtual events held on Zoom consisting of conversations and moderated audience Q&A sessions with Sac

Open Studios artists. The community is invited to participate in themed sessions to learn more about artists’ artwork, inspirations, studio practice, and more. During Artist Livestreams, Sac Open Studios artists will broadcast live from their studios on Facebook Live or Instagram Live. This is a rare chance to get an exclusive peek into the daily lives of artists in their studios, watch their process, learn their techniques, and ask questions. For more information and a specific schedule of Conversations with Artists, please visit <https://sacopenstudios.com/conversations-with-artists>.

Individual Artist Events

To complement the virtual events as part of the official Sac Open Studios effort, a number of artists will host their own, virtual events throughout September as well. The community is welcome to attend these events for singular artistic experiences created by our community of regional artists. For a complete artist directory, please visit <https://sacopenstudios.com/directory>.

How to Watch & Engage

To find and/or watch the live events, e-attendees simply visit sacopenstudios.com during the scheduled times to watch the action live. Conversations with Artists will broadcast live via Zoom and Artist Livestreams will broadcast live from artists’ individual Facebook and Instagram accounts. Participants can also choose to follow the social media accounts of participating artists to receive in-app notifications when they begin their Artist Livestreams. The Artist Listings of the guide is a great resource to find the Facebook pages and Instagram user names for favorite artists.

Sac Open Studios Guide

For more detailed tour information, a comprehensive and user-friendly 60-page Sac Open Studios guidebook/magazine will be available soon at various locations around the region, or can be downloaded online at <https://sacopenstudios.com/view-the-guide/>.

Sac Open Studios Preview Exhibition – September 10-27

An exhibition showcasing a sampling of local artistry will be on display for a limited time at Verge Center for the Arts for in-person viewing at 625 S Street in Sacramento. Artwork on display is for sale with proceeds benefiting the artists and Verge. Due to COVID-19 restrictions, social distancing measures and health precautions will be in place including mandatory masks to be worn by all visitors. Interested guests are encouraged to visit www.vergeart.com for regularly updated information about visiting the center in person.

Originally established in 2006 by the Center of Contemporary Art Sacramento (that later merged with Verge Center for the Arts in 2014), Sac Open Studios allows tour goers the opportunity to engage directly with artists while enjoying and experiencing a self-guided, art-focused exploration of the greater Sacramento region, whether that means in-person as in previous years or virtually in 2020.

A unique collaboration between Verge Center for the Arts, local artists, arts organizations, schools and colleges, and local businesses, Sac Open Studios is generously sponsored by the following: Blick Art Materials, Capital Public Radio, Mondavi Center, Phillip M. Cunningham, Warehouse Artist Lofts (WAL), Inside Sacramento and Sacramento365.com. Additional support is provided by the Office of Arts and Culture of the City of Sacramento, the City of Sacramento and the County of Sacramento Board of Supervisors.

Join The Village Feast online on Oct. 17

Every year, The Village Feast celebrates the Sacramento region's Farm-to-Fork season, where the community gathers to enjoy and honor the bounty of local farmers. The event has been an afternoon of dining at a communal long table in Davis' Central Park, in the style of a Provencal grand aioli.

This year, because of the pandemic, the entire event will be online, on Saturday, Oct. 17, from 1 to 3 p.m.

The Virtual Village Feast 2020 is free to attend, and has two parts:

1. An online auction with items donated by chefs, restaurants, wineries and community members.
2. A live Zoom hosted event, where participants will share their home feasts virtually, play trivia games, and bid on auction items.

Participants will have several options for enjoying the Village Feast at home. Bella Bru Cafe will offer ready-to-eat Provencal-inspired meals, which may be picked at three locations or delivered through DoorDash.

Farm Fresh To You will offer an “aperitif” box (baguette, olives, roasted nuts, cheese) and a CSA ingredient box to make your own grand aioli feast at home. The Davis Food Co-op will offer a special selection of Yolo and Sacramento county wines to accompany the feast.

People wishing to participate may register for the event at <https://thevillagefeast2020.eventbrite.com>.

“Memories of a New Future” Opens at YoloArts Barn Gallery

In a new exhibition exploring the meaning of art during a pandemic, YoloArts will debut Memories of a New Future, a multi-media exhibition featuring the artwork of Yolo County and regional artists, makers, and thinkers. The Barn Gallery’s exhibition includes sculpture, paintings, drawings, photography, prints, mixed media installations and digital media

Memories of a New Future includes the artwork of these artists:

- Lynn Beldner, Multi-media, installation-based artist
- Steve Briscoe, Sculptor
- Melissa Chandon, UCD Professor of Design, painter
- Chris Daubert, Artist, writer, curator
- Glenda Drew, UCD Professor of Design, filmmaker, media artist
- Jesse Drew, UCD Professor of Cinema and Digital Media, filmmaker, media artist
- Mel Smothers, Contemporary artist

Artists Chandon and Smothers conceived the idea of the show pre-pandemic.

“Working on this show came about as a result of a conversation we had during the early part of the summer of 2019 after which it grew and developed into this amazing group exhibition,” Chandon recently stated. “We are friends, colleagues, and mid-career artists who show work internationally and are active in the local and academic community.”

The exhibition is a conceptual show with unique interpretations of the theme.

This group of artists has come together to reflect on the simple act of “embarkation” or the willful movement of people from one place to another.

In the artists’ statement for the show they say:

“Whether it is promise or peril, for adventure or escape, people have embarked on journeys for millennia. In our moment of “sheltering in place” we want to remind ourselves of the hopes and dreams represented by pushing off and heading into the unknown.”

“Each of the artists, in very individual ways, examines the meaning of art in a world that has turned upside-down,” stated Janice Purnell YoloArtscreative director. “The show’s theme is grounded in the journey we are all undertaking these days and these exciting works of art provide both a map and a reflection of our shared voyage into the unknown”

An Augmented Reality Workshop with Glenda Drew and Jesse Drew, will be held on Thursday October 21 at 7 pm via Zoom and introduce popular tools for creating AugmentedReality (AR) with hands-on demonstrations of how to use Artivive.

Workshop registration is available at yoloarts.org.

Memories of a New Future continues at The Barn Gallery through November 14.

An exhibition event will happen on Facebook Live,

4 p.m. Wednesday September 9. All of the artists will be at this exhibition preview to talk about their work.

The Barn Gallery will be open to the public the next day, 4:30 to 7 p.m., September 10, and for every Thursday through November 14. The Barn Gallery will also be open on select Saturdays, and by appointment. Check yoloarts.org for details. Artwork can be viewed online at: <https://yoloarts.org/online-galleries/#current>

Face coverings and social distancing will be required at the gallery.

The Barn Gallery is located at 512 Gibson Road in Woodland. For more information contact YoloArts at ya@yoloarts.org.

cines if kids are to be educated indoors in groups. A-symptomatic children are proven community spreaders of the virus. Other group settings clearly in need of a vaccine: convalescent hospitals and nursing homes.

Meantime, vaccine clinical trials are going begging for participants. Maybe no one wants to risk exposure to the virus, but get a placebo, not the vaccine. Perhaps inmates, in exchange for reduced sentences, will step up, since prisons and jails are proving to be Covid 19 hot spots.

On the subject of essential workers, on Nextdoor the other day, a man in Sacramento wanted to know whether any “Back the Blue” rallies will be forthcoming. Marches in support of law enforcement in light of pandemic-era surges in assorted crimes.

The raft of responses was quick in coming, and, as you might imagine, not all were positive.

Here’s what I said on the subject of increased crime:

Let’s consider the early release prisoners, and criminals not posting bond, so as to protect them from Covid infection in jail and prison – but have no money, have no job, and so are, well, let’s see:

- stealing catalytic converters
- taking packages off porches
- breaking into cars and homes
- dealing drugs

In short, resuming their pre-pandemic, pre-prison lives of crime.

Defund the police? We’ve never needed law enforcement more.

Rallies – even those that ‘Back the Blue’ – just make MORE work for the police, when they’re busy enough already. Especially since some who participate in ‘peaceful protest’ deface and destroy property. And speaking of marches, gatherings and rallies, do we really believe these ‘group’ events haven’t prolonged our suffering with this virus?

If you want to support law enforcement, write letters to the editors of papers large and small, and write your council, state and federal representatives. Tell them to give police MORE money to:

- Add personnel – such as more K9 units
- Provide all officers specific training in how to handle a ‘suicide by cop’
- Make PTSD screening mandatory for all officers, new recruits on up
- Give paid medical leave for PTSD therapy, especially if an officer’s partner, including K9, dies in action.

Most of all, when you see a paramedic, firefighter, health-care worker and, yes, police officer – thank them for their service. Could you do what they do? Could I? No. We couldn’t. Unless we want anarchy in our streets and neighborhoods, stop blaming the police for a criminal’s behavior.

ARCHIVE PHOTOS COURTESY OF YOLO & SACRAMENTO COUNTIES

During the H1N1 Flu pandemic in 2009, people were lining up for flu shots at drive-throughs, in schools, and at West Sac’s city hall. Again in 2020, health officials urge everyone to get the flu shot and, if a safe, effective Covid 19 vaccine is approved, that, too. The fear is, without vaccination, hospitals will be overrun with people experiencing serious complications of the virus, the flu, or both, and ICUs will run out of beds.

Root out ‘bad’ cops, absolutely. But thank God every day for those who risk their lives for us, and as soon as there’s a safe, effective vaccine – let them have it.

Carol Bogart is, and has always been, a strong supporter of law enforcement. Carol’s TV news ‘beat’ in Denver and Chicago was cops and courts. She has seen horrifying crime scene photos. Covered a lot of trials and testimony. Watched police in action many times. Witnessed first-hand the risks they run. There are crazies out there who target cops. Too often, an officer is killed. Focus on that. Study what went wrong in those mixed up brains. Identify any who, now, could be headed in that direction. A good place to start: School counselors who deal with troubled kids. Questions, comments? Contact Carol at carol@bogartonline.com.

chology. As if she didn’t have enough going on at that time, Dawnté along with her husband and baby, moved to West Sac. They fell in love with our community and had another child. Dawnté’s kids are currently 18 and 7. She and her husband have been very active with their children’s activities. She has coached youth soccer for WSSC and basketball and football for parks and rec. She is also a Girl Scout Troop Leader. She knows how important youth programs are and wants to not only ensure they remain, but she would like to create better programs between the city and school district so that all that want to, can participate. Dawnté was on the Aging Commission for seven years, so she is aware of the needs and challenges of our elderly. With all of those degrees, Dawnté found her love in research. She started her career working for the State of California as a researcher. Her research format is data. She not only collects the data, but she then analyzes it to assess what is missing, needs changing, and what those changes need to be, to help our underserved and unserved community members. In other words, she looks at all of the info and figures out what we’re doing right and wrong. She guides the development of health programs and policies. She looks for the cracks that people are falling through and does her best to repair them. One of the projects that she was involved in providing the information needed by state and local programs to monitor emerging health issues with mothers, children, and adolescents. Dawnté was also involved with a research project that involved the Dept of Corrections (CDCR) and the Dept. of Health Care Services (DHCS) and how the Affordable Care Act impacted health care services of individuals released from prison. This led to policies that help ensure that people with behavior issues are provided mental health assistance instead of returning them to jail. “It’s not just about gathering information and understanding that the same questions will have different outcomes in different demographics, it’s also asking the right questions,” Dawnté said. Her research helps to develop programs and policies to combat topics like mental health assistance, homelessness, criminal justice, and unemployment. Dawnté currently holds the position of Chief of Research and Evaluation for Mental Health Services Oversight and Accountability Commission. Her primary goal is to revamp the mental health system so that those that need help get it in a timely and effective manner. Dawnté has already worked with West Sac city officials, as well as state and federal officials in the creation of a variety of programs. She strongly believes that everyone should get equal pay for the same work. It should not depend on your race or gender. She believes that her experience and knowledge can help tremendously in the healing and recovery of our city. Also, she wants to help the small businesses, bring in new jobs, and that the city council is there to represent the wants and needs of our community and figure out how to provide them. She believes she can help do that. Dawnté generally goes by Dawnté Early-West. However, she would like you to be aware that on the ballot it will only say Dawnté Early. For more information on Dawnté visit www.dawntearly.com.

Shooting

The name of the shooting victim has not been released, pending notification to his next of kin and identification from the Yolo County Coroner’s office.

Officers immediately requested emergency medical personnel to the scene as they themselves performed life saving measures. Shortly after paramedics arrived at the scene, the subject was pronounced deceased. No other injuries were reported to any officer or civilian bystanders.

The officers will be placed on administrative leave. Pursuant to the Yolo County Officer Involved Fatal Incident Protocol, the Davis Police Department will be conducting the shooting investigation.

Officers involved with the shooting include a sergeant with approximately 15 years of experience and three officers with five years or less experience.

Law requires video footage from body and vehicle cameras within 45 days; WSPD Sgt. Eric Angle thinks the video should be available sooner.

“I can’t elaborate any more on (the incident) because I am trying to preserve the integrity of the investigation by Davis PD,” Angle said. “To be honest, I don’t know for sure because I wasn’t there and I haven’t reviewed any footage, but if the preliminary investigation is saying that (he was armed with a handgun), I would assume he had it in his hand. He had to have been holding it in a threatening manner for the officers to engage with lethal force.”

In a follow-up question regarding the validity that what the man was holding was, in fact a gun, Angle said: “In my press release I said it was a gun. I do know that he had a gun.”
