

In memoriam:

The Mayor Without A City: Willie DaPrato

The American Heritage Dictionary defines the word HERO with three distinct Phrases. ONE: a man celebrated for his bold exploits. Willie ran his own businesses for over fifty years and he was bold enough to run for public office. TWO: A person noted for feats of courage or nobility of purpose. Willie went off to war knowing he might have to battle with his own cousins in Italy and as a business man he always put people before the almighty dollar. THREE: a person noted for special achievement in a particular field. Willie was president of several service groups as well as the Northern California Grocers association and he was elected mayor of West Sacramento, but sadly the city was not incorporated... hence his title was “Mayor Without A City”.

In many ways Willie was not just a person, not just another pretty face. Willie may have been more aptly characterized as the symbol of a generation, a generation of young people--born during a period of severe economic depression, matured during the greatest armed conflict the world has ever know and after returning home from war, flushed with victory ,faced the future with an exciting spirit of inspiration, anticipation, hope and adventure.

Willie and hundreds of thousands like him fled the cities of their childhood to carve out a new way of life for himself and his family.

Willie became a part of the development of West Sacramento---who among us does not remember the Westmore subdivision, the coming of the freeway, the construction of the barge canal, the development of the port, the unification of the school district---all in all the struggle to fulfill our destinies.

In the beginning there was mama and papa DaPrato --over from Italy and then there was Willie. He was raised in Sacramento's North Beach"Little Italy"--48th and M streets. Willie received his formal education by attending El Dorado Elementary School, Kit Carson Jr. High School and graduating from Sacramento High. However, his most valuable education, came from the school of hard knocks which made him streetwise.

Willie started his professional career early in life working at odd jobs for pocket money and to help his family. In 1938 he began working part time for Louis De Fazio in Louie's market at 48th and J streets. While in high school, he continued to work for Louie until 1942. In 1943, Willie went to war and served in the European Theater of Operations as a member of an anti-aircraft unit in the U.S. Army. After his service in the Army Willie returned working for Louie.

Willie's association with Louie led to a partnership in 1949 in the purchase of the West Sacramento Market on 15th and Virginia streets. The store was nestled in a complex of commercial buildings that included the Rainbow Market, Dr. Watt's Soft Drink Factory, West Sacramen-

County

Allows

Additional

Activities

To Reopen

Effective last week, Yolo County has amended the current Shelter-in-Place order to allow childcare for non-essential workers, select services, and outdoor museums and open gallery spaces to re-open while non-essential office-based businesses must remain closed. This amendment aligns the County with some recent modifications to the State's Stay-at-Home Order, which allows for all of these activities, including office-based businesses, to resume in a limited capacity under Phase Two of the State's four-phase reopening plan. The County's Shelter-in-Place order is still in effect through May 31.

Yolo County is allowing the following activities to resume that have been assessed as low risk for the spread of COVID-19 and are consistent with the State Order, as long as they 1) follow State guidelines, 2) adhere to the County's face covering order; 3) comply with strict social distancing protocols:

- Childcare for those outside of the essential workforce
- Limited services: car washes, pet grooming, landscape gardening, appliance repair, residential and janitorial cleaning, and plumbing
- Outdoor museums and open gallery spaces.

While the State Order is in effect, counties are permitted to be more restrictive than the state regarding the re-opening of activities. The State's Order now allows for office-based business to re-open, while strongly encouraging continued teleworking. The County will delay

THIS ‘n’ THAT

Compassion Surging, Wildlife Thriving

BY CAROL BOGART

There was some disagreement. Was the baby bird a house sparrow, blackbird or a blue-jay? It had fallen from a nest concealed beneath some roof tiles. The West Sac homeowner could hear the other nestlings chirping, she said on social media.

The baby bird, eyes closed, no feathers, in the posted photo, sat hunkered in her hand. The family, she said, has both a cat and dog. It was her first wildlife rescue. “What,” she asked, “do I do with this baby bird?”

Some have said the biggest difference between this pandemic and the last one, about 100 years ago, is the Internet, and more specifically, social media. Advice was swift in coming.

Could the finder put it back in the nest? No. No way to reach it. Could she put it close to the nest in hopes the parents still might feed it? No. At-large neighborhood cats or other predators, such as hawks, would likely get it. The suggestion made most often by the commenters: Contact Wildlife Care at McClellan (Wildlife Care Association, 5211 Park Rd., McClellan Park, CA 95652).

The finder called and learned that the little bird could be dropped off in the morning. Instructions: Don't feed it. Place it in a dark box. And then, if it survives the night, deliver the little nestling to the well-regarded rescue across the river.

Championship dreams on hold for local softball star

Traveling player, team homebound until further notice

BY LANCE ARMSTRONG

William “Bill” Nevis is eager to put on his cleats again and return to the ball diamond with his locally-based senior softball team, Omen.

Nevis, 77, is a senior league softball star who would be playing meaningful games were it not for the current stay-in-place orders issued to prevent the spread of the novel coronavirus (COVID-19).

After having his team’s tournament games canceled in Las Vegas earlier this spring, he is still awaiting to play in a game. Although Nevis respects the current order, he also wishes things were different, especially considering the way his last championship run ended.

“We should have won the triple crown (last season),” he said. “That was the last tournament in September, in Las Vegas,” he said. “We got screwed out of that one.

“What happened is when we played in Sacramento for the Western Regional, they didn’t have a team for us to play in our (75- to 80-year-old) age bracket. What we ended up doing was playing (a 70- to 75-year-old bracket) team – two (games) out of (three) games for the championship.”

Nevis added that the other team beat his team for the Western National championship, “according to the people that ran the tournament.”

“The (70-75-year-olds team) didn’t have anybody to play either, so they would win their section and the (75-80-year-olds) team would win theirs,” he said. “So, that’s kind of the way we thought it was going to be.”

Although Nevis’ team didn’t win a triple-crown championship, they won a national championship in their final tournament last season.

Nevis, who began playing recreational league softball at age 20 in the Sacramento area, has continuously played the sport annual, with various local teams.

In the 1980s, he coached his two daughters’ recreational softball teams, including their All-Star teams.

Nevis joined the Sacramento Golden Seniors in 1994, and played in his first world championship in Salt Lake City three years later. He was voted best offensive and defensive player.

Nevis additionally won multiple world and other ring softball championships, and earned all-tournament patches for different ring tournaments.

In 2016, he was voted into the National Senior Softball Hall of Fame, followed by a team celebration in Las Vegas. His batting average that year was .862.

Through softball, Nevis has traveled throughout California and other parts of the nation.

But his life as a softball player remains on hold due to the current stay-at-home order.

Nevis mentioned that with uncertainties surrounding COVID-19-related restrictions, some of his teammates are beginning to have a change in attitude regarding whether they will attend the still-scheduled Rock ‘n Reno Challenge Cup tournament on June 7.

“Our next big tournament is in Reno and it’s kind of iffy, and there’s a lot of guys that I talk to that don’t know whether they want to go or not, whether they say we’re going to play,” he said.

“They’ve been talking about these new rules. Well, we won’t get in the dugout. We’ll stay outside the dugout. They’re even talking about wearing masks.

“I mentioned that to my daughter who is a physical therapist, and she said, ‘You’re going to have 75- to 80-year-olds wearing masks, running the bases? You’re going to have to have an ambulance on hand.’”

Nevis, a retired homebuilder who built five houses in Elk Grove from 1992 to 1997, said that going to Reno is no longer as appealing to him.

Bill Nevis is among the most accomplished senior softball players in the Sacramento area.

“I’m already kind of thinking I don’t want to go to Reno,” he said. “The casinos aren’t open, the hotels aren’t open.”

Despite how much he would like to pursue another triple-crown championship, Nevis stressed that the health of the players is paramount.

“I just feel, and I’ve been talking to some of the other players, it’s not worth it,” he said. “I don’t want to be in a hotel, I don’t want to be in a restaurant. There are a lot of things I don’t want to do.

“We may play in August, September or whatever for a couple of months, and if that doesn’t happen, then we’ll just stay healthy and play next season.”

With his season postponed, Nevis is committed to keeping in shape.

“I’ve been walking every day, and I have gone out to hit,” he said. “Normally, we hit twice a week, but there are normally 12 (to) 15 guys. You just got to do what you got to do. You’ve got to exercise. You’ve got to keep yourself in shape, if you want to play.”

Bill Nevis’ history as a ballplayer dates back to 1952

IT WHEEL BE LLAMAZING

It is with a heavy heart that after many meetings and much discussion the Board of Directors and Staff made the very difficult decision to cancel the 2020 Yolo County Fair.

This decision was not made lightly. The health and safety of our community is our top priority. This is a big disappointment to our Fair Staff, Board of Directors, Vendors, Volunteers, Local Organizations, Concessionaires, Exhibitors, Carnival Staff and the community but it is the right decision.

Planning for Fair takes months to produce this high-quality event. Due to the uncertainty of when restrictions for large public gatherings will be lifted, we are not able to make plans for the caliber of Fair everyone expects.

We wish everyone good health in the coming days. When we can safely open the fairgrounds to the public, we will continue with our tradition to schedule the events you enjoy and love - including the 2021 Yolo County Fair... "Wheel Be Llamazing".

reopening non-essential offices until next week in order to develop localized guidance. Face coverings are still mandatory in Yolo County for the public and businesses that are reopened. Information can be found at: www.yolocounty.org/coronavirus-roadmap Recently, the State announced they would allow for regional variation, or an opportunity for counties to move further into Phase Two and reopen additional services or businesses if they could attest to meeting the State's criteria by submitting a readiness plan that was approved by the local health officer and Board of Supervisors. In response, Yolo County has developed a readiness plan and plan on submitting it to the State for final approval this week.

Yolo County continues to monitor developments related to the State Order as well as local data. Additional amendments on loosening or tightening activities under the County's Shelter-in-Place order will be based on developments related to these two areas. This 'n' That

As the drama was unfolding, the finder's children watched intently.

The next morning, the little bird was still alive. The kids' dad drove it to Wildlife Care. When he arrived, he alerted those inside he was there, and then, as instructed, placed the box by the door (social distancing). He didn't learn what variety of bird is family rescued, but did learn that Wildlife Care is inundated in baby birds.

Not surprising. This is wildlife breeding season in California. Trees and bushes (and roof overhangs) have active nests with babies in various stages of development. As of this writing, we've had two wind storms.

An online group effort by empathetic souls pointed this nestling's rescuers in the right direction. In the photo, it was clear the nestling hadn't yet developed feathers, so wasn't fledgling (i.e. couldn't fly). Wildlife Care's advice for fledglings is to leave those baby birds where you find them. While they may be at risk from predators, fledglings have watchful parents close at hand.

Just as blackbirds will attack a hawk that swoops too close to an active nest, other bird parents, too, may attempt to drive off, say, a cat, giving the fledgling time to fly out of reach.

So, if you should find a fully feathered baby bird – or any other fully developed baby animal – that appears to be an orphan, assume the parents are close by and will protect it.

This little bird, however, would surely have died had not kind people intervened.

Perhaps it's the Stay Home order that has more wildlife-friendly eyes watching for animals in trouble. Throughout our region, nationwide and around the globe, wildlife reportedly is returning to once-native haunts. A cable news program recently showed thousands of endangered sea turtles digging their way out of their buried nests to scurry across a deserted beach to the ocean. More tiny Ridley sea turtles than annual observers had ever seen.

And the air! Fewer planes flying. Fewer vehicles on the road. The air is measurably cleaner! With emissions down around the world, it will be interesting to see what dent, if any, this will make in climate change, but at least for now, nature's thriving.

So that's the good news. The frightening news – besides what the virus can do to you or someone you love – is the lockdown's blow to our economy. Not just ours. If you have cable, watch BBC World News sometimes. The whole planet's suffering.

Prior to the pandemic, I rarely watched TV, least of all, non-stop cable news. But this is historic and we are living it. When the worry, and meanspirited political posturing, gets to be too much, I switch to Big Bang reruns – or simply shift my focus to happy things.

Like the successful rescue of a baby bird.

Zoom Addiction Intervention Court Graduation for Woodland Man

On May 14, 2020, 59-year-old Woodland man Steven Scharl successfully graduated from Addiction Intervention Court in Department 14 of the Yolo County Superior Court. The graduation was done virtually using the Zoom platform.

When the COVID-19 crisis hit, all AIC court appearances were canceled to avoid further spread of the virus. In early April, Yolo County's justice partners rebooted Mental Health Court (MHC) and Addiction Intervention Court (AIC) by having its first informal "Zoom Court" where participants met with team members and the AIC and MHC judge through Zoom video conferencing. In preparation, the treatment team contacted participants and helped them learn how to use Zoom. On Thursday, April 9, 2020 the MHC team held its first ever live, virtual informal court hearing. The first AIC informal Zoom court occurred on April 16.

After nearly two years in AIC, Steve Scharl had met all requirements and was ready for his graduation. The graduation was put on hold due to the COVID-19 crisis until AIC team members decided that there was nothing preventing the graduation from occurring by Zoom. Scharl was very much in favor of this.

Addiction Intervention Court (AIC) is a specialty court program that serves up to 20 individuals who struggle with substance use disorders and are involved in the criminal justice system as a result of their addiction. The program is a collaborative effort between the Yolo County District Attorney's Office, the Yolo County Superior Court, the Public Defender, the Probation Department, and Health and Human Services Agency. The program provides intensive support services and supervision aimed at increasing a participant's overall quality of life while reducing recidivism.

On May 14, 2014 at 2 pm, Scharl, his family members, other AIC participants, and Woodland Police Department (WPD) Deputy Chief Anthony Cucchi entered the Zoom "waiting room" and were "admitted" into Zoom Court for Scharl's graduation. AIC team members also were "in court" by Zoom. Scharl had been arrested by WPD in May 2018 for crimes for his physically and verbally aggressive acts against WPD officers. Ironically, Scharl had served as a police officer in Hawaii for 20-year prior to moving to Woodland.

Scharl was referred to Addiction Intervention Court. His first day in that court was June 26, 2018. Initially, Scharl had some difficulty following direction from the treatment team. As the months passed and with the support of the AIC team, Scharl became a believer and fully surrendered himself to the program. As a result of his dedicated efforts, he became a leader for others in the program.

Judge David Reed, who presides over AIC, made some initial remarks stating that "this is a special day and an unusual situation having a graduation by Zoom." "Zoom is becoming more and more natural and is a good way to feel a personal connection in these COVID times," said Reed. He continued, "you are ready for graduation and to leave AIC behind you. This is the end of a chapter in your life but the beginning of a new chapter. Congratulations!" Judge Reed then invited team members to offer comments and congratulate Scharl.

Deputy Probation Officer Stephen Svetich stated "You have committed yourself and strengthened your resolve, Steven. You could easily have taken the easy way out but you chose AIC and committed yourself to change." Deputy Public Defender Bret Bandle, who represents Scharl, said "early on I realized you were going to do it and by golly you did. Congratulations!" Next Health and Human Services Forensic Case Manager Amanda Navaez spoke. "I'm so proud of you, Steven," said Navaez. "You've come a long way. You humbled yourself, let go of a lot of stuff, and moved on." Finally, Chief Deputy District Attorney Jonathan Raven offered his congratulations to Scharl. "We told you that you needed to surrender yourself to the treatment team and it paid off. You are a shining example to the rest of the participants here today. I'm so proud of you." Raven then told Scharl he was giving to him a $50 gift certificate to Paesano's restaurant in Davis that was given to him by a community member."

Judge Reed then asked WPD Deputy Chief Anthony Cucchi for his remarks. Chief Cucchi stated "I hope our future contacts are positive. Come to our 'Coffee with a cop' and let's discuss issues in our community. Well done!" Scharl's sister then spoke to him. "I'm so happy you're back with us, Steven. I love you." Then, Scharl's daughter Zooming from Hawaii tearfully spoke to him. "I want to congratulate you on your long journey. Our relationship getting restored his huge. This is such a beautiful blessing."

At last it was Scharl's chance to speak. "I don't take this lightly, Chief. Thanks for your words of encouragement." Scharl continued, "there are so many people I want to thank and I am so filled with thankfulness. I will give back in any way I can since AIC has now provided me with the tools and life skills. I love the team members who are now my lifetime friends."

Normally, MHC and AIC graduations conclude with cake and pizza. Just as the graduation started, the team had pizza delivered to Scharl at his home in Woodland. Scharl will also participate in the AIC alumni program which allows graduates to stay involved with the program and mentor others who are still in the program.

to Land Administration, the post office, library, old fire station, and an old store (which became Peterson's, then Gormans and Beers Cleaner).

In 1949, Louie died and Willie became partners with Louie's son Bill until 1953 when he became the sole owner. In 1958, the historic old West Sacramento gave way to progress and was replaced with a modern building on the same site and WILLIES MARKET came into being.

Willie's family grew. He married Mary Helen Keller and later adopted her son Michael. They had Steven in 1950, Billy in 1953 and Jimmy in 1960. Not only did his family grow but Willie himself was beginning to emerge into the community leader which he eventually became. Willie's restless energy, contagious enthusiasm, and leadership qualities soon earned him the trust and respect of many people with whom he came in contact. Willie was active in community and professional organizations and inevitably occupied positions of leadership. Willie was in too many groups to mention but his Easter egg hunts, pancake breakfasts all in partnerships with service groups were so important to him.

Many people consider him the godfather of the West Sacramento Little League. When problems with finding the right lot was lost in an election and he made it happen. He was the initiator for the first 4th of July celebration.

Willie sold the market in 1979 and after a short retirement went into the restaurant business. His first venture was with Babe and Mario Luigi at Espanol on Folsom Boulevard. He was there for seven years. He then became a managing partner at the Sloughhouse Inn. It was during this time that he married Louise Harris and lived in Davis California for 30 plus years until her death. All those years were happy with traveling and being part of a new family.

Willie moved into his sister Gloria's home in Sacramento for the next five years. They spent most Friday nights at the Club Pheasant visiting with friends and getting free drinks from all the customers who told him they owed it to him for stealing candy at Willies Market. Willie always had his heart in West Sacramento.

Willie will always be missed. He spent 95 years here and his park near the market he built will ALWAYS be a reminder of the man, the Hero we all just called WILLIE!
