

Washington Unified announces class of 2020 graduation plans

(Editor's Note: The following is an open letter from the Washington Unified School District to the public.)

There has been a great deal of effort and inquiry with health officials in how Yolo County high school seniors may be recognized and honored during the shelter in place orders. We are committed to ensuring our Class of 2020 high school seniors are celebrated and recognized even under these restricted circumstances.

Keeping safety and health our highest priority, it is determined that our best option to celebrate our Class of 2020 is through a virtual graduation event as a beginning to possible future celebrations. A virtual option ensures the health and safety of our students, families, and school communities while still recognizing graduating seniors for their accomplishments. The virtual graduation event will be inclusive of all three school graduations, each in its separate segment of the graduation event so that parents will know when to tune in for their student's respective ceremony. Access to our virtual graduation event will be available for everyone during the streaming of the graduation ceremony and afterward for keep-sake.

We have heard about the loosening of some COVID-19 restrictions which may give the impression that in-person events while practicing social distancing is acceptable. As of today, this is not the case for Yolo County. Large group activities are still not permitted according to public health officials. There is no way to predict when organized group activities will be allowed or how restrictive they will be once approved. It is also important to note that WUSD must comply with Yolo County health orders which may be different from our neighboring schools and districts living in other counties.

Here is what we currently have planned:

A virtual graduation ceremony will be live-streamed on a custom website and viewable on a mobile device or computer and accessible for all families, friends, and community members. A senior lawn sign and cap and gown drive-thru pick up day is scheduled where teachers and staff can be present to cheer and celebrate the Class of 2020 as they receive their items. More information will be provided as the seniors pick up their cap and gown for the next steps.

We have appreciated many thoughts shared about some potential ideas for the future. Knowing that circumstances change each week, we cannot promise but hope the following suggestions can be possible under public health orders once restrictions are lifted from our public health.

In today's restrictions of COVID-19, graduation diplomas will be mailed to the student's home at the end of June. IF COVID-19 restrictions change before that time, we will consider the potential for a drive-through diploma pick-up ceremony.

If organized group activities are permissible again in the summer, barbecue might be possible for all members of the Class of 2020 and their families.

If organized group activities are permissible again in the summer, we would like to work with each school's leadership to organize a formal ceremony inviting all members of the Class of 2020 and their families to participate at each respective high school.

If organized group activities are permissible again in the summer and fall, we expect to specially plan our Homecoming at River City High School for a special event at halftime.

If organized group activities are not permissible again in the summer

Yolo County Amends Health Order to Include Retail Curbside Pick-Up, Manufacturing and Logistics

Yolo County has amended the current Shelter-in-Place order to now allow all manufacturing, logistics and warehouse operations, as well as curbside pick-up and delivery for retail establishments to resume on May 8. This amendment aligns the County with recent modifications to the State's Stay-at-Home Order, which allows certain businesses to reopen in a limited capacity under Phase Two of the state's four-phase reopening plan. The County's Shelter-in-Place order is still in effect through May 31.

Effective May 8, Yolo County is allowing the following activities to resume that have been assessed as low risk for the spread of COVID-19 and are consistent with the State Order, as long as they 1) follow State guidelines and 2) adhere to strict social distancing requirements:

- Curbside pick-up and delivery for retail establishments
- Manufacturing
- Logistics and warehouse operations

Curbside pick-up and delivery allows retailers to resume operations in a modified contactless format where customers can pre-order, pay for items and either pick up items outside the store or have them delivered to their home. The retail establishments permitted by the state to conduct curbside pick-up include, but are not limited to: clothing stores, bookstores, shoe stores, jewelry stores, home and furnishing stores, sporting good shops, antique stores, music stores, toy stores, and florists. All manufacturing, logistics, and warehouse industries may also resume operations. Businesses should follow established

West Sacramento man Vladimir Moscaliuc, age 32, has been charged with attempted carjacking by the Yolo County District Attorney's Office after being arrested by Woodland police on May 5.

Moscaliuc is currently being supervised on Post Release Community Supervision

(PCRS) by the Yolo County Probation Department after serving a term in State Prison. He was arrested on April 29, for violating his conditions of PCRS. Moscaliuc was released that same day as a result of California Judicial Council's

It's hard to keep up, isn't it. SO many mixed messages. Scientists say one thing. The White House, another. States issue their own orders. Counties scramble to keep up. Meantime, Sac Metro (which includes West Sac) has the lowest rate of Covid-19 infections of any major metro in America, according to an exclusive Sunday story 5/3 in the Bee.

DON'T GET COMPLACENT – warns the CDC. At best, the virus will simply 'simmer' and surge again this fall.

Meantime, for nurses and dentists, protective masks, gowns and face shields reportedly still are in short supply.

Probably why just regular Joes like you and me aren't allowed medical masks that do a better job of blocking virus particles. Cloth face coverings are better than nothing, we're told, and based on something I saw on Chris Cuomo's show, I think it's true. Researchers' experiment showed someone talking – with a cloth face covering and without. Otherwise invisible droplets flying out of the person's mouth showed up fluorescent green. With the cloth face covering, a few did still escape. But without it, the potentially infectious drops were a full on spray.

Door to Door: Covidiocy

BY PAT LYNCH

Don't those people who protest that we must fully reopen remind you of the Virus itself? You've seen those electron microscope magnified pictures of Covid 19—bunchy in some parts, and stringy in others—kind of purplish-orange? Well, that's what the Open Up Now! crowd looked like. Their cars and trucks, festooned with flags, (some Confederate, some Nazi) made a creepy parade to our state capitol grounds where they practiced freedom of assembly and freedom to spread the killer virus. They rallied in many states. In Michigan they also brought, along with their guns, a noose and swastika emblems to the governor's office and to her private home. A noose.

I am no stranger to protest and have exercised it since the seventies when many thousands assembled to object to the Vietnam War, to march for women's rights, racial justice, and other causes. But I never brought a gun to a march, or a raft of guns with bandoliers, or automatic war weapons, never strutted into a state capitol armed to the teeth with smaller guns and knives jutting stupidly from my pretend combat boots. And a jillionaire cabinet member (today it's Betsy DeVos) never organized and financed any protest in which I participated.

So these are different times. These protesters seem more like a joke about themselves, as though they're unwitting actors in a drama written by a cruel satirist. They're all dressed up for combat, when what they truly want is for the bowling alley to open. They want the bars, the malls, the casinos, the midway, the salon, the barber shop, the massage parlor, the whole carefree circus of social commerce. Staying home all day and watching Fox News or Duck Dynasty reruns is boring.

And truly, we'd all like things to be put magically back the way they were: bustling, fun, social. But now it's not only Covid 19 that intimidates us. It's the Covidiots themselves.

Who are they and what is Covidiocy?

Here's a little breakdown for you.

Covidiotics are, of course, people who practice Covidiocy. The "Co" means they co-operate with the virus. These people ignore scientists and spew unmasked trillions of virus particles upon the innocent, spread the disease and add to the body count.

Covidiousness (often called Cohidiousness). This is lying about the virus, its lethality, origins, treatment, body count, etc. These people resent their better-informed neighbors and leaders. One of them shot a security guard (yes, they bring those big boy guns everywhere). Another berated a shopper for wearing a mask. Another pushed a park ranger into a lake. One of them spat at a bus driver who asked her to wear a mask. There is another word for these particular Cohidious exemplars: asshats.

Covapidity. The Covapids are people who care only, and rather listlessly, for themselves. They don't follow the news, are tanned but otherwise vague, and congregate by the water in oiled clumps. They are not aggressive but are deadly vectors because their asymptomatic Covid 19 is aggressive.

Covid Beach Disorder. This is a fatal desire to lounge on shore with the Covapids.

Covid Bleach Disorder. These are the people who, inspired by the president's medical speculations, think drinking Lysol might cure the disease and clear the lungs.

Covidquackery. Suggesting Covid 19 can be cured by taking Hydroxychloroquine. You should join a class action suit against Fox News if you tried this and, say, a carrot-shaped growth emerged from your ear.

Covidocracy. This is the religious institutionalization of Covidiocy. It occurs when prominent big tent TV preachers prattle about the need to prematurely re-open the country and accept the consequent rising death toll. This despite their previously staunch "pro life" positioning. And tis despite grave disagreement from Dr. Fauci and multiple other accredited scientists and medical authorities. Catholic Cardinals Dolan and Burke recently these fundamentalists, another moral choice at odds with professed values. Pro life? Not so much these days. Seems they're "pro life" chiefly when it comes to controlling the reproductive freedom of females.

So that's the opposition. Our governor says, "the overwhelming majority (of Californians)... are doing the right thing." That's true, and we're that majority. We've got Covidia Anxiety and Covidia Fatigue, and we've retreated to save ourselves and protect others. It's not easy and not fun. But we're here, and we mean to survive. So we're following the guidelines, distancing, postponing, having parties on Zoom, staying home. We know what's required. We're not slamming around with guns and Dixie flags, trying to bully nurses, threatening officials, spreading pestilence with our flawed twaddle and our very breath itself.

And we'll be here to vote in November.

guidelines from the State as well as adhere to proper social distancing requirements available on the State's website: <https://www.covid19ca.gov/roadmap/>. The County's amended health order also clarifies recommended child-care conditions.

While the State Order is in effect, counties may only permit activities to resume that are not prohibited by the State Order. Recently, the State announced they would allow for regional variation, meaning that different counties can proceed through the state's Phase 2 re-opening at different speeds. Counties can move further into Phase Two, if they can attest to meeting the State's criteria by submitting a readiness plan approved by the local health officer and Board of Supervisors. In preparation for this, Yolo County is developing a draft readiness plan for future review by the Board of Supervisors.

The State has also provided guidance and checklists for 17 sectors, including: agriculture, auto-dealerships, communications infrastructure, construction, delivery service, energy and utilities, food packing, hotels and lodging, life sciences, logistics and warehousing facilities, manufacturing, mining and logging, office workspaces, ports, public transit and intercity passenger rail, real estate, and retail. This information can be found on the State's website: <https://covid19.ca.gov/roadmap/>.

"With the preliminary re-opening of specified retail establishments and manufacturing in Yolo County we've taken one more step toward resuming more normalized activities," said Yolo County Board Chair Gary Sandy. "All of these changes will require adherence to health standards and safe practices, including social distancing, hand washing, and where necessary, face coverings."

Yolo County continues to monitor developments related to the State Order as well as local data. Additional amendments on loosening or tightening activities under the County's Shelter-in-Place order will be based on developments related to these two areas. For additional information related to the County's Shelter-in-Place amendment, visit www.yolocounty.org/coronavirus-roadmap. Residents can also call Yolo 2-1-1 for resource information. An old-school approach to homeschooling during the pandemic with a dash of modernity

BY MONICA STARK

No alarm clocks, no rushing to school or work. I have somehow managed to tell my daughter, Sophie, that cuddles until 9 a.m. are required. And that we have ALL DAY to do the things we need to do. We don't need to adhere to any 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., schedule, but the daily cuddle fest is required. Above all, I want her to have good memories of this pandemic. Of course, she misses her school and friends and she's definitely not learning as much from me as she does her beloved teacher. She's been writing letters to those she misses. She steals my phone for hours at a time to talk with her best friend. It's as sweet as an experience as it can be. I am grateful for the job and school flexibility. So many parents are stressing out because of all the Zooming that has to be scheduled for. I am sad for children who have to spend hours a day in front of a computer screen.

The digital divide has long existed prior to the pandemic, but what school closures have shown school districts is how tech equity is needed at home. Fortunately, the school district has provided Chromebooks to those who need them and they are a big help, however, I have heard from some families how difficult it is to do the distance learning because they can't afford the high-powered wifi that other families are accustomed to.

There are other ways children can learn the standards required by schools.

While my second grade daughter attends a Title 1 school where more than half of the students are on free or reduced lunch and many have needed to pick up Chromebooks provided by the school district, the curriculum at least for the younger grades includes very limited amount of "Zooming" or distance learning. Each day her teacher provides a 15-minute math lesson and has worksheets that go along with it. Besides that, daily book reading and writing is required. Again, not too much time is spent behind the computer.

But what really sets her school apart are weekly family projects that require creative thinking, creativity, teamwork and maybe even some blood and tears. The first said project was fort building; the second, imagination (imagining a perfect vacation and bringing it home-bound); the third was an animal project and this week we're Introducing "Starboard"... the intergalactic fort. Sophie was really great at finding materials to use. Her main goal was to have a fort to sleep in as part of her fort building family project.

making an art display in our front yard out of materials found in the natural world. With these projects, students had to collect all their materials from their quarantined home, write them down the list of materials, tell a story about their creations and draw what it looks like. While they are family projects, they are child led and directed. She's my boss and I am her worker bee and also her photographer. I have enjoyed photographing the projects and sharing them with other parents and children in the class. Truly, the community has tried to stay together as much as possible under these strange times. The crossing guard at the school has fallen ill and students have knitted squares that the hand-work teacher sewed together into a quilt. She then delivered to it to him and shared a video of his reaction. Touched by how many hands went into the quilt, he said he didn't realize he mattered that much.

This quarantine situation has highlighted the love that was already in our community. Seeing the video and photos of the crossing guard brought tears of joy and love to many of those who have seen it.

Remember parents: You are your child's first teacher, after all, and don't forget to treat yourself just as kindly as you do your precious students.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

Purpose: The Governing Board of the Washington Unified School District, in order to comply with the requirements of Board Policy 6141, will hold a public hearing on May 14, 2020 at 5:30 pm for the purpose of adopting instructional materials for the 6th through 8th grades Science Program. Due to the Board Meeting being held virtually, you can go to: <https://amplify.com/> to get more information about the new adoption.
Date: Thursday, May 14, 2020
Time: Meeting begins at 5:30.
Location: Due to the current shelter in place order in Yolo County, the Board of Education will hold its regularly scheduled meeting through a virtual meeting. To hear

It is with a heavy heart that after many meetings and much discussion the Board of Directors and Staff made the very difficult decision to cancel the 2020 Yolo County Fair.

This decision was not made lightly. The health and safety of our community is our top priority. This is a big disappointment to our Fair Staff, Board of Directors, Vendors, Volunteers, Local Organizations, Concessionaires, Exhibitors, Carnival Staff and the community but it is the right decision.

Planning for Fair takes months to produce this high-quality event. Due to the uncertainty of when restrictions for large public gatherings will be lifted, we are not able to make plans for the caliber of Fair everyone expects.

We wish everyone good health in the coming days. When we can safely open the fairgrounds to the public, we will continue with our tradition to schedule the events you enjoy and love - including the 2021 Yolo County Fair... "Wheel Be Llamazing".

or fall, we hope to invite all members of the Class of 2020 and their families to participate in and be celebrated during the spring 2021 commencement ceremonies as other universities and colleges are offering. We share in the disappointment and heartbreak that we are not able to host our traditional graduation ceremonies. But we stay committed to the Class of 2020 to be recognized for their grit, determination, and accomplishments. To accomplish a positive, supportive time in these changes and unprecedented circumstances, we need your help, and most of all, your patience and understanding. The answers we seek are not always within our control, but we will do everything within our means to ensure the Class of 2020 receives the recognition they deserve.

Please stay tuned as we continue monitoring daily the situation with COVID-19 to determine what our next steps will be. We are cautiously optimistic, but please remember that all future planning is tentative and subject to the ever-changing nature of the COVID-19 pandemic.

This 'n' That

forcing the order at the door. So is Petco. West Sac Walmart, though. Now that's a horse of a different color. Signs warn that carts aren't sterilized, but a dispenser at the door has antiseptic wipes. Some shoppers take a handful (I do). Many walk right by. While most staff are masked, some need a refresher that the proper way to wear a face covering is not dangling from your neck or chin. As for the 'distancing' – in the aisles, staff ignores that completely when it restocks. Customers, masked and unmasked, pile up, waiting for the aisle to clear – some talking to each other no more than two feet apart. At checkout, on a busy Sunday, clerks informed bagless customers that Walmart had no bags. Seems the company was told it could no longer charge for bags after it was first instructed to tell customers they could no longer bring in their own. The clerk in my line said it has to do with the number of bags ordered being based on the number of sold. When Walmart stopped charging customers for the bags, it came up as no bags sold, and the system didn't restock the bags.

I had bags in my trunk, and with few groceries, it only took a few minutes to bag the stuff myself. As I was doing that, a mom and her daughter, wearing face coverings, pulled in next to me. They'd forgotten to bring bags. The daughter said, "Walmart has bags." I said, "no bags. But if you need some, you can have these," and produced a quantity from my 'stash'. You hear "God bless you" a lot these days. It's nice. I like it. A few days earlier, doing a cricket run at West Sac's Wild West Feed (my three Bearded Dragons and four geckos all eat crickets). Was sorry the owner, Paul, wasn't there. He's fun and informative to talk to. As staff, all wearing face shields, rounded up the crickets,

I visited with Gus, the store's resident Macaw. All customers were abiding by the sign on the door: Masks required. I once asked Paul, "Will Gus bite me?" (I know big birds can crack a walnut with their beak.) Paul, his wry sense of humor showing, said, "Only if you touch him." I verbally admire Gus, but don't try to touch him. A masked couple joined my masked self to spend some time with Gus. The husband gave Gus a couple treats from an open dish, which Gus took very gently. This bird whisperer guy gave Gus a head scratch! The bird whisperer noted bald spots on Gus' chest and wing. He mused that Gus might be molting. But the staff said no, "He's stressed. He misses Paul." Some months back, Paul told me this is the year that he'll retire. Staff said, now, he comes in once a week. The Stay Home order is tough on Gus as well. Staff says, "He likes when people talk to him." And, because of Covid, Saturday vet clinics at Wild West have been suspended. Plus, no more Macaw TV: A bunch of vocal budgies next to him sold out, staff says. So, bored and lonely, Gus is pulling out his feathers.

Paul told me he tried to take Gus home one time, but Gus, now 31, has always lived at the store. Then, too, he missed 'his' customers. Paul took him back. Gus stopped picking at his feathers. "Phased reopening" has begun in California. For Gus's sake, I hope his many admirers all come back soon.

In other Covid-related animal news: Research now says, if you have the virus, you can infect your cat or dog, but please don't panic. Vets have a Covid-for-Cats/Dogs-test, but say, in pets, the symptoms are largely mild. The risk, if any, of cross-infecting humans is, according to the research, very low. A caveat. If you kiss your pet on the mouth, the CDC says, "Don't do that." Questions, comments? Contact Carol at carol@bartononline.com.

Go Red for Women® Luncheon: Sacramento women unite to end heart disease and stroke, event goes virtual

The American Heart Association, the world's leading nonprofit organization focused on heart and brain health for all, announced that its 2020 Sacramento Go Red for Women will be a virtual event to support the fight to end heart disease and stroke in women. While nearly 80 percent of cardiac events may be prevented, cardiovascular disease continues to be a woman's greatest health threat. Cardiovascular diseases claim the lives of 1 in 3 women in the United States.

This annual signature event will be held on Friday, May 15 as a virtual gathering, to prioritize the safety and well-being of guests and families. Registered attendees will be asked to wear their favorite red athleisure outfit and join other Go Red for Women supporters online. The event will feature inspiring survivor stories and informative speakers including:

Keynote speaker and Sutter Health Cardiologist Dr. Sonya Raghavan who will present on the importance of women knowing your personal health numbers to assess their risk for heart disease and stroke.

Sutter Health's Director of Clinical Care for System Mental Health Services Dr. Urmi N. Patel who will speak about supporting good mental health and self-care.

Sutter Health Cardiologist Dr. Reetu Sharma who will facilitate a live polling session on family heart health.

Go Red for Women is nationally sponsored by CVS Health and locally sponsored by the Sutter Heart & Vascular Institute. The Go Red for Women virtual event, chaired by Thomas Rhodes, Administrative Director, Sutter Medical Center, is designed to raise awareness about cardiovascular disease, the leading cause of death for women in the United States, as well as generate funds for lifesaving cardiovascular research for women. In fact, the Association is fast-tracking a special $2.5 million fund for rapid response scientific research projects to investigate the specific cardiovascular implications of coronavirus, investing in short-term projects that can turn around results quickly - within 9-12 months.

"Cardiovascular disease is still the leading cause of death in women and disparities continue to exist in research and care. Heart disease can be different in women than in men, yet women continue to be underrepresented in clinical trials. With new threats to heart disease patients like COVID-19 it is imperative that we close this research gap in order to continue to save and improve lives," said Rhodes.

Go Red for Women launched in 2004 to empower women to reduce their risk for cardiovascular disease, which continues to be the leading killer and is on the rise in younger women. However, nearly 80% of cardiac events may be prevented. To protect their health, women should understand family health history, know their numbers - the five key personal health numbers that help determine risk for heart disease: total cholesterol, HDL (good) cholesterol, blood pressure, blood sugar and body mass index - and make lifestyle changes like moving more, eating smart and managing their blood pressure. Risk factors within women's control include smoking, high cholesterol, high blood pressure, physical inactivity, poor diet, obesity/overweight and type 2.
