Centennial Rotary Club joins with West Sacramento Trail Riders to improve literacy

By Jan Dalske

News Ledger, West Sacramento

This was the third year that the Centennial Rotary Club, the local chapter of Rotary International co-sponsored a program to improve literacy among the second graders in West Sacramento schools. The CRC teamed with the West Sacramento Trail Riders Association.

The plan was to launch a two-pronged, equestrian attack. Don Schatzel of CRC explained the concept: "Thanks to support from the Southport PTO (parent-teacher organization) and the WSTRA, we bought a book with horses in them for every second grader at Westmore Oaks Elementary, Sac Valley Charter School, Stonegate Elementary and Westfield Village Elementary.

The News-Ledger followed up with the actual horses that the students had read about. The students came to Westmore Oaks (the "old" River City High campus on Clarendon Street) for a special assembly last week. The horse trailers were parked on the school's football track. Emcee Roberta Firoved, a member of CRC, introduced the riders and horses when they each came closer to the excited children who had gathered near the field.

She told the assembly about the horses' breeds and explained where the horses came from and what they were trained to do.

She explained some details about the horses, such as why their eyes are on the sides of their heads. Because their eyes are located there, they are able to see nearly 360 degrees at one time and watch for predators. Horses can gallop at around 27 miles per hour. Domestic horses have a life span of around 25 years. A male horse is called a stallion. A female horse is referred to as a mare. A young male horse is called a colt, and a young female horse is a filly. Ponies are small horses. There were no ponies at this event.

Roberta pointed out the variety of breast collars which help keep the saddle from sliding back on the horses. Jim, a schoolteacher who recites Cowboy Poetry was riding a 20 year old Quarter Horse whose color was buckskin. Sam, short for Samuel, is a 14-year-old Spotted Appaloosa who came from an Idaho Indian Tribe. He pulls a wagon and makes funny sounds when he eats.

Robin was riding Batman, a trail quarter horse. Anne Tatum was riding Phil bareback. He was bred to have a short tail and was trained in the Amish country to pull a wagon or cart. He pulls carts in Old Sacramento

Morrie, which means "more storms coming" is nine years old, and is taller and thinner than a standard build horse. He is a Cal Expo horse and jogged on the race track as what is called a pacer or trotter. His leg was injured and his home is in West Sacramento now.

Rod Beckwith with Charlie loves trails and just hanging. Some horses came from the Bureau of Land Management and were previously wild. The second graders were told they could pet the horses but that there would be no riding that day. After the talk, kids were invited to line up on one side of a fence while the horses came by within touching distance along the other side: "Read it, see it, touch it."

Municipal Election will take place in West Sacramento in November

By Jan Dalske

News Ledger, West Sacramento

In the City of West Sacramento (CWS) a municipal election is held on the first Tuesday in November in even-numbered years. This year a municipal election will take place and, two of the current members of the City Council terms as well as the Mayor's term will expire.

Christopher Cabaldon became the first mayor that was directly elected by the West Sacramento voters in November 2004. He was re-elected in 2006, 2008, 2010, 2012 and 2014. Voters first elected Mr. Cabaldon to the City Council in 1996. Prior to his election by the voters he had been elected to four single year terms as mayor by the West Sacramento City Council (WSCC). His current term expires in November 2016. There are no term limits in West Sacramento.

Bill Kristoff is the only original member of the WSCC that is still serving. He was first elected by the voters in 1987. This was the year that West Sacramento became incorporated as a city. He has been re-elected every year since his first term.

Beverly "Babs" Sandeen was appointed to the City Council in 2014 when Oscar Villegas left the WSCC to become a Yolo County Supervisor for the 1st District. Ms Sandeen had previously served on the West Sacramento City's Planning Commission since 2004.

The CWS is what is known as a General Law City. It was founded in 1987. The CWS is governed by a five member city council. The City Council members are elected at large for a four year term. The Mayor is elected for a two year term. Each December, the Council meets and chooses one of its members as Mayor Pro tem.

The candidate filing period for Mayor and two City Council seats is from July 18- August 12. Interested persons will be invited to apply in person at the City Clerk's office (City Manager's Office 1110 W. Capitol Avenue) during normal business hours, 8-5. Appointments are recommended but not required. Additionally, qualified candidates must be a registered voter of West Sacramento and at least 18 years of age. For more information contact the City Clerk's staff at 617-4500.

The City Clerk serves as the election officer and is responsible for issuance and acceptance of nomination papers, city measures and the publication of necessary legal notices. In addition, all campaign disclosure statements and statements of economic interest filings required by the Fair Political Practices Commission are centralized in the City Clerk's Office. Big Blue Recycling Barn Thrift Store Grand Opening June 3

On June 3 at 8:30 a.m., the Yolo County Community Services Department, Integrated Waste Management Division is hosting the grand opening of the Big Blue Recycling Barn Thrift Store, housed at the Yolo County Central Landfill, located at 44090 County Road 28H in Woodland. A ribbon cutting will occur at 8:45 a.m. and the store will open to the public for sales at 9 a.m.

"The Big Blue Recycling Barn Thrift Store was created to reduce the county's carbon footprint and meet our strategic plan objectives focused on waste reduction," said Yolo County Board of Supervisors Chair Jim Provenza. "The repurposing of items through this store will save valuable landfill space and the proceeds will be used to further educate residents on related programs."

Yolo County's new thrift store is modeled after a compilation of best practices from Monterey County's Last Chance Mercantile and Habitat for Humanity's Re-Store in Sacramento. The Yolo County Central Landfill already provides an opportunity for residents and businesses to recycle or safely dispose of waste, whether it is hazardous waste, electronic waste, household garbage or construction materials. The addition of the thrift store, and its adjacent donation station where gently used items can now be dropped off, creates a one-stop-shop for reuse, recycling and waste disposal.

The Big Blue Recycling Barn Thrift Store will initially be open June 3 to June 5, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Depending upon inventory, the plan is to open the store the first weekend of each month. For future store hours and to learn more about integrated waste management in Yolo County, go to: www.yolocounty.org and click on the landfill tab, connect with us on Facebook by searching "Yolo County Recycles" or contact Yolo County's Waste Reduction Manager Marissa Juhler at (530) 666-8813.

Neighbors started their Memorial Day weekend at Bridgeway Lakes Community Playground last Saturday. Bridgeway Play, a local parent’s group, presented a $50,000 dollar check to the City of West Sacramento Parks department, money they raised to make the park something special for the community. Additionally, Mayor Christopher Cabaldon announced the re-opening of the water themed Spray Ground at Bridgeway Lakes, a cooling off spot for kids just in time for the summer. Bridgeway Lakes Park is located at 3650 South Port Parkway in West Sacramento.

Alice Through the Looking Glass

The MPAA has rated this PG

Walt Disney Studios Motion Pictures brings us a sequel to their “Alice in Wonderland” of six years ago, “Alice Through the Looking Glass”, this time with some screenings in 3-D and in IMAX presentations in selected cities. Several of the players from the first movie return, including Johnny Depp as the Mad Hatter, Terrant Hightopp, Mia Wasikowska as Alice, Helena Bonham Carter as Iracebeth of Crims, The Red Queen, her sister Mirana, Anne Hathaway and Steven Fry as the voice of the Cheshire Cat.

In a prologue showing Alice, much more adult from when we last saw her, we find that she is the master of her own ship at sea and from what we see, quite a good one. When she returns from her voyage, she discovers there are some pressing financial issues that weigh her down. These include the pending confiscation of her ship and possible loss of her ancestral home. Distressed, she once again notices that the looking glass in a secluded room beckons her, and through it she goes.

She is informed on arrival in Wonderland that the Hatter's life is slipping away from him, and he is ridden with regret that he has lost his family, the Hightopps. He is wounded further by Alice, who visits him, yet does not believe his story. She must find out just how to reverse time so that the Hatter may save his family. The answer to how that may be done is contained in a little time-travel orb called the Chronosphere. To find it, she must actually meet Time himself in his far-away castle.

The screen writer, Linda Woolverton, may have been inspired in coming up with dialogue for some of the time related elements of this movie by a scene written by Truman Capote and John Huston for the 1953 movie “Beat The Devil”, where Peter Lorre defines time:

“Time, time, what is time? The Swiss manufacture it, the French horde it, the Italians squander it, Americans say it is money, Hindus say it does not exist...You know what I say, I say time is a crook!”

Time himself is a new character in the Disney telling of this story, an amalgam of “Alice's Adventures in Wonderland” and “Through the Looking Glass”. Time is played by Sacha Baron Cohen, naturally, with a Swiss-German accent.

This movie's fantasy world is escapist not only in place but in and out of time as well. Part of the rich imagination that dazzles the eye is the handiwork of Oscar winning costumer Colleen Atwood. Her costumes are quite sumptuous in this production. The move is technically a wonder, with some remarkably good sound recording and subtle use of clever sound editing, much of it the work of Benjamin A. Burt. Larger than life in 3-D and IMAX is surely the best way to experience this movie, which I found highly entertaining. Yes there are moments in the in and out of time sequences when it seems much more like science fiction that Lewis Carroll, but it is well done. Perhaps the designers were also reading about Baron Munchausen. The Gothic design of the interior of time's castle is splendid indeed and Helena Bonham Carter's Red Queen is joyfully wicked and intolerant. Not a great film, but a highly visual and entertaining one. Madcap fantasy and fun.

X-Men: Apocalypse

The MPAA has rated this PG-13

Twentieth Century Fox Film Corporation offers “X-Men: Apocalypse” from director Bryan Singer, who helmed the first of several X-Men movies in the year 2000. The most recent X-Men movie before this one was set in the 1970s. This one is set in the 1980s. Returning are Professor X, played by James McAvoy, Magneto played by Michael Fassbender, and Mystique played by Jennifer Lawrence.

These principal players must re-unite as another mutant from ancient Egyptian times forces himself into the present. He is the all-powerful and Egyptian god-like En Sabah Nur or Apocalypse for short and you may sure bet that he will collect four mutant horsemen to cleanse the world of what he perceives may be its iniquities. At the U.S. intelligence agency, we see actress Rose Byrne as MacTaggart, who has just returned from a hidden dig in Egypt and seen remarkable things occur before her very eyes. The X-Men pay her a visit and she tells them what she's discovered about the rise of Apocalypse.

I was surprised at the rich level of detail and care taken with the photography in this movie, which runs a long 144min. Cinematographer Newton Thomas Sigel has taken great care to light the bigger than life personalities majestically. In the role of the all-powerful En Sabah Nur or Apocalypse as he is alternately called, is talented Oscar Isaac, in blue face paint and dress of an Egyptian God. He summons four helpers his “four horsemen”, as it were to protect him for destruction as he plans to purify the earth and wipe it clean of national superpowers and what he calls false gods.

The four horsemen of the apocalypse of the bible's Book of Revelation were Conquest, War, Famine and Death. In this story partially written by director Brian Singer, Apocalypse's helpers are made up of Storm, played by Alexandra Shipp, Psylock, played by Olivia Munn, aforementioned Michael Fassbender as Magneto, and as Angel (as in angel of death), a young newcomer that I'd not seen before, English actor Ben Hardy. He does not have a lot of screen time, but it is memorable.

I have never been a fan of Marvel comics or DC Comics turned into movies. I often argue that there is not enough character development and that without investment in an entire series of these movies the casual moviegoer that has not seen all in the series may not catch-on to much of the nuance in the fast paced narrative. However, in this picture I was seduced from the opening shot set in ancient Egypt and looking stunning in 3-D. I was delighted by the time that was taken to re-introduce old characters and solidly establish new ones, like Cyclops with his destructive eyes, played by Tye Sheridan. It had the feeling of a classic Saturday afternoon serial, in which pith-helmeted explorers search through Egyptian ruins.

Mind you this is no masterpiece of cinema, but highly entertaining, even when it goes over the top with CGI effects of mass destruction. I viewed it in my mind with child-like delight of watching Godzilla destroy Tokyo. The cast is top-heavy with talent, including a return to the screen for Ally Sheedy. One of my favorite young actors today, Nicholas Hoult turns in a solid performance. I think he's going to go on to great things in his career. Marvel legend Stan Lee's obligatory cameo has an unusually serious tone. Two performances elevate this movie to something to really enjoy; that of Oscar Isaac and that of Michael Fassbender as Magneto, who is really sensational in his performance, which is given enough context for it to resonate with the audience.

I found this far superior to any other comic book based story in the movies of recent. Much care was given to the look of the movie but most of all; it's fun to watch. With all of the dissecting that one can do with a movie in critical analysis, sometimes we might forget an important value for the moviegoer: Is it fun? On that level, X-Men: Apocalypse soars above many.

In a group with others who have shared a similar loss, support comes from exploring, sharing, and clarifying feelings. Individuals are encouraged to consider attending no matter how long ago the suicide occurred. The group meets monthly at Yolo Hospice. There is no fee for this group, funded by the Ladd Clark Memorial Fund and Suicide Prevention of Yolo County. 6 to 7:30 p.m. at Yolo Hospice 1909 Galileo Court, Davis, 95618.

June Free suicide loss supportgroupstarts in June Suicide Prevention of Yolo County (SPYC) will begin holding a monthly "Friends and Families of Suicide Loss Support Group" or Survivors Support group at Yolo Hospice beginning in June. The effect of a suicide on friends and family can be overwhelming. Survivors of suicide loss often state that no other loss has been as painful or confusing. Additional feelings of guilt, anger, and sadness can create a complicated grief process. In a group with others who have shared a similar loss, support comes from exploring, sharing, and clarifying feelings. Since suicide grief can have an ongoing impact, individuals are encouraged to consider attending no matter how long ago the suicide occurred. There is no fee for this group, which is funded by the Ladd Clark Memorial Fund and Suicide Prevention of Yolo County. If you are interested in finding out more about this support group or when the group meets, please call the SPYC business office at 530-756-7542 or send us an email at SPYC@sbcbglobal.net.
